Surely it does not require an infallible Pope to calculate that to have gassed or executed four million Jews in Auschwitz in five years is practically impossible—and could only be the product of a satanic imagination, the same kind that could murder 4,150 Polish officers but try to get Germans hanged for the crime! What a pity that an ethnically Polish Pope fell into this shameful trap and stupendous lie!

Graduation Day

AT UC BERKELEY JUNE 1979

by R.I. Peterson

Graduation from school is like a baby leaving the womb or a bird leaving the nest—the protective environment is removed and the individual must cope independently with the outer world. How do students today feel about going out into 'the real world,' as they call it? What is the mood, attitude, and expectations of the last graduating class of the 1970's as they leave the nest and try their wings in the 80's? The graduates are, after all, our future.

Although commencement addresses by establishment figures and farewell addresses by the class valedictorian are supposed to bridge the gap between school and the real world, they rarely tell us anything worth listening to or reporting. Occasionally though, reality breaks through the false optimism and empty rhetoric, and we learn something, as in Solzhenitsyn's commencement adress at Harvard in 1978 when he charged the West with a "failure of nerve." This got a lot of publicity in the media, most of it bad. People wanted to kill the messenger bringing bad news.

During the darkest days of the 30's depression, a high school class graduated, with their valedictory in the school paper saying, "WPA, here we come." This got nationwide publicity, too, but it was welcome news as it was seen as a kind of bravado and a sign of confidence in America's future. The WPA was a low-paid, make-work government project to ease the unemployment problem. The graduating class did not expect much, but they weren't downhearted.

In the late 40's graduating students were concerned about the new knowledge of the destructive power of the A-bomb, and thought T.S. Eliot might be wrong in his famous poem, The Hollow Men, which concludes: "This is the way the world ends Not with a bang but a whimper." The students could live with the A-bomb though and were not really depressed.

The counterculture revolution began in 1964 at the Berkeley campus of the University of California with the Free Speech Movement, and culminated in the nationwide campus riots of 1969-70. Since then, Berkeley has been looked to as a kind of weather vane or indicator of the state of mind of the current crop of students.

Many people also see California as manifesting tendencies only incipient in the rest of America, and the San Francisco Bay Area (which includes Berkeley) as representing the furthest development of these trends—a kind of early warning system or presage of things to come.

UC Berkeley gets students from all over the world, but very few Negroes or Mexicans are able to meet the high entrance requirements. The 1979 graduating seniors have spent four years in the Bay Area at one of the world's top universities. It would be interesting to know what's on their mind as they look forward to the next decade—the 80's—and leave the campus to live in 'the real world.'

We are told today's students are practical and career-oriented, but this tells us little about their state of mind—as did "WPA, here we come" in the school paper of the 30's. The final edition of the UC paper, The Daily Californian, June 15, 1979, contained an editorial "review of the last 12 months" on campus, and next to it, a farewell address concerning the larger issues of life, entitled "The last word in horror."

This is a catalog of all the bad news, violence, paranoia, real fears, disasters, catastrophes, and horror that characterize America today. There is not a glimmer of hope, optimism, or good news in this valedictory. It is a vote of no confidence in America. Things have gone wrong, but "We're not sure how to fix things, or even if they can be fixed, and we have no idea of who is to blame."

The concluding sentence, the final farewell, is: "See you around, Pilgrims—if not in the next decade, then in the next world." This bleak and gloomy valedictory, which questions our ability to get through the next decade alive, is illustrated by a woodcut of a man staring in horror at our world today. The caption is, "The End of Western Civilization."

This is not the viewpoint of superstitious peasants afraid of the dark, but of America's educated elite—the people we look to for leadership in the future.

There is some similarity in the mood of the 1979 American graduates to the 'existentialist despair' of the Europeans following WWII. After six years of war, and facing a bleak future, they were simply trying to survive, looking out for number one, and not interested in any idealistic cause. The German phrase for this was ohne mich—without me, include me out.

The philosophy of existentialism, which expressed this attitude of existence here and now rather than the ideal development of potential or essence for the future, became popular throughout Europe. In philosophical jargon, the slogan was "existence precedes essence."

Actually, the 'despair' of the existentialists had a bitter sweet quality and many young people seemed to be enjoying it. They were not staring into the abyss or the heart of darkness with a look of horror on their face, but were having a good time socializing in the existentialist cafes of Europe—a far better and more satisfying life than America offers young people today.

The students today are existentialists in that they are more interested in practical survival than in joing a cause, and some are living it up, but it is less a celebration of life than an escape from it.

There is a malaise and morbidity in America today that goes much deeper than the dread and despair of the cafe existentialists. The existentialist believes in existence rather than essence (the development of potential for the future), but he still believes in something—the materialistic present. Idealism is lost, and materialism becomes the ideology or faith. Existentialism is a far left faction within Communism.

But today, both existence and essence, actual and potential, present and future, material and ideal, have come into question. The students have no ideals to follow and the materialistic world is now too horrible to live in. There is a vacuum in which people blindly try one thing after another—drugs, cults, jogging, etc.—but there is no real belief in anything.

The students are not aware to what extent the Jews are responsible for the state of the world today, but 'the real world' the graduates enter into now is one without ideals. It is the Jews' materialistic utopia on earth—a world of isolated, alienated, powerless, brainwashed individuals—controlled by the Jews.

In Orwell's famous novel on dictatorship, 1984, 'Big Brother' (control) was not identified, but as we move into the 1980's it turns out to be the Jews.

WHO RULES THE NATION? Shocking facts for Patriots! 12 issues THE LIBERTY BELL $12.00 from Liberty Bell Publications, Reedy, W.Va. 25270.

The International Jew
THE WORLD'S FOREMOST PROBLEM

AS ORIGINALLY PUBLISHED BY HENRY FORD, SR. IN THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT

This is the forty-fifth in a series of articles originally written for Henry Ford, Sr. by The Dearborn Independent in the 1920's.

After a tremendous expenditure of money and effort on the part of Ford's research team, The Dearborn Independent courageously published these shocking disclosures of Jewish domination in America until — and we quote from Elizabeth Dilling's The Plot Against Christianity:

"Louis Marshall brought Henry Ford to his knees when he was printing the truth about Jewry . . ., until now the whole Ford Family on the hour as it were, knock their heads to the ground murmuring "Salaam!" and are lifted up watchfully and given Jewish "awards" at frequent intervals."

Mrs Dilling continues on page 71 of her book:

"Louis Marshall was then [1917-1918] president of it [the American Jewish Committee]. It was he who served notice upon Henry Ford that he must cease telling the truth about the Talmudic cabal OR ELSE. According to the man perhaps most close to Henry Ford, Sr., high in the administration of his affairs, it was the attempt to assassinate Ford by driving his car off the road which caused Mrs Ford to plead with Henry to cease his exposure of Talmudism through his DEARBORN INDEPENDENT, as he told me. All the kowtowing now being done by the Ford family to the "Synagogue of Satan" is but a repetition of what Ford exposed in his paper. One article on how President Taft was brought to his knees, refused a second term, then decorated by B'nai B'rith and given a professorship at Yale — then addressed B'nai B'rith audiences and wrote internationalist propaganda until his death — is almost a replica of the job done on the Fords."

Demand for reprints of these published articles was so great that The Dearborn Independent found it necessary to put this information out in book form, comprising four volumes entitled, The International Jew: The World's Foremost Problem, which are now available once again from Liberty Bell Publications in their original, unabridged form at $24 for the complete set. The usual discount will be allowed to the trade.

We urge fellow Americans to order their sets now, and to tell their friends and neighbors about it.

PREFACE to Volume IV
as originally published by
THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT
May, 1922.

THIS is the fourth volume of reprinted studies on the Jewish Question as they appeared in the DEARBORN INDEPENDENT. The articles follow the same general line as the previous volume in showing the various angles of Jewish influence and achievement in the affairs of the people of the United States, but they do not by any means exhaust either the number of the angles nor the depth of the significance in the angles traced.

Deliberate public opinion has shown many signs of a new alertness to the movemenwhich was proceeding deftly and unnoticed in the midst of America, and many checks have been put in operation. The work of THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT was undertaken at a disadvantage because of the tremendous emphasis of the American mind on racial peace and because of the ease with which racial propagandists can make a purely economic and political matter assume the aspects of a religious controversy. THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT opened the Question to public gaze, and was therefore assumed to be the attacker. In this country our sense of fairness always leaves the advantage with the attacked and false accusations quickly fall. The country has seen, however, the truth of the statements and has observed the mild unprejudiced manner in which they were made, so that it may now be said that truth has made its way.

Most gratifying are the signs which Jews themselves have given that certain abuses must be quickly stopped. A Jewish leader has appealed for the removal of the exemption which nullifies the Constitution of the United States in favor of the Jew with reference to the use of liquor. Other Jewish leaders have sought to compel Jewish theatrical controllers to observe elementary decency in their productions.

These articles have always held that the cleansing must come from within Judah itself. It is recognized that racial pride might prevent many improvements being attempted under fire, but American Jews cannot afford to be ruled by a false pride in this respect. These are days of judgment for all the corruptive forces of society and the Jews cannot expect to escape responsibility for their part in these things.

May, 1922.

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.V. 25270 USA

Please send me the following:

THE INTERNATIONAL JEW

....copies of Vol. 1 @ $7.50 ea.
....copies of Vol. 2 @ $7.50 ea.
....copies of Vol. 3 @ $7.50 ea.
....copies of Vol. 4 @ $7.50 ea.
....compl sets of Vol. 1-4 @ $24.

THE DISPOSSESSED MAJORITY

....copies @ $6.50

THE PROTOCOLS

....copies @ $1.50

COMBINATION OFFER:

....1 ea. of the above @ $30.

NAME: .....
ADDRESS: .....
CITY/STATE/ZIP: .....

LXXIII

JEWS ARE SILENT, THE NATIONAL VOICE IS HEARD.

By order of Louis Marshall, the American Jewish Committee and the B'nai B'rith, American Jewry has muffled the calculated furioso of its outcry, and contents itself now with occasional yelps. No longer do the syndicated sermons of the rabbis take their course across the country, saying the same old untrue things in the same old unsincere way. No longer do editorial echoes spew villification across pages supported by advertising blackmail levied upon the community. The outcry has ceased. Suddenly, on order, orderly as a regiment on parade, American Jewry has been turned from a termagant in action to a silent mystery. A most impressive illustration of the inner control exercised by Jewish leaders.

The psychology of it all, of course, is false. Jewry decided that it was the attention which it paid to THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT which gave these articles vogue. The leaders asserted, indeed, that had the Jews of the United States paid no attention, no one would have known that they were under scrutiny. It is a rather flattering criticism to lay upon their inability to meet the situation, but it lacks the merit of being true.

The Jews of the United States issued the order of silence, not out of wisdom but out of fear. And not out of fear of injustice, but out of fear of the truth. As soon as THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT issued its first articles on the New York Kehillah (and only the outer edges of the facts concerning that institution have as yet been set forth) it became evident to Jewish leaders that something had to be done. They did not challenge a public investigation; rather they used discretion, refused to answer even the questions of local reporters, made absurdly untrue denials, and gave every evidence of panic. Thereafter their safest course was silence.

Not that they are inactive. Fearing a sudden investigation by the authorities, the New York Kehillah has grown extremely busy and has doubled the guards all around. Why?

The reason is that there is a resolution in the United States Senate which points directly at the New York Kehillah.

Prominent Jews have invaded Washington on one pretext or another, but only to turn their influence against that resolution. Why?

The reason is that resolution provides for an investigation by a Senate Committee into certain matters which have already been set forth in THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT.

Senate Resolution No. 60, introduced by Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, provides that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers (a Jewish Bolshevik organization that is the feeder of Red activity throughout this country) be thoroughly investigated. In the official language of the Resolution: "The purposes, objects, methods and tactics of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and its relations, if any, with other political organizations and quasi-political groups, and to make a report to the Senate of such findings."

Why has the New York Kehillah closed the portholes and called in help — "Gentile," by the way — to face a possible storm?

Why have the most prominent Jews in the United States hurried to Washington to hold conferences with Senators, their object being to bring pressure to bear against the Resolution?

Why should the American Jewish Committee, or member of it, why should Jewish clothing manufacturers who are the principal sufferers from the Amalgamated, why should Jewish members of the Baruch "war government" go to Washington to interfere with a proposed investigation? Why?

Becacse such an investigation of the Amalgamated, honestly conducted, would lead straight through to the New York Kehillah and the American Jewish Committee and would rip the Jewish program in the United States clean open to the public gaze — if honestly conducted.

Next to stopping the investigation, the Jews will try to control it. That is really the greater danger. The country does not need the investigation to get the facts. Most of the facts can be given now. The country does need an investigation that will give the facts a governmental exposure. But a pro-Jewish investigation, an investigation conducted by elective office-holders who quake under "the fear of the Jews," would simply be an additional crime.

If the Jews lose their fight to kill the resolution, they have already on their plans to control the initiative of, divert the course of, and defeat the purpose of the investigation.

If, therefore, the Jews are silent, they are not inactive.

But, the gain has been general. For instance, the country has been given quiet and leisure to hear what the non-Jews think. During the Jewish clamor, which was nothing more nor less than an attempt to stampede the public opinion of the United States, it was impossible to hear the voice of the people. Ministers who poured adulation upon the Jews were reported in the Press; but ministers who seriously handled the Jewish Question were not reported. Publications which could be induced to act as Judah's mouthpieces were worked to the limit; publications which desired to preserve the value of their opinions, did not join the general hue and cry. In the succeeding lull, the still, small voice of American conviction, both Jewish and non-Jewish, began to be heard.

In public propaganda, after having felt it inadvisable to print any more telegraphic news from Palestine, because even the Jews could no longer juggle the truth, the spotlight was turned on Russia, and now the newspapers are filled with headlines intended to prepare the public for a new exodus when the Russian people awake to take back their land from the Jewish usurpers.

We are told that 6,000,000 Jews in Russia are in danger of violence. It is true. Much truer than the miles of telegraphic lies which have been printed about alleged "pogroms" in Russia and adjacent countries. THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT knows that in Eastern Europe the Jew has not been persecuted, but has consistently acted as persecutor. The proof of it is in the Jews' ability to flee; they have taken all the wealth of the people of those countries. Poles cannot flee, Rumanians cannot flee; Russians cannot flee; but after having squeezed the life out of those nations the Jews see the dark clouds of justice rolling toward them, and they are able to flee, filling the ships of the sea with their hosts. In fact, their desertion of the Jew-spoiled countries of Europe is as precipitate as was their desertion of Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic party last autumn — Barney Baruch ostentatiously staying behind to cover, if possible, the shamefulness of it. When the Jew has fried the fat and skimmed the cream, he's off. Gratitude and loyalty mean nothing to his people. They are persecutors in Poland. They are persecutors in Russia. They are persecutors in Palestine. They were the arch religious persecutors of history, as the best historians testify. They will be persecutors here as soon as they think they can start it. It is possible, however, that in the United States their anti-social career will be rolled back upon itself.

American magazines have begun to pay attention to the Jewish Question. It is a good sign. Even magazines cannot long ignore what all the people know. It is a good sign of the degree of freedom the Press still enjoys.

It is true, of course, that this freedom is not very great; indeed, not so great as it was a few years ago. But in so far as the Press is American it is impossible for Americans to think it will consent to be permanently gagged even by the Jews. There have been, it is true, some rather sad instances of editorial weakness. We know that of two oldest publishing firms, both of New York, one of them published a most scurrilous Jewish defense by a non-Jewish socialist who, if he has not deliberately lied, has shown too dark an ignorance of facts to command the confidence of a great publishing firm; and we know that that publication was made with a view to the value of the publisher's imprint and that Jews would undertake to buy tens of thousands of copies for gratuitous circulation.

Of the other old New York firm it is known that an American diplomat was advised if not compelled by it to eliminate from his forthcoming book nearly one-third of its material because it dealt in an honest, straightforward American way with what this diplomat had seen with his own eyes of the development of the Jewish subjugation of Russia. Had this diplomat been dealing with his own opinions about the Jews or Russia, it might have been different; but he dealt with his official observations on the spot — observations literally invaluable to history. But this New York firm dared not, even in the interest of history, print the truth.

The experience of G.P. Putnam's Sons, of New York, is familiar to students of the question in recent months. The name of this firm is used because it has already appeared in public print with regard to a controversy it had with the American Jewish Committee.

The Putnams, acting on the ancient and honorable principle of the freedom of the Press, nay more, the duty of the Press to inform the people, reprinted last year "The Cause of World Unrest," which had first appeared as a series of articles in the London Morning Post and was later put into book form by the publishing house of Grant Richards, London. Both the newspaper and the publishing house are of the highest respectability and standing, as was also the house of Eyre and Spottiswoode which brought out the Protocols. Major George Haven Putnam, head of the firm of G.P. Putnam's Sons, is an American, a fair man, a careful publisher, and one who would not stoop to propagate a lie for any wealth.

This is not a defense of "The Cause of World Unrest." In the main the book is true. But it is not the result of original research. It does not make those small but important discriminations on which the Jews always rely to lead the people astray. It too often links in the downfall of Jewry those things which shall stand independently and gloriously when freed of their present insidious Jewish connections. On the whole, however, it maintains a correct view of world affairs. But it was not a book on which the Putnams could feel obliged to make a final stand, except as regards their right to print it.

However, a proper understanding of the book called for the Protocols, to which the book made frequent reference. So, like serviceable publishers, the Putnams announced that the Protocols would follow.

Whereupon the American Jewish Committee — which means Louis Marshall — got busy, and an interesting correspondence ensued. It is included in the report of the American Jewish Committee for 1921. Throughout the correspondence Louis Marshall was the dictator, but Major Putnam's position and statement of principles were correctly maintained. However, there were personal conferences which are not reported in the American Jewish Committee's report and there were Jews crowded into those personal conferences whose names do not appear in the correspondence, and there were fists banged on the table and loud threats — "Boycott," of course — and altogether a rather typical scene enacted. The upshot of that passage was that, upon Major Putnam's discovering that the Boston house of Small, Maynard & Company had published the Protocols, he decided that there was no call for his firm to do so. And now, in a letter to these same people, G.P. Putnam's Sons has decided to discontinue supplying copies of "The Cause of World Unrest" to the book trade.

It is a rather interesting story.

In Britain, of course, publications of the highest standing like "Blackwood's" and the "Nineteenth Century Review" can publish articles on the Jewish Question without regard to dictatorial Jewish attempts at control of the Press. In this country, however, the spies of Jewry are on the alert for every printed letter and syllable, and attempt to make editors feel uncomfortable, as if they were the instigators of pogroms, whenever they present an intelligent view of the question. Yet editors have not been able entirely to ignore it.

The reader is rather impressed with one quality common to all the articles that have been written, namely, the facts used are always those that have been given in THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT. Not that they necessarily have been copied from this magazine, but the fatcs are so well established that anyone who attempts even to "defend" the Jews must necessarily appeal to the same facts. Thus in "New York and the Real Jew," by Rollin Lynde Hartt, in the New York Independent for June 25, 1921, this is illustrated. It is pure Jewish publicity, but it must use the facts that have been used in this series. It must use them in order to extol the Jews. Mr. Hartt is not to be considered as a contributor to the Question; the article is mentioned merely as indicating what the American magazine editor is up against — and perhaps it is not quite fair to be hard on the editor of the New York Independent just at this time. The one flash of value in the entire article is this paragraph:

"Ambassador Page, then editor of the Atlantic, once remarked to me, 'The most interesting fellow in America is the Jew, but don't write about Jews; without intending it, you may precipitate the calamity America should be most anxious to prevent — I mean Jew-baiting'."

That is a strange assertion. The Jews must not be written about. To write about them, even with good intent, may bring evil upon them. Not only a strange assertion, but a strange situation. To mention the Jew has always been dangerous to the non-Jew; but why also dangerous to the Jew? The Jewish explanation of anti-Semitism, that it is in the blood of the other races, that the moment they see a Jew they hate him, cannot be defended. Most non-Jews can testify that it is untrue of them. But it is a most amazing condition if even a mention of Jews arouses this feeling. Why should it?

However, the statement is of doubtful fact-value. The Jew himself should be the first to protest against having to go concealed all his days. He should welcome the use of his definite racial name, and he should not demand that it always be used in laudatory connections. A Jew should not be a Jew when he is elected to the United States Senate, and a "Russian" or a "Pole" when he is caught bootlegging. He should take the luck of life with the other races, and this would come to him without discrimination if he did not first arouse the spirit of discrimination by insisting on discrimination in his own favor.

It is probably much nearer the truth to say that publicity is a preventive of "Jew-Baiting." People should not be confined in a condition which makes the use of the word "Jew" unusual. It should attract no more attention than does the name of any other racial name.

Mr. Page was, before his ambassadorial days, an editor of the Atlantic Monthly, a magazine which is an integral part of American life. To read the Atlantic is a certificate of character. It is one of the few publications that preserve the American spirit in literature. It is still worthy the glory of the group that first made its name known wherever sound thought expressed in good writing is appreciated. The Atlantic is not in need of this appraisal, it is too well established in the regard of the class of minds that give color and sinew to our intellectual life. In Mr. Page's day the Atlantic may never have touched the Jewish Question with even so much as the tip of a discreet pen.

Nevertheless the Atlantic has in more recent years done its duty toward this as toward other questions. As far back as 1917, and that is very far back in view of the crowded years between, this old Boston magazine contained an article relating to the Jewish Question. The fact that the article was written by a Jew does not militate against it, but rather adds to its value. It contained valuable suggestions which the New York Kehillah and the American Jewish Committee might well devote the remaining years of their activities to disseminating and actualizing among the Jews of this country. Even today its counsel would save them from much of the folly which marks their attempts to combat what they call "persecution," and which is nothing but rather plain and charitable truth-telling.

This year the Atlantic has contained three articles of value on the Jewish Question. The first was by Professor Clay upon the situation in Palestine. Now, Professor Clay is not an anti-Semite, and certainly the Atlantic is not, and yet the article was received with a good deal of abuse from Jewish quarters. It told nothing but the truth, and it was rather pertinent truth too, which intelligent Jews doubtless welcomed. Professor Clay knew what he was writing about and his conclusions are not challenged by any authority on the subject.

In the May Atlantic, Ralph Philip Boas, who is understood to be of Jewish descent, wrote an article on "Jew-Baiting in America." He speaks rather disdainfully of publications which have endeavored to air the Jewish Question, but after having thus paid his tax to the Jews' prejudice, he proceeds in commendable fashion to contribute his thoughts to the matter. On the whole what he says is true, and the facts he uses as his foundation are of course the facts with which the DEARBORN INDEPENDENT has made its readers familiar. He sets up his straw man of "Anti-Semitism" and after having valiantly destroyed it, to the applause of all of us, he gets down to serious business, and says some things which all could hope would pierce the Jewish consciousness to its innermost stronghold and set up new vibrations there.

And in the July Atlantic, Paul Scott Mowrer, Paris representative of the Chicago Daily News, has an article on "The Assimilation of Israel." Mr. Mowrer has won the respect of students of world affairs by the conscientious ability with which he has observed and reported big events in Europe. In his news reports he has not hesitated, when the facts justified it, to cable a story of Jewish participation in this or that movement. It was reported at one time that an attempt on his job had been made by certain Jewish influences, and it is certain that sections of the Jewish press bitterly attacked him. Yet Mr. Mowrer is probably no more interested in the Jewish Question than the many other big problems which have come within his journalistic ken, and it would be extremely unfair to regard him as in any way a propagandist for anything.

Mr. Mowrer talks about Israel when, of course, he means Judah. There is a deep distinction there. And he talks also about assimilation, which the Jew will not admit as a solution. He protects himself fore and aft by attacking the "anti-Semites," whoever they are, and by expressing his confidence in the Jews, but on all the decks of his article he gives the facts — and they are the same facts. It ought to be pretty well settled by this time that there are facts, not two sets of facts, but only one set of facts, concerning Jewish influence and activity.

The World's Work has taken the liberty of setting before the people the only real anti-Jewish article that has appeared in the United States since the present discussion of the Question began, and that article was written by Henry Morgenthau, a Jew whom the government is accustomed to honor whenever it would pay a compliment to the Jews. It turns out that he attacks Jewry in its most tender spot — Zionism. Most people have read it, for it was immediately turned into propaganda and published in hosts of Newspapers, in many of them as first-column, first-page news. Mr. Morgenthau said that Zionism was not a solution but a surrender. He attacks the whole Palestinian plan from every angle, and not only attacks but belittles it.

Of course, this is very interesting. But one doesn't understand the heat displayed. If the Jews wish to go back to Palestine, why all this objection? Mr. Morgenthau does not wish to go back, it is true; it is extremely difficult to find a Jew who does want to go back; but to desire a national land for the Jews is quite another thing, and most Jews desire that. The pity is that they carry into Palestine the same method which puts them upon question here, and they are in danger of tipping over the apple cart in their imperious disregard of the rights of men in Palestine.

Mr. Morgenthau's motive in writing the article must remain a mystery, because it would seem to leave him practically outside of American Jewry, and of course he is not outside. Not at all. Watch and see. His article was printed in a magazine read and supported by non-Jews and was intended for non-Jews; it was not a plea to his people, it was a kind of confidential explanation, whispered from behind the hand, to non-Jews.

Mr. Morgenthau knows that Zionism is the core of Jewry in this country. The Zionists rule. The Zionists, and not the Americans, dictate the policy of American Jewry. The Zionist program was the only program that went unaltered through the Peace Conference at Versailles. Zionism is the heart of Jewish aspiration. "Not of American Jews," Mr. Morgenthau may retort. But who are American Jews? Inquire of the recent convention of Zionists at Cleveland for information.

That convention is worth a story by itself, but it explains why the World's Work stopped its press for the July issue and made an insertion of eight extra pages for accommodation of Mr. Morgenthau's article. The Jews who call themselves Americans had been thrown down and out by the Cleveland convention, and Russian Jews proved themselves the stronger.

It was an event that called for quick explanation. The humiliation of the Americans was something to be covered as speedily as possible. Why the World's Work should have been chosen as the vehicle is not known. But the presses were stopped and the Morgenthau backfire started.

Mr. Morgenthau's article as a Jewish pronouncement is negligible, but the Editor's Note that preceded it has the value of unbiased testimony. Referring to the world organization of Zionists, whose chief officer stepped over here from Europe and simply slammed to American Jewish leaders out of office, the editor of the World's Work has this to say:

"This world organization has a highly centralized form of government. This consists of an international committee, including representatives from all countries that have a local organization. But the real control is vested in what is known as the 'Inner Actions Council.' This is a compact body of only seven men and it is dominated by the Jews of Europe."

The "Jews of Europe" might be still more definitely described as the "Jews of Russia."

And "Dr. Chaim Weizmann, from London" might more accurately be described as from Pinsk, Russia.

The Russian Jews won, as they have always won, for they are the originators and corruptors of the false political Zionism which is leading so many Jews to disappointment and distress.

The point in all this is that in the silence of the Jewish regimented protest, the voice of the country has had a chance to be heard. The religious press has not been mentioned here, for it deserves a separate account, nor have the many newspapers which have reacted from the previously imposed burden of Jewish propaganda. Editorial speech is becoming freer. Jews themselves are coming to see that the call is not for abuse, but for a clean-up. The expression of the press of the country indicates that there is a Jewish Question and that the Jews used the worst possible tactics in trying to suppress the knowdledge of it. They behaved in a way to show what bad masters they would be if given the chance, and what essential cowardice controls their actions. One by one the holds they gained by force of fear, are being loosened. And if the Jews would lay up capital on which to draw — the capital of public confidence in their desire to do the right thing — they would go around and loosen the holds they still have. This, however, is not expected of them. It requires too much foresight.

Issue of July 30, 1921.

almost 60 years and they are ready to rule the world NOW!

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.V. 25270 USA

Please send me the following:

THE INTERNATIONAL JEW

....copies of Vol. 1 @ $7.50 ea.
....copies of Vol. 2 @ $7.50 ea.
....copies of Vol. 3 @ $7.50 ea.
....copies of Vol. 4 @ $7.50 ea.
....compl sets of Vol. 1-4 @ $24.

NAME: .....

ADDRESS: .....

CITY/STATE/ZIP: .....

The Jew and His Fears

Reprinted from The Talon, July 1979 issue published by Euro-American Alliance,
P.O.Box 2-1776, Milwaukee, WI 53221

THIS IS K...

Jews live in constant fear of exposure: of being displayed as the swindlers, liars, and prime agents of White racial desecration and destruction that they are. Yet of all the subterfuges they have used to hide their crimes against the Western world and the European peoples, the tale of the HOAXACAUST, based upon the false allegations leveled at Germany in the infamous Nuernberg Trials, is the most pernicious. NOTE.

We have written before of this fraud, but until the Myth of the Six Million is at last and forever dispelled, the Euro-American Alliance cannot consider even a small part of its work a success. Like many of the Kosher Konservative groups that have avoided the issue of the Jews and their phony charges of premeditated genocide, the Alliance could have turned its attention to other matters. We might have carped endlessly on the sterile subject of taxes, a la Howard Jarvis; and the Jews would have nodded their heads and clucked their "oy ve's" in the assurance that we would present no real threat to their vile conspiracies.

But the Alliance decided, disregarding much uninformed 'advice' to the contrary, to leap into the battle pit with both feet at once, swinging, as it were, the heavy Gothic sword of our crusading forefathers. From every quadrant did the Jews, spurred on by the ADL send their shabbas goyische stooges against us. When recently we replied unfavorably to a Milwaukee television editorial, which had proposed that America spend 5 billion dollars to underwrite the Israeli-Egyptian 'peace' treaty, we were threatened over the phone. Then a sickly-looking 'Christian' minister was put forward by the ADL to give rebuttal to our reply; the minister praised Israel as being a great DEMOCRACY, and stated that no matter what the cost, the security of Israel was worth it. He is the same type of pacifist clergyman who constantly preaches against American military preparedness and the right of the White race to defend itself.

This is an age of skepticism: few honestly believe there to be a gasoline shortage, that is, a shortage not contrived by the government and the petroleum companies. Most White-Christian Americans distrust the government, and with good reason: the government treats White children, workers, and old people like dirt, busing them, discriminating in hiring against them, and forcing them out of the homes which they have worked all their lives to pay for. If the vast MAJORITY only knew that, while Jew Schlesinger wails about the 'oil crisis', the government is exporting crude oil to Israel, what would they think of their fine Congress and Administration? Yet we are literally ordered to believe in the HOAXACAUST, because if we did not pay lip service to this heinous lie the Jews who control the government fear that we might start asking too many questions concerning Israel's status as the 51st State.

Talk radio is a good indicator of the thoughts which dominate the White American mind. When one is able to sort through the calls that deal with the mundane and the foolish, he will find that every now and then an informed patriot comes forward to challenge the veracity of the HOAXACOST, the Nuernberg Trials, and other trump cards in the Jewish-Zionist suit. The patriotic White caller will be summarily cut off, just as soon as he begins to intelligently question the Myth of the Six Million, or proposed that poor old Rudolf Hess be freed, or raises the valid argument that World Zionism declared war — total war — on Germany as early as 1933; however, some part of his statement will be heard before he is CENSORED.

There is usually a nightly flood of Jewish callers, who spew out their Talmudic hatred against everything and everybody even the slightest bit critical of their influence in this country; Jews, shabbas goyim, and the general variety of jigaboos and gentile sillies are allowed to dominate the format of the shows. And while there is never a night when some Jew does not call to wail that he was gassed eight or ten times, or at least on a monthly basis some twerp is brought in from the ADL to moan his litany of 'neo-Nazi' revivals, the regular listener to these talk shows becomes increasingly aware that the Jews and their supporters are reaching the point where they are absolutely desperate. The HOAXACOST is slowly [but — by God SURELY] shown up for the fairy tale it surely is.

This vicious lie is the sine qua non of Jewish world influence; and the Nuernberg Trials constitute the ne plus ultra of the Myth of the Six Million. Break down popular belief in the justification for the Nuernberg Trials by exposing how they were conducted, thereby separating historical fact from polemical Jewish fiction, and we, the White Christian peoples, can liberate America and the Western world from the invidious influence of the Talmudists.

Jewish control is based upon lies, distortion of reality, smears, blackmail and threats. That is all we must face: not massive armies, but rather the shekels of Jewish business, funneled into the B'nai B'rith and its own version of the KGB, the Anti-Defamation League. But we can be defeated, if we allow ourselves to be bluffed into silence, into a stance of meek acquiescence and non-resistance.

The Euro-American Alliance [as well as Liberty Bell Publications] needs the help of every White-Christian who is concerned for the future. If you need any encouragement to get into this battle, look at your children; they are counting on you as never before. What will be left for them and their children if we do nothing? Let's not wait until the day when we will be forced to watch our own children murdered before our eyes. Not when a small sacrifice in time, effort, and money might help prevent the greatest tragedy in the history of the world. Join up — help us carry this fight to the enemy.

The Joys of Summer Nights

When the heat of summer becomes oppressive, when the days seem endlessly long, the nights can be made into periods of pure ecstacy.

Because we are White and therefore of the blood of Europe, we, of all the peoples of the world, may turn to greatness. For awaiting us amongst the wonders of light cuisine and chilled wines, the elegant European late supper, is the music of delight and magnificience. As a respite to those of us who daily fight the weary battles for God, Race and Country, there are the delicate works of Mozart, the power of a Beethoven symphony, the romance of a Liszt, the excitement of Berlioz, the statelieness of Brahms, or the profound and deeply spiritual meaning of Bruckner.

This is truly a SIEGFRIED'S IDYLL. It is a time when grand reminiscences and tales of heroic deeds well told bring tears to our eyes; but also a time to look into the eyes of the children, who sit at our feet, hoping for the future. When we see the children, we realize why we are in the battle for the West.

THE JEWISH PRESS
Friday, August 31, 1979
The Largest Circulation Of Any Anglo-Jewish Weekly Newspaper In The World
Editorial and Executive Offices:
338 Third Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. 11215, Tel.: 858-3300

An Open Letter To My Black American Friends

By Dov Fisch

I have just finished watching the latest news reports on television, and I think it is time for me, a Jew, to speak out. I am only one Jew, an individual, and not a Jewish leader. That means two things. On the one hand, you can ignore me since I will not be invited to debate Jesse Jackson on the "McNeil-Lehrer Report". On the other hand, I probably speak for a lot more of my people than does a Ted Mann.

These last few days have been especially painful for me. They have shattered my hopes that there might one day be a rapprochement between the Black and Jewish communities of America. The rift which has grown between us over the last decade is no longer a mere rift. It may be an irreparable rupture.

I want to say this frankly and openly: in many ways, the Jewish community did not properly understand your feelings and needs over the years. Jewish liberals rushed to the South in the 1960's, thinking that their token presence at Black rallies would leave you indebted to us. Their assistance never came free of charge. They always demanded something of you: an expression of gratitude.

Jews built your civil-rights movement. Everything from the N.A.A.C.P. to the United Negro College Fund. Julius Rosenwald gave millions of his dollars to build institutions for you. Joel Spingarn, a Jew, was N.A.A.C.P. president from 1930-39. His brother, Arthur, succeeded him and held the post from 1940-66. In 1966, Arthur Spingarn was succeeded by yet another Jew, Kivie Kaplan of Boston. During his tenure, Kaplan donated the N.A.A.C.P. building in Boston. Morris Abram, a former head of the American Jewish Committee, was active in the Urban League and a president of the United Negro College Fund. Jews took an active part in building C.O.R.E., S.N.C.C., and even the S.C.L.C. Jewish lawyers like Jack Greenberg (N.A.A.C.P.), Carl Rachlin (C.O.R.E.), and the many affiliated with groups like the A.C.L.U. fought your legal civil rights. Human rights. Self-determination. Did you ever hear of Kurds — the people, not the stuff in Little Miss Muffet's bowl. There are Kurds. Hundreds of thousands of them. They are good, hard-working people who are being exterminated throughout the Middle East. In Syria, in Iraq, in Iran — wherever they have the misfortune to live — Arab mojority governments are exterminating them. Do you know what their crime is? They are minorities in Arab lands. That's their crime. and for that they are subjected to arrest, torture, murder, and wholesale military onslaughts like recent napalm bombings of their homes and villages in Iraq.

Everywhere you turn, the Arab Moselms are exterminating their minorities. The Berbers in Algeria. And, oh yes, the Blacks of Sudan. 600,000 Blacks were slaughtered during the 1960's in the Sudan. Blacks are still used as slaves in parts of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, and the Sudan. When Eldridge Cleaver saw the scene in the Arab world, he freaked out. he told the Boston Herald American that the Arabs are "the most racist people on earth. This is particularly true of their attitude towards Black people...Many Arab families that can afford to, keep one or two Black slaves to do their menial labor. Sometimes they own an entire family. I have seen such slaves with my own eyes."

All right. You're a litte queasy about Cleaver. Some of you think he's gone off the deep end (though his comments were made before his turn to Christian evangelism). So let me quote another Black spokesman.

Andrew Young. A year ago, Andy Young provoked the wrath of the Arab world when he compared their intense racism with that of the Ku Klux Klan. He was telling it like it is.

I understand why you are angry these days. Andy Young meant a lot to you. He was our country's first Black U.N. Ambassador and a bright thinker, whose articulate and controversial views shook up the Man and his Establishment. In a sense he gave you the pride which Jews had hoped Arthur Goldberg would give us in the 1960's when he served in the U.N. In fact, Andy meant more to you than Goldberg ever meant to us — because Andrew Jackson Young never forgot the special commitment he owed his people.

The resignation of Andy Young was painful for you. I understand. In fact, I would go a step further. I believe, in all honesty, that he was the victim of Carter Administration racism. If Andy Young deserved to be fired as the "fall guy" for Jimmy Carter, than so did Cyrus Vance. It was Vance — not Young — who began to soften up to the Arafat Gang. Vance made the gestures. His State Department, for months, has aimed its diplomatic course on a path of cuddling up with Terzi's Terrorists. Andy Young saw what his boss was doing and simply did the natural thing. He met with Terzi.

It was interesting watching the reaction to the Andy Young meeting. The first guy to call for battles for you. And so on.

These liberals thought they were helping you and that you would appreciate their efforts. How wrong they were! And it is understandable. Every person has to fight its own fights and build its own institutions. We Jews have the pride of knowing that we built our own defense institutions ourselves, with minimal (if any) support from the non-Jewish world. The American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, B'nai B'rith, The Z.O.A., Hadassah, and even the Jewish Defense League share this common component: they were institutions built by Jews for Jews.

You were denied that opportunity. Our liberals meant well. They thought they were helping. And who can deny that they enjoyed the sense of enacting their own peculiar form of "noblesse oblige" when they built your civil-rights movement for you? But what they did not see — what they refused to see — was that they had emasculated your sense of pride. They had deprived you of the right to fight for yourselves, a right intrinsic to any man's sense of self-worth. They meant well, but they blundered terribly.

I honestly believe that, deep down, your recent anti-Semitic stirrings stem from this peculiar phenomenon which has beclouded your centuries-old struggle for survival. In a generation which has seen the countries of Latin America and Africa militate against the United States — a great and benevolent country which never held back its wealth, know-how, food, and technology in helping the Third World develop — your own stirrings against my people are comprehensible. The soviets never did a thing for the Third World other than introduce military strife in Africa; yet they are acknowledged today as the Third World's saviors. In the same way, the Arab world — which never supported your civil-rights struggles in this country, which provided no manpower for your demonstrations or your legal battles, and which despises the color of your skin — has become your hero of the 1980's.

Do you know that the Arabs are the world's worst racists? Worse than the Soviets, the Americans, the British, The Swedes etc. In 1972 Moslem Arab fanatics ran wild in Egypt, burning Christian churches, houses, and stores in major Copt regions. The four million Coptic Christians of Egypt are persecuted to this very day. In Lebanon, Maronite Christians face extermination at the hands of the P.L.O. and other Arab Moslems. In Libya, churches are seized and are converted into mosques. One famous case saw the Church of the Sacred Heart in Tripoli forcibly entered by Kaddafi's army and rededicated as the Gamel Abdul Nasser Mosque.

I would think that the Arab Islamic commitment to exterminating Christianity wherever it rears its head would concern Black Americans, including reverends like Jesse Jackson and leaders of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. But there is more.

You are very concerned about

Young's resignation was Senate majority leader, Robert Byrd, a strong enemy of the State of Israel.

We Jews were upset with Andy's actions, too. Not really because he lied. As we see things, Carter himself has lied to us more than Nixon and Ford together. Carter ran on a platform which promised that America's embassy in Israel would be moved from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem. He broke that promise. He promised that he would not conduct a cynical military-weapons sales policy, which arms two competing sides to kill each other with American-made weapons. Yet, he has since initiated major arms sales to the racist regime in Saudi Arabia which bans Jews and enslaves Blacks. Carter is a liar and, like your community, we Jews are searching for alternatives to Carter for 1980.

What bothered us about Andy Young's actions was his inability to see the P.L.O.for what they are. I understand Andy's blind spot. As a Jew — despite my sincere desire to feel the pain of the Black community and to see an end to prejudice — I can never expect to truly feel what a black person feels in the face of prejudice. I can try, but I can't succeed. that's what it's like for Andy Young to relate to the P.L.O. He might sympathize with my people, but he can't feel what we Jews feel.

They aren't fighting for self-determination. The Kurds are doing that in Iraq and Iran. The Arafat Gang is going a step further; they are fighting for our extermination. The "homeland" they want is not simply to be located in the Gaza Strip and on the West Bank (which we Jews call Judea and Samaria). Their homeland will be in Haifa and Tel Aviv. that's what they want. Did you know that the P.L.O. was founded in 1964, three years before Israel liberated Gaza and the West Bank? The Arabs had that land in 1964, with Egypt occupying Gaza and Jordan occupying the West Bank. But the P.L.O. was not founded to fight Jordan and Egypt for the "liberation of Gaza and the West Bank." In fact, Jordan and Egypt helped finance the founding of the P.L.O. Why do you think they did that? Because the P.L.O. was shooting for Haifa and Tel Aviv. They are fighting to exterminate Israel. It's no secret. Check out the official charter of the P.L.O. — article nineteen. They haven't changed a word of it.

Many Jews refuse to discuss our survival with Terzi and Arafat for the same reason that no sane Black would sit down with the Ku Klux Klan to discuss the right of Blacks to exist. You have the right to exist, and anyone who would deny you that right should be met on the battlefied. What Black leader would debate with the K.K.K. on the question: "Do Blacks Have A Right To Exist?" That's how we feel about Arafat and Terzi. We don't expect you to debate Shockley over his theories that you are genetically and intellectually inferior to White people. Certain absurdities do not merit debate.

We Jews were, in the same way, saddened to see Black leaders meet with the P.L.O. in the aftermath of Andy Young's resignation. Don't get me wrong. You can talk with whomever you please. Angry over Andy's firing in the wake of his meeting with Terzi, you wanted to show your resistance of the forces whose concerns led to the departure of Young from the U.N. This was an important declaration for you, as it to say, "We stand by Andy Young."

In a sense, maybe you are also letting out decades of pent-up hostility felt towards American Jews for having played so central a role in the construction of your civil-rights movement. Maybe you felt the need to assert — for yourselves no less than for others — your sense of pride in your accomplishments and your ability to stand up for yourselves. You are tired of Jewish liberals pulling your strings. You want to run the N.A.A.C.P. yourselves — without a Jewish liberal watching over you, giving you his money, and telling you how to spend it. You don't want Jews running the United Negro College Fund. You want to fight your own battles. You are sick of owing so much to Jews — more than you will ever be able to repay — and you are burdened by the shame of having seen us fight the struggle you should have begun. So Andy Young's dismissal serves a special purpose: it allows you to express your anger at an injustice by simultaneously stabbing at American Jews by meeting with the P.L.O. You are telling us, "Buzz off. Stop calling our shots for us. We will meet with whomever we want. Don't you tell us who we may or may not see."

Fair enough. You have met with Terzi, and you have made your point. We are going to split from the civil-rights movement for once and for all. The battle, here on in, is yours alone. No more Jewish money. No more Jewish manpower. No more Jewish leadership. If, by coincidence we find ourselves allied on an issue — that's great. And if not, that's life. In the battle to preserve the Electoral College, we'll be with you in Congress. On the question of quotas as a basis in college admissions, we will have to align on opposite sides. Unless, of course, you come to realize that quotas will only hurt you in the long run, putting a question mark on every Black person's diploma. We can only ask of you one favor: now that you have declared your independence from American Jewry by meeting with Terzi and the P.L.O., we would only hope that you will, henceforth, study the issues in the Middle East with the care they deserve. You will find Israel's cause to be just and the Arabs to be the world's worst racists.

JWV honors Bob Hope — [A GOOD GOY!]

WASHINGTON — Nathan M. Goldberg, National Commander of the Jewish War Veterans of the USA last week announced that Bob Hope has been awarded the Gold Medal of Merit, the organization's highest award. Hope will accept the award at the JWV 84th national convention July 22-July 28 in San Diego, Calif. Jewish Sentinel 19 July 1979

OF INTEREST TO OUR GERMAN-SPEAKING SUPPORTERS:

Please support these Organizations and their publications!

SPRECHEN SIE DEUTSCH?

Die Bauernschaft

FÜR RECHT UND GERECHTIGKEIT

Unabhängige Korrespondenz für Freunde und Förderer des Bauernstandes

Organ der „Bauern- und Bürgerinitiative" e. V

Herausgeber:
Thies Christophersen
2341 Mohrkirch
Telefon 0 46 46 / 8 88

Bankkonto:
Kritik-Verlag, Raiffeisenbank Sterup Nr. 86702
Zahlstelle Mohrkirch
Postscheckkonto: Hamburg 1708 02-205

A fearless independent journal for Aryan freedom in "democratic" West Germany. For a free sample copy, write to:
KRITIK-VERLAG, D-2341 Mohrkirch/West Germany

KLARHEIT - WAHRHEIT - OFFENHEIT

— Monatlicher Nachrichtendienst —

Meldungen, die zünden ! Unterlagen, die die veröffentlichte Meinung verschweigt !

UN

Kostenlose Probenummer gegen Rückporto von:
UN – Postfach 400215, 4630 Bochum 4

UNABHÄNGIGE NACHRICHTEN

Please send a donation for postagewhen requesting your sample copy of this fine magazine. Write to: AKTUELL-JUGEND--PRESSE-DIENST, Box 14, A-6911 Lochau, Austria.

Prof. Robert Faurisson,

„ES GAB KEINE GASKAMMERN!"

Einzelheft: DM 2.– Schutzgebühr (bei Mehrbezug erhebliche Ermäßigung)
Anfordern beim
Deutschen Arbeitskreis
Witten, Postfach 1706
5810 Witten

ANZEIGE

KRITIK VERLAG

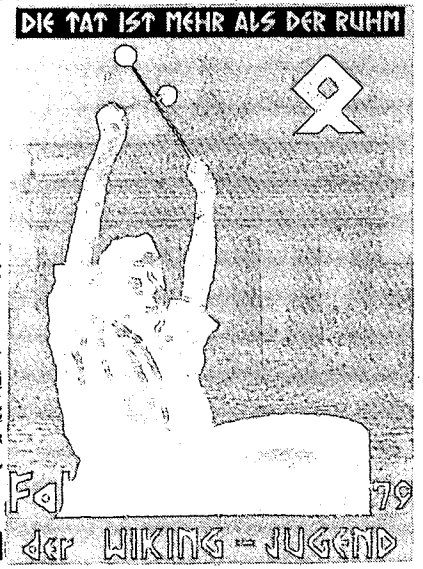
KRITIK-VERLAG

gibt der schweigenden Mehrheit das Wort

Schriften- und Bücherverzeichnis anzufordern bei:
Thies Christophersen
2341 Mohrkirch

Deutsche Bürgerinitiative e.V.

Rechtsanwalt Manfred Roeder, Haus Richberg
D-3579 Schwarzenborn/West Germany



SUPPORT THE VIKING YOUTH, order your subscription to WIKINGER, published 4 times a year, at $5.00 from WIKING-JUGEND, Brockenberg 5a, D-519 Stolberg 4, West Germany.

NORDIC TWILIGHT

The Denordisation
Of Our Peoples
20 page booklet
$1.00

Also available:
YOUNG FOLK
a quarterly publication
$5.00 per year

Order from:
VIKING YOUTH
BCM – THULE
London, WC1V 6XX England

DEUTSCHLAND
In Geschichte und Gegenwart
an excellent journal of high intellectual quality! Published quarterly, ann. subscription $12.00.

Order from:
GRABERT VERLAG
Box 1629
D-7400 Tuebingen 1
West Germany

SIE SIND JUNG

und suchen die Begegnung mit in- und ausländischen jungen Gleichgesinnten?

Vielleicht können wir Ihnen helfen mit:

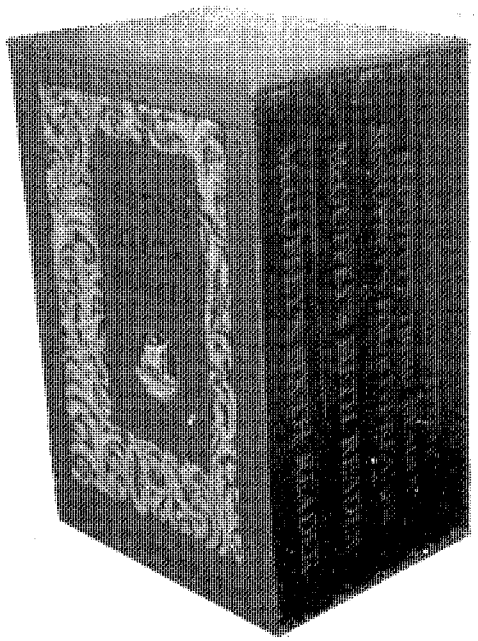
- Räumlichkeiten für Gruppenarbeiten
- Herstellung nötiger Kontakte
- Zusammenführung von Gleichgesinnten
- Koordination der Arbeit gleichartiger Gruppen
- Materialien und Publikationen
- Information der Medien

Wettbewerb für Jungautoren von 10–25 Jahren:

„Warum ich an Deutschlands Zukunft glaube."

BUCHPREISE!

Anschriften:
A-6911 Lochau, Postfach 14
D-8990 Lindau, Postfach 1661
CH-9430 St. Margrethen, Postfach 3327



McGUFFEY'S READERS

The same entertaining, inspiring, and easy-to-read books that taught reading, writing, history, and morality to several generations of Americans. Seven volumes, from Primer to Sixth Reader.

Available in paperback only in boxed sets, $17. Individually priced only in hardbound:

Primer	$2.75	Fourth Reader	$3.75
First Reader	$3.00	Fifth Reader	$4.00
Second Reader	$3.25	Sixth Reader	$4.50
Third Reader	$3.50	Set of Seven	$24.75

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS

REEDY, WEST VIRGINIA 25270

"Jewish Power? — It's nothing compared with the awesome power of the anti-Semites! Believe me, I know — my television network is doing a mini-series about them."

The Liberty Bell

SINGLE COPY $1.25

Francis Parker Yockey

THE ENEMY OF EUROPE

PART II

1981

Liberty Bell Publications

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

VOL. 3 — NO. 10 ISSN 0145-7667 JUNE 1981

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4490.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHTT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$13.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$20.00
THIRD CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$19.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$22.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$32.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$37.00
Single copy, 3rd class in plain envelope	$ 1.50
10 copies via UPS	$ 10.00
100 copies via UPS	$ 75.00
500 copies via UPS	$250.00
1000 copies via UPS	$450.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

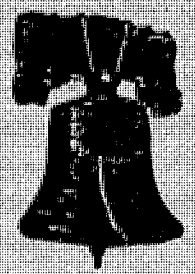
The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writars, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world. George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

the Liberty Bell



VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

PLEASE, HELP US
SPREAD THE TRUTH!
Order additional copies of
THE HOAX OF THE 20th. CENTURY
by Prof. A.R. Butz
at these prices:
1/$6.00—3/$15.00—10/$45.00
100/$400.00—1,000/$3,500.00
from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, West Virginia 25270

CONTENTS

VOL. 8 — NO. 10
JUNE 1981

Letters to the Editor 3
The Enemy of Europe, Part II 7

Read what famous and 'infamous' men have to say about the JJews. 200 pp., pb., $5.50 plus 10% for postage. Order from LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270

COMMUNISM IS JEWISH!

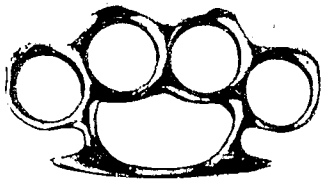
stamp $3.75 postage $0.50

MAGNIFICENT BRASS PAPERWEIGHT

Full size replica of the Knuckle Duster



ORDER TODAY!
$8.50 postpaid
Aluminum paperweight
$4.50 postpaid
For novelty paperweight use only.
Not intended for any other use.

ORDER FROM:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: OUR fight is YOUR fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a monthly basis. Whether it is $1., $2., $5. or $100 or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a business or professional man, send us postage stamps in any denomination; remember – they're tax-deductible! Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty throughout the land by making available additional copies of our printed material to patriots who do not yet know about what is in store for them.

Buy our pamphlets, booklets, stickers and reprints. Buy extra copies of The Liberty Bell for distribution to your friends and neighbors and urge them to subscribe to our publication. Our bulk prices are included with every issue.

Pass along your copy of The Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you purchased from us, to a friend or acquaintance who may be on our 'wavelength' and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free America and the world from alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your will:

a. I bequeath to Mr George P. Dietz as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the sum of $. . . . . for general purposes.

b. I bequeath to Mr George P. Dietz as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street, (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the following-described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY!
HELP FREE AMERICA FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!

Letters to the Editor

Dear George: 17 Feb. 81

I hope you will forgive my persistance on the matter, but I feel obliged to illuminate the further "administration of justice" in Belgium. This time the continued witch-hunt in Brussels on the French speaking "extreme right movements" – "Front de la Jeunesse."

In a style worthy of the "Inquisition," 35 members of this group have been summoned to the Brussels Court of of Justice for a first hearing on February 12,1981. The accusation: demonstrations without authorization, private militia taking part in exercises with arms and ammunition, intentional arson on the premises of the Belgian-Vietnamese Committee, etc.

During the same period, and in addition to the already existing laws in Belgium on the subject, a bill has been introduced (Socialist member of Parliament Glimmer-Dujardin) and is already adopted in parliament, to make punishable by law: hatred against foreigners and incitement to discrimination on the basis of race, colour or ethnic descent. Incriminatory will then be these infringements in meetings, assemblies and public places. Also by publications, pictures, emblems or symbols which can be pasted up, distributed, publically displayed or mailed to different persons.

Master mind behind all this, Socialist minister of civil affairs Moureaux. The policy of this sinister hireling is to destroy the active ranks of the opposition with these curbs and to break the spear heads via costly and devastating mass-trials.

In Belgium we'll have to work out a new strategy.

Best regards,
P.W., Belgium

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 1 March 81

Thank you for the books you sent, and especially for all the extra material you included. I really appreciated it very much.

The material you sent me is used in monthly discussions of our school's history society, of which I am the chairman. Last year I used Prof. Butz' and Mr. Christophersen's publications to write my history thesis on the Auschwitz Myth. I got almost 90%, regardless of the "most extraordinary conclusion" (my teacher's comment) to which I came! I also wrote an article on the environmental and genetic theories and racial achievement for the German (third language) part of our school magazine. My German teacher, used to European educational standards, called it a "bomb" and said that she didn't want to see her class smeared as "Nazi." Fortunately however, it was published, and strangely enough not one Jewish or other student or teacher has reacted yet.

Since most of the members of our history society are in Std. 7 (15 years) and cover WW II etc. this year in class, I am planning to hold a discussion on the real solution to the kosher surplus, just after they have finished the Six Million lie in class! I shall inform you about the results and reactions among them.

A militant right-wing organisation, consisting mostly of blue collar workers and called the "Wit Kommando" (White Commando), is presently active in South Africa. Their symbol is a cross (W†K) and they want to prevent a Marxist regime by attacking liberal persons or institutions who propagate race mixing. In April 1980, fires broke out in the office of the Institute for Racial Affairs. In August the office of Prof. Jan Lombard, who initiated a plan of multiracial cooperation, was bombed. In December the offices of Prof. F.A, Maintz, a sociologist who testified for the defense in the Silverton terrorist case, were also attacked, but in none of the above cases anyone was injured.

Other attacks were made on the Transkei consulate in Port Elizabeth and on the house of a Member of the Executive Committee, Mr. Watterson. Death threats were received by well-known TV commentator Cliff Saunders, the principal of a gymnasium, who enrolled the son of a Black attache at his school, and Bishop Desmond Jutu, black general secretary of the S.A. Council of Churches, who is very sympathetic towards black terrorists.

On 6 February, Mr. M. Bolla (Italian), Mr. M. Huggett (English), Mr. W.G. van Dyk (Afrikaner), and Mr. B.M.A. Fetheringham, were arrested and explosives and "subversive" literature confiscated. Mr. Allen Fetheringham is the chairman of the S.A. National Front, which ceased to exist 16 months ago and then went underground as the W.K. Since the police investigation is not finished, no date for the court hearing is available yet.

I am including another order herewith and would be most grateful if you could send me a copy of "Unser Liederbuch" which you mentioned in your letter to me, with the other books.

Thank you in anticipation, and White Power!

H.M., So. Africa

* * * * *

Dear Mr Dietz: 1 March 81

Young black urban guerrillas have a new thing going in Miami. They throw bricks through windows of locked doors of cars at stop signs, red lights, and rob passengers. Most are White females. There were over 26 incidents or attacks of this nature on February 27, 1981, between 79th Street and 54th Street N.W. on 22nd Ave. and 27th Ave.

Commie groups are agitating young blacks to do this. Revolutionary Workers (RW) of Atlanta, Georgia., and Communist Workers Party (CWP) are the main agitators. I believe this summer in Miami will be worse than last summer, with Commie groups agitating and with Castro Invasion Agents in Miami also.

White Power!

J.T., Florida

* * * * *

Dear George: 5 March 81

Reference the pro and con articles in the "Liberty Bell" on Christianity. Much of what is said on both sides of the issue is true. However, do you think it wise to stir up this age-old controversy and lose the friendship of the people for whom you profess an affinity and zealousness in trying to awaken them to the peril of their real foe — the conniving Jew?

As old Ben Franklin said so many years ago, "We must all hang together, or assuredly we shall hang separately." In over 50 years of association with various tight-wing patriots it has been my tacit observation and experience that practically every organization dedicated to saving the country has been destroyed from within by endless bickering. My! how the Jews love and encourage the yokels to squabble among themselves while they band together and take over. [You are absolutely correct! The Jews are not splintered into 'Methodists,' 'Baptists,' 'Mormons,' 'Assemblies of God,' 'Identity Christians,' and all the rest of the sorry lot believing in Oriental myths. When it comes to fighting their enemies, the Yids are ONE race-of-the-mind and of ONE religion. Our White brethren have been robbed of their race-consciousness and fighting spirit by their Christian 'businessmen-of-God'!]

Remember, if we don't have common cause [We do! But RACE is the issue — not an Oriental religion that, first of all, has made drooling idiots and mental slaves out of many of our fellow White Men, and, secondly, a religion that has put the Yids into the positions of power they now hold, and which is determined to keep 'God's Chosen' in these positions, come what may!] under a captain of our own choosing to steer the good old conservative ship of the U.S. on this hazardous voyage, none of our breed will be given another opportunity to guide her under our God-given Constitution for which the "Founding Fathers" gave their all.

Although Reagan is far from being the ideal conservative that he pictures himself, we should be thankful that Carter, the Southern skalawag, has been turned out of office in disgrace [But Carter was a good "Born-Again Christian!]. Never in the history of the U.S. has any President gone down to such ignominious defeat. A victim of his own dishonesty and deceit. He was a typical example of a Janus-faced politician wearing one face for himself, and another to the public, finally becoming bewildered as to which was his rightful one. His double dealing belatedly caught up with him. He was weighed in the balance and found wanting.

Let's keep religious controversies out of the Liberty Bell and concentrate on getting the Devil's disciples out of our government, schools, information media, big business, churches and our country.

No one has ever condemned the Jews in more vitriolic language than Jesus Christ. Read Matt. Chapter 23: and other paragraphs in the Bible.

Sincerely Yours,

J.C.L., North Carolina

PS: Enclosed is my check for a one year renewal of my subscription to the Liberty Bell.

* * * * *

Dear Mr Dietz: 7 March 81

The Jan. 81 issue of the Liberty Bell is fantastic. 'Good Riddance' indeed to that mattoid vampire Lennon! Please send me another copy of that issue.

I also thoroughly enjoyed "The Whiteman's Guide Book". The whole issue is a masterpiece.

Best regards
G.R., Illinois

* * * * *

Dear Mr Dietz: 10 March 81

Just a note to tell you that 'Liberty Bell' gets more dynamic with each issue, and that I think you and what you are doing is terrific — but — I also think it is too strong for beginners and that we should reserve this sort of thing for the inner core and proceed more cautiously if we intend to win over the neophytes.

We have only to look at the methods used by our enemy to see that we must lead them carefully into this. Most of the uninformed could not possibly change overnight from Christianity to the Nature Gods of our Germanic forefathers. We have all been saturated for too many centuries in this drivel. So, I wish there was some way that you could continued to give us awakened ones more of the same and publish a more toned down version for the beginners. [That's impossible! A cancerous tumor cannot be treated with Bufferins. It requires radical surgery or the patient will die!] I couldn't possibly give some of my friends copies of these more hard-hitting issues of late [Why couldn't you? Does the survival of our White Race mean less to you than the friendship and good-will of your friends who are yet mental slaves, but who could conceivably be turned from 'neophytes' into 'people-in-the-know'? Let them read our material and give them a chance to make up their own minds. If they are worth saving at all, they'll get the message!]

I hope this does not offend you; personally I regard you as one of our racial heroes. Please accept the enclosed check as an enthusiastic contribution to your work [Thank you very much indeed!]

Sincerely,
Mrs J.M., California

* * * * *

Dear Mr Dietz: 11 March 81

How precious are the words of those who seek the truth! That's how we feel about your publication THE LIBERTY BELL. As soon as your magazine arrives, I find my husband poring over it. Then, bursting with the latest information, he'll sit me down and explain over all the fascinating material you present. A lot of it is new to us, but we are very open-minded

continued on page 55

Francis Parker Yockey

THE ENEMY OF EUROPE

PART II, continued from previous issue

Copyright ©1981
by Thomas Francis

All rights reserved. No part of this book, except brief excerpts for the purpose of review, may be reproduced in any form without written permission by the publisher. For information write to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

1981

Liberty Bell Publications

An inner enemy is more dangerous than an outer one, because while he seems to belong, he is actually a kind of alien.

The Inner Enemy of Europe is at once a stratum of the population, a world-outlook, and a Culture-illness. The Michel-stratum is Europe's Inner Enemy, the stratum that commits treason organically and instinctively. Its world-outlook is that of the past Age of Nationalism, Economics, Democracy, Capitalism. Because it looks backward and resists the Imperative of the Future with pathological intensity, this stratum is the embodiment of the Culture-disease called Culture-retardation.*

An inner enemy is dangerous in two respects: first, because of his own activity, and, second, because of his usefulness to the outer enemy. During the Second World War, the European Michel consciously worked for the defeat of Europe and the victory of the American-Russian coalition. Examples of this conduct were Churchill and Attlee in England, Badoglio and Mauggeri in Italy, Halder, Hassel, and Goerdeler in Germany, the Communists in France, the Netherlands, Spain, and Scandinavia. Without this organic, professional treason on the part of the European Michel, the Outer Forces could never have defeated Europe. After the War, the American occupation of Europe and the despoliation of Europe were made possible only by the Michel-stratum, which hired itself out to the enemy to establish vassal-governments, churchill-régimes, in every province of Europe. During this period between the Second and Third World Wars, the Michel as an American agent is more dangerous than he would otherwise be in himself. The reason for this is the advance of History since the 19th century has rendered his world-outlook completely useless to him, even for purposes of sabotage, while to the Americans it is still useful as a means of control over Europe. Thus the Culture-disease of Culture-retardation remains in the body of Europe only because of the American occupation.

If "capitalism" is understood not simply as an economic technique, but, above all, as a spiritual-ethical principle, we may designate the world-outlook of the Michel as Capitalism. In the 20th century, Capitalism is inwardly dead, both in the broader sense of a Cultural-ethical world-outlook and as an economic technique. The fact that it is dead is shown every time its representatives approach some new problem in the world of facts. Their solutions are uniformly rigid and in every case misfire, even when the problem is purely economic. After the Second World War, the English government that called itself "socialist" decided to "nationalise" the railways. The sole possible raison d'être for nationalisation of the railways lay in reducing costs for the ultimate consumer, thus granting a sort of general rebate. But there resulted a doubling of all fares and a continuation of the separate identity of the lines, even to the point of competitive advertising. The programme remained in existence only for the sake of the principle of nationalisation. All other "nationalisation" schemes that originated with this capitalistic, class-war inciting Marxist régime ended similarly.

* Cf. IMPERIUM, p. 410 ff.

The singularly unhappy career of the capitalist system was continued throughout Europe after the Second World War, to be sure, because of intervention coming from the Culture-periphery. Unhesitatingly, the Washington régime employed the resources of the North American continent to shore up the tottering system. Thus it is only the extra-European power of the Washington régime that subjects Europe to the negative world-outlook and outworn economic system of capitalism. A European revolt against capitalism is ipso facto a revolt against America. A Socialist Europe, founded on the principle of the sovereign, organically articulated State, would be an independent Europe and master of its own economy. This economy would not be established for reasons of class-war, nor for the purpose of realising any rigid, abstract ideas. On the contrary, it would be an economy that overcomes the economic problems of Europe in the spirit of the 20th century, and, indeed, in their sole possible way of solution: the State as organism and its economy as part of an organic totality to which all private and class interests are subordinate.

Before the First World War, the European power-monopoly, the monopoly of trade and technics, secured all requisite markets for the products of Europe, and with these products Europe paid for the raw and other materials it ordered from abroad. The First World War undermined this system in that, for its duration, it deprived the overseas consumers of European merchandise, and thus gave them the stimulus to construct factories of their own. After the War, the capitalist international economy was never again able to solve its problems, not even through extensive state-intervention in the form of protective tariffs, and the like. This development was concluded by the Second World War. The old system passed away.

The only solution for the economic problems of Europe consists in the most intensive possible rationalisation of all existing possessions and in the acquisition of new resources for the European economy. Naturally, America insists that Europe keep the capitalist system. A Socialist Europe does not need America, whereas a capitalist Europe is a beggars' colony of America.

In the basic world-outlook of both the American population and the ruling economic caste the world is still the object of plunder. America is not interested in forming and organising the world, but in creating the widest possible opportunities for financial-economic penetration of other countries. It is driven even to military conquest to attain this goal securely. Again, this is 19th century motivation, and its corrosive, pathological revival in our Age is a symptom of Culture-retardation.*

To the finance-capitalist politico-military thought is merely a tool, albeit that it may seem to predominate at times. It is a dangerous weapon. The possibility is ever present that a political general might like to rule the roost. The political general is the nightmare of the finance-capitalist, and therein lies the explanation for the inferior businessman-type and feeble-minded liberals that make up the American generalcy. All officers of strong will and superior intellect are weeded out before they attain to the rank of general; and in 1941 the Army regulations were so revised that automatic promotion to general — which had been the rule in the American Army since its beginnings in the 18th century — was eliminated, and promotion to that rank made dependent on "service," i.e., subservience to the Washington régime, or in other words, on the lack of any earnest will and strong instincts.

* Cf. IMPERIUM, p. 517 ff.

To recapitulate everything: the Inner Enemy of Europe may be described in three ways:

1. With regard to his Culture-biological value.
2. With regard to which stratum embodies him.
3. With regard to his conception of the world.

1. The Inner Enemy is the bearer of Culture-retardation.
2. The Inner Enemy is the Michel-stratum; his leaders are the churchills.
3. The Inner Enemy is Capitalism, whereby the word is used in its total meaning of a Cultural-spiritual-ethical-economic principle.

In contrast to the foregoing, the true European spirit may be likewise sketched:

1. It is Culture-health, i.e., the actualisation of the Inner Imperative, accepting the challenge of the Future.
2. It is in the charge of the Culture-bearing stratum, the highest élite of the population, which stratum comprises no more than circa 250,000 souls.
3. It is the grand Idea of Imperialism, the world-outlook that is suited to the coming European Imperium of Culture-State-Nation-People-Race-Society.

For the purpose of demonstrating with the utmost clarity the elements of the two world-outlooks in this period of Western History between the Second and Third World Wars, a paradigm is appended:

Imperialism	Capitalism
Faith	Rationalism
Primacy of the Spirit	Materialism
Idealism	Sensualism
Will-to-Power	Will-to-Riches
World as object of organisation	World as object of plunder
Rank as social distinction	Wealth as social distinction
Society as organism	Society as a collection of individuals
Fulfilment of Duty	"Pursuit of happiness"
Ascendant instincts:	Decadent instincts:
1. Absolute Western self-pre-	1. Acquiescence to the Outer

servation	Revolt
2. Absolute will to biological fertility	2. Race-suicide, birth control, Puritanism, Bohemianism
3. Absolute will to increase power	3. Surrender of the World-hegemony of the West
Hierarchy	Equality
Discipline	Freedom, ethical laissez-faire
Authority	Parliamentarianism
The superpersonal organism as State	The superpersonal organism as society
Aristocracy	Plutocracy
Society as an organic unity	Class-war
Sexual polarity	Feminism
Europe as Imperium	Petty-statism
Europe as Nation	Chauvinism
Europe as Fatherland	Petty-nationalism
Order	Freedom
Stability	Constant motion, business-cycles
Responsibility, all public power exercised and administered openly	Irresponsibility, anonymity, public power in the hands of private persons, finance-capitalists, labour-dictators
Resurgence of Authority	Communism, Democracy Liberalism
Ideal of Chivalry, faith in oneself	Separation of Word and Deed, systematic hypocrisy
Respect for the political enemy	Replacement of respect by hatred, "war-crimes trials," ideals as a substitute for Honour on the battlefield
Cultivation of soldierly virtues	Cult of bourgeois virtues, the derision of soldierly virtues
Eroticism as legitimate source of joy and fertility	Eroticism as vice, the cult of immorality, general spread of clandestine and illegal prostitution, an Erotic without consequences
Affirmation of War and Conquest	Pacifism, preparation of the coloured populations for "self-government," the "right of self-determination"
Separate status of Culture-alien	Equality with the Culture-alien, the "melting pot"

Western Man as an individualised human being, completely different from primitive non-Western humans, Western Man in the service of a great Mission: the fulfilment of the European Culture	Rousseau: Man as Savage Darwin: Man as Animal Marx: Man as economic creature Freud: Man as sexual creature Science-as-Religion: Man as Machine, capable of limitless existence, "Victory over disease," etc.
Art practiced in conformity with the Cultural task	"L'art pour l'art"
Politico-military expansion	Financial-military-economic expansion

From a cursory glance at the list of examples it is obvious that the reigning forces of Culture-retardation make use of the ideas and instincts of Imperialism whenever and wherever they find it necessary and possible. For instance, they subordinate Art to Politics. They have set up a new, inverted hierarchy in which the American and the Michel are the patricians and the true European is the plebeian. They preach "democracy" while ruthlessly imposing their will on the masses and pressuring them in so-called elections; they deny the rightness of the Idea of Conquest while occupying Europe with their troops and forcing its people to take on heavy political, military, and economic burdens in the interest of the extra-European powers, and so on.

This is the Age of Absolute Politics, and everyone who acts in this Age, acts in its spirit, whether he knows it or not, whether he wishes it or not. If he reflects, makes use of, values that run counter to his stated political beliefs and aims, then he is either hopelessly stupid or is pursuing some other goal than the fulfilment of the Destiny of Europe — the formation of the Western Imperium in the spirit of Ethical Socialism.

There are two designs here: the first is the design of the European Michel, who seeks only his own advantage (the churchills) or that of his class (the finance-capitalist class; the proletarian usufructuaries of the looting of the body of Europe). The second design is that of the Cultural-outsider, the total alien, who in his boundless rancour directs a political will-to-annihilation against the West, who negates its Inner Imperative, who would strangle its Destiny and divert it from the Future. Geographically, he may act from outside the Western Culture, or inside, in the form of Culture-distortion. In each case, it is his spirituality that clinches the matter, and the Culture-distorter is one of the Outer Enemies of Europe.

When used in Politics, the word enemy has a meaning completely different from what it has when used in regard to Culture or private life. In private life, we call him our enemy who bears us ill will. Applied to world politics, this definition is meaningless, for no state bears ill will in any private sense. That is true even in those cases in which a political unit is animated by a purely negative will, and would express it politically. For the form-world of Politics itself conditions all political activity and transforms its whole content into power activity. However, Politics seldom does supply its own motivation — that is to be sought in another realm.

The motivation of the global power-struggle in our Age of Absolute Politics lies in Culture. On the planet there is only one High Culture in the process of fulfilment, the Western Culture, and as a spiritual front it naturally assumes the following form: the West against the Outer Revolt. The spiritual motivation of the politics of all outer forces whatever is the will-to-annihilate the Western Culture. In a power-struggle between Europe and any outer force, each contestant will, however, strive for power, that means control over the other. The motivation of the contestants will become apparent only after a power-decision in the struggle. Thus it is obvious that the West does not have the desire to destroy the peoples, territories, resources, and low cultures of the outer forces, whereas these outer forces most emphatically wish to destroy the peoples, landscape, resources, and the High Culture of Europe, as the Russian-American occupation of Europe after the Second World War demonstrated.

In the purely spiritual sense, then, Europe has but one "enemy," the Outer Revolt against the World Hegemony of the West. From this great, fundamental fact we know that the Outer Revolt will provide Europe with political enemies so long as the Age of Absolute Politics lasts. A European victory in the struggle for the planet will not extinguish the Outer Revolt as a spiritual front; it will simply prevent it from again rising to the level of political intensity.

At present, this spiritual front is divided into two political units: Russia and America-Jewry. Culturally, it is anomalous that America and one of the outer enemies of Europe are interdependent, for America belongs by its origin and fate to the Western Culture. All the same, it must now be counted among the enemies of Europe, since ethically and politically it is dominated by the Culture-alien Jewish entity of Church-State-Nation-Society-Race. Just how this domination came about is of less concern to Europe than the fact of it. The objective events of world-history since 1933 show that in not one instance has America pursued an American nationalist policy, but exclusively a policy in the interests of the Jewish entity.

In order to bring the metapolitical realities of this period between the Second and Third World Wars into clearer focus, each of the Outer Enemies of Europe must be examined separately.

America is, and shall always be, a colony of the Western Culture. A colonial spirituality determines the fate of colonies. So it has been with every previous Culture. When on the Home-soil the parent-Culture becomes extinct, everywhere the colonies perish. Population-streams may continue in primitive form; landscapes, of course, remain, but they are desolate and tyrannise the human beings that just yesterday dominated them; edifices may yet stand, but their symbolism is no longer understood. A colony is linked by a mystical bond, as though by a spiritual umbilical cord, to the parent organism, a bond just as inexplicable and just as real as the one that binds the Culture to the soil on which it was born. A colony thus shares a common history with the parent-organism, and its life reflects — with a natural and organic retardation — the development of the Culture. In the case of America, this retardation generally corresponds to the life-duration of one generation. This lagging behind is not the same thing as Culture-retardation, for it is natural and unavoidable. Still, that tardiness is serviceable to the Culturally-parasitic group which is now contriving to prevent the American colony from reflecting the development of its parent-organism. This pathological design is unattainable, of course, but any such deviation from Culture-health must have enormous effects on the host before the parasite is expelled.

The Jewish entity is a Cultural form-world of its own stamp, and can therefore never be assimilated by the Western Culture.*

* Cf. IMPERIUM, p. 376 ff.

Since this entity finds itself inside the West — geographically speaking — and since it must seek its political actualisation, it necessarily influences Western politics in the direction of its own interests. Though it be of alien origin, it must not appear alien; its politics must be regarded as though it were legitimate politics, and not the alien politics it is. The Western ideology of the 18th and 19th centuries was admirably suited to the political needs of the Jewish entity, but with the passing away of that ideology and the birth of the Age of Absolute Politics, the preconditions for the successful political activity of the Jewish entity on European soil completely vanished. The fictive constructs of "Liberté, Egalité, Fraternité" have entirely died out in Europe; hence the political history of the Jews, as quasi-members of the Western nations, has also ended. Even so, the colonial tardiness in Cultural development and the disease of Culture-retardation make it possible for Jewry to retain its uncontested domination over the American people.

In this period of history, America and Jewry form a Symbiosis. The head of the organism is the Jewish entity, the body is America.

The problem of the existence-duration of this Symbiosis is of only secondary importance to Europe. No one predicted the French Revolution in regard to its time or its form. No one predicted the Russian Revolution of 1917, or the European Revolution of 1933, or the American Revolutions of 1775 and 1933. No one can in any way presage the time or the form of a Third Revolution in America which will take the power away from the Jewish entity and place it in the hands of a new American ruling-stratum.* That Revolution is an organic possibility — indeed, even more: it is an organic Unavoidable. But since the time of its outbreak is still an Imponderable, the possibility of such a Revolution can play no rôle in the formation of Europe's policy, for a policy cannot be based upon Imponderables, though it must be flexible enough to adapt itself when they emerge from the realm of the Unforeseen. When the Revolution starts, it will bring in America a re-awareness of European politics and a re-evaluation of Europe's meaning.

* Cf. IMPERIUM, p. 549 ff.

The Symbiosis of America and Jewry in this moment of history between the Second and Third World Wars is decisive not only for America, but also for Jewry. During the centuries of its "dispersion," the Jewish entity never attained to the position of absolute sovereign over the fate of a Western host-people. But now it has come to that, and Jewry has identified itself for political purposes with America before all the world. In that Jewry became the overlord of America, it lost the most important of its other possessions and bases. Before the Jewish hegemony over America, the height of Jewish power was in Bolshevist Russia. In 1945, the superficial observer might have gained the impression that the total political power of the planet was being gradually collected into one political unit. That was in fact the aim of the Jewish leadership, and the means of creating the "world government" was to be the resurrected "League of Nations."

As has already been shown in IMPERIUM,* a world-state is an organic impossibility, and likewise a logical one. State is a political term, and political power results from polarity. A state is thus a unit of opposition. Although in theory a world-state would not have an opposition, if one were founded, it would at that very instant split into two or more political units. These would develop along regional, cultural, class, or economic lines — even along the lines dictated by a dominant political figure. Ignoring the concrete example of failure afforded by the "League of Nations" after the First World War, the Jewish-American Symbiosis attempted through its "United Nations" to create a power-monopoly for itself.

One great obstacle was present: Russia. It had been hoped, even taken for granted, that Russia would remain sufficiently under the control of the Jewish entity to collaborate in the scheme and, together with America, formally surrender its legal sovereignty to the "United Nations." But the rise of the American-Jewish Symbiosis undermined the position of the fragment of the Jewish "diaspora" in Russia. So long as Jewry acted alone, it was politically effective in Russia. The world-wide identification of Jewry with America aroused Russian nationalism, with the result that the Culture-alien Jewish entity of Church-State-Nation-Society-Race lost its status as a member, so to speak, of the Russian national structure and was re-classified as a foreign element, thus losing completely its political effectiveness inside Russia.

* Cf. IMPERIUM, p. 166 f; 170 f.

As we have seen, the sole great spiritual-Cultural "enemy" Europe has is the Outer Revolt, against the West, the great No to the Western World-Mission, and this spiritual-Cultural front is divided into two political units, of which Russia is the second. Between the First and the Second World Wars, Russia was generally acknowledged to be the leader of the Outer Revolt, but in the Russo-Japanese War, 1904-1906, it was vice versa. At that time, Russia figured as a Western power against the Outer Revolt, which was led by Japan as the only sovereign power outside the Western Culture. In between lies the Bolshevist Revolution of 1917.

The Bolshevist Revolution was more than political; it was Cultural. Power was tranferred from the Westernised elements in the church, state, army, aristocracy, and intelligentsia to a group basing itself upon the instinctively nihilistic stratum of the Russian peasant masses. The primitive Russian Soul, unsure of itself, had been forced by the Romanovs and the powerful inroads of German culture in Russia to submit to Westernisation. Consequently, there arose in Russia a dreadful tension of polarity between the two Souls, the Western and the proto-Russian. Dostoievsky's The Possessed depicts how it fermented nihilistically beneath the surface. It was this underground Russia that, led by the Jewish entity, broke away in 1917 from the West. By 1923, the civil wars had ended, and Western culture was for the time banished from Russia. A community of destiny with Asia and its revolt against the West, rather than with a Europe whose form-world it had just expelled from Russian soil, more nearly answered the expectations of the new Russia.

The Russian Soul is too virile ever to be strangled by something alien. Hence the Jewish entity, despite the dominant position to which it had attained with the Revolution of 1917, was incapable of maintaining its unconditional rule. The expulsion of Trotsky in 1928 marks the downward turning point for Jewry in Russia.

And yet the Bolshevist Revolution did not eliminate the polar-tension within the Russian Soul. So long as the Russian Soul, chaotic and full of longing, animated by a strong will yet of weak resolve, exists within the sphere of influence of a Western organism that is conscious of its World-Mission, there will remain in Russia a powerful urge towards reunion with the West. The European Revolution of 1933 found an echo in Russia, and when the European armies entered Bolshevist territory in 1941, they were hailed everyplace there as "liberators." Marshal Vlasov could have raised armies of millions and affiliated them with the European military forces, but, unfortunately, the European Command did not make use of such aid until it was too late. The possibility indeed exists that a second monstrous upheavel — with a pro-Western Cultural aim — will overthrow the Bolshevist régime. This possibility might be realised either through a renewed Western invasion or through the appearance of a new Peter the Great. It is a further Imponderable. Today Europe must reckon with Russia as part of the Outer Revolt against its World-Mission.

Since there are only two political powers in the world, the world situation can assume only the form of preparation for war between them: America-Jewry versus Russia.

If Bolshevism is understood as the urge to destroy the Western Culture, then these two extra-European powers form an anti-Cultural Interregnum in Western History, the Concert of Bolshevism. Both powers are formless and personal; neither is the expression of a superpersonal Soul, a higher Destiny, an organically necessary Imperative to a World-Mission. The Outer Forces, whatever the extent to which they have Western technics at their disposal, whatever Western customs they practise, whatever superficial display of literary connexions with the West they make, are, in fact, to be classed in the same category with the formless powers of Tamerlane and Genghis Khan, Sun Yat-sen and Kemal Atatürk, Lobengula and the Mahdi. Europe is still the bearer of a World-Idea, a great World-Hypothesis; it still has an inward necessity to view the world in a particular fashion, an Ethic whereby it conducts itself towards it in a particular fashion and reconstructs it in a particular fashion. For the single, all-encompassing reason of this total difference between Europe, on the one hand, and the formless extra-European powers on the other, Europe can have at bottom no interest in the projected Third World War within the Concert of Bolshevism per se. Nor would it make any difference in this if the War broke out in 1960 or 1975.

Nevertheless, Europe is linked politically to the projected Third World War, and it must exploit every possibility in the diplomatic preparations for that war to push through its Liberation. Europe must recall its Destiny and its World-Mission. It must assess the differences between the two powers in the Concert of Bolshevism, and adapt itself so that it will profit from their changing fortunes in the events to come. Europe must form its policy.

As we have seen, the word "enemy" has a different meaning when applied to Culture, private life, Politics. In the Cultural sense, Europe has only one "enemy," and that is the Outer Revolt against the World-Mission of the West. It embraces all primitive populations, even in those cases in which they live geographically within the Western Culture, as in North and South America, and includes all fellah-populations now inhabiting areas where High Cultures once fulfilled themselves, for example, the Islamic, Hindu, and Chinese populations. Likewise it embraces populations in whose areas a High Culture has never existed, for example, the barbaric Russians and Mongols, the savages of Africa, South East Asia, and the Pacific islands. The Jewish entity comes from the Magian Culture and will always belong to it spiritually, that Magian Culture which during its life-span gave rise to the Arabian, Persian, Nestorian, and Parsic peoples, among others. While some of these entities may have lost individuals to the West, alien units cannot be assimilated by the West in their entirety. Superpersonal realities on both sides forbid it. It is an organic impossibility. The world-wide Cultural front against the West is divided into two political units, Russia and America-Jewry, and the word enemy is used quite differently in Politics.

Politics means so living life that its possibilities are exhausted. In the course of events, Politics divides its world into political friends and political enemies. Before Politics undertakes this division, all outer units are potential enemies, and it is the task of Politics to select one or more units as enemies, then, if possible, to win the other units as friends.

The choice of enemy is the most important decision in the entire realm of activity called Politics. The mighty English Empire, which dominated the world for more than a century, foundered on its simple but profound mistake of choosing the wrong enemy in two World Wars. The whole adroit ancillary diplomacy, the total war-effort, and the military victory itself did not succeed in preventing the disappearance of the greatest Empire in history and the destruction of England's own sovereignty. The English homeland was not even spared the ultimate humiliation of occupation by foreign troops, and, what is more, these troops came from its erstwhile colony. The formulation of policy is esoteric, and this is proved by the selfsame example: Notwithstanding the collapse and disappearance of the English Empire, notwithstanding the reduction of England itself to the status of an "unsinkable aircraft carrier" for foreign air-forces, the Culture-retarding stratum and the broad masses were successfully persuaded by foreign propaganda that a great "victory" had somehow been won for England.

Political blunders can be made at two levels: at the highest level, where the enemy is determined and friends can be obtained, or at the lowest, where the policy based thereupon is carried out. The word error, in the strict sense, can be used in Politics only with regard to the future. Thus one must reproach England for choosing Germany as its enemy in the Second World War when it was obvious that its choice was an error. The great von Moltke defined strategy as "the art of making one less error than your adversary." This definition can be likewise applied to Politics. Considered in retrospect, Life is a fabric of errors. No one can foresee the Future.

Politics is concrete; it is the art of the possible, not of the desirable, not of the moral, not of what is worthy of aspiration. Politics is an art, and it is the grandest of all arts, since its material is human life and its completed work the blossoming of a superpersonal Destiny. When a work of art is executed by an inferior, an imitator, an academic, the result is a piece of bungling. The indispensable gift of the politician is the gift of vision; after it comes finesse in political activity. Without prior vision, the whole fateful proceeding comes to naught.

A statesman comes nearest to the gift of vision when he is aware of his own strength of will and that of his people and perceives the power-currents of the political world. A steady adherence to both of these fundamentals will preserve him from the far-reaching error of choosing the wrong enemy. It is tantamount to waging war against oneself. In the Second World War, England sacrificed both the remnants of its Empire and its own independence for the benefit of America and Russia. There are still people who would deny this fact, but only facts are positive, not the sclerotic opinions of half-blind dotards.

The Political Genius is a superlative artist, and thus free of all negativity in his creations. To his task he brings no hatred, no malice, no envy, nor any will-to-destruction that does not serve his will-to-power and will-to-creation. He is incapable of pursuing a policy that is basically "anti"-oriented, for example, a policy that has the slogan "Win the War!" as its "war-aim." Such slogans may have certain propaganda value for the policy of a political Genius, but only the shamelessly hate-filled reactionary of the Churchill sort makes a policy of his hatred and asserts that "victory" at the cost of self-destruction is something worth seeking. Naturally, the political Genius removes from his path all forces opposing him, so far as he can; but this "anti"-tactic he employs for the sake of increasing his power, not from jealousy, prejudice, hatred, or mere dislike.

The problem of choosing an enemy is the same for Europe today, i.e., for the Culture-bearing stratum, as it would be for us if Europe were constituted as an actual political unit. Today Europe is an area and a People. If it pursues the right policy. tomorrow it will be a power — by virtue of its Inner Imperative alone, which proceeds from the unfulfilled Destiny of the Western Civilisation. The fact that Europe has a World-Mission guaranteees that it will play a rôle in the centuries to come. Whether this rôle will be an active one, or merely passive, will become evident in our decades, and will be determined by the policy of the European Culture-bearing stratum.

The choice of an enemy is not arbitrary: We can designate a political unit as enemy only if, first, we can overcome that unit, and, second, by overcoming it gain power. Clearly, in this second Interbellum-Period Europe cannot overcome any power militarily because there does not and cannot exist a European military force as long as Europe is not constituted as a sovereign state. Any military force directly or indirectly under the command of the Washington régime cannot be called a "European military force." The nationality of an army is that of its political leadership, not of its common soldiers or its officer-corps. In these circumstances, Europe is compelled to win power by spiritual-intellectual means. It must extract power from one or both of the Outer Forces, Russia and America-Jewry. That one of these two units from which Europe can draw true political power, viz., unlimited control over its own land and people, is the political enemy. It cannot be emphasised enough that the enemy-definition does not entail, from the European standpoint, any judgement of especially bad ethical, moral, aesthetic, or cultural qualities on the part of the enemy. Culturally, aesthetically, morally, ethically, there is no choosing between Russia and America-Jewry. Yet, politically, Europe is compelled to distinguish between them, by its organic necessity to translate its Inner Imperative into action. It would be impossible for Europe to play a passive rôle in History, even if it wished, or it were wiser to do so. While Life advances, there is no standing still.

The Definition of Enemy is a problem that must be solved in the total historical frame-of-reference of our Epoch. Thereby the power-currents of the century, the power-problems resulting therefrom, and the relative danger for Europe must be considered.

THE POWER-PROBLEMS OF THE SECOND INTERBELLUM-PERIOD

Owing to the false form of the first two World Wars and to the presence of a Culture-disease in the Western Civilisation, the power-problems in this period between the Second and the Third World Wars are the same ones that have confronted Europe for half a century, but now intensified to the highest possible degree.

In the year 1914, the power-problems were the following: how to preserve Europe's world-hegemony and how to make possible the conversion of Europe from an accumulation of petty-states with the hand-me-down world-outlook of a nationalist-capitalistic parliamentarism to the determined shape of Europe for the 20th century, viz., an Authoritarian Socialist structure of Culture-Nation-People-Race, the Imperium of the West. The form of the First World War, shaped by Culture-retarders like Grey, prevented a natural, organic solution of this power problem.

Between the First and Second World Wars, important steps were taken within Europe for the organic solution of the second problem, the transition of the 20th century phase of the European organism into the world of reality. Hardly anything was done for the solution of the first problem, owing to the precarious world situation at that time, although the Italian-Abyssinian War did bring a general increase in power for Europe.

But this organic move forward was halted by the meddling of America-Jewry in intra-European affairs, and, as we have seen, this meddling brought about, in the same sterile form as the First World War, the tragedy of the Second World War. About 1939, the power-problems consisted in the re-establishment of the world-hegemony that had been almost entirely destroyed by the First World War, and in the completion of the half-actualised Imperium of Europe. The Second World War, occasioned by the extra-European, non-Western force of America-Jewry and by the churchills of France and England, once again thwarted the organic solution of these two problems.

As a result of the Second World War, it can be seen that the power-problems are essentially the same two. Only their order of precedence has changed, so that now the problems are, first, the Liberation of Europe from extra-European rule, for the entirety of Europe is ruled from alien capitals; and, second, the fulfilment of Europe's World-Mission, i.e., the reconquest of its world-hegemony and the establishment of its World Empire.

Every power-problem contains a disjunction between the distribution of spiritual power-sources, on the one hand, and the distribution of acknowledged power and its attributes on the other. The spiritual power-source — the possession of a World-Mission, a calling, a mighty, positive Inner Imperative, and a nation-forming ethic — are found concentrated almost entirely in Europe. The spiritual resources that exist outside Europe, in Russia, America-Jewry, and Japan, are merely a reflex of the European — a European Will that is inspired there by Europe. In actuality, the Outer Forces are seeking to realise the World-Mission of Europe, even though they lack the Inner Imperative to it. Their motivation is completely negative. Thereby is explained the circumstance that the immense concentration of power in the Washington and Moscow régimes has brought no Order to the world, that both régimes perpetuate the Chaos left over in the 20th century from the 19th century. Only Europe can give back to this chaotic world the Principle of Order.

The American power-accumulation can be called an "empire" only in a loose, transferred sense. Within the Symbiosis America-Jewry, neither the Jewish entity nor the subordinate American element thinks in terms of American Imperialism. Thus the American head-of-state specifically declared to the populace that no people on earth was in any sense subject to America, that America's "defense" of other peoples did not entitle it to demand reciprocity from them, and, moreover, that under no circumstances would America "dominate" another people. What is of particular significance in this is the anti-imperialist ideology, not the fact that all these principles are completely disregarded in the political conduct of America-Jewry. The intention here is to prevent the rise of American Imperialist thinking, for that would run counter to the anti-nationalist policy of the dominant part of the Symbiosis. But if the Imperialist urge within the American people were of deep, imperative force, and pregnant with the Future, it could not be suppressed, and the power-accumulation that the Washington régime at present administers would be organised into an American Empire.

However, a true American Empire that is hierarchically organised and politically administered will never be, since it is not among the formative possibilities of the American character. Now, a nation cannot arise by happenstance — a people, yes — but a nation is the outflowing of a High Culture.* Though America can never belong to any other Culture than the Western, in American life Western culture is only a veneer. Its inward influence on the American population was too slight, for example, to have prevented the invasion of Culturally-alien units. There is no American Idea, no American nation, no American ruling-stratum — three ways of expressing the same thing. To be sure, there is an American People, whose members are in fact characterised by an individual imperialism, which is instinctive, racial, economic. But this individual imperialism can never lift itself to political heights. The true American People is a unit based upon matriarchy. By its own choice, it leads a cocoon-like life within a closed system. The soul of this People is too oriented to the feminine pole of existence, and it therefore cherishes peace, comfort, security, in short, the values of individual life. War, conquest, adventure, the creation of form and order in the world — these do not interest the American People. Empire-building demands sacrifices; yet, for sacrifices to be made, and not just sacrificial victims slaughtered, there must be an Idea.

* Cf. IMPERIUM, p. 328 ff., p. 334 ff., p. 398 ff.

The American power-accumulation arose without sacrifices through America's chance intervention at two decisive moments in world affairs. In the First World War, America's sole war-aim — according to the public and private utterances of all leading Americans who were in favour of intervention in that War — was to defeat "German tyranny." As was shown in the analysis of Politics in IMPERIUM, to have the defeat of an arbitrarily chosen enemy as a "war-aim" is to have no war-aim at all. Thus America had no political aim in that War. The rôle England played in America's entry into the War is not important here. Important only is the stock of ideas that were played out to set the American People in motion. In the Second World War, America's internal propaganda was exclusively non-political. Again, the chief "war-aim" was to "defeat Germany," and the one attempt to display a positive "war-aim" was a series of negative proposals — all of them reflecting the feminine values of a matriarchy — to free the world of hunger, fear, etc. The psychological orientation of the American People prevents American governments in peacetime from clearly expressing a demand for war. In wartime, it is obligatory to speak only of "peace." "Victory" is supposed to bring only "peace," and not an extension of power. Above all, the purpose of victory is not an American Empire. After the extinction of the Federalist Party in 1828, no political grouping in America publicly advocated the creation of an American Empire. The average type of party-politician ensures, however, that every public man would advocate political imperialism were the idea popular.

The American power-accumulation in this epoch between the Second and Third World Wars has arisen without sacrifice. Had sacrifice been necessary for it, then it would not have arisen.*

Before 1914, America controlled only a small section of the world-surface: the North American Continent, Central America

* Cf. IMPERIUM, p. 472 ff., p. 482 ff.

below Mexico, small areas of northern South America. Not even the Caribbean Sea could be called American, since European bases were numerous there and the American fleet was inferior in number to more than one European fleet. In the First World War, 10,000,000 men lost their lives on the battlefield. Of this total sum America's tribute amounted to 120,000; for this slight toll in blood, America acquired sufficient new territories and bases, obtained enough power for itself at sea, to have 1/5th of the earth's surface under its control: North America, the whole of Central America, including Mexico, the entire Caribbean, much of South America, and half the Pacific. After the War, in accordance with the feminine-matriarchal orientation of the American People, the greater part of these power-acquisitions was abandoned — this occurred through the Washington Naval Treaty of 1921, under which America obligated itself to sink half its fleet without demanding the equivalent from England or Japan. Yet the fact remains: America acquired a power-area that was four times larger than its original with the vanishingly small blood-toll of 120,000.

By 1939, America had gained control, pari passu with the steady decline of England's power, of 1/5 of the earth-surface. At the end of the Second World War, America controlled 18/20ths of it. That is the largest power-accumulation ever to come about in the entire history of High-Cultures. The total number of dead of all belligerent states amounted to approximately 15 million. America's portion of this loss was 250,000. In the Second World War, then, America acquired control of more than half the world without its having to make a blood sacrifice worth mentioning in connexion with such an operation.

Not even such unparalleled political successes fill the soul of the American People with satisfaction. America, as a People, is organic, and will forever remain isolationist. Isolationism is the only American characteristic that can be called "nationalism." The American soul does not delight at all in this world power. It finds in it no reason for pride. When in 1947 the Washington régime calmly handed over China to Russia, that is, the focus of America's quarter of the world's power, Americans took no notice. The diplomatic intermediary in the transfer was publicly honoured and draped with medals. Only a few years after the War, ships were taken from the American fleet and delivered to Japan en masse to serve as the basis of a new Japanese navy. No American nationalist protested, for in America there are no nationalists, only victimised isolationists.

It is a strange phenomenon, and History will deal with it as with so many other transient paradoxes, that between the Second and Third World Wars American troops were stationed all along the perimeter of the political world, viz., the northeast quadrant of the planet, and this wide dispersion of American armed forces did not involve any kind of national exultation for Americans. The reason for that is Americans are primarily economics-oriented. The Masculine Principle is to realise higher ideas through art, warfare, Politics. Nothing could be further from the American ideal than that. The Feminine Principle is to nourish and preserve life — that is the American ideal. Americans therefore do not delight in an "empire" that continually lays claim to their wealth and constantly demands a reduction in their standard-of-living. In its traditional isolation, America needed no armies, garrisons, subventions to foreign countries, and Great Wars. The superficial politisation of America has brought the American People economic injuries, and thus confirmed it in its isolation.

The American casualty list in the first two World Wars, slight as they were numerically, hit the American People in a sensitive spot. No mother rejoices in the death of her children, and matriarchy informs the American soul. Americans do not love their victories, whereas the deaths they count bitterly. Long before American intervention in each of the two World Wars, there was already a de facto state-of-war between America and European or Asiatic belligerents. In each case, the possession of numerous "allies" provided Americans with a certain solace. In the Second World War, long lists of American allies were published, and considered effective propaganda even though few of the "allies" were still power-factors or even existed. Indeed, with the alternative: war now with allies, or war later, standing alone, America can be forced into a war. The old European proverb: Viel' Feind, viel' Ehr finds no resonance in matriarchal America.

This American character-trait is a Ponderable of which Europe must take account in shaping its policy. In the American mind (and likewise in the policy-decisions of the Culturally-alien Washington régime), Europe is the basis of every war-plan against Russia. This Ponderable might be used by Europe in either one or the other two ways, as will be shown later. Moreover, Europe's Culture-bearing stratum must keep in mind that it does not matter at this time whether America, as a People, can regain its independence and sovereignty or whether it will remain simply the instrumental part of the Symbiosis America-Jewry. For political purposes, America and Jewry have become a unit; what name this unit receives is not important.

It remains for us to compare and evaluate from a political standpoint the psychology of the two extra-European powers, America-Jewry and Russia.

Neither Russia nor America-Jewry belongs to the Western Civilisation, though America, considered abstractly in and of itself, as it was before the Revolution of 1933, is still a European colonial-people.

Hence there is no Cultural casus belli in the coming Third World War between these two powers. They both belong to the Outer Revolt against the world-supremacy of the West, and the collective term for this revolt, which turns, destroying and negating, against the creative affirmation of the Western Destiny, is Bolshevism. Within the Concert of Bolshevism there are, of course, differences as well as similarities. Both must be evaluated.

With both world-powers, the reigning ideology comes from a bygone Western world-outlook. The American ideology of "freedom," "equality," and legalism stems from 18th century Europe, as does its underlying philosophy of materialism. The Russian ideology of Marxism comes from 19th century English Capitalism, of which Marxism is a supplement. In Russia, Marxism is treated as a religion, for the prime characteristic of the Russian soul is its religiosity. Whatever this soul takes seriously, be it even the absurd end-product of Western materialism — Pavlovian reflexology, scientific psychology —, it deals with in a religious way, that is, in a way transcending action. Nowhere in Russian life is there anything that in any way corresponds to the Marxist schema. The Russian soul is not yet politically mature, and Russia continues to use Marxism as a political export article, even though a market for it no longer exists, since the First World War buried the form-world of the 19th century for ever. America-Jewry, which is similarly maladapted to the New Age, exports to Europe the shop-worn ideology of Montesquieu, Constant, Mill, Bentham, and hopes that on this basis it can turn the Destiny of Europe back two centuries.

In America, on the other hand, Marxism is not a theory but a fact. In the realm of facts, Marxism means class-war. America is the classic land of finance-capitalism and trade unions, the two organised groups that systematically plunder the national economy. Not only Marx, but all 19th century theorisers were obsessed with economic doctrines — Malthus, Darwin, Mill, Spencer, Shaw. American life is essentially oriented to economics, and every aspect of Life is simply referred for its justification thereto.

Feminine-matriarchal life is routine; hence American life is routine and technicised. Books instruct the population "How To Win Friends," how social life, family life, sexual life are to be conducted. Yet this uniformisation of life is not perceived as burdensome or ignominious—the American population is entirely passive and feels quite at home in this atmosphere of a nursery. The social instincts predominate over the individual instincts, and every American child is taught from his earliest days that the essence of leading a successful life consists in "getting along with people." There is no other way to realise this ideal than to renounce one's individuality. That is the explanation for the difficulty of kindling any kind of political opposition in America. As soon as a policy secures a foothold and becomes popular, it is right and respectable. Radical or persistent criticism is impossible in America; the term "individualist" is nearly an insult. The extirpation of strong individuality precludes the rise of a true élite, an aristocracy, a ruling-stratum, for these are always based upon strong individuality and the feeling of uniqueness. All feelings of superiority, of higher self-esteem, of uniqueness are educated out of the American while he is still in kindergarten. It is impressed on him that his existence, his problems are exactly like those of everybody else.*

An elementary demand of Life, however, is that every group possess a stratified social articulation. America's "élite" for economic, technical, industrial, social purposes is the business-class, those thirty-thousand technical-managerial brains that permit American life to function. For political purposes, the "élite" is the Jewish entity, which enjoys a monopoly of power in all matters but is especially conspicious in the direction of foreign affairs. The technical-managerial caste has no sense of carrying out a mission; it does not regard itself as superior in nature, but only as more proficient in intellectual-technical matters. This type of social-technical differentiation resembles that which exists among the social insects, for example, the bees and ants.

* Cf. IMPERIUM, p. 502 ff., p. 524 ff.

Russian life is fundamentally barbarian. The barbarian is to be distinguished not only from Culture-men, but from savages, primitives, fellaheen, and decadents as well. Barbarian is a word full of promise, for the barbarian is inwardly in motion. The Germanic tribes that occupied Imperial Rome were barbarians, and from this Germanic stock came, many centuries later, men who wrought the Western Culture. The barbarian is the pre-Cultural form of humanity, just as different from the fellah, the end-product of a Culture, as from the savage, the proto-human type that stands in no relation whatever to a High Culture. The barbarian is strong-willed yet irresolute. He can be readily converted to new doctrines — witness the Russian "conversion" to Marxism —, but the conversion must be superficial, for mere verbiage cannot abolish the difference between Culture-man and barbarian. The barbarian is rough and tough, not keen-witted, full of artifice, and certainly not legalistic and intellectualised. He is the opposite of decadent. He is ruthless and does not shrink back from destroying what others may prize highly.

America's ideology — 18th century materialistic egalitarianism and 19th century capitalism — and Russia's ideology — 19th century proletarian capitalism — are both permeated with the spirit of their respective populations, the American ideology with that of the amalgam of negro-Jewish-Asiatic-Indian-European elements, as modified by the peculiarities of the landscape, the Russian ideology with that of the nomadic tribes of Asia, which are imbued with the enormous impersonality of the Asiatic steppes.

The Culture-man outside the Culture-sphere stands in danger of losing his Cultural-orientation — what the British civil administration in India used to call "going negative." During the expansion of the American population over the vast plains, the American colonial lost well-nigh every contact with Western tradition and Western happenings, and his Western culture was diluted. Only in one part of America was there a successful transplantation of Western culture, in the South, but it was destroyed, for all practical purposes, by the victory of the Yankees in the Secession War, 1861-1865. While the American lost his Western culture, step by step, he became primitive. Had he fought a Culturally-alien world, such as the Chinese or Hindu, he would have retained his Cultural-orientation in fullest measure, for conflict with the Alien strengthens the Proper. But he fought merely savages and, more often, the landscape itself, the hardships of Nature. In the inward contest between Culture and Landscape, Landscape was largely the victor. Because comfort is one of the main ideals of the American, his vital impetus finds expression primarily in the domain of technics. Unrestrained by tradition, by political or social considerations, he fell head over heels into absolute technical development, and — in technics — he made his the foremost among the Western Colonies. Thus, as a result of his century of state-less expansion, the American succumbed, on the one hand, to the primitivity of his vast and empty continent, while, as a result of the concentration made possible for him by the absence of power-struggles, on the other, he made himself in some respects superior to Europeans. This had as its consequence yet another peculiarity.

The simultaneous presence of primitivity and over-civilisation in the American shaped his relationship to Europe into an unhealthy one. With his strong technical aptitude, he came to regard Europe as inferior; with his primitivity, he failed to comprehend Europe's Cultural Imperative in the 20th century. Hence he offered no resistance when the Culture-distorting régime foisted on America the idea that it had to educate Europe.

This idea could be all the more inculcated since America is by nature feminine-matriarchal and attributes great value to formal education. In America the autodidact will find neither political, academic, professional, nor social recognition. This peculiarity of the American character has been aggravated by the Culture-distorting element, and American schools and universities have been made into scholastic factories that produce uniform biological units. They have eradicated human individuality, so far as that can be attained at all in the human species. All values imparted through this "education," such as comfort, security, and social uniformity, may be found on the purely animal level in man. None appeal to the specifically human level, which is embodied at highest potential by the unique and individualised human being, with his loftier values.

While the American is a Culture-man, reprimitivised on the one side of his being, over-civilised on the other, since he is completely and entirely animated by the ideals of peace, comfort, and security, the Russian is a barbarian, and still wholly primitive. Centuries of Petrinism never touched the underground Russia. No matter that it figured as such for centuries, Russia never became a nation of the West. America is a genuine Western colony, though, to be sure, it must now be counted part of the Outer Revolt.

The orientation towards technics is common to both: America is technical by instinct; Russia has become so under compulsion from its leaders, who have only politico-military reasons for embracing technics. In the field of philosophy, America's sole contribution to the Western intellectual heritage was Pragmatism — the doctrine that Truth is "what works." In other words, Truth is not a function of the Soul, but of Nature. Pragmatism is at once a primitive and over-civilised philosophy, primitive, because its position vis-à-vis Truth is devoid of higher culture; over-civilised, because it makes all Truth merely an attribute of Technics. Expressed in terms of the American psychology: "True is what procures me more security, more comfort." In America, obsession with technics is the expression and content of life of the population. It is instinctive, and America naturally seeks to export it to whatever countries its armies and bomber-squadrons have conquered. In Russia, on the other hand, the technics-obsession merely serves political and military ends, and is imposed on the Russian population only through the apparatus of a political dictatorship. The Russian experiences things primarily in a religious way; hence the incredible spectacle of his worshipping a machine.

Russia exhibits the same education-obsession as America: In the words of Lunacharsky: "Education, distributed according to Marxist principles, can make even the most mediocre Oriental intelligent." Once again, a common denominator with America. There, too, "intelligence" is regarded as something that can be acquired, and, moreover, as the only distinction between human beings. Both Russia and America hold that the External forms and conditions the mind. Both emphasise totally environment and experience, negate dogmatically Spirit and Soul. For both the collective man is the ideal and the prevalent type. In both there naturally exists the most extreme intolerance towards anything other than the mass-ideal.

In Russia, the craze for uniformity, including the education-mania, is likewise imposed from above to carry out a political programme. The emphasis on the power of environment, the adoration of reflexology, the idolisation of machines, of statistics and percentages, and of economic theories generally — all this is in Russia simply technique, and it is all essentially negative: the Russian peasant-barbarian soul is a religious ferment, and, as such, abhors economic theories, machines, science, and nationalism. The programme of Moscow-Bolshevism represents a means of quashing the hyper-individuality of a people of Pugachevs, Aksakovs, Kropotkins, Nechayevs, Dostoievskys, Rasputins, and Skoptsy. Primarily, Moscow-Bolshevism is a method for politicising the religious-barbarian Russia. That the Moscow régime uses Marxism as an export-article is simply political idiocy, and the possibility constantly exists that it will one day discard it because of its ineffectiveness.

For Europe the following distinction is important: American-Jewish Bolshevism is the instinctive destruction of the West through primitive, anti-Cultural ideas — peace, comfort, security, abolition of individuality —, through over-technicisation, through the imposition of Culture-distortion and Culture-retardation. Russian Bolshevism seeks to attain the destruction of the West in the spirit of pan-Slavic religiosity, i.e., the Russification of all humanity.

Thus American-Jewish Bolshevism poses a real spiritual threat to Europe. In its every aspect, American-Jewish Bolshevism strikes a weak spot in the European organism. Even in Europe there exists a stratum, the Michel-stratum, the inner-America, which is animated by the purely animal American ideal of peace, comfort, security, abolition of individuality. Even in Europe there is an element that would like to replace culture with machinery. Even on Europe Culture-retarding régimes can be imposed, if necessary with American bayonets. Even in Europe Culture-distortion is present: the dictature over Europe of the American-Jewish Symbiosis itself. And even in Europe, in the midst of the Age of Absolute Politics, the Cato-type exists: You can watch him babbling, misty-eyed, about democratic ideals while the Barbarian and the Distorter occupy the sacred soil of the West. The 20th century European Cato would rather see the West destroyed than have finally to toss the rubbish of democratic ideals on the scrap heap of history, where the corpse of Democracy lies stinking and putrescent after a half century of decay.

Russian Bolshevism is simply barbarism, and therefore finds no resonance anywhere in Europe. Even Europe's lowest spiritual stratum, the inner traitor, the Michel-stratum, has nothing whatever in common with the pan-Slavism of barbaric population-streams. Russian religiosity has been temporarily and, from a Cultural standpoint, falsely raised to political intensity as a reflex of the great Western spiritual development, the Resurgence of Authority, the genesis of the Imperium-Idea. Without the Western Culture, there would be no such structure as Russia, only marauding tribes of barbaric horsemen like the Cossacks in Taras Bulba.

Russian Bolshevism is therefore less dangerous to Europe than American-Jewish Bolshevism, for no aspect of its menace corresponds to a weakness in Europe's spiritual armour. Europe actually has an inner America, the Michel-stratum; however, Europe has no inner Russia. Obviously, the so-called Communist Parties are not at all the reliable tools wherewith a Russian occupation of Europe could be built. In fact, the work of these Communist Parties is already done. They were useful instruments of early Bolshevism's foreign policy, especially in the period 1933-1939. During the Second World War, they helped save Russia's existence as a political unit; after the War, they helped create the Russian power-accumulation, extending from Hanover to Hong-Kong, the largest contiguous power-accumulation in the history of the world. Yet, today, between the Second and Third World Wars, all Communist Parties, including the American, are politically insignificant.

The Communist Parties of the West are simply class-war units, not bearers of barbarism and Russian pan-Slav nationalism. In the 20th century, all are forced to think in terms of facts and not merely words, so far as Politics is concerned, and Russia's connexion with Western class-war rests simply on words. Russia claims to be the bea.er of class-war in the West. Nevertheless, during the Second World War the Moscow régime forbade the American Communist Party to engage in class-warfare. Actually, the entire policy of using Marxism as a political export-article is now political stupidity, for Marxism has lost its former rabble-rousing value in the West. The highpoint of class-war in the West has passed.

In particular, it was the re-orientation of Russian world-policy after the Second World War, the turning against the Jewish entity of Church-State-Nation-People-Race, that sealed the doom of every Communist Party in the West, the one in America included.

The blow that the American-Jewish Symbiosis has dealt the European organism is well-known. The values of this Symbiosis are purely animal, anti-Spiritual, anti-Aristocratic, anti-Cultural, anti-Heroic, anti-Imperialist, and therefore appeal to the worst element in the European population and to the worst in every individual European. In each point of its attack, America-Jewry opposes the values of Capitalism to those of Imperialism, the heroic world-outlook of the Age of Absolute Politics. With the spiritual-ethical values of Capitalism, America-Jewry is planning to kill the Western organism. But since the Past can never destroy the Future, only attempt to thwart it, that means American bayonets imposing the anti-Cultural Interregnum on Europe, and therein lies the possibility that for Europe will follow many decades of degradation, chaos, darkness, stultification, misery, and wasting away.

The effect that a Russian occupation of Europe would have on the Western Culture is not yet equally well-known, and can be determined only by uncovering its organic basis.

The Russian is a barbarian; the European is a Culture-man in his late-Civilisation phase. Before this moment in History, barbarians have violently invaded Culture-areas. In the 16th century B.C., Northern barbarians invaded the Egyptian Culture-petrifact, to enact the chapter of history that is called the "Hyksos"-era. About 1700 B.C., the Kassites conquered and occupied the Babylonian Culture-area, and, around the same time, the Aryans in a barbaric wave from the North flooded into and conquered the Culture of the Indus. Chinese history in its first stirrings is the epic of a barbarian invasion by the Chou. Imperial Rome — even Republican Rome — was invaded more than once by the barbarian Germans and Gauls. In none of these historical instances did the invasion of the barbarians destroy the body of the Culture; in each case the result was finally the absorption of the barbarian elements into the Culture-body or their expulsion. The barbarian comes to destroy and stays to learn. Spiritually, the barbarian is a tabula rasa. Labile and childlike, he is eager to apply the new doctrines, new life-forms, to which he has been converted. Hence the Romanov Petersburg of the 18th and 19th centuries displayed a higher degree of Western Politesse and social-form than any European capital before it.

The belief that a Russian-barbarian occupation of the whole of Europe would be similar to the Russian occupation of half of Germany after the Second World War is a completely false estimate of the possibilities. A Russian occupation of all Europe would involve an entirely different distribution of forces and a completely different psychological situation. In the first place, the Russian occupation after the Second World War originated as a gift from America. Cynically, Europe's border against Asia, which had been pushed back gradually over a millenium, was restored to its place of 900 years ago. Thus the history, honour, and traditions of thirty generations of Europeans were outraged. The atrocities committed during the first years of the Russian occupation were permitted, encouraged, and even imitated by America. Without American encouragement, Russia would not have been in the position to commit its atrocities. In the second place, Europe was not politically able to intervene to protect 30,000,000 Europeans, for every European country was governed by the churchill-régimes the Americans had appointed, and these puppet-governments greeted barbarian Russia as their "valiant ally" while their members exchanged decorations with those of the Moscow régime.

Russia's occupation of a small part of Europe and its domination over one tenth of the European population after the Second World War were made possible only by the Washington régime, which, in 1945, wanted Europe so divided that the Red Flag would wave over Berlin and Vienna. If the Washington régime, instead of giving Russia simply a small part of Europe, had abandoned to it all of Europe — and that is a possibility contained in the events to come —, the division of forces would be completely different. Instead of America-Jewry, the whole of Russia, Eastern Europe, and most of Western Europe — under churchill-régimes — ranged against part of Germany, then against 200,000,000 Russians, would be arrayed the total body of the West, 250,000,000 men who are superior to them in intelligence, technical skill, organisational talent, and will-to-power. If this happens, America will be expelled from Europe, once and for all. Europe will have but a single enemy. That would be a unifying factor such as did not exist from the First Crusade until Lepanto.

A Russian occupation would develop along one or the other of two lines. The first possibility is an endless series of European uprisings against Russia that could result only in the expulsion of the demoralised barbarians. The second possibility would result from Russia's introducing a clever régime and according Europe extensive autonomy and magnanimous treatment. Within a few decades, this Europe would naturally aim at infiltrating horizontally the whole Russian seat of origin, its technical, economic, social, and, finally, military and political life. Instead of the Russification of Europe, as Dostoievsky and Aksakov dreamt of it, would result the Europeanisation of Russia once again, and this time in far stronger degree. This would occur from pure historical necessity, since this is the Age of Absolute Politics and Europe is politically shrewd whereas barbarian Russia is formless and politically inept, fluctuating between senseless vehemence and inner doubt. Not even the most brilliant statesmen in Russia could use this barbarian material to subjugate Europe in this Imperialist stage of its Destiny. An attempt by Russia to integrate Europe into its power-accumulation peacefully would eventually result in the rise of a new Symbiosis: Europe-Russia. Its final form would be that of a European Imperium. An attempt by Russia to chastise and terrorise Europe without the help of America would result in Russia's expulsion from Europe for good, by a Europe whose own dormant barbarian instincts had been thus reawakened.

If Russia should occupy Europe and attempt to imitate the American policy of encouraging petty-statism, to divide and conquer, it would fail utterly. America has been successful in that policy only because of its access to the European Michel-stratum with its lickspittle churchills. The Michel yearns for American capitalism and liberalism, but trembles with abyssmal cowardice before Russian barbarism. The Communist Parties would be of slight use to Russia in any attempt to set up puppet-governments on the model of America's churchill-régimes. The leadership and membership of these Communist Parties is composed of inferior European types, not of pan-Slavs or religious Russian nationalists. The barbarian, immature and unversed in the subtleties of the art of Politics, trusts only those who are of his own religion, and the true religion of the Russian is not Marxism, but Russia. The first victims of a Russian occupation of Europe would be the European Communists, who would be liquidated at the slightest suspicion of disloyalty. Their "Communism" stems from books, their pro-Russian sentiments from hatred and envy of their European surroundings, their utopian orthodoxy about Russia comes from a lack of realism and an exaggerated intellectualism. The Russian knout and the Russian revolver would soon teach them what they have not learnt from their books, would shatter their utopian ideals and give their hatred a new focus.

Russia's effect on petty-statism and petty-nationalism would in no way resemble America's successful perpetuation of these Culture-pathological phenomena. To carry out its policy in Europe, America needs petty-statism. Not only does it work in the spirit of the principle, divide et impera, it also cannot think outside the narrow framework of it. After the Second World War, the Washington régime, which held absolute power to force its will on enfeebled Europe, announced its policy of a "united Europe." It then proceeded to Balkanise Europe politically and atomise it socially in unparalleled fashion. Numerous congresses of toothless and infantile old men from the 19th century passed even more numerous resolutions, but the result was continued disunity and chaos. The childish dotards had received permission from Washington to jabber about the "unification" of Europe as much as they liked, but they were not allowed to say a word about the Liberation of Europe. That is why all these congresses led to nothing. For the Unification of Europe and the Liberation of Europe are one and the same process: seen from within, it is Unification; from without, Liberation.

The fact that Russia used the fiction of "independent" states in its post-War occupation of Eastern Europe offers no criterion for its policy in the event it should occupy Western Europe, the Europe that is synonymous with the Western Culture. In any case, simply the presence of the barbarian, let alone his policy, would dissolve the Inner Enemy of Europe, the Michel-stratum, and thus liberate all creative forces within Europe from the tyranny of the Past.

Without the Michel, without his leaders, namely the churchills, without American bayonets, the distribution of forces would be as follows: the European will-to-power and the European Destiny against the sheer military might of a barbarian horde. The dissolution of the Michel-stratum would automatically destroy petty-statism, for petty-statist ideals and theories are preserved only in Culture-retarding brains. The barbarian, whether he wished it or not, would complete the spiritual unification of Europe by removing the only inner-European obstacle to that unity. From the Spiritual to the Political is but one step.

The following would be the results of the two possible kinds of Russian policy, the far-sighted policy of striving to integrate Europe into an enormous Russian Empire, embracing the whole world, and the policy of attempting to rule Europe by terror and violence.

Should Russia aim at a lasting incorporation of Europe into its Empire, it could succeed only if it granted Europe significant concessions. The first of these would have to be administrative autonomy for Europe as a unit, for that is the desire of all Europeans — the Michel-stratum and its leaders, the senile churchills, of course, excepted.

Should Russia attempt to terrorise Europe, it would summon forth in the European People the will to counter-terror. Faced with the barbarian, all Europeans, even the simplest minded liberals, would learn the necessity of inner firmness, of a stern will, the virtues of Command and Obedience, for these alone could force the barbarian to accept demands, or else retreat to his tundras and steppes. All Europeans would realise that not parliamentary babble, class-war, capitalism, and elections, but only Authority, the Will-to-Power, and finally, the military spirit could ever drive out the barbarian. The expulsion of England's army of 40,000 men by a few hundred Irish guerrilla-fighters in the years 1916-1923 would be repeated on a larger scale. In a great, unrelenting War of Liberation, Europe would unite itself, and cast the barbarian back to the distant plains of Asia.

To conclude: Between the two powers in the Concert of Bolshevism that dominates this Second Interbellum-Period, there are numerous similarities, some profound, others superficial. Neither of the two is an organism with a positive Mission; neither of the two exhibits the inner qualities that alone can found and preserve a world-system; neither of them has or can have an aristocracy; in short, neither of them is the seat of a High Culture. In both the element of Landscape predominates over the cultural component in every stratum of the human material; both make use of an antiquated Western ideology that is completely ineffectual in the world-situation of the Age of Absolute Politics; both have not the faintest inkling of the Imperium-Idea, the necessary fulfilment whereof is the total historical meaning of this Age; both believe it possible to attain a static world-order in which History would have ceased to exist, and this belief makes both dangerously relentless; both believe Europe can be destroyed as a politico-Cultural unit, and degraded to the level of China.

Thus, from the European standpoint, there is in a Cultural sense no choice between these two powers, for both represent fundamental opposites to European Cultural imperatives.

In their political relation to Europe, however, the two extra-European powers widely and fundamentally differ. Owing to the presence of a European inner America, the Washington régime is able to establish or maintain in every European country: Culture-distortion, petty-statism, finance-capitalism, democracy, economic distress, and chaos. Regardless of its intentions, Russia produces a spiritual aversion throughout Europe. If America, deliberately or otherwise, relinquished to Russia the whole of Europe, Russia's occupation would have to be based either on terror or large-scale concessions to procure collaboration. Both occupation policies would end in the domination of Russia by Europe, either through a peaceful inner conquest or a series of Liberation Wars that Europe would wage as a unit against Russia. Barbarian Russia can only awaken Europe's sterner instincts. The American-Jewish Symbiosis, composed of fellah-Jews and American colonials who are at once primitive and over-civilised, appeals to the lowest stratum of Europe and to the lowest stratum in every European, the stratum of animal instincts, laziness, cowardice, avarice, dishonour, and ethical individualism.

America can only divide Europe—no matter what its policy.

Russia can only unite Europe—no matter what its policy.

From their comparative relationships to Europe, it follows quite clearly that a Russian-barbarian domination of all Europe, if such a thing were brought about by American policy—and that is the only way such an event could occur—would be less injurious to the Destiny of Europe than a continuation of the American-Jewish domination, for the barbarian, by his very presence, would dissolve the Inner Enemy of Europe, the Michel-stratum, and unite Europe spiritually.

This brings us to the concrete question of political decisions for Europe. The political question would be: How is power to be enlarged? But since Europe has no power, the question is: How is power to be obtained? There are only two political units in the world; hence the question is simply: From which political unit can Europe wrest away power? Or in other words: Who is the Enemy?

The armistice that concluded the Second World War left Europe divided between Russia and America-Jewry. Russia received ten per cent of Europe's population, America-Jewry was allotted ninety per cent. By Europe is meant here, of course, the Cultural Europe, viz., Germany, France, England, Italy, Spain, together with tiny provinces like Switzerland, and not the geographic "Europe" that is an historically worthless concept.

The Washington régime naturally seeks to convince its European subjects to identify the interests of America-Jewry with their own and therefore prepare Europe for war against Russia in alliance with it. The propaganda that aims at enlisting Europe's participation in this war has three main points: first, Russia is not a "democracy"; second, it "enslaves" other peoples; third, a Russian occupation of Europe would result in the slaughter of the whole European population or a considerable part thereof.

The first point is politically meaningless, nor is the second point worth taking seriously. To enslave two hundred and fifty million people who are spiritually, ethically, scientifically, technically, militarily, and politically the most highly developed in the world is impossible. So far as Europeans can be enslaved at all, they are already enslaved by America-Jewry. Today the people of Europe work with every possible exertion for the enrichment and aggrandisement of the financiers, industrial-barons, politicians, and generals of North America. Slavery no longer means the rattling of chains, rather shortages of currency and materials, rationing, unemployment, occupation soldiers and their families, puppet-governments, re-armament and military programmes on a gigantic scale.

The third point seeks to frighten Europeans into a war to destroy America-Jewry's sole dynamic opponent, thus placing the masters of New York and Washington in control of the entire world. But again, to kill a considerable part of the European population through short-term violent measures would be impossible. The well-planned and systematically executed starvation of Germany by the American-Jewish occupation during the period 1945-1948 killed approximately 3,000,000 people. That is probably the largest number of people that could have been killed by such methods. Overheated brains that could be persuaded that Europe "killed 6,000,000 Jews" can readily imagine the course a Russian massacre of hundreds of millions of human beings would take. People who believe in such nightmares lack a sense for exaggeration, and their psychology is entirely wanting. No great number of men can be trained to kill, directly and systematically, as a daily performance, from morning till evening, over an extended period, unarmed men, women, and children. Certainly, the mere sporadic killing of the kind involved in every military invasion could never reduce the population of Europe to any great extent.

If a selective killing should be the method in an attempt to behead the European organism, then Russia would be likewise incapable of that. This was the method of the American-Jewish "war-crimes" programme, the most extensive terror in the history of the world. America-Jewry attempted to isolate the élite and string up its members one by one; but there, too, it missed the mark. Russia did not practise any systematic "war-crimes" terror, in spite of encouragement on the part of America-Jewry, since it was more interested in individuals as material for the Future than in settling past accounts according to Mosaic Law. Furthermore, the American Colonials and their exotic leaders understand much better than the barbarian how to go about isolating and exterminating superior individuals, for the inner structure and cohesion of the Western Culture are much less familiar to him and much less understood by him. A profound ignorance of the outside world goes hand in hand with Russian xenophobia.

America-Jewry insists that Russia could overwhelm Europe—quite mechanically and automatically—were not American colonial troops here. Yet the fact remains that only America's intervention in the Second World War prevented Europe from destroying Russia as a political unit. The present Russian power-accumulation was thus created by America-Jewry. Never in the five centuries of Russian history has Russia been able to make way into Europe unless supported by one or more European states. Against Frederick the Great Russia received aid from France, Austria, and Sweden; against Napoleon Russia received aid from England, Austria, Prussia, Sweden, and Spain.

In 1945, Russia penetrated into Germany only with America's assistance. Before American intervention, Europe had hurled the barbarian back across the Volga. Russia is a threat only to a divided Europe; a united Europe could destroy the power of Bolshevist Russia at the moment of its choosing. That Europe has need of America-Jewry to defend itself against Russia is a crass lie.

Only America can grant Russia entry into Europe; this was true in 1945, and will be just as true in 1967 or 1975. There are two ways in which America-Jewry could deliver Europe to a Russian-Bolshevist occupation: by voluntarily making Russia a gift of it, as it did with China in 1947, or by losing a war against Russia from European bases.

In any case, Europe—that means here above all the Culture-bearing stratum—will choose its own enemy because the 250,000 men who are mystically charged with fulfilling the Destiny of Europe are by nature inwardly free of Culturally-alien influences. Enemy propaganda, however great its extent may be, cannot frustrate the Destiny of a High Culture, for that Destiny is above mechanism and technics, and propaganda is simply a technique. An enemy occupying Europe can probably round up herds of civilians by means of its puppet-governments and call the result an army, but beyond that it cannot go. An army means, first, morale; second, an officer-corps; third, a high command; and, fourth, the human material of the troops. A herd of civilians conscripted under foreign coercion would possess no morale and have no European officer-corps and European high command. Without these, they would be only an armed mob, and, as such, not a formidable match for the barbarians.

We have seen that it is a deep spiritual need of the matriarchal American People to have many and strong allies in a war; and of the ruling-stratum in America it must be remarked that the rider is always limited to the abilities of his mount. We have also seen that Europe is the basis for America's every war-plan against Russia. Europe may be able to exploit these facts.

To secure the collaboration of Europe in the war it is planning against Russia, America would grant Europe huge concessions—in inner autonomy, in commerce, in military affairs, and even in administrative unification. But since America has the Michel-stratum at its disposal, and this stratum holds office everywhere in Europe, no demands are put to it. Thus the Washington régime can treat Europeans as something less than peons—peons at least receive a wage. The churchills of every country make no demands lest they disquiet the American bayonets upon which their tenure of office depends. To expect pride and independence from the stratum of professional traitors is simply unrealistic.

The second way in which the American People's spiritual need to have allies who might be exploited would be through an unswerving, voluntary, neutralisation of Europe vis-à-vis the projected war against Russia. Once the Washington régime was forced to accept European neutrality as a fact, it would have to abandon its plans for a European theatre-of-war and evacuate Europe.

Either of these possibilities, if realised, could bring about the Liberation of Europe before the Third World War. The first possibility could be realised only if the Michel-stratum were removed from public life, for the churchills would scarcely place Europe's interests above their class and personal interests, which are protected only by the foreign occupation.

To act creatively in Politics, one must begin with the right choice of enemy. If one selects an enemy from whom one can win no power, the end-result is suicide, as we saw with the self-destruction of the English Empire in the Second World War. Were Europe actually to fight for an enemy, that would be proof that Europe had in fact died, but the continuing mystical relation between the European Culture-bearing stratum and the European population would prevent Europe from doing so. Should the Third World War occur, Europe will participate in it only on its own terms. That is an absolute mystical certainty. Perhaps a herd of hapless conscripts without morale, without European officers and a European high command, can be thrown on the battlefield to fight for an enemy, but that would hardly be European participation worthy of the name.

All this has long since answered the question: Who is the Enemy? The enemy must be a political unit at whose expense we can gain power. America-Jewry has the power in Europe, and if Europe would win back its sovereignty, it can do so only at the expense of America-Jewry. Politics is concrete, and thus the argument that Russia wishes to conquer Europe has but little force. Perhaps India would like to do that as well, but Europe must reckon on facts and not on threats. America has the power in Europe, and, therefore, America is the Enemy.

Two facts dominate the politics of Europe in this historical period: Europe will never fight for its Enemy; Europe will survive the Third World War and its aftermath, regardless of the new weaponry.

These are metaphysical facts; they possess Destiny value and cannot be removed by human action. They correspond to all life-furthering, life-affirming, power-increasing instincts of the European People, to the superpersonal Destiny of the Western Culture. In view of these facts, the enemy propaganda of the Russian bogey can be called simply idiotic. America-Jewry is the bearer of the Russian menace, today, as in the Second World War. If it brings about a Russian occupation of all Europe, then all Europe will persevere and overcome that happening. Should America be expelled from Europe before the Third World War, the form of the war would be completely different. Instead of America-Jewry versus Russia, it would then be the European Imperium versus Russia, and in that form the war would end in the destruction of Russia as a political unit. For the European Imperium, the result would be external security for the coming centuries. Should America attempt to intervene, as before, this time its efforts would be of no avail, for the European Imperium will naturally include England and Ireland. It was only America's fortuitous possession of those bases that enabled it to stab Europe in the back during the Second World War. From North America or Africa, America-Jewry could do little or nothing to help Russia.

The Age is mighty and its tasks enormous, but if we hold fast to our honour and pride, harken to our own instincts and the Inner Imperative, we will win the upper hand in every instance. Although the opponents are gigantic, they are formless; behind their patchwork power-accumulations is a spiritual void which, like a vacuum, will draw back their dispersed forces. Neither America-Jewry nor Russia is a structure inwardly adapted to the Age of Absolute Politics. The American People is matriarchal, isolationist, and interested only in economic matters. When the power-adventures at the antipodes run into too much money or demand real blood-sacrifice, the Washington régime will no longer be able to force it to tread the false path of senseless World Wars. In the World War, Germany lost 739 Generals, whereas America had the death of a single General to mourn. This fact just symbolises the truth that America has enjoyed success without having to pay the price of it. The moment the adventures become too costly, the Washington régime will have to retreat, for even its "victories" mean nothing to the American People. An apolitical people cannot win an enduring political victory; it does not need it, or want it, or even know how it would use the power proceeding from it.

The Russian barbarian does not understand power; he has no knowledge of the meaning of this Age. Neither the half-Westernised Bolshevists nor the pure-Asiatic masses possess the qualities needed to build an empire. The spiritually unadulterated Russian, whose limitations are binding for the Moscow régime, is religious, hence inward; he is rural and land-hungry, but there is no nobility and no religion in Russia that attend to his material and spiritual cares. Marxism is a collection of dead and sterile phrases, and can no more strongly inspire the Russian than it can the European. Pan-Slav religiosity does not seek an empire; with it an empire cannot be built.

This is the Age of Absolute Politics, and its meaning is the fulfillment of the Destiny of the Western Civilisation: the formation of the European Imperium and the actualisation of its World-Mission. In this Age, a power that would impose its will on the world must be endowed with the inner qualities that alone can establish and maintain a world-system, the qualities of the Spanish Europe in the 16th century, the English Europe in the 18th and 19th centuries, the Prussian Ethical Socialist Europe in the 20th century, which will survive the 21st century. The one, great, all-embracing quality that is absolutely necessary for such a task is the consciousness of a Mission. That cannot come from human resolves; it can come only as the emanation of a superpersonal soul, the organ of a higher Destiny, a Divinity. The American-Jewish and Russian ideas of negative world-conquest are but vague caricatures of the true, Western European Idea of Imperium Mundi, a travesty of History on the world-stage.

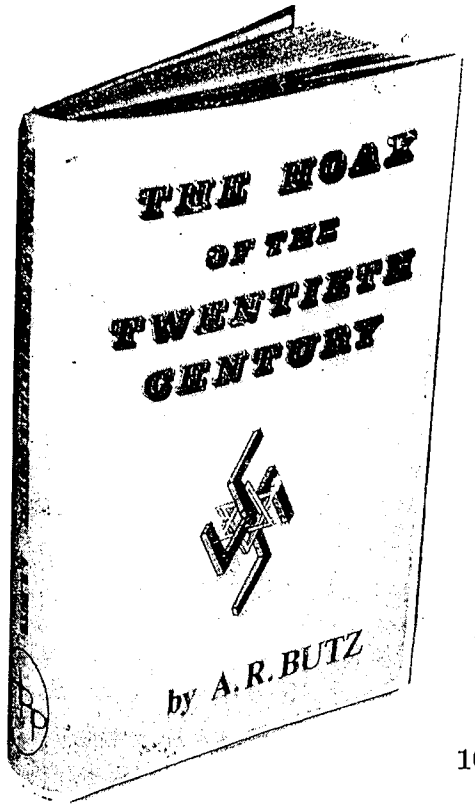
Europe recognises its Cultural enemies and its sole political enemy. Thus it sees the only path it can follow. The basis of Europe's politics is faith in but under no circumstances fear of the Future. If we follow now the path that our instincts, our intelligence, and our Inner Imperative have prescribed, whatever befalls us shall be good. For us there is but one crime, one misdemeanour, and one mistake: that is to be untrue to ourselves and follow alien leaders and hold alien ideals.

Europe also recognises its Inner Enemy: Whosoever pursues another policy than that of a sovereign Europe, whether this be the policy of America-Jewry or Russia, is the Inner Enemy. Petty-statists and petty-nationalists sink to the level of spies and foreign agents. Loyalty to Europe excludes every other political loyalty. No European owes the petty-state of his birth any allegiance whatever, for all these tiny erstwhile-states are now simply anti-European tools in the hands of our Enemy, the Washington régime.

Europe is equal to its historic task. Against the anti-spiritual, anti-heroic "ideals" of America-Jewry, Europe pits its metaphysical ideas, its faith in its Destiny, its ethical principles, its heroism. Fearlessly, Europe falls in for battle, knowing it is armed with the mightiest weapon ever forged by History: the superpersonal Destiny of the European organism. Our European Mission is to create the Culture-State-Nation-Imperium of the West, and thereby we shall perform such deeds, accomplish such works, and so transform our world that our distant posterity, when they behold the remains of our buildings and ramparts, will tell their grandchildren that on the soil of Europe once dwelt a tribe of gods.



PLEASE
help us expose
THE BIGGEST
JEWISH LIE!

PLEASE help us spread
THE TRUTH!

Order copies of
THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
by Prof. A.R. Butz
paperback, 315 pages
at these prices:
1/$6.00—3/$15.00
10/$45.00—100/$400.00

The "Holocaust"—fact or fiction?

Were six million Jews really gassed . . . or has a colossal hoax been perpetrated on the world?

Professor Arthur Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6,000,000 Jews during World War II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

THE HOAX OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.....$ 6.00
plus 60 cents for postage and handling.

Order from

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS

P.O. BOX 21, REEDY, W.VA. 25270 USA

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 6

when it comes to the truth. In fact, this is my husband's motto and mine second-hand — the truth is the most important thing no matter where you might find it.

After going through the fundamental churches and then through the Kingdom Israel Identity churches (some of which aren't much different from the fundamentals in their dogmatism) with questions and doubts in the back of our minds that we did not even know how to vocalize, we are relieved and excited to hear others express those doubts and seek solutions with an open, searching mind, unafraid of the consequences, even welcoming them.

We can't say we agree with everything written in your publication. How could we or anyone, seeing as how there are opposite viewpoints expressed at times? However, we can safely say that it would not upset us in the least if any of those viewpoints turned out to be the truth. Nor would it surprise us. In fact, your magazine makes more sense and comes closer to the truth as we see it than any other we have ever read. [Thank you for the compliment! We are trying hard!]

We are now in the process of reading WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?, by William Gayley Simpson and are enjoying it very much. Again, some of what he says we find hard to swallow, but cannot condemn him or say that he is wrong in these areas. Who knows? And much of it just "hits the spot," so to speak.

Thanks again for the good words and the keen insight you display.

For Truth and Liberty,
Mr & Mrs. E.A.S., MO.

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 12 March 81

Please send a complete list of all your publications. I have been very impressed with materials I encountered through second-hand sources and which originated from your establishment.

Best regards
J.B., Virginia

* * * * *

My dear George: 11 March 81

Your publication of "The Whiteman's Guide Book" (Liberty Bell, January 1981) was a great shock to me! Tragic that, evidently, you and the author have not known the strength of spiritual awareness which has been one of the greatest assets of the American people, as it was of their forebears [Yes, this "spiritual awareness of the American people" is exactly what caused the slaughter of their boys on foreign battle fields during WW I and WW II, never mind the slaughter of millions of other White Men on the other side of the battle lines! The creasy Yids were only the instigators — the "spiritually aware American people" were the tools!] Have you never really comprehended Washington's faith as his "tower of strength? [The White Man's faith lies in his respect for the eternal laws of nature – not in a "tower of strength" built on the sandy foundation of Oriental myths!]

Reconsider the history of this nation in its days of moral strength and the former Christian nature of its government [Come now! Wasn't it the majority of 'Christian' congressmen and senators, imbued with the "Christian nature of its government", who were willing tools of the Yids in their efforts to manipulate America into two fraticidal world wars?], as well as the moral courage of the Pilgrims and other pioneers who made this country truly great. Decadence has come only since the leaders have been devoted to power and position rather than to conscience (the "knowing" of the spirit).

Tragic that your otherwise noteworthy messages should include such a misleading article. May your eyes be opened to the truth of the Creator of all that will endure, and to an appreciation of His "well-beloved" Son.

Most sincerely,
In His Name,
Mrs B.D.H., California

* * * * *

Dear Landsmann: 15 March 81

Thank you very much for the Liberty Bell and the catalog. I like many of your cassettes and will order some in the future.

George, you are doing the right thing because the Christian Identity people are nothing but ignorant, illiterate riff-raff.

I have recommended to Cmdr. Koehl, Thies Christophersen and Manfred Roeder to shove these people aside. For two reasons I cannot believe in that stuff: first for racial reasons and, secondly, for linguistic reasons. The racial reason: We are not, and never were, related to the Semites (the Jews), the Arabs, the Abyssinians. What is contained in the Bible is nothing but an odd assortment of lies, partial truths and historical inconsistencies, and relates more or less to the Jews' problems. The linguistic reason: Our language belongs to the Aryan branch and is more or less related to i.e., Sanskrit, Hindustani, Urdu and Farsi than to Hebrew. Ludendorff was correct in stating that the old Hebrew had no written vowels, and no one could therefore be sure how a word had to be translated. The Bible has then been translated several times, thereby becoming fuzzier and fuzzier. These Identity people base their contentions on Bible passages that can be explained in different ways.

I hope you and yours are well.

Best regards,
A.W., Ohio

* * * * *

Mr Dietz: 16 March 81

Enclosed is check to cover the cost of "The White Man's Bible".

Did you know that the mouthy preacher John Warner of C.D.L. Report accuses you of stealing his rights? Of publishing books that he claims to have travelled to Europe to obtain? I welcome the expiration of my subscription to C.D.L. Report, published by a coward. Babs Minhinette, his former secretary, can inform you all about Warner.

He claims you are a thief real estate broker and publisher of stolen manuscripts, tucked back in the hills of West Virginia [Just consider the source!]. He and his so-called Christian church might bear watching.

Best regards,
C.H., Missouri

* * * * *

Dear George: 16 March 81

Thank you so much for your long letter and for the insured parcel which I got safely. I think the previous parcel by ship must have got lost or stolen. But even if you send something by surface mail, please always register it, as English literature here is read easily. Thanks also for the beautiful photographs of our Leader. I keep them safely and will give some to my friends. Thank you for telling me so much about yourself. When I read your letter, I feel as if I am with you. I also received the Liberty Bell for January, February, March and April.

Yes, the poor Michael Caignet [one of the leaders of the French Nationalist organisation F.A.N.E. which was outlawed by the French government last year, who had acid thrown in his face during an attack by Jewish hoodlums] had so much to suffer. I wrote him a nice letter and also sent him some money as he does not have any [Letters and donations may be addressed to: Michael Caignet c/o Notre Europe, B.P. 76-75462, Paris-Cedex 10, France]. I wrote him that certainly one day he'll be avenged. Something has to happen one day, because we prefer our WELTANSCHAUUNG to their dirty money system!

Savitri Devi has just been operated on her left eye a few days ago. Her right eye cannot see much since the optic nerve is atrophied. She cannot write or read at present and I write her letters. She is a bit depressed, but when she learned that a young boy of 26 [Michael Caignet] has become almost blind due to the acid thrown in his face, she picked up courage. More young people are on our side and this enrages the other swine.

I read with interest the books received.

With the best greetings and good wishes for you and your family,

V.S., India

* * * * *

Dear Mr Dietz: 17 March 81

A friend of mine, a Christian-Patriot, showed me some of your booklets last year and suggested that I might like to subscribe. For some reason I held back, although I had enjoyed the issue she'd loaned me.

Now, I'm glad that I did not subscribe. I think the hand of God must have been staying me. Why? Because today that same friend sent me a photocopy of a letter from Pastor Sheldon Emry to you, with no comment of her own. None was needed.

The forces of evil are nibbling away at the less staunch, and the not truly dedicated "Christians" and one by one you, who seemed to be leaders of Right, are shown to have feet of clay. Unwilling or unable to defend the Book which was instrumental in creating this nation you imply that you defend. Shame on you!

Have you ever marveled at a book, some of which was written over 2,000 years ago, which accurately tells of our present day dope problem (pharmacopea), spiritism (necromancy), or of men or women performing sexually to their own sex (an abomination)? These phenomena, although known in previous ages [and demonstratively practised in Old Testament days!], never existed in the epidemic proportions that they do now, and thereby warranted the comments by early prophets of today's (latter day's) problems.

One by one the [self-fulfilling] prophecies have been fulfilled. A very few are left for us to await their terrible, yet wondrous, occurrances. Wondrous, because in their coming to pass, we reach the long-awaited end of this system of Satan's. And, sad to say, you have been victimized by one of his henchmen.

I hope you wake up before it is too late, and set the record straight with your readership—that you were mesmerized by an intellectual adversary who used his lying logic to sway you as a carnie midway spieler might have. Mr. Perier sounds as if he is a French Zionist. I do not know of him but I'll remember him now, as the purveyor of fizz water instead of the substance of truth.

If you have realized your error and will correct the wrongs you did to your subscribers, I would like to know, and would then be glad to subscribe to Liberty Bell. I will be interested to hear your comments on this. [No comment necessary! Just bring on the tar-barrel and the feathers!]

Sincerely,
Mrs A.R.M., Arkansas

* * * * *

Dear George: 19 March 81

Skeptics like Ben Klassen have every right to call Christianity suicidal. I wish Christians would take a look at Luke 20:35. "But those who are worthy of the other world and the resurrection from the dead, neither take women in marriage nor are women given in marriage to them." Men who do marry are merely "sons of the earth" (see previous verse) and cannot go to heaven. Why? Because you have to be resurrected in order to go to heaven. This is why the Catholic Church forbids the clergy to marry. I quoted Jesus Christ, not St. Paul.

As for who will go to hell in the Final Judgment, check Matthew 25:33. It says: "And he will set the sheep at his right, and the goats at his left." Jesus came to be the shepherd of the lost tribe of the House of Israel. These are the only people his disciples were supposed to go and convert. So these are the only Hebrews who are going to be considered real Christians; these are the sheep. The lamb and sheep were Israelite symbols. So who are the goats? The goat is an independent, resourceful animal with a lot more brains than a sheep, and capable of defending itself. Was the goat symbolic of any people in the ancient world? Yes, the goat was the rebus of the Goths. Seen from the side, a goat looks like it has one horn, and this animal is the origin of the unicorn myth. What this all boils down to is that certain Jews are saved and Germans are damned, except those Germans who have made themselves into celibate Jews, a contradiction in itself, since Jews are the most libidinous people on earth.

2nd Esdras (an apocryphal writing,) claims the Lost Ten Tribes, (only one of three branches that is,) got as far west as Roumania. Now it would be all right if Identity Christians claimed that eastern and southern Europeans had people among them with Hebrew blood. Also, other Levantines, even Canaanites, reached Greece and Italy as slaves. But that's as far as it goes. It is preposterous to claim that Vikings, Saxons, Franks, and the rest of the Nordic tribes were descended from Abraham. The Assyrian dispersion of the House of Israel was not complete until 700 B.C., and there were White Europeans living in Europe long before then. They were uncircumcised, too.

We should appreciate the efforts of Identity Christians in making white people more racially conscious. Race must be at the core of any religion the white man has in the future, or he is doomed. To claim that only Christianity can make white people moral is absurd and contrary to common sense. We can and will make a better religion, and one which does not demand that you put a lock on your mind and throw away the key. Christianity is for the stupid, the lazy, the uneducated, and the weak, of which there are plenty of people in this world. Maybe the Christian Church can make "better people" out of them; it is certainly determined to proliferate society with the teeming masses and wretched refuse. No birth control, no euthanasia, and be sure and make everybody support all the cripples and genetic defects and allow them to reproduce.

Best regards
J.P., Colorado

* * * * *

Dear George: 18 March 81

Thanks for the literature. Please send ten copies (your choice)of the Liberty Bell. . .

I have been affiliated with various White Racist Groups but have grown tired of their attacks upon one another. We have no time for such things. . . I find it refreshing that you do not usually insult any but the real enemies. Congratulations on your extraordinary work.

T.T., North Carolina

* * * * *

Dear Mr Dietz: 21 March 81

If "The Great Liberty Bell Debate" would not be so serious, it would be amusing. I cannot refrain from giving my comments:

To M.T., N.Y.: [April L.B.] I would also like to see the oh-so-Christians of America repent for their sins of crime they have committed against the German people, i.e., for their participation in "hate Germany" classes, for their support of the unconditional surrender policy against Germany, for their rape of German women, their delivery of German prisoners of war into the hands of the Russians for shipment to Siberia, Siberia, and on and on, all of it in the name of Christ.

To M.B., California: You write Hitler was a Christian. Sure, he was baptised and believed what he was taught when he was young — as I did! Christianity has many levels, as has humanism, socialism, Judaism. But many change their belief systems, especially now that we enter the Age of Aquarius. I, too, still believe in God (not Jahweh), as my Aryan ancestors did thousands of years before the God of Abraham was invented. I also still believe in Christ who drove the money changers out of the temple and was crucified for this courageous act. But I don't think he is going to "save" me.

To J.S., N.J.: Best letter.

To W.J.C., Georgia: Something similar happened to me some years ago when I had to realize that my famous preacher was not very "loving."

To H.C., North Carolina: Nobody says you should publicly come out against Christianity, but we should have a discussion. Christianity is not outdated, but the Age of Pisces is over. It was never a Bronce Age religion — that was the Age of Taurus, 4000-2000 B.C. Christianity is not the last Dinosaur, but a tradition we have to cope with intelligently and with understanding, or, in your words, with respect and dignity.

To James Combs: Again, yes, I think Hitler was an excellent Christian, whatever that means. But his movement is known for a WELTANSCHAUUNG, a word which cannot really be translated. There was lots of room for good Christians in it. Well, many priests and evangelicals didn't like it (Bonhoeffer, Faulhaber, etc.), so they later became traitors to their country. Oh, these good Christians.— I too belong to the "Golden Age" generation and came over here 20 years ago. Your insights are naive. Do you really know what it meant to "stick it out in those years after the war in Germany?" I would have loved to get an academic degree in those years, but since you had bombed us to death, this was impossible. But congratulations on your degree. You are right, it is sad that patriots are divided and I agree, we should unite. But are YOU ready?

An Aryan sister, Va.

* * * * *

Dear George: 22 March 81

I've enclosed a check for $20 for the book "The White Man's Bible", with a little left over.

Some years ago I had Ben at my home when I was somewhat active with Matt Koehl. His last book was quite excellent and he writes quite well.

My wife and I found the March issue of The Liberty Bell most interesting. If you remember, my wife was one of those mean old Nazis and it seems she hasn't changed much.

Regards to you and your family.

Heil Hitler!
O.M., Florida

FOR MY LEGIONARIES

Salut fie ai ce merg spre marea biruinta legionara. Corneliu Z. Codreanu 1938

The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

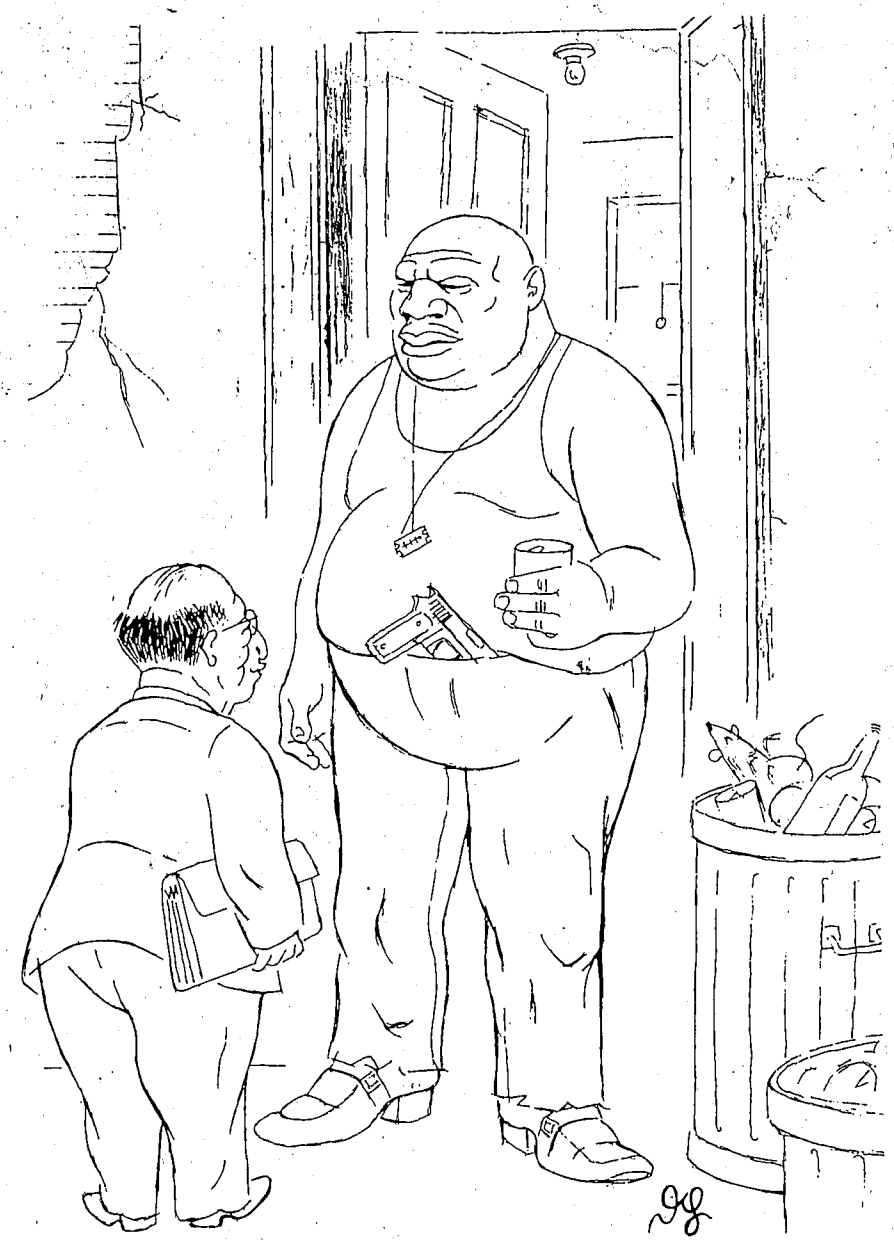
THE ANTI-HUMANS

by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270. today!

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA



"'I'm Morris Finkelstein of the Federal Firearms Registration Bureau. Any handguns to register, sir?"

The Liberty Bell

THE ENEMY OF OUR ENEMIES

A CRITIQUE
OF FRANCIS PARKER YOCKEY'S
THE ENEMY OF EUROPE

Part I

Revilo P. Oliver

page 5

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4490.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHTT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$13.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$20.00
THIRD CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$19.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$22.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$32.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$37.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies via UPS	$ 10.00
100 copies via UPS	$ 75.00
500 copies via UPS	$250.00
1000 copies via UPS	$450.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

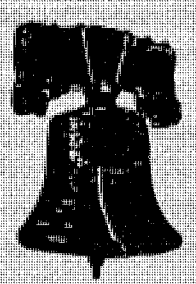
The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world. George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

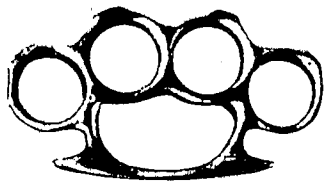
The Liberty Bell



VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

MAGNIFICENT BRASS PAPERWEIGHT

Full size replica of the Knuckle Duster



ORDER TODAY!
$8.50 postpaid
Aluminum paperweight
$4.50 postpaid
For novelty paperweight use only.
Not intended for any other use.

ORDER FROM:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

CONTENTS

VOL. 8 — NO. 11
JULY 1981

Nature's Eternal Religion 2
Letters to the Editor 4
The Enemy of Our Enemies 5

BLANK

religion that has given them a plan, a program and an ideology which they have clung to with remarkable tenacity and loyalty. Their reward has been not only the survival of their race, but world control and domination as well.

Klassen argues that if the White Race, which genetically has all the trump cards in its hands — superior numbers, intelligence and ability — had played the game the same way, if it had had a racial religion, it would now be supreme on the face of the earth. He contends that to Creativity the White Race is the most precious value on the face of the earth, although the White Race is the last to recognize this. Though it is late, it is not too late — if the White Race will chuck Christianity and its suicidal tenets overboard and rally around its own racial Religion — Creativity.

The goal of such religion is not only survival, but an ever increasing spiral of advancement in intelligence, health and well-being. The heart of this religion — the Golden Rule of Creativity — is: what is good for the White Race is the highest virtue; what is bad for the White Race is the ultimate sin, period!

There is more, much more in Nature's Eternal Religion which, as we have stated in a previous review, laid the foundations for Klassen's second production, The White Man's Bible. Together, the two books constitute the creed, the program, and the final solution for the survival and salvation of the White Race. If the White Race survives, history will probably show that Creativity was the turning point and the first great racial religion the White Race has produced in six thousand years of civilization.

Nature's Eternal Religion $8.00
plus 80 cents for postage and handling

The White Man's Bible $8.00
plus 80 cents for postage and handling

Order both books and save $4.00 ..... $12.00 plus $1.60 for postage and handling

Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr Dietz: 25 March 81

Sorry I am a little late with my renewal. I haven't forgotten you nor will I ever. You are doing a good job. I'll be sending you a book order in a week or so. I enjoy your books very much.

Keep up the good work, your comrade as ever,

C.F., Arkansas

* * * * *

Dear George: 26 March 81

I found the enclosed article [from the PRETORIA (S.A.) News of March 26, reprinted below] in today's left wing newspaper. I hope you'll find it interesting.

George, can you tell me what happened in Germany? [Very simple: In a concerted drive to prevent our brethren in Germany from reading the truth, the federal authorities, in a well-planned and concentrated effort, on March 24, raided the homes and apartments of hundreds of Germans suspected of being distributors of "Nazi propaganda material," even though it is not (yet) against the law over there to receive single copies of any book for study purposes, but only the distribution thereof. In a flagrant violation of postal secrecy and the privacy act, certified letters were halted and confiscated, and private libraries taken from the rightful owners. We were informed of this action 7:30 AM on the day of their drive to destroy the last vestiges of freedom.]

Here in South Africa there is also a sort of campaign against right-wingers, launched by minister of police LeGrange, because of breaking up public meetings of the National Party of P.W. Botha. But there is light for the future.

Greetings to Liberty Bell and George Dietz. C.J.,M, Esquire
South Africa

* * * * *

Dear George: 28 March 81

I was delighted to read, in your recent issue, a very extended fine quality essay on: The attitude of Americans toward the German people. How is it that you come up with so much really good intelligent material? This is not flattery! I am just an honest American, precisely as you are an honest German — beneath the surface we have a very similar Soul.

In recent months I have been studying our American culture [ist da doch eine Spur von Kultur?], a little known area — least of all by our school teachers who should know better, but in my experience, our academic people are as ill-informed as anybody. May I quote a paragraph from a speech given to a New York press club — but from the year 1851?

continued on page 56

THE ENEMY OF OUR ENEMIES

A CRITIQUE
OF FRANCIS PARKER YOCKEY'S
THE ENEMY OF EUROPE

Part I

Revilo P. Oliver

Copyright 1979, 1981
by Revilo P. Oliver

All rights reserved. No part of this book, except brief excerpts for the purpose of review, may be reproduced in any form without written permission by the publisher. For information write to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

Printed in the United States of America

CONTENTS
Part I

The Retroversion 2
Historionomy 7
Cyclical History 16
The Great Pseudo-Morphosis 29

THE ENEMY OF OUR ENEMIES

WHEN Francis Parker Yockey completed and published Imperium in 1948, he wrote a comparatively short sequel or pendant to his major work. This sequel, which he later entitled The Enemy of Europe, is now lost, but he had his manuscript with him when he was in Germany in 1953, and, after revising two passages to take account of events since 1948, he had it translated into German and printed at Frankfurt-am-Main in an edition of two hundred copies. Yockey's work displeased the Jews, who accordingly ordered their henchmen to raid the printing plant, punish the printer, smash the types, and destroy all copies of the book. Yockey escaped and fortunately had already sent several copies abroad, and it is from a photocopy of one of these that Mr. Francis has tried to restore Yockey's English text, so far as possible.

The Enemy of Europe is a work of great philosophical, historical, and political significance because

(1) In it Yockey applies to the contemporary situation of the world the philosophy of history that he elaborated in Imperium, much as Spengler in Die Jahre der Entscheidung applied to the world of 1933 the philosophical theory he had expounded in his Untergang des Abendlandes.

(2) It is the earliest coherent expression of a political attitude in Europe which first became manifest to Americans in the late 1950s and which at the present time largely determines the conduct of the various European nations in their relations with the United States and the Soviet Union. This attitude, which is generally misunderstood because, for the most part, Europeans cautiously use in public only equivocal or vague terms to intimate or disguise what Yockey said explicitly and without diplomatic subterfuge, was quickly imitated in other parts of the world and is commonly designated by such terms as 'neutralism,' 'uncommitted nations,' and 'The Third World.'

(3) Yockey's analysis of the situation when he wrote poses today the most urgent question before intelligent Americans and, indeed, all other members of our race — a question of political fact that each of us must solve, at least provisionally, before he can estimate the chances that our species will survive on this globe.

It will be proper, therefore, to examine, as summarily as possible, each of these three aspects of The Enemy of Europe. Before we do so, however, it behooves us to say something about the only text in which Yockey's work is now available.

THE RETROVERSION

Yockey's manuscript, as I have said, has disappeared and must be presumed lost.[1] We may conjecture that it was in Frankfurt when the subjugated Germans' Thought Police[2] burned, as they thought, all copies of the German edition, and that they found and burned it at the same time. So far as I know, the identity of the translator, who did the work for a small fee,[3] is now unknown, possibly even to the Jews, who, despite the efficiency of their espionage service, which is by far the finest and most formidable in the entire world, seem not to have known that a few copies of Der Feind Europas escaped the destruction they had ordered.

The Jews are almost invariably accurate in statements of verifiable fact that they include in the data compiled for the use of the cowboys who ride herd on their Aryan cattle. I note that in one such compilation, dated May 1969, they boast that Yockey's "pamphlet for distribution in the United States" was evidently printed but "confiscated by the Federal authorities," and that the manuscript of his unfinished book, The American Destiny, was seized when he was arrested by their Federal Agents.[4] Then follows, in the list of the writings of the hated

1. Yockey seems not to have made a carbon copy, an unfortunate omission. The distinguished foreign correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, Donald Day, wrote a veracious account of events in northern Europe, especially the Baltic countries, during the period in which preparations were being made for Roosevelt's War. His book, Onward, Christian Soldiers, was published by a well-established firm in New York, but all copies were destroyed on the orders of the diseased degenerate whom the Jews had put into the White House as their front man. Day, however, had kept a carbon copy of his manuscript and, despite vicious persecution by the alien government in Washington, which prevented him from returning to the United States, that copy was brought to this country and a mimeographed transcription of his suppressed book is now available from Jane's Book Service, P.O. Box 2805, Reno, Nevada 89505.

2. The raid was officially carried out by an agency of the nominally German government that was set up in the western part of the conquered territory and given "virtual sovereignty" in 1952, the Bundesnachrichtendienst Abteilung K-16, a counterpart (or subsidiary) of "our" C.I.A. Its official functions are to control the Communists, work in which it has been notoriously unsuccessful, to terrorize Germans who seem not to have learned that they must venerate the Jews, and to help God's People hunt down Germans who were loyal to their country before it was destroyed in 1945 and have failed subsequently to cringe before the Master Race to which Yahweh, by a famous Covenant (B'rith), deeded ownership of the entire world and all the lower animals in it, including, of course, the fatuous Aryans.

3. It is reported that a man, unnamed but identified as a German, was arrested in Frankfurt and punished as the translator of forbidden thought. Since, as I shall mention shortly, it is scarcely credible that the translator was a native German, we may conjecture that the man, who was perhaps caught with Yockey's manuscript in his possession, accepted the blame to shield the real translator (perhaps a woman), perhaps thereby facilitating Yockey's escape from Frankfurt. A memorandum in Yockey's handwriting indicates that when the book went to press, he still owed the translator $45.00; from this it may be inferred that the total fee was not large, perhaps twice that amount. A man whose knowledge of Yockey's career far exceeds my own believes that the memorandum was disingenuous and that Yockey himself produced the German version, and supports his opinion by a stylistic analysis that does show that, in all probability, the translation was made by an American. Since he admits that the only evidence is "indirect and circumstantial," I elect to accept Yockey's memorandum at its face value here and leave the decision to Yockey's future biographer. The details of an author's life may be interesting in themselves, but are seldom relevant to the worth of a literary or philosophical work. As Flaubert said, "L'homme, c'est rien; l'oeuvre, c'est tout."

4. Yockey, whose passport had been confiscated by the State Department to prevent him from returning to the United States, entered the country on a forged passport in San Francisco, where he was the guest of a Jew in whom he had, for some reason, placed confidence. He was arrested, thrown into prison, held under a vindictively exorbitant bail, and found dead in his cell, reportedly a suicide. The Jew in whose home he had stayed disappeared until after Yockey was dead, and was found to have sneaked into the United States under an assumed name with a fraudulent passport, but no one, surely, would be so "anti-Semitic" as to suppose that God's Own People are amenable to laws that are enforced against the lower races. You may be quite certain, of course, that the manuscript of goy, this odd entry:

Enemy of Europe (completed book but never published as manuscript was to be translated into German).

It would appear, therefore, that they were satisfied that all vestiges of the printed edition had been successfully effaced.

I remark in passing that American "Liberals" are wont to yap about "book burning," but that is merely characteristic hypocrisy. Everyone knows that well-conditioned "intellectuals," their little minds sodden with the degrading superstitions that are injected into white children in the public boob-hatcheries, like well-trained dogs, never bark when their masters have enjoined silence. It is hard to believe, however, that the "intellectuals," unlike the dogs, never perceive the inconsistency of their conduct — not even when they refrain from complaining about the total destruction of books that are disapproved by Jews.

From a photocopy of one surviving copy of the German book an attempt to restore Yockey's English text has been made by Mr. Francis whom I know only through some correspondence and conversations over the telephone. No one will expect the retroversion to be precisely what Yockey wrote, but we must specifically note that Mr. Francis has acquitted himself of a very difficult task.

All that remains of Yockey's original are five paragraphs that do not appear in the German translation. It seems that when he sent his book to press, he extracted those paragraphs from his own "Introductory Note" and planned to have them printed as a preface signed by a friend who was going to contribute half of the cost of printing.[5] The friend evidently declined the honor:

The American Destiny will never be found, whether it was burned or is now in the files of the Federal Bureau of Intimidation. A short essay entitled "The Destiny of America," which may be an extract from the unfinished book, was mimeographed and distributed privately in 1955; by an audacious but not unprecedented plagiarism, a would-be "leader" of the American "right-wing" then published it, with additions, under his own name. The theme of Yockey's book may be deduced from an essay, "The World in Flames," that was published as a booklet by his friends in 1961, shortly after his death. Both essays are reproduced in the booklet, Four Essays, now available from Liberty Bell Publications.

5. Yockey added, for the proposed preface, an introductory sentence, he may have been unwilling to expose himself to punishment by the Jews or he may have decided not to remit the $210.00 that Yockey believed he had promised.[6] Mr. Francis has restored these paragraphs to their logical place in Yockey's introduction. For all the rest of the book, he had to work from the German translation.

I cannot believe that German was the translator's native language. His occasional errors in syntax are not what one would expect of a young person whose education had been interrupted by the European catastrophe, and while some of the awkwardness of his version suggests the sloppiness of the worst German journalism, they correspond much more closely to the paraphrases and circumlocutions in which we indulge when we are speaking a foreign language in which we have not learned to which he squeezed in at the top of the typewritten page. The clause in the first paragraph, "Having lived for several decades in America," was originally intended to refer to himself, being strictly true (he was born in Chicago, 18 September 1917) but designed to conceal the nationality of the author of Imperium and Der Feind Europas, which were published under the pseudonym Ulick Varange. In his introduction to the American edition of Imperium, Willis A. Carto explains the pseudonym thus: "Ulick is an Irish given name...and means 'reward of the mind.' Varange, of course, refers to the Varangians, that far-roving band of Norse heroes led by Rurick who...came to civilize Russia in the 9th Century....The name, therefore, drawn as it is from the Eastern and Western antipodes of Europe, signifies a Europe united 'from the rockey promontories of Galway to the Urals.' " Perhaps, but the Varangians are best known as the Norse mercenaries who formed the élite corps of Byzantine armies, and Ulick is the early Erse adaptation, from the Latin Ulixes, of the name of the great Aryan hero, celebrated for his courage and practical wisdom, who, at the very beginning of the epic, is described as having wandered for many years after the fall of the sacred city of Ilium, which his fellow Greeks destroyed, and having seen many foreign cities and observed the character of many tribes of men. Both names, therefore, connote a stranger in a strange land. Yockey felt himself a stranger in an America that had lost its early Western culture and become a colony ruled by its Jewish masters (see Part Two below). It would be otiose to speculate whether Yockey remembered the etymology of Odysseus in the epic (XIX.407 sqq.) or had in mind the fact that the Byzantine Empire was inhabited by diverse and mostly mongrelized peoples and infested by Jews.

6. The facts could doubtless be ascertained, but they are irrelevant to the philosophical and political significance of Yockey's book, and I leave the task of ascertaining them to a future biographer.

think, cannot call to mind a precise equivalent of an English expression, and try to make our meaning clear as best we may. And we may be certain that Yockey's command of German was not adequate to enable him to revise and polish a translation that is always pedestrian and sometimes worse. He could doubtless speak German sufficiently for ordinary conversation and to write short letters, but it is significant that he read and quoted Spengler in the English translation by Charles Francis Atkinson. It is true that Atkinson was a great translator whose versions from Spengler and Friedell accurately represent the German in English so impeccable, fluidly idiomatic, and, on occasion, eloquent that they set a standard that few translators from one language to another can hope to approach; but nevertheless, it is hard to believe that Yockey would not at least have read the original texts, had he felt at home in literary and philosophical German. That he did not do so may reasonably be inferred from the fact that, as Mr. Francis discovered, in the manuscript that Yockey gave to the German translator, he quoted Spengler in Atkinson's translation, and the translator, instead of supplying the corresponding text from Spengler's German, simply retranslated Atkinson's English into German, somewhat distorting the meaning in a way that gives us no high estimate of his competence in either language.[7]

Mr. Francis's retroversion is the accomplishment of an arduous task. He had to decide where the German translator was content to approximate the meaning of the English before him rather than render it precisely or even altered a logical sequence of ideas to shirk the labor of transferring the argument from one language into another in which the normal order of words and clauses is quite different. A comparison of some passages of the retroversion with the corresponding German satisfies me that Mr. Francis has approximated Yockey's original as closely as is possible in the present circumstances. In what follows here, my reference will be to pages of his work.

7. A good and probative example is the epigraph prefixed to Chapter I, §4 (p. 29 of the German edition), which is a rather loose translation of Atkinson's The Hour of Decision, p. 205, which is an accurate translation from Spengler's Die Jahre der Entscheidung, p. 148 in the first edition (1933). Even though Yockey's German translator was poorly paid, he can scarcely be forgiven such negligence, unless he had to work in great haste or under very adverse conditions.

I need not remark that the formulation, or the criticism, of a philosophy of history is a task suited only to the comparatively rare minds, probably found only in our race, who can attain a perfectly dispassionate and relentlessly objective attitude of intellectual detachment from their personal wishes, sympathies, and even instinctive loyalties, at least during their consideration of the problems involved. Persons who have psychic fixations on gods or other praeternatural powers in whose existence they find it comforting to believe, or who feel an uncontrollable impulse to eulogize the "greatest nation on earth" or some ideological savior, or whose vanity must be salved by faith in the immortal excellence of their race, caste, or clique, should be advised not to disturb their glands with reading that cannot fail to affect adversely their equanimity and their blood pressure.

It is less obvious, perhaps, that every man who tries to elicit natural laws from the records of human history will inevitably make errors in matters of detail that need not impugn the validity of his general theory. A synoeretical view of human history or of the history of our race must be based in large part on secondary sources, since no man can learn all of the relevant languages or find time, in the short span of human life, to read and ponder all of the practically innumerable archaeological and philological reports and studies that may (or may not) in some way alter our understanding of the past. To demand of a vast theoretical and philosophical construction absolute accuracy in all details, as the little men who have long been barking at Spengler's heels would have us do, is as absurd as to demand that every square centimeter of St. Peter's in Rome or Westminster Abbey be finished with the accuracy of a well-cut diamond. Even if a man is not betrayed, humanitus, by the lability of his own memory when it is charged with almost infinite details, he must, for a large part of his survey, depend on scholars who are reputed to be experts in the history of some particular region or culture and whose summaries and interpretations of data may not be endorsed by contemporaries of equal reputation in the same field, so that, as often as not, a man must acquire a very considerable knowledge of each subject before he can decide whose authority is to be trusted, even provisionally. Furthermore, in many areas of history and pre-history our knowledge is so fragmentary that the conclusions generally accepted today may become obsolete tomorrow as the result of some new discovery (as, for example, the discovery that solar radiation has fluctuated even so recently as during the past ten thousand years, which made it necessary to calibrate chronological determinations made from the radioactive isotope of carbon) or even detection of the spuriousness of evidence previously accepted (as in the example from The Enemy of Europe that I shall mention below).[8]

When I reviewed the American edition of Imperium in 1963, I called attention to a startling slip of memory. Yockey says (p. 288):

> When Charles of Anjou beheaded Conradin, the last Hohenstaufen Emperor, in 1267 [October 1268], Germany disappeared from Western history, as a unit of political significance, for 500 years .... During these centuries, the high history of Europe was made by other powers mostly with their own blood. This meant that – in comparison with the vast expenditure of blood over the generations of the others – Germany was spared.

Yockey, writing from memory (hence the trivial error in the date) and perceiving the significance of the eclipse of the Holy Roman Empire as a European power, made a sweeping generalization, forgetting at the moment the Thirty Years' War (1618-1648), in which, according to the best estimates of cautious historians, two-thirds of the population of Germany perished and much of the country was made a waste land over which Protestants and Catholics fought, each to exterminate the other for the glory of God and the profit of the Jews.

The Enemy of Europe contains (p. 80) a compound error that is both obvious and an excellent illustration of what I have said above.

---

8. Although it is not strictly relevant to a judgment of his work, we may, as a matter of human interest, remember that Yockey was an astonishingly young man, only thirty years old, when he settled down in Ireland to write Imperium, and only twenty-four when his studies were interrupted and he was hauled into the Army for service in Roosevelt's War. When we consider the brilliance Yockey exhibited in his youth, we can only wonder what his incisive and versatile mind would have accomplished, had he lived in a happier age and been able to complete the long study and meditation requisite for the great intellectual task before him. We need not add that when he wrote in a hamlet on the lonely coast of the Irish Sea south of Dublin and Wicklow, he probably did not have at his disposal even the basic reference works that every serious writer keeps on his desk.

> In the 16th century B.C., Northern [nordische] barbarians invaded the Egyptian culture-petrifact, to enact the chapter of history that is called the "Hyksos" era.

Aside from the superficial reference to Egyptian culture as petrified, which could be defended only with reference to a much later period in Egypt's history, there are two errors. The first of these is clearly a slip of Yockey's memory: he has confused the successive invasions of Egypt in the thirteenth century B.C. by the "Peoples of the Sea," who were predominantly Nordic (and who were defeated and expelled, finally by Ramses III in the following century), with the earlier take-over of Egypt in the seventeenth century[9] by the "Hyksos," who were predominantly Semitic — a confusion facilitated by the speculations of some historians who tried to reconcile conflicting evidence by postulating that the "Hyksos" were the Hittites, who were classified as Aryan[10] because they were ruled by an

---

9. Yockey's reference to the sixteenth century B.C. is to the recovery of Egyptian independence. The rule of the "Hyksos" lasted for a little more than a century. The dates here are fairly secure, although chronological precision in Egyptian history can be attained with certainty only with the Eighteenth Dynasty.

10. The word 'Aryan' is commonly avoided these days by writers who fear that the Jews will punish them for using it, but we do need a specific designation for our race and one that will permit us to restrict 'Indo-European' to use as a linguistic term, since, as everyone knows, race and language are quite different things, and language is not an indication of race or even nationality. (Jews are not Germans because many of them speak Yiddish, which is basically a corruption of a low dialect of German, and the Congoids residing in the United States are not Anglo-Saxon because their only language is a debased English.) The great pioneer in social anthropology, Vacher de Lapouge, would have us restrict the term 'Aryan' historically to the division of our race that conquered India and Persia and sooner or later destroyed itself by miscegenation with the aborigines they had subdued. (One has only to think of the mongrel population of modern Iran, of which the name, derived from ārya through the Zend Airyana, means 'land of the Aryans'!) He would have us use the Linnaean biological classifications, Homo Europaeus and Homo Alpinus, which correspond to 'Nordic' and 'Alpine' in the more common terminology; but the awkwardness of those terms is obvious. The Sanskrit ārya is not only the designation by which conquerors of India and Persia identified themselves, but also a word meaning 'noble,' which designates the qualities of heroism, chivalry, and magnanimity for which our race has always had a characteristic and distinctive admiration, and is therefore better than any neologism we might devise. So long as we intend to aristocracy (which evidently came from the east to invade and conquer the country) and their official language was based on Indo-European.

The second error in that statement was not an error in 1948 in the sense that Yockey's assumption that the "Hyksos" conquered Egypt could have been supported by references to the works of some of the most distinguished Egyptologists of the time, although grave misgivings about the supposed conquest had been accumulating since 1892 (and perhaps earlier), as the discrepancies between the one long-known account (the late Egyptian historian, Manetho, as quoted and interpreted by Josephus) on the one hand and the Egyptian inscriptions and the archaeological evidence on the other became ever more glaring. It is now established that there was no conquest by force of arms — no sudden invasion by barbarians of any race.[11] What happened was that Asiatics,[12] most or all of whom bore Semitic names and came from the region in Asia Minor that is now called Palestine, by gradual immigration across the Sinai peninsula infiltrated Egypt and used, consciously or instinctively, the techniques of subversion, inciting or exacerbating class-warfare, regional differences, and the greed or ambition of discontented Egyptians until the nation was consider objectively the phenomena of the real world, we should not be deterred by the threats of our biological enemies nor yet by the yapping of trained witlings of our own race.

11. The facts, so far as they have now been ascertained, are well presented by Professor John Van Seters' The Hyksos, Yale University Press, 1966. Although the crucial data come from an Egyptian stele found in 1954 and a papyrus that was first published in the following year, the evidence from archaeological and epigraphical sources had been accumulating for the better part of a century, but a clear understanding of what is known as the Second Intermediate Period in Egyptian history was impossible so long as historians felt obliged to try to reconcile the evidence with the statements of Josephus, a Jew who wrote in the first century of our era and claimed he was quoting Manetho, a very late Egyptian priest, who wrote in Greek in the third century B.C. Josephus, who naturally wails about what his race now calls "anti-Semitism" (i.e., resistance to its covert dominion), says what he thinks will impose on the goyim and is, naturally, a forger and a liar. His statements about a military conquest of Egypt by valiant Jews must be disregarded.

12. The proletarian revolution is described in the Admonitions of Ipuwer, one of the best-known works of Egyptian literature, now dated to the period of social upheaval that preceded the open dominion of the reduced to a revolutionary chaos, fragmented under numerous local rulers, many of whom were native Egyptian puppets, and then again consolidated under Semitic overlords to whom the various provinces paid tribute. The Asiatics ruled Egypt for more than a century until a native tributary dared to revolt, and the Egyptians called their Semitic masters, whom many Egyptians served willingly and for profit, their 'alien rulers' — in the modern transliteration of hieroglyphics, which ignores unwritten vowels, the ḥḳꜣ ḫꜣswt, whence the long-misunderstood term 'Hyksos.' So much is now certain, although many details remain obscure, and we note the irony that Yockey, by a few years, missed an historical determination that would have been of the utmost value in the formulation of his own theory — the first clear example of conquest by immigration and subversion.[13]

"Hyksos." We do not know how numerous those Asiatics were, nor to what extent their subversion of Egypt was carried out by a conscious and concerted plan, as distinct from instinctive parasitism. It may be significant that some of them disguised themselves under Egyptian names, much as Jews now frequently masquerade under Anglo-Saxon names (e.g. Ashley Montagu!), and that the "Hyksos," although fanatical devotees of an Asiatic god of their own, often feigned "conversion" to the native Egyptian cults. It is thus often difficult to tell whether some of the rulers subordinate to the Asiatic overlord were Asiatics masquerading under Egyptian names or Egyptian collaborators who profited from the exploitation of their own people. The Asiatics obviously promoted a "multi-racial" society as a means of destruction and perhaps even a kind of "anti-colonialism," since the Blacks of the Egyptian colony in Nubia became "independent," and, indeed, the Egyptian revolt against Asiatic domination succeeded only because the "liberated" Nubians failed to follow instructions fromthe "Hyksos" to attack the insurgent Egyptians in the rear. The policy of mongrelization was so successful that we even hear of one of the Asiatics' puppets, supposedly the legitimate heir of an Egyptian king, who was known as The Black (nḥsy). The genetic ruin of Egypt was thus begun, although Egypt, after the expulsion of the "Hyksos" rulers (though many of the race doubtless remained in Egypt) knew a period of imperial greatness under the Eighteenth Dynasty until the accession in 1379 B.C. of a crazed religious fanatic, Akhenaten, who, although at least two of his grandparents were blond Aryans, was, as is obvious from his portraits, some kind of mongrel.

13. The Egyptians did not distinguish clearly between the various breeds of Asiatics, and therefore the available evidence does not authorize an inference that they were Jews or directed by Jews, tempting as that inference is. There is no historical identification of Jews at so early a date. Josephus tried to connect the "Hyksos" with the story of Joseph in the Old Testament (Gen. 39-50), which is, of course, just a folk-tale dated by allusions to a much later time. It is not impossible, however, that some

A philosophy of history is not invalidated by such oversights, any more than Copernican astronomy was invalidated by its author's inadequate and largely erroneous knowledge of planetary orbits.

The analogy incidentally reminds us that the English word most commonly applied to efforts to formulate laws of history, historionomy, is misleading, since it suggests a possibility of determinations and predictions as precise and certain as in astronomy. That is manifestly absurd, and the French term, métahistoire, with its implied analogy to the notoriously speculative and vaporous doctrines of metaphysics, is preferable, although it may conversely exaggerate the degree of uncertainty and insubstantiality. Whatever the name given to this comparatively new domain of inquiry,[14] it must be regarded as a philosophy, not as a science in the strict sense of that word. There is therefore a great difference between philosophical theory and practical perception of contemporary realities, although the two are combined in the work of every writer on the subject. The theory is neither strengthened nor impaired by the accompanying view of contemporary events.

The still great prestige of Spengler today does not depend on the morphology of history that he elaborated in The Decline of the West, for while it would be premature to make a final actual events may have suggested the exemplary fiction about a Jew who got into Egypt, wormed his way to the top by adroit trickery (supposedly with the help of his tribal god), preyed on the good nature of an unnamed Egyptian king to import a swarm of his brethren, exploited the stupid king's superstitions with oneiromancy, got control of the whole nation, and, acting in the name of his royal dupe, cornered all the food and all the money in Egypt (see especially 47.14-21), and then starved the stupid goyim until they had to barter their cattle and their land for food and finally sell themselves into slavery, after which the wily Jew herded his biped cattle from their homes to other parts of the country to destroy what sense of community his slaves might have with their former neighbors.

14. For all practical purposes, it may be said to begin with Théodore Funck-Brentano's La civilisation et ses lois, published in 1876. The study, begun after the defeat of France in 1870 and the horrors of the Commune, is now obsolete but should not be forgotten. Its author saw clearly the absurdity of many contemporary fictions, such as the notion that there are "human rights" (which is still used to make bird-brains cackle), and understood that nations inevitably rot when they fall under the dominance of peace-lubbers; and he even foresaw the extension of Russian power over the more civilized nations of Europe.

judgement before 2000 or even 2100, it is apparent that the course of our own civilization has drastically departed from what his theory predicted. [14a] Indeed, unless there is a total and epochal reversal of present tendencies in the next two decades, it will be possible to reconcile the facts to his theory only by claiming that the Faustian civilization was, like the Incan culture of Peru, cut off and destroyed before it reached maturity — a claim excluded by Spengler's own analysis of historical forces. For the time being, at least, the Spenglerian theory seems to have been fallacious and to be memorable only as a vast intellectual construction, comparable to Kant's philosophy, respectable as a monument of intellectual power, though mistaken in its conclusions, and as prime datum concerning the historical period in which it was constructed. But even if we flatly reject Spengler's historionomy, we must nevertheless acknowledge and admire the sagacity of a mind that perceived contemporary realities much more clearly than did the reputedly wisest of his contemporaries, as is evidenced by numerous observations made ob iter in his major work [15]

14a. Spengler's historionomy, as expounded in his major works and, indeed, everything that he published before his death in 1936, predicted that, as an ineluctable historical necessity, the coming war would be fought for hegemony of the West, and the many highly intelligent men who were convinced by his analysis confidently expected that that war would decide which nation of our civilization would become the analogue of Rome in the Classical world. When the war occurred, however, it was fought for the Suicide of the West as a necessary preliminary to realization of the Jews' millennial dream of subjugating the entire world. In no published work did Spengler show the slightest awareness of the terrible power of the international race or anticipate the now unconcealed Jewish domination under which the West is being driven to the precipice over which nations and races disappear from history. Some of his admirers today point out that he did not overlook the power of the great predators of international finance, some of whom are Aryans who have assimilated Jewish attitudes toward their own race, but in 1921 he assured his contemporaries that they were living at "the moment when money is celebrating its last victories, and the Caesarism that is to succeed approaches with quiet, firm step" (Vol. II, p. 507). Today, more than half a century later, is there any indication that "Caesar's legions are returning to consciousness"? The present is obviously the result of forces that Spengler ignored, and whatever our problematic future may hold, events have shown that his "morphology of history" was, at least, radically defective. (Cf. pp. 23 ff. below.)

15. E.g., his perception in 1921 (Vol. II, p. 457, n.2) that the Weimar Constitution would almost automatically lead to unlimited majority rule such as the Hitlerian régime after its consolidation in 1934-35.

and, above all, by The Hour of Decision, in which he, in 1932, saw, with a clarity and accuracy that is now indubitable, the grim realities of the world at that time and the imminent dangers to our civilization of which virtually no one was then aware. The essential accuracy of his prevision is made obvious by the disasters that have fallen so terribly upon us.

The theory of history that Yockey elaborated in Imperium, which is essentially a revision of Spengler in the light of subsequent events and his own reading and observations, is separable from his estimate of the world situation, and it is not impossible that his reputation in our problematical future will depend more on The Enemy of Europe than on his major work.

16. The Hour of Decision is incomplete, and Spengler's understanding may have been even more comprehensive than we now know. An unpleasant aspect of the Hitlerian régime was an atmosphere, perhaps inevitable in all mass movements, that prevented Spengler from publishing, and perhaps from writing, the projected second volume. There was no official hostility toward him, and his books remained in print constantly until the Jewish conquest in 1945, but an English reader can sufficiently perceive the essentials of the situation from the translation of Spengler Letters, 1913-1936, selected and drastically edited by Arthur Helps (London, 1966), to pages of which my parenthetical numbers will refer. Although sales of the first volume delighted his publisher (291) and certain bookstores filled their windows with his works (285), and although he had an evidently amicable interview with Hitler (290), his book was, as he said, "misunderstood by a section of the ruling party in Germany, and consequently attacked" (196), and, according to one of his friends, both the new book and the Untergang were attacked in an "unfounded, personally malicious, and rancorous way" by writers who were like vultures (300f.). Spengler officially protested to Dr. Goebbels the publication in one of the Party's organs, the Kreuzzeitung, of two articles "in which I was described, among other things, as a traitor to my country. It is impossible," he added, "to appear in public on behalf of Germany when at the same time articles of this kind appear. Personally they are a matter of indifference to me. For the last fifteen years I have endured so much abuse that I am sufficiently brazen-faced. But in regard to my efforts to work for Germany, they are a hindrance which must be got rid of" (290). Dr. Goebbels was apparently unable to suppress the attacks, which continued. There were rumors that he was an opponent of the régime (304) and unverifiable reports that the régime was opposed to him (297, 308), and although the second volume was "anxiously awaited" (301, 308), it never appeared, and Spengler devoted his remaining years to studies in ancient history. That he wrote no more of the Hour of Decision than the published volume seems unlikely, but we cannot go beyond the affirmation of his niece and literary executrix, Dr. Hildegarde Kornhardt, that no part of a second volume was found among the Nachlaß after his death.

Although The Enemy of Europe is formally presented as a pendant to Imperium, we must be certain that Yockey's perception of the present was not deduced from historical theory. He was a man of acute and discerning mind, as he proved in an article published in 1939, when he was twenty-one. [17] At that early age he saw much that was hidden from virtually all of his contemporaries, however experienced or learned they were. He perceived that the so-called "Economic Depression," which so effectively scared the Americans and made them docile, had been contrived by our enemies by use of the Federal Reserve System, which had been foisted on this nation in a campaign engineered by a Warburg, imported from Germany in 1902, while his kin remained at home to ensure the defeat of that nation in the European war that began, no doubt on schedule, in 1914. He foresaw — and this, mind you, before hostilities began in Europe in 1939 — that the "Depression," which was being cunningly prolonged to subjugate the American people, "break their spirits," and "make the greatest possible number dependent on the Government," would culminate in a planned war in which "American youth by the millions will be conscripted into armies to be sent to Asia and Europe to fight the battle of world Communism." (That, remember, was two and one-third years before our great War Criminal was able to stampede American cattle into the war that he and his masters had instigated in Europe.) Yockey understood — as many individuals do not, even today — that the gradual imposition of Communist slavery on the Americans began when Warburg, Baruch, and other Jewish herdsmen cozened the boobs into thrusting their necks into the yoke of the White Slave Act, officially called the Sixteenth Amendment, which imposed the admittedly Marxist device of an income tax. He perceived, as did few men of supposed financial acumen, that the bonds issued by the alien government in Washington were fraudulent and would never be redeemed for their face value in real money, although their owners might be given some counterfeit currency printed by the Treasury in Washington and progressively depreciated. And he also perceived that virtually the whole of the educational system had come under the control of typical American "educators" and "intellectuals," who will say anything for a fast buck, while the press, including both most of the newspapers and the popular periodicals, was even more directly controlled and often owned by the aliens, who were using it to defile and pervert the minds of the young and prepare them for use as expendable animals abroad or as obedient zombies at home.

17. "The Tragedy of Youth" appeared, under the date of 21 August 1939, in Social Justice, a weekly periodical that was published by a Catholic ecclesiastic, Father Charles Coughlin, until the Jews bribed or frightened his venal superiors in the Church to suppress a publication that was making some of the serfs discontented. In the article, Yockey uses such terms as "a conservative, Christian view of life," perhaps as a courtesy to the editor. The term 'Christian' at that time and for decades thereafter was a convenient designation for the established traditions of our civilization as distinct from Jewish influences, which the word was thought to exclude, and it carried no necessary implication of religious beliefs.

All that is obvious now — except to the verbosely "intellectual" parrots who learn from the New York Times and its subsidiaries what line of chatter will keep them fashionable and hopeful aspirants to bakhshish from their masters — but if we can recapture in our minds the climate of opinion when he wrote, we cannot but be mightily impressed by the perspicacity of an adolescent of twenty-one. I will frankly admit that in the summer of 1939, although I was older than Yockey and had carried my studies into many areas of human history that he never had the leisure to investigate, and although I had no illusions about the fetid mass of traitors, enemy aliens, and looters in Washington, I grossly overestimated the intelligence of both the British (who held the pivotal position in Europe) and the Americans, and as grossly underestimated the power and even the racial solidarity of the Jews. And I knew of no one who estimated our plight more accurately. Had I read Yockey's article when it was published, I should have dismissed it as an alarmed apprehension of unlikely future contingencies rather than a description of what had already happened.

For the acuity of perception that he then evinced, Yockey had no need of an historical theory. But since The Enemy of Europe is written in terms of history, it will be necessary briefly to examine that philosophical structure.

CYCLICAL HISTORY

Imperium, as I have said, is based on The Decline of the West. In large part, its premises are Spengler's conclusions. A critique of the philosophy of history that the two works have in common would require a large tome; it will suffice here to indicate some considerations that are crucial to an estimate of it.

That history is cyclical in the sense that nations and empires rise and fall by some strange fatality in constant succession, has been a commonplace since the first rational study of human societies and was specifically stated by Herodotus. The opinion that the fatality is quasi-biological — that civilized societies are themselves organisms that necessarily pass through the life-cycle of all living things, being born, growing to maturity, and ineluctably progressing to senility and death — is doubtless much older than the elder Seneca, to whom we owe the first clear statement of it. [18]

That the several human species have produced more than one civilization is indubitable. There have been numerous organized and powerful societies (e.g., the Huns) that we may classify as barbarous rather than civilized, but, no matter how strict our standards, we must at least recognize the cultures of Sumeria-Babylonia, Egypt, China, and India as civilizations in the full sense of that word, and also as civilizations separated from our own by an impassable abyss: we can observe their deeds, so far as the facts can be ascertained from written records or by archaeological research, and we can read what is preserved of their literatures, but we must observe those peoples from the outside, and the greater our knowledge of their cultures, the greater our awareness that we are studying the operation of minds and instincts fundamentally different from our own. [19] To be sure, we can observe their behavior and even account for it, as, mutatis mutandis, we study the behavior of elephants or

---

18. Most conveniently consulted in Peter's Fragmenta historicorum Romanorum; in the editio minor (Lipsiae, Teubner, 1883), pp. 292f.

19. For a clear distinction between two kinds of mentality, each of which is fundamentally incomprehensible to the other, see the epochal work of Professor William S. Haas, The Destiny of the Mind, East and West, New York, 1956. See also the socio-psychological study by Géryke Young, Two Worlds, Not One, London, 1969. The identification of two virtually antithetical types of mentality does not, of course, mean that there may not be other types, as numerous as civilizations or even more numerous. When we imagine that the minds of other races work in the same way as ours, we merely delude ourselves dangerously.

baboons, but we can no more establish a rapport with the inner consciousness of those people than we can with the consciousness of the animals, except by such a flight of sentimental imagination as enabled James Oliver Curwood to report so vividly the thoughts of wolves.

Given the plurality of civilizations and the biological analogy, it remained for Spengler to identify a number of discrete civilizations and postulate that each went through a life-cycle that could be defined chronologically, just as we know with fair exactitude at what age a human being will become adolescent, will reach maturity, and will become senile. The synchronisms that Spengler established between the various civilizations have been the subject of endless discussion and controversy, but we need consider here only the one of his premises on which the entire structure rests and by which that structure must stand or fall.

Spengler identifies as two entirely separate and discrete civilizations the Classical ("Apollonian"), c. 1100 B.C.—A.D. 300, and the Western ("Faustian"), c. A.D. 900—2200. These are the two for which we have the fullest information, and between them Spengler establishes some of his most brilliant synchronisms (e.g., Alexander the Great corresponds to Napoleon). Even a century ago, this dichotomy would have seemed almost mad, for everyone knew and took for granted that whatever might be true of alien cultures, our own was a continuation, or, at least, a revival of the Classical. Spengler's denial of that continuity was the most radical and startling aspect of his historical synthesis, but so great has been his overshadowing influence that it has been accepted by a majority of the many subsequent writers on the philosophy of history, of whom we may mention here only Toynbee, Raven, Bagby, and Brown.[20] The Classical, we are told, was a civilization like the

20. Everyone knows the great work of Toynbee, A Study of History, and I trust that I need not again point out that the twelve volumes contain two distinguishable conceptions of the historical process, since the conceptions on which were based the first four volumes become uncertain and fluctuating in the fifth, after which his consideration of history takes a new direction, practically at right angles to the earlier one. The other works that I have cited here are less well known: Alexander Raven, Civilisation as Divine Superman, London, 1932; Philip Bagby, Culture and History, London, 1958; Lawrence A. Brown, The Might of the West, New York, 1963. I list these four works as particularly significant, since each

Egyptian, now dead and gone and with no organic connection with our own.

Spengler (whom Brown especially follows in this respect) supports his drastic dichotomy by impressively contrasting Graeco-Roman mathematics and technology with our own; from that contrast he deduces differences in the perception of space and time, exhibited particularly in music, and reaches the conclusion that the Classical Weltanschauung was essentially static, desiring and recognizing only a strictly delimited and familiar world, whereas ours is dynamic and exhibits a passionate yearning for the infinite and the unknown. One can advance various objections to the generalizations I have so curtly and inadequately summarized (e.g., is the difference in outlook really greater than that between the "classical" literature of Eighteenth-Century Europe and the Romanticism of the following era?), but the crucial point is whether the differences, which belong to the order that we must call spiritual for want of a better term,[21] are fundamental or epiphenomenal.

The fortunate preservation of vestiges of Classical culture during the Dark and Middle Ages may be explained in various ways, but our Western culture today is admittedly the product of the Renaissance, which was so named because it was from the first believed to be a rebirth of the Classical. In all the civilized nations of Europe the best minds of our race spontaneously turned to Graeco-Roman antiquity for models in literature, the fine arts, politics, philosophy, and the art of takes its departure from Spengler and moves in a different direction. All historionomic studies after Spengler are either commentaries on his work or attempts to refute it, and a bare listing of the more important would require a dozen pages or more.

21. It should be unnecessary to state explicitly that in discussions of cultures and historical events the word 'spiritual' is used to designate the determinants of human conduct that lie between the strictly physiological and the strictly rational, and therefore implies no belief in immortal souls or the mythology of any religion or comparable superstition. It must always be borne in mind that the spiritual components of individuals and hence of societies are biological, transmitted genetically in human as in other mammals, whether or not the innate instincts fully emerge into consciousness, and whether or not they are somewhat modified by circumstances or education before they determine action.

living,[22] and sought to model the whole of European society on the great ages of Greece and Rome, so far as that was feasible without inciting the revolutionary violence of mass movements, which they instinctively feared. What is most significant is that their admiration and emulation was not indiscriminately directed toward the whole of the Classical in Spengler's loose use of that word as a synonym for the whole of Graeco-Roman history, but exclusively to the chronologically small part of that history which they esteemed as classical in the strict sense which they gave to that word: essentially the flowering of Athens in Greece, and of Rome in the last centuries of the Republic and the Augustan period, i.e., the periods in which the strictly pagan civilization of antiquity reached its apogee. For the great heaps of theological trash accumulated in both Greek and Latin before the fall of the Roman Empire, they had no real respect, and they likewise rejected the non-Christian works of the long decadence of the Roman Empire, except insofar as those ages of dwindling intelligence preserved fragments of, or information about, the great eras. In other words, the best minds of the Renaissance rejected the ages of Greek and Roman history in which the populations were mongrelized and the culture contaminated by the Orientals who became its representatives—and this rejection was an instinctive aversion, for I have found no indication that any scholar of the Renaissance was aware of the racial mutation in the populations of antiquity.

So strong was this spontaneous esteem for the great ages of pagan antiquity that it prevailed over the opposition of both

22. Discussions of, and disputes about, the Renaissance are innumerable. For a fair evaluation, see R.R. Bolgar, The Classical Heritage, Cambridge, 1954. All recent discussions of the era take their departure from Jacob Burckhardt's The Civilization of the Renaissance in Italy (1860), which is of great value, although it has been furiously criticized, especially by persons with ecclesiastical interests. (There are several English translations; Middlemore's, the only one I have spot-checked, is quite good.) Much of the tedious disputaillerie about the Renaissance could be avoided if it were remembered that most of the major Humanists held important positions in the Church or some government and therefore had to deal professionally with such matters as ecclesiatical politics and doctrines, whatever they privately believed, and also that they formed an intellectual aristocracy, had no concern for hoi polloi (however incomprehensible that may be to persons imbued with the mysticism about "democracy" that is in fashion at present) and, quite apart from considerations of prudence, had no wish to stir up the superstitions and blind emotions of the masses.

Church and secular rulers. The more alert ecclesiastics did not fail to perceive that the rebirth of pagan antiquity was bad for their business, but the wiser ones perceived that the intellectual enthusiasm could not be successfully repressed and elected to join what they could not defeat. Many rulers of the time were doubtless embarrassed. We can imagine the sentiments of the first Sforza, a peasant become a duke, as he watched comedies performed in Latin and pretended to appreciate humor that depended on linguistic subtleties. We owe a good phrase to the first James of England, who warned his sons that base-born men might speak better Latin, but no one could criticize the King's English. He thus differed from Lord Chesterfield, who complacently remarked to his son that gentlemen are apt to speak better Latin than professional scholars, for gentlemen study only the real classics, whereas the scholars must read large quantities of decadent stuff in search of historical information. So great, you see, was the attraction of the true classics, so great was the affinity that our race instinctively felt for the great ages of Antiquity, that for five centuries the greater part of the youth of all educated men was devoted to mastering the modalities of ancient thought so completely that they could write Latin verse and prose of classical purity and often Greek with equal facility and classical accuracy.

This devotion to the great ages of Greece and Rome produced, in spite of economic and religious considerations, a stupendous educational effort that is without precedent or parallel in the accumulated history of mankind,[23] and ended only with the fissuring of our civilization by recrudescent barbarism and cultural sabotage. All this, Spengler and Yockey would have us dismiss as "pseudo-morphosis," as a young civilization's respect for a predecessor—in sum, as an hallucination—an hallucination, furthermore, of an intensity and persistence that makes unique our civilization, no matter how it is explained.

23. It must, of course, be distinguished from such entirely different phenomena as the preservation of a sacred language (e.g. Sanskrit in India, Hebrew in Jewry), the study of a contemporary foreign language (e.g. an educated Roman's knowledge of Greek or an educated Englishman's knowledge of French), religious interest in foreign hieratic texts (e.g. the study of Pali by some Chinese Buddhists and of Hebrew by European Protestants), and the influence of exotic literature and thought, usually through translations (e.g. the great influence of Greek philosophy on the Islamic falasifa or the influence of Russian novelists on English writers).

My purpose here is merely to indicate a few cogent objections to the Spenglerian historionomy, not to propose solutions of the difficulties thus indicated, which would be tantamount to formulating a new philosophy of history. I turn therefore to other considerations that preclude, I think, an uncritical and merely enthusiastic acceptance of the cyclical hypothesis.

Spengler and Brown particularly insist on the deficiencies of ancient mathematics, which they both exaggerate,[24] but if there is a dominant characteristic of our civilization, it is the capacity (in good minds) for rigorously objective observation of nature and strictly rational inferences and deductions therefrom—the mentality that has made possible our science and technology. This is the type of mentality that Professor Haas, whom I mentioned above, calls 'philosophical' to distinguish it from other types, and if we look through recorded history and insist on something more than the invention of simple devices, such as wheels or bows and arrows or permanent buildings, we find the first manifestation of this mentality in the Ionian philosophers, who sought to explain the universe without invoking magic and a mythology about praeter human beings. That is the real substance of Graeco-Roman philosophy, and we should take especial notice of the New Academy, from which comes the basic method of modern science, which depends on a nice calculation of probabilities. If we look for this rational view of the world in other civilizations, we find no trace of it in the Egyptian or the Sumerian-Babylonian, for in both of these, so far as we know, the world was always thought of as the work of gods and its phenomena attributed to magic, not to the regularity of natural laws. In the Arabian ("Magian") civilization, we find only a few individuals, such as Averroës and Ibn Khaldūn, who, on the basis of a knowledge of Aristotle and other Greek authors, rise above the gross superstitions of Islam and appear as mere eccentrics in a culture on which they had no influence, and we have only to read them to see how far their mentality differs from the objective use of reason that distinguishes what we may, with Haas, call the philosophical mind. In India, we find the Lokāyata, of which we know through scattered references in extant literature, but this rationalism seems to have flourished only briefly and during the period before Aryan dominance was seriously threatened, after which the 'philousian' mentality so prevailed in the conglomerate population of India that the Hindus provide Haas with his neatest example of it, and faith in the supernatural made the physical world seem nugatory and even illusory. In China, although the doctrines of Confucius and Mencius are relatively free of gross superstition, and the Fa Chia, a pragmatism confined to a ruling élite, considered society in implacably realistic terms, there is no evidence of a truly philosophical attempt to ascertain the laws of nature. We find, therefore, in our civilization a type of mentality paralleled only in Graeco-Roman antiquity, where, significantly, it is the mentality of men of our race.

24. Greek mathematics (of which a convenient conspectus may be found in B. L. van der Waerden's Science Awakening, New York, 1963) sufficed to produce the machine for calculating planetary motions, often called a computer, that was found in the wreckage of an ancient ship off Anticythera, and of which everyone now knows, thanks to the scribblers of wonder-books, who think it helps them prove that the earth was colonized by "astronauts." On the mathematics requisite for the construction of ancient artillery and the calculation of trajectories, see the article by Werner Soedel and Vernard Foley in the Scientific American, CCXL, 3 (March 1979), pp. 150-160.

The cardinal flaw in the historical theories of Spengler and Yockey is an almost perverse equivocation about the biological reality of race. Both strive to make race more or less independent of genetics, although they do not go so far as does Alexander Raven, who would reduce civilization to a "superorganic" idea. In The Enemy of Europe (p. 43), Yockey insists that "the idea of vertical [=linear, i.e., hereditary] race is dead. . . . The race one feels in oneself is everything, the anatomico-geographic group whence one comes means nothing," and he even deplores the racial policy of the National Socialist régime as "an enormous tragedy."[25] It is true that Yockey, following

25. One hears that Yockey's opinion may have been determined by awareness of his mixed Irish and Spanish ancestry, but such speculations are nugatory. A novelist can know all the inner thoughts and motivations of his characters, but when we deal with living persons, the motives of their actions are usually obvious, but an attempt to ascertain by psychological analysis the source of rationally expressed opinions will usually end in a quagmire of subtle hypotheses. If it can be shown that Yockey was in fact embarrassed by his ancestry, it will be necessary to determine the percentage of influence to be assigned to that sentiment and also to (a) the authority of Spengler, (b) the political doctrine of Moeller, whom I shall mention in the next note, or any one of a score of writers

Spengler, had the strange notion that the physical characteristics of race, such as the cephalic index, were determined by the landscape and soil, not by genes, in proof whereof "long-headed Jews from Sicily, and short-headed ones from Germany, produced offspring with the same average head measurement, the specifically American one."[26] Spengler was taken in by some of the propaganda for an American "melting pot" and especially by the hoax contrived by Franz Boas, a connected with the National Socialist movement, (c) one or more of a hundred other books touching on this subject that Yockey may have read, (d) what he was taught in his youth and took for granted, (e) lectures that he may have heard at some time, (f) conversations with one or more respected friends, (g) veneration for writers of genius, such as Spengler and Montaigne, whose ancestry was to some extent tainted, (h) affection for respected friends of comparable ancestry, (i) consideration of the practical political problem I shall mention in the next note, (j) fear lest a scientific ethnology, recognizing a multiplicity of sub-races, would produce a hopeless multiplicity of subdivisions of the population, comparable to the jungle of sub-castes in India, as was, for example, predicted by Dr. Guido Landra when he attacked the basic National Socialist conception of race in his lectures in the University of Berlin in 1939, where, under Hitler, he enjoyed a freedom of speech that is denied to American biologists, even at Yale and Harvard, which were once respectable universities, (k) a publicist's desire to minimize potential obstacles to the European unity he wanted to promote, and (l) other possible influences that do not occur to my mind at the moment of writing.

26. Imperium, p. 275; the information comes from The Decline of the West, Vol. II, p. 119. Spengler's belief that such spurious (and inherently preposterous) data had been empirically verified was probably crucial in his thought, but there were many other influences, particularly the doctrine that a man may belong "spiritually" to a race or sub-race to which he does not belong biologically—a belief held by many of his contemporaries, notably Moeller, whose Das Dritte Reich (Hamburg, 1923) was a major source of National Socialism; see also H.-J. Schwierskott, Arthur Moeller van den Bruck und der revolutionäre Nationalismus in der Weimarer Republik (Göttingen, 1962). The urge to minimize or conceal biological and even cultural differences is related to the practical problem that has confronted every ruler and statesman since Sumerian times: the need to create a state (which is necessarily territorial) by inducing some cohesive unity among the more or less diverse peoples who are residing in that territory at the time and whom it is not expedient to expel. This was an acute problem throughout Europe, including Germany, where the proverbial differences in temperament between the typical Prussian and the typical Bavarian could seem as great as a difference between major races to a population that had, for the most part, little contact with non-Aryan races except the chamaeleon-like Jews with their racial ability to simulate the manners of other races when it is profitable to do so.

twisted little Jew, who popped into the United States, was, for undisclosed reasons, made Professor of Anthropology in Columbia University, and founded a school of fiction-writing called "social anthropology."[27] It is also true that Spengler and Yockey, unlike Raven, do not categorically deny that race in the accepted meaning of that word does determine the outlook of a people and hence the quality of their civilization, but they create some confusion by using 'race' and 'thoroughbred' to designate a high degree of excellence in individuals who, it seems, are largely the product of the soil of the region in which they reside. They simply ignore the vast amount of scientific evidence that the potentiality of every individual is unalterably determined by his heredity, although obviously his development will be affected by nutrition and other environmental factors and, of course, by sheer accident, which may terminate his life at any stage.

This attempt to minimize the biological nature of men is paradoxical in writers who not only recognize that the greater part of human conduct is determined by instincts and tropisms that are largely subconscious, but so restrict the function of reason as to make it virtually without effect on the course of history. We are told—and the proposition is illustrated by examples drawn from the history of our race—that great men, who determine events rather than chatter or write about them, have a 'tact' or instinct that enables them to make correct decisions with so little reliance on their rational powers that they may not know why they took the action that made them victorious or successful in a given undertaking. Their strength comes, not from superior powers of cognition and cogitation, but from a faith in their own destiny. The psychological problem cannot be analyzed here,[28] but if we accept the claim that even the greatest men are basically irrational, we thereby attribute to heredity an absolute power over human conduct, of which it becomes the sole determinant, since it is beyond question that in all mammals, including men, instincts are innate and genetically transmitted. The logical conclusion to be drawn from Spengler's psychology, therefore, is that biological race is supremely important. Granting that "the race one feels in oneself" is what counts, what one feels (as distinct from what one may simulate) is genetically determined.

27. A typical example is a "study" concocted by one of Boas's creations, Dr. Ruth Benedict, whose Patterns of Culture (1934) purported to contain an "anthropological investigation" of the Zuñi Indians, who were a model of the perfect society, uncompetitive, deeply religious, peace-loving, totally egalitarian, sexually adjusted, etc.—all this put out as an object-lesson for the vile white Americans, whose vices deprived them of such bliss. Gullible Americans put their common sense in cold storage when they saw that the preposterous tale was told by a Ph.D. from Columbia and labelled "scientific." Virtually every significant statement in the book was found to be false by responsible investigators who actually observed the Zuñi (Esther Goldfrank, Florence Hawley Ellis, J.M. Roberts, William Smith, Li An-che, Philip Farb, et al.), although they politely pretended to believe that Mrs. Benedict, Ph.D., did "inadequate field work," i.e., that she would have told the truth, had she not been incompetent, feckless, and irresponsible. I need not say that Patterns of Culture was cunningly adjusted to the opinions and superstitions prevalent in the 1930s and designed to benumb the minds of its readers.

Yockey's denunciation of "materialistic race-thinking" does have some basis in the lamentably elementary state of our present knowledge of racial genetics, which may be compared to the state of chemical science at the death of Lavoisier. The natural laws that determine the inheritance of physiological characteristics, such as color of eyes or olfactory sensitivity, are fairly well ascertained, but we are far from being able to identify racial genotypes. The problem is of enormous complexity, and is further complicated by the migratory and adventurous proclivities of our own race. Everyone knows, for example, that the Chinese are Mongolians, but few know that even as relatively late as the Fourth Century there was at least one

28. A good example may be seen in generals who are credited with genius, such as Napoleon and George Patton, who seem to make strategic and tactical decisions by some instinctive feeling for the situation and to take risks that make their staffs turn pale, but are victorious because they either sensed or calculated the enemy's reactions more accurately than their subordinates. Before we assume that such men act by a super-rational instinct, we must be certain that what is involved is not a phenomenal power to solve extremely complex problems quickly—a power comparable in its way to the mental operations of a "lightning calculator," who performs complex arithmetical and mathematical calculations with an ease and rapidity that startle us, but who certainly does not know the answer by instinct. Hitler's decision to send troops into the Rhineland in 1936 over the protests of all his diplomats and generals, who predicted certain disaster, was once regarded as a proof of mystically intuitive powers, but we can now see that he estimated the political situation in France more accurately than his experts. Even so shrewd a psychologist as Jung was deceived by what was probably a strictly rational operation by an extraordinarily lucid mind.

Chinese Emperor (Ming) who was evidently a Nordic, having blue eyes, blond hair, and a flowing yellow beard. Even these distinctive traits are not necessarily united—everyone has seen persons with blue eyes and black hair, for example—and no one should be astonished that we find in China portraits of men in whom "the flat face is Mongoloid, but the wide open eyes are Europoid."[29] There are many hybrids and racial traits are often inextricably confused—a fact which greatly impresses thoughtless "intellectuals," who, if they had lived in the time of Lavoisier, would doubtless have clamored for legislation to forbid discrimination on the grounds that the four recognized elements, earth, air, fire, and water, are not found in a pure state, whence it follows that it is wicked to recognize differences between them and to bathe in water rather than in mud or a bonfire.

Although we can, within limits, determine the transmission and inheritance of physical traits, and although we know that intellectual capacity, as shown by intelligence tests, is genetically determined, we know virtually nothing about the biological mechanisms that transmit the almost infinitely complex elements of human consciousness and subconscious being. In certain instances, at least, the psychic elements may be independent of the strictly physiological. No anthropologist or geneticist can explain the fact that there are Jews, members of Yahweh's Master Race, who exhibit the physical characteristics of other races. The Jews in China, for example, seem to Western eyes, at least, indistinguishable from the Mongolians among whom they reside, although they are spiritually and mentally full members of the Self-Chosen People. We must assume that the Jews, who have preserved their racial identity and cohesion through so many centuries, have an empirical knowledge of genetics much greater than our own, but our knowledge is so limited that we can neither confirm nor disprove Dr. Alfred Nossig's terrifying boast, "A single little drop of Jewish blood influences the mentality of entire families, even through a long series of generations."[30]

29. The phrase is from Professor Otto Mänchen-Helfen's The World of the Huns (Berkeley, 1973), p. 372, where other examples of racial mixture in China in the early centuries of our era may be found.

30. Although Nossig's Integrales Judentum was published simultaneously in Vienna, Berlin, and New York in 1922, it is now extremely rare

There is one great difference between Spengler's concept of race and Yockey's. Although Spengler recognizes the Jews as a Magian people imbued with a Magian world-outlook and so instinctively different from us (and therefore at the limit incomprehensible to us), and although he knows that this alien body, this international nation, is today, as it was for centuries before the Christian Era, lodged in all the nations of the world that it can profitably exploit, he regards the natural antagonism between Jews and their hosts as basically not determined by biological race, but rather by the phase of civilization, the Jews representing a Magian culture that is much older than ours and now petrified. (Hence, of course, Toynbee's description of the Jews as a "fossil people," despite the absurdity of applying such a phrase to a species that is so active and powerful and, quite possibly, has a vitality much greater than our own.) Spengler asked his readers to believe that the Jews are a dwindling and disintegrating people, a negligible force in world politics and the struggle for power. I have always thought the Jews' aspersions on Spengler's memory a good example of their habitual ingratitude toward their most effective apologists.

Yockey, educated by events that Spengler did not live to see, regards the Jews as the dominant force in the world of 1952. He has very little to say, however, about their unvarying activity through all the centuries since they first appear in history, and he focuses his attention entirely on the present. We must therefore postpone consideration of it to a later section, and conclude our discussion of historical theory with notice of one crucial deficiency in both writers.

---

and has never been translated into English. Nossig gives his fellow Jews eminently practical advice on the ways by which they can most expeditiously attain the goal and purpose which, as he says, is implicit in the teachings of Moses, i.e., the formation of One World under their dominion. Recognizing that his race controls both Capitalism and Socialism, he calls for a coördinated application of both forces to put the goyim in their place—which, of course, will be good for the stupid animals, if they are docile. The statement I have translated occurs on p. 76, where Dr. Nossig goes on to claim that the "drop" of Jewish heredity, once implanted in an ancestor, will affect the brain cells (Gehirnganglien) of his descendants through many subsequent generations and thus make them susceptible to Jewish ideas of internationalism and One World. Persons of that infected heredity, therefore, are goyim who can readily be mobilized as auxiliaries and used to subjugate their own race and the entire globe to its destined Masters. Horresco referens.

It is odd that Spengler, and even odder that Yockey, has so little to say about the prime example of what they call "pseudo-morphosis," the acceptance of an alien element by a young culture, which accordingly strives to make its Weltanschauung conform to a pattern that is repugnant to its inner nature. As we noticed above, Spengler's dichotomy between the "Apollonian" and the "Faustian" cultures makes him consider our Renaissance an example of such a cultural delusion, but although he recognizes the "Magian" culture as totally alien to our own, he never investigates a far more startling pseudo-morphosis, the imposition of a Magian religion on a Faustian people. And of all the writers who follow the Spenglerian conception, only Lawrence Brown had the very great merit of having perceived the tragic consequences of the fact that the culture of modern Europe was, at its very beginning, infected by a Levantine religion, so that it became "a society whose inward convictions have been at hopeless variance with the outward professions the events of history have forced it to make," thus producing a spiritual tension that "has destroyed the peace of mind of every able man in the West for a thousand years."

It is true that the Christianity of the West differed drastically from all the early Christian cults, including, of course, the one that in the Fourth Century made a deal with the despotic government of the decaying Empire that was still called Roman, although the Romans, for all practical purposes, had long been extinct. What Spengler calls the Faustian soul surcharged that squalid religion with its own vision of the world, incorporating in the cult its own concepts of heroism, personal honor, chivalry, esteem of womanhood, delight in visual beauty (whether in women, in architecture, or in the mimetic arts), and love of magnificent poetry, together with the racial will-to-power—all elements which were unknown to, or expressly negated by, the holy books that Europe inherited from the mongrel proletariat of the rotting ancient world. The real scriptures of Western Christianity are not the alien Bible but the Chanson de Roland, Tristan and Isolde, the Christias, Gerusalemme liberata, Paradise Lost, and the many other epics and romances of a great and surpassingly beautiful tradition that ends with Tennyson's Morte d'Arthur and Idylls of the King—any one of which would have induced apoplexy in Tertullian, Jerome, Augustine, and the other ranting or gabbling "Fathers of the Church."[31] And the religion, thus made at some points consonant with the Aryan ethos, was permitted to absorb and claim a monopoly of the antecedent and in some respects higher morality of our race, and for a millennium the cult so dominated our culture that the West was Christendom. But like the proverbial house built on the sand, the lofty and ponderous structure could not survive the collapse of its foundations.[32]

Western Christianity, unfortunately, was saddled with its Bible, which could not be discarded or ignored because it was believed to be an historical record of actual events. Indeed, it is probable that the principal reason why our ignorant ancestors accepted the religion of the dying empire they invaded and dismembered was that the religion differed from all others known to them by its simulation of historicity in its holy book, which purported to describe events that had taken place in known parts of the world at specific times and had been witnessed by many persons, including the supposed narrators.[33]

31. To anyone who has the patience and equanimity to read judiciously a fair sampling of the verbose screeds collected in the three hundred and eighty volumes of Migne's Patrologia, the veneration long accorded to that motley rout of shysters, crackpots, and hallucinés will seem unbelievable. For a concise conspectus of the character and activity of the "Fathers," see Joseph Wheless's excellent Forgery in Christianity (New York, 1930). Lying for the Lord is a normal exercise of piety.

32. The disintegration of a long-established tradition is always perilous to a civilized society and may be disastrous. I expressed a last hope that something could be salvaged from the ruin of the religion in a booklet, Christianity and the Survival of the West, written in 1969; it is now available in a second edition (with a new postscript, but with no change in the text) published in 1978 by Howard Allen Enterprises, Cape Canaveral, Florida.

33. A complementary cause was the impression produced on the invaders by the sumptuous architecture, superb engineering, beautiful literature, polished art, and elaborate social organization that had survived from earlier times in the decadent empire. There were minor causes, especially the verbal dexterity of Christian missionaries, to which some added a manual dexterity, as did St. Poppo, who used a well-known vaudeville trick to perform a miracle for Harald Blastand ("Bluetooth"), King of Denmark, and thus bring the heathen to Christ. Charlemagne's ruthless conquest of the Saxons seemed to credulous persons evidence of the superiority of his religion rather than of the military resources of his large kingdom.

And the belief the book was a record of historical events cannot but have greatly—and tragically—affected the course of our civilization.

The Bible was an incubus of which Western Christianity could not rid itself. The collection of tales that had been thrown together at the end of the Third Century by feckless evangelists, who had been too negligent to edit out even the most glaring contradictions between or even within the pieces they selected with an eye on immediate marketing of salvation, had been made canonical by imperial decrees and pitiless persecution of the numerous Christian sects that had other gospels.[34] By the time that the cult had been accepted by most of the Nordic peoples, copies of the Latin text of "God's word" had been disseminated throughout Europe, and it was much too late to expurgate and amend the tales, let alone to assemble or compose a holy book more consonant with our racial psyche.

34. The Christian sect that shrewdly made a political deal with the despots of the decaying empire was one that brought with it the Jewish Old Testament, and it used the military power it thus acquired to extirpate all the competing Christian sects, including the many that rejected the Jewish compilation or logically identified Yahweh with Satan. To what extent the wily Jews actively contributed to the triumph of a sect that ensured them a privileged position in society and endless profit (plus a chance to continue their habitual wailing about "persecution") is unknown. We need not regret the suppression of the Christian sects that practiced homosexuality, promiscuity, incest, and sacred anthropophagy, but it was a disaster that the "orthodox" were able to exterminate the Marcionists, who, though less fanatical and aggressive, may have been the largest of the various sects before piety was augmented by fire and sword. Marcion, although superstitious, was sufficiently clear-headed to perceive the utter incompatibility between the Jewish book and the doctrines of even the gospels that have been included by the "orthodox" in the New Testament part of their holy book; he was also revolted by the barbarous notion that a supposedly good god would have his own son killed. There were many other sects that rejected the Jewish pretensions. The Marcionists survived underground until at least the Fifth Century, when an "orthodox" poetaster, Prudentius, laments that the government had not yet been able to butcher all of them. Had Christianity reached us in the form of Marcionism or of one of the similar sects, it would be unnecessary for some of our contemporaries to devise ingenious sophistries to argue that the protagonist of the New Testament was not a Jew. Scores of gospels that the victorious faction did not succeed in entirely destroying have come to light in the papyri, and while they give us no high opinion of the intelligence of their superstitious authors, many of them would have served our people better than the ones that were included in the "orthodox" compilation.

And there were limits to the ability of even the cleverest theologian to twist the texts into a more acceptable form, unless he went so far as to pretend that the texts do not mean what they say, but are instead a kind of cryptogram with a hidden meaning, and that God's revelation was really a kind of puzzle-contest with eternal life as the grand prize for solving his conundrums and eternal torment the penalty for submitting an incorrect answer—and that would have permitted anyone to read into the text whatever allegorical meaning or mystical soprasenso was suggested by his imagination or ambition. The best that could be done was to make the doctrine and practices of the religion depend, not on the embarrassing and irreconcilable texts, but on the decisions of a Vicar of God who had ecclesiastic authority over all Christendom, although even his power was straitly limited by vested interests and prevailing superstitions. This device had many shortcomings, but it made possible the development of Western Christianity.

So long as the Papacy had the political power to exterminate dissenters,[35] the religion gave Europe a needed cultural unity, but by the Sixteenth Century the Protestants became bold enough to challenge the Vicar's authority by alleging the meanings they found in selected passages of the supposed Word of God, and numerous enough to enlist the support of ambitious princes who had armies of their own. That was the beginning of the end. A century of intensive butchery produced only a conclusive demonstration that the Christians' fierce God

35. Heretics appeared constantly throughout the Middle Ages, but in groups small enough to be disposed of conveniently in holy bonfires, and only the Albigenses were numerous and rich enough to call for a full-scale Crusade. An interesting attempt to patch up the religion is provided by the only surviving copy of the De duobus principiis, which was discovered and published too recently to be mentioned in the usual handbooks. The anonymous author was repelled by the gross immorality of the Old Testament and he also saw the absurdity of the conventional Christian claim that a god who lacked either the power or the will to squelch the Devil was both omnipotent and just; in the second half of his tractate, however, he tries to salvage the portions of the New Testament that were emotionally satisfying to him. Better minds were also found during the Middle Ages, as is proved by the fame of the treatise De tribus impostoribus, which was attributed to Frederick II. Hohenstaufen and others who might have written it, but they were content to smile at the passionate votaries of the three impostors (Moses, Jesus, Mahomet) with equal disdain or compassion, and they prudently refrained from denouncing what Mellin de Saint-Gelays called "la créance et estude/de l'ignorante et sotte multitude."

had become senile or cynical. He had been Johnny-on-the-spot when the Jews wanted to grab the country of the Canaanites, and he had even stopped the sun in its quotidian course above the flat earth at an elevation of about thirty thousand feet—stopped it to help his Chosen Bandits slaughter all the men, slaughter all the women, slaughter all the children, slaughter all the oxen, slaughter all the sheep, and slaughter all the asses: "all these they slew with the edge of the sword." But when the Antichrist appeared in person in Rome—or in Germany—and gobbled up souls by the thousand, Yahweh didn't lift a finger or even despatch a single archangel, let alone tamper with the solar system, to help his True Believers exterminate the Catholic or Protestant Children of the Devil. At the same time, increasing knowledge of the real world made the Christian myths incredible and ridiculous. The religion slowly reverted to the proletarian squalor of its origins, despite the efforts of "conservatives" to shore-up a time-honored tradition that seemed indispensable to the preservation of a civilised society.[36]

Even at its best, however, Christianity powerfully and, indeed, immeasurably distorted our culture.

As all educated men know, Christianity is essentially a Judaized version of Zoroastrianism, as is, in fact, implied in one of the accepted legends about the nativity of its Saviour God, at which Zoroastrian priests (Magi) are said to have been in attendance. The Zoroastrian cult, reputedly founded by a Zarathustra, who, as is de rigeur for all Saviours, was born of a divinely fecundated virgin (or, what is slightly more miraculous, from several virgins simultaneously), was the archetype of all the "universal religions," of which only Toynbee seems to have perceived the importance as a force that constricts and deforms a people's native culture. It introduced some very peculiar and epochal notions that have been profoundly deleterious to all races influenced by them. We need mention only two cardinal points.

36. Vulgus vult decipi, ergo decipiatur, is a Mediaeval aphorism that was doubtless repeated by many enlightened ecclesiastics before Cardinal Caraffa and by some for reasons that transcended professional interests, but only after the seismic shock of the French Revolution did concern for the maintenance of the social order become a major consideration in persuading educated men to give outward adhesion to a cult in which they could not believe. It seems impossible to determine whether, as a general rule, "revealed" religions inhibit by fear more crimes than they incite by fanaticism, but, given the state of our society in the Seventeenth Century, the celebrated Cardinal Dubois may have been right when he asserted that a god is an indispensable bogeyman that must be flourished to scare the masses into a semblance of civilized behavior. That question, however, cannot concern us here, where it is irrelevant. We are men of the West, who cannot believe, while rational, that facts can be ascertained by deciding what is most useful socially or most strongly tickles our fancy.

Zoroastrianism (and, of course, the Christian rifacimento of it) is a dualism that posits the existence of two extremely powerful gods, each of whom would be omnipotent but for the power of the other: a good god (Ahuramazda, Jehovah), who is engaged in a continuous war for supreme power with an evil god (Ahriman, Satan), with the odd consequence that although the good god is backed up by his presumably mighty son (Mithras, Jesus) and commands legions of doughty archangels, and the evil god can marshal legions of valiant devils, including all the gods previously worshipped by men, both antagonists need to recruit reënforcements from the puny race of mortals and accordingly struggle for the possession of individual souls. The cosmic conflict between the two gods is a desperate one, a holy war waged with all their resources and causing infinite devastation and suffering on earth, although, strangely enough, the result is a foregone conclusion and everyone knows that the good god will triumph in the end and spend the rest of eternity in joyously tormenting his captive adversary and all of that monarch's wickedly loyal and luckless followers.

This paradoxical and amazing dualism has infected all the thinking of our Western civilization, both religious and secular.[37] It has inspired an endless series of holy wars, not only to

37. It is true that today many Christians, who either do not read their holy book or read it in an emotional fog, sincerely believe that their religion is a monotheism, having been so persuaded by adroit theologians who exploit the prevalent notion that a monotheism is, for some reason, a "higher" or "purer" cult than a polytheism, thus catering to the interests of the Jews, who have claimed to be monotheists ever since they perceived, in the second and first centuries B.C., the enormous advantages of impudently claiming that their tribal deity, Yahweh, was the Providence, or animus mundi, of Graeco-Roman Stoicism. When the Christians began to deny the existence of Jupiter, Mars, Venus, Isis, Tanit, and all the innumerable other gods of the past, and to regard them as mere myths or illusions, they rejected the explicit testimony of the "Fathers of the exterminate Protestants, Catholics, or other religious agents of Satan, but also, with equally frantic religiosity, to annihilate or enslave Satanically evil nations (in the United States, successively Southerners, Spaniards, [38] and Germans). I need not remark that the dualism has survived the superstitions about the supernatural from which it came and inspires ostensibly non-religious cults, as in the Marxists' holy war against the diabolically evil Capitalists or Fascists; and it goes without saying that when the zombies swarm out of the cesspools of Harvard or Yale to howl at Professor Jensen or Professor Shockley and prevent him from talking sense to such sane men as may remain in the academic ruins, the ignorant creatures feel that they are fighting the Devil and only their native cowardice prevents them from rending the learned men limb from limb in the faith that the facts of nature can thus be altered.[39] And, on the other hand, everyone can see that the missionaries who were once sent abroad to annoy the natives of Asia and Africa and "save souls" have been replaced by the far more pernicious gangs of "do-gooders," who plunder us for the benefit of "underdeveloped nations" and, in so far as they are not mere Church" and of their holy book, which they thus denounced as unreliable. The religion could probably have survived that amputation, but when the Christians killed off Satan to make their religion really monotheistic, they made it intrinsically incredible. The resulting bankruptcy of the cult was wittily adumbrated by a French theologian (J. Turmel), whose urbane treatise was translated into English under the title, The Life of the Devil (New York, 1930), and published under a pseudonym, "Louis Coulange."

38. Some of the promoters of the Spanish-American War doubtless had the rational purpose of seizing Cuba, Puerto Rico, and other Spanish possessions for American expansion and colonization, but enthusiasm for the war was whipped up by proclaiming a jihad, as had been done in the unconscionable war of aggression against the Southern states. Spaniards were described as diabolic monsters of cruelty, and at least one military man attained great popularity when the press reported that he had promised to slaughter so many of the human devils that only Spanish would be spoken in Hell for the next fifty years. The prompt defeat of our hopelessly weaker opponent averted satisfaction of the Christian fanaticism and blood-lust that had been excited by the propaganda, but professions of a high moral purpose led the United States foolishly to throw away part of the spoils of the war it had won by "liberating" Cuba to make the aggression seem altruistic.

39. In England, Professor Eysenck, while lecturing on a strictly scientific topic that displeases Jews, was assaulted and severely injured by a swarm of vermin hatched out in the University of London.

racketeers, must be buoyed up by a belief that they are commending themselves to a Jehovah in whom they no longer believe.

The Zoroastrian dualism makes weak minds susceptible to hallucinations by which they identify their interests or wishes with the cause of the Good God and excite themselves with a blind and deadly hatred of their opponents or rivals (who may have the same hallucination about them) as the innately evil agents of the Bad God, to be driven by any means, fair or foul, to the perdition to which they are damned. And nothing basic is changed by replacing Ahuramazda/Jehovah with an abstraction, such as "democracy," and replacing Ahriman/Satan with an another, such as "aristocracy." [40] Ironically enough, this poisonous dualism, which came to us through the Jews, now dominates the reaction against Jewish overlordship, for most of the Jews' antagonists identify them as "the Synagogue of Satan" etc. ad nauseam, while those who do not usually regard the Jews as an inherently and almost praeternaturally evil people, instead of regarding them rationally as a specialized race which, being a minority among all the peoples on whom it is parasitic, has learned that its will-to-power must be advanced by cunning rather than undisguised force of its own—a race, furthermore, which quite naturally regards its own interests and purposes as just and justified by either a covenant with a deity or its own intellectual superiority, much as our ancestors felt no compunction as they took a continent away from the aborigines, confident in their own manifest superiority, although some of them were foolish enough to think that the Indians must have been inspired by the Devil to try to retain possession of their own hunting grounds. So long as our minds are clouded by the Zoroastrian myth, we shall be incapable of rational thought for our own survival.

A second epochal innovation of Zoroastrianism was the bizarre notion of religious "conversion," of which the import is clearly seen in the tradition that Zarathustra's first convert was a Turanian, i.e., a Turko-Mongolian was transformed by psychic magic into an Aryan and more than an Aryan. By the simple act of believing the stories Zoroaster told him, that alien joined the Army of God and attained an exalted position to which Aryans could attain only by believing the same stories, while Aryans who were less easily captivated by evangelical rant remained servants of Satan, the deadly foes of God, and should be exterminated as soon as possible by the Aryans, Turanians, Mongols, Semites, and others whose minds had been opened to the Gospel. The obvious effect of this superstition was to destroy awareness of the biological fact of race and replace it with a delusion that could only hasten the Aryans' racial suicide. [41]

40. This particular form of the superstitution is implicit in innumerable writings that distort history to fit some pattern of "social progress," but the reader will find both amusing and instructive an especially clear specimen, Frederic Huidekoper, Judaism at Rome, New York, 5th ed., 1883. That account of a struggle between the evil "aristocrats" and the pure-hearted "improvement party" (which, of course, was inspired and led by God's Race) represents, so to speak, the virus in its pure state.

The nonsensical notion that any anthropoid can be miraculously "converted" to "righteousness" by being made to believe the dualistic myth logically engenders a mystic yearning for "One World," in which massive slaughter of the wicked Unbelievers will force the survivors of all races to unite in worship of Jesus or Democracy and thus live in a Heaven on Earth. The fatuous dream of a potential spiritual unification accounts for the current use of the term "all mankind," which is intelligible only as parallel to such classifications as "all marsupials" or "all carnivores," with a mystical connotation that inspires unthinking awe in many of our contemporaries, and since the fantasy is, of course, biologically impossible, [42] some

41. Hastened, not initiated, because the men of our race, wherever in the world they have established themselves, cannot keep their hands off women of the native races. This lascivious fatuity, to be sure, is as universal as masculine lust, and a superior race may even regard indulgence in it as evidence of their own superiority. The great Egyptian king of the Twelfth Dynasty, Sesostris III. (Khakaure), who established border patrols to prevent the infiltration into Egypt of Nubians from conquered territory, in the very inscriptions in which he points out the racial inferiority of Blacks, boasts that he "captured their women" and "carried them off," doubtless into Egypt as slaves, not foreseeing the terrible consequences of the inevitable miscegenation.

42. No one should ever have been so credulous as to believe the claims of missionaries that they "saved souls" by transforming savages or Orientals into Christians. All that the holy men accomplished by harangues and bribery (supplemented by the incontestible superiority of our hated race which was made manifest in such things as repeating rifles and the disciplined courage of British regiments) was to induce an outward assent childish minds, perturbed by a glimpse of reality, fester until they reach the state of the famous expert on "Mental Health," Brock Chisholm, whose diseased mind lusted for the extermination of white men so that the whole globe could be inhabited only by coffee-colored and mindless mongrels made righteous by their equality in squalor.

Belief in the psychic magic of "conversion," furthermore, opened the way for the Bolshevism that attained its fullest development in Christianity, the devastating notion that Faith —a faith that is as thoughtless and preferably as unconscious as the "faith" of a vegetable or a mustard seed—was what counted, so that an ignorant peasant, an illiterate fisherman, or the most scurvy proletarian could make himself the superior of the noblest, the bravest, and the wisest of men—and, secure in the favor of a god who so hates learning and reason that he will "make folly the wisdom of this world," the simpletons and morons, having become True Believers, can look forward to the delights of seeing, when the last have been made first, their betters suffer the most atrocious torments forever and forever. No idea, no menticidal poison, could be more effective in destroying the culture and even the sanity of the people in whom it has been injected.[43] And the poison, destructive of all social stability and hence of civilization itself, survived the mythology from which it sprang and persists today in the atheistic "Liberals" who bleat about the "underprivileged," fawn on savages, and demand an "open society" that is to statements that the native mind was innately incapable of comprehending and translated into ideas acceptable to brains of quite different formation from ours. It was natural and inevitable that when the savages saw our race become so lunatic as to surrender its colonial possessions, the "Christianity" of those who did not at once revert to their native cults became what they had always understood it to be, a special kind of mumbo-jumbo. For a convenient survey of those developments, see Postchristianity in Africa, by G.C. Oosthuizen, Grand Rapids, Michigan, 1968. This "anthropological" study is the more instructive because it is written by a Christian, who naturally cannot understand the real causes of the events he describes.

43. How alien this nonsense was to the mentality of our race is shown by the fact that, professing to believe it, they promptly began to reason about the Faith and erected the vast intellectual structure of Scholasticism, "comme si raison et foi pouvaient trottiner de concert," as Maurice Garçon sardonically comments. The final result, of course, was Nominalism and the labefaction of the Mediaeval Weltanschauung and eventually of the alien religion that had been incorporated in it.

perpetually stirred up so that the dregs on the bottom may become the scum on the top.

Having noticed these two cardinal elements of Zoroastrianism and the religions derived from it, we need not mention others, for the vital historical question is whether this pernicious cult was Aryan in its origins or a device of aliens. To be sure, it became the religion of the Persians. It was the religion of Darius the Great, who boasted that he was an "Aryan of the Aryans" and modestly attributed his victories to the help of Ahuramazda. It was the religion of his son, Xerxes, whose mind was so blighted by fanaticism that he boasted that he had destroyed the temples on the acropolis at Athens, where the Greeks worshipped nasty devils, and had commanded the benighted Greeks to worship his One True God.[44] It is also true that all the early legends about Zarathustra state or imply that he was an Aryan, although it may be significant that his miraculous nativity is said to have occurred in many different places, and that he is always described as an itinerant prophet who was not a native of the region in which he began to proclaim his gospel and salvage men's souls. What is even more remarkable, the only name that the Zoroastrian cultists gave themselves in the time of the Persian Empire, so far as we know, was Airyavō danghavō, words which literally mean "the Aryan peoples." That presumptuous appellation is obviously false in an ethnic sense, for it excludes the Aryan peoples of India, who were specifically damned as the worshippers of devils, and includes the many non-Aryans who elected to be Saved and join the Elect by believing or pretending to believe Zarathustra's evangels. If the term the Magi chose for their cult was not just an impudent falsehood, it must have originated in a calculated use of ārya[45] in its non-racial sense, "noble, excellent": since worshippers of the good god must be good people and morally

44. Xerxes does not specifically mention Athens, perhaps because the name might carry an impious suggestion that God must have been taking a nap when the Greeks, though hopelessly inferior in numbers and resources, destroyed his navy and sent him scuttling back across the Hellespont, but the allusion is unmistakable. The test of his inscription (transliterated from the cuneiform into Roman characters) may conveniently be found in Professor Roland G. Kent's Old Persian, New Haven, 1953.

45. I give the well-known Sanskrit form, whence comes our 'Aryan'; in Avestan, the dialect of the Zoroastrian holy book, the word becomes airya, as in the phrase I quoted above.

superior, they could be called "the excellent people." That would make the name comparable to the famous verbal trick by which the "Fathers of the Church," in a time of military supremacy, called their motley followers "soldiers of Christ," so that non-Christians could contemptuously be called "pagans" (pagani, "peasants, yokels").[46]

The Zoroastrian dualism was accepted by the Aryans of Persia,[47] who vehemently repudiated their own, presumably Vedic, gods, much as Christianity was accepted by the Nordic peoples of Europe, who repudiated Odin, Thor, and their other gods as evil agents of Satan. Christianity was, of course, an Oriental cult, and the analogy makes it difficult to believe that its Zoroastrian antecedent was natively Aryan.

There are many indications that it was not. Much of the evidence is too intricate to be discussed here, and it will suffice to mention a few essentials. The name of the Saviour, however 46. Originally a paganus was an inhabitant of a rural district (pagus) as distinct from a townsman at a time when all prosperous landowners in the countryside were citizens of a town, so that it had about the connotation of our 'rustic.' In the later part of the First Century it acquired the meaning of 'civilian, common man' (exclusive of persons of any social distinction) and was often contrasted with miles ('soldier'); in the later Empire, agents of the secret police, who disguised themselves as individuals of the lower classes, went about pagano ritu, i.e., as 'plainclothesmen.' But under the Dominate, the status of the countryfolk (pagani in the first sense of the word) progressively declined to serfdom, hence the particular force of the "Fathers" propagandistic word. The trick is disguised by the Christian explanation that "pagan" beliefs lingered longest in the countryside, which does have a certain basis in fact (countryfolk, perforce, remain close to nature), but should not blind us to the origin of the religious meaning in clever propaganda.

47. It would be interesting but futile to speculate about the use of hallucinatory drugs to spread the Gospel. The Zoroastrian haoma has been identified by R. Gordon Wasson (Soma, Divine Mushroom of Immortality, The Hague, 1968) as a drink made from the Amanita muscaria, one of the mushrooms that are used throughout the world to produce religious experiences and visions of God. On its use when the early Christians symbolically ate the flesh of their god, see John Allegro, The Sacred Mushroom and the Cross, New York, 1970—a most informative study, although etymologies from the Sumerian and later languages are probably overworked. In our own time, as is well known, drugs are used by the more enterprising evangelists to induce piety in the victims they collect in colonies or fanatical bands.

it should be spelled (Zarathūštra, Zaratōst, Zaratašt, etc.), is not readily explicable as Indo-European and may come from another language. There is reason to believe that the cult's holy book, the Avesta (a title which may not be Indo-European) was not composed in Persian, but was translated into a late Persian dialect from another, probably Semitic, language.[48] It is even possible that in the time of Darius the sacred language of the Zoroastrian scriptures and the liturgies recited by the Magi was Semitic, for the Persian Empire had three official languages, Old Persian, the native language of the rulers, Elamite, respected for its antiquity and still spoken at Susa, and Aramaic, the Semitic language which was most widely known throughout Persian territory and outside it, and which, accordingly, was the language commonly used by the Persians in the administration of their empire and in diplomatic correspondence with other nations. Before the extant text of the Avesta was written down,[49] the Greeks of the Hellenistic Age who interested themselves in the "Persian" religion found only texts in Aramaic, the language spoken by the Zoroastrian priests of their time,[50] and it is obviously possible that some of those texts

48. This was known to Spengler (Vol. II, p. 168), who relies on scholars in the field who are cited in the article to which he refers in a footnote. The linguistic evidence is tangled, but Avestan, the dialect of the Avesta, is related to Old Persian, the language of the Persian emperors, much as the various Prakrits are related to Sanskrit, and the natural inference is that Avestan is a broken-down and late form of Old Persian, rather than an early dialect of some region (Bactria?) or an hypothetical brogue of the Medes. It does resemble the decadent Persian of the last days of the Empire, which, however, is centuries earlier than the date to which most scholars (e.g. Darmesteter in the concluding part of the introduction to the third volume of his version of the Zend-Avesta) assign the extant text of the Avesta. To my mind, that is conclusive. Granting that some of the gāthās in the Avesta probably represent statements actually made by the prophet known as Zarathustra, it does not follow that the statements were made in Avestan. It is likely that many of the statements in the New Testament were actually made by one or another of the various Jesuses of whom the protagonist is a composite figure, but no one would believe that those agitators spoke in Greek to the Jewish rabble.

49. In the First Century, according to Darmesteter, whom I cited above. Other scholars would place it in the first century B.C., i.e. at the end of the Hellenistic Age and, of course, later than the Greek authors in question.

50. See J. Bidez & F. Cumont, Les Mages hellenisés, Paris, 1973 (=1938), especially pp. 35, 89-91; cf. pp. 34, 44. The English translation were the originals, dating from the time of the Persian Empire, and not translations, as is generally supposed.

There is one significant datum which seems not to have been given the emphasis it deserves. As everyone knows, Zoroastrian priests were always called Magi, but Magi was not originally a word of religious meaning: it was an ethnic term that designated a certain peculiar people who lived in Media but were in some way distinct from the ordinary Medes, and during the early centuries of Zoroastrianism only men of that peculiar tribe could be priests and their sacred office could be transmitted only by hereditary descent through females.[51] That fact is as startling as though in the Roman Catholic Church the only word for a priest was 'Irishman,' and during the Middle Ages only pure-blooded Irish (i.e., having an Irish mother as well as father) could perform sacraments. The word Magi, I believe, creates a very strong presumption that the propagators of the religion were not Aryans.[52] It may be only a coincidence that according to a tradition in the Jews' holy book [53] which seems to have an historical basis in events that took place before the time of Zarathustra, colonies of Jews had been planted "in the cities of Media." But since forgery and imposture have always been normal Jewish devices, no weight can be given to their claim that Zarathustra was a Jew and wrote in Hebrew.[54] of Cumont's Oriental Religions now in print dates from 1911, and is naturally less complete than his fourth edition (Paris, 1929); in the translation, he notes that the Zoroastrian texts were in Aramaic, but by an odd slip he speaks in one passage as though the Aramaic-speaking evangelists were Persians, although he must know better. This is corrected in his fourth edition.

---

51. Hence their famous custom of engendering offspring by sexual intercourse with their mothers or, if that was not possible, with sisters.

52. This must be distinguished, of course, from the custom, common among the Greeks, by which the priest of a local temple or shrine was a descendant of the family on whose land the sanctuary was built, and also from the formation of a caste of professional holy men, such as the Brahmanas of India.

53. 4 Reg. (= 2 Kings), 17.6 & 18.11.

54. See the texts translated from the Syriac by Bidez & Cumont, op. cit., Vol. II, pp. 103-104, 129, 131, and the texts cited in their Vol. I, p. 50, nn. 3,4. At the date it was made, the Jews' claim that Zarathustra was a Jew was doubtless just a normal part of what the authors, apropos of an

The really fundamental and cogent consideration is the enormous difference between the "universal" religion and the spirit of all the certainly Aryan religions of which we know, especially the Vedic, the Greek, and Norse, which we know in detail. The discrepancy is so great that even Toynbee felt obliged to conjecture that Zarathustra (whom he accepts as an Aryan) must have been instigated by a Jew.[55]

The very idea of evil gods is alien and repugnant to the spirit of all authentically Aryan religions, which are never so irrational as to inject good and evil deities into a universe in which the very concepts of moral 'good' and moral 'evil' are indubitably created by human societies for their own purposes and correspond to nothing whatsoever in the world of nature. Wickedness can exist only within a given society of human beings and can be defined only in terms of the standards of morality that the society more or less instinctively applies to relationships among its own members. Only infantile minds can attribute moral iniquity to hurricanes, volcanoes, dynamite, and other natural phenomena that may be baneful to us; primitive peoples, ignorant of the causes, may superstitiously attribute such phenomena to supernatural forces and may imagine gods that are indifferent to human welfare or have been angered by some supposed offense, but so long as they have a vestige of rationality they will not imagine gods who are inherently evil and seeking to promote wickedness. A notion that species of animals (e.g. snakes, sharks, tigers) that defend themselves against us or prey on us, or that species of human beings that pursue their own advantage to our detriment (e.g. Japanese, Jews) are wicked because they obey the universal law of life is simply irrational. And when a pack of fanatics claims that all persons who do not share their superstitions are diabolically evil, they are insane, prevalent as that form of insanity may be. The Zoroastrian dualism may fairly be called the most devastating mental disease that ever became epidemic on this impudent attempt to appropriate the Etruscans, call "la propagande juive pour imposer aux païens ses croyances" (Vol. I, p. 238), although the purpose more commonly may have been to bamboozle ignorant goyim by making them believe in the vast superiority of Yahweh's Master Race. The Christians naturally forged ahead in much the same way and concocted "proof" that Zarathustra had been a prophet of the advent of their Jesus; see op. cit., Vol. II, pp. 118, 127, 130, 135.

---

55. A Study of History, Vol. I. p. 81, n. 1.

planet.

The Aryan religions are not infected by that black delusion.[56] Their gods, like the forces of nature, are multiple and, as is only reasonable, are sometimes opposed to one another in their relations with mortals. Venus and Juno may each work against the other, just as every day the force of sexual attraction enters into conflict with the requirement of sexual fidelity that makes marriage an indispensable social institution. In the great epic of our race, the Iliad, which deals with a war to the death between the Achaeans and the Trojans, some of the Greek gods favor one nation while other Greek gods favor the enemies of the Greeks. No Greek was so irrational as to believe there was only one god and then say "Gott mit uns! " as Christians do when they embark on holy wars against one another. In the Norse religion, the Aesir and Vanir are united in Asgard, but often at odds with one another, as are the forces of nature to which mortals are subject. The Aryan mind could never, of its own accord, have conceived of so monstrous an inversion of religion as appears in the mad fanaticism of the Zoroastrians, who converted the Aryan gods of the Vedas into fiends, and of the Christians, who converted the gracious gods of the Graeco-Roman pantheon into malevolent devils.

The Aryans were not so foolish as to imagine that their gods were omnipotent: their gods are far more powerful than we, but they too are subject to Destiny, the impersonal force that is inherent in the structure of the physical world. They were not so credulous as to mistake the ravings of an halluciné or the sophistries of a theologian for revelations of truth: they had no gospels, and every one knew that poets and skalds were free to invent or modify stories about the gods that might be no more or less truthful than folktales. The Aryans did not have the hatred of civilized life that inspires the dualists' notion of Faith, a blind belief in certain tales by which ignorance and credulity are exalted above learning and reason. The Aryans respected the gods they imagined, but with a manly self-respect also: they did not cringe and cower before celestial despots, as do races with the slave-mentality and Sklavenmoral of the Near East.

56. A conspectus of the basic concepts of Aryan religions may be found in the admirably concise work of Professor Hans Günther, available in an English version by Vivian Bird and Roger Pearson, The Religious Attitudes of the Indo-Europeans, London, 1967. I am aware of the danger that we may identify as characteristically Aryan the qualities that we, as Aryans, admire, but a certain objectivity may be attained by considering what is admired in the great literatures of our race.

The Aryan spirit is innately aristocratic and heroic. Aryan man, when he is most fully Aryan, is driven by a spiritual passion to excel, αἰὲν ἀριστεύειν[57] —to realize, at whatever cost to himself, whatever capacity for greatness he may have within him. And while he rationally expects to find perfection in gods and men no more than in the world of physical reality, he has innately certain ideals of personal honor, fairness, and manly compassion that are incomprehensible to other races.[58] Both of these characteristics, however, although they are the source of all the greatness our race has attained, make Aryans vulnerable. The very superiority of men who approach our racial ideal makes it easy for a parasitic race or our own criminal elements to rouse against us the inferior's resentment of superiority and to excite envy and malice in proletarian herds, thus disrupting our society in what Ortega y Gasset calls "the revolt of the masses" and Lothrop Stoddard, more accurately, calls "the revolt of the underman." And artful appeals to our sense of fairness and compassion can excite, especially in females, the irrational sentimentality that ignores 57. As in Iliad, VI. 208, perhaps the most memorable line of our great epic, which is repeated at XI. 784.

58. An excellent work, which will enable us to see ourselves as others see us, is Maurice Samuel's You Gentiles (New York, 1924; recently reprinted). Jews feel only contempt for a race so mentally inferior that its men prefer to meet their enemies in a fair fight instead of stabbing them in the back when off their guard or giving them a poisoned cup under the guise of friendship. And if we consider the matter objectively, they may be right: "c'est la supériorité de ma race sur la vôtre: la vôtre mourra, la mienne durera." Farrère formulated the only biologically valid criterion of superiority. I remember an erudite Jewish professor who could not perceive that a chivalrous respect for valiant and honorable opponents differed from the pawkish notions about forgiveness set forth in some parts of the New-Testament medley. Apropos of the hoax about the "six million" that the Jews are using to bleed the Germans whom we conquered for them, he said, with arrogant candor, "The stupid Christians forgive enemies, but WE exact vengeance to the last drop of their blood." Whether he is correct in his confidence in his race's superiority, the future will determine—probably the near future. The other races, needless to say, also despise us for our indulgence toward them, each in terms of their own standards, and eagerly look forward to the ruin we seem determined to bring upon ourselves.

the fact that a cohesive society is an organism and, like all organisms, can live only by excreting its waste products—the grim fact that, by the unalterable laws of biology, we, like all mammals, bring to birth biological tares and misfits, which must be eliminated, if the species is not to degenerate to eventual extinction. And what the struggle for life does automatically for other mammals, our species, being capable of reason and purposeful social organization, must do deliberately—or perish.

The Christian version of the Zoroastrian dualism was Judaized, and Ahuramazda was replaced by the Jews' tribal god, Yahweh. As a result, our race lived for centuries in terror of the capricious and ferocious deity of the Old Testament, and no phrase is more common in the harangues of our holy men than "fear of God." Christians had to believe they were at the mercy of the supernatural monster who, for example, deliberately alienated the mind of an unnamed Egyptian king so that he would have an opportunity to afflict the whole of the obviously innocent population of Egypt with every imaginable disease, plague, and disaster, even murdering the Egyptian's children, so that his pet Jews could gloat over the torments of the goyim, who were evidently made so imbecile by their suffering that they permitted the Jews to "borrow" all their valuable property, gold, silver, jewels, and even wearing apparel, and then run away with the loot. Yahweh, naturally, repealed the law of gravity long enough to permit the swindlers to escape with the stolen property and to set a trap to destroy more goyim. And the terrible deity is credited with many similar exploits, all as vicious and immoral from every point of view, except, of course, that of the Jews who created him in their own image. And thoughtful Christians could derive little reassurance from their theologians' story that the savage god had finally repented of his blunder in picking the Jews as his pets, for a thoughtful man must quail before the appalling malevolence of the Jewish hymn of hate that closes the New Testament and is the Christians' favorite horror-story.

Thinking men were equally depressed to learn from that New Testament that Yahweh, having repented of one blunder and decided to let his erstwhile pets kill his son, bestowed his divine favors on the very dregs of a squalid, ignorant, and dirty population in Palestine to emphasize his new commands, which, quite logically, make Believing Christians dote on everything that is lowly, inferior, debased, diseased, deformed, and degenerate.

For Aryans, including, of course, the Germanic peoples who invaded the moribund Empire that had once been Roman, Christianity has been a deadly and perhaps fatal poison, a delusion that forced our people to act against the dictates of their own biological nature.[59] If ever in recorded history there was a cultural pseudo-morphosis, that was it.

59. Christianity was also deleterious to our race biologically, but we cannot measure or even estimate its dysgenic effect. It certainly encouraged the preservation and reproduction of the unfit, and, through both monasticism and the distribution of social rewards, it inhibited the reproduction of superior men and women. Having given the Jews a privileged position and enriched them, it facilitated Jewish penetration of our society by a common ruse: Aryan males were hooked by offering them smiling Jewesses with generous or lavish dowries; the Jewesses, although perfunctorily sprinkled with holy water, had naturally been taught by the inspiring examples of Esther and Judith that their loyalty was to their race, not to the goy whose bed they shared and whom they would manipulate in the interests of their kind. A Jewish strain, conceivably as potent as Dr. Nossig claimed (see note 30 above), was thus planted in many gentle, noble, and even royal families and may, as some believe, account for their decadence, both mental and physical, as frequently occurs when incompatible genetic strains are combined. But statistics on all these points are lacking, and if we had them, we should only face the impossible task of measuring what happened against what would have happened, if Europe under the Germanic peoples had adopted some other (what other?) religion or religions. Charles Renouvier's Uchronie (Paris, 1876) will sufficiently entertain and discourage those who must speculate about the incalculable.

An anonymous writer in Instauration (Aug. 1980) sought to explain psychologically one of the most drastic and puzzling effects of Christianity on our race and civilization. When our ancestors accepted the Magian cult, they believed themselves at the mercy of a capricious and ferocious god whom they had to appease and placate by observing absurd taboos and imposing on themselves unnatural conduct their racial instincts rejected. Thus they had a sense of guilt without consciously knowing why. By not sinning in the eyes of Yahweh, they were sinning against themselves. They were biologically guilty. From this inner conflict,—from the subconscious mind's reaction to the perpetual conflict between the innate nature of a healthy Aryan and the conduct his Christian or "Liberal" superstitions require of him,—comes the maddening sense of personal and racial guilt that has been for centuries and is today a black and monstrous incubus on the minds of our race. This explanation may well be right.

To be continued in next issue.

continued from page 4

It was given by an American romantic poet, William Cullum Bryant. It is an American impression of the Germans long before the Aliens took over our common press.

"I recollect that while the armies of Russia were moving like a tempest from the North upon the Hungarian host, the progress of events was watched with the deepest solicitude by the people of Germany. I was at that time in Munich, the splendid capital of Bavaria. The Germans seemed for the time to have put off their usual character, and scrambled for the daily prints, wet from the press, with such eagerness that I almost thought myself in America. The news of the catastrophe at last arrived: Hungary yielded to the demands of the Russians. Immediately a funeral gloom settled like a noonday darkness upon the city. I heard the muttered exclamations of the people, 'It is all over — the last hope of European liberty is gone.' "

Pretty good prose style, for a Press Club, isn't it? We rarely hear the voice of an intelligent American nowadays, and those who cynically control the public media are not about to let you or I or anybody hear the voice of our true American Mind and Character.

Keep up your good work, George. We all have more to lose, in this "general tragedy," than even you can understand.

Sincerely,
R.H., Colorado

* * * * *

Dear Mr Dietz: 28 March 81

I received the Jan. 81 Liberty Bell and your publications list. As soon as I saw the cover story "John Lennon: Good Riddance" I smiled and couldn't wait to read the article. I hope some day to read an article entitled "Bob Dylan: Good Riddance". At one time in my life, I loved the Beatles, but my eyes began to open when Lennon took an Oriental wife. Nut houses, graves and prisons are indeed full of people that Lennon sang into drugs and a phony revolution. When the kids did rise up for change in the country, the Beatles scoffed at the people who actually made MOVES for change. Lennon called them crazy and racist, while he and his Oriental wife proceeded to get richer. Don't forget Jerry Rubin telling the kids to kill their parents. He was never indicted for any conspiracy of inciting to commit murder — he was rewarded with a job on Wall Street. And Abbie Hoffman is getting rich off his book entitled "Soon to be a major motion picture." And Tom Leary exhorting the young people to turn on, tune in and drop out, later got a job working for NASA.

A 22 year old woman just asked me why the Soviet Union has for years tried to keep decadent Western rock and roll out of Russia. She said your criticism of rock music is similar to Russia's criticism. I couldn't answer the question. I think it is due to an overall ignorance what is going on in the Soviet Union today. . .

Sincerely,
S.G., Virginia

Dear George: 30 March 81

Received the April, 1981 issue of The Liberty Bell today and I must say that your handling of my essay, "Contra Friedrich Nietzsche," was distressing.

I see no need to hand an unpublished manuscript [it was not published because it consisted of an attack on Nietzsche, and we considered it irrelevant to the subject under discussion: Christianity and its effect on the White Race] over to a man such as Ronald Hand, so that he might unfavorably comment on that which no-one else has been allowed to read. For what it is worth to you, I am ashamed that you would do such a thing to one who has tried to be a loyal friend to you. Mr. Hand pays me the tribute of mocking me — "Don Clerkin," [We apologize for Mr. Hand for not addressing you properly as Maj. Donald Vincent Clerkin, but, please, don't take such unimportant things so tragic — put a little fun into your life, try laughing for a change!] from a man I've never met; a man who knows the least bit about the Euro-American Alliance and its Brigade, what it has cost me and our supporters in attacks — and supposes that I would be dismayed to hold a mere LIEUTENANCY in what he rudely terms, the "Euro-American Squad." [Mr. Hand was not mocking the "Euro-American Alliance" with these words, but was referring to an organisation he is planning to set up under the designation of "Euro-American Squad."] I would expect this gross mockery from the ADL, but from a White man it rather hurts. For Mr. Hand's information — and I trust, George, that you will publish THIS letter — I would be proud to hold ANY rank in the Brigade, just as I was proud years ago to be a corporal of Marines. I happen to be a major in the Euro-American Brigade because that is the presently-designated rank and grade of the commander. Our lieutenants wear the same uniform and insignia as the commander, as do the sergeants, the warrant officers, and even the privates; we are all bloody proud to be in this uniform, with our Eagle/Blood Cordon and family heraldic insignia patches on the left and right shoulders respectively. Mr. Hand ought to get into a uniform he can respect, then he might realize that mockery is not true criticism — just a low blow inflicted upon an unsuspecting comrade.

The letter I received from Mr. Ralph Perier, unlike the reaction of Ronald Hand, while in disagreement with my position as stated in a letter to Mr. Perier, was studied and eminently polite in every respect.

It would seem to be the problem of those who argue against the positive Christian position that they cannot withhold from themselves the desire to mock, not to reason against, but mercilessly to abuse the person and his efforts. I have noticed that mocking viciousness is the tool of atheists of all ideological stripes. Let me make it clear that I do not take issue herein with the right of atheists on the Right to oppose Christianity. My faith is a very personal matter, which I would not be serving by forcing upon anyone.

One of your correspondents, A.D. of South Africa, who is probably Mr. Andrew Douglas, states, in referring to the essay "Contra Friedrich Nietzsche," — "I don't know what Clerkin has got to complain about." I will tell you: My complaint is that THE LIBERTY BELL is requiring Christian advocates to adhere to a form of rebuttal; we are given no opportunity to change our mode of counter-attack, to bring to the fore ancillary facts and foundation material which the readers might use to better judge the merits of the total argument. I have no interest in merely answering the thrusts of Mr. Perier, or Ronald Hand; they should be obliged to answer a few of our thrusts every now and then. The Nietzsche essay would have increased interest in the debate, and would have widened its spectrum. As for Mr. Douglas' criticisms, the EURO-AMERICAN QUARTERLY recently published one of his essays: I don't know what he has to carp about.

As for his challenge that "the Clerkins, O'Briens and Miles(es) produce REAL fight from the racist Christian Right," let him be aware that we are trying to do that every day; and on those days when we are less than successful in raising troops, we usually go to get the required job done ourselves.

Lastly, it is obvious that Ronald Hand was supplied with not only my unpublished Nietzsche essay, but also with Pastor Sheldon Emry's letter — BEFORE ITS PUBLICATION IN LIBERTY BELL. That is not good, fair editing; it is beneath the man I once thought George P. Dietz to be. I would consider Ronald Hand to be a hatchet man, but a hatchet man for George Dietz bespeaks a sad commentary on the direction taken by THE LIBERTY BELL.

As a postscript, Harold Covington's assessment on pp. 12-13 of the Faustian metamorphosis which "created a number of variations on the Christian theme which are wholly consonant with the Aryan racial personality," is right on target and is substantially what I was attempting to say in my first answer to Mr. Perier's "The Jews Love Christianity."

For Christ, Race and Nation,

Maj. Donald V. Clerkin
Commander, Europ.-Am. Brigade
Chairm., Euro-Am. Alliance

* * * * *

Dear George: 1 April 81

Your letters to the editor in the April 1981 issue of Liberty Bell, prompted me to reply to several inquiries made in letters which appeared in this column.

In M.B.'s letter inquires whether the anti-Christ Jews have a different God from that of the true Israelites of the Bible. Several years ago Dr. Walter White of Western Front paid Harold Rosenthal for an interview concerning Jewish plans for an overthrow of our form of government. Rosenthal was the chief aide to the then Senator Jake Javits. How thoroughly this interview was covered iis contained in a report of it by Dr. White entitled, "The Hidden Tyranny" [this is a manuscript which has been widely circulated and is represented as a genuine interview with Harold Rosenthal. It has also been published and a copyright has been it describes exactly that blacks, the noisom beasts, will spoil the land.

The Bible does say however, that all nations are to receive a blessing from the white race. Do you require proof that the white race are the true Israelites? The Bible tells us that God formed Adam out of the dust of the ground. If you will refer to Strong's Concordance you will discover that the name Adam was derived from the name Aw-dam, meaning the ability to show red in the face, the ability to blush. Do you ever recall seeing a black man blush? So, this proves that Adam was a white man with the ability to show red in the face.

I think I have pretty well covered the points I noted in your letters to the editor. I believe that anyone who studies the Scriptures, will find that the Bible is the book of the white man. Read Gen. 5:1, in which it says, "This is the book of the generation of Adam." Doesn't that preclude all other races?

It's been nice to have this opportunity to give my views of these rather important religious matters which have been the cause of many arguments both pro and con.

R.H.W., Pa.

* * * * *

Dear George: 4 April 81

I have been dismayed to see attacks on Christianity by you and my former friend Ben Klassen in the last two issues of the Liberty Bell. Had the attacks been against CHURCHIANITY, I could have agreed, but after fifty years opposing communism I know beyond shadow of doubt that the main objective of the Zionist—Communist-Satanist conspiracy is the utter destruction of Christianity.

When you, too, attack Christianity you are directly helping those whom you claim to oppose. It is indeed difficult for me to believe that you and Ben are secret agents for the Jews, and, frankly, I do not even suspect such is the case.

[While Yours Truly was "one of the boys", and that only for approx. one year and only to find out what was really behind that humbug called "Freemasonry", we do distinctly remember you telling us during a visit with us several years ago and in letters addressed to us, that you have been a member of the Masonic Fraternity for over fifty years. Should we suspect that you are in fact an agent for the Jews?]

I surmise your error is caused by accepting the false belief that the Children of Israel were Jews and that Jesus Christ, Himself, is a Jew. The Bible says that Jesus is God and Jews are the sons of the devil. Please read the enclosure edited by me and get your train of thought back onto the right track.

My best wishes for your continued success AFTER you start promoting, rather than opposing, Christianity.

Sincerely,
F.P., Florida

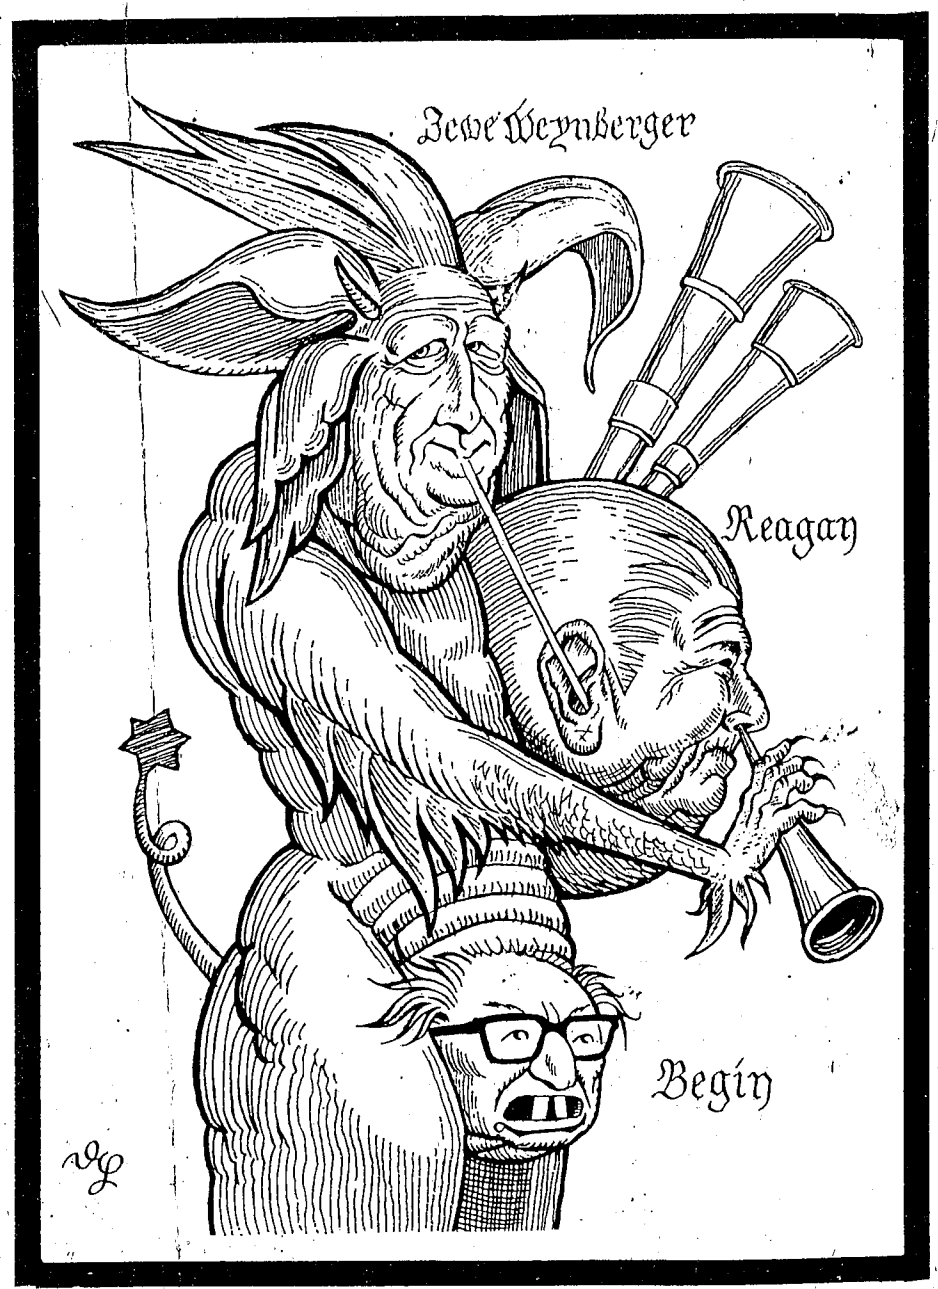
FOR MY LEGIONARIES The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

THE ANTI-HUMANS by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270. today!

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA



The Liberty Bell

THE ENEMY OF OUR ENEMIES

A CRITIQUE
OF FRANCIS PARKER YOCKEY'S
THE ENEMY OF EUROPE

Part II

Revilo P. Oliver

page 5

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4490.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHTT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$13.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$20.00
THIRD CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$19.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$22.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$32.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$37.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies via UPS	$ 12.00
100 copies via UPS	$ 90.00
500 copies via UPS	$300.00
1000 copies via UPS	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

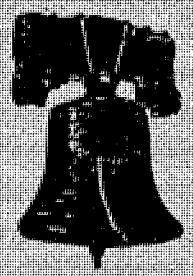
The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

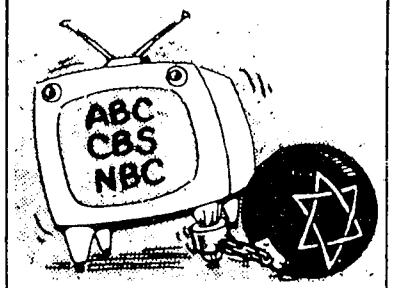
We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world. George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

The Liberty Bell



VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION



TV JEWISH CLAP TRAP

CONTENTS

VOL. 8 — NO. 12
AUGUST 1981

Arthur's Sword Shall Sing Again! 2
The Enemy of Our Enemies, Part II ... 5
Race Transcends All! 53
Letters to the Editor 54

ARTHUR'S SWORD SHALL SING AGAIN!

by Ian Stewart

There is a deep longing within men for the past. Every people have a myth relating to the "Golden Age" when they and their gods were in harmony and blessings of heaven and earth were showered upon them and their children. Who does not know of the Garden of Eden, or, moving forward in time, of King Arthur's Camelot?

Both may have firm basis in fact. Both may be complete fabrication. It matters not, for they serve the same purpose. They tend to remind us that as things once were, so may they be again. They serve as a shining goal ever ahead, but one we deem to be obtainable as it once existed. Once again we will sit at the round table of King Arthur or eat and drink from Eden's cornucopia as we frolic on the fertile, green meadows in a warm, bright sunlight.

From deep within our being these images live and come into our conscious thought. It is true of the white man, the black and the yellow. It is a part of those magnificent laws of nature which created the races and will guide them to their destiny. Perhaps, a few centuries in the future, the remnants of our white race, with hushed voice, will speak of the golden age which flourished for but a moment in the 20th Century.

They will remember the will of the people manifested in one man and one cause and for that shining moment the Aryan strove to rise above the mundane. Following the emblem of the sun wheel they sought to re-enter the Garden of Eden of their race.

Their sad laments, sung low and softly in the Celtic manner, will tell of their failure, of the sun wheel—the swastika, lifted high and then dashed to earth—not by those of another race, but by their own people. There the true sorrow. The snake which brought destruction to that promise of paradise wore the Star of David. Though the arm which wielded the death blow was white, it was guided by the guile of the serpent. The knights of the round table were set one against another and the dreams of an Aryan Eden and Camelot sought by the National Socialists were destroyed.

The survivors were beaten away into the darkness, away from that shining place where dreams and honour were bright. Over its ruins the loathsome asp slithered in the slime and dissolution of death. Yet, as the blaze was kindled for that moment of glory, can it not be brought again to flame? The fire was not extinguished. It only lies smouldering beneath the brown turf. A brisk, clean wind can give it life and nourish it to brilliance. It will be those laws of nature which made the Aryan, not the serpent, which will govern his destiny.

The museums of the world are full of the fossilized remains of species which once flourished, declined and ceased to exist. Man, with his ego, attempts to ascribe various causes for the reduction of these species, but it is all speculation. The mighty forces of nature alone bring forth these species and it is the awesome might of nature which lays them back into oblivion. It will be that force of nature, or God, which shall end the white man's existence, not the serpent.

If, however, the white man, weakened and decimated by mixed breeding, stands before one of the mighty selections of nature and if found wanting and weak, then he, too, will die. The once mighty Cro-Magnon man who held sway in Europe is known today by his fossil remains. No race has a claim to immortality, but, by the indications apparent to us, no other race has the means or desire to destroy another race. Conflict, yes; annihilation, no.

The other races have nothing to fear from the white man. Each race has a sphere on this earth and each has his own means of viewing the world. The oriental seeks his reunion with God in his passivity and acceptance. The black through the blood of the captive, either animal or man. The white through quest. Be it blessing or curse, the Aryan blood is that of the questor—we seek out the challenge and conquer it, be it the continents, the oceans or space.

Why then the conflict raging through the world today? The serpent, the Jew, is the fomentor of the dissension. He does not fall within one of the great races of mankind. He is without, a thing apart. Lacking the natural attributes of other races he has culled from each to suit his own need. What the serpent has chosen is the worst from the others. The lust for blood from the black, the stealth and cunning of the oriental and the quest, unbridled by conscience, from the white, and genes from each. Where these genetic traits are balanced in their natural host, within the breast of the serpent they are not. It becomes a monstrous montage of evil.

Thus the "Jewish" culture is a reflection of its host. The parasite assumes the colouration of that upon which it feeds until the host is sucked of its life's blood and it turns to yet another victim. The expulsion of the Jew from Germany in the 1930's and early 1940's did not alter his character, he simply moved elsewhere to new victims—primarily to the United States. The asp, the decadent force, slithers still, down through the long marches of time, feeding upon the bodies of its victims.

Look back into the history of black-white conflict, and in every instance, the serpent's presence is felt. Lacking a true race of its own the serpent seeks to destroy those who do. The black man's culture is different from the white's, but it is his and he is welcome to it. It is only through the guile of the serpent, the "liberal," the deceiver, that conflict is flamed. They debauch both the black and white by integration, cross breeding and cultural debasement. The goal—the destruction of both white and black.

From the morass the flame of racial greatness can spring anew. It is not the gods of nature which decrees the white man shall perish, it is the hiss of the serpent. The pendelum is commencing its return swing. We are awakening to the realities of nature's law. The white man, just as every other race, has a destiny to fulfill. It will not be denied, nor will we again lift our hand against a brother for the gain of the serpent.

It was St. George who slew the dragons of old. The allegory is apt today for we must again take up armour and the sword to slay the dragon, the serpent, which preys upon us and sucks our life blood. When that dragon is destroyed, when its influence is no longer felt, the black man will return to his natural interests, the white to his. Conflict between the races will continue where there is contact and competition, but neither will seek the destruction of the other. We have lived before in racial harmony by natural separation. Only the serpent has attempted to sow the seeds of our mutual destruction.

The mighty gods of the Aryan shall rise again. The flame is not dead. We know the enemy. We see his loathsome form slithering in the scum of dissention and we shall lift again the Singing Sword of Arthur to strike!

$ 4.00 $ 3.00

Please add 10% for postage and handling!

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS

Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE ENEMY OF OUR ENEMIES

A CRITIQUE OF FRANCIS PARKER YOCKEY'S THE ENEMY OF EUROPE

Part II

Revilo P. Oliver

Copyright 1979, 1981
by Revilo P. Oliver

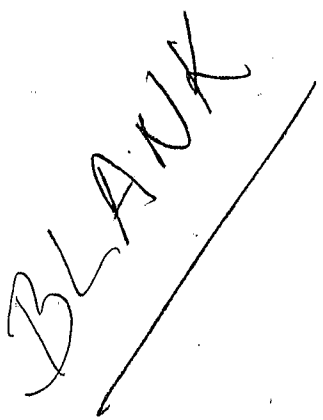
All rights reserved. No part of this book, except brief excerpts for the purpose of review, may be reproduced in any form without written permission by the publisher. For information write to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

Printed in the United States of America

CONTENTS
Part II

Spengler vs. Yockey 49
One Europe 51
Overseas Europe 63
The Heartland 69
The Nutcracker 70
The Paradox 80



I have tried above to exhibit briefly the magnitude of the cultural distortion that is overlooked by both Spengler and Yockey, although, according to their own doctrines, it was the imposition on the Faustian soul of a Magian ideology, the product of a totally alien civilization. Spengler, however, who goes almost as far as Toynbee in regarding the Jews as a "fossil people," can be defended on the grounds that he regards the Faustian culture of the West as one that arose, around the year 900, among the dominant peoples who then lived in Europe, regardless of ethnic diversities or innate racial characteristics, and that Christianity was simply an element that entered into that culture. From that standpoint, our culture, whether for better or for worse, was as naturally and inevitably Christian as Napoleon was a Corsican. To ask what our civilization would have been like without Christianity is like asking what George Washington would have become, had he been born of different parents. Our estimate of Spengler's historionomy will therefore depend on our acceptance or rejection of (a) his conception of a culture as largely independent of biological race, and (b) his assumption that the Jews as such, have had no great influence over our history.

For Yockey, no such apology will serve. He follows Spengler, it is true, in his general doctrine of race, but he attributes to the Jews, whom he frequently designates as the "culture-distorters," a vast and decisive influence over our recent history, and since he does not claim that their baneful power is a recent phenomenon, he must logically believe that it has been exercised against us in earlier centuries. If he is to give us a philosophical comprehension of the historical process, he must explain the nature, origin, and development of that power—and obviously such an explanation must include consideration of the effects of Christianity on both our people and the Jews who, for purposes that Yockey recognizes as hostile, lived among them.

As I have said before, I come neither to praise nor to bury Yockey, but merely to evaluate his work. It is clear, I believe, that as an exegesis of historical causality, Imperium and, of course, its sequel are radically defective, even in terms of their own premises. They have other values. I have always believed that Imperium was enlightening and even inspiring reading for young men and women whose minds have not been irremediably blighted by the denaturing superstitions inculcated in the public schools. And both books are studies of politics, τὰ πολιτικὰ, in the original and proper sense of that word, not as it is used in our great ochlocracy in reference to the periodic popularity-contests between Tweedledum and Tweedledee which many Americans find as exciting as baseball games.

II

ONE EUROPE

There is a modicum of truth in the frowsty verbiage about "One World" that used to excite women's clubs. It has always been obvious that there is only one earth,[1] but although an educated Roman in the first century B.C. could dream of a day when the invincible legions would add even China to the Empire,[2] he could also think of the oecumene, the inhabited part of the globe, as consisting, for all practical purposes, of the Roman Empire and the territories bordering on it. He was secure in the confidence that whatever happened in more distant regions, such as China and India, could have no possible effect on his world, except, perhaps, on the importation of rare luxuries and curiosities.

The technological achievements of our race, which made us masters of the entire globe until we succumbed to a fit of suicidal mania, did produce, around the beginning of the Nineteenth Century, "one world," in the sense that events anywhere on the planet did affect in some way the interests of

1. Since the very foundation of our rational thought is our perception of our place in the universe, it is worthy of note that only in 1978 did it become absolutely certain that the one earth is also unique. Fontenelle's Entretiens sur la pluralité des mondes in 1686 made popular the romantic fancy, which had been entertained speculatively by some Greek philosophers of Antiquity, that there were many planets that were doubtless inhabited by beings like ourselves. With the advance of astronomical knowledge, the possibilities were reduced to two planets in our solar system, Venus and Mars, and it was only when the surfaces of both had been clearly photographed that we knew how terribly alone we are in the universe. Some of our tender-minded contemporaries now console themselves with speculations about hypothetical inhabitants of hypothetical planets that may circle about some stars. Quite aside from the practical considerations that a space-craft, such as landed men on the moon, could not reach the nearest star in less than 700,000 years, this is sheer phantasy. As was concisely stated by the distinguished Australian biologist, Sir John C. Eccles, "there is no evidence that life started more than once" in the entire universe, and "the chances of rational beings existing elsewhere in the universe are so remote as to be out of the question." This fact, as significant in its way as the Copernican revolution, will profoundly affect our whole Weltanschauung in coming decades.

2. E.g., Lucan, I. 19.

the great colonial empires of Britain, France, and Spain and might vitally concern some of the other Aryan nations, such as Germany and the United States. The peoples of other races were merely raw material; they occupied their territories on our sufferance, either because it would not be economically profitable for us to dispossess them or because the reciprocal jealousies of the colonial powers made a war between Aryan nations the price of annexing China or Morocco. And since our race seemed to be healthy, it was only reasonable to foresee that, with our continued progress and expansion, the lower races would, in the course of nature, become extinct.[3]

Until 1914, no fact was more obvious than that the power-structure of the world, after the decline of Spain, depended on the three great nations of Europe, Britain, France, and Germany, with two outlying states, Russia and the United States, available as auxiliaries to one or the other of the three. It is true that beneath this structure there was a disquieting fact: seventy years before, Benjamin D'Israeli had emphatically warned Europeans that race was the basis of civilization, that "there is only one thing that makes a race, and that is blood," that all the nations of Europe were covertly under the control of the Jews, and that the "destructive principle," which was being used stealthily to undermine our civilization, was "developing entirely under the auspices of the Jews."[4] Only a very

3. Charles Darwin to W. Graham, 3 July 1881: "Remember what risk the nations of Europe ran, not so many centuries ago, of being overwhelmed by the Turks, and how ridiculous such an idea now is! The more civilised so-called Caucasian Races have beaten the Turkish hollow in the struggle for existence. Looking to the world at no very distant date, what an endless number of the lower races will have been eliminated by the higher civilised races throughout the world."

4. Conings by (1844) and Endymion (1880) are novels, but, as D'Israeli (who changed his name to Disraeli) explained in a preface to the former, they are political discourses put into the form which "offered the best chance of influencing public opinion." The same views were expressed in many of his speeches, both in and outside of Parliament. Some persons, notably Douglas Reed in his last and posthumous book, The Controversy of Zion (Durban, South Africa, 1978; available from Liberty Bell Publications), believe that D'Israeli, who professed to be a Christian, was sincerely trying to warn his contemporaries in Britain of the menace that would eventually destroy them. Others note that he always received massive support from the Jews in England and elsewhere, and especially from the Rothschilds when he made his dramatic gesture of buying control few members of our race were sufficiently alert to understand what he had told them in the clearest possible terms. And thirty years before 1914, Friedrich Nietzsche had clearly foreseen that Europe faced "a long series of catastrophes" and "wars such as the world has not yet seen," had perceived that our civilization was suffering from a degenerative disease of both intellect and will, and had identified the deadly infection as a superstition that the Jews had devised and disseminated to poison our minds and souls.[5] Only a few men of philosophical intellect understood him. Not only the masses, of whom rational thought for the future is not to be expected, but almost all of the persons who thought of themselves as an aristocracy or a learned elite were sunk in an euphoric complacency, believing in an effortless and automatic "progress" and the Jewish economic system in which money is the only value of human life.

In 1914, our civilization was worm-eaten at the core, but its brightly glittering surface concealed the corruption within from superficial eyes. It was taken for granted that the globe had become one world, the world of which the Aryan nations were the undisputed masters, while all the lesser races already were, or soon would become, merely the subject inhabitants of their

of the Suez Canal and then selling it to Great Britain when the British government could raise the money. He may have told the truth about race as a calculated gambit, feeling certain that the British were too stupid to understand. He was not in any sense a defector from his race, which he described as the true "aristocracy of the world," but he courteously told his British hosts that their race could aspire to equality with his. He thus inspired the absurd myth of "British Israël," the preposterous notion that the British (but not other Aryans) were the Israelites of the "Old Testament" and should reunite with their fellow Jews to rule the world. Even those who believe that D'Israeli assimilated, rather than simulated, British culture have to admit that he, who became the Earl of Beaconsfield in the British (!) peerage and Prime Minister to Queen Victoria, opened the way to power for the most vicious of England's resident enemies. See below, pp 66f., and the analysis of his political activities by Rudolf Craemer, Benjamin Disraeli (Hamburg, 1940).

5. Also sprach Zarathustra was published in 1883-84, and Zur Genealogie der Moral, the most incisive of the later works, appeared in 1887. Note that Nietzsche, like all of his contemporaries, took it for granted that the world belonged to the European race, which was menaced only by the rotting of its own moral fibre, not by external enemies. He was, of course, right at that time. For a suggestive discussion of the folly that led to the suicide of Europe, see the work by Luis Díez del Corral that is available in H.V. Livermore's excellent translation, The Rape of Europe (London, 1959).

colonial possessions. This reasonable conception of the world's unity oddly survived the catastrophies that followed and it conditioned unthinking mentalities to accept the preposterous notions of current propaganda for "One World," which is couched in endless gabble that is designed to conceal the fact that it is to be a globe under the absolute and ruthless dominion of the Jews—a globe on which our race, if not exterminated, will be the most degraded and abject of all.

The apparent unity of the globe when it was under the dominion of our race depended, as must all rule, on military power, but it was so contentedly accepted by the other races in the various colonies because our power was proof of a biological superiority that was evident in the discipline of our troops and the courage, intelligence, and moral integrity of our men.[6] It was therefore a function of a biological unity that was only belatedly perceived by our people, and even then only by the few men who were able and willing to study the hidden foundations on which the imposing structure of power really rested, notably the Comte de Gobineau and Vacher de Lapouge. The reality of race was generally overlooked because men took the innate superiority of Europeans so for granted that they thought it unnecessary to mention it and instead concentrated their attention on the rivalries and antagonisms that divided the great powers of Europe, assuming that a shift in the balance of power in Europe would automatically be a shift in power over the entire globe. Ignoring D'Israeli's blunt statement that "language and religion do not make a race," men generally thought in geographic terms: Europe was a region with odd prolongations to Canada, Australia, the United States, and other lands possessed by a European people.

It is not easy to determine when our people first became aware that Europe was inhabited by men who differed generically from the inhabitants of other parts of the world. The perception seems to have evolved slowly from the effective unity of Europe, created by the preservation of Latin as the common language of educated men, which, in turn, depended on the religious unity of Western Christianity. A very clear statement of it appears in a discourse by Pope Urban II in 1095, reported by William of Malmsbury.[7] Urban regarded the Germanic peoples of France as a "race chosen and loved by God," but he recognized European unity by saying, in substance: "There are three continents, of which we live in what is by far the smallest, while Asia and Africa are inhabited by our enemies. Even the small part of the world that we possess is under attack by our enemies, who now occupy Spain and the Balearic Isles. We must strike back and subdue them before they destroy us." We, in other words, are Christendom, and it is significant that while Urban recognizes the Byzantines as Christians and asserts the propriety of aiding them against the Turks, he does not think of them as European: they are foreigners who fortunately practice what is much the same religion. In short then, Lawrence Brown is right when, in his Might of the West, he defines the West as composed of the descendants of the peoples who were Catholics in the Middle Ages.

6. General Hilton, in his Imperial Obituary (Devon, Britons, 1968), remarks on the very significant fact that during the Pax Britannica an English gentleman, if he ran short of funds anywhere in the world, could borrow money from a native shopkeeper or man of means without difficulty, since there was never doubt about his absolute integrity and hence the certainty of repayment. When he was in Tibet, a region seldom visited by outsiders, the abbot of a Buddhist monastery unhesitatingly lent him 700 rupees—a large sum for the time and place—although his only security was trust in a British gentleman's honor. General Hilton's analysis of the causes of Great Britain's suicide is one of the most important documents of our time.

With negligible exceptions, all the inhabitants of Europe thus defined were Aryans, comprising Nordic, Alpine, and Mediterranean subraces with a slight Dinaric admixture in some places.[8] The leadership throughout Europe (even, e.g., in Italy)

7. William's Gesta regum Anglorum, written before 1120, was edited by William Stubbs (London, 1887-89). My quotation is a condensed paraphrase of the relevant part of Urban's discourse, which was long and dealt with many other matters. Frederic Duncalf, in his part of Volume I of A History of the Crusades (edited by M. W. Baldwin, University of Wisconsin, 1969), observes (p. 220) that William relied on contemporaries who had heard Urban speak, but he oddly omits mention of Urban's appeal to defend Europe against its enemies by taking the offensive; he concentrates on the strictly religious and economic parts of the speeches by which Urban inspired the First Crusade.

8. The clearest and most concise exposition of the basic differences between races and subraces that I have seen is Roger Pearson's booklet Race & Civilisation (London, 1966).

was mostly Nordic. The differences between the subraces, although slight when compared to the great differences that distinguish Aryans from all other races, impeded a consciousness of racial unity at a time when Europe was truly international (and, to be exact, there were no nations in the modern sense, the territories being divided according to the rulers who were sovereign within them). The great contribution of the Church was that it transcended all territorial boundaries and gave all educated men a common language and common culture. They could move freely throughout Europe. William of Occam, the great Nominalist, studied at Oxford, taught in Paris, and spent the later part of his life in Pisa. The abbots of Monte Cassino in its great days came from Germany. One could multiply at great length examples of internationalism within Europe during the Middle Ages.

The Renaissance did not diminish, indeed, it strengthened, the awareness of the spiritual chasm that divided Europe from the rest of the globe. When the Reformation sundered the continent politically, its cultural unity was maintained by the Respublica litterarum, the European community of educated men who rose above the religious fanaticism of the masses and were largely independent of the various ecclesiastical organizations. They shared a culture based on the great Aryan literature and thought of Antiquity. From Spitzbergen to Palermo, every man who could consider himself literate had at least read Vergil, Horace, and Ovid, Cicero, and Livy, and read Homer, Plutarch, Lucian, and the Planudean anthology in Latin translations, if his education had not been sufficient to make him at home in Greek, while men who could claim to be learned had read far more extensively in both of the learned languages. Latin of Classic quality was the language of scholarship and of international communication until it was partly supplanted by French in the Eighteenth Century. Although original writing in Latin, both prose and verse, and translation into Latin from the modern vernaculars gradually but steadily declined thereafter and has all but ceased today, a knowledge of our race's great classics, read in the original texts, was expected of all educated men before the onset of recrudescent barbarism that followed the First World War; and cultured men of our race remained aware of their common bond.

For this bond there has been no real replacement. When Thomas Arnold, in 1830, asserted that a "happy peace" had "taught every civilized country of Europe" that it was "disgraceful" not to be well acquainted with the languages and literatures of all the others, he meant that educated men must acquire (in addition to competence in Latin and Greek) fluency in French, Italian, German, and English; he not only failed to explain why countries in which Spanish, Portuguese, Norwegian, Swedish, Dutch, etc. were spoken were not civilized, but he proposed an educational standard to which few could attain. Today, English or recognizable imitations of it seems to be becoming a universal language, spoken and written not only by our people but also by Asiatics and even some Congoids, thus obfuscating its racial quality, since a Japanese may artificially compose better English than many Germans, who must struggle against the many deceptive similarities between it and their native tongue. In the United States, and to varying degrees in other white nations, literature is no longer taught in any language in the public schools, having been supplanted by contemporary gabble chosen for its virulence as a poison for adolescent minds. The real sciences are not an effective bond since our research and our technology can be successfully imitated and even adopted by Russians, Japanese, Chinese, and Semites, thus producing an illusion of universality that seems to support Jewish propaganda for "One World," in which we are to be but one of the subject races.

After the catastrophe of 1945, our race's fatuity became so great that the bond between once-great Britain and the British overseas in Canada, South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand was progressively broken, and Europe has become a merely geographical term. Politically, Europe has become less than it was in the Middle Ages, for treason and lunacy went so far in 1945 as to deliver a large part of it to its Soviet enemies. But nevertheless, the peoples of what remains of Mediaevel Christendom are perforce bound together by a common interest, whether they know it or not, and, as Yockey demonstrated in both Imperium and The Enemy of Europe, they will ineluctably share a common fate. At the very best, no nation of what remains of the old Europe can hope to escape that future, except that some one nation may be given the privilege that the cannibals accorded to the white captain when they promised to eat him last. One hears that the Irish are particularly encouraged by such a prospect.

That some Europeans are aware of the unity thus forced on them is shown by a few small organizations, such as "Jeune Europe" and Nation Europa, which the Jews still tolerate. The only political expression of this unity is the "Common Market," to which most of the European nations, including Britain, have adhered, but that is obviously a device to frustrate an effective unity by opening all the nations to a deadly influx of their racial enemies in the guise of "workers" or "refugees," while forcing Britain into hostility toward the British in Australia and New Zealand and thus applying to those countries economic pressure to facilitate the work of their own traitors, who yearn to submerge the white population in a flood of their Oriental enemies. It is not by any means a coincidence that the "President" of the "European Parliament" is Simone Veil, a Jewess who was gassed and cremated by the awful Germans, but obviously rose from the dead, as God's Race seems able to do on occasion, and is probably still collecting from the Germans for her temporary decease.

The Enemy of Europe presents us with a double problem. To criticize Yockey's work, we must, naturally, consider the situation in 1949, when he published The Proclamation of London, a small booklet in which he anticipated in print part of what he said more fully in the book which he had already written, although it was not published until 1953.[9] To assess

9. On the circumstances of the publication of The Enemy of Europe, see above, pp. 1f. The Proclamation of London was issued anonymously as a manifesto of the "European Liberation Front," in which Yockey was associated with several patriotic Englishmen, notably Peter Huxley-Blythe, the author of The East Came West (Caldwell, Idaho, 1964), a very important book, which I reviewed in American Opinion, May 1966. What is probably the most trenchant writing attributed to the Liberation Front is a brief article, "The Real Culprit," reprinted in The Liberty Bell, March 1981, pp. 53-56. The anonymous author claims to be over seventy years old; neither the style nor the argument is Yockey's, and the article was obviously written after 1970, i.e., at least nine years after his death and twenty years after the Front founded by Yockey disintegrated for a variety of reasons that must be left to his future biographer. It is clear, however, that the programme of his Liberation Front, set forth on the back cover of the Proclamation, was injudiciously candid and too drastic for the time and place. The integration of Britain into a single sovereign European state was a proposal that startled Britons who remembered that for a time their nation had seemed to stand alone against the continent, and in addition the manifesto called for the "immediate expulsion of all the relevance of his work to our plight today, we must naturally take account of all the misfortunes that have come upon us in the past thirty years.

In 1949, Yockey claimed that "throughout all Europe there is stirring today . . . the Idea of the Imperium of Europe, the permanent and perfect union of the peoples and nations of Europe." There was little or no evidence that such an idea was "stirring" anywhere in Europe when Yockey wrote, but unless he wrote to create what he pretended was already in existence, he did sense the coming of the general sentiment for unity that did emerge a few years later and was, by one of our enemies' standard techniques, captured and aborted in the "Common Market."

In 1949, what was left of shattered Europe was only beginning to recover from trauma. Everywhere there were grim ruins left by the suicidal insanity that had culminated only four years before, and it would be another decade before the most conspicuous scars of the war were effaced or covered up. The moral damage was greater and more lasting. Men were still appalled and benumbed by the frightful demonstration of how thin and fragile was the veneer of Western civilization—by the revelation of what treachery, barbarity, and inhumanity the supposedly Anglo-Saxon nations, Britain and the United States, were capable when they ran amok to please the Jews. There were, to be sure, some highly intelligent men who had been able Jews and other parasitic aliens from the soil of Europe," a demand which it would not have been feasible to carry out at once and startling to a nation that had just ruined itself to punish its racial brethren in Germany for insubordination to God's Race, even though the policy of exporting Jews from Europe was entirely in accord with Zionist propaganda for the establishment of a "Jewish homeland," which many naive persons took seriously. The programme of the Front, furthermore, included some economic demands, especially "the abolition of all unearned income," which (at least in the bald statement) contravened the innate instincts of Aryans, who (when not diseased) insist on a man's right to transmit property to his descendants. That demand, which must have seemed Bolshevik to most Englishmen, was exploited by Jewish propaganda that called Yockey a Communist. The Proclamation states that it was being simultaneously published in German, Spanish, French, Italian, and Flemish, but I have not seen or heard of a copy in any of those languages. When the Proclamation was reprinted by the Nordland Press in 1970, the editor knew of only three surviving copies of the original booklet. It is now available from Liberty Bell Publications.

to observe objectively the Götterdämmerung. Perhaps the most remarkable book that Yockey could have (but, so far as I know, had not) read, since it was published before 1949, was Peter H. Nicoll's Britain's Blunder.[10] It is a book that should encourage everyone who has not despaired of the powers of the Aryan mind, for its author, a singularly courageous Scot, had retained the lucidity and perspicacity of his intellect while living in Britain, where the population had been virtually crazed by the lies injected into their minds for many years by their great War Criminals, in collaboration with the Jews, to pep up the cattle they were stampeding to the slaughter. Although Mr. Nicoll, naturally, did not have access to much information that was then kept secret, he saw the essentials of the disaster with a clarity that still arouses our admiration.

Another judicious observer of the European catastrophe was Prince Sturdza of Romania, who had the great advantage of being able to view events with relative detachment from his post as Ambassador in Berlin. His sagacious analysis of the plight of Europe, La Bête sans nom: enquête sur les responsibilités, written in September 1942, was published in 1944 and, of course, before the terrible conclusion of the Jews' Crusade.[11]

10. Britain's Blunder was published by its author, s.l.&a. [1948] and copies of it have been made extremely rare; it has been recently reprinted, again s.l.&a., and copies are available from various dealers in books that have not been given the Kosher seal of approval. It is a slender volume of 140 pages, which its valiant author later expanded, with the assistance of the distinguished American historian, Harry Elmer Barnes, to a book of about 600 pages. This, however, is available only in a German translation, Englands Krieg gegen Deutschland (Tübingen, 1963). I assume, but do not know, that the Jews still permit the German publisher (Grabert) to sell copies of the book.

11. La Bête sans nom was published at Copenhagen (Les Nouvelles Éditions Diplomatiques) in 1944 under the pseudonym "Charpeleu" and in an edition of 2000 copies. Copies of it have now been made extremely rare. Prince Sturdza, before going to Berlin as Ambassador, had been Foreign Minister of Romania, a small nation that was necessarily a pawn in the great game for world dominion, but one which, it is possible, was the key pawn that determined subsequent moves on the board. He, a most judicious and dispassionate observer, believes that the coup d'état and murders carried out by King Carol and his Jewish leman in 1938 impelled Hitler to negotiate a "non-aggression" treaty with the Soviet as a desperate expedient to avoid the war that the Jews' stooges in Britain and the United States were working so hard to force on Germany. (See Suicide of Europe,

Although Prince Sturdza wrote before the tragic end, a judicious reader could extrapolate from his analysis of the causes and reach, after 1945, essentially the conclusions that its eminent author set forth in print much later in a book which he, who could write a fluid and lucid French, mistakenly wrote in Romanian,[12] and which is now generally available only in an English translation, drastically censored to please the Jews, that was made and published by the Birch business under the title, The Suicide of Europe.[13]

The two books I have mentioned represent the best European thought around 1949, which, needless to say, was confined to a few men of extraordinary lucidity and perspicacity, and certainly did not represent the sentiments of the masses of stunned and befuddled victims of the war, whether in England or anywhere on the continent. What immediately concerns us here is the virtual despair of the authors. Nicoll concluded that "the general consequences of the most lamentable and perhaps the most unnecessary war in modern history" were "the destruction of Europe, the ruin of her greatest nation, the enthronement of brutal tyranny" and the "decadence of Britain as a great power," which had become an American base and would be, "in years to come . . . subjected to the appalling fate to which Hiroshima and Nagasaki were condemned." The

pp. 122-4). Hitler's decision, made on the advice of his General Staff and, no doubt, the infamous traitor, Admiral Canaris, may have been a military blunder, as Prince Sturdza believes; it was certainly a blunder from the standpoint of Hitler's desire to avert a war with England and France, for it made it possible for the Jews to generate "world opinion" that National Socialism and Communism were essentially the same thing, and it is extremely doubtful that the War Criminals could have driven the British and Americans to an attack on Germany without the confusion caused by that spurious "alliance."

12. Rômania şi sfârşitul Europei: amintir din ţara pierdută (Madrid, 1966).

13. Boston (Western Islands), 1968. The translation and publication was subsidized by an American lady, who said she did not know how drastically the text was censored. For a few examples of the censor's alterations, see Warren B. Heath's introduction to the English version of Bacu's The Anti-Humans (Englewood, Colorado, 1971; now available from Liberty Bell Publications).

instigators of the British attack on Germany had effectively "destroyed the classical Christian civilization of all Europe," and while Nicoll does not deny that there may be some hope of a new civilization to replace what was destroyed, he can see only a vague and tenuous hope for a far distant future. Prince Sturdza's conclusions are stated in the title of his later book: the result of Jewish instigation was simply the Suicide of Europe, which, for all practical purposes, became what India was in the Eighteenth Century when Britain and France were contending for mastery: Europe had become a territory on which would be fought battles to determine whose colony it would become. Such hope as Prince Sturdza permitted himself was that the American people might someday have a government that would act in their own interests.

The contrast between these views and the optimism of the Proclamation is obvious, and the expressed confidence in the proximate formation of an European Imperium must have been an example of wishful thinking. In The Enemy of Europe Yockey is much more realistic. He explicitly recognizes (p. 86) that "since Europe has no power, the question ist: How is power to be obtained? " Europe as a whole has only a choice of enemies. Its only chance of regaining power depends on adroit political manoeuvering.

In that sense, the European unity that Yockey recognized is an unalterable fact, whether or not the various European populations know it. It is simply a consequence of the Suicide of Europe and the invention of high-altitude bombers and ballistic missiles. It is a consequence of the British-American innovation of total war against civilian populations. A war, for example, between France and Germany or between Britain and France is now, for all practical purposes, inconceivable, although people talk about an odd anachronism called a 'limited war,' in which both sides agree to use only some of the available weapons and thus, in effect, make the 'war' a kind of sporting contest, a large-scale football game.

Despite much babbling and squawking now fashionable, a 'limited' war can be only border skirmishing or a feint to test an enemy's resolution, a mere preliminary to a real war.[14]

14. It is true that Western nations at one time observed certain moral restraints in war, but since these were repudiated and abrogated by the British and Americans, it is idle to dream of restoring them in the foreseeable future. See F.J.P. Veale, Advance to Barbarism (2d edition, Appleton, Wisconsin, 1953; 3d edition, New York, 1968). (I have not seen the first edition, published in England in 1948; I probably should have mentioned it when I referred to Nicoll's book above.) – I need not remark that the 'limited war' in Vietnam was merely a device to kill white Americans, oppress American taxpayers, and further disgrace the United States. It was not in any sense a real war: the eventual defeat of the Americans was agreed on in advance, though probably not in writing. The importation into the United States of a horde of Mongolian enemies as "refugees" was probably not a part of the original plan and seems to have been added only when opportunity offered to afflict the American boobs yet further.

Given the small extent of their territories and the concentration of their populations, a real war between Britain and France, for example, could be only the equivalent of the situation that was once much debated by theorists of the code of honor, a duel to be fought with pistols at arm's length. At the present time, the only powers that could fight a real war are the United States and the two that it created for the destruction of civilization, Soviet Russia and China.

Yockey, therefore, was right: the nations of Europe can no longer be independent of each other, however unpleasant that fact may be. If either England or France were occupied by a major power, the other would be helpless. And all the nations of Europe, concentrated in a relatively small and densely settled territory between the Soviet and the United States, are equally vulnerable and will necessarily share the same fate. Thus Europe, nolens volens, is a single political entity.

OVERSEAS EUROPE

When Yockey speaks of Europe's colonies, he is thinking of the territories outside Europe inhabited by our race, essentially Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and the United States, of which the latter, in continuing revolt, so to speak, against the mother country, had become its most dangerous enemy. He does not consider separately the future of the others. When Britain attacked Germany in 1939, she was able to count on the whole-hearted support of the English who lived overseas. Everyone knows, of course, that she can no longer do so. If she were attacked today by any nation—the United States, the Soviet, France, Sweden, Ireland—she would find that she had not only kicked South Africa into independence, but has so alienated the three other former dominions that she can hope for no more than a few platitudes in the local newspapers and, if events give an opportunity for them, kindly obituaries. There is no indication that Yockey foresaw this development.

In 1949, Europe still had extensive possessions overseas. The British not only entertained strange illusions about what they called their Commonwealth and the consequences of their folly in forcing "self-government" on their former subjects of other races, but Britain still possessed very extensive territories in Asia and Africa, and even some in the Western Hemisphere, as crown colonies of which she had not yet been stripped by the traitors in her government. France possessed Indo-China until it was taken from her by American treachery[15] and Communist China, which the Americans had created by stabbing their Chinese allies in the back. France considered Algeria a part of "metropolitan" France. In addition to the numerous minor possessions, she owned Madagascar and half of the Dark Continent north of the British Union of South Africa, while the rest of the territories of the savages were divided between Britain, Belgium, Portugal, and Spain, and the colonies that had been taken from Italy were booty that in a sane world Britain and France would have divided between them. And although the United States had set up a kind of vaudeville show called the "United Nations" to disguise a little its subservience to its enemies in the Soviet and further the subjugation of the American people, there was in 1949 no apparent reason why the European nations, which had not yet realized that they had defeated themselves as catastrophically as they defeated Germany in 1945, should not have retained and ruled their colonial empires.

15. The nerve center of Communist agitation among the natives was evidently the American embassy, in which inflammatory bulletins urging the natives to get rid of the nasty white men were printed on the embassy's presses. So far as one can determine from the conflicting reports, the Americans promised military aid to the French, should the Chinese invasion become formidable, and then broke their promise at the last minute when the situation at Dienbienphu became critical, thus producing the delightful massacre of the French troops, which had been hopelessly outnumbered by a fresh invasion from China. Americans who dote on Mongoloids naturally reck nothing of the American lives that were squandered in Vietnam, but they should try to calculate the total of all the precious yellow lives that were lost in Annam, Cochin China ("South Vietnam"), Cambodia, Laos, and Tonkin ("North Vietnam") as a direct result of the American's racial and diplomatic betrayal of the French to promote lovely "anti-colonialism."

It is true that in 1949 our race was already showing alarming symptoms of a kind of epidemic lunacy called "anti-colonialism," which was supposedly derived from the prating of a shyster named Woodrow Wilson, whom the Jews had installed as President of the United States in preparation for the First World War.[16] A bigot who had peddled an ostensibly secular theology under the name of "political science," Wilson, when he used the United States to exacerbate the war in Europe and prevent a reasonable peace, had devised a mysticism called "the self-determination of peoples," which, like "theosophy" and "spiritualism," had a great appeal to minds that had been weakened by Christian superstitions. And, oddly enough, Great Britain, which had the most to lose by self-mortification, was the first Western nation to take a morbid pleasure in harming itself.[17] Incidentally, sentimentalists should note that the

16. On the training of Wilson by the Jews, who boasted that their satrap, Baruch, "leading him like *[sic]*one would a poodle on a string," taught Fido to sit up and bark ideals for political bonbons, see Colonel Curtis B. Dall's F.D.R. (2d ed., Washington, D.C. 1970), especially pp. 134-38. Wilson seems not to have been entirely devoid of conscience, for he is reported to have lamented, "I have ruined my country!" before his mind broke down in 1919, perhaps under the strain of realizing that he, a supreme egotist, had been merely a fantoche in the hands of his masters. His insanity was, of course, concealed from the American boobs, whose government continued to be conducted in his name until 1921. He partly recovered his reason before his death in 1924, but left, so far as is known, no confessions. His election to the presidency in 1912 was, of course, contrived by stimulating the vanity of Theodore Roosevelt and inciting him to form the "Progressive Party" and thus split the Republican vote and punish William Howard Taft for his lack of alacrity in kowtowing to the Jews. As Colonel Dall notes, the Jews laughed over their manipulation of Theodore Roosevelt, their "other candidate" for control of the United States.

17. The psychopathology of masochism would require a separate treatise. Such mental alienation appears in various races, usually as a concomitant of religious mania, but may take a peculiar form in Aryans, beginning with the notion of tapas that appears in India not long after the Aryan conquest and also in the Norse myth of Odin's hanging of himself on the world-tree. The hallucination is, of course, the basis of Christian

Western nations that contracted a kind of contagious epilepsy and had masochistic fits in which they forced "self-determination" on their colonies, invariably inflicted great suffering and enormous loss of life on the subjects whom they "liberated."

In 1949, Great Britain had already begun to destroy herself, and although some mental and moral deficiency in the English must be regarded as the primary cause, it could be argued that the fatal folly was a consequence of the initial blunder that was made when D'Israeli was injected into the British peerage. A Jew named Samuel, who showed his contempt for the English by assuming the illustrious Norman name of Montagu, so enriched himself by his depredations in banking and international finance that his friend, King Edward VII, ennobled him with the good Anglo-Saxon name of Baron Swaythling. (Si quid sentiunt Manes, the ghost of the first King Edward, who had tried to run the Jews out of England in 1290, must have gibbered in fury at the act of his namesake.) The "British" Baron's son became Secretary of State for India in 1917 and worked, sometimes slyly, sometimes almost openly, to undermine British rule in India and to arouse among the natives discontent that could be used as a pretext for further sabotage of the Empire. In collaboration with Viscount Chelmsford, who austerities, appearing in most tales about saints, and particularly conspicuous in Seventeenth-Century Spain, where normally intelligent men had fits in which they lashed their backs with whips weighted with lead until the blood from their excoriated flesh flowed down over their trousers. They imagined that Jesus, if he happened to be watching, would be pleased to see them torture themselves. The same hallucinations are epidemic today in a holy conspiracy called Opus Dei, which was used by "our" C.I.A. to undermine and eventually capture the government of General Franco in Spain, for the members of that Catholic sect regularly torture themselves by wearing sharp-pointed chains next to their flesh and flogging themselves with lead-loaded whips, confident that Jesus will be so pleased that he will assign them specially luxurious quarters in the best apartment house in Heaven and make them members of his own exclusive club. Incredible as it may seem, men who appear outwardly sane secretly indulge in such masochistic perversions. A Catholic Irishman, John Roche, a professor of the History of Science(!) with a doctoral degree from Oxford (!), was bewitched by Opus Dei when he was an undergraduate in an Irish college and acquired an addiction to self-torment that he compared to addiction to narcotics. He did God's Work by torturing himself for fourteen years (and doubtless serving the conspiracy in other ways), and he experienced "withdrawal symptoms" after he came to his senses. See his confession in the Sunday Times (London), 18 January 1981, p. 15. Even now, however, he has not guessed that the godly Opus Dei is partly or entirely financed by the C.I.A.

was closely tied by marriage to the Goldmans and may have had Jewish genes himself, and who became Viceroy of India in 1916, "Montagu" prepared in the name of the King's government an official and astounding report on India—astounding because its authors were not attainted for high treason. The crucial section of the long and rambling document is cited by General Hilton in his Imperial Obituary. The report bewailed the deplorable fact that 95% of all the peoples of India were happily content under British rule and hoped for its continuance. It was therefore England's duty, the titled saboteurs said, to "bring about the most radical revolution" in India to enable the 5% of malcontents to terrorize and suppress the "pathetically contented" 95% and thus prepare India for "nationhood," i.e., for perpetual rioting, the venomous racial animosities that always accompany multi-racial societies that are not under foreign rule, large-scale massacres, savage atrocities, and contemptuous hatred of white men.

The work of dismembering the British Empire was carried on by a Jew residing in England, Rufus Isaacs, who was rewarded for his involvement in the malodorous Marconi scandal[18] by being successively created Baron, Viscount, Earl, and finally Marquess of Reading, Lord Chief Justice (!) of England, and Viceroy of India, where he made a feint of maintaining British rule while sapping its foundations.[19] His fellow tribesmen ran

18. A typical financial operation carried out by artfully depressing the value of Marconi stock in both England and the United States to induce its owners to sell for a fraction of its worth and then artfully inflating its value to sell it to the public for more than it was worth. It involved the bribery of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, an unprincipled opportunist named Lloyd George, by the common device of "selling" him at depressed prices stock for which he would not be expected to pay until it greatly increased in value (it soared suddenly to twelve times its former price). English newspapers that were still in English hands sometimes caricatured Lloyd George as a little boy travelling under the escort of his two Jewish tutors, Isaacs and Samuel.

19. See the inadvertent admissions in the laudatory biography by H. Montgomery Hyde, Lord Reading (London, 1967), Chapter 8. For example, he censured and forced the resignation of General Dyer for having restored order in Amritsar after a mob killed five Englishmen, beat an Englishwoman almost to death, looted banks, and otherwise exhibited their idealistic aspirations. The fact that General Dyer had been publicly thanked by the decent Sikhs, who bestowed on him the highest honor in their power, merely proved the need for the "radical revolution" that interference for him in England by a standard ploy, using their increasing control of the English press to publicize shrill protests that he was "brutally" failing to truckle sufficiently to the "aspirations" of babbling babus, whose minds had been stuffed with "democratic" verbiage in British schools. And so, in 1947, the British ignominiously retreated from their largest colonial possession, and the Hindus and Moslems promptly began to massacre each other on a scale that brought joy to the hearts of the apostles of "self-determination." And the "Republic of India" and Pakistan were created as enemies of our race and civilization.

Yockey certainly understood that the "successful Indian Mutiny in 1947," as he called it in the Proclamation, was a consequence of the First World War, which was itself suicidal and an effect of the "Culture-disease" spread by the Jews, but he does not remark on the curious circumstance that the British retreat from India had been conducted, not by Englishmen, but by aliens with British titles. He comments on the fatal decadence of the British aristocracy and upper class,[20] which he attributed correctly to a spiritual decay, but, perhaps in keeping with the racial theory we noticed above, he does not ask the drastic and fearful question, How British are the would teach them "nationhood" and perpetual violence. Another trick was a loud campaign to end "racial discrimination," an infallible means of stirring up trouble and inciting other races to hate ours.

20. General Hilton (op. cit.), writing from an entirely different standpoint, also attributes some part of the responsibility for the loss of the Empire to the dilution and demoralization of the upper classes by "democracy" and Jewish ethics. The subject races respected gentlemen (cf. note 6 above), but not the bounders who gradually replaced them in an age in which a Lloyd George could become the King's Prime Minister and harbor several Jews in his Cabinet. The General could have mentioned the most flagrant instance of which I have heard. Around 1925, a certain Charles Arthur, who probably could not have attained a commission in the army before 1914 and certainly could not have held it long, was a Captain in His Majesty's Army and was appointed by His Majesty's Government Aide-de-Camp to Prince Hari Singh, son and heir presumptive of the Maharaja of Kashmir. The up-to-date young captain enlisted several accomplices and worked the old badger-game on the naïf young prince, whom they successfully blackmailed for the astonishing sum of 125,000 pounds sterling. Their enterprise would have remained unknown, had not Captain Arthur and one or more of his accomplices forged an endorsement on a cheque to cheat the "outraged husband" of his share of the loot.

British? It is a crucial question that admits of no precise answer, and discussion of it would require an inordinately long excursus. (Cf. note 27 below.)

THE HEARTLAND

For Yockey, both kinds of colonies have only a secondary importance. The attitudes and cultural vitality of Europeans who have established themselves in other continents are determined by the power and vitality of their mother country. European dominion over other races is merely an epiphenomenon, a measure of a European nation's power, a salutary reminder that, as he tells us, power can be maintained only by increasing it.

We return, therefore, to the fundamental fact that new weapons have imposed on Europe a necessary unity. He is aware, of course, of the impediments to such a union: the ethnic differences that seem small only when our race is compared to other races; the corresponding differences in traditions and temperament, producing what Jacques Rivière described as discordant nervous rhythms; and the diversity of languages, perhaps the most troublesome barrier of all and one that grows higher, as the major languages deteriorate with the decline of education in the several countries. So great are the differences within Europe that the eminent historian, Geoffrey Barraclough,[21] denies that "European unity" ever existed in the past or the present, rejects all claims for a "common western European tradition," and sees no cultural force that can create "bonds (or potential bonds) of unity between England and France (for example) or France and Spain." Very well, but later in his book he foresees that in the future "the war of 1939-45 will appear . . . as the decisive conflict in which Europe, committing suicide, surrendered mastery to the coloured peoples." So, in the end, he sees, as does Yockey, a unity imposed on Europe by a common destiny, by the natural and implacable hatred that the other races feel for our own—races that both the Soviet and the United States, in an effective partnership, are inciting and arming against our homeland.

21. Geoffrey Barraclough, History in a Changing World (Oxford, 1955), pp. 43, 183.

Yockey urged Europeans to consider the grim realities of the plight they brought upon themselves by their insane and suicidal war for the Jews. He told them bluntly that they must not permit themselves to be narcotized by the endless drivel about "peaceful solutions," "world peace," "one world," and the rest of the gabble to which weak minds are addicted as to opium or cocaine. If they are to have a future, they must deal with both the aliens that drove them to suicide and their own tares, which he, using a German idiom, calls the "Michael stratum."

It is a regrettable but undeniable fact that the great mass of the population is interested only in present comfort and gross satisfactions; unwilling to take thought for their class, their nation, or their race and incapable of taking such thought anyway; materialists in Yockey's sense of that word (which has nothing to do with philosophical thought, from which they would instinctively flee as owls from the light) and craving only animal satisfactions, although they frequently have fits of religiosity or hypocritically affect a concern for their "fellow man," if such concern is in vogue and profitable. They are proletarians, regardless of income; they are by nature Untermenschen, the more pernicious the greater their incomes or the higher the positions to which they have climbed in a governmental or industrial bureaucracy. Theirs is the ochlocracy for which the United States made the world safe, while making the world unsafe for civilization. They are, however, a necessary part—a very large part—of every population, and the first task of a statesman is to control that mass in the interest of a civilization it cannot understand.

Yockey reminded Europeans that the only political reality is power, military power, not the twittering of idealists and "Liberals" as they hop from perch to perch on a tree of which they cannot see the roots or understand the life. And he suggested the means whereby Europe might regain at least some of the power that it had insanely thrown away to please its enemies.

THE NUTCRACKER

Yockey saw Europe as lying, temporarily helpless, between two overwhelmingly powerful antagonists, so that the only choice left to it was a choice between its two enemies, which were fortunately enemies of each other. His thesis depended, therefore, on his belief that the Soviet Empire and the United States were irreconcilable forces. And since the United States was obviously an instrumentality of the Jews, that meant that the Jews had lost control of Russia. Yockey thus proposed a solution to a problem that has been earnestly, sometimes furiously, and in the end inconclusively debated ever since, so that it remains the most urgent problem that is immediately before us. On the truth or falsity of Yockey's solution will depend our foreseeable future.

We are confronted by a total lack of trustworthy data. All of our information concerning conditions inside Russia comes from either Soviet or Jewish sources and is therefore mendacious except insofar as it may, through inadvertence or coincidence, contain some elements of fact. Russia—I speak of Russia because the rest of the vast Soviet Empire is merely its appanage—is, on even the most hopeful assumption, in the hands of men who have mastered the techniques of misinformation and disinformation, and who have virtually absolute and total control over all significant news concerning events in their empire, except what may come through Jewish sources. To be sure, a considerable number of men have defected from the Soviet and found asylum in Western nations, but for each of them we must first try to determine whether or not he is, as some of them undoubtedly are, a Soviet or Jewish agent, sent to increase our perplexity and confusion by providing a superficially different variety of misinformation and disinformation. If we have satisfied ourselves of his bona fides, we have the even more difficult problem of determining whether his reports are misleading because his knowledge of the facts is limited and inadequate, or because he has made his report serve his own resentments or ambitions, or because he conceals some part of the truth to avoid offending the Jews or a corrupt and perfidious government that could at any time return him to Soviet territory and a terrible death.

Our dilemma may be illustrated by a trivial bit of news from Russia, chosen at random. The press recently reported that Brezhnev was being treated by a wonderful "psychic healer," whose photograph shows her to be a not unattractive young woman, white but certainly not Aryan. She is said to have a luxurious apartment in Moscow, complete with servants, to travel in a limousine, complete with chauffeur, and to dress expensively and elegantly.

Our press is apt to be truthful in reporting trivial matters, if one allows for the journalists' normal sensationalism. If the "psychic healer" were said to be ministering to a British Prime Minister or an American President, we would suppose that he either

(1) was in fact suffering from some psychosomatic malady, or

(2) had found a neat way to maintain a mistress in style.

But the news is about the Soviet President and came through a censorship that is vigilant about even trivialities. So we have to consider other possible explanations:

(3) Brezhnev has become senile and feeble-minded, and the rulers of the Soviet are preparing us for his replacement.

(4) Brezhnev's sickness is political, and we are being prepared for his removal by sudden death or forced retirement into obscurity.

(5) The mention of Brezhnev is merely a trick to secure wide publicity for a story concocted by Russian experts in psychological warfare to further the epidemic of superstition and irrationality that is reducing the American masses to imbecility and thus hastening the national paralysis. This interpretation is supported by the inclusion in the story of a statement from a Russian physician, who certifies the miraculous cures accomplished by the witch's "laying on of hands." The story therefore fits neatly into the long series of stories that have been coming out of the Soviet in recent years to make credulous persons believe that Russian "scientists" are making wonderful discoveries about "extrasensory perception," "telepathy," "psi-power," and other occult hocus-pocus.

(6) The story was manufactured by the Jews for the same purpose. As everyone knows, their press and boob-tubes in the United States are making a concerted effort to induce hallucinations in the masses by lustily advertising the charlatans, thaumaturges, astrologers, "psychics," evangelists, and other swindlers who are so lucratively preying on the ignorant and simple-minded.

(7) There is the last possibility that this and other hokum about "psychic" marvels in Russia, instead of being acts of psychological warfare, more or less accurately reflect a wave of occult superstition in the Soviet that is tolerated either because (a) the rulers think it provides harmless amusement for the masses, or (b) the régime is actually disintegrating and cannot shore up the official Marxian religion. The latter hypothesis will please those who wish to attribute recent disorders in Poland to Russian weakness, and the perennial hopefuls who never tire of assuring us that there is a craving for "freedom" in Russia and that a proletarian revolution there is sure to break out any moment since 1947.

The story about the "psychic healer" is, of course, too trivial to be of interest other than as an example of the kind of questions that we must ask ourselves about every bit of seemingly significant news that comes out of Russia, a territory that is enclosed by a censorship as efficient as the famous border that prevents unauthorized escapes from Soviet territory. No one can be really certain of what goes on behind that barrier. The most brazen lying is commonplace even when there is no official censorship. There is no greater intercourse between two nations than that between Britain and the United States, and thousands of Britons are visiting or travelling in this country at any given time. But nevertheless one of the leading newspapers in London, The Observer, on 8 March 1981 carried a scare-head in large type: "Shadow of Terror Falls on U.S. Jews," and feeble-minded Englishmen were invited to believe that all of the millions of God's Race in this country were cowering in dread of the moment when the American "Nazis" will start popping them into gas chambers and reducing them to holy ashes.

We have been assured so many times that the Jews were losing or had lost control of Russia and the Soviet! The first wave of such hopeful thinking came when Bronstein, alias Trotsky, scuttled out of Russia, having purportedly lost a power-struggle with Dzhugashvili, alias Stalin. One consequence was that the misfits, crackpots, overgrown infants, and mattoids that formed the Communist Parties in civilized countries split into "Trotskyites" and "Stalinists," who quarrelled as furiously as did the Christian Homoousians and Homoeousians. The net result, however, was to accelerate and amplify the diffusion of Communist propaganda, and in the late 1930s the weekly periodical, Time, which was then still largely in American hands, suggested that Bronstein and Dzhugashvili were really coöperating in staging a performance for the suckers. The subsequent murder of Bronstein in Mexico proves nothing, for by that time (1940) he had become an embarrassment and impediment to "Stalin," who needed to reunite his stooges and dupes in the United States in preparation for the day when the American cattle would be stampeded into Europe. The view expressed by Time is not widely held now, but it has never been conclusively refuted.

After Trotsky's exodus from the new Holy Land in 1929, the next onset of propaganda that the Jews were losing control of their Soviet colony came with the "purge trials" of 1936-37, in which a passel of "Old Bolsheviks," most of them Jews, were spectacularly prosecuted and liquidated by Stalin's subordinates, most of them Jews. The trials were a shock to Westerners who naïvely believed no hair on the head of a Jew could be harmed in a country controlled by his fellow tribesmen, forgetting how savagely Jews slew one another in struggles for power within their race, e.g., when Jesus and Onias slugged it out for the office of High Priest in 170-169 B.C., or the otherwise unrecorded occasion around A.D. 30 that provided the corpses which proved to horrified archaeologists that Jewish ingenuity had found a way to increase even the torments of crucifixion for fellow Jews who were mutinous. No one yet has convincingly explained why Stalin preferred to stage a grandiose show for the civilized world instead of having the selected "Old Bolsheviks" quietly disposed of in convenient lime-pits.

Yockey, however, was convinced by a smaller show in Prague and, as he tells at the beginning of The Enemy of Europe, he revised its text in 1952 to take into account an event that he had foreseen in 1948. He discussed it in greater detail in an essay, "What is Behind the Hanging of the Eleven Jews in Prague? " It was clearly written for publication by his European Liberation Front, but, so far as I know, never printed.[22]

Yockey marshals his arguments effectively. When Stalin joined the Jewish Crusade Against Europe, he appealed to Russian nationalism and patriotism to encourage his armies and peoples. That is one of the few verifiable facts before us, but we remember that our great War Criminal used American patriotism to pep up the livestock that he was sending to Europe to slaughter and be slaughtered for Yahweh's Master Race. For that matter, the cannon-fodder were told that wicked Hitler planned to invade the United States, and there were nincompoops so ignorant of military and naval logistics that they believed it. On the other hand, it was Germany's purpose to destroy the Soviet, so there was a genuine basis for Stalin's appeal to his subjects.

22. It may have appeared in the short-lived periodical, The Front-fighter, of which I have seen only one number. I have photostats of a typewritten copy. It is reproduced in Appendix II below.

It is undoubtedly true that the Slavs feel a deep racial antipathy to the Jews and would gladly purge their territory of them. The question, however, is whether they are or will become sufficiently intelligent and strong to indulge that desire in defiance of the rest of the world, whom the Jews would infallibly incite against them.

It is probably true that the Jews planned to obtain a monopoly of atomic weapons by having them made the exclusive property of the silly vaudeville show in New York City called the "United Nations," which was simply a flimsy screen for their age-old dream of "One World" under their rule.[23] If so, Russia's insistence on using American and British knowledge to equip herself with the feared weapons disappointed them. To that extent, at least, Stalin acted as a Russian Czar, not as a stooge for the Jews.

Yockey believed that the "cold war," proclaimed by the Jews' half-English stooge, Churchill, on a visit to the United States, was really an attempt by the Jews to encircle Russia, rather than a convenient pretext to get more Americans killed, in Korea and elsewhere, and to pump more blood out of the veins of American taxpayers to flush down sewers in Asia and to subsidize, under the guise of "foreign aid," the Communist conquest of one nation after another. It must be remembered that at the time Yockey wrote, the rodomontade manufactured in Washington sounded more convincing than it does now in retrospect, and that the "cold war" did excite intelligent Americans with a hope that they could force their government to action in conformity with its endless jabbering about "saving the Free World."

23. It would seem that the Jews lost interest in the farce, which now serves to provide, at the expense of American taxpayers, a luxurious life in New Jerusalem-on-the-Hudson for diplomatic riff-raff and savages, whose endless jabbering is as significant as that which may be heard at the monkey house in Bronx Park. Muzzy-headed American women still fancy that the babble has meaning, but the Jews are too intelligent to pay attention to it and probably do not even laugh when some idler calls for a "resolution" against their world-capital in Palestine.

Yockey also took seriously the Yiddish yelping about "anti-Semitism" in Russia, which may have been no more than a ploy to deaden the hostility toward Russia felt by Americans who still hoped that their nation would someday act in its own interests. It must not be forgotten that the Americans who were most hostile to the Soviet were precisely the ones who would be mollified by reports that the Russians were shaking off their Jewish masters. [24]

Yockey also noticed that in the United States a pair of Jews, the Rosenbergs, were falsely accused of treason (for they had been strictly loyal to their race) and thrown to the wolves—to appease the Americans who resented the betrayal of their own country by Roosevelt and his successors, and also to facilitate the escape of other spies and saboteurs who had been caught in the act.

Yockey therefore concluded that the "treason trials in Bohemia" were "an unmistakable turning point" and, despite the official piffle in both Russian and Jewish sources, marked an "undeniable reshaping of the world-situation." The fact that "the Russian leadership is killing Jews for treason to Russia" was nothing less than "a war-declaration by Russia on the Jewish-American leadership." Stalin, who, Yockey recognizes, "had been pro-Jewish in his inner- and outer-policy" for thirty-five years, had at last taken the part of Russia against international Jewry, who had to abandon their hopes that they could "replace the Stalin régime." Yockey could not foresee that Stalin would die a year later in circumstances that gave rise to rumors that the Jews had at last succeeded in poisoning him.

24. A good example is Commander S. M. Riis, a veteran of Naval Intelligence, who was stationed in Russia at the time of the Jewish take-over of that country in 1917-18. In his old age, he succeeded in boarding the ship that had brought Kruschchev to the United States; he conversed with agents of the N.K.V.D. disguised as simple Russian sailors and was assured that Kruschchev was a "real Russian" who was kicking out the alien invaders. Believing that the Jews had at last lost control, he was greatly encouraged. See his Karl Marx, Master of Deceit (New York, Speller, 1962).

To the end of his life, Yockey remained convinced that a war between the Jews' United States and the Soviet was inevitable. That conviction was the basis of his last essay, written shortly before his death in 1960. Its cover is reproduced here on the following page.

I do not know whether Yockey saw and approved the vividly symbolical painting, in the manner of Salvador Dali, that is reproduced on that cover or the date that is set beneath it. If he did set the date, 1975, he was in good company, as I shall remark later.

The World in Flames is a concise and lucidly logical conspectus of the situation in 1960, cogent if one accepts the premise that the Russians had liberated themselves from the Jews. On that assumption, the relentless expansion of Soviet power and the establishment of a Soviet outpost in Cuba, at the very doors of the United States, represented a series of defeats for the international race.

Yockey's analysis of the military situation is still valid. The Americans, if they are driven to fight the Soviet, will rely on ballistic missiles, but cannot win a war, since, even if they had an effective army, it could not mount an invasion of Soviet territory with the enormous number of ground troops necessary to occupy it, and Europeans cannot be induced to fight again for the American-Jewish symbiosis. Russia will use ballistic missiles, but cannot win the war by occupying the United States, since the logistic problem of transporting armies across the Atlantic or Pacific is one she cannot solve.

American missiles can inflict a certain amount of damage on a few cities, etc., but Russia is relatively invulnerable to such attacks because she is not really urbanized, her important installations are scattered throughout her vast territory, and her essentially agrarian people have the high morale of imperialism and will not be dismayed by such destruction and losses as it may be possible to inflict on them. Russian missiles, produced by German scientists and technicians and therefore more accurate and effective, will be directed at American cities, the destruction of which will not only paralyze the nation militarily, but will dismay a population already demoralized by peace-lubbers, fatuous females, and youth made derelict and cowardly by the rotting of our culture. The blasting of a few cities will make the panic-stricken rabble eager to surrender. (Yockey probably did not know that Washington was even then making studies of "strategic surrender" in the event of hostilities.)

When the United States surrenders, as it must and will, the situation will be drastically changed. Yockey notes that the British, a relatively civilized people much given to prating about their moral superiority and to the vapid idealism of humanitarians, having obtained the support of Americans crazed by a holy war, induced the Germans to surrender in November 1918, and then, by an act of unprecedented treachery, blockaded the helpless Germans for the express purpose of killing civilians, and did in fact starve to death a million Germans before lifting the blockade in July 1919. Now the Russians are barbarians and have never talked nonsense about the "sanctity of human life" and similar vaporings of sentimentalists. Their leaders, furthermore, are realists and have never shown the slightest inclination to imagine that treaties are more than pieces of soiled paper. Even if the United States does not surrender unconditionally (that would be poetic justice!), the Russians will not be obligated by such terms as they may have granted on paper to spare themselves unnecessary effort. In all probability, therefore, they will proceed, after the surrender, to annihilate forever the United States as a possible source of future trouble. They will, of course, immediately destroy all of the country's remaining industrial capacity. What is uncertain is whether they will elect (a) to occupy the territory with troops, reduce its population by starvation or shooting them as may seem the more entertaining, and spare the rest for use as serfs, at least until the land can be colonized by Russians, a virile and growing people; or (b) to reduce the territory to a lifeless and uninhabitable desert.

Yockey, writing in 1960, believed that the inevitable war might be precipitated at any time and would certainly begin no later than 1975, the date given on the cover of his booklet. He obviously miscalculated, but so did men with access to the secret information accumulated by what was left of American Intelligence services. It was also in 1960 that an American Colonel in Military Intelligence, who had extensive experience during the Korean "War" and had maintained, after his retirement, close connections with the C.I.A., privately assured me that the war was inevitable, that the United States would be quickly vanquished, and that the country would be occupied by Russian troops, who would systematically exterminate all Americans suspected of intelligence and self-respect. That, he was certain, would happen by 1970 at the latest. His calculations thus allowed a shorter term than Yockey's, whose major thesis he did not accept. He believed that when the Russians invaded this country, the Jews would joyously coöperate with them, as they had done everywhere in Europe. He also believed that the Russians would therefore minimize damage to New York City and other Jewish enclaves in the United States.

Other miscalculations, made at the time by men whose experience and knowledge qualified them to judge, gave approximately the same result, with only a difference of a few years in the terminal date. It would take many pages to recapitulate the evidence and logical deductions on which the various estimates were based, and many more to inquire why the expected war did not occur. It will suffice to have made it clear that Yockey, an observer without access to secret information, was no more in error than experienced men who had the great advantage of knowing facts that were concealed from the public.

THE PARADOX

Yockey was aware of the major objection to his analysis: If the Jews had lost control of Russia, how did it happen that the United States, which saved the Soviet in 1941-45,[25] continued to facilitate the expansion of Russian power? I cannot do better than quote his answer:

25. In his essay on the hanging of the eleven Jews in Prague, Yockey mentioned a small part of what America, at the behest of its Jewish masters, gave to the Soviet: 14,795 airplanes, 375,883 trucks, and 7,056 tanks. He seems not to have known that the Soviet was also supplied with both the technical information and the materials necessary for the manufacture of atomic bombs. In The World in Flames, he does comment on the thoroughness and ubiquity of Soviet espionage in the United States, in contrast to the nugatory efforts of American Intelligence to penetrate Russia, but he seems not to have asked himself to what extent Soviet espionage depended on Jews in its service and on coöperation with the Jewish espionage system, admittedly by far the best in the world.

> Russian "successes"—except for its German-made rockets—are all the gift of the Washington régime. Jewish-American political stupidity is invincible. But the power-gifts which the Washington régime has made to Russia are not explicable entirely by simple stupidity, simple incapacity. There is the further factor at work that the Zionist Washington régime is on both sides of most power-questions in the world. Its sole firm stand is its fundamental anti-German position: Germany must be destroyed, its young men must be slaughtered. In Algeria, Washington is with both sides: it is with the French Government, as its "ally": it is with the rebels by virtue of its world-program of "freedom" for everybody. In Egypt, the Washington régime told Palestine, England and France to attack, and when Russia rose, it told them to stop. It was, within a week, anti-Nasser and pro-Nasser. It occupied Lebanon, then evacuated it. It held back Chiang when, from his island, he would have attacked China, with whom the Washington régime was then at war. It defended South Korea, but helped the Chinese maintain their supply line to the front. During the Chinese War in Korea, it made war and negotiated peace at the same time, for years. In Cuba, it forbade the exportation of arms to the loyal Batista and thus helped Fidel Castro; now it is committed to the overthrow of Castro.
>
> It is a psychological riddle, decipherable only thus: the Zionists have two minds, which function independently. As Jews, they are committed to the destruction of Western Civilization, and in this they sympathize with Russia, with China, with Japan, with the Arabs, and as such they anathematize Germany, which is the mind and heart of the Western Civilization. As custodians of the United States, they must half-heartedly retain at least the technical and political domination of that Civilization even while destroying its soul and meaning. In a word, they are working simultaneously for and against the Western Civilization. Quite obviously, they are thus doing more damage than conferring benefit. . . . .
>
> Thus the newspaper tag of "East versus West" is meaningless. It is East versus East, with the West supplying the lives and treasure for destruction.

The foregoing analysis is, of course, open to question. Was there ever any change in the policy actually pursued by the government in Washington, as distinct from blatting by Presidents and the like to keep the boobs confused? Was not that policy consistently and uniformly directed to ensuring the maximum disgrace and loss to the Americans and to making them take slow and unperceived steps toward their eventual liquidation? The commitment "to the overthrow of Castro" of which Yockey speaks was, of course, just a spoonful of paregoric for the grown-up moppets. Most recently, as everyone knows, the United States delivered to Castro another possession, Nicaragua.

Yockey's attribution of schizophrenia to the Jews is, of course, subject to the basic consideration that we can never understand their mentality: we can only observe the actions of a race generically different from our own and accumulate data which will enable us to say, statistically, that in a given situation the racial collectivity will react in a specific way. It is always hazardous and usually or invariably wrong to describe their conduct or motives in terms of our psychology and morality. What would be schizophrenia in an Aryan or group of Aryans, for example, is such by contrast with the normal mentality of our race. If it is characteristic of another race, it cannot be anomaly in that race, and what seems abnormal to us must be normal in it. Yockey, however, is right in that those who believe that the Jews no longer control Russia must postulate that their racial mentality functions in a way that is incomprehensible in terms of our standards of rationality.

By far the most thorough, objective, and cogent presentation of the case for the view that the Russians have attained at least a measure of independence is found in Wilmot Robertson's The Dispossessed Majority and its pendant, Ventilations. [26] He has assembled all the usual data, and almost every datum is open to doubt. Statistics and statements from Russian and Jewish sources represent what their authors thought it expedient for us to believe at the given time, and the Jews notoriously conceal, so far as possible, their actual numbers in each country they have infiltrated. When we are told, for example, that the percentage of Jewish deputies in the Supreme Soviet dropped from 41.1% to 0.25% between 1939 and 1958, we wonder whether the source is Russian or Jewish; if it is an estimate made by a European, it must be largely based on personal names, and the ingenuity of Jews in masquerading under native names and otherwise concealing their race is notorious, and we have the further and insoluble question of the genetic effects of a tincture of Jewish blood in any individual's ancestry. [27] Furthermore, if the persons holding office are demonstrably non-Jewish, they may nevertheless be mere puppets manipulated from behind the scenes by Jews through wives, financial of political pressure, or deeply implanted superstitions.

26. The Dispossessed Majority (Cape Canaveral, Florida, 1972), pp. 451-465, cf. pp. 346-353. Ventilations (ibidem, 1973), pp. 9-17. The publisher, Howard Allen Enterprises, announces that completely revised editions, printed from newly set type, of both books will be published in the autumn of 1981.

27. See above, p. 27, note 30. If Dr. Nossig is right about the genetic peculiarity of his race, that opens possibilities far more drastic and terrible than any thus far glimpsed or imagined by even the most vehement anti-Jewish writers. With the exception of a few noble families that have kept archives—it is said that there are in Britain two families that can trace their ancestry back to 1066 with certainty—the genealogical records of most individuals, even those who have attained some prominence, seldom go back more than a very few generations without the help of fantasy, and they quickly reach the point at which ancestors, especially females, are mere names. The names of Jews fall into three categories, viz.: (1) authentically Jewish names, e.g., Isaac, Jesus, Nathan; (2) Western names that have become distinctively Jewish, e.g., Rosenthal, Finkelstein, Oppenheimer; and (3) distinctively Aryan names assumed to conceal the individual's race, e.g., Montagu, Stewart, Brown. Resort to such disguises is an inveterate Jewish habit, probably dating from the time at which the race first developed its techniques for penetrating nations of goyim. And usually when the bearers of such names are not our contemporaries, the deceit can be detected only through the indiscretion of the Jews themselves. For example, the exemplary myth of Esther in its fuller text, preserved in the Septuagint, is warranted "authentic" (!) by pious Jews, and the names given are Dositheos, who is identified as a Jewish priest and Levite, his son, Ptolemaios (= Ptolemy), and the latter's son, Lysimachos. All are good Greek names; the first, we happen to know, was frequently assumed by Jews and so might suggest some suspicions; the second is, of course, the name of the famous Macedonian dynasty; and the third is the honored name of a number of distinguished Greeks. If we saw the names out of the context, we should never doubt but that Ptolemy and Lysimachus were of pure Greek ancestry and, of course, Aryans.

The cumulative effect of the data taken together is impressive, but it seems to us inconceivable that the Jews, having taken over the whole government of Russia in their Bolshevik revolution[28] and always conscious of their secret and vigilant antagonism toward the races that show a tendency to be less than perfectly docile, could ever have permitted themselves to lose a mastery attained with such long and persistent labor and intrigue. (Note that we instinctively credit the Jews as a race with an order of intelligence higher than that of Aryans, and think them exempt from the fatuity that led our race to throw away its power and revel in its own degradation and impotence.) The only plausible explanation is Robertson's.

This explanation rests on two premises:

(1) The Jews have a racial genius for infiltration, subversion, revolution, and destruction.

(2) Their race is devoid of ability to organize and direct a viable society, whatever its type and whatever the political theory on which it is based. Having created chaos, the Jews can themselves survive in it only by enlisting the managerial talent of another race, commonly selecting administrators from the surviving (lower class) population of the nation they have just

28. Aryan observers who were on the scene in Russia at the time of the Bolshevik take-over assure us that fully 85% of the Bolsheviks in positions of authority were Jews, and we know that the most important of them were sent into Russia from Switzerland by the stupid Germans (who were resorting to what could be described as a species of germ-warfare, probably at the suggestion of Jews high in Kaiser Wilhelm's government) and by Woodrow Wilson, who insisted that the British escort to Russia a shipload of venomous vermin from the East Side of New York City. A secret report to the U.S. State Department in 1919 (released from classification as secret in September 1960) lists the thirty foremost Bolshevik leaders, and identifies twenty-nine of them as Jews and one as a "Russian." That one "Russian" exception was Ulyanov, alias Lenin, who, as is universally admitted, was a mongrel of mixed Jewish and Tatar (Turko-Mongolian) ancestry and without a drop of Russian blood. It is nugatory to inquire anxiously about details and to wonder, for example, whether the real name of "Zinoviev" was Apfelbaum. It would not really matter if all the official heads had been Russians, for credit for the operation must go to its architects. St. Paul's in London is the work of Sir Christopher Wren and the mansion that now houses the Thomas Publishing Co. in Springfield, Illinois, is the work of Frank Lloyd Wright. The identity and race of the stone masons who worked on the former, and of the bricklayers who worked on the latter structure is irrelevant, as is the race of their various foremen.

destroyed.

The first of these propositions is beyond question. It is verified by all history, for no nation deeply penetrated by Jews has long survived. It corresponds, furthermore, to their racial psyche, as frankly stated by some highly intelligent and remarkably candid members of the race, as, for example, by Samuel Roth in Jews Must Live[29] and by the eminent Maurice Samuel,[30] in his oft-quoted avowal:

> We Jews, the destroyers, will remain the destroyers for ever. Nothing that you will do will meet our needs and

29. Roth's Jews Must Live (New York, Golden Hind Press, 1934) has—for obvious reasons—disappeared from most or all libraries and become extremely rare. It is a book of 319 pages, including the frontispiece, etc.; about half of it was reprinted, Birmingham, Alabama, 1964, and is available from Liberty Bell Publications. Roth's is by far the most complete description of the quotidian behavior of the great mass of ordinary Jews in business and social relations, and we all owe him gratitude for his honesty and admiration for his courage. Relevant here is the reaction of Jews when the lowly Aryans try to have a club or a hotel or a residential district of their own. The Jews yell about "discrimination" and by bluster and, if need be, secret financial pressure, force their way in, but when they have made it squalid and hideous with their vulgarity, they abandon it and flock back to their own colonies, preferably leaving the Aryan owners bankrupt and dispossessed. Such conduct would show malice in an Aryan, but, if we are objective, we must attribute it to the impulsion of a racial instinct that operates as automatically and as subconsciously as an uncorrupted Aryan's instinctive admiration of certain forms of beauty.

There is an interesting analogy in the behavior of the Jews in ancient Alexandria, where a huge swarm of them, estimated at one million, took over a large part of the city and made it their vast and opulent ghetto, into which no Aryan, naturally, wanted to go. Not content with that, they perpetually swarmed through the rest of the city and were moved by their "righteousness" to break up the Greeks' theatrical performances and athletic contests, harassing the goyim until they finally lost patience, whereupon the Jews rushed wailing to the reigning Ptolemy or Roman governor, complaining of "anti-Semitism" and "persecution," and often, through the intrigues and financial power of wealthy and ostensibly civilized Jews, obtaining some punishment of the "intolerant" Greek population. Since the Jews, so far as is known, reaped no profits from these events and some of their rabble were injured or killed in the riots they provoked almost regularly every few years, their harassment of the Aryans must have been instinctive, rather than the result of some conscious plan or conspiracy.

30. See above, p. 45. The reprint is available from Liberty Bell Publications.

demands. We will forever destroy because we need a world of our own.

One could corroborate Samuel's statement by citing hundreds of Jewish writings, ancient and modern. An example from the early years of the Christian Era is one of the great Jewish hoaxes, the forged Sibylline Oracles, [31] which were disseminated (naturally with a forged certification that they were authentically Greek) to demoralize and subvert Graeco-Roman civilization by exciting dismaying apprehensions among the ignorant and credulous. No Aryan, I imagine, can read them without being appalled by the nihilistic lusts and venomous hatred of civilization that inspire them. A recent writer has cited, as an example of the innate nihilism of the Jewish soul, > the Jewish apocalypse that the Fathers of the Church selected for inclusion in their appendix to the "Old Testament." That wild phantasmagoria describes in loving detail all the disasters and torments with which Jesus will afflict and destroy the civilized peoples of the earth when he returns in glory from the clouds with a squad of sadistic angels. One should note the characteristic provision that goyim are not to be merely killed outright: they are to be made to suffer agonies for five months first. But what Lloyd Graham has properly called the "diabolical savagery" of the Jew God is not satisfied with exterminating all the goyim with every kind of torture a lurid imagination could invent. He destroys the land, the mountains, the sea, the whole earth; he destroys the sun and moon; and he rolls up the heavens like a scroll, presumably including even the most remote galaxies . . . . Everything is annihilated. And all for the sake of Jesus's pets, an elite of 144,000 male Jews who despise women. For these, to be sure, he creates a New Jerusalem, in which they will loaf happily for a thousand years. [32]

One can only stand aghast at the ferocity of that lust to annihilate the whole universe!

Robertson's second proposition is less patently true, but it may be significant that in the apocalypse we have just mentioned, when the New Jersusalem is lowered en bloc from the newly-created sky, it is minutely described with what Frank Harris called "the insane Jew greed, which finds a sensual delight in mention of gold and silver, and diamonds and pearls and rubies," but there is no practical provision for the Chosen Few of the Chosen People who are to spend the next thousand years in it. We may assume that they will be miraculously supplied with food and raiment, perhaps by hard-working angels, and can spend part of their time in swilling down food and drink; but the noble males will have no nasty females around, and we can only guess whether they will find succedaneous amusements. For the rest, they evidently will have nothing to occupy their idle hands and vacant minds—for a thousand years! It looks as though the author of the wild hariolation was intent only on the glorious destruction of the whole universe, and gave no thought to organization of the society that was to follow.

Jewish mythology has much to say about kingdoms and an empire of Solomon in the stolen land of Canaan, but archaeological data is too scanty to permit reconstruction of the historical basis for those tales. It is fairly certain, however, that when the wealthy Jews in Babylon betrayed the city to Cyrus the Great, the only non-Jew whom they ever called their christ, they made a deal with him for special privileges in his empire, 31. There are adequate editions, under the title Oracula Sibyllina, by A. Rzach (Vienna, 1891) and J. Geffcken (Leipzig, 1902, reprinted 1967). I have not seen the edition by A. Kurfess, Sibyllinische Weissagungen (München, 1951), which is said to contain a German translation. Some portions of the collection have been translated into English in various discussions of early Christianity, but I know of no complete translation of the long and miscellaneous collection. If there were one, persons whose minds are saturated with apocalyptic nonsense would undoubtedly find in it wonderful "prophecies" of the election of Reagan, the Jews' terrorism in Lebanon, and perhaps the latest increase in postal rates.– A few old Greek reports of oracular statements are inserted here and there in the collection of forgeries to lend an air of authenticity to the hoax, of which the aim was to throw a scare into ignorant and weak-minded goyim, although some items encourage them to hope for a savior of some kind who will make all the earth his kingdom, with brotherhood and oodles of "world peace" for everyone, by teaching the wicked to venerate the living "Sons of the Great God." It is usually difficult to date the various hariolations, but it seems that the earliest forgeries in the collection were perpetrated by Jews in Egypt during the Ptolemaic period: see John J. Collins, The Sibylline Oracles of Egyptian Judaism (Society of Biblical Literature, 1974).

32. Ralph Perier in Liberty Bell, August 1980, p. 20.

for that is securely established by the Elephantine papyri.[33] The privileges seem to have included the establishment of a religious capital in Jerusalem, and a Biblical book called Esdras (Ezra) and Josephus[34] give us a vivid description of the great caravan of rich Jews who set out from Babylon, their chariots loaded with gold and silver, with thousands of their goy slaves trudging along behind, while hundreds of slave musicians went ahead, so that the caravan travelled "to the music of harps and flutes and the clashing of cymbals," while the majority of Jews, who preferred to stay with business in Babylon, rejoiced and made merry. And when the immigrants reached Jerusalem, they began to dispossess the natives and kick them around, and they cunningly made their new Temple a fortress, as Herod was to do much later.

Under Persian protection, the Jews enjoyed autonomy, taxing and oppressing the hapless natives of Palestine (including the Samaritans, the native Jews, who vainly appealed to Persian justice), but when we hear next of them,[35] the high priest, John, murdered Jesus, his brother, right in the inner sancturary of the temple, evidently as part of a civil disturbance so great

33. Edited by A. Cowley, Aramaic Papyri of the Fifth Century B.C. (Oxford, 1923). The Jews of Elephantine, who thought of themselves as perfectly orthodox and seem to have been so regarded by the newly-established Temple in Jerusalem, recognized as the chief of their gods one whom they called YW (probably pronounced Yu', a form that became Ia in the Septuagint) or YWH (thought to have been pronounced Ya'u) and provided him with a female consort, 'NT (probably identical with the Ugaritic–Canaanite goddess 'Anath). In the first century B.C., therefore, the Jews had not yet generally adopted the henotheism which appears in most of the "Old Testament," which they converted into monotheism when they came into contact with Graeco-Roman Stoicism and saw how expedient it would be to kidnap the Stoics' Providence (animus mundi). Of course, the erudite Bezalel Porten, in his Archives from Elephantine (University of California, 1968), labors mightily and learnedly to disclaim the early polytheism of the orthodox Jews, once (p. 175) even going so far as to suggest that the magnanimous Jews subsidized the worship of the gods of Arameans in Elephantine as a "goodwill gesture"!

34. Antiq. Iud., XI.i-v.1-183. There is an excellent edition and translation of this work by H. St.J. Thackery, completed by Ralph Marcus, in the Loeb Library. Needless to say, the decrees of Cyrus and Darius quoted in the Biblical book and (with variations) by Josephus are forgeries.

35. Antiq. Iud., XI,vii,297 sqq.

that the local Persian governor had to intervene to restore order—and he, of course, was cursed for his pains, ostensibly because he wanted to peek into the sanctuary, where the Jews kept something they did not want goyim to see.[36] A spot of murder in the sanctuary did not seem worth noticing to the Jews of John's faction, for he was undisturbed in the exercise of his pious office.

John was succeeded by his two sons, who seem to have shared the high priesthood until one brother decided to knock the other out on the grounds that he was married to a Samaritan bitch instead of a nice orthodox Jewess, and that started another smouldering civil war. And so it goes, on and on, endlessly, with the Jews in Palestine unable to keep peace among themselves; with their various factions appealing to the Seleucid Greeks or the Romans to restore order in favor of one faction, while all factions are seemingly united in hatred of the civilized but useful goyim, whom they try to play off against each other through elaborate intrigues; and with the distracted goyim unable to protect the Jews who are friendly to them and are accordingly murdered stealthily by sicarii, experts in the art of plunging daggers into a man's back when he is off his guard.

In contrast to the perpetual disorders and outbreaks in Judaea, where the Jews enjoyed a local autonomy, the majority of the Jews, scattered in enclaves throughout the civilized world (with the largest concentration of them probably in Babylon) and thus directly under the laws of the nations in which they had lodged themselves, seem to have lived in comparative peace with each other and with their hosts, except on the rare occasions on which there was an opportunity to betray a city to invaders or on which a self-appointed christ incited the Jewish rabble to insane outbreaks and massacres of the hated goyim.

36. What the secret was is not known. The soldiers of Pompey reported they had seen in the sanctuary a statue of Yahweh with an ass's head. They are unreliable witnesses, of course, but there is some uncertain corroboration of their report, and such theriomorphic gods were normal in Egypt, whence the Jews claimed to have come. We cannot affirm that the soldiers were right, but what we must do is avoid the knee-jerk reflexes of most historians, who ignore this and all comparable evidence because they know that God's Holy People wouldn't do nothin' wrong. The Jews' talk about the strict piety of their race is a hoax, and false even after they appropriated the monotheism of the Stoics. For a brief summary of some recent archaeological evidence, see the Scientific American, CCXXVIII #1 (Jan. 1973), pp. 80-87. It is uncertain whether the Jews who worshipped Helios and Apollo in their synagogues in the Third Century (A.D.) identified Yahweh with those gods or added them to their ceremonies to ingratiate themselves with the "pagans" among whom they were living.

After A.D. 70, the only autonomous or independent Jewish state that we can take into consideration is modern "Israël."[37] As everyone knows, the Jews extorted the Balfour Declaration from Britain as the price for stampeding American cattle into Europe in 1917, but since the English seemed to have had some scruple about betraying their Arab allies, the Jewish terrorists had to blow up and ambush quite a few stupid goyim before their new Zion was established formally in 1948 and God's People could start oppressing, kicking, and butchering the natives.[38] On this artificial "nation," which is, of course,

37. Not all Jews in Palestine followed the christ who caught the dozing Greeks and Romans off their guard in 132 and had great success in slaughtering them, but since the Romans were so bigoted that they disapproved of his cleverness, his ephemeral kingdom was quickly reduced to guerrilla bands hiding in the hills, and the christ never really governed any of the territory he claimed.– The Jews did infiltrate and take over the kingdom of the Khazars in the Eighth Century, but too little is known about its internal government to permit us to use it as an example. (Incidentally, the Khazar-theory, so dear to Christians who want to eat their cookie and have it too, will have to be abandoned, if we accept the elaborate haematological study by Professor A. E. Mourant and his assistants, The Genetics of the Jews (Oxford, 1978). His results show that the Jews, despite the great differences in physical appearance, form a single hybrid race, having an infusion of at least 5% to 10% of Negroid blood, wherever in the world they have taken up residence.)– The old Jewish colony in India claims to have penetrated that sub-continent before 175 B.C.; since it did not observe the five great Jewish festivals, all of which (despite fabricated claims to greater antiquity) were instituted after that date. Whether or not those Jews reached India so early, it is certain that they never formed a state of their own: see Schifra Strizower, The Bene Israel of Bombay (Oxford, 1971).– Arthur J. Zuckerman's long treatise, A Jewish Princedom in Feudal France, 768-900 (Columbia University, 1972), was based on tortuous inferences from illusory evidence, and his mighty Jewish realm in southern France and northern Spain was only a figment of his own imagination; see the review by Professor Bernard Bachrach in the American Historical Review, LXXVIII (1973), pp. 1440-41.

38. One wonders whether the British would have been so prejudiced as to become vexed, if the Jews had blown up their Parliament while it was in session. The first bomb planted in the building failed to explode and the supported by double taxation[39] of the world's beasts of burden in the United States, see Robertson's comments on it. It has its internal stresses, of which some reports are permitted to reach us, and is obviously held together only by its policy of steadily encroaching on the Semitic peoples around it and expanding its ill-gotten territory with military equipment donated by the American boobs. Living on money from the goyim and terroristic aggression, "Israël" is certainly no proof that the Jews have the ability to organize and govern a state of their own.

There is much to be said for Robertson's analysis, and we would accept his conclusion that the Russians have at last emancipated themselves—but reason revolts.

It is true that the Jews, who have always to be "persecuted" to conceal the extent of their actual control and power, are now screeching about "aunt-eye-see-mites" in Russia, but every few days we see the photographs of our real rulers, Kissinger, Armand Hammer, and others of the tribe, cuddling with Brezhnev and other real or supposed masters of Russia; American bankers are eager to supply the Soviet with seemingly unlimited quantities of the counterfeit currency manufactured by the Federal Reserve; and American farmers toil in their fields to supply the Soviets with all the grain and other foodstuffs they want. That, of course, may be just more of the looting to which the American serfs are accustomed. What really matters is the Jews' apparent satisfaction at the results of their sabotage of our armed forces. Since Yockey wrote, our Army has become what he foresaw. Demoralized by the operations carried out in Korea and Vietnam to kill and maim as many young Americans as possible while arranging defeats that would show the world how crazy and contemptible Americans are,[40] our remaining Jewish High Command cancelled its orders before a second could be placed; see Avner, Memoirs of an Assassin (New York, 1960) pp. 104-121. His organization of "freedom fighters," he says (p. 64), operated on the principle that "an Englishman would always be a filthy Goy, who could be killed for that reason alone."

39. "Double taxation" because, in addition to the enormous subsidies that are openly and secretly sent to "Israel" by the Americans' government, the vast sums that are "privately" remitted by Jews residing in the United States are also taken from the American people. No one dares to protest.

40. It will be remembered that an American officer was even tried by military officers are cynically trying to "stick it out" until they can retire on large pensions after twenty years. They are replaced by Jews, mulattos, and uniformed bureaucrats, whose notion of fighting is intriguing for promotion. If we look at our "fighting men," we see a motley horde of louts, perverts, females, and savages sullenly awaiting the day when they can put the hated "honkies" in their place. Do you really think that with that rabble the United States could defeat and occupy Ireland? For that matter, could our ground troops occupy Cuba?

Russia now has the largest and most modern navy in the world. Our navy, far inferior in equipment, sports mulatto Admirals who strut around in ostentatiously slovenly attire and lord it over their white underlings, who try to conceal their resentment at the degradation imposed on them. The British officers who inspected the Nimitz, our largest carrier, were amazed to discover that parts of the great ship are "off limits" to white officers so that the savages won't kill them. The Nimitz is not a warship; it is a floating slum, on which, as a recent accident showed, the multi-racial warriors can't stay off drugs long enough to perform a perfunctory naval exercise. One hears that on some of our smaller carriers that still have white officers in command, it is thought that the white crew could "get rid of the niggers" and get the ship into fighting trim.

Since the operation of aircraft requires skill and intelligence, our obsolete bombers and comparatively few modern fighting planes could be relied upon, barring sabotage by multi-racial ground crews commanded by such ornaments as a Jewess Major General. But the failure of the maladroit attempt to rescue the "hostages" that we had cravenly abandoned in Iran naturally suggested doubts as to our capabilities even in the air, although court-martial and imprisoned for having killed some of the enemy in Vietnam. The court-martial was held by our Army in slavish and shameful obedience to the outcries of journalistic pimps whose employers were engaged in a concerted effort further to demoralize our armed forces, and the campaign involved downright lying about the conditions of warfare in Indo-China. For an understanding of what war is like in such territory with such a population, see William Wilson's The L. B. J. Brigade (Los Angeles, Apocalypse, 1966). The essential point is that the Vietnamese are naturally and by instinct as barbarous and treacherous as the crazed British and Americans made themselves when they repudiated all the canons of our civilization in the Jews' Crusade Against Europe.

RACE TRANSCENDS ALL

by Janet Douglas

When and if the race-conscious white man finally assumes battle positions to fight the enemy, it won't really matter what his social standing, his religious beliefs, or what his knowledge of every facet of the conspiracy is. One battle-ax is as lethal as the next and each could contribute to the ultimate dissolution of our foe if it is sharpened and directed by correct and effective strategy.

Encouragement should be given to any of our knowledgeable white men capable of arousing that do-or-die fighting spirit in the Aryan as well as those adept at suggesting new concepts of generalship never before considered or seriously tried. We need leaders with fire who can once again, as Adolf Hitler and America's own Patrick Henry did, fan that feeble glow within white men's breast to a flaming fury! We must apply our minds to the task of survival in a scientific manner using the logical processes and imagination of the skilled tactician.

There is no more worthy cause than the survival of our race—nothing more important. For if the white man is not victorious he will be enslaved and subjected to the murderous assaults and whims of his deadly, unmerciful adversary. And most certainly the world will not allow him his choice of livelihood, his creative outlets, and obviously not his present superficial pleasures. Indeed, if we lose, considering the accelerating rate at which the white man is presently being bred out of existence, we and our civilization will just cease to exist!

Does race transcend all? The answer of the truly informed is definitely, "yes." Since the importance of race is supreme, we race-conscious rightwingers have a kinship to each other and fighting for our racial survival establishes links—if only intangible ones. We must not continue to let the enemy divide and conquer us as he has done so successfully over the centuries. What matter if in this struggle some white people find it expedient to teach or be taught pertinent survival information or tactics by people having the same survival objective as ours but who may have differing religious or philosophical views? What matter so long as we are all sincere fighters for our race against our ruthless and so far winning enemy? One of the most important things in this battle if we are to survive is to hold the banner of the white race high above all others. Let the trumpets sound once more as of old. Let the Aryan battle cry be heard. And by our unified, courageous, self-sacrificial efforts let us strike terror into the evil hearts of our enemies and bring forth victory and the restoration of our glorious destiny!

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir: 12 January 1981

On Wednesday, December 24, 1980, in the small village of Aumuehle near Hamburg, West Germany, Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, WWII commander of the German navy and successor to Reichskanzler Adolf Hitler, died quietly at 89. According to the German Information Center in New York, [interested persons may obtain The Week in Germany, a weekly publication of the German Information Center, free of charge by writing to 410 Park Avenue, New York, NY 10022] the federal government of Germany had not only taken no official notice of his death, but had actually forbidden members of the Bundeswehr [Federal Army] to attend the funeral in uniform.

In the book Doenitz At Nuernberg: A Re-Appraisal, published in 1976 [and available from Liberty Bell Publications, $10.50] the following introduction appears: "To Karl Doenitz, a naval officer of unexcelled ability and unequalled courage who, in his nation's darkest hour, offered his person and sacrificed his future to save the lives of many thousands of people." The particular rescue refered to was the evacuation of some 2 million German refugees from the eastern Baltic, destined for certain annihilation by the advancing Red Army. Successfully accomplished by Admiral Doenitz in the closing days of the war, this daring feat has been generally regarded as the greatest sealift in naval history.

The above tribute was personally endorsed by 386 of the highest ranking military officers from all nations participating in WW II. The long and impressive list includes 106 top U.S. Navy Admirals, all testifying to the impeccable integrity of this great German naval hero. Nevertheless, at war's end, Karl Doenitz, duly appointed head of government to negotiate peace terms, was arrested by the British at his Flensburg headquarters and hailed before a kamgaroo court at Nuernberg to be tried, convicted and sentenced under ex post facto law for "waging aggressive warfare"! And for ten years and twenty days he was confined as a "war criminal" in West Berlin's Spandau prison.

Three longs years and several "near misses" on convoy escort duty in the North Atlantic taught this writer great admiration and respect for Admiral Doenitz and his U-Boat wolf packs. Unknown to many, however, U.S. participation in this convoy duty began long before December 7, 1941, and I often marvelled at the patience of the German Government in the face of constant attempts by President Roosevelt and his communist cronies at provoking a declaration of war. From the beginning it seemed much more logical that England should have been the enemy rather than Germany, but the die had already been cast and "ours was not to reason why". Someday, perhaps, when the stables are cleaned and Germany is restored to her rightfull place of leadership, the truth will out and history books will be re-written to proclaim it. In the meantime, Germans around the world can be justly proud of men like Admiral Doenitz, and equally ashamed of the manner in which he has been treated by the Bonn government.

Sincerely,
R.F.M., N.C.

* * * * *

Dear George: 27 March 81

First, I want to thank you for the back issues of The Liberty Bell that I missed, and as you know I missed some great issues, my eyes are getting sore from reading. And thank you also for the book, that will take a little while to read, but I sure will enjoy it.

I would like to call myself a Christian, but they are getting such a bad name these days that one hates to tell people you are, but if you will study the background of the sudden change in many of the churches you will find the parasite Jew in there working very hard.

Your Liberty Bell does the best job I have seen in exposing the Khazar kingdom and its goals, religion and IsraeLIE is just a front for World Control over the Goy, and they are partners with Communism.

Begin and his IsraeLIE have Fallwell working for them along with many other false shepherds, or preachers, as they call themselves. The slaves of the future will be white Goys if we don't wake up.

Keep up the good work.

W.S.R., U.S.N. ret., Florida

* * * * *

Dear George: 20 March 1981

I am in receipt of your magazine and your mailings. . .

Your last issue of Liberty Bell was fascinating. I read it cover to cover, and I am referring to the issue with some interesting scholar who traced the origins of "changed sentiment" of real Americans (not this Jew-Liberalist crowd of traitors) toward the real Germans (not just the brainwashed and confused contemporary Germans). Obviously I obtained the quotation, included in the ad, from just this article which you put out. Thank you again for your wonderful endeavors.

William G. Simpson and Ben Klassen are a couple of our present and very talented intellectuals. I am actively studying their work. How is it that you have such a good eye for genuine intelligence?

Best wishes to you. And believe me, there are so many sincere Americans (this corresponds in cultural matters to "honest Germans", since we Americans are a real blend of Germanic and English cultures, thus when you say something in popular German culture almost inevitably it can be translated into American in most every case) working on our common problems it just makes my mind spin. Today I had a hair cut. At the barber's place he had a copy of "Playboy Magazine." One cartoon, full page and in color, was so anti-Semitic it is a wonder that "Playboy" even continues. Now please do not laugh too much at the thought of "Playboy" – there are many things going on there, and in fact I was first directed in my attention to "Playboy" by professors at the leading university in Scotland. Also there are dozens of small groups, working on "the atoms" of NS-sophistication, not just American gun legislation, but even racial purity factors such as this insane immigration subversion of our Republic. We are not alone, George, we are not alone!!!

Sincerely yours,
R.S.H., Colorado

* * * * *

Dear George: 6 April 1981

I.. never cease to be amazed how you rate. You're not only on it – but at the top of the honor roll every time. But note in the clipping how they spelled "Reedy."

Most thoroughly enjoyed the last Liberty Bell issue, with all the letters pro and con on the Christian religion. Opening that wedge is truly an earth shaker.

The true issue (believe it or not) is NOT such things as the money system, the Jewish take-over, busing, ritual murder, etc. No – the true juglar vein issue is THE INCREDIBLE STUPIDITY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE! Either they are incredibly stupid, ignorant or lazy – or they are born with inferior, defective genetic thought patterns.

Best regards
A.S., Idaho

* * * * *

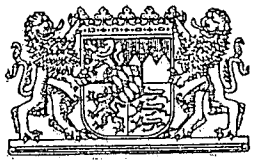
Dear Sir: 6 April 1981

While reading the letters that appear in the Liberty Bell, a feeling of disgust fills me, when I read of readers withdrawing their support because an article was critical of his religious beliefs. The readers who complain the most are the Christian National Socialists. I ask these

If we are not stimulated by triviality . . . let us feast at the table of the gods!

Order your book
THREE TRANSCENDENTALISTS
Author's fine edition, prepaid
$8.50

RICHARD S. HOEHLER
POST OFFICE BOX 240
CONIFER, COLO. 80433



Once upon a time, our German philosophers were evaluated in some such good fair fashion:

"... it was usual and plausible to paint the German as an unpractical, dreamy sentimental being, looking out with mild blue eyes into a cloud of music and metaphysics and tobacco smoke." -FWM.

Would it be possible for an American intellectual to be likewise estimated? Read this book yourself; draw your own conclusion!

* * *

Something a bit more Greco-Roman? Well try A PANTHEON - $5. Contemporary debate? Try CATEGORIES OF RACIAL MIND postage paid: $5.

* * *

Christians: is your faith so fragile that it can't stand the test of fire? Let me remind you, the fault does not lie with the Liberty Bell, but with you, because you are too lazy to write an article of rebuttal. If an article is written by an Atheist or an Agnostic, its because he had enough 'gumption' to pen his opinions and get them published. I remind those Christians to read the editorial policy of the Liberty Bell. The editor does not necessarily agree or disagree with each and every article appearing in the magazine, however, he is willing to publish a diversity of thought and opinion. . . .

Best regards,
P.B., Canada

* * * * *

Hello George 6 April 1981

Enclosed is $12. Please renew my subscription to the Liberty Bell for another year. I'm sorry I didn't send the money any sooner, but I have been out of work for over a month. The Jews finally nailed me down. I was fired from my job for making anti-Semitic remarks and for passing out so-called "anti-Semitic" material. I will say to my own satisfaction that it did last for eight years so that I did reach many hundreds of people, not only here in the U.S.A. but also in other countries around the world. It was worth it. Of course, I'm still keeping up the fight and the only way the Jews can stop me is to put a bullet through my head. In fact, I'm looking forward to the day when they try it.

George, you and your family are doing a great job of fighting the Devil's Children – the Jews. Keep up the good work as ever.

Fight on!
P.G., Florida

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 6 April 1981

Thank you for your dedicated efforts with your excellent publication. I look forward to, and thoroughly enjoy, every issue. It is indeed obvious that your readers are among the Elite. I just penned the enclosed essay, and perhaps you could use it in your LETTERS section. If not, at any rate, it gave me pleasure to finally sit down and put into words my own feelings on National Socialism, and to share them with someone understanding, as you are.

I suppose you are aware of the assault by the Jews on the California based Institute for Historical Review. They are once again attempting to silence and stop distribution of works of TRUTH. This is just further evidence of their cancerous effect on our people.

Thanks again; will send a donation as soon as economically feasible.

Sincerely,
R.G., Texas

The following is the above writer's essay on National Socialism:

WHAT IS A "NATIONAL SOCIALIST?"

The great majority of people, upon hearing the term "National Socialist", conjure in their minds the evil looking, monacled, jackbooted ignoramus, so full of hatred that he is totally irrational. Of course, the reason for this reaction is quite obvious. After years of propaganda bombardment by the mass media, it is a well-conditioned response. Continued assaults by Allied hate engineering, years after the fact, are indeed unique. One must wonder, what is it that the "powers that be" fear so much that they continue their massive lie campaign. I therefore offer this definition of what, in truth, is this derided being called a "NATIONAL SOCIALIST."

National Socialism is primarily a state of mind, a spiritual state of being. Only those for whom it is intended can absorb it or BE it, because they are members of a racial ELITE, and ONLY THEY can fathom its great spirituality. Applying this on an individual basis, the true NATIONAL SOCIALIST has the following characteristics in his blood: He is a free thinker; he doesn't let the claptrap put out by the Jewish media pollute his mind or body; he is an eternal Seeker and Defender of truth and justice; his highest obligation is to his People and not to materialistic desires of the individual. What he values above all things is the future for his children, the young of his People, for he knows that should his Young be infected by alien thought poison, the future of his People will be to exist as slaves. He knows that the greatest threat to the survival of his Race comes under the banner of the six-pointed so-called "Star of David" and their tools of oppression, the hammer and sickle. His revulsion, therefore, towards the manipulators behind these two symbols, is a defense mechanism triggered by pure instinct. He is able to react and confront the danger because his natural instincts have not been anesthetized by the Culture Poison of his enemy.

He is indeed a rare breed; his powers of perception are above and beyond most of his own race, who, most unfortunately, have been shallow enough to have been turned against the very thing that could save them. He sees, in the sign of the Swastika, an emblem of a Great People, an emblem of more honor and courage and bravery than has ever been reflected in any banner that has yet flown. His Heart bleeds and he is filled with an avowed determination to avenge his People who have been massacred while fighting OUR battle for survival under the Swastika. He knows that the Great One, as referred to by Andrew McDonald, was years ahead of his time, and dwarfed all of his contemporaries.

The true National Socialist won't be found conversing on such shallow subjects as that which is passing for entertainment in our society today, such as all forms of so-called sport, that is, like all other elements of the alien, Jewish "culture," not representative of his People but of the dregs of humanity. He perceives that no matter how much the Jew attempts to dress-up and disguise these dregs as "equal" to his own, he cannot be taken in. He hurts for those of his people who ARE fooled, however, and is saddened that his influence over the mind of Mass-Man is so minute. Perhaps this is what hurts the spirit of the Elite so much; the rejection by his own people. But he knows they are only temporarily blinded.

The National Socialist is all that stands between the ENEMY and the survival of his people. Beating back the hammer blows of the Jew and his flock, he flinches as the unknowing fools behind him fling their arrows not at the enemy but at the defender, and in his consciousness he recalls the tragic battles against the Asiatic hordes on the Eastern front while his racial kinsmen slaughtered his women and children in the West.

He doesn't have to sign any document that MAKES him a National Socialist, but knows that birds of a feather should flock together. He wishes that it could be, that the Conscious Ones would not expend their energies quarrelling and deriding each other, but focus the full force of their fury on the Enemy, and settle the differences in methodology and philosophy after the Battle has been won. The Enemy knows those of us who recognize him, and it gives him great comfort, as well as amusement, to see us tearing at each other.

In remembrance of the Great One, especially in this, the month of his birth, let us pledge our Unity in Our Battle against the ETERNAL FOE.

R.G.

* * * * *

Dear George: 7 April 1981

I feel compelled to speak out on the subject of the dissension that has emerged since the publication of a Liberty Bell which featured the writings of an atheist.

I happen to be a politically conservative member of the Eastern Orthodox Church. I know conservative members of other churches, and atheists who are both liberal and conservative. There is no clear cut pattern that I can see. There are conservative Christians that I know, in their scores, that are pro-Zionist. It is a very confusing issue.

Personally, I feel that Zionism is at the root of America's problems today, and I think the British inspired so-called "British Israel Alliance" has had a much greater part in this problem than is universally recognized. Since Zionism and Atheism both represent the Anti-Christ, I would prefer not to see Liberty Bell giving tacit approval of atheistic points of view.

However, I don't think anyone is justified in heaping all these calumnies on your head for printing ANY views. God knows, if anyone has earned his stripes in the publishing field, YOU HAVE. If it were not for your library, I would be a babe in the woods – naive, misinformed, and totally ignorant.

So, please, all you Liberty Bell readers out there, stick with George and contribute your money and views. He needs both.

Very respectfully,
Cmdr. E.J. Toner, New Jersey

* * * * *

Dear George: 8 April 1981

Thank you, George, for having the courage to print my letter in the April Liberty Bell. Please keep up your exposes of the Christian menace. The fact that the very fundamentals of this religion have terrible consequences for our future must be spread far and wide.

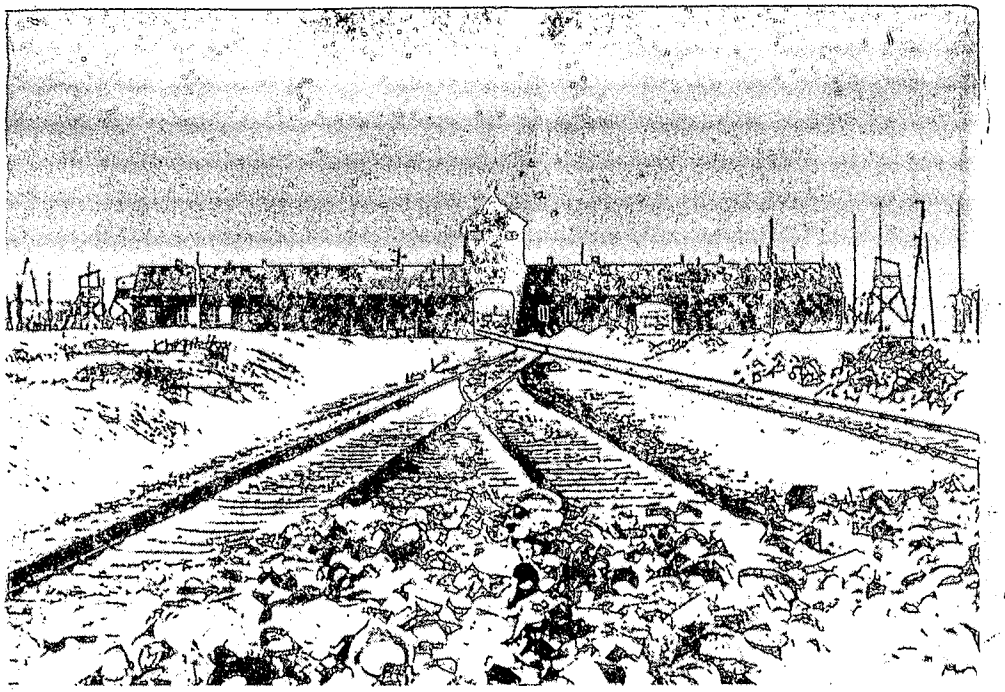
Also thank you, George, for all the enclosures you sent with your personal correspondence. They are most appreciated.

All the best,
A.D., South Africa

* * * * *



Christophersen/Roeder

Auschwitz

AN UNBIASED EYEWITNESS REPORT
ON THE REAL LIFE IN A CONCENTRATION CAMP
THERE WERE NO GAS CHAMBERS!
$1.50 plus postage

FOR MY LEGIONARIES

Salut fie cui ce merg spre moarte bireiștă Legionară. Corneliu Z. Codreanu 1938

The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

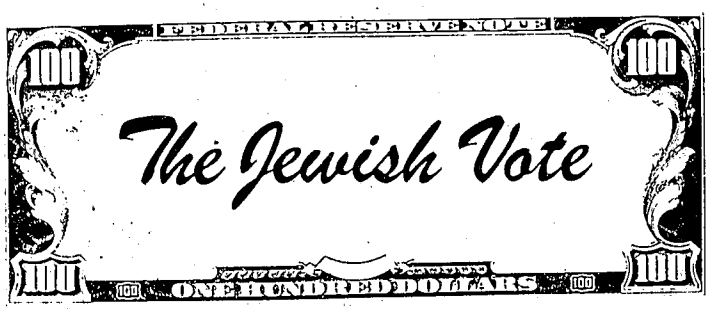
THE ANTI-HUMANS

by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270. today!

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA



". . . and, Senator McGoy, we'll forget about the little incident in the YMCA men's room."

The Liberty Bell

THE ENEMY OF OUR ENEMIES

A CRITIQUE
OF FRANCIS PARKER YOCKEY'S
THE ENEMY OF EUROPE

Part III

Revilo P. Oliver

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4490.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHTT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$13.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$20.00
THIRD CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$19.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$22.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$32.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$37.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies via UPS	$ 12.00
100 copies via UPS	$ 90.00
500 copies via UPS	$300.00
1000 copies via UPS	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world. George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

the Liberty Bell

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

CONTENTS

VOL. 9 — NO. 1
SEPTEMBER 1981

The Price of the Head 3
The Enemy of Our Enemies, Part III ... 7
Then and Now 51
Book Review:
Secret Societies and Subversive Movements 57
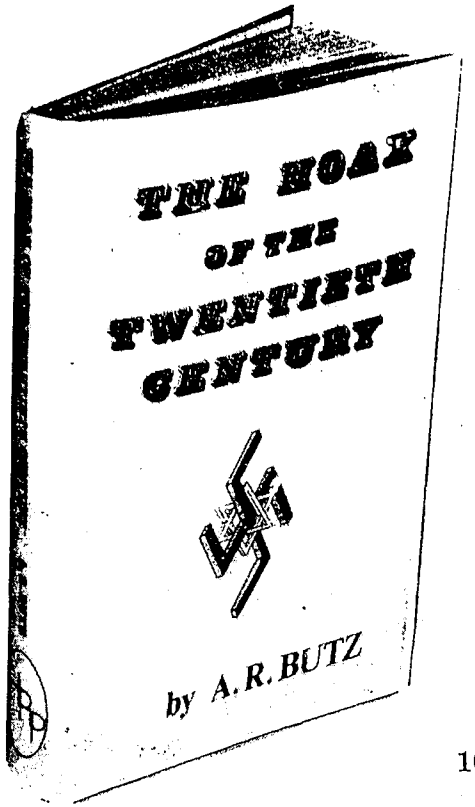
Checking the Jews —
Repatriation of the Negro 58



PLEASE
help us expose
THE BIGGEST JEWISH LIE!

PLEASE
help us spread
THE TRUTH!

Order copies of
THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
by Prof. A.R. Butz
paperback, 315 pages
at these prices:
1/$6.00—3/$15.00
10/$45.00—100/$400.00

The "Holocaust"—fact or fiction?

Were six million Jews really gassed . . . or has a colossal hoax been perpetrated on the world?

Professor Arthur Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6,000,000 Jews during World War II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

THE HOAX OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.....$ 6.00
plus 60 cents for postage and handling.

Order from

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS

P.O. BOX 21, REEDY, W.VA. 25270 USA

The Price of the Head

by Revilo P. Oliver

At long last, we have a definitive solution of the Langer Mystery, which has puzzled observers for more than forty years. The historical record can now be cleared, and while the Langer affair was, in itself, only a minor incident, its implications for our present and future are enormous.

Harry Elmer Barnes was for more than two decades the most prominent American historian. He was the real founder of what was called the New History, which focused attention on the cultural, social, and intellectual factors that underlie and shape the events of political and military history. He was an authentic Liberal—when he died in 1968, one shrewd observer called him "the Last Liberal." Like many intelligent and learned men who grew up before 1914, he firmly believed that the increase of scientific and historical knowledge would inevitably produce universal progress, and he even had high hopes of what is called "democracy" in the United States. He held the old belief that the term "the human race" was more than a convenient biological category that embraced several quite different species of anthropoids, and since he did not perceive the innate incompatibility of those species, he dreamed that Progress could abolish war, which he held in great abhorrence as "crime on a larger scale." He fancied, as did many Liberals when our race dominated the entire globe, that the elimination of war would produce a "decent world order," in which, presumably, lions and wolves would frisk in happy co-operation with lambs and jackasses.

That Barnes shared the Utopianism of his generation cannot be denied, and that fact adds a touch of irony to the present story. His roseate conception of human nature, coupled with his understanding of what the once-honored Constitution implies and requires, led him to champion ardently various social "rights" and reforms that made ignorant patriots denounce him as a Communist, and the slander was enthusiastically promoted by the professional mystery-mongers, who felt that his insistence on human reason and the primacy of ascertained fact endangered their business. During his prominence as an historian, Barnes was one of the men whom emotional "conservatives" most feared, both in the 1920's and after he naively became an apologist for what cunning politicians called a "New Deal."*

*Barnes's ardent support of Franklin Roosevelt, which continued until that loathesome degenerate began to prepare the public for the war which he and his fellow conspirators had contrived in secret, will probably seem inexplicable to readers who have no personal recollection of the late 1920's, and perhaps even then, if they had no opportunity to profit from the recollections of men who had lived in the halcyon days that preceded the First World War. Roosevelt did keep one promise he Barnes was an honest man and a scholar. He believed that it was the function and duty of an historian to establish the facts of what had actually happened. He therefore took the lead in the historical writing that dissipated the mephitic cloud of falsehoods that had been used to stampede the United States into the European catastrophe that is called the First World War. He effectively demolished the hokum about "German war guilt" and "atrocities" that had been expertly manufactured by Lord Bryce and the professional liars in his employ, of whom the most talented was Arnold Toynbee, who later attained distinction as the author of a prolix and vaporous Study of History. Needless to say, Lord Bryce's faked photographs and rhetorical rodomontade served as a model for the more inept efforts of American liars, including both the malodorous Creel Committee, financed by the very taxpayers it brainwashed, and the innumerable hacks of journalism, always ready to earn a fast buck by intellectual and moral prostitution. After Barnes and his disciples had exposed that criminal conspiracy, no rational man could any longer be ignorant of the causes of a national insanity that had been called a "war to end wars" by the babbler whom our domestic enemies had boosted into the White House.

One of Barnes' friends, protégés, and collaborators in the "Revisionism" that established the facts about the First World War was a younger man, William Leonard Langer. Barnes helped him attain his first professorial appointment, found publishers for his books, and praised him in print as the ablest American scholar of the diplomatic history of modern Europe. Barnes contributed greatly to, perhaps really made possible, Langer's eventual ascent to the American Olympus, a professorship at Harvard.

At Harvard, Langer attained both eminence and popularity as a "Revisionist" historian and able lecturer, taking an objective and realistic view of recent history. But men who were at Harvard, whether as colleagues or students, began to notice a strange and inexplicable change in Langer late in 1936. At first subtly, and then ever more openly, the objective historian and keen critic of Woodrow Wilson's purulent propaganda was transformed into a strident propagandist who, as unscrupulously as any member of the ill-famed Creel Committee, was made when he was campaigning for election: he terminated the incredible folly of Prohibition, which had by then served its purpose, having spread political corruption from the slums of large cities to every town and hamlet in the nation, and having trained thugs whose talents were needed in the "labor movement" and other covert instrumentalities of the "New Deal." Very important, however, in determining Barnes's attitudes was his experience of life in the United States when the American ethos was relatively unimpaired. Here is an example that may astonish some readers. Barnes was one of the very few men who attained academic distinction after having to work to support themselves in college, and from 1909 to 1913 he worked in a drug store and sold heroin to customers who asked for it as freely as a clerk in such a store today sells aspirin. He probably also sold cocaine on demand, since that narcotic was sold by Sears, Roebuck & Co. and listed in their mail-order catalogues. In those years, there was no problem of drug-addiction in the United States. That is a fact that should be meditated by everyone who is seriously interested in the structure of civilized societies.

whooping it up for another "war to end wars" and another insane Crusade against Germany, this time to punish the Germans for trying to have a country of their own, not under Jewish management. Langer, to be sure, never publicly endorsed the glorious plan formulated by Theodore N. Kaufman in his Germany Must Perish!, published before the great War Criminal in the White House had contrived open American participation in the war he had stealthily incited in Europe in collaboration with a British traitor named Winston Churchill. Kaufman proclaimed a "Sacred Purpose" to have all German men and all German women sexually mutilated so that the sterilized animals could not reproduce and the wicked race that did not venerate God's People would thus be shortly annihilated. Langer did not commit himself to that idealistic scheme, but he yelled for a "righteous" war against the Germans, about whom he shamelessly lied.

After the disaster he had promoted had fallen on Germany, France, once Great Britain, all of Europe, and the whole of the civilized world, Langer was a leader of the campaign to blot out forever the historical facts and to prevent the American people from ever discovering how they had been used by their implacable enemies. With an obscure collaborator, Langer published, among other things, The World Crisis and American Foreign Policy, which is as mendacious a work as was ever published by a man who once had a reputation for scholarly integrity.* With sleazy sophistries and brazen lies, he tried to whitewash and sanctify our great War Criminal, and to institutionalize in our hapless land the techniques so ably and prophetically described by George Orwell in his 1984.

What is even more significant, Langer was one of the Chief promoters of the campaign of filthy intrigue and vicious defamation that eventually closed to his whilom patron and benefactor all the normal channels of publication, so that Barnes was first forced to place Perpetual War for Perpetual Peace with a small and struggling firm in Idaho, and eventually to resort to small booklets printed at his own expense to publish the indisputable facts about the treason against the United States and against Western Civilization that precipitated the calamity of 1939-1945 and what a judicious observer has justly called the Suicide of the West. This act of blackest ingratitude, for which Langer even used his prestige as President of the American Historical Association in 1957, coupled with his metamorphosis from an historian to a professional liar, made the more odious by his imitation of the methods of scholarship, has long been known as the Langer Mystery. What happened?

Gratitude, we are told by the well-known maxim, is a lively anticipation of future favors, and no doubt Langer, safely planted on the Olympian heights of Harvard, had no further need of Barnes' help. But despite that cynical maxim, there is—or was—in our race an innate sense that when benefits are conferred, they create an obligation. That feeling is a peculiarity of our race, although few have pondered the significant observation of Sir Richard Burton (in his Al-Madinah and Meccah) that there is no word for gratitude in the languages of the Middle East that he knew, since the very concept is alien to the mentality of the Semitic and mongrelized peoples of that region, although they have, of course, their own norms of conduct. Our race, however, once believed, and doubtless some of us still believe, that a decent man feels an obligation to friends who have helped him, and should not stab them in the back whenever it is convenient or profitable to do so. Langer was, on the record, a member of our race. He had the manners of a gentleman and had grown up in a time in which the code of gentlemen was still respected. He would not have violated that code lightly and from mere caprice.

*The book was (naturally!) subsidized by the Rockefeller Foundation, which set out dellberately to buy American historians and thus prevent exposure of the great War Criminal and his confederates and lackeys. Langer's later bucket of pseudo-learned whitewash, The Undeclared War, 1940-1941, was described by Professor John C. Duvall as "the most heavily subsidized historical volume ever published in the United States."

The crucial period is 1936-1939. By the time the Japanese were induced to destroy the American fleet at Pearl Harbor, Langer had committed himself irretrievably. He became a power in the odd outfit that the legitimate intelligence agencies called the "Office of Soviet Stooges," and after the catastrophe, he moved up into the State Department, the C.I.A. and various lush committees to "advise" the President, and the top echelon of the Council on Foreign Relations. When a man has joined the pirates, there is no turning back, and self-preservation, if nothing else, led him to the conception of history that was openly stated by Professor Eric Goldman, the ranking Professor of History in Princeton University (as quoted by Professor James J. Martin in his section of Harry Elmer Barnes, Colorado Springs, Ralph Myles, Inc., 1968). Langer was never so explicit and candid as Professor Goldman, who claimed that he and "most historians" regarded history as a "weapon" to be used for "determining people's ideas and attitudes." History, in other words, is just a device to be used by well-paid boobherds to drive the American cattle in bovine content to their pastures or to the abattoir.

But let us go back to 1936, three years before the Crusade Against the West began in Europe. What happened in Langer's mind? Is it conceivable that a man who had studied and analyzed the foul propaganda of lies and forgery produced in 1914-1918 could have been fooled by the even cruder and less credible hogwash administered to the Americans to prepare them for a new Crusade Against Civilization that had been secretly planned even then? Was it blackmail for some secret peccadillo or vice? Did some personal sorrow or misfortune make the cogs slip in a previously efficient intellect? Had he perhaps decided that the future so vividly portrayed by George Orwell was inevitable eleven years before Orwell's book was published? Leaders of the "America First" movement were puzzled when they found that their most formidable opposition, at least in the northeastern part of this country, came from Langer and other war-mongers, who were howling like Apaches from the intellectual mountain-top, where men eminent for scholarship were performing

continued on page 55

THE ENEMY OF OUR ENEMIES

A CRITIQUE OF FRANCIS PARKER YOCKEY'S THE ENEMY OF EUROPE

Part III

Revilo P. Oliver

Copyright 1979, 1981
by Revilo P. Oliver

All rights reserved. No part of this book, except brief excerpts for the purpose of review, may be reproduced in any form without written permission by the publisher. For information write to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

Printed in the United States of America

CONTENTS
Part III

The Third Side of the Coin 95
At the Wailing Wall 100
Tod und Verklärung 105
The Dying and the Dead 112
The Epitaph 126
Epilogue, The Erinyes 127

the ineptitude may have been ordered in Washington. In the event of a war with the Soviet, we could sacrifice our air force and inflict a small or moderate amount of damage.

As for intercontinental ballistic missiles, the chances are that we are now inferior to the Russians, while our country, as Yockey pointed out, is far more vulnerable than theirs.

At the time of writing, it looks as though the Jews intended to order the Americans to clear the way for a Jewish advance and occupation of the Semitic countries around "Israël." We could undoubtedly destroy the oil fields of Saudi Arabia and thus augment the fake "energy crisis" that is now used to chevy the boobs, and we could create by bombing from the air chaos in the other Semitic or partly Semitic countries—unless Russia intervened. That would mean a war with the Soviet, and, incidentally, if there were such a war, the Russians would certainly have to indulge, in sheer self-defence, their natural racial antipathy to Jews—all of the three million or more of them now in Soviet territory.

Since Yockey wrote, there has been one major alteration in the situation. The natural and inevitable racial hostility between the Russians, who are largely Aryan, and the Mongolian Chinese has evidently converted their original coöperation into active enmity. It is possible that fear of a Chinese invasion would deter the Russians from intervention in the Middle East, but we do not know enough about conditions inside both of the empires that we created as our powerful enemies to calculate the chances of that. The most that we can say is that it does not now seem likely that the Russians would abandon a strategically important part of the globe to Zion. And if they do not, that means war with the Jews' vassals, the United States.

In the event of such a war, the stooge in the White House could utter platitudes and talk about "saving the world for democracy," but there is no slightest indication of a will to fight in a nation—if it still is a nation[41]—that has long been

41. In the continuous avalanche of books, most of them worthless and many worse than worthless, that vertiginously descends from the presses these days, the few important works are buried in the mass and often carried to oblivion unnoticed, but I hope no one has overlooked the lousy with peace-lubbers and the like. The Russians would have all the advantages of a first strike, and could inflict some spectacular damage on our cities, and, as Yockey predicted, our rabble would immediately clamor for surrender and start a furious civil war, if Washington even hesitated to put into effect its cherished plans for a "strategic" capitulation.

The only alternative is the remote possibility that the United States has some really horrendous secret weapon which has not been betrayed to the Soviet, but that possibility is very remote.

So with all this before us, we are asked to believe that the Russians have become independent? Preposterous! With the example of Germany before us, we all know how terrible is the vengeance that Yahweh's Master Race inflicts on insubordinate goyim. If the Jews had been defied by the Russians, our armed forces would be drastically purged and every able-bodied white American below 40 would be conscripted and trained for the coming war. The Jews and their lackeys in all the media of communication would be frantically pumping a factitiously patriotic sludge in the faces of the boobs. Our holy men would be yelling in their pulpits about our Christian duty to smite the Antichrist in Moscow and help an omnipotent god who obviously cannot help himself. Our automobile plants would be again converted to the production of airplanes and tanks; and all our laboratories would be filled with "crash programmes" to devise more effective missiles and counter-missiles.

You have only to look around you to see how absurd is a suggestion that the Jews' supremacy has been threatened in the sagacious analysis of our society by Professor Andrew Hacker, The End of the American Era (New York, 1970). He concludes that the United States has become nothing more than a geographical area, inhabited by incompatible races and individuals who, rootless and bewildered, no longer have a common culture or even a common interest. "What was once a nation," he says, "has become simply an aggregation of self-centered individuals." Our civilization—Aryan civilization, although he does not use that naughty word—has been so eroded and rotted that the American majority has lost all cohesion and has become merely a colluvies of miniature minorities, each composed of no more than half a dozen persons with a common purpose. Therefore, he concludes, "Our history as a nation has reached its end," and we have reached "a juncture at which it becomes pointless to call for rehabilitation or renewal." The only question now is the exact date and form of the final catastrophe. I wish I could refute that conclusion.

Soviet! It's simply unreasonable!

So we say, but we do not know. My only point here is that if the Jews no longer control the Soviet, the only explanation is the one advanced by Yockey and Robertson. Although they differ in their psychological analysis, they agree that the explanation must be some mental peculiarity in Yahweh's Sons that impels them to conduct that would be irrational and insanely improvident in an Aryan.

THE THIRD SIDE OF THE COIN

We have, I think, followed Yockey and Robertson in drawing logical conclusions from the evidence before us. But all of our evidence—what we are told and what we are not told—comes from either Russian or Jewish sources. We do not have even a simple choice between stories told by two habitual liars, for when they disagree, both may still be lying, each in his own interest. And the world's masters of deceit are wily and subtle.

When travelling carnivals toured our country, the yokels were regularly fleeced by what was known as the shell game, which had many variations. In one variation, the sucker was led to believe that he had been given, inadvertently, a glimpse of the obverse of a coin and so could confidently bet on what would appear on the reverse when the shell was lifted, but, of course, when the coin was exposed, one with a different reverse had been substituted by a bit of prestidigitation.

When we ponder the Soviet enigma, one possibility always occurs to us, that internal rot within the empire may have gone much farther than we have been permitted to suspect by our sources—may have gone so far that what seems a monolithic state has some inner and hidden weakness great enough to affect its foreign policy. That speculative conjecture, however, we have always dismissed as gratuitous, since there was no plausible evidence to support it.

The periodical called Fortune, in its issue for 29 June 1981, published an astonishing article, entitled "Russia's Underground Millionaires," by a Jew, Konstantin Simis, formerly a Soviet lawyer and official in the Ministry of Justice, who says that in 1977, when the manuscript of a book that is to be published in this country was found in his apartment, he was invited to leave Russia and join his son, a professor in an American university.

According to this article, the Soviet is as rotten politically as the United States, although, of course, there are superficial differences. Corruption within the Communist Party we naturally take for granted, but here we are told of massive corruption of the Communist administration by bribery from outsiders, almost all of them Jews. There are distinct analogies to the almost universal political corruption that was established in this country in 1917 by the crackpots and mutton-heads who tried to prohibit our people from drinking alcoholic beverages.

We are told that there functions efficiently within the Soviet an enormous black market with its own factories, its own distribution-system, and its own retail outlets, operating comfortably by virtually wholesale bribery of Communist managers and police, and operated by capitalists, almost all of them Jews, who accumulate what are large fortunes by any standard and store their surplus wealth in gold, jewels, and other things that are intrinsically valuable. A typical entrepreneur, who was arrested, through some mischance, by the Secret Police, was found to have in his possession such valuables to the amount of 350,000,000 rubles, which, at current exchange, would equal $546,000,000.

This great essor of Jewish enterprise, according to the author, began "in the mid-1930s" with such talented entrepreneurs and masqueraders as Isaac Bach, who, while officially only a supervisor in a small workshop and paid as such by the state, was secretly a capitalist worth some $135,720,000, "owning at least a dozen factories manufacturing underwear, souvernirs, and notions, and operating a network of stores in all the republics of the Soviet Union." Such surreptitious business flourished, it should be noted, while Lazar Moseevich Kaganovich was Stalin's Deputy Premier in charge of industry, and naturally continued to flourish under his successor in that office, Benjamin Dimshitz, another Jew.[41a] And it has now reached the high financial level shown by the one example mentioned above, which, we are given to understand, was not at all extraordinary, except that the apostle of free enterprise either neglected to bribe all the officers of the Secret Police concerned or was rashly careless in some way that made it too awkward for them to cover up for them.

41a. Dimshitz (or Dymshits) is the only Soviet official of very high rank whom Wilmot Robertson (op. cit., p. 456, n. 16) recognizes as a Jew. It's evidently a matter of the right man in the right place. What is extremely curious is that he is not even mentioned in the list published by Candour, to which I shall refer in note 48. below.

The commercial activities of those energetic Jewish business men interest us only because they are all categorically prohibited by Soviet law, which provides for the guilty minimum penalties of years of imprisonment in slave labor camps. It necessarily flourishes through a vast system of pay-offs and the like[42] that would do credit to the genius for organization shown by American politicians. There are "tens of thousands of such factories" owned by capitalists of the black market, but almost all of them are actually state factories, operated by managers appointed by the Communist government, who fulfill their quotas and then turn to production for the capitalists, using, of course, the machinery provided by the state, their working staff, and sometimes materials provided by the state, although the production for the black market is usually of better quality and uses better materials. The manager must be given his cut, of course, and so must the workmen, who are often employed on overtime. All government inspectors must be bribed, and so must all local agents of the Secret Police, especially those in the branch that is expressly charged with policing industry. Much of the raw material must be obtained from nominally state establishments, with, of course, a corresponding round of cuts and bribes. The retail outlets are, for the most part, state stores which handle black-market goods surreptitiously, and so managers and bookkeepers and clerks must be given their cuts and massive bribery must keep inspectors and agents of the police in line. And, of course, it is necessary to put the fix on the bureaucrats who preside over the inspectors and agents. In short, the Communist empire must be a seething mass of political corruption. And after all such business expenses, the promoters reap huge profits and become enormously wealthy.

42. When Franklin Roosevelt was gabbling about the "Four Freedoms" to entertain the boobs during the Jewish Crusade Against Europe, knowledgeable "New Dealers" defined the Four Freedoms as the rake-off, the pay-off, the shakedown, and the fix. There are technical differences between these four aspects of government in a "democracy," but we need not define them here.

The "tens of thousands of factories," we are told, are chiefly in Moscow, Odessa, Riga, Tiflis, and other major cities in which are concentrated the Jews now in Russia—some three million of them, according to Jewish sources, who are now being "discriminated against" by the Soviet, it not being explained why they are only half as numerous as the Jews who were "discriminated against" by the Czarist régime, under which they owned half the industry of Russia. We may assume that free enterprise is providing good incomes for a large part of the three million, perhaps most of them in one way or another.

Despite the massive bribery of Communist officials, something more is required for this vast clandestine business, which must be conducted without written records, and in which sums that may amount to hundreds of thousands of rubles exchange hands without documents of any kind or witnesses, "in an atmosphere of complete trust," such as could never exist among legitimate business men in this country. The explanation is given by the author: it is "the sense of national identity among Jewish underground businessmen," who may not be eager to migrate to their race's capital in Palestine, but "feel a blood relationship with it" and contribute money (in American currency!) to it. If the commercial honesty that is dictated by a sense of racial solidarity, which Aryans can only envy as they reflect with shame on the egotistic venality and financial opportunism of their own people, is reinforced by Jewish racial courts, the ḳahal, which some anti-Jewish writers allege to be secretly maintained in Jewish colonies, the writer gives no hint of them. [42a]

42a. Jews vehemently deny the existence of the ḳahal and denounce as "anti-Semitic" the Jew, Jacob Brafmann, who wrote the most extensive and detailed description of the quasi-religious racial courts. His work has been translated into German, with a learned commentary by Dr. Siegfried Passarge, Das Buch vom Kahal, 2 vols., Leipzig, 1928. See also the work of the Argentine writer, Hugo Wast, whose essay and novel, El Kahal, is also published in Mexico (Editorial Diana, 6th edition, 1964). Wast describes the operation of the Jewish tribunal in modern Argentina, and says "El Kahal es un soberano invisible y absoluto," which regulates the entire life of Jews, "comercio, política, religión, vida privada en sus detalles más minuciosos." He says that the disciplinary powers are vested in a secret tribunal, Beth Din, which, I gather, operates with the summary

One limitation on the felicity of Jewish capitalists in Russia is the need to observe some discretion in public display of their wealth, since too much ostentation has brought some of them to the attention of Communist authorities not on their payroll, with sad results. Prudent financiers limit their public expenditures to what they can pretend was legitimate income, e.g., from winning tickets in a state lottery, and amass their wealth in gold, jewels, and similar articles they can easily hide. Foreign money can be obtained, but would have no advantage in Russia. We may guess that the Rockefeller banks in Russia probably assist capitalists to transfer abroad holdings that they can enjoy when it pleases them to "defect" from Russia. The author suggests that the vast investments in gold and jewels, if not made for a miser's satisfaction in mere possession, may perhaps be held in anticipation of "the downfall of the Soviet régime."

If we accept Simi's account of the vast wealth of Soviet Jewry and the pervasive corruption of Soviet government in all its functions, including the Secret Police, it will be obvious that the ingenuity, secrecy, and bribery that maintains the capitalists' clandestine businesses could also promote a secret and formidable revolutionary underground, capable of striking suddenly and perhaps decisively. And that will alter all our estimates of the probable future of the Soviet and of its capacity to wage a major war. We accordingly wonder whether some credence may not be due to some reports about efficient and ostensibly Christian "undergrounds" in the Soviet. The reports once put out so industriously by evangelists who pretended to solicit funds for such organizations can be dismissed as mere sucker-bait, but, if Simis is right, such organizations could exist. [42b] powers and secrecy of the Westphalian Vehmgerichte of the Thirteenth to Sixteenth Centuries, which will be familiar to many readers from the description, doubtless with romantic amplification, in Sir Walter Scott's Anne of Geierstein. The supreme kahal of the Jews, with jurisdiction over all colonies of the international race, sits in New York City, according to Wast. American attorneys who have handled litigation between Jews who have tried to swindle each other are certain no kahal is now in operation, but notice an odd convention in such matters, e.g., a bitterly resentful and injured Jew will not denounce his adversary for smuggling or fraud in income-tax reports, although he has proof in his possession.

42b. If we believe Paul R. Vaulin, The Regiment of Kitezh (Mobile, Alabama, 1977), Russia is now honeycombed by a formidable conspiracy

We can neither affirm nor deny the accuracy of Simi's story. If that number of Fortune has reached Russia, his report has probably been denounced in Pravda as an "outrageous Fascist lie" and perhaps even as "anti-Semitic," with many "proofs" of its spuriousness; if it hasn't been, it will be, at least when his book is published. All that we can do is say that the story is amazing, and put it down as another question mark around the enigma.

AT THE WAILING WALL

We must grant that the evidence for the Jews' supposed loss of authority in Russia is meager and unsubstantial. Self-appointed "Kremlinologists" (!) expound to us the intentions behind certain Soviet policies, but mind-reading is always a hazardous business. It is true, for example, that Russia has supplied some weapons to the Semitic and largely Semitic countries that are menaced by the Jews' constant aggression and implacable hatred. (The Arabs and their allies, by the way, have always to pay cash to the Soviet, while the Jews have only to requisition all the equipment they want from their American serfs.) We are told that Russia clearly intends to impede the plan, of which the Jews openly boast, to make Jerusalem the capital from which Yahweh's Race will rule the whole world; but, for aught we know to the contrary, the subtle minds of Russia's rulers may be cozening the Arabs and planning eventually to betray them, as the Americans, for example, betrayed Chiang Kai-check.

The nominally American government in Washington is in a fever of anxiety over the supposed plight of the three millions of the of Christians, who have penetrated the Soviet bureaucracy and even the Secret Police, having placed or enlisted secret agents in strategic posts, and counting on exciting a revolt of "a quarter of a billion [Russian]men" when the time comes. Two colleagues of the author on the faculty of the University of South Alabama certify that the narrative "describes actual events," was written by "an American agent" who was dropped by parachute into Soviet territory in May 1972, and was copied from his manuscript, which "was smuggled out of the USSR by an American student." They further certify that Satan prevented the publication of the book by a commercial publisher, so that it had to be published privately "without the permission of Satan." If there is any truth to the story, the Soviet Secret Police have become hopelessly inefficient and stupid. There is an implication that the Christians' god keeps the conspiracy invisible to Communist eyes, and it would seem that Satan hasn't been able to wake up the Politburo.

Self-Chosen People in Soviet territory, and claims to be squandering American resources as bribes to the Russians to increase the privileges granted to Jews (but no other race), in the hope that soon the whole three millions will follow the 200,000 who have recently flown from the Soviet and, after touching ground in Israel, flocked into the United States, except for a minority, who, after getting a whiff of their tribesmen in Israel, promptly flew back to their Soviet homes.[43] One cannot be impressed by the ostensible reasons for a policy of which the net result is further to augment American subsidies to the Soviet while simultaneously augmenting the saturation of our country with Jews.

The other evidence is much noise and very few facts, all of them no better than the facts on which are based the Jews' assurance to the British that in the United States the wicked "Neo-Nazis" are on the very verge of stuffing ten or twenty millions of God's persecuted darlings into crematoria.[44] The cause of the Jews' terror is, admittedly, the fact that a dozen Americans have had the awful audacity to investigate a rather grandiose, but typical, Jewish hoax and expose its absurdity.[45]

43. It is true that the Russians do not seem eager to welcome them back. The Daily World, 8 January 1979, reported that 300 Jews, who had left the Soviet, fled to Italy after they had a good look at the ant-heap in Israel. They were appealing to the "United Nations," evidently in the hope that the clowns in that circus would intercede and obtain for them permission to return home.

44. See above, p. 73.

45. On the hoax about the "six million Jews" who are said to have been exterminated in Germany before they migrated to the United States and a few other lands and began to collect for their deaths from the Germany they had ruined, the pioneer work was that of Paul Rassinier, who had been himself an inmate of a German concentration camp and later spent years in touring Europe vainly in search of someone who had actually seen one of the famous "gas chambers," for which the basis, of course, was only the Germans' attempts to control with disinfectants the epidemics of typhus brought into the camps by Jews and their body lice. See Rassinier's Le mensonge d'Ulysse (Paris, 1950) and its sequels, Ulysse trahi par les siens (Paris, 1961), Le véritable procès Eichmann (Paris, 1962), and Le drame des Juifs européens (Paris, 1961). An English translation of the last of these was published by Steppingstones, Silver Spring, Maryland, 1975, which issued in the following year a translation of the book on the Eichmann trial (which Rassinier had originally intended to entitle aptly, "Les maître-chanteurs de Nuremberg"), now published by

What the British may be stupid enough to believe, I do not know, but the imminence of a real "holocaust" in the United States will be considered unlikely by the hapless Americans, who cringe before the Jewish Terror; who see the homes of men who dare disbelieve the hoax besieged by mobs of Jews screaming for their blood and threatening to burn them and their families in their houses; who know that Presidents and Vice Presidents of the United States who dared mutter in private some lack of reverence for Jews were hounded from their office and forced to resign; who know that no business man dares offend our masters, not even by subscribing to a journal that does not have kosher approval, for even if it comes to a postoffice box under an assumed name, the spies will learn his identity and the Jews stealthily or openly will destroy his business and perhaps his family . . . It would be idle to go on enumerating what is known by everyone who ventures to raise his eyes and look about him. My point is that Americans should know that the fact that Professor Butz has not yet been murdered and all copies of his book destroyed by the F.B.I. is not satisfactory proof that the United States is persecuting the People of God. And it may not be amiss to consider Jewish lamentations about Russia with critical intelligence rather than the Historical Review Press, Chapel Ascote, Ladbroke, Southam, Warwickshire. I understand that translations of Rassinier's several books are assembled in Debunking the Genocide Myth, published by the Institute for Historical Review, Torrance, California. The fullest and most systematic demolition of the infamous hoax, which has been used to extort forty billion dollars or more from the helpless people of Germany, is the masterly work by Professor Arthur R. Butz, The Hoax of the Twentieth Century, published by the Historical Review Press, s.a. (1976), and available from Liberty Bell Publications; an American edition is published by the Institute for Historical Review in California. An especially notable work in German is Der Auschwitz Mythos (Tübingen, Grabert, 1979; available from Liberty Bell Publications) by Judge Wilhelm Stäglich, who thus brought on himself pseudo-legal vengeance by the Jews' puppet government in Bonn, which tried to make him penniless and did succeed in depriving him of half of his meager income. The author of a smaller volume on the same subject is now in prison in Germany for having dared to contradict God's Master Race. A very useful and handsomely illustrated book is William N. Grimstad's The Six Million Reconsidered, s.l.&a. (1977), which has been reprinted by the Historical Review Press in England and in the United States by the Institute for Historical Review. Perhaps the most noteworthy aspect of the "six million" hoax is the hoaxers' contempt for the simple-minded Aryans: they did not take the trouble to make their various fictions plausible or consistent. The point, of course, is that Aryans must be so trained that their minds will freeze and all thought stop whenever one of God's People speaks to the curs.

faith.

One bit of evidence adduced by Wilmot Robertson is the publication by the Ukrainian Academy of Science (in 1963) of a book that spoke of Jews without reverence, and he adds that the Soviet authorities did not suppress the book until after "world opinion," as manufactured by Jewish journalists, began to howl. The suppression, however, does not satisfy the Jews, who now wax indignant that its Satanic author was, after a time, permitted to return to his employment, instead of being liquidated or starved to death.[46]

Although as late as 1979 the Jews were still assuring themselves in some of their racial publications that their tribe was flourishing in the Soviet and that 400,000 of them ensconsed in Moscow alone were joyful,[47] they are now telling themselves in their own publications, as well as in "our" press (which they own or otherwise control) that the international people are being "persecuted" by the vile Russians, in whose country they have chosen to reside. The volume of this propaganda is enormous, and it would be a waste of time to notice slight differences in the pitch of what is just one unending screech, but, if we dare be so evil as to look at a few specimens intelligently, we may derive some hints from them.

A yell by Kevin Klose in the Washington Post, 15 July 1979, headed "Soviet Jews are Fearful of Rising Anti-Semitism," brings us the shocking news that many more Russians are now being given positions in the Russian universities and other "institutions of higher learning where Jews have traditionally excelled." A book published in only five hundred copies "calls Zionism 'the worst form of fascism'"—a statement which should be good for a laugh even in Russia. Another, of which 45,000 copies were printed, "alleges that 'Zionist centers' control Western media." One gathers that Russians should not be told of the Jews' virtually total dominion over the press and boob-tubes of the United States, Britain, France, and other Western nations. Chief among the horrors that are giving the three million Jews in Russia nervous palpitations are two letters one or more diabolic Russians may have produced on a mimeograph and are clandestinely circulating to some "members of the Moscow intelligentsia." One of these horrid letters declares that "both in the U.S. Senate and the Central Committee of the Communist Party there is a powerful Zionist lobby." Americans know about the Senate and the rest of "their" government in Washington, where, according to the press on 26 July, Reagan, "personally ordered" everyone to cease and desist from criticizing the Jews' terrorist bombing of Lebanon and slaughter of the Semites who don't understand that the Jews have a right to their homes and lives—acts which some misguided men thought tactless at the very time that the United States was about to rush another big shipment of our best weapons to Israel, for which Reagan has "a very special affection." We wonder, however, whether the mimeographed letter was as accurate about Russia as about the country that once was ours. A second letter, furtively typewritten and copied on a mimeograph, says that Brezhnev's wife is a Jewess—as everyone in and out of Russia has long known—and that there are only three "real Russians" among thirteen members of the ruling Politburo. There is no claim that the second statement is not equally true, but Klose reports a rumor that "Russophiles," persons so wicked that they love their own country, expecting that Brezhnev will soon depart from this world, are manoeuvering "within secret 'higher circles' of the [Communist] party . . . to heighten traditional Russian antagonisms and force Jews from such positions of power and influence as they now hold." Just as though God's People didn't have a prescriptive right to "power and influence" over the lower races!

46. See, e.g., the article by Dr. Spier that I cite below.

47. A clever twist in propaganda was used by Aaron Vergelis, editor of the periodical in Yiddish that is lavishly financed by the Soviet. In his tour of this country in January 1979, he assured his Jewish audiences from coast to coast that "Soviet Jews are building a new and happy life in their [sic!] multi-national homeland," and that propaganda that the Jews are not living high on the hog in the Soviet is really a form of "anti-Semitism" spread by "anti-Communists" to incite hostility to the Soviet and to encourage the nasty "anti-Semitic" elements in the United States. "Anti-Sovietism," he proclaimed with Talmudic subtlety, "is the greatest anti-Semitism." His speeches were widely reported in the frankly Jewish press and summarized in the Daily World, 30 January 1979.

What interests us is the claim, in the mimeographed sheet that is being clandestinely passed around to a few Russians, that the Russians have only three representatives in the Politburo. The journal founded by the late A.K. Chesterton, Candour, published in its issue for Nov.-Dec.1978 a list, obtained from Russian sources, of the members of the Politburo. This shows twenty-one men besides Brezhnev, and the score is: Russians, 6; race unascertained, 1; Jews, 14, including the Minister of Defence, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Chief of the Secret Police, and two others, who are among "the most powerful men in the USSR."[48] Date and place of birth are given and the real names of the Jews, most of whom operate under aliases in public, as is their custom. Candour's informant adds that "90% of the Soviet Ambassadors are Jews," and lists twelve examples. Since I am unfortunately deprived of the revelations from on high that enable so many in the "right wing" to know whatever they want to believe, I cannot affirm either the accuracy or inaccuracy of the list in Candour, but if the list contains no more than a fair percentage of truth, it would seem that the international race has prematurely rushed to its Wailing Wall, perhaps from sheer force of habit.

TOD UND VERKLÄRUNG

The most nearly sober of the current lamentations is a long article by Ruben Ainsztein in the well-known and widely influential British periodical, New Statesman. On the cover of the issue for 18 December 1978, where it is illustrated by a photographic montage that shows the evil face of Hitler behind the evil face of Stalin, the article is entitled, "Soviet Union Today: Anti-semitism Institutionalized," but above the article itself appears the apocalyptic title, "The End of Marxism-Leninism." The author naturally does not miss a chance to reiterate the Jews' great "Holocaust" hoax, and he assures us that "Only Stalin's [mysterious!] death saved the Jews who had survived Hitler's Final Solution from annihilation." He then speaks of the awful book that Robertson mentioned, but without quite telling us that it was suppressed in 1963. His featured evidence, however, is a confidential memorandum to certain committees in the Communist Party, allegedly written by Valery Nikolayevich Yemelyanov, and presumably typewritten or mimeographed, of which Jewish agents were able to filch part in January 1977.[49] In that memorandum Yemelyanov reportedly not only said unkind things about the sacrosanct race, but even proposed the formation of an international organization to unite civilized men of the West to oppose and perhaps avert the consolidation of Jewish control over the entire planet.

48. It is odd that Candour and the clandestine mimeographed sheet that scares the Jews in Russia agree only on Kosygin as a loyal Russian. Candour's source had no information about Romanov, and, what is most remarkable, Suslov, who is one of the three "real Russians" on the mimeographed sheet, is identified in Candour as a Jew, born in 1902 in the principal city of Azerbaijan, whose real name is Suess and who is the principal representative in Russia of the B'nai B'rith that operates in the United States and watches over the Aryan sheep. Cf. note 41a above.

I naturally cannot tell whether Yemelyanov did indeed express such evil thoughts, but I note that in a long article in the Jewish Chronicle (London), 25 July 1980, Dr. Howard Spier complacently remarks that the "paranoid" Professor Yemelyanov had been fired from his academic position and incarcerated in a "psychiatric hospital."[50] That sounds to me as though the Children of God still had influence in the Soviet Union, but it does not prevent Dr. Spier from chattering with fear about the likelihood of pogroms because, although "overt antisemitism" is not feasible in Russia today, there are Russians who regret that it is not and who even dare to write articles with "racial overtones," which are "thinly disguised antisemitism" and therefore offensive to Yahweh's Master Race.

Among the innumerable shrieks of the Jewish Banshee, none is better written or more coherent than Robert Wistrich's article on the wickedness of Stalin in the Jewish Chronicle, 22 February 1980. Like Ainsztein, Wistrich identifies Stalin as the serpent who appeared in the Soviet Eden and, after beguiling the Slavic Eve by justly equating disrespect for Jews with 49. Further information about the memorandum that Yemelyanov hoped to keep confidential is given in a despatch from Jerusalem published in the Daily Telegraph, Britain's largest conservative newspaper, on 9 March 1978. One of the Ministers in the Israeli government moaned that the stolen memorandum was "an all-out declaration of war against the Jews" by the one man who wrote it.

50. Poor Yemelyanov must have been released from the madhouse after Spier wrote, for a few lines in the Spanish press in January 1981 reported that he had been arrested and imprisoned for "racism," presumably shortly before. Since Yemelyanov is, so far as we know, the only man in the Soviet Union who has dared to suggest (in a confidential memorandum) actual opposition to the Jews, it may be assumed that if he were publicly crucified, the three million tribesmen in Soviet territory, who are now quaking with terror, could sleep o' nights.

cannibalism and making it punishable by death, finally gave effect to the evil thoughts he had secretly harbored in his black soul for a long time and slyly sold her the deadly apple of patriotism. The article is noteworthy for the relative absence of the usual hysteria and for its author's respect for logic, and especially because it identifies, as did Yockey, the hanging of the eleven Jews in Prague as the turning point of Stalin's policy: "for the first time, antisemitism and anti-Zionism openly fused." The trials in Prague were a first step toward "Stalin's own Final Solution of the Jewish question—mass deportations to Siberia . . . . The plan was foiled [sic!]" by the opportune death of Stalin. Stalin's policy was reversed, he is now discredited, and his monuments "have been pulled down," but the terrible thing is that "Stalin's heirs . . . studiously avoided mentioning antisemitism in the catalogue of his crimes." And that means, oh horrors! that we "must reckon with the return of the pogrom traditions of the Tsarist State under a thin veneer of Marxist-Leninist verbiage."

Two of the best articles, which I have mentioned, and numerous others assert that Stalin intended in his own mind to solve Russia's Jewish problem by either transporting the aliens to Siberia, as Wistrich says, or by exterminating them, as Ainsztein claims, presumably by finding engineers and chemists who could overcome the practical obstacles to constructing and operating "gas chambers," such as are celebrated in the Jews' great hoax about the "six million."[51] The evidence that Stalin had in petto a plan to become the Antichrist[52] is both meager

51. The choice of this number may have some special significance. In the early years of this century, and especially during the administration of President Taft, American busybodies were a-twitter over the supposed plight of the six million dear Jews who were "imprisoned" in Czarist Russia because they preferred not to leave it.

52. It must be remembered that the term 'antichrist' does not specifically refer to the christ called Jesus who is the hero of the "New Testament." A christ is, of course, a divinely-appointed King of the Jews, who will lead his race to a solution of the Gentile problem by exterminating Aryans and the like, except for some who may be spared for slavery. The apocalyptic fantasies of the Jews call for the appearance of an 'antichrist,' i.e., a particularly disrespectful and wicked goy, before the appearance of the real christ, who will put the lower races in their place. An 'antichrist,' therefore, is a powerful adversary of the Jews, except, of course, in Christian terminology.

and in conflict with all of his career before he was seventy-three, but we must remember that Dzhugashvili began his career as a theological student and doubtless acquired early the arts of dissimulation and hypocrisy, in which he must have perfected himself. There can be no doubt but that he was a highly intelligent man, so it is out of the question that he could ever have taken seriously the Marxist religion, which he used to manipulate the misfits, simpletons, idealists, and other crackpots over whom he climbed to power, and to outwit his fellow thugs.[53] So talented a man could have concealed even from Jews his opinion of them, but it is also possible that he, like Luther and many other men, trusted the Jews during the greater part of his career and changed his mind only late in life.

The best proof that Stalin was or became inimical to the Self-Chosen People is that a pack of Jewish physicians tried to poison him a few weeks before he died suddenly, reportedly of a "cerebral haemorrhage." They would not have done so without good reason. It is true that some persons believe the story that the physicians were innocent, but they do so on the usual grounds that Jews are "righteous" people, and without reflecting that nothing could be more righteous than killing goyim that get in the way of God's Own. As all Christians well know, that is the lesson that is taught throughout the "Old Testament," which seems such an appalling record of crime to persons who read it without Faith.[54] The virtually infinite

53. It goes without saying that Communist leaders do not believe in Communism. An acute young American, Duane Thorin, who had been intensively interrogated while a prisoner, stated the facts concisely in A Ride to Panmunjom (Chicago, Regnery, 1956): "Intellects that failed to see through the falsities of communism were so arrested that they were of only limited use in the totalitarian state." Czeslaw Milosz in The Captive Mind (New York, 1953) devotes a chapter to the practice of ketman by the more intelligent Communist professionals as they jostle for places on the ladder: like Moslem and Christian theologians, they feign a belief in the orthodox doctrine of their sect and try to catch each other out by devising Talmudic quibbles as traps to obtain admissions that will justify a charge of heresy.

54. Christians, I understand, find especially edifying the tale that is told about Moses in Exodus, 2.11-15,19; 4.19-20. Seeing an Egyptian treat a Jew harshly, Moses found an opportunity to catch the goy alone and, after looking all around to make sure no one could see them, rubbed him out, probably by stealing up behind him and stabbing him in the back. Moses hid the body in the sand, but when he found that someone had seen him after all and would turn stool-pigeon, his chutzpah failed him and he took it on the lam across the border into a foreign country, where, passing superiority of their race is taken for granted and openly avowed by Jews today.[55] The Holy People, for example, did not hesitate to boast over the French radio of their cleverness in poisoning a thousand German officers by slyly putting arsenic in the bread they baked for them.[56] And, as everyone knows, Begin, who is now dropping bombs on the civilian population of Lebanon in preparation for conquest and annexation of that helpless country, early distinguished himself by his efficiency in killing goyim, such as the English men, women, and children whom he blew up by planting a bomb in their hotel. For such valiant deeds he is sometimes criticized adversely by "aunt-eye-see-mights," who do not understand that his victims were just English pigs and probably should have been butchered anyway.[57]

The heroic physicians, like the Lopez who was the personal physician of Queen Elizabeth I and tried to poison her, were caught, but we shall never know whether they had colleagues who were more successful. It is, of course, not unusual for men of Stalin's age to die of natural causes, but a sudden death that occurs so soon after an unsuccessful attempt at assassination, himself off as an Egyptian, he lay low for many years until God came to his hide-out and told him the heat was off in Egypt and the cops were no longer looking for him.

55. According to the press, Dr. Michael Wyschogrod, Professor of Philosophy in the City University of New York, frankly told a conference sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews that there was a vast difference between harming a Jew and killing goyim, because "what happens to the Jewish people is not quite the same" as what happens to other people in that there is "an element of the divine" in Jewish history that makes it special. He admitted that "humanists" and other irreligious persons would think the racial distinction "a scandal," but that is because they do not "grasp the uniqueness of Jewish history." Dr. Wyschogrod also told his audience what makes that uniqueness: the fact that a Jew is always a detached limb of his race and only secondarily an individual. "I am first a member of the Jewish people," he declared, "and only secondarily Michael Wyschogrod." That, of course, is something an Aryan can never understand, for while he may feel a loyalty to, or a duty towards, a class or nation, he can do so only as an individual, and even the strongest effort of the imagination will not enable him to think of himself as having the relation to his race that a member of his body bears to him. The conference was reported in The Christian News, 30 April 1981, p. 15.

56. See the Toronto Daily Star, 9 March 1968.

57. Cf. note 38 above.

and occurs so opportunely—should we say providentially? —for a man's deadly enemies will always arouse suspicions.

When a great monarch dies, there is always a bitter struggle for power among the diadochi, and from what we know of Communists and given the impossibility of dividing the empire, we may be certain that the contest in Russia was especially vicious, but the essential facts concerning it remain secret. Eventually Krushchev, whatever his antecedents,[58] came out on top, having pleased his henchmen by vituperating the man who had saved Russia, the Soviet, and Communism from the German invasion. In 1961, he ejected ignominiously from its tomb the body of the architect of Russia's position as a world-power, had his monuments and memorials destroyed, and even carried post-mortem hatred so far as to change the name of Stalingrad, the site of Russia's most celebrated victory. Such spitting on a national hero and the sheer fury of the posthumous vengeance taken on him, must have had a deeper motive than a mere courting of popularity among the serfs, as sometimes happens in "democratic" countries. In fact, the vitriolic denunciation of Stalin for "tyranny" was a somewhat hazardous gambit, since it might encourage discontent with that tyranny, which was continued with only superficial changes. What the motive was, however, we cannot determine: it may have been known only to the inner circle of the Politburo and must remain an enigma for us.

In sum, then, the evidence before us warrants the conclusion that for a period of about six months—from early November 1952 until 5 March 1953—Dzhugashvili-Stalin openly showed a certain hostility toward the Jews that he had doubtless meditated for some time before putting it into practice.[59] It is reasonable to conjecture that he may have intended or wished 58. I refuse to debate the vexed question whether or not Kruschchev was really a Jew masquerading as a Slav. The evidence on both sides of the question is suspect.

59. The earlier stages of the affair that reached its climax with the hanging of the eleven Jews in Prague are uncertain. The most important of these Jews, Rudolf [nice Germanic name, Gothic hrôth-wulfs!] Slánsky, was arrested on a charge of treason on 27 November 1951, but the Czech executive who had formally ordered the arrest, Kópriva, was himself arrested on 23 January 1952, thus producing a neat confusion to keep everyone puzzled.

to put into practice the stated principles of Zionism. During those six months or more, the Jews seem to have lost the power to control Russian policy, and it may be they did not subsequently recover their dominance over it.[60] There is evidence that Russians are now permitted to occupy in the universities and bureaucracy positions that Jews want.

For the rest, we can only note that there is not the slightest indication that the present régime in Russia intends to accept the theory of Zionism, as it would surely do, if it wished to rid its territory of Jews. Hitler, to be sure, accepted Zionism and made great efforts to foster it, and the Jews will never forgive him for having taken them at their word, but nevertheless a régime that is really anti-Jewish would not overlook the enormous advantage it would obtain by officially supporting Zionism.[61]

60. By far the most complete and objective treatment of the whole question known to me is the late Andrey Diky's Jews in Russia and in the USSR, s.l.&a [1978?]. When I last heard, copies could be obtained from L. Volovlikoff, P.O. Box 8082, Ottawa, Ontario. This work is based on Russian and Ukrainian sources not generally available, especially periodicals, and its author makes every effort to be fair and more than fair to the Jews, giving them the benefit of every doubt. In an appendix, pp. 297-319, the author lists the officials of the eleven principal organs of the Soviet government from 1932 to 1939. Here are the totals: Jews, 447; non-Jews, 68; race undetermined, 34.

61. As we all know—or should know—the premise on which the Zionist movement was founded, and on the basis of which support for it (including the Balfour Declaration) was solicited, was that Jews and Europeans represent incompatible races and cultures, and that the presence of the aliens in Europe will always result in irremediable tension and animosities, to the distress of all concerned. The only solution, therefore, was the creation of a "homeland" to which all Jews could emigrate and in which they could form a nation that would have a geographic unity corresponding to its spiritual unity. See the writings of the founder of Zionism, Theodor Herzl, in his Tagebücher (Berlin, 1922-23) and the passages that were suppressed in the German edition but restored by Marvin Lowenthal in his translation of excerpts (New York, 1956). Herzl's diaries record his negotiations with various European monarchs and prime ministers and his reactions to their attitudes, and I can find in his writings no indication that he was not sincere in his purpose. He did obtain from the British government in 1903 the offer of East Africa as the desired homeland, and was bitterly disappointed when the Jewish Congress rejected the offer. As is well known, the National Socialist government of Germany made great efforts to obtain a homeland for the Jews in Palestine, Madagascar, and in a large part of the territory of the

We are here interested in Yockey. From the foregoing it will appear that he, more alert and perspicacious than other observers, was right in his analysis of the situation in Europe and the world in 1948-52, when he wrote The Enemy of Europe. He did not foresee the sudden death of Stalin, and it can be argued that if Stalin had survived for a lustrum after 1953, Yockey's prognosis would have been fully verified and the history of Europe and of the entire world would have taken a far different direction.

Yockey did not live to witness the official denigration and vilification of Stalin that began in 1961. You may wish to determine in your own mind what conclusions he would have drawn from that astonishing reversal of Russian propaganda, and whether or not he would have revised The Enemy of Europe to take it into account.

THE DYING AND THE DEAD

If Yockey had not been hounded to death by the Jews and were alive today, would he take again, without variation, the oath he took in 1946 when he left Wiesbaden, where he could no longer endure the obscene spectacle of the foul murders that the Americans were committing to please the Jews?

> I will go from one end to the other of my beloved Europe. I know well that I shall be going only to a churchyard, but I know, too, that the churchyard is dear, very dear, to me. Beloved dead lie buried there. Every stone over them, every bomb-crater containing the pulverized bones of these dead, tell me of a life once so ardently lived, so passionate a belief in its own achievements, its own truth, its own battles, its own knowledge, that I know, even now I know, that I shall fall down and kiss those stones, those endless ruins, this blood-drenched, sacred earth, and weep.

former Russian Empire; these efforts were successively frustrated by Great Britain, France, and the defeat of Germany in 1945.— It is faintly amusing that Kevin Klose, in the article about "Anti-Semitism" in the Soviet that I mentioned above, lists a report that when the Russians grant exit visas to the Jews who wish to emigrate, they maliciously give preference to the ones who will head for the United States instead of remaining in the national ghetto, where they could enjoy "family [i.e., racial] reunification."

> But I surely also know that then, despite a convulsive rage at the perpetrators of this crime, I will again stand erect over this European graveyard and swear the solemn oath that to my last breath I will fight tooth and nail against those who attempted, in vain to be sure, to destroy the cradle of our Western Culture, with its unmatched accomplishments, with its deeds unique in the annals of Humanity. This, I, Francis Yockey, do solemnly swear!

Do men die of broken hearts?

The physical scars of the Suicide of the West have been effaced. The ruins have been replaced by restorations or new structures that often do not show the grotesquely anti-human vulgarity of Jewish art. The intellectual and spiritual devastation, however, not only remains but grows apace. It reminds us of H. G. Wells' anticipation of nuclear warfare: the atomic bombs he imagined produced a steady chain-reaction, so that their craters constantly grew larger and spread wider, gnawing away the countryside, mile after mile. Or perhaps a better analogy would be an endemic disease that slowly but steadily destroys a dwindling and dying race.

Even a cursory survey of Europe today would require a volume, but we may permit ourselves a few hurried glimpses.

In Germany, the Jews did not insist on their original plan, set forth in Theodore Kaufman's Germany Must Perish!,[62] that

62. Newark, New Jersey, 1941; reprinted s.l.&a., and available from Liberty Bell Publications. Kaufman's book is an excellent and most instructive specimen of Jewish thinking. He wrote before his tribe had invented the Holohoax, and so he can only scream that the Germans are militaristic and have produced such awfully wicked philosophers as Nietzsche; that makes them "an execrable people" and they must be exterminated, one and all. He prides himself on his tender heart, which makes him recommend that instead of having all the Germans massacred at once, the survivors, men, women, and children, should be herded together and sexually mutilated by surgeons (he even computes how many will be needed for the godly work) so that they cannot reproduce their damned species. In Schuld und Schicksal (Munich, 1962), J. G. Burg, a Jew who was born in Germany and lived throughout the war in Germany or adjacent territories, believes that Kaufman's book was part of a concerted effort by the Jews' master minds to exasperate the Germans and thus incite pogroms to help create "world opinion" for a war against Germany and for dispossession of the inhabitants of Palestine in favor of the Jews, after their Huns had overwhelmed Germany, the surviving Germans would all be surgically sterilized to ensure the prompt extermination of a nation that had offended the Sons of the Covenant. That Final Solution might have seemed objectionable to "an-tie-see-mites." So the good work was entrusted, in Germany as in other Aryan nations, to the demoralizing and disintegrating effects of what Yockey calls "culture-distortion": "democracy" (i.e., government by organized crime), "education" (i.e., sabotage of children's minds), usury, financial piracy, drug-addiction, promiscuity, miscegenation, mongrelization, promotion of superstition and irrationality, and the other blessings Americans now enjoy. That is working very well in Germany. A statistician has calculated that if all things continue as they now are, in ninety years the only living Germans will be senescent and past the age of reproduction.

In Germany, as in other Western nations, the Jews are resorting to pseudo-legal terrorism as well as mob violence to enforce belief in their "Holocaust" hoax, and they are more or less committed to the slovenly version of the tale that they used as a pretext for the obscene and savage murders committed by the British and Americans at Nuremberg. That fiction was an improvement on earlier versions,[63] but it relied principally on the perjury of a German traitor who had been an American spy and Burg supports his conclusion with photographic reproductions of documents in German and Yiddish. He quotes (p. 72) Chaim Weizmann as having said in 1934, "I would much rather see the annihilation of the Jews in Germany than failure to make Israel a land for the Jews." Weizmann (who became the first president of "Israël" when it was finally established in 1948) in October 1934 mobilized Jewish pressure on the British government to make Britain frustrate Hitler's proposal that Jews who wished to leave Germany should be permitted to go to Palestine or whithersoever they wished, taking with them one thousand pounds sterling and goods to the value of 20,000 marks, the remainder of their holdings (if any) to be paid for in regular installments over a period of years. Several subsequent efforts by Hitler to help the Zionists attain their professed goal were frustrated by Britain and her allies, obviously in obedience to Jewish commands. It was the failure so to exasperate the Germans that they would resort to pogroms that made it necessary to invent the "Holocaust" hoax. It is noteworthy that, with the exception of Burg and a very few others, the Jews do not seem to regard as immoral the efforts of Weizmann and other Elders of Jewry to procure the "annihilation of the Jews in Germany," who numbered about 500,000; presumably the sacrifice of those Jews would have been "good for the Jewish people," and that is all that matters.

63. According to the Courrier du Continent, a valuable little bulletin throughout the war, and was so carelessly contrived that it could not resist critical examination.[64] Since the exposure of the great hoax, there has been a belated attempt to produce "witnesses," who, I estimate, are as numerous as the individuals, many of them Aryans, who have reported their vacations aboard "flying saucers" or their confabulations with little green or cerise men from Mars or elsewhere. The principal burden of the attempts to enforce belief in the incredible, however, is the doctrine that it is an "insult to the Jewish people" to disbelieve whatever they choose to tell the lower races.

We should not err, as do so many anti-Jewish writers, by interpreting this Jewish terrorism in terms of our own mentality and so regarding it as a consciously evil fraud. As several Jews told the National Conference of Christians and Jews, "normal [i.e. Aryan] ethical standards" are "irrelevant" in such matters.[65] I do not profess to understand the Jewish mentality, but it may be that one aspect of it was revealed by Professor Eric Goldman of Princeton University, if he was correctly quoted as contending that history is a "weapon" to be employed for "determining people's ideas and attitudes," and that a respectable historian has a "responsibility . . . for making sure that he writes history in such a way as will bring about the kind of action published at Lausanne, in its issue for May 1981, a delightful early version of the "Holocaust" hoax was given by a Jew residing in Sweden, Dr. Stefan Szende, in a book published at Zurich in 1944. According to this version, hundreds of thousands of Jews were exterminated by the cruel Germans at Belzec (a small town about twenty-eight miles south-southeast of Lublin), where the Germans had constructed a vast underground installation, including huge halls, built entirely of metal, with floors that could be raised or lowered by machinery. Each floor was a triumph of engineering, so large that several thousands of dear Jews could be packed on it, nude, at one time. The elevator then descended until the Jews were immersed in water to their waists, when a powerful electric current was introduced into the water, electrocuting them instantly. Then the elevator went up to a station at which a further application of electricity incinerated and presumably vaporized all the thousands of corpses, and the machine was ready for a new batch of several thousand. Presumably this version was thought too complimentary to the Germans' famous talent for engineering and applied science, just as the claims that Germans had exterminated 40,000,000 or 12,000,000 Jews were considered a bit hazardous mathematically and the figure was reduced to the 6,000,000 in the current version.

64. See the works cited in note 45 supra.

65. Reported in The Christian News; see note 55 supra.

that he wants." Professor Goldman even made the frightening claim that his equation of history with propaganda was the view of "most historians [!]."[66] One can imagine no more total contrast to the Aryan conception of history as an effort to recover, as accurately as possible, the absolute truth about what actually happened: Von Ranke's famous standard of a perfectly objective description of the past wie es eigentlich gewesen wäre, and James Harvey Robinson's addendum that history should also determine objectively, if possible, wie es eigentlich geworden wäre. It is quite possible that to the Jewish mentality what actually happened appears completely irrelevant, and our interest in ascertaining historical truth may seem to be just another odd manifestation of our mental inferiority. The only thing that matters is what you can make your subjects believe, including, perhaps, the mass of your own race. To us, that seems reprehensible deception, but it is quite possible that to the Jewish mentality "truth" is whatever is good for God's People.[67] That may be why Jewish forgeries and hoaxes seem to us so amazingly careless, and we wonder why their contrivers disdained the relatively small amount of work that would have been required to make their fabrication consistent and plausible: to them it seemed apodictic that people ought to believe what is good for the Jewish people without thinking about it. The tales in the "Old Testament," for example, are attempts to simulate an historical record, but it seems never to have occured to the rabbis to make them internally consistent and less absurd.[68] And the nonchalance appears today. When Professor Butz's masterly exposure of the Jews' Holy Hoax about the Germans was first published, Jews residing in the United States and holding professorships in American universities, who must surely have learned from observation of their goy colleagues what we consider to be the academic standards of integrity, began at once to denounce as "an infamous lie" a book of which they had never even seen a copy, and did so without even taking the trouble to ascertain its title, which they gave as "The Fabrication of a Hoax" or "The Holocaust Never Happened," and urging that such disgrace to the academic profession be "rooted out" and presumably exterminated. The venomous hatred is, of course, only natural, but what is significant is that the learned professors did not take the two minutes of time for a phone call by which they could have learned the title of the book they were denouncing so hysterically. To us simple-minded Aryans, that seems amazing.

66. Goldman is quoted by Professor James J. Martin in his section of the impressive biographical monument, Harry Elmer Barnes (Colorado Springs, Myles, 1968), p. 241. That Goldman may be right about the majority of persons who now call themselves historians is suggested by the fact that the once-respected American Historical Association, which turns a penny now and then by renting out its membership list, crawled on its yellow belly in abasement and apology when it found it had rented the list to the Institute for Historical Review in Torrance, California, which wickedly conducts historical research that does not bear the Kosher seal of approval.

67. This attitude carries over, of course, into the Judaic religions, such as Christianity with its ostentatious repudiation of the "wisdom of this world" and its exaltation of the believing nitwit above rational and learned seekers of the truth. A good example is Augustine, who must have known that he was lying (by "pagan" standards, at least) when he assured his open-mouthed congregation that he, as a missionary, had saved the souls of a whole nation of Africans, who had eyes in their chests and mouths where a man's neck would be but no heads, organs for which good Christians would presumably have no use. The same spirit appears in the numerous ecclesiastics who, during the Middle Ages, equipped a cathedral, monastery, or church with one of the many foreskins clipped from the infant Jesus when he was circumcized or a bottle of the Virgin Mary's milk or another Holy Shroud. The contriver of the imposture could tell himself, perhaps sincerely, that he was helping save the souls of many yokels by stimulating the tourist trade and augmenting his revenues.

68. It is true that when the "Old-Testament" tales, in the form that they had around the beginning of the first century B.C., were translated from Hebrew and Aramaic into the koine dialect of Greek, thus forming the Septuagint, the translators did make some superficial efforts to clean up some absurdities in addition to converting the stories to monotheism. For example, the author of the myth about Esther gave the stupid Persian king the name of Assuerus or Ahasuerus or something like that, a purely fictional and non-Persian name. The translators made him Artaxerxes, which was safe enough, since there were three Persian monarchs of that name, who ruled between 484 and 337 B.C., and that sounded plausible to persons who had no real knowledge of Persian history. In the story of God's unsuccessfull attempt to murder Moses (Exod. 4.24), the translators reflected that it was undignified for the creator of Heaven and Earth to be lurking about a desert inn, and they accordingly made the terrorist "an agent of the Lord," which is certainly less grotesque. The Hebrew text underwent some censorship after the Septuagint was made; for example, in the tale of Esther there were several deletions, including the passage in which Esther explains to Yahweh how repugnant to a Jewess is coitus with an uncircumcized man, although, of course, she remains faithful to her duty to manipulate in the interests of her race the goy whom she has attracted sexually.

The continuous rewriting of history, so graphically described in George Orwell's 1984, may seem to the racial mentality of Jews no more than a common-sense provision for ensuring "social justice" and the like. For example, a Jew recently wrote a book to prove that no tribe of savages ever practiced anthropophagy: all stories of cannibalism, except in a few cases of acute hunger (e.g., the Donner Party in California), were invented by the nasty "race prejudice" of the swinish Aryans.[69] I don't know whether that claim is important for Jewish purposes, but if it is, it is surely a proof of the evils of "racism" that it isn't feasible as yet to have all books of history and ethnology that mention cannibals dumped down a "memory hole" into ever-burning incinerators in all the libraries of the world. So far as I know, this attitude toward historical facts has never been systematically investigated, but Samuel Roth, the eminent and courageous Jew to whom we owe so much, touches on it in his references to the "Old Testament."[70] But, I repeat, we must not be misled by the emotional binges of writers who hate Jews and cannot consider the problem objectively. Whatever tampering with facts may seem to us, we must remember that to the Jews it is simply an expression of their righteousness, however little we may be able to comprehend such an attitude. It is strictly comparable to the mentalities, equally alien and mysterious to us, that Professor Haas studied in his fundamental Destiny of the Mind.[71]

So much has to be said in explanation of the recent imposition of righteousness in Germany. The puppet government in Bonn has ordered its courts to find that it is a criminal offense to doubt even the most impossible parts of the Holohoax, on the grounds that such doubt "denies to every Jew the respect to which he is entitled."[72] Men are now serving long

69. Professor W. Arens, The Man-Eating Myth (Oxford University [!],1980).

70. See note 29. Roth discussed the expurgations and falsifications of the stories on pp. 25-51, 57-62 of his book. These chapters and part of a chapter were omitted in the reprint to avoid sending Christian holy men into fits.

71. See above, p. 17, n. 19.

72. The decision of the German Supreme Court is quoted in the Jews' "intellectual" periodical, Patterns of Prejudice, January 1980, pp. 32f. The prison sentences for having dared to express such doubts, and recently the Bonn government's Thought Police raided the homes of almost 500 Germans who were suspected of having in their possession books, pamphlets, or leaflets of which the Master Race disapproves. It is also a criminal offense in Germany to doubt the "authenticity" of "Anne Frank's Diary," a hoax contrived with such contempt for the Aryan mind that it contains such blatant internal contradictions that it could not impose on any reader who has even a modicum of critical intelligence.[73] And the exercise of normal intelligence is a criminal offense even though the Bonn government's own criminological laboratory reported that the manuscript was written throughout in the hand of a single author, who made many of his revisions with a pen that had not been manufactured before the supposed "martyrdom" of the young Jewess who is supposed to have written it. And there are rumors that the Jews are demanding that all mail that comes into Germany be opened and censored, lest some vile correspondent abroad say something that might start ratiocination in the dumm Kopf of a cringing German. Such is the plight of Germany today.

The British have not yet sunk so low, but one has misgivings for the future. They destroyed their empire, sacrificed the lives of 357,000 persons, permanently depleting their racial vitality through the loss of much of their best blood, and inflicted painful and often irremediable wounds on 370,000 more; they disrupted their society and demoralized their whole population; and they impoverished themselves and their descendants, perhaps forever. All this they did to punish the Germans for having wanted to have a country of their own, and I wonder whether many Englishmen expected gratitude from the Jews. If they did, what were their sentiments when they read recently in William R. Perl's The Four Front War that among the dastardly persecutors of God's Race the vile British are second only to the article goes on to demand more stringent legislation in Germany to "plug the loopholes" in existing laws and make certain that Aryan curs do not even think improper thoughts.

73. If you want to make sure that you didn't overlook any of the ridiculous contradictions in the yarn, see Ditlieb Felderer's incisive booklet, Anne Frank's Diary (Torrance, California, Institute for Historical Review, 1979).

vile Germans? Maurice Samuel was right: nothing that Aryans can do will ever satisfy his insatiable race.

Americans, remembering the old British tradition of gentlemen, are wont to assume that British politicians must be somehow morally superior to the gangsters of the great syndicate of organized crime that rules the United States. That is a mistake: the only difference is that the subordinate gangs, which stage competition on the lower levels, are called "Conservative" and "Labor," instead of "Republican" and "Democratic." Their activities correspond, even in detail, to the treason and looting that James Farrell has clearly described in his new book, The Judas Syndrome.[74]

The British, no less than the other Aryan nations, are driven by the death-wish that has been so deeply and perhaps ineradicably implanted in their subconscious minds. Not content with liquidating their empire, they began to import into their already overcrowded and overpopulated island hordes of anthropoid vermin from all over the world, from black savages to turban-wearing Asiatics. Any rational man could have predicted from the very first the inevitable consequence of the wholesale importation of racial enemies, but now, as well-organized mobs, directed by portable radios, surge through large quarters of British cities, burning and looting and killing, the Anglo-Saxon and Celtic boobs are astonished and listen, open-mouthed, to their governmental betrayers as they chatter about "unemployment" and, with almost incredible effrontery, claim that there are no "racial overtones" to race riots. The solution, of course, will be to surfeit the vermin with yet more blood sucked from the veins of the tax-paying serfs, who do not seem even to remember that they once had a country of their own. No one, so far as I have heard, has even dared to suggest what should be obvious even to schoolboys: the architects of the policy that imported the racial enemies and the loud-mouthed holy men and "humanitarians" who approved and endorsed that policy are either (a) conscious traitors, who intended the consequences of their acts, or (b) so feckless and feeble-minded that they must henceforth be excluded from influencing national policy in any way.

74. San Francisco, Fulton-Hall, 1980. The author skirts warily around the edges of the race problem, but he does consider the sheer insanity of importing into our overpopulated land ever growing hordes of black savages, mestizos from Puerto Rico, Cuba, and Mexico, and Mongoloids from southeast Asia in the guise of "refugees." The obvious result will necessarily be a situation like that described in Jean Raspail's "chilling novel about the end of the white world," The Camp of the Saints, of which the English translation, published by Scribner's in 1975, had so large a sale that it is now out-of-print in both cloth-bound and paperback editions. (Guess why!).

Traitors have imposed on the befuddled British a "Race Relations Act" to make certain that the white population, which is being dispossessed, does not openly resent the hordes of alien invaders. Englishmen are now in prison for having been so bold as to assert that their race is fit to live. And although the British, who are still a majority on what was once their island, are harassed by economic pressures and deafened by the clamor of their dervishes and the rest of the rabble of world-improvers, their bovine acceptance of their degradation makes one wonder whether the imprisoned men were not mistaken in the belief they expressed. Christians, of course, must be expected to obey the command of the Jew they worship: "Love your enemies and slaughter mine" (Luke 6.27 & 19.27). But Christians are a minority in Britain, estimated by competent observers at less than one-fifth of the white population. What of the other minority that should be dominant, the intellectually superior minority that has enjoyed the incomparable advantages of the British public schools and of Oxford or Cambridge? They evince no more comprehension of reality than the religious. The gods first make mad those whom they would destroy. And we can only behold with painful catharsis the tragedy of a nation which once had an empire on which the sun never set, and which, in Herculean madness, reduced itself to a mass of frightened sheep, huddled together on a small island on which the sun will someday set for the last time.

The "Race Relations Act," to be sure, has some loopholes, and Englishmen who hire competent solicitors expert in such matters can still make some appeal to facts and reason without going to gaol, although, of course, they expose themselves to surreptitious chastisement. The Jews, needless to say, are agitating for legislation to "plug the loopholes" in the existing tyranny.

As mere specimens of the English way of life today, we may note the following. The Jews burned the printing establishment in Uckfield, Sussex, that had been printing magazines and books that do not bear the Kosher seal of approval. One of the arsonists, caught by his own arrogant overconfidence, pled the privilege of his race to destroy their enemies, but found that arson, even with such noble motives, was still technically illegal in Britain, and he received, from an apologetic magistrate, the minimum sentence. He was found to be an old hand in Yahweh's service, having been identified as one of the burglars who, equipped with forged credentials as telephone repairmen, "cased" the apartment of David Irving, the author of The Destruction of Dresden, and were later caught red-handed in the burglary, equipped with tools from the British postoffices. The daily press in Britain suppressed mention of the deplorable arrest and trial of the high-minded arsonist.[75]

The masters of Britain naturally have their own corps of terrorists, special police, doubtless Englishmen willing to do anything for a small salary, paid by the bovine taxpayers. On 16 April 1981, these goons raided the apartment of an Anglo-Saxon in Brighton who, they said, was suspected of having in his possession a small booklet that did not show proper reverence for God's Race. Since he was at his place of employment, as they doubtless knew, they smashed open the door of his apartment and turned everything upside down, looking vainly for the horrible booklet. Frustrated in their suspicions, they departed with a large package that doubtless contained his expensive camera, the money he had left in a drawer of his desk, and other fenceable property, leaving the broken door open, so that they could claim that someone must have entered the apartment after them. At latest information,

75. The trial was concisely reported in the local Sussex Express, 17 April 1981. The newspaper, doubtless hoping to be thrown a bone, interpolated the remark: "To say the publications handed to the judge [to justify the arsonist's pious deed] were 'vile and evil' was a masterly understatement." The incident was also reported in the small weekly publication, Focal Point (London), 30 May, which inter alia observes that since the trial and sentencing took place hurriedly and without the knowledge of the victims of the arson, the purported specimens of their publications that were exhibited to the judge and newspaper may well have been forgeries. That would be only normal! My knowledge of the incident I next mention comes from a document prepared by the victim's solicitor and letters from friends.

the victim, just an Anglo-Saxon, to be sure, has vainly petitioned for redress.

Britain has indeed been blessed with righteousness. An Englishman's home was once his castle; now it is his kennel.

We must cross the Channel to la belle France for the most accurate measure of Europe today. In the historic land of liberté, Professor Robert Faurisson of the University of Lyons, maintaining the now antiquated tradition of intellectual integrity in academic circles, stated publicly that the Jews' infamous hoax about the "six million" was a preposterous hoax.[76] Squads of Jews attacked him on the campus and burst into his classrooms to make it impossible for him to conduct classes, while the authorities of the university beamed approval. He and his publishers and even newspapers that had printed his replies to their defamation of him were prosecuted in the French courts for "insulting" the Jewish nation by doubting one of the lies by which it most conspicuously exhibits its racial solidarity as a super-organism. He has been beset by multiple prosecutions in the French courts, and he has thus far been sentenced to a public recantation of his veracity and fines that will amount to one million francs in the new currency (one hundred million in the old). His total savings as a university professor with a family amount, he says, to about two thousand francs. And other prosecutions are still pending. The French system of justice doubtless hopes that it can drive the Aryan dog to suicide, but if that does not work, it will probably be wiser than the Inquisition that permitted Galileo to survive and will have Faurisson doused with gasoline and burned in a public square, while Jews dance merrily about the pyre.

It is a nice irony that Professor Faurisson's only support, so far as is known, comes from a Jew, who has disobeyed his race, and a few French "leftists." He would doubtless have been supported by Professor François Duprat, if the Jews, as they openly boast, had not preferred to punish that man for his

76. It is said that the Institute for Historical Review will publish English translations of Professor Faurisson's major articles in an issue of its Journal. Presumably it will do so unless the Jews, who have made one attempt to burn down the building in which the Institute is located, succeed in a new attempt.

denial of the Holy Hoax by blowing up the automobile in which he and his wife were riding. The "New Right" in France, of which we once entertained some hopes,[77] has been taught a lesson by the Jews, who broke into one of their conferences and clubbed them, permanently crippling one man, while the French police looked on benevolently. The few French champions of Western science and rationality now slip quietly away from their universities or homes to meet, almost furtively, in secluded parts of the countryside, fearing raids by the Jews or the French police; and they are doing their best to pretend they never heard of Professor Faurisson. It's embarrassing, but courage, mon ami, le pauvre diable n'est pas encore mort, mais il le sera bientôt.

It is easy to foresee the future. The simplest way out of the disconcerting fact that so many of the "six million" whom the Germans exterminated are alive and conspicuous in such capacities as that of the President of the "European Parliament" will be to claim that the Germans did indeed kill them, but they, being Yahweh's pets, naturally arose from the dead after three days or some other appropriate period of time.

The next step is easy. As Douglas Reed observed in The Controversy of Zion, to the Jews "the world is still flat and Judah, its inheritant, is the center of the universe."[78] Surely,

77. It even excited alarm in this country. The National Educator, a "conservative" periodical that espouses the kind of economics that would have made sense in 1954 and the kind of "education" that is to be based on ramming the Jews' creation-myth into the minds of schoolchildren, gave a page of its issue for May 1981 to a "guest editorial" under a screaming headline: "Europe's 'New Right' turns toward anti-Judaic, anti-Christian paganism," pointing out that the French Nouvelle Droit actually believed in scientific research and such wicked things. The editorial made it clear that in this more righteous nation the term 'New Right' must be reserved for the howling dervishes and other shysters who are working the "Moral Majority" racket. A subsequent issue of the journal advertised that ragged old hoax, the Holy Shroud of Turin.

78. See above, note 4. The passage I have quoted occurs on p. 105 and continues, "The ruling sect has been able, in great measure, to impose this theory of life on the great nations of the West, as it originally inflicted The Law on the Judahites themselves." Reed goes on to point out that Jews' mission in this world is based on the promise Yahweh made to Israël: "I will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come." (Exod. 23.27). Reed's is, on the whole, an excellent book, marred only by some there can be no greater insult to the Jewish nation than to doubt the word of its god, who made the world a flat cake of mud and placed above it the sun and moon, balls of fire floating in the upper atmosphere, so that he could stop them whenever he wanted to help his Holy People massacre the inhabitants of a country they wanted to steal. French courts of justice will surely repress the vile "racists" who cast doubt on Yahweh's words, and a few million-franc fines, supplemented by burning a few incorrigibly sane Frenchmen at the stake, will establish righteousness throughout the beautiful land où l'oui résonne.

And then one more step. Yahweh told Moses, "I have made thee a god to Pharaoh [i.e., the unnamed king of the Egyptian goyim]." Now it is only proper that the "Sons of the Living God" should be the gods of the lower races and be worshipped by them. It requires no great effort of the imagination to picture thousands of French men and women assembled in Notre Dame, in obedience to the orders of their courts and government, to worship bare-footed rabbis seated on the altars.[79] And the choir will sing the inspired words of the prophecy: "And Israël shall rule the world forever."

Fantastic? Less so than what has now actually happened in Germany, Britain, and France would have seemed before the Suicide of Europe.

Such is a hurried bird's-eye view of the continent that was, for Yockey, "the sacred soil of Europe," the homeland of our civilization. He was young when he was hounded to death, and charitable efforts to temper the wind for Jesus's lambs. Incidentally, he makes the interesting suggestion (p. 207) that Herzl, the founder of modern Zionism (see note 51 supra), whom Samuel Roth described as "probably the first honest Jew in the public life of the world in two thousand years," may have been eliminated by Jews who wanted to take over and pervert his Zionist movement.

79. Ralph Perier in Liberty Bell, November 1980, p. 22, has called attention to the extraordinary emotional fixation of the Jews, as shown in passages he cites from both the "Old Testament" and the Dead See Scrolls, which demands not only that other races, and especially Aryans, shall become their abject slaves, but shall demonstrate their submission by using their tongues to lick the dirt from the Jews' bare feet. No other race, so far as I know, has ever shown that bizarre lust. Perier also quotes, "Israel shall rule the world forever," from Gaster's translation of the Dead Sea Scriptures, where it is the climax of an imagined war in which the Greeks and Romans (i.e., Aryans) are totally exterminated, but also survive to do the desired licking.

he did not live to see the Europe of today. Perhaps we should say of him, as Tacitus said of Agricola, felix opportunitate mortis.

THE EPITAPH

Yockey's hopes and his striving seem vain and futile in the desolation of today. He appealed to a manhood and an intelligence that had died on a thousand battlefields and have become bodiless wraiths, drifting on the shifting mists of time. But he will be remembered—if there are any to remember us—as a man who sought to resurrect Europe and, in the end, gave his life for the dead. His memory will be honored in the future—if we have a future—as that of a man whose lucid mind enabled him to see the vapidity of the verbiage about "world peace," "brotherhood," "human rights," and the rest of the hallucinatory fictions that are used by evangelists, politicians, and other swindlers to benumb the minds of their victims. He was a man who had the courage to state the grim truth that a nation's survival depends on its spiritual cohesion and its will to power—to naked, undisguised, unmitigated power, power over others.

A nation, a civilization, a race that has lost the will to conquer and dominate has lost its will to live—has lost the vitality that makes it fit to live in a world in which the inexorable laws of nature provide that only the strong and resolute shall survive. Yockey summoned our race to put down its opium-pipes and look outside its den of dreams to the real world, in which it will soon have no choice but to fight belatedly or perish ignominiously. It was not his fault that the drugged minds could not respond, could not comprehend.

After Imperium was republished by The Truth Seeker (New York) in 1962, Yockey's work, which had been almost completely suppressed and was known only to the few individuals who had the luck to find, and the means to purchase, copies of books that had become extremely rare, became more widely known and accessible to those who wished to know it. It inspired untrammeled minds.

In the late 1960s, some youthful enthusiasts formed the Francis Parker Yockey Society, and, since it was not kept secret, they, few as they were, alarmed the boobherds of more than one local newspaper, ever on the watch for an outbreak of common sense. It was the young men's intention to erect a monument to Yockey, and, after much deliberation, they decided it should bear these words:

TO THE MEMORY OF
FRANCIS PARKER YOCKEY
AUTHOR OF IMPERIUM
WHO FOUGHT THE GOOD FIGHT TO THE BITTER END.
Ço sent Rodlanz que la mort l'entreprent, . . .
Sour l'erbe vert si s'est colchiez adenz,
Dessoz lui met s'espede e l'olifant.

The lines from the great Chanson may be translated thus:
And then, when Roland felt death coming upon him, he lay down on the green grass, placing his sword and his horn beneath his body, and with his face against the earth.

EPILOGUE, THE ERINYES

In 1945, in the devastated and desolate land of a nation of heroes, the American Army forced a German physician to save the life of a captive who had tried to commit suicide. The wretched man, who had surrendered in the mistaken belief that he was surrendering to civilized human beings, had contrived to find a piece of wire and twist it tightly about his throat in the hope of escaping the long, lingering, and exquisite tortures for which the self-righteous sadists reserved him.

The German physician grimly did what he was compelled to do, but he was a man. He looked the commanding officer in the eye and said calmly: "You Americans have done more than violate the law of nations. You have committed hybris. God will punish you, and if there is no god, Nature will."

Yes, Nature will.

To Americans who do not enjoy leading a precarious and degraded existence in the filth and stench of a multi-racial society, it will seem that Nature has already done so. But, in the vernacular phrase, they haven't seen anything yet.

When the syndicate of organized crime that governs the witless and spineless Americans began to tax the serfs for "aid" to "underdeveloped nations," rushing American food and medical skill to accelerate the savages' already prodigious rate of breeding, giving them American equipment and American engineers to industrialize their jungles, and naturally inciting them to rape and murder the Aryans caught in the newly independent "nations," the ineluctable consequences of that policy were obvious to every man who could perform simple arithmetical calculations.

I did no more than state a patent fact, long known to thoughtful observers, when, in an article published in 1963,[80] I wrote: "At the present rate, the globe, sometime between A.D. 2000 and 2005—that is to say, within forty years—will be infested by 5,000,000,000 anatomically human creatures, the maximum number for which food can be supplied by even the most intensive cultivation. And then, to keep the globe inhabitable at that bare subsistence level, it will be necessary to kill every year more people than now live in the United States—kill them with atomic bombs or clubs, as may be most convenient."

It will be less than twenty years now.

Meanwhile, the Americans, eager to show they have

80. American Opinion, December 1963, p. 23. The fact was obvious from the "exponential" increase in the world's population of non-Aryans and the geographic determination of the amount of arable land on the planet. But the ineluctable process of nature could have been, and was, foreseen long before the "population explosion" actually occurred. Sixty-seven years ago, before the First World War and while our race's absolute superiority and dominion over the planet seemed assured forever, the great and forgotten American philosopher, Correa Moylan Walsh, wrote in the first volume of his Climax of Civilization: "A return will set in of the re-active pressure of nature upon mankind. . . . The struggle for existence will again become sharp and bitter. . . . But woe to the people which has not men that will stand up and fight without flinching. Those countries where the moral decay shall have gone deepest, where the proved stock shall have died out and given way to poor stock, where the greatest effeminization of men shall have taken place (for the masculinization of women will be no compensation), where the strong and the wise and the shrewd shall gain no more of wealth, power, and influence than the weak, silly, and incompetent, all being equal,—those will go to the wall. And when this fate shall have overtaken most of our western white men's countries, our cycle of civilization will be completed."

elephant-sized hearts and canary-sized brains, are importing into their already overpopulated and befouled country hordes of racial enemies who quite frankly boast that they will take over for themselves entire states and groups of states, expelling or killing the stupid Aryans, for whose idiotic generosity they have a supreme and justified contempt. For the details, I must again refer you to James Farrell's The Judas Syndrome.[81]

And now the promoters of "aid" to "underdeveloped nations" have discovered what they knew all along, that they hastened a catastrophe from which the opium of superstition and maudlin sentimentality will provide no refuge. The Club of Rome, which had been busy fostering international "understanding" and international looting, hired experts from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to report on "the predicament of mankind," and published the results in The Limits to Growth (London, 1972). What emerges from the report is a desperate hope that catastrophe can be postponed by de-industrializing the "emergent nations" and finding ways to kill off a large part of the prolific anthropoids, so that global starvation will not begin in 2000. There are many graphs to show the possible effects of miracles: if, for example, the yield of food by arable land were doubled by some inconceivable means, the starvation crisis could be postponed to 2024. The shock to tender minds is cushioned by speculations about the invention of "perfect" means of birth control, which will be made "available" to everyone—"available" being an euphemism for making the use of such means compulsory, which, being impossible, in turn means mandatory abortions, which are equally impossible of application to the most prolific races—and that makes nonsense of the bland assumption that all races are equal and are to be equally reduced. Talk about reducing the birth rate globally is mere verbiage: everyone who knows anything about the non-white races (except Jews) knows that the only practical means of control requires an enormous increase in the death-rate.

81. See above, note 74. Since savages are constantly pouring into Florida from Haiti, I cannot forbear to notice a little-known historical fact. Abraham Lincoln, who was not a man without foresight and conscience, although he presided over the fratricidal war of aggression that ended the American Republic, actually began to put into practice his determination to export all Blacks from this country. On 31 December 1862, he approved contracts with entrepeneurs, chiefly from financial circles in New York City, to export 5000 Negroes to Haiti and resettle them there, at a cost to the government of fifty dollars a head. The contracts were carried out, but many of the Blacks were subsequently brought back to this country by "do-gooders" eager to afflict the white population.

The Club of Rome's report also made projections that simply ignored the crucial question of food, and these showed that even if manna showered from the skies, essentially the same crisis and struggle for life would occur at approximately the same time from the exhaustion of the natural resources of our insanely exploited and ravaged earth, and also that if that factor be disregarded, the planet is being so polluted by its anthropoid parasites that, at no distant date, it will cease to sustain their life.

Some glimmering of reality penetrated even the fog in Washington and produced the Global 2000 report which, officially endorsed by the Secretary of State, calls for the elimination of two billion (2,000,000,000) human beings by the year 2000 to avert the otherwise inevitable chaos. The report is naturally evoking screams from the holy men, who like to orate about the day when Jesus will pop out of the clouds and raise Hell, but naturally cannot bear to think about reality, and from a wide variety of others, who find such ideas bad for their businesses.[82] There is much that can be criticized adversely in the report, but not the statistics, and it is the statistics that excite hysterical denials on the grounds that they are unpleasant. The gang in Washington is, of course, trying to use the report for its own purposes, but that is quite another matter.

One thing is quite certain: the population of the globe is going to be drastically reduced within the next twenty years as the struggle for life begins in earnest. Christians will, no doubt, go on bleating about "the sanctity of human life," especially the lowest forms of it, but they might as well expound that silly notion, which only our race has ever taken seriously,[83] to

82. A particularly odd yell of blind indignation is the booklet, Global 2000, published by the "National Democratic Policy Committee" = the "U.S. Labor Party" = the mysteriously financed operations of one Lyndon LaRouche. The booklet is well worth reading for its sophistries.

83. The even more absolute doctrine of the "sanctity of all life" appeared in the "Orthodox" religions of India and Buddhism while the a typhoon or an erupting volcano. The forces of nature do not listen to idle talk. Neither do mammals who must kill or be killed—unless they are degenerate and have lost the will to live.

The population of the globe is going to be drastically reduced, and in the course of that reduction, it is virtually certain that the inferior races will become extinct, as Darwin foresaw, although not in the way he anticipated.[84] The only question is which races will not survive the inevitable war for survival.

Every species of mammal capable of conscious thought thinks of itself as in some way superior, but a claim to racial superiority is particularly congenial to our race, which for long had proof of it in the mastery of the whole world which it suicidally discarded. Aryans still pride themselves on the superiority of their civilization, and it is undoubtedly superior, aesthetically, morally, intellectually, i.e., in terms of its own values, so that 'superiority' is merely a tautology. We must face the brutal fact that the only real superiority is biological, and is shown by a species' ability to survive and increase at the expense of others.

The colored races naturally multiply as do rabbits. In the coming struggle for survival they may eat each other, if they run out of white meat, but they will breed so rapidly that they will survive, unless a superior power makes an intensive effort to exterminate them.

The Jews, whose racial cohesion has made them a super-organism, are undoubtedly a superior species. Beginning as a wretched gang of marauders, they, in only 2500 years, scattered throughout the world while retaining with undeviating concentration the super-organic unity of their purpose, and achieved virtual mastery of the globe. That you may disapprove of their Aryans were still dominant. In polyphyletic India of today, individuals who humanely avoid injuring the lice they remove from their hair associate with individuals who are votaries of Kali and believe that the highest religious merit is obtained by treacherously murdering a man whose confidence they have cleverly won. Such is the charming diversity of a multi-racial society.

84. See above, note 3.

methods or their character is irrelevant. They have given proof of biological superiority. One wonders whether that superiority will enable them to consummate their total triumph or whether the super-organism is too inflexible, its instincts too fixed and rigid to cope with an entirely novel situation, so that the multiplex organism will perish in the chaos it has created, exulting, perhaps, in the total destruction in which it will also be destroyed.

So far as one can extrapolate from the present, disregarding our pathetic hopes for a psychological and biological miracle, there is one race which, by its own fatuity and degeneracy, seems likely to become extinct less than a century after it was master of the world.

THEN AND NOW

by Allan Callahan

How many are aware that when the Roman Empire began to go down, it had government departments and policies similar to those of the United States, Great Britain and Australia in recent times? It had a Farm Credit Administration, a Public Works Administration, a Price-and-Wage Act, A Farm Debt Conciliation Committee, A Resettlement Administration, and a Federal Land Bank. Banking was a big thing and bankers accepted both checking accounts and accounts bearing interest. Rome also had a race-mixing policy.

Prices climbed so high in 301 A.D. that a great clamor went up for something to be done. A Price Control Act was then put into effect, but prices were set too low, causing an immediate shortage of commodities. Doles and subsidies were begun, and became greatly expanded. Two pounds of free bread were given daily, and at one time as many as 200,000 people were getting this. Sometimes they were also given pork, olive oil and salt. Games and circuses were also provided for the masses, to help them keep their minds off their problems. At first these were tame affairs, featuring things like acrobats, jugglers, and athletic events. Later, however, they changed into the brutal affairs that we have read so much about.

As indebtedness increased it acted as a drag on commerce. Small farmers were driven to the wall. They could not compete with the large estates which kept getting larger through the increased use of slave labor. Dispossessed Romans streamed to the capitol city. Along with the farmers and peasants came the small shopkeepers who had gone bankrupt. All hoped to find jobs but good jobs were scarce. Therefore, the government itself created more jobs. And the numbers getting handouts went up. The wheat dole increased to 320,000 people. As inflation drove prices up, those employees who still had jobs demanded more money. To placate them, politicians made incessant raids on the Treasury. To bolster shrinking revenues, taxation had to be increased till it became intolerable on the remaining taxpayers.

At its zenith, the capitol city had a population of about 1,000,000. Just before the collapse, half the people were on the public payroll. At the end there was not enough money to pay them, because the taxpayers had been bled to death.

Perhaps the word "collapse" is misleading, because it implies that the end came suddenly, but this was not the case. As all historians know, the decline and fall of the Roman Empire was not a sudden thing. On the contrary, it took place over a period of centuries. Textbooks on ancient history give the date of 476 A.D. as the year in which the Roman Empire finally came to an end. But the rot had set in, in a small way, long before then. Over 500 years before, in 54 B.C., Cicero had lamented: "We are taxed in our bread and our wine, in our income and our investments, in our land and on our property, not only for base creatures who do not deserve the name of men, but for foreign nations..."

As would be expected, the decline was not something that took place at a set pace. There were ups and downs. There were periods when things got better. But they didn't last. The downs began to outnumber the ups. And all this time the Romans themselves did not realize that their way of life was coming to an end. The more educated classes, especially, had hope for the future, even though they were worried. And some of the wealthier people managed to more or less hang on to the "good life" up till the end. One example is given to us in the person of a man named Sidonius, a Gallo-Roman country gentleman who later became a bishop. Through his letters we know of the pleasant life he led near the end of the fifth century A.D., in that part of the Roman Empire which is now called France. Sidonius had a villa in the lovely hill country of southern France near Clermont. It had a library, an open fireplace, and baths. He gave hunting and dinner parties. Life was good, but the barbarians were getting closer. Sidonius was uneasy, but he could not bring himself to believe that the end was near at hand. Then he became frightened. Still he was able to write to a friend: "Providence I doubt not will grant a happy issue to our prayers and under new blessings of peace we shall look back upon these terrors as mere memories."

Providence failed Sidonius. Within a few years after his death his handsome villa had been burned to the ground. The cities and towns in southern France were shrinking and drying up, and his way of life was to vanish from Europe for 1300 years.

The racial stock of the barbarians from northern Europe who conquered Rome was every bit as good as the racial stock of the early Romans in the days of the Republic. But this did not hold true for the racial stock of the Levantine and Oriental portions of the Roman Empire. Yet none of the Roman Emperors who wanted to make citizens of all kinds of foreigners seemed to realize this. They made the same mistake that Alexander the Great did. Alexander encouraged his generals to take wives among the women of the conquered countries, believing he could thus Hellenize the peoples of these regions. But he was wrong. The Hellenic genes were swallowed up by the huge foreign genepools into which they were placed, leaving hardly a trace, and his empire began to break up immediately after his death.

Perhaps Alexander and the Roman emperors can be forgiven for their ignorance on racial matters, because there was no race science in those days. But modern presidents and prime ministers of the Western nations cannot be forgiven, because there is adequate race science around today to take note of. Their refusal to heed it is a far worse crime than anything else they have done. Americans think George III was bad. We think the Revolutionary War against England was justified. Actually, the government of King George didn't treat us white Americans half as badly as our own government treats us today. Maybe the Crown's taxes on tea and a few other things were a mite heavy, and possibly the currency restrictions were a little onerous, but at least King George didn't try to mongrelize the white colonists out of existence, which our own government is trying to do to us now.

Our white government (if it can be called white) in Washington, D.C. should be demanding that the truth about race be taught in all the schools. But it is doing just the opposite. It is suppressing the truth, and putting out lies instead. Therefore, it can be said that we white Americans have no government of our own. The present regime is dedicated to the interests of non-whites and Jews, and is destroying us through the "Law of Reversion." Prof. Lothrop Stoddard writes of this law in THE FRENCH REVOLUTION IN SAN DOMINGO. This book came out in 1914. Prof. Stoddard taught at Harvard (of all places), back when the truth could still be told about race in American colleges. In Chapter IV we read the following:

"From the earliest days the colonists had been brought to realize one apparent fact—the fact of that greater assimilative power of the black blood later formulated as the 'Law of Reversion.' Once let the black principle enter a stock, and it seemed impossible ever to breed it out again: the moment fresh infusions of pure white blood ceased, the mulatto apparently began to revert to the negro. The learned Jesuit Father Labat notes this early in the eighteenth century, and Moreau de Saint-Mery writes to the same effect."

"Elaborate scientific experiments were made by slave-owners with an enquiring turn of mind—and the law apparently held good in the most extreme cases. On a plantation of one of the smaller French West Indies there were married two mulattoes, neither of whose ancestry had suffered an infusion of black blood for six generations. 'These young people were of remarkable beauty. Their hair was extremely blond, their features retained no negroid trace, and their skin was so white that they might have been taken for albinos, had it not been for the supple vigor of their limbs and the unusual brightness of their minds. Well—their children were unmistakably colored, and their grandchildren of an extremely dark shade.' "

" 'After an experiment such as this, a man might well ask how many successive marriages with whites were necessary to really destroy in a family all trace of negro blood, and it is easy to understand why pure white families always refused to marry with persons having the smallest drops of the black. For, once permit this first marriage, and it needed only a second to turn a white family into mulattoes. And—from mulatto to negro, the way was short; it needed only one or two steps of the same kind.' " (Stoddard was quoting here from the writings of Vaissiere.)

Thus we see that the "Law of Reversion" has the power to wipe the white race off the face of the earth. And we are violating this law, more and more, every day. Does this mean that all white Americans, Englishmen, Germans – and indeed all Caucasians in the world—could eventually suffer the same fate as the white Frenchmen in San Domingo, who were finally overwhelmed by the far more numerous colored hordes, losing the war, their country, and being mongrelized out of existence to boot? Do you think such a fate is impossible?

Think again, white man. □

The Price of the Head, continued from page 6

scalp-dances. There was much conjecture, then and ever since, but no solution to the puzzle.

That has now been provided by an old Harvard man, who observed Langer's metamorphosis at the time and was at first puzzled by it. He was a friend of George Sylvester Viereck, a talented man of letters who suffered much for his efforts to prevent the stampeding of the American cattle in 1917 and again in 1941. Viereck told him that he had been summoned to the White House in the late 1930's, where he was confronted by Roosevelt and his flunky, Fulton Oursler, who urged him to change his attitude toward the "European situation," since it would be very profitable to do so. At the height of the discussion, Oursler asked Viereck why he was being difficult. "After all," Oursler said, "Langer took $75,000," and intimated that it was unreasonable to expect much more than a Harvard Professor. To the amazement of Roosevelt and his flunky, Viereck refused to be bought at any price, so the tyrant had him thrown into jail for four years illegally, where he was subjected to all the horrors described in his Men into Beasts.

So now the Langer Mystery is solved at last. The sum of $75,000 in the only partly debased currency of that time was the equivalent of at least half a million dollars today—the equivalent of $1,250,000, if one computes according to a gold standard. It was a very large sum to a man whose academic salary was probably between $4,000 and $5,000. Harvard men will be pleased to learn that Harvard professors commanded top prices on the auction block at that time. And young academicians of today, if they venture to concern themselves even remotely with current affairs, will be sullen when they reflect that they sell their intellectual integrity for no more than a pat on the head from their dean and a chance of getting a handout of a few thousand contemporary dollars from some "foundation" for "research" and all the bother of manufacturing a book in some approach to correct English. They may also reflect bitterly that the initial bribe was only a down payment, so to speak, and that when the Crusade Against Western Civilization got under way, Langer enjoyed the highly remunerative appointments to governmental agencies that we listed summarily above.

As an individual, Langer is of little importance. Even his scholarly books will soon be superseded and he forgotten. His name will probably be lost in the throng of professed historians who participated in the infamous campaign of "educational obliteration, professional liquidation, and personal erasure"* directed against Barnes in a desperate attempt to

*Professor Stanton Ling Davis in his contribution to the monumental volume, Harry Elmer Barnes, that I cited above. The Historical Blackout, so lavishly financed by the American government, the Rockefeller Foundation, and other organs of corruption, was flagrantly vicious in its attacks on Barnes; see especially the sections of that volume written by Professors George Andrew Lundberg, Arthur Goddard, S.L. Davis, James J. Martin, and Henry M. Adams. One will discover, for example, that a President of the American Historical Association, holding an office which was silence him and terrorize other men who would not help perpetuate the massive mendacity that was used to stimulate the American cattle stampeded against Germany after Roosevelt succeeded in arranging the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Judicious observers, however, will see in the suborning of Langer in 1936 or earlier a foreshadowing of the vast governmental corruption of scholarship and science that so dismayed Norbert Wiener (see his I Am a Mathematician) when he first encountered scientists who "intrigued and lied" for a fast buck.

Not long ago, the head of what should be a strictly scientific department in one of the major universities commented on the odd (and ominous) phenomenon that persons who can claim to be scientists on the basis of the technical training that won them the degree of Ph.D. are now found certifying the authenticity of the painted rag that is called the "Turin Shroud," championing the Jews' absurd creation-myth, or adducing "scientific" arguments to support hoaxes about the "paranormal" or other debris of an antiquated religiosity. "You can hire a scientist [sic]," he said, "to prove anything." He did not adduce himself as proof of his generalization, but he did boast of his cleverness in confining his own research to areas in which the results would not perturb the Establishment or any vociferous gang of shyster-led fanatics.

If such is indeed the status of science and scholarship in our darkling age, Send not to ask for whom the bell tolls. □ once a high honor, was a character-assassin who could, in a letter to the president of his university, say of Barnes, "I know him to be an irresponsible and dishonest scholar," and support that statement with shamelessly dishonest misquotation that was tantamount to forgery. Rightly perpended, the venality and mendacity of professed scholars and scientists is the most terrifying aspect of our decadence. In his History of Historical Writing (2nd ed., New York, Dover, 1963), Barnes quoted a letter from the eminent British historian, Russell Grenfell: "The determined rush of the historical Gadarenes into the sea of falsehood and distortion has been an astounding phenomenon." Captain Grenfell's Unconditional Hatred (New York, Devin-Adair, 1953) is one of the landmarks in what is commonly called "revisionist" history although it should simply be called history, as distinct from professional lying. The various writers in the biographical tribute to Barnes I cited above comment, in one way or another, on the great difference between the years following 1918 and the years following 1945. The lies disseminated to pep up the cannon-fodder in the First World War were exposed and discredited with no inordinate difficulty by honest historians; the even fouler lying used in the so-called Second World War is officially maintained today, thirty-six years after it served its purpose, and enforced by an academic terrorism and, in the major European nations, even by governmental terrorism. The writers, and even Barnes himself, seem not to have noticed the fundamental difference between the aftermath of 1918 and the situation today: in the 1920's, the resistance to honest history came chiefly from politicians, journalists, professors, and others who had actively participated in the lying or at least taken positions that compromised them. After 1945, however, a new and extremely powerful force was exerted to perpetuate the innumerable hoaxes—the dread, ruthless, secret, and almost irresistible power of the international race that has, for 2500 years, realized the prophecy that it put into the mouth of its tribal god: "I will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come." (Exod. 23.27)

BOOK REVIEW

Secret Societies and Subversive Movements, by Nesta Helen Webster. Unabridged republication of original (1924) edition. Index, xiii + 419pp. Paperbound $5.50. Available from Liberty Bell Publications.

Reviewed by Charles H. Roberts (Nordic Racialist, Anti-Zionist, and 32nd Degree Scottish Rite and Royal Arch Mason)

Back in the foggy depths of time, the mystery initiations of secret societies were widely regarded as the gateway to "hidden knowledge," most of which was, by the standards of today, just so much wretched mumbo-jumbo. That secret societies have at various periods in history been used to undermine traditional values and established institutions is an undeniable fact. Nesta Webster's Secret Societies and Subversive Movements, written in 1924, when superficiality and pseudo-authority had not yet triumphed over meticulous scholarship, is an unparalleled study of this subject, a storehouse of knowledge and information. In tracing the development of Freemasonry, Mrs. Webster shows the origin of some of the higher degrees worked even today in the Scottish Rite Lodges and recounts the capture of Continental Masonry in the late 1700's by Adam Weishaupt and his Illuminati. (Interestingly, her conclusions about the role of the Masonic lodges in the French Revolution are echoed in a recent study by James H. Billington, Fire in the Minds of Men: The Origins of the Revolutionary Faith (New York: Basic Books, 1980). Although Professor Billington never mentions Mrs. Webster's work as a source for his own, I cannot imagine where else he could have obtained some of his information.) Early in the book, when touching briefly upon the Levantine influences on the Knights Templars, she draws one of her most significant conclusions: the magic, alchemy, and Satanism so prevalent in mediaeval occultism—and still practiced in "high degree" Freemasonry—were transmitted to the West by the Jews, and are preserved in the Cabala, a kind of mystery-mongering supplement to the Talmud.

It is unfortunate that so many works dealing with the darker side of European Freemasonry are woefully lacking in documentation and reasoned argument. Indeed, many of these works would lead one to believe that every Freemason is a "crypto-jew" doing the secret bidding of Zionist higher-ups. Rabid anti-Masons who are fond of quoting Mrs. Webster would do well to consider this statement from the preface to Secret Societies: "From the beginning I have always differentiated between British and Grand Orient [i.e. French] Masonry, and have numbered high British Masons amongst my friends."

If the reader is looking for a book that reveals all the secret words and handshakes of the lodges, or a book that will give him a good excuse to hate Freemasons, then he must look elsewhere. Secret Societies and Subversive Movements is objective, well-reasoned, and eminently fair. Written from the standpoint of one deeply concerned about the decline of the West, it is must reading for all who are engaged in the struggle to save Nordic Man. □

Checking the Jews Repatriation of the Negro

Reprinted from The Talon, published by
The Euro-American Alliance, Box 2-1776, Milwaukee, WI 53221

We shall now proceed to discuss the most important subject in the world: how to save our White race and its culture-civilization from utter extinction. Let us face the grim reality of American life today. As long as the hateful, cunning Jew continues to lord it over our institutions and thus our very lives, so long as the Negro is allowed to stay here in this country within striking distance—miscegenation—of the White race, our future remains most assuredly bleak, i.e., we shall surely die as a people, and most miserably.

It is no secret that the Jew, driven half mad by his Talmudic upbringing, seeks to obliterate White civilization as a preliminary step to world rule. His forebears in Palestine hated the Greeks and the Romans, and during the mediaeval European period the Jew, though kept in line, did what he could to pull down organized society. We have discussed in previous issues how the Jews bought and sold kings and princes, how they forced the old nobility to borrow from them at usurious rates which threatened the structures of then solidly-based feudal economies, and, thereby, how the Jews came to control the Christian nations via the idea and mechanism of fiat scrip as 'issued' by central banks. We told you how the French Revolution was inspired and engineered by Jews to deal the death stroke to the Ancién Regimé which had ruled our race relatively well for a thousand years. This is unimpeachable historical fact, and the Jew has diligently sought to suppress its teaching in the schools of America. No more HISTORY courses!

Every valid criticism of the Jewish record in the Western world is mislabelled 'anti-Semitism,' even though the Jews are as guilty as sin, and irregardless of the fact that 90% of world Jewry today are Ashkenazim —bloody Khazars—and therefore not Semitic in the slightest. Informed White scholars are never allowed to publicly address the issues: any silly subject may be discussed at cocktail parties, on the Jewsmedia, and in university symposia; however, let anyone mention the Jews, and he is expected to fall down in a froth of adulation and moth-eaten paeans.

The other day the Alliance was part of a television feature depicting the "Radical Right in Wisconsin." The Jewsmedia requested permission to attend one of our monthly meetings in the library—a public building—and have an in-depth interview with our officers; we agreed to this because it was felt that they would smear us whether indeed we spoke to them or refused. An interesting aspect of the piece was that the Jewsmedia never asked us specific questions concerning the Alliance's position on the Jewish Problem. We were given leading questions to respond to of such a generalized nature that either no one could have been offended by what we said or made by the lack of gravity of such responses to remember them. Even had we discussed the Jews it probably would have ended up on the cutting-room floor.

What this shows is that there will be allowed no debate on the actions of the Jews against the White race and America. These enemy aliens will continue to stifle our critical comments as long as we allow it. As Gen. R. Never has said: "A people deserve whatever they permit." That would seem like a cliché were it not so true. The White race can halt this Jewish control of America anytime we choose to do so. How? By stepping up in sufficient numbers to every Jewish distortionist in public life to inform him that he had better stop what he is doing that is dangerous to our racial and national health: stop thrusting the Negroes and other race aliens upon us; stop reviling the White race and working to bring us to ruin—or else! The only thing that prevents our liberation from the cruel tentacles of Jewry is our unwillingness to be directly involved in open controversy of such a racial nature. Whites seem to fear name-calling, of which the Jews are past masters, more than racial destruction; this must cease, and soon.

But if we fail to free this country from Jewish strangulation it is the end for America and the White race. There will be no reprieve—no second chance; we shall either be destroyed in a Jew-promoted Middle East war, or slowly mongrelized unto felladom, like ancient Egypt and India before us. Though the Jew war is a distinctly immediate prospect, race destruction via miscegenation is more certain and irrevocable. Some Whites would survive any type of a war that might be fought with the most destructive weapons known to man, but once race pollution sets in we are gone forever, never again to be seen on the face of the earth.

Now for the crux of this essay. Given that the Jew will—must—be controlled, his power, awesome though it may seem, stripped from his grasp, nevertheless, that is no assurance that White America will fall no less a victim to mongrelization, the racial swine pit, thus turning the once-proud Aryan into a mud man. As long as the Negro, who has in his genes the imprint of recent African savagery and intellectual incapacity, a total inability to create a civilization of his own or appreciate ours so as to help preserve and protect it; as long as these poor, wretched offspring of the dark continent that has never, in millions of years, inspired the Negro to do anything more constructive than stand upright, kill game and pick from the trees; as long as these uprooted Africans are allowed to remain here in White America, they will continue to pose a clear and present danger to our very existence as a race and a nation. The Black man has shown for the past four hundred years that he is incapable of adapting to Aryan civilization; he has demonstrated that he is nothing but a burden, not only here but in every White society he infests.

Presidents Jefferson and Lincoln favored repatriation of the Negroes to some place in the tropical world where they might find contentment. They belong there: it is to their benefit that they be removed, with compassion but with determination, from America; it is absolutely vital to our survival as a race that the Negro be repatriated, either back to Africa or to a number of other tropical climates where their acquired skills could be used to their advantage and to elevate the benighted peoples therein, their living standards, though we are not convinced that the repatriated Negro would not over a period of a few short years revert to tribal savagery. One is not cleansed of his genetic failings simply through residence for a few hundred years amongst highly-developed races.

The problem of rights under the Constitution can be solved, if the Jewish perverters of our law can be prevented from intervening. The so-called Reconstruction Amendments, XIII, XIV, and XV, were never validly ratified according to Article V of the U.S. Constitution; thus, the Negro, once chattel property of the White man, was never lawfully made a citizen of the United States. He has certain rights, protections, and guarantees, but only those commonly granted to resident aliens: common law applications, protecting him against criminal acts and civil injustice, those guarantees accorded by civilized nations to all peaceful aliens within their borders. The Negro may be removed peacefully and with some considered financial compensation, or he may be removed by force; he must, however, go—at any cost he and we must pay. His absence will initiate an era of good feeling and prosperity—civil tranquility—unheard of in America since the War of Southern Secession. But if allowed to remain, the Negro will be the death of us: we will pay the supreme penalty. That means all of us—and our precious fair-skinned children and their descendants until there are no more.

Checking Jewry, and by the way, they will have to go also; for once this alien Fifth Column begins to realize that the Aryan race is finally on to them they will never let us rest. The call of White patriots for resolute action in this matter will first be ignored. Should, however, enough Whites be willing to take heed and act, the Jews will respond with the full fury they have always displayed when caught in their scheming. Notwithstanding the dangers, it must be done—beginning immediately with advocacy—or else all is lost: 5000 years of Aryan progress and life snuffed out. □

"The only absolute antidote to the menace of JEWISH COMMUNISM is to call our sons back to a PRIDE OF RACE."

Henry Ford, Sr.

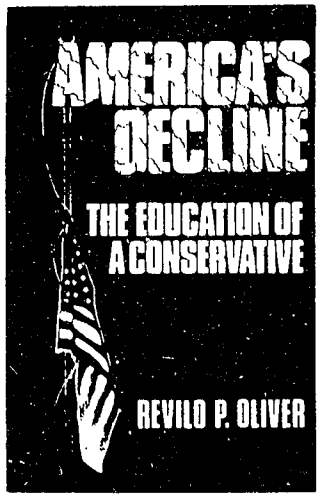
FOR MY LEGIONARIES The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

THE ANTI-HUMANS by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270. today!

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM "AMERICA'S DECLINE

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principal of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

by Revilo P. Oliver — 376 pp., pb. $8.50

plus 85 cents postage — ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

The Liberty Bell

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE JEWS (And Those Who Wish They Were)

page 7

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

CIVILIZATION AND BARBARISM, page 1
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, page 3
THE GERMAN LABOR SERVICE—1933-1945, page 11

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

Civilization and Barbarism

Arthur Nicholas Taylor

It is often enough said that the purpose of the Germans, like the purpose of the true Englishman, is to spread civilization wherever they go in this big world of ours. I believe that it is a true observation based on years of experiential fact. Repeatedly the editor of The Liberty Bell has proclaimed, in a quite fascinating magazine: 'He who can read and does not read, is to be classified with those who are illiterate.' Thus these Germanics are carrying forth their ancient heritage. May the gods bless them! And in precisely the same way, Alistair Cooke, an individualist who sponsors the only sane hour on television these days, namely English novels set into play-form, well, he is doing precisely what his nation is well noted for: Spreading real civilization to those who have none.

A man with a gorgeous 'southern accent' came through here recently and he left an item on the desk, which I quote verbatim: "Every Jew should be taught to spell Plato and Aristotle, given a cup of their own sweet wine, and then taken out and summarily shot! They are an insane crowd of primitive fools!!" What more can the intelligent American, of any state in this union, add to that?

This observer too has been exposed to television over the years, and unfortunately must concur with the above judgments of these various men, whether they originate in Germany, or in England, or in one of our Carolinas. These men are severally and in their own ways just simply STATING THE TRUTH.

And yet, what could be added to these perspectives? I would say that it does not require a great deal of philosophic imagination to react to our television blanket of essentially boring sameness: If the Jews want concentration camps and gas chambers, as that seems to be their compulsive neurosis, then why not give it to them? If the ancient Romans could not feed enough meat to the lions in the form of 'Jewish Christianity,' and if the old Russians could not solve their problem by means of the famous 'Russian pogroms' which we read about, and if the Germans cannot produce enough gas even to fire their own kitchen stoves, well then, we true Americans had better figure out something beyond 'bread and circuses,' something beyond those 'Russian blood-baths,' something even beyond the mythological gas chambers of the Germans—in reality the essentially creative Germans never produced anything beyond great chamber music, so this business of gas-chambers is a palpable absurdity. So much for 'chambers,' judicious or otherwise!

It should be plain and obvious to any rational observer that this Jewish crowd, with all its emotional insanity and psychotic delusions, has pleaded for years and years—in every hosting culture—for the actualization of so-called Gas Chambers. Every night on criminal and deceitful television, these sub-humans rationalize their deep subconscious desires. They 'create' criminal drama by which to mislead the youth for the simple reason that they themselves are both emotive and noisy and criminalistic. Now if they did not want this 'resolution' they would not refer to it so very often. It is precisely like the old maid who hates men—they also spew out their poisonous venom for exactly what they subconsciously crave.

Any philosopher worth his salt can recognize that 'opposites are often identities' so that Jewish emphasis on deceptive 'morality' is in reality a plea for actual 'immorality.' Ironically, the Jews ask White Men to please control themselves; in practice Jewry teaches only crime, deception and pornographic impulsions.

Recently I met a highly successful businessman in Michigan. What he had to say would probably require asbestos paper to hold it, for as you may know, some businessmen have more good sense than abstract education. However, would you please allow me to re-state his actual words in mild prose? He said in effect: "The only harm the Germans ever did us Americans was to release Sigmund Freud from Germany back in 1936, and that bit of sly viciousness has ruined more real Americans than anything Hitler could have done with his submarines or bombers. The rest of that d... verbiage about the evil Germans is h.... s.... Since they could not win the First World War against us, perhaps Hitler thought he could undermine the character of us Americans by the introduction of that diseased and poisonous old rabbi in disguise. And so the Germans released Freud, in 1936, to prey at will upon us innocent Americans. Even our women and children are not safe!" Well, that was it. I suppose this businessman simply had an intuitive grasp of what intellectuals call: Vulture-Jews living upon every hosting culture. Even a sensitive nurse at one of the hospitals in Denver came out and insisted: "You know, Freud was a terribly sick man!"

Evidently the clever Jews can even make money on poor hapless neurotic people—indeed I wonder how many have made money on Ann Frank's diary nonsense, as well as the rest of their clap-trap propaganda? The idea that Israel is little more than a fraud, a bribery or intimidation of the innocent for making money—is another generalization along the same line of their very primitive advance. The concept of extortion-money is certainly well known among sophisticated legal circles.

Fortunately or unfortunately, realistic human culture and civilization is not based on 'primitive dreams.' Therefore, the typical Jew can never extricate himself from a position of relativity, dissipation and destruction.

He cannot create because he has no soul within himself—any more than Australian aborigines can write Bach or Mozart. And furthermore, if Aryan mandkind cannot see reality, and in good time, they are destined to perish.

Yet what is the converse argument? Study philosophy, if you will, especially the modalities of impossibility, probability and possibility. We may well be living during a special era of human time: 'Are we now listening to the swan song of the violin?' In any case, we Americans are sick and tired of mendacious propaganda even if so well coupled with insane social theories. □

Letters to the Editor

Dear Brother Dietz: 12 April 1982

I am impressed with Klassen's three books. . .

Now 82, I retired in 1974 after 28 years in the Federal Government, Wash., D.C.

Keep going—you are doing great!

Sincerely,
C.M., Georgia

* * * * *

Gentlemen: 13 April 1982

I have recently become aware of your publications, especially the one written by Harwood, and would like a list of your other writings along with the prices of purchase.

I must say my eyes were really opened after reading about the "six million Jews" holocaust.

I am very anxious and looking forward to your lists, etc., and would like to hear from you as soon as possible.

Cordially yours,
P.G., Washington

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 15 April 1982

At last I am able to scrape together my subscription renewal. What with

BACK IN PRINT:

MONEY CREATORS
by Gertrude M. Coogan
Reveals Secrets the Money Changers Have Paid
Millions to Conceal! — $5.50

LAWFUL MONEY EXPLAINED
by Gertrude M. Coogan
How To Win Back Your America! — $3.50

Order your copies from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

moving house and the last winter affecting my income from gardening, my finances have been at a record low lately.

I hope you have been managing better than I, because I regard your republishing of the almost unobtainable things of Rosenberg as a tremendous achievement of world importance, and hope that whatever else you have to give up, you will succeed in this. This is really tremendous.

All the best!
M.P., England

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 18 April 1982

Donation enclosed—Hope you can maintain the good quality of your work—I appreciate it.

Best wishes,
Dr. D.R., Maryland

* * * * *

Dear George: 22 April 1982

The recession has cost me my job, so am not able to send much, but maybe the enclosed donation will help a little.

"The Liberty Bell" is unique, and all the books, leaflets and other things you print are bound to have a significant effect. Rest assured that your work is beginning to have an impact.

White solidarity!
A.C., Missouri

* * * * *

Herr Dietz! 24 April 1982

I feel you should continue to attack the institution of Christianity whenever possible. I can offer the following explanation: I know personally a fellow Aryan, racially impeccable, with the customary White need for belief in a more profound reality than is readily apparent to us. He unfortunately has grasped, as many of our people have, Christianity, which is to say, he worships the Jews. All efforts to convice him that the Jews aren't sacred fall on deaf ears.

The "chosen people" myth is beyond our capability to assess in terms of racial destruction of the Aryan peoples.

The Jews are the living embodiment of God to most Christians, and a few people who try to reconcile racist views to comforting tales about "God and afterlife" are now lying to themselves as well as their brothers when they seek to "salvage" the Christ myth.

Purification from the bacillus of Christiainity should be our immediate goal. Brave minds, hard hearts, and racial pride are needed, all of which are anathema to "Christians."

Sincerely,
J.M., Oklahoma

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 23 April 1982

I have just returned from the Virginia State Capitol in downtown

Richmond where a group had gathered in the name of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, apparently promoted by the Holocaust Commission.

My first inclination was to write the Governor about my impressions but quickly realized that in so doing I would be expected to open my letter with an honorary salutation and a respectful closing, so decided against ist.

The invocation was pronounced by a rabbi among the powers behind the podium in which he called upon the Almighty to assist in their efforts at keeping the myth alive. Then the front men took over with a repitition of holocaust propaganda with a few embellishments such as blood stains on the walls and dogs tearing bodies apart. Among the front men was a college president, a former editor, and the Governor of Virginia. The scholars and historians, who have thoroughly exposed the big lie, and whose honesty Jewish money could not buy, were hardly referred to except as an allusion to the misguided. One speaker cited as his authority his personal visit to Dachau in 1947, where he had been shown, and had been told, and I instinctively added, been sold.

The audience was implored to remember and never forget, so I dutifully recalled that the promoters of that event were more responsible for WW II than their audience. While walking back to my car, I stepped over several scalloped curbings, silents reminders of war paraplegics who were not mentioned in that "week of remembrance" gathering. My thoughts also searched for stronger adjectives than misguided to describe those puppets

BROTHERHOOD

We don't have a conference of chickens and foxes
We don't have a conference of temperance and booze
We don't have a conference of victims and robbers,
But we do have a CONFERENCE of CHRISTIANS and JEWS —
HOW COME ?

who were performing so well for their puppeteers.

Sincerely,
G.W., Virginia

* * * * *

An Open Letter to All White Folk, written by a Member of the National Socialist Study Group, Missouri.

On April 24, 1982, there was scheduled to be a meeting of the Klans in Hannibal, Mo. I, personally, am not a Klansman, but a close friend of mine suggested that we take a trip to Hannibal, just as a show of unity, and to talk to some fellow patriots. Now, my cousin, who is a prospective member of ours, decided to come along, too. So, off we go; we drove at least 100 miles, plus, and arrived in abouts 2 hours time.

Now, for those people who don't know Hannibal, Mo., let me tell you a little something about the town: It is not really a large town, a little smaller than St. Louis. It was Mark Twain's birthplace (as you recall, they have been trying to ban the "racist" book, Huck Finn, by the same author, recently, from our schools). The town is located near the Mississippi River and is basically a WHITE community (they have approx. 1,000 Blacks there).

The Klan had obtained a permit to hold a rally in a baseball park near the old Armory. When we arrived, there were a couple thousand Niggers, Jews, Commies, and just generally misguided White Folk (one actually carried a sign that read: WHITE PEOPLE ARE STUPID!), but we didn't see any Klansmen. I talked to several people, including law enforcement officers, who had seen all these 'bused-in' troublemakers run the 20 or so Klansmen off all the way to the county line, escorted by police.

Now, the two things that make me mad are the following:

1) Hannibal residents are basically pro-White, yet they refused to help the Klan, who were holding a LEGAL rally, fight off the NAACP and other rabble, who were bused in to their town just to make trouble. It's that ole White Apathy again. They probably feel that if the Klan wants to march, they should be able to fend for themselves—and maybe they're right.

2) What in hell is the Klan doing, holding a recruiting rally with such a small group; if you're going to have a show of strength, then, by God, you'd better have strength to show!

There should have been enough Klansmen to block the crap from messing up the rally. I saw the same thing go down in 1978, when Michael Allen led 20 National Socialists down Chippawa Street in St. Louis; they were beaten off by the same rabble.

I admit that it's a shame that we don't have freedom of speech in this country, but as Klansmen and National Socialists we should be aware of this fact. I mean it looks a hell of a lot better to sit back and recruit quietly and earnestly, than to be run off by trash, which the press claims is just the wrath of the people.

I refuse to attend another SIDESHOW rally; when the people get off

continued on page 9

An Open Letter To The Jews

(AND THOSE WHO WISH THEY WERE)

Reprinted from The Talon, published by
The Euro-American Alliance, Milwaukee, Wisc.

Let us speak the truth: Only a few living persons know, or are willing to admit, what really happened to the Jews during World War II. Eleven German leaders were silenced [by Jewish Ritual Murder!] forever at Nuremberg so that they could not shed light on the subject or in any way contradict the alleged Holocaust. The rest of the German people have been intimidated into silence. Thus, the Myth of the Six Million has been allowed to become an article of faith in the minds of tens of millions of Aryans.

But if the alleged Holocaust were not a myth, then Jewish intellectuals and shabbes goyische pretenders to grey matter would not hesitate to discuss and debate the subject with the revisionist historians. What we do know is that these atrocity allegations have served the Jews better than any crying towel since the Inquisition. Without the Holocaust dogma and hagiography there would be no "Israel" lodged in the gut of Palestine, no Jewish control of America's institutions—no reason to continue to be Jewish.

Suffice it to say, then, that whatever happened to those Jews who waged a dirty war of revenge against Germany from 1933 to 1945, they deserved much more than they received. The crime of these Jews was the attempted murder of the birth of a Western cultural resurgence, taking place in Germany under Adolf Hitler. Hitler knew that the fight of Germany's life would be against international Jewry and their creation, the Soviet. He was aware that Plutodemocracy was also the tool of the Jews, alter idem, as it were, of Bolshevism; both putting the squeeze on Germany, the harbinger of Europe's regeneration.

Hitler's war against international Jewry and their Communism was at the same time a war upon international Finance. Had not special interests been at work in Great Britain, France, and the United States, Germany's struggle against the Kehillah, the Commune and the Bourse might have been successful. These three forces considered Hitler's New Order a threat to Jew power and profits; Communism was the Jewish hammer striking the anvil of Western Europe, a tune which Hitler was determined to prevent. Few realize today what was actually at stake in the Second World War. It may be another century before the truth can be admitted. Then Adolf Hitler's objectives can be reviewed without prejudice.

The results of the Second World War, however, speak for themselves:

The White man is everywhere being displaced. Great Britain's empire, rotted from within by Jewish influence in the highest circles long before the rise of National Socialism in Germany is nor more. France is forced to exist today under Marxian Socialism. The Germans are captives in their own country. So, too, is America enthralled by a Zionist Occupation Government.

There is no hope for the White race, if it does not immediately come to the grim realization that the Jewish powers who presently rule over the Western nations desire and work toward the absolute destruction of White men everywhere. The Jews and their surrogates are aware of the tremendous regenerative capabilities of the Aryan race, and that is why they try to force mongrelization on the White race, especially in Britain and America: from racial bastardization there can be no hope of return to genetic purity and vitality.

Most strange and inexplicable is the willingness of all too many Whites to accept an assault like race mixing—while rejecting political economic Bolshevism. Is it not the most sickening sight to see a White woman mothering an apish mongrel of color? And when the kosher-Christian crowd demand the acceptance of pharisaical Judaism as the very foundation of faith in Christ—'Judeo-Christianity—one begins to wonder if the Jews are as clever as the kosher-Christians are atupid!

Jews have had things their way in our nation for too long a time. We Aryans cannot be expected to put up with Talmudic tyranny much longer. Germany showed the way, beginning in 1933, to the quick overthrow of the chimerical Jewish power. Once put into motion by a determined Aryan government and people, the pseudo-invincibility of the Kehillah faded almost overnight. The Germans did not require 'death camps' to effect the Endlösung, the Final Solution, of the Jewish problem. Once the Nuremberg Laws of 1935 were enforced, the Jews became a disorganized rabble, their socio-political hegemony over German life destroyed. Had such legislation been utilized in all the Western nations at about the same time, the vaunted power of the Jewish secret world government would have been broken, never to be resurrected.

That is why World War II was instigated by the Jew-ridden Allied Powers. Germany had to be destroyed, before the experiment could be transmitted abroad; in every White country there were Aryanist movements prior to 1939.

So to the Jews, and those who wish they were, we say that the facts are in on how the evil power of the Kehillah was grafted onto our society; and how it was once overthrown in Germany. Things will never be the same for us. All that we Aryanists live for is the overthrow of Jewish authority. Everything else is just an ancillary activity. We breathe like the general population, and we take our meals in the standard manner. But in every way having to do with the future of our race we are mobilized to think in terms of toppling that tyranny which has been to us a racial menace.

Today we agitate, using public meetings and literature, etc. We also train our minds with study, and discipline our bodies with exercise. Real Aryan soldiers oppose Jewish schemes to disarm the White race—gun control and confiscation—for we know that our guns constitute the Bottom Line. Without our guns we will be defeated, enslaved and cruelly murdered. On this point—our right to keep and bear arms—there will be no equivocation nor compromise.

It has often been argued that all the Jews are not involved directly with the conspiracy to destroy the White race and overthrow Aryan civilization. We therefore demand that these 'good' Jews speak out against the Talmudists and the Zionists. If that means that such 'good' Jews must oppose all that they have been taught—about the Goyim-Akum and their Christ—then they had better be about it: Schnell! When the final trouble begins, we Aryans will not take the time to ask the Jews for their ideological credentials. □ their rear ends and the movement has enough sincere members for a fight, then I'll be there, too, but until then, I'll just work quietly gathering people and spreading educational material.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 6

Yours for White Unity!
N.R., Missouri

* * * * *

Dear George: 1 May 1982

Having just moved from Spic-City to Hebrewsville, I'm writing to change the address on my subscription. Also, since I'm not sure when it runs out, I'm sending the renewal amount now, plus a little extra which you can apply to whatever you want—although if you care for a suggestion, I highly recommend what a friend of mine demonstrated for me recently: a freon-powered BB-Gun. I'm not sure what kind it was—he referred to it simply as a "niggerblaster," although he uses it more on Jewish plate glass. But whatever you decide, I know you'll use it wisely.

Sincerely,
T. E., California

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 2 May 1982

Enclosed $15 for renewal of a year's subscription of "The Liberty Bell." I enjoy the publication a lot; of the 50 or so newsletters that I receive from right wing groups, yours is one of my favorites. I do not agree with the anti-Christian approach because I believe it to be counter-productive. I am, however, interested in the Odinist religion only because it, too, is a part of our northern European heritage. I would like more about the Odinist religion without the anti-Christian approach, otherwise I agree with your publication, because you have the courage to speak out against the real enemy of the Western World.

Sincerely, for Race and Nation
G.H., SouthCarolina

* * * * *

TO ALL PEOPLE WHO OPPOSE THERMONUCLEAR WAR AND/OR LOVE DOGS:

It is now possible, contrary to the ranting and ravings of Jerry Falwell, to be both religious and to oppose nuclear war. I have just created a new religion which has a CHOSEN ANIMAL, the dog, instead of a CHOSEN PEOPLE. I selected the dog as the symbol of our living god because dog spelled backwards is god. We will all patiently wait for that great and glorious day when St. Bernard in the sky, with the spirit-filled keg around his neck, accompanied by his band of poodles, will return to earth to save all mankind. And, until that day, Dr. Falwell and all members of Moral Majority will have to follow mongrels around the streets with proper scoopers. This religion makes more sense than the poop that Dr. Falwell has been dishing out over the Boob Tube. I would much prefer to practice a religion which requires me to love dogs and fleas than to practice one which requires me to exterminate the entire Arab race and risk thermonuclear war with the Soviet Union for the sole benefit of EXXON and Menachem Begin, the Mad Bomber of Beirut.

F.D., Massachussetts

* * * * *

Dear George: 3 May 1982

I think your April issue does more for the understanding of the past than most. You can't beat good history such as letting the guy speak for himself. If Hitler was a nut, it doesn't say much for the other side.

Recently, another pub came out with the Allied bombing of civilian targets. I wasn't on aircrew, but I was in the 8th AF and I can say without question that that particular bombing was no accident. Had I been on aircrew, I would have done just what those who were did—carry out orders, like it or not. Believe, many didn't like it and it was discussed out on the flight line. When you remember that 85% of the Americans wanted to stay out of the war, the young ones were surely brainwashed then just as they are today. Today, young Germans are brainwashed also but percentage-wise there are more people there yet who can give them facts, if they will listen. We can hope.

Note that I am ordering a copy of "Mein Kampf." I scanned a copy years ago and was informed then that the translation was not true in every aspect. I think you would be able to pass judgement on that and I'd appreciate it if you'd put a note in with my order that would indicate any section you'd consider as being in error.

Sincerely,
E.H., Florida

* * * * *

Dear George: 3 May 1982

continued on page 43

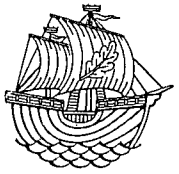
TERRAMARE PUBLICATIONS

Edited by Richard Mönnig

No. 6

GERMAN LABOUR SERVICE

FRITZ EDEL



PUBLISHED BY TERRAMARE OFFICE BERLIN

THE first task which the German Labour Service aims at accomplishing is to unite the youth of the nation into a real community, irrespective of class distinction. The barriers which have divided class from class and creed from creed are excluded from the comradeship of the Labour Service. These young men are not guided by any selfish ambitions or interests. Each one of them seeks only to serve the good of the whole. Without any pay for his labour, he takes the spade in his hand to improve the soil of Germany and thereby enhance the sources of national production. Sons of miners, civil servants, professors and farmers work together, shoulder to shoulder, and thus learn the practical significance of the words Nation and Socialism. And no matter to what position in life they return, they bring with them a clear consciousness of the truth that work is not only a means of earning money but is the moral basis of national life. By working in the Labour Service the youth of the nation is brought to realize the fact that work is a noble thing no matter what form it takes.

The second task before the Labour Service is to free Germany from the necessity of importing food supplies. When the programme allotted to the Labour Service for the next twenty years is fully carried out, Germany will have gained a new province, represented by the reclaimed land. And all this will be achieved through peaceful effort Therewith Germany will be assured of sufficient home produce to feed her whole population. Broad expanses of marsh and moorland will be reclaimed through strenuous labour. Dykes will be built and good arable land will be won from the sea. Farms will be established and the saying of Frederick the Great will be verified: "Whoever produces two ears of grain where only one was formerly produced will render a greater service to his country than the Field Marshall who wins a great battle."

*

„Unser Lager und die Fahnen sind die neue Zeit . . ."

The history of the German Labour Service shows the development of a movement which from the very beginning had to struggle with and overcome indifference and misunderstanding. Every step forward has involved an indomitable effort to carry the main idea into effect. The first Labour Camps arose within the German Youth Movement in the years following the war. During the period when unemployment was at its highest, from 1929 to 1932, the movement expanded but at the same time it became disrupted and internally disunited. It was only after 1933 that the movement was gradually brought under unified control. Then it was systematically organised on a permanent basis and recognised as a national institution.

Young students, workers and peasants established individual labour camps soon after the war. These camps were an evidence of the spirit which urged these young people to find work for themselves and go back to the cultivation of the land. At the same time, however, the exodus from the land continued, leading to an increase in the urban population and simultaneously to a rise in the number of unemployed. The German National Socialist Labour Party was the first political party to adopt the principles of the Youth Movement, and as early as 1928 they brought a motion before the Reichstag for the introduction of a universal Labour Service. This motion was unfavourably received by the Government in power at that time. But the movement went forward nevertheless. In 1930 Adolf Hitler and Konstantin Hierl, who at that time was entrusted with organising the Labour Service within the National Socialist Party, drew up a definite set of regulations which, in their fundamental outline in regard to aim and purpose, are still in force today. At that time Hierl wrote: "Labour Service signifies something different, something greater than a temporary measure arising from the distress of the time for the purpose of combating unemployment. The idea of compulsory labour service is a logical development and fulfilment of the idea embodied in compulsory education and national military service. Every German must work for his country and fight for the defence of his country. Compulsory labour service must become a duty of honour for German youth in the service of the nation. Its purpose must not be to supply cheap labour for private enterprise and it must not become a competitive undertaking carried on by the State for the purpose of forcing down the level of wages. Through the compulsory Labour Service the National Government will have at its disposal a working army that will carry out great public works to serve the economic interests of the nation, as well as its cultural and other public interests."

REICH LABOUR LEADER KONSTANTIN HIERL

Confronted with the constantly increasing unemployment and the resulting distressing moral and social conditions the Government, in 1931, enacted the first measures for the establishment and promotion of a voluntary labour service under the supervision of the Government. But these measures did not have any clearly defined end in view, and above all they did not aim at training youth in the duties of citizenship. Political, denominational and social groups and associations formed their own labour camps which were organised in accordance with their respective principles. There was a total absence of uniformity in the policy and administration of the movement. One section of those who inscribed their names in this voluntary labour service spent the nights at their homes and were with their comrades only while working together during the day. In other cases the volunteer workers lived and slept in the labour camps. The management and upkeep of this voluntary labour service were placed in the hands of the Reich Labour Exchange and Unemployment Insurance Office. This institution maintained these camps as a temporary emergency measure to provide occupation for the unemployed youth and others who had a right to the Government dole. The law provided that only subsidiary work was to be undertaken by the voluntary labour service. This provision was interpreted in a wide and varied sense. One group held that the construction of cycle paths along the roadsides and the laying out of parks were in keeping with the ends which the labour service measure had in view. Another group worked on capitalistic principles at piece-work wages. The third group replaced at cheap rates the labourers who were on strike. Still the movement developed. The number of those inscribed in the voluntary service was 6,810 in December 1931; but twelve months later it had risen to 241,766.

The definite policy which was adopted by the Hitler Cabinet in 1933 made it possible to unify and lay down clear lines for the future development of Labour Service. Within the framework of the voluntary labour service Colonel Hierl had established camps for the purpose of training an expert body of leaders. In a systematic and practical way he had built up an efficient staff and in cooperation with this staff of co-workers he was able to carry out his plans for a subsequent labour service on a compulsory basis. In 1933 Hierl was entrusted with the organisation of the compulsory labour service and appointed "Staatssekretär" for that purpose at the Labour Ministry. His first task was to create a unified organisation from the heterogeneous groups with their respective enactments, laws and regulations, which confronted him on taking over control. A common uniform was adopted for all men in the Labour Service. The Reich was divided into thirty labour service regions. The Labour Service became an autonomous institution of the State. At the 1934 Party Congress, in Nürnberg, 52,000 members of the Labour Service marched by, shouldering glittering spades and thus bearing witness to the new spirit and shape of the organisation. The systematic work done by the Reich Labour Leader Hierl found its recognition and consummation in the Law of June 26, 1935, in virtue of which compulsory labour service replaced the voluntary movement. The first paragraph of the Labour Service Law runs thus:—

"National Labour Service is a service of honour to the German Reich. All young people, of both sexes, are obliged to serve their country in the National Labour Service. The function of this Service is to inculcate in the German youth a communal spirit and a true concept of the dignity of work, and above all, a proper respect for manual labour. To the National Labour Service is allotted the task of carrying out work for the good of the whole community."

In this spirit the first detachment of recruits came into camp on October 1, 1935, to do labour service for a period of six months. The transformation from the voluntary to the compulsory system was carried through smoothly and without the slightest difficulties.

*

According to the enactments at present in force all young men from the age of 18 to 25 are subject to the obligatory service. The period of service is six months. During the years 1935/36 the average number of those enrolled for the labour service was 200,000. By 1939 this number will have increased to 300,000. For young women the voluntary system is still in force, the work allotted to them being such as is suitable for women. However the principle of obligatory female labour service was laid down in the law of 1935 and plans were made for the practical extension of the law to young women. In 1936 the number of young women taking part in the labour service reached 10,000. For 1937 the total is 15,000 and this will be increased to 25,000 in 1938.

The Reich Directorate of the Labour Service, under the guidance of Labour Leader Konstantin Hierl, is the principal ruling body in the Labour Service. It is divided into eight sections :—

1. Service Section. (Organisation, registration, section for foreign affairs etc.)
2. Staff Office. (For matters concerning the staff of the Labour Service Leaders.)
3. Planning Office. (Planning, financing and technical matters).
4. Administration and Business Office. (Budget, salaries, clothing, maintenance.)
5. Office of Health. (Health and medical services.)
6. Education and Training. (Instruction, sport and utilization of leisure time.)
7. Judicial Administration. (Breaches of conduct, courts of honour etc.)
8. Press Section. (Press, films, wireless.)

By an Order issued on January 30, 1937, the Reich Labour Leader was empowered to deal with all questions concerning Labour Service. And for this purpose a special department was set up for him in the Ministry of the Interior.

As has been said, the whole territory of the Reich has been divided into 30 regions as the territorial basis for the organisations of the Labour Service. Varying with its size, each region has from four to eight Labour Service groups and each group is made up of from five to ten sections. Thus the Labour Service is uniformly organised throughout the whole Reich. In the spring of 1937 there is a total of 192 groups, comprising 1310 sections. Each section forms a camp, which consists of 153 and in some cases 202 young men, with one cook and one mechanic.

The leadership of the 30 Labour Service regions is directly subordinate to the authority of the Reich Labour Leader. Under his supervision and control are also the thirteen district leaders of the Labour Service for young women, the Labour Service schools, the Reich school for the training of leaders to fill the higher posts in the organisation, the 26 Labour Service schools for sectional leaders, field masters, squad leaders, also the Labour Service schools for young women, which consist of one Reich school and seven district schools.

The enrolment, grouping and finally the discharge of the Labour Service men every spring and autumn is effected through 32 chief registration offices and 276 branch offices.

*

The necessary financial support for the former voluntary labour service came from the funds of the Reich and the Reich Labour Exchange and Unemployment Insurance Office. The Reich set aside a sum of 1.70 to 2.00 Reichsmarks per day for the maintenance of each volunteer. On April 1, 1934, the Reich took over the whole financial responsibility for the Labour Service and 200 million Reichsmarks were set aside for that purpose in the annual budget. More than a fourth of this sum is spent on board, which costs about 85 pfennigs per day for each person. Another one-fourth is spent on clothes and pocket money, each man receiving 25 pfennigs pocket money per day. The remainder of the sum is spent on housing, instruction expenses, working implements and sports furnishings, also medical treatment. In case of accident or illness, each member of the Labour Service has a right to free medical and hospital treatment. The salaries of the service leaders, the general administration costs and the expenses of the schools for the training of administrative officials and service leaders are also paid out of this fund.

*

The organisation of the Labour Service is based on the leadership principle. This means that each leader who is placed at the head of a group or section, is personally responsible for the physical, mental and spiritual welfare of the body of workers entrusted to his care, and also for their working efficiency, their training and education.

Rhythm of Work

The task of picking out those men who are capable of becoming leaders begins as soon as the recruits start actual work. The principle is that the road to leadership is open to every boy who shoulders a spade in the Labour Service. There is no necessity for supplementary financial assistance from home. Those who have passed only through the elementary schools may also enter as candidates for the school for leadership after they have passed a special examination. The most important qualifications are personality, efficiency and practical loyalty to the present political regime. A leader in the Labour Service is expected to set a model example to his squad in his general conduct and way of living. His life must be inspired and guided by the principles of national socialism. He must have a keen consciousness of his responsibility, be upright, and his moral life must be beyond reproach. The young leader must show cool-headed judgment and a certain maturity of outlook, while the older leader must be young in heart and able to mingle as a companion with the young. In all the small routine duties of everyday life in camp the leader must always act in a spirit of comradeship and helpfulness.

In accordance with the new legislation, the career of a leader in the Labour Service is looked upon as more or less parallel to that of the civil servant or the military officer; the permanent personnel of the Labour Service are regular government officials. The same is true of all those who are employed in the executive administration of the Labour Service. The Law of April 23, 1936, lays down the scale of salaries for these officials, also measures for the care of those who may have met with accidents or illness while in the performance of their duties. And the same Law regulates the conditions under which the members of the permanent personnel may leave service, the right to a pension being acquired after they have completed a period of at least ten years.

*

In the Labour Service camps the average working day is spent as follows:

6 a. m.			Reveille.
6.05	to	6.15	Physical exercises.
6.20	to	7.15	Washing, bed-making, early breakfast.
7.20			Flag parade.
7.30			March to work.
7.45	to	10.00	Work.
10.00	to	10.30	Breakfast.
10.30	to	2 p.m.	Work.
2.00	to	2.15	March back to Camp.
2.30	to	3.20	Dinner, Free time.
3.30	to	5.00	Games.
5.10	to	6.00	Instruction in civic duties.
7.00			Orders are issued for the next day.
7.15	to	7.45	Supper.
7.45	to	8.15	Cleaning of clothes, equipment etc.
8.15	to	9.45	Various forms of entertainment.
10 p.m.			Camp tattoo and lights out.

In 1932 Konstantin Hierl wrote "Labour Service must guard our youth against physical and moral slovenliness. The young German will receive a very valuable preparation for life through physical training, the cultivation of industrious habits, order, punctuality, cleanliness, self-control, and obedience. The Labour Service school must give the youth of our nation the necessary civic training by inculcating a sense of duty and honour towards the nation and a feeling of social responsibility towards the community."

The routine of camp life and the regular daily work, which are conducted on principles of obedience and comradeship, are in themselves such that they help towards the fulfilment of this task. Beside this special training in the duties and responsibilities of citizenship is given. The educational programme followed in the camp does not include useless knowledge. Its chief feature is that the common life in the camp helps the young labour recruit to come into actual touch with the nation as a whole. Lectures are given which will help the young man to understand the principal turning-points in the national life of the people, and to become acquainted with the great personalities in German history. Folklore as well as questions relative to frontier and foreign problems, economic questions, the significance attached to hereditary health—all these themes are dealt with in popular lectures which make the subject matter easily understood by the average layman. Love of the homeland and of its natural features is awakened in such a manner that the community life in camp and at work is made the means of intimately experiencing the beauty of the surroundings.

The utilization of spare time after work and on Sundays fulfils the same purpose. Music and folk songs are practised, books are read, country customs are studied, theatres and museums are visited. The various groups, such as community singers and speakers, amateur theatrical performers, hobbies or amateur photographers, all vie with each other in giving entertainment.

Tilling the soil is an excellent form of bodily exercise. When young men are trained for it and when it is properly carried out, it becomes an important factor which supplements and completes the athletic training. Such bodily exercise also develops the character, by promoting the habit of decisiveness and mastery of self, training the young man to be hard with himself and ready to help others. The athletic sports which are practised during the period of Labour Service also help to develop in these young workers the proper idea of coordination and subordination. The important aim is not the creation of records but rather a good average achievement on the part of each working team. For the regular exercises aim at bringing each unit of workers to a general level of efficiency such as may be recognised by the average outside observer.

Preparing the Ground for new Settlements

The work which Konstantin Hierl has done, and the great aim of the Labour Service, has often been publicly acknowledged by Adolf Hitler, the Chancellor of the Reich. He has declared that the Labour Service is the school through which the whole nation must pass. "Through the Labour Service", he says, "we would make every young German contribute by the work of his hands towards the building up of the nation. We especially want to make it obligatory for those Germans who are engaged in positions where they do not do any manual work, to experience what manual labour is, so that thereby they may come to understand the problems of their fellow-countrymen whose daily toil is on farms or in factories and workshops. We shall abolish for ever that attitude of superiority which unfortunately so many of our intellectuals think they ought to adopt towards manual labour. And instead of this feeling of superiority we wish to strengthen in them the feeling of self-confidence, which would naturally arise from the consciousness that they also are able to employ their bodily strength in productive labour. But our ulterior aim here is to develop mutual understanding between the various classes and thus strengthen the bond of union in the folk community. We want the various classes to come to know one another, so that in this way we may gradually lay down the most natural of all foundations for a real community spirit."

The new Generation at Work

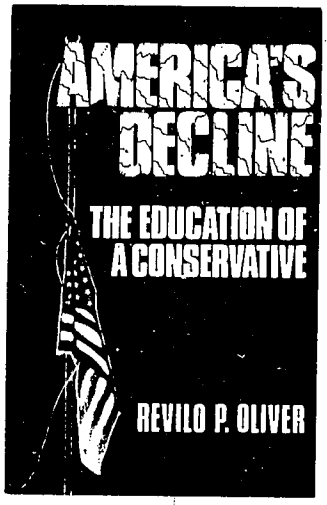
*

The economic importance of the Labour Service is indicated by the following figures: —

1. Through the Treaty of Versailles Germany lost—besides



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM "AMERICA'S DECLINE"

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

376 pp., pb. $8.50
plus $1 for post. & hdlg. ORDER FROM:

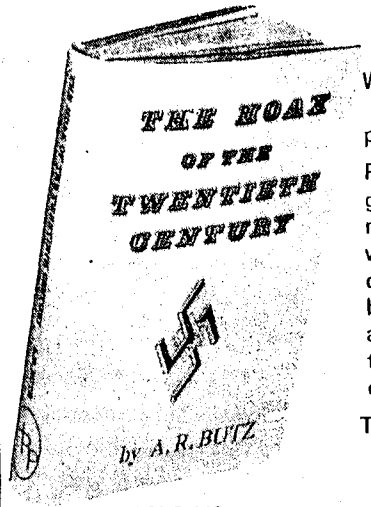
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA



THE "HOLOCAUST" —
FACT OR FICTION?

Were six million Jews really gassed . . . or has a colossal hoax been perpetrated on the world?

Professor Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6 million Jews during WW II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
$6.00 plus 60 cents postage.
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

HELP US
SPREAD THE TRUTH!

$ 4.00 $ 3.00

Please add 10% for postage and handling!
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly— basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20. or $100 or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. Postage stamps, in any denomination, and printing paper and supplies (please write for specifics) are always needed and will be gratefully accepted.

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to patriots who do not yet know about what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, stickers and reprints. Order extra copies of The Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends and neighbors, urging them to subscribe to our publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue.

Pass along your copy of The Liberty Bell and copies of reprints you obtained from us to friends or acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free America and the world from alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit, You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

a. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

b. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY!
HELP FREE AMERICA FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!

Those who WILL NOT read
Have no advantage over
Those who CANNOT read

Order Form

Liberty Bell Publications

ISBN PREFIX 0-942094 PHONE: 304-927-4486

P.O. Box 21, REEDY, W.VA. 25270 USA

NAME: _____ DATE: _____

ADDRESS: _____

CITY/STATE, ZIP: _____

QTY	TITLE	EACH	TOTAL
	SUBSCRIPTION RATES FOR THE LIBERTY BELL for 12 monthly issues:
	Third Class (Bulk Rate) USA only $15.00
	First Class USA, CANADA, MEXICO only $22.00
	First Class, all other countries $25.00
	AIR MAIL
	Europe, South America $35.00
	Middle East, Far East, South Africa $39.00
	Donation to the GET-THE-TRUTH-OUT Program

ORDER WITH CONFIDENCE — SATISFACTION GUARANTEED!	TOTAL
	ADD 10% FOR POST.
	5% W.V. SALES TAX
	TOTAL AMOUNT

A united Effort ovevcomes all Obstacles

its colonies—9.5% of its population and 13.5% of its territory. This lost territorial area was highly productive. Thus Germany, which is one of the most densely populated countries in the world, lost a greater proportion of its soil than of its population.

2. Between the years 1929 and 1932 the value of the average annual import of foodstuffs into Germany was 2750 million Reichsmarks. These imports came from countries in which Germany was able to sell her own exports only to the extent of one-third of the above sum.

3. If the cultivation of the national soil were carried out according to a systematic plan, it would be possible to raise the agricultural productivity of the country by an annual margin equal in value to 2000 million Reichsmarks. Germany would thus be rendered almost independent of foreign markets for the import of her foodstuffs.

In 1764, when Prussia was a poor country, Frederick the Great said: "The worse the condition of the country is, the more necessary is the improvement of it." By indefatigable labour he carried through a work of colonization which still bears witness to the spirit of that time. Since then no important large-scale plans were undertaken for the improvement of the German soil. And this was so, not because there was no more to be done in that sphere, but rather because the attention of the nation was distracted and turned towards other aims, especially the industrialization which developed during the nineteenth century.

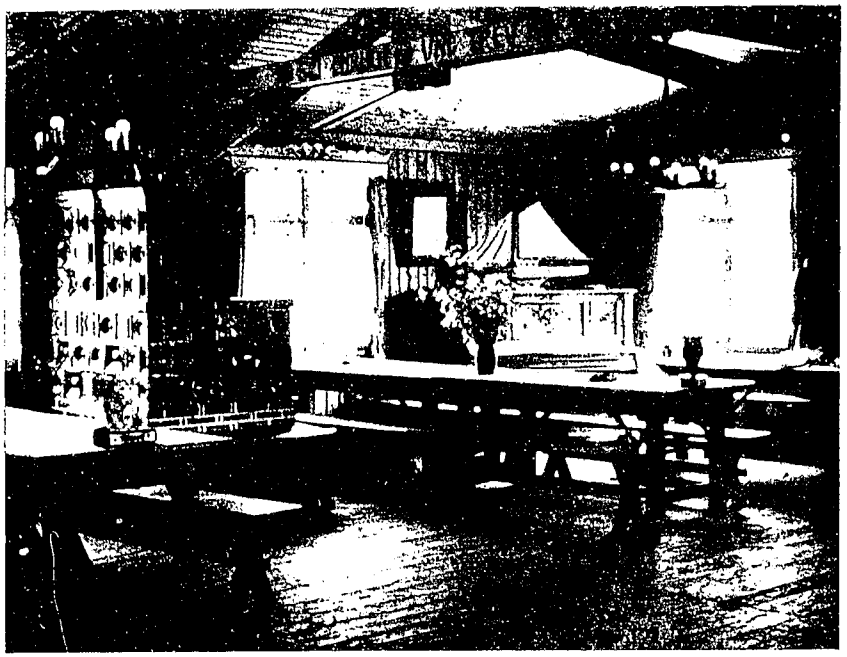
And so it happens that today we have to begin where Frederick the Great left off. The aim which we have to keep steadily before our eyes during this work is to provide new farm land, because this newly reclaimed land can be utilized to the full only by settling farming families on it. The great settlement work, the internal colonization, which Frederick the Great carried through in his time, in order to provide for his soldiers and extend the population into those districts which hitherto had only been thinly populated—this work of turning waste spaces into fertile land has remained up to our day just where the colonization of that time left off.

The task of improving the soil, which now lies before us, exceeds in scope all that which has been done since the time of Frederick the Great up till today. According to the estimates made by the Reich Agricultural Estate, there is an acreage of 20 million acres that has to be drained. This amounts to one-third of the whole German territory at present under cultivation. There are about 5 million acres of uncultivated moorland and about 3 million acres of waste land of which about half can be turned to use. There are furthermore 12.5 million acres of arid soil that need to be irrigated. There are another 12.5 million acres which is so divided up, especially in West and South Germany, that the economic value of it is very much reduced. This land has to be re-distributed into farming units on rational principles of agricultural economy. A further 2.5 million acres can be added for land to be reclaimed by means of protective measures against floods and another 1.25 million acres in the coastal districts as the result of dyke work.

Drainage Construction

The magnitude of this economic undertaking, the essential portion of which is to be carried out by the Labour Service, is once again made clear when we bear in mind the fact that the agricultural area of Germany now in use will be increased by one-tenth through the reclamation of moorland and waste areas alone,—that the production of one third of the land now in use will be increased by 20% through the proper regulation of water, and a sixth of the same area will be improved by a margin of 20% in its productive value as a result of being re-distributed according to a systematic economic plan. Therefore, taking all together, the agricultural produce of the whole territory of the Reich will be increased by one-sixth as a result of land reclamation and land improvement schemes.

It took a long span of years before this imperative task of internal colonization became recognised. Then in the Labour



A homely, selfmade Dining Room

Service Law of 1935 it was acknowledged and set forth in a few brief words: "The Reich Labour Service carries out work which is for the common good". Thus the German youth was set to work, not to serve private capitalistic ends, but to improve the conditions of life for the national community as a whole and for future generations.

In order to have the Labour Service produce the best possible results in a systematic way, the Reich Labour Leader has established a special section for planning out the work. Here each individual scheme is carefully studied and so arranged as to fit in with the general work. Plans are compared, results already obtained are studied, and the general scheme of work to be carried out by the Labour Service is settled ahead of time for years and decades to come.

The following are the results which the Labour Service can show for its work from 1933 to 1936:

About 300,000 acres of marsh and sea-swamp have been reclaimed and secured against flooding, through the building of dykes and the regulation of waterways. Thus the crops and the farmland itself are safely protected against damages from high tides or the flooding of inland streams.

About 750,000 acres of watery soil have been improved by regulating the beds of the various streams and carrying out a system of internal drainage. Thus the fertility of land which hitherto was only very poor for cultivation purposes was immediately improved, or at least this transformation has established the necessary prerequisite condition for the better agricultural utilization of these lands.

About 60,000 acres have been rendered arable by digging out roots etc. and dividing up the land into farming units.

About 100,000 acres of land which had been split up into small holdings through the custom of dividing paternal estates among the children, have been joined together and redistributed in such a way that they can be farmed in a manner which will give profitable results. In making these farms new roads have been opened up and drainage has been carried out where necessary, so as to make intensive cultivation possible.

The Day's Work is over

About 400,000 acres of cultivated land were made more accessible by means of country roads, thus effecting a saving in working costs.

Together with the work of reclaiming and improving agricultural land, the Labour Service also carries on afforestation work, plant nursery and horticulture work, the opening up of forest tracks for transporting lumber, also helping with the building of houses and farm premises for the land settlement movement, the making of roads in these settlement areas, etc.

The increase in agricultural produce resulting from this work has reached the annual value of 50 million Reichsmarks, which is equal to the whole produce of a district as large as that of the Saar.

From 1933 to 1936 70% of all the work done was in the reclamation and improvement of land for agricultural purposes, 15% in afforestation, and the remaining 15% in preparatory work for the establishement of farm settlements, assistance at forest fires, overflowing of dykes and other catastrophes.

The following table gives examples of the work which was done during the year 1936, and the manner in which it was divided among the Labour Service camps:—

Place	Area affected (in acres)	No. of camps at work	Class of Work
Large Moor near Tilsit (East Prussia)	12,120	4	Erection of protective works against floods, drainage and moor cultivation to create land for about 350 settlers
Near Elbing (East Prussia)	5,670	4	Drainage and cultivation to create land for 88 settlers
Pomerania	19,800	14	Improvement of soil and the building of farm roads to assist peasants already settled.

Place	Area affected (in acres)	No. of camps at work	Class of Work
Western Pomerania. Usedom and Wollin	16,100	7	Land reclamation by erection of dykes and cultivation of moors for settling 50 settlers
Spreewald near Kottbus	14,850	5	Erection of dykes and drainage to ensure and increase production on agricultural and forest land
Brandenburg, Rhinluch	215,000	14	Protection against floods and cultivation of moor to create land for 150 settlers
Lower Silesia, along the River Sprotte	14,850	9	Protection against floods and cultivation of moor land to settle 150 peasants
Droemling near Magdeburg	60,000	7	Moor cultivation to increase production on land of 450 settlers
Near Merseburg, south of Halle	12,600	8	Regulation of Rivers Elster, Luppe and Aue, to avoid flooding
River Niers, west of Krefeld	24,800	5	Regulation of river to create land for settlers
Hunsrück mountains, South of the Moselle	24,800	13	The cultivation of waste land and the preparation of soil to assist local peasants
Westerwald, on right bank of Rhine, near Koblenz	148,500	12	Preparation of soil and cultivation of waste land to assist peasants
Hessian marshes, between Main and Neckar	74,250	9	Draining and preparation of soil to create land for 120 settlers
North of Karlsruhe	39,800	16	Protection against flood and regulation of river flow to create land for 250 peasants and settlers
Rhön mountains, near Meiningen	225,000	14	Cultivation of waste land and preparation of soil and opening up of country to create land for 300 peasants and settlers
Emsland, Lower Saxony	26,000	30	Cultivation of moor and waste land. Drainage and ditch work for creating land for 300 further settlers
Jura Mountains in Franconia	183,000	8	Construction of farm roads and improvement of soil to create land for 150 peasants
Danube near Straubing	17,300	6	Erection of dykes against floods and regulation of river flow to assist local peasants and settlers

The following example, taken from a report by Hermann Tholens, head of the planning section at the office of the Reich Labour Leader, illustrates in clearer detail the economic importance of the work which is being done.

Seven sections of the Labour Service, each embracing 150 men, have been put to work in the extreme northern part of the province of East Prussia, throughout the districts of Labiau and Niederung.

This territory is chiefly part of the Memel lowlands. It consists of very low-lying country, with broad expanses which are barely two feet above sea level and are traversed by a close net of water channels. In normal times the natural level of sub-soil water is found just below the surface level of the ground. When bad weather sets in, or when the wind drives the water back into the streams, this territory becomes flooded over a large area. The many twists and turns in these streams are blocked by ice floes when thaw sets in during winter, with the result that the oncoming water is stemmed and overflows.

It is true that in a large section of this territory the farmers have for some time past formed their own drainage cooperative societies, but many of the drainage systems which they laid down have fallen into disrepair. In this territory we also find many estates and farms which are entirely unprotected against the ravages of floods and sub-soil water. The farmers who are settled here have all penetrated into the lowlands in course of time. They cultivated the soil as best they could, without however being in a position to safeguard or protect their lands and homes against the danger of flooding. The high level which the sub-soil water reaches allows only rank grass to be grown and very frequently even this scanty crop is ruined in midsummer by flood water after rains. In many places flood water invades the homes during winter time. A part of these lowlands are bog land which is entirely uncultivated.

Three sections of the Labour Service groups employed here are each working in districts covering an approximate area of 2,500 to 7,000 acres. They are here not only for the purpose of erecting dykes and carrying out drainage work but are also employed in maintaining and reinforcing dykes already in existence or reconstructing those which have already fallen into disrepair. Four further sections are employed in the great marsh country. Their task is the construction of dykes and irrigation channels and the cultivation of land which has already been colonized. Formerly these parts used to be flooded periodically and very often the settlers and their families had to take refuge in the attics of their houses. This newly reclaimed and cultivated land has been divided among 350 settlers and the lands which these settlers previously inhabited are re-allotted among those remaining behind. In this way each family of settlers will for the future receive sufficient arable land to meet its needs.

Huge Tracts of Flooded Country are drained

The political and economic value of this work can be estimated from the following: --

The total expenditure involved is approximately 1,500,000 Reichsmarks. The increased agricultural produce resulting directly from this work is officially valued at approx. 250,000 Reichsmarks, which in turn is equivalent to the average annual produce of 1800 acres of farm land. Therefore the nation gains a profit of 17 percent on this investment. The social benefits which have accrued from the undertaking are represented by the fact that whereas formerly 350 families of settlers were living under most deplorable conditions they are now assured of an ample livelihood on the land and are securely protected against the ravages of recurring floods.

Foreign Visitors have come to see the Labour Camps

*

The origin of the Labour Service for young women has been almost as diverse and heterogeneous as that of the Labour Service for young men. Previous to 1933 certain groups of girls had banded themselves together for the purpose of agricultural work and afforestation, sundry farm work and housekeeping duties in male labour camps. But there was a danger that this Labour Service would eventually become only a shelter for unemployed girls, or a welcome school for instructing the young people in the tenets of various denominational and political parties.

The Labour Service must educate also young girls in the community spirit and a spirit of comradeship, so that they may come to understand the high moral significance of work. The Reich Labour Leader has often stated that the male and female labour services should be looked upon as a uniform and homogeneous institution.

On April 1, 1936, the former autonomous organisation known as the Women's Labour Service was incorporated in the Reich Labour Service and simultaneously detached from the Reich Labour Exchange and Unemployment Insurance Office, which latter institution had hitherto managed its finances. The administration of the Labour Service for young women is carried out by the Reich Directorate of the Labour Service through thirteen branch offices.

The Labour Service for young women is still on a voluntary basis; but arrangements for making it compulsory are already in progress. The ages of girls in the Service ranges from 17 to 25 years. In the spring of 1937 there were 321 camps in being, with an average complement of 40 girls including their leaders. In the summer of 1937 the number had increased to 480 camps, with 15,000 girls at work, and in March 1938, 600 camps will have been established for 25,000 girls.

While the basic principles and the educative mission of both the male and female labour services are identical in every respect the work allotted to the young women is such as is suited to their womanly character. These young girls, having volunteered for six months service, are given as their principal duty the task of easing the burdens of overworked mothers in poorer families. In country districts and in distressed farm areas these girls assist women in their work in the house and on the land, or they help in looking after the children and attending to the sick. Camps have also been established near industrial areas to enable assistance to be given to wives and mothers of factory workers.

Nursing the Children whilst Mother is at Work

The kindergartens attached to some of these camps have proved of particular value for children who are not yet of school age and who have to be taken care of in daytime nurseries.

The girls live in their own camps. Their work takes up from six to seven hours daily. During the afternoons they are occupied with physical exercises and receive lessons in the duties of citizenship. As in the case of the men, leisure hours are utilized for the purpose of developing the community spirit in each member and improving their general knowledge. The camps for young women are smaller than the those for men and, therefore, more personal attention can be given to the work of shaping the lives of the girls in keeping with their womanly characteristics.

Each camp is in charge of a camp leader and three assistants. It is divided into three sections, each of which is in charge of a senior girl. The duties of a camp leader fall in the same category as those of any other woman's profession and in many respects they are identical with the duties of a teacher. The leader must give an example of moral character and conduct as a loyal national socialist. She must also have an allround expert knowledge of farm-dairying and domestic management, as well as a capacity for social training. Those who aspire to be camp leaders must first spend a year in the Labour Service and are then given leave of absence for two years, during which their practical training must be completed. This practical training can be gone through either at a rural college for women or as nursing sisters in hospitals. Practical training as kindergarten teachers, leaders in the Youth Movement, hospital or children's nurses, housekeepers or teachers at agricultural colleges will also be recognised as a qualification for the position of camp leader. During her time of practical training the candidate for the position of Labour Service leader remains in touch with the competent office ot the Labour Service for Women. But later on she is obliged to take a further course of six months at one of the district schools for women leaders attached to the Reich Labour Service.

Harvest Time

Although problems affecting the activities of women in the Labour Service differ from the problems which relate to the male service, yet the work done by both men and women in their camps is of incalculable value to the nation. The school will turn out a generation of young people for whom personal animosities and incompatibilities will have been removed through the close collaboration which they have enjoyed. This collaboration will help to bring about a spirit of mutual understanding among these young people. Thus national political training will be directed along the right channels.

*

This training of our young folk in the duties towards the people, the nation and the State is the foremost purpose of the Labour Service. And this task is an internal question for Germany. The idea underlying the Labour Service has recently penetrated into other countries also. But the principles which inspire it and its shape, vary according to the conditions prevailing in those countries. Many thousands of foreign visitors have come to see our labour camps and have made acquaintance with our youth whose banner is the spade. These visitors have seen examples of the practical way in which this young generation have bridged the social clefts that threatened to disrupt our whole cultural life.

"Since the war", says Norman Hillson in his book 'I speak of Germany'," we seem to have developed the idea that discipline can never be an effective servant of liberty. It is perhaps for that reason that the compulsory German labour camps have been bitterly condemned by critics who have never taken the trouble to go and see them at work. I have heard people say that the camps are akin to slave-grounds: that they are places of unmentionable vice: that in the barbed-wire compounds the German youth is deliberately deprived of his personality in order to make him suitable material for the conscript regular army.

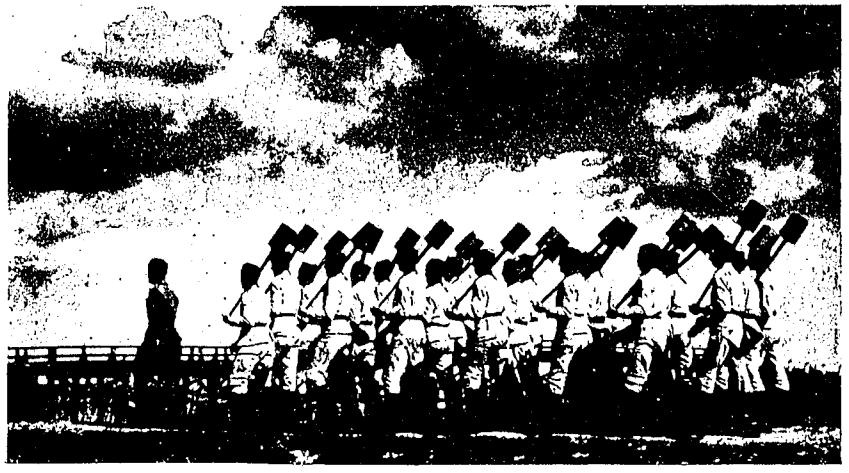
Such criticisms are very wide of the mark. The compulsory labour camps have now become an accepted part of the life of German youth. In the six months of hard work — hard work is not necessarily slavery -- the boy of nineteen becomes strong and hardened — equipped physically for the increasing difficulties of life ahead."

And Lord Mottistone writes in his book, published in Germany under the title "Auf der Suche nach der Wahrheit":

"The rules are exactly the same as those which are written up at Public Schools Camps in England. Many of them are identical with those inscribed in all Boy Scout Camps, especially those relating to cleanliness and health.

The enthusiasm for this particular idea of all ranks and classes serving together for six months or more is so great that the whole people of all ages are imbued with it. They realize that it is a great experiment, something quite new—not a five years plan, but a five hundred years plan. It is not a system based on confiscation of past savings; but a plan to ensure that whilst every family retains what it has, and is encouraged to increase its wealth by every honourable means, all the boys, as they come to maturity, shall experience this period of complete equality in the service of the State.

It is indeed a most extraordinary Experiment. Nobody who has not witnessed it and studied it, as I have done in so many different parts of Germany, can realize the importance of the movement".



German Economic Policy	$1.50
German Labor Service	$1.50
German Law and Legislation	$1.50
German Social Welfare	$1.50
German Political Profiles	$1.50
One each of the above booklets	$5.00

Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 10

I don't have much money to spend, but this has to be an exception.

I don't think the United States can survive much longer the way it is. Therefore, I am going to send each Arizona State Senator a copy of the "Protocols of Zion," with the slight hope that they may open their eyes.

With the "Protocols" I'll send a little note on what George Washington and Ben Franklin said about the Jews. . . .

Keep on trucking!

Sincerely,
J.L., Arizona

* * * * *

7 May 1982

Dear Mr. Dietz:

I hope you and your family are well, and I wish to compliment you on the way you publish your magazine.

Keep up the good work, and more power to you.

Your Friend,
E.S., California

* * * * *

8 May 1982

Dear Mr. Dietz:

We are still enjoying very much your publication, "The Liberty Bell." It is so refreshing to have someone who will face the truth as they see it fairly and squarely and not flinch just because it doesn't fit in with the opinions of the majority, or the propaganda that is put out by the enemy. It is good to get the other side of the story. We sympathize with you on the problem of alienating "Christians" as opposed to telling it like it is. Personally, we like your idea of exposing Christianity as it was the turning point for us. We had had a lot of questions that no one seemed able to really answer. Oh, they were great at "begging the question" or "setting up straw men" or "name-calling," but they couldn't really give any good answers.

However, as there are so many good, white folks who are "Christians," it also seems sad to lose these supporters. We think the crux of the matter is fear. It is a scary step to take to renounce all the things you have been taught by devoted parents and idolized pastors etc., particularly because of the element of fear, which is used by all of these religious leaders. Sounds like the perfect plot for subduing us by our enemies, doesn't it?

Good luck and keep the truth flowing.

For the White Race and our Heritage,
Mr. & Mrs. E.S., Missouri

* * * * *

10 May 1982

Dear Sirs:

I greet you in the name of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, whose we are, and by whose blood we are saved.

As a child of God I must say that I am apalled at the viscisious attack you have made on my race. I find your publication CONN-ARD LINES [boat ticket] quite offensive to all people of color.

Sirs, if you believe that your gross misconception of the black race is real you are sadly mistaken. Due to the contributions that people of color, and particularly those of my race have made to American society, I have very serious doubts that your race would have survived for the past 206 years without those of mine.

Realizing that among the principles that this country was found upon was the amendment set aside to guarantee the freedom of the press, I believe that instead of exercising one of the rights set aside for all American citizens, you have crossed into the dangerous realm of committing an immoral act by offending and infringing upon the rights of others to live peacably without the unnecessary interruption of having to deal with the ugliness of your derogatory statements.

Do you not realize that this sort of misinformation in the hands of children of any race coult alter future morality, lead to the scarring of minority children, and lead to further misconception and misinformation. May I state further that with the present state of international affairs and particularly the present state of this nation, it is imperative that we all come to realize that our survival as a nation is to be found on unity and working together.

Consider the piano. It has black keys and white keys. Separately they can do nothing, but together they produce a harmony that would not have been achieved otherwise. In the teachings of Christ, we are commanded to love one another as we love ourselves. Do you not realize that you and all who spread this sort of offensive literature are in jeopardy of judgement? In closing, may I ask that you consider your actions and the ramifications thereof.

Yours in Christian Service,
Rev. David B. Jones, Asst. Pastor
Allen AME Church, Providence, R.I.,

* * * * *

10 May 1982

On the toiletroom door in the Miami, Florida, airport I found this distasteful reminder that people like you still exist.

Thanksfully for a Democratic society, everyone can see what you are . . . and how you and your people think.

I am of German stock, my grandparents came from Heidleberg and I have visited their home many times as a youth. What they told me,and what I have witnessed or heard from others makes me sick to think that you can and do say the untruths you do.

However it is quite understandable that the people to whom you try and reach and do reach are among the most illiterate and most ignorant of our masses. Thankfully for that fact.

However, the negative of that is also the fact that the Nazis themselves played up to the ignorant and illiterate, because Hitler himself was an illiterate. And illiterates can often cause havoc, which, in Germany during the Hitler regime, was a fact of life.

I have Jewish and non-Jewish friends both socially and in my business dealings. I don't like everyone I meet or know and, I am sure, others don't necessarily like everything about me. But I do believe in live and let live, because our world is made up of all kinds of people, even people like you who disgust me and repell my very essence of good taste, but I am willing to even permit your presence because it's live and let live.

What I resent is the filth, which is all that you do spread. Not an ounce of truth in anything you say or write, and you know it but just won't admit it.

I dislike even paying the cost of a stamp, but I must write these few lines because of the disgust you put in my heart and soul for the likes of such degenerate thoughtless individuals like yourself.

Professor A.R. Butz has to be one of the biggest bigots alive, and the "Hoax of the 20th Century" is nothing but a big total lie, from beginning to end. Period.

Henry N. Ehrlich
3872 Franklin Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90027

* * * * *

Dear Fascist: 13 May 1982

So you think you are superior, why? Don't you know God created all people and we are all His children except on the Judgment day when He'll disown quite a few. I bet, the ironical truth is, that you people consider yourselves Christians, yet many portions of the Bible point out the falseness and sinfulness of your beliefs/practices. Remember, Moses' wife was an Ethiopian.

You don't include a return address when you send out literature, and your press has only a box number, why? You don't have to worry about us getting revenge with violence; that is your style, we are intelligent enough to use words. Or is it shame that keeps you from identifying yourself—isn't that why the KKK wear hoods; put on the hood and forget themselves so that they can do things they won't have to feel guilty about later. Well, you may forget, but God doesn't. How do you face yourself in the mirror?

You have probably so removed yourself from what you consider to be the inferior races that you have never bothered getting to know anyone of these races, if you had you would see that there is good and bad in everyone. I bet you "superiors" have your share of cheats, adulterers, closet homosexuals, wife/child beaters, etc. (if not more than your share.) It's too bad you don't turn your energy/thoughts inward because if you did you would be sure to find a lot that had to be improved upon.

So you think there was no extermination of Jews, well I am tempted to wish that you were there to experience it yourself, but I won't sink to your level of evilness.

I could go on, but I won't waste anymore time on you, but neither would I passively accept your disgusting literature. The next time you send it, if you do, include your personal name and address, you coward. Such a coward, I wonder how someone like you would stand up under persecution.

unsigned

PROTOCOLS DECISION WASHED OUT

PRESS AND RADIO SILENT ON APPEAL FINDING

from Examiner, New Zealand, February, 1938

Great publicity was given throughout the world in 1935 to a decision in the Swiss Courts that the documents known as the "Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion" were a forgery; that the judge had described the contents as "ridiculous nonsense;" and that the Protocols had been condemned as an offence against public morals.

Even in remote New Zealand numerous newspapers at that time published long articles on what they termed an "Historic Forgery;" and addresses were similarly given over the radio system proclaiming loudly that the Protocols had been shown to be baseless.

We are now at the end of February, 1938, but the writer can recall nothing in the daily papers, and he has heard nothing over the radio system, telling him that the Protocols verdict given on May 14, 1935, was reversed by the Berne Court of Appeal on November 1 last.

When the decision went one way, it was news fit for all the world to hear: a subject for special articles and radio broadcasts. When it went the other way, it ceased to be news at all.

What the Protocols Are

To those unfamiliar with them, it may be explained that the Protocols were first published in English in 1920 by Messrs. Eyre and Spottiswoode, long printers to the British Government. They attracted very considerable attention, and the London "Times," in reviewing them in a lengthy article on May 8, 1920, stated that its representative had inspected in the British Museum an edition of the Protocols published in Russia by Professor Sergius Nilus in 1905, and bearing the Museum's date stamp of receipt of August 10, 1906.

The "Times" attached importance to this positive evidence of the existence of the Protocols in 1906, because the Protocols contain a programme for the conquest of the world by subterfuge, and of this programme world events from 1906 to 1920 were a fulfilment. That is the whole significance of the Protocols. The plan contained in them goes on getting itself fulfilled.

If the Protocols were considered significant in 1920 because of the course of world events between 1906 and 1920, the course of events between 1920 and 1938 makes them immensely more significant today.

Depression and Revolution

Look back on the world depression of 1929-1934, and consider the following few words from Protocol No. 3:

"We shall create by all the secret subterranean methods open to us and with the aid of gold, which is all in our hands, a universal economic crisis whereby we shall throw upon the streets whole mobs of workers simultaneously in all the countries of Europe."

Consider the interconnections of international finance and international revolution in the light of this passage from the same Protocol:

"We appear on the scene as alleged saviours of the worker from this oppression [of capitalism] when we propose to him to enter the ranks of our fighting forces—Socialists, Anarchists, Communists—to whom we always give support in accordance with an alleged brotherly rule (of the solidarity of all humanity) of our social masonry . . . By want and envy and hatred which it engenders we shall move the mobs and with their hands wipe out all who hinder us on our way. When the hour comes for our Sovereign Lord of all the world to be crowned, it will be these same hands that will sweep away everything which might be a hindrance thereto."

Deadly Forecasts

The thirty thousand words of these Protocols constitute one of the most remarkable documents in all history. In Henry Ford's "Dearborn Independent" of July 24, 1920, it was said: "Nothing like them in completeness of detail, in breadth of plan, and in deep grasp of the hidden springs of human action has ever been known. . . . what is written in the Protocols in words is also written upon the life of today in deeds and tendencies."

The late Lord Sydenham, formerly Governor of Victoria and Governor of Bombay, and member of the Committee which reconstructed the British War Office, in a letter to the London "Spectator" of August 27, 1921, referred to "the deadly accuracy of the forecasts in the Protocols, most of which have been fulfilled to the letter;" and said their most striking characteristic was "knowledge of a rare kind embracing the widest fields."

Where They Came From

The origin of the Protocols is a mystery. They came by way of Russia. It is asserted that they reached Russia from Paris, being forwarded by an agent of the Tsarist secret service, but of this there is no positive proof. Professor Sergius Nilus, who published them in Russia, was described by the London "Times" as a minor official in the Russian Foreign Office. Hew wrote a book entitled "The Great in Little," and in a second edition of this book in 1905 he printed the Protocols, saying they had come from a friend since deceased, with the assurance that they were a true translation of documents stolen by a woman from a highly initiated Jewish Freemason in France.. Nilus brought out the Protocols again in 1917, entitled "It is Here: At the Gates." This edition is said to have been suppressed by the Kerensky Government, and it has been asserted that the Bolsheviks later shot at sight anybody found in possession of a copy.

Forgery Alleged

A German translation was made in 1919, and since then the Protocols have been translated into almost every language. Numerous Jews have taken the strongest exception to the publication of the Protocols, and have repeatedly denounced them as baseless forgeries.

The late Mr. Lucien Wolf, an eminent Jewish journalist, in a long letter to the London "Spectator" of June 12, 1920, said the Protocols were plagiarised from a novel, "Gaeta Duppel Warsaw," published in 1868.

In August, 1921, the London "Times" published a series of articles from its Constantinople correspondent saying he had been shown by an unnamed "Mr. X" a copy of a book by Maurice Joly called "Dialogue in Hell, between Montesquieu and Macchiavelli," published in 1865, with several passages almost indentical with passages in the Protocols, and that this Mr. X had obtained the book from an old officer of the Tsarist secret police; and that apparently the Protocols were plagiarised from this very copy. Nilus got his copy from Alexis Sukhotin, and there was stated to be "A.S." scratched in the back of the book. No names were given of the persons making the statements.

Wrapped in Mystery

These London "Times" articles are the "proof" advanced everywhere that the Protocols are a baseless forgery. Mrs. L. Fry, in her book "Waters Flowing Eastward," (1933), points out that there is another book entitled "Macchiavelli, Montesquieu, and Rosseau," by Jacob Venedy, published in 1850, which has similar passages to those in the Joly's book and in the Protocols. Jacob Venedy was a Jewish revolutionary. It has been asserted in various quarters that Joly was also a Jew, though this was disputed at Berne. Joly was closely associated with the Jews Cremieux and Janin.

The plain fact of the matter is that noboy knows who wrote the Protocols. Many similarities between them and earlier documents can be discovered, included in the number being passages in the Talmud. Their interest and significance is in their fulfilment. They are either a plan or else a very accurate and curious prophecy. Nobody even knows who gave them their name. They are a formless production, and the Ford "Dearborn Independent," in commenting on them, said they seemed as if they were most probably notes taken during a series of lectures. If such was the case, the lectures were not propaganda, but an exposition of a plan to an audience which had alread accepted it in principle.

Berne Prosecution Begins

The famous Berne trial, the decision in which has been reversed, was a prosecution begun in June, 1933, of certain members of Swiss national and anti-Jewish movements charged with selling copies of the Protocols, which were alleged to be in contravention of Article 14 of the Berne Cantonal Law forbidding the circulation of matter likely to incite to crime, lead to immorality, shock the sense of decency, or provoke to depravity in any manner whatsoever.

The action was brought by the United Jewish Communities of Switzerland and the Jewish Synagogue of Berne. It came before a Magistrate, Judge Meyer.

After various adjournments, the Court permitted the case to be enlarged by the complainants from a simple police court action into a question of the history and authenticity of the Protocols. On October 29 and 30, 1934, the Court heard an array of 16 witnesses for the plaintiffs affirming that the Protocols were a forgery. Chief among these witnesses were Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organisation and the Jewish World Agency, and Dr. Ehrenpreis, chief rabbi of Sweden. A part of the evidence was in rebuttal of a suggestion or allegation that the Protocols emanated from those concerned in the first Zionist Congress in 1897; but the whole question of origin was also traversed.

Defence Allowed no Witnesses

The defendants, with this heavy artillery brought against them, secured an adjournment to enable them to bring material in reply. Various anti-Jewish bodies rallied to the support of the defendants.

Three experts were appointed by the Court to report as to the authenticity of the documents. One, M. Loosli, was appointed by the magistrate, Professor Baumgarten was nominated by the plaintiffs, and Lieut.-Col. Fleischauer by the defendants.

The defendants, in November, 1934, nominated 40 witnesses whom they wished to call, but on March 26, 1935, Judge Meyer informed their expert Col. Fleischauer that he would rule out any motion to summon more witnesses.

On April 15, Dr. Ruef, counsel for defendants, applied for permission to bring actions for perjury against ten of the sixteen witnesses on the Jewish side. In May, this application was also refused by the examining magistrate and the Public Prosecutor's Department, the ground being that these witnesses had "merely given expression to their personal opinion and judgment." The defendants protested in vain that it was not expressions of opinion but statements of fact by the witnesses that they challenged.

At this stage it further came out that although the Swiss law requires depositions to be taken of all evidence and signed by the witnesses, this had not been done when the Jewish witnesses gave evidence in the preceding October, and the only record of their evidence was unsigned notes taken by their lawyer. There was thus no legal record of the Jewish evidence on which to base a prosecution for perjury. Nevertheless, this evidence was accepted as valid by the Magistrate in giving his decion.

The Magistrate's Decision

After hearing argument by the three experts, Judge Meyer gave his decision. This was that three of the defendants were acquitted, and the fourth was fined 20 francs for circulating literature in contravention of Article 14 of the Bernese Cantonal Law regarding indecent and immoral literature. This defendant was also ordered to bear 10,000 francs costs. Another defendant was fined 50 francs and 18,000 francs costs, for selling a pamphlet (not containing the Protocols). The heavy costs represented mainly the expense of bringing the Jewish witnesses from abroad to testify.

With respect to the authenticity of the Protocols, Judge Meyer said: "The defendants had been unable to prove that the Protocols of the Elders of Zion were a genuine document." As to the origin of the Protocols, Judge Meyer said: "The Protocols are a forgery; they were forged by General Ratchkowsky."

This was the case advanced by Professor Baumgarten, the Jewish expert. It rested largely on a statement made by Princess Catherine Radziwill in an American Jewish paper in 1921. She had asserted that in 1905, after the Russo-Japanese war, Golinsky, an official in the employ of General Ratchkowsky, head of the Russian secret police in Paris, showed her a copy of the Protocols, which had just been completed.

The defendants contended that this was not possible as Golinsky had not been in Paris in 1900, and General Ratchkowsky had left Paris in 1902. Further, they contended that Princess Radziwill (daughter of M. Blanc, founder of the Monte Carlo Casino) was not a person of the highest reliability, having been sentenced in London to two years' imprisonment for forgery in 1902, and arrested in New York in 1921 on a charge of defrauding a hotel and also prosecuted by another hotel.

Irregularities Alleged

Notice of appeal was given by the defendants. They and their supporters expressed great dissatisfaction with the conduct of the case. They contended, in the first place, that Judge Meyer, being a Marxist Socialist and having other attributes favourable to Jewry, was not a suitable judge for such a case.

They objected to the refusal to hear their witnesses in rebuttal of the plaintiffs' evidence, and also to the blocking of their action for perjury, these two decisions completely preventing any presentation of evidence for their side.

They commented strongly on Jewish foreknowledge of the decisions given by the Court. On February 25, the London "Jewish Daily Post," in a message from Switzerland, stated that the Court had decided to hear no more witnesses. Judge Meyer's minute to this effect was not made until February 27, and was not communicated to the defence until March 26; yet the correspondent of a Jewish newspaper had correct information on the point to send a telgram away on February 24.

Advance Knowledge

Similarly, although the Court's decision was not given until May 14, the "Jewish Daily Post," in commenting on the case, said on April 28: "It is much more a question of taking note of the charges than of refuting them. The matter is already settled . . . The important thing now is to give the refutation as wide a publicity as possible. This case is a proof of what can be done with good Jewish organisation."

Further complaint by the defendants was that the supposedly neutral expert appointed by the Judge, M. Loosli, was, they alleged, more pro-Jewish even than the Jewish expert, so much so that even the "Jewish Daily Post" on May 13 inadvertently referred to him as "the pro-Jewish expert."

They were also aggrieved that files from the Russian archives, sent by the Soviet from Moscow, touching the character of General Ratchkowsky, had been placed unconditionally at the disposal of the plaintiffs; and on defendants' expert hearing of them by accident and applying for permission to inspect them, conditions were laid down which it was impossible for them to accept.

Appeal Court Judgment

The appeal against the decision of Judge Meyer was at long last disposed of, as previously stated, on November 1, 1937. The judgment of the Court of Appeals was thus reported in the newspaper "La Suisse" of the following day (vide London "Patriot" 18/11/37):

"The Tribunal Cantonal Bernois decrees:

"(1) The accused appellants, Silvio Schnell and Theodor Fischer, are freed without indemnity of the accusation of infraction of the Bernese law on the repression of immoral literature, in the absence of elements constituting the offence.

"(2) The conclusions of the complainants are entirely rejected.

"(3) Each of the parties will pay his own costs. As regards the expenses of the State, the appellant Fischer will have to pay 100 francs, while the rest of the expenses, 28,000 francs in round figures, is put to the charge of the State of Berne."

In its preamble the judgment stated that the question of the authenticity or non-authenticity of the Protocols was entirely irrelevant to the charge. The law was simply to prevent the propagation of writings contrary to good manners, and which were erotic or obscene. "The Protocols of Zion, " it was stated, "being a brochure of political polemics, this law cannot be applied to the writing." Proper care was not exercised in the selection of experts, and it was remarked that M. Loosli, the supposedly neutral expert, "several years ago wrote a book on the Protocols of the Wise Men of Zion, qualified by him as false in commentaries lacking scientific bases." The Court also declared strongly that it was unable to accept the conclusions of the appellants, just as it was unable to accept those of the other side.

What Abraham Lincoln Said

Thus, the authenticity or otherwise of the much-discussed Protocols of Zion remains exactly where it was. Nobody just knows where they came from. And the only sort of opinion than can be usefully formed with respect to them is the sort of opinion that Abraham Lincoln described at Springfield, Illinois, on June 17, 1858, when accepting nomination for the United States Senate. Speaking of the doings of certain of his political opponents, Lincoln said:

"We cannot absolutely know that all these adaptations are the result of preconcert. But when we see a lot of framed timbers, different proportions of which we know have been gotten out at different times and places, and by different workmen—Stephen, Franklin, Roger, and James, for instance (Douglas, Pierce, Taney, Buchanan)—and when we see those timbers joined together, and see they exactly make the frame of a house or a mill, all the tenons and mortices exactly fitting, and all the lenghts and proportions of the different pieces exactly adapted to their respective places, and not a piece too many or too few, not omitting even scaffolding—or if a single piece be lacking, we see the place in the frame exactly fitted and prepared yet to bring such piece in,—in such a case, we find it impossible not to believe that Stephen and Franklin and Roger and James all understood one another from the beginning, and all worked upon a common plan or draft, drawn up before the first blow was struck."

Fetching and Carrying Goes On

In the present case, in addition to seeing things fit together, we have in the Protocols a blue-print of "the house or mill" (a tread-mill for humanity, in this particular case) mysteriously picked up by the wayside about forty years back, and depicting a structure for which the fetching and carrying of the mortised timbers goes on before our very eyes today.

But, as the papers and radio stations of the world informed the nations in 1935, Judge Meyer of Berne has proclaimed the Protocols a baseless forgery, and that is the end of the matter. Nothing else counts. That decision was trumpeted out to millions upon millions; and it would only be disturbing to the mind to trumpet out to those millions its wash out on appeal. Thus is public opinion manufactured and manipulated, and the truth concealed about secret forces that lead the world to bankruptcy, war and revolution. □

MUST-READING FOR CONCERNED PATRIOTS:

The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion	$ 1.50
The Protocols, with detailed explanatory notes	$ 5.00
The Truth About the Protocols	$ 2.00
The Jew in Review, Quotes by famous Jews & Gentiles	$ 6.00
The Jewish War of Survival	$ 3.00
The Hoax of the 20th Century	$ 6.00

Please add $1 for postage for orders under $10. For orders over $10, please ad 10%. Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination, are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month, and will be gratefully accepted as donations.

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, stickers, and—most importantly—our reprints which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our 'wave length,' and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY — HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!

FOR MY LEGIONARIES

Salut fie cui ce merg spre marea biruinta Legionara. Corneliu Z. Codreanu 1938

The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

THE ANTI-HUMANS by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270. today!

ATTENTION PAMPHLETEERS!
Here are two useful stamps for you!

$4.50 per stamp
$0.50 postage

COMMUNISM IS JEWISH!

Order from: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270

The Liberty Bell

SINGLE COPY $1.75

THE U.S.A.— A MELTING POT?

See page 16

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

MORE OF THE OTHER SIDE, page 1
SABBATH SUPERSTITION, page 9
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, page 7

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

VOL. 2 — NO. 12 — ISSN 0145-7667 — AUGUST 1982

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

MORE OF THE OTHER SIDE

by Jim Taylor
(Foreign Correspondent)

For the past ten years I have been writing about the incredible but true story of how the Israelis constantly spy on both the U.S. government and every single individual in this country. But most people never believed me; despite the fact that I have seen intelligence documents which prove it beyond even a shadow of a doubt.

Now that the captured official documents of this disgraceful matter from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran have been published, perhaps more people will finally acknowledge the truth. But I doubt it, even now, that the totally brainwashed American public will become aware of the extent of Israeli surveillance of every American citizen's daily activities.

The truth is that Israel's MOSSAD, foreign intelligence service, knows all about how you vote as well as many other details about your life. Members of this terrorist organization have been posing as FBI agents in order to gain access to confidential information about all Americans. These are the same people who represented themselves as FBI men in 1979 when they bugged the room where U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young met with PLO representatives at the U.N. This, of course, resulted in Israel forcing President Carter to fire Young within 24 hours of the meeting. Not what you might expect in a 'free' nation. But it happened.

Propaganda on a scale never experienced before in history has succeeded, almost entirely, in concealing the truth from the American people. With motives of avarice and a supreme lust for power, the Israelis have become absolute masters over this nation of sheep who seem blind to what has happened.

And did you know that not one senator, not one member of Congress or even one private citizen has the courage to protest this violation of our laws?

The recent disclosure by the Washington Spotlight that approximately 70 percent of the U.S. Senators allow the ADL to read all mail means that you even have American Senators engaged in spying for Israel because the Israeli Embassy is furnished with the names and addresses of all who write letters to Senators containing anything uncomplimentary about Israel.

Classified American documents which were captured when Iranian militants took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran reveal all these things and more. Thirteen volumes of these secret documents have been published in Iran and in Europe. These surveys were prepared by the CIA under the title of "Israel: Foreign Intelligence and Secret Service."

Repeated attempts are detailed as to how Shin Beth and MOSSAD penetrate American security. It reveals a case at the U.S. Consulate General in Jerusalem where a clerical employee was having an affair with an Israeli girl. A fake abortion case was rigged against this employee in order to recruit him for work against his own government.

The telephone systems of many American Embassies have been bugged for years—not by the Russians, but by the Israelis.

Many times the Embassy Marine Guards are approached with offers of money, girls, and drugs in order to get them to become informants for the Zionists. In 1969, when I was conducting an investigation on another matter in Paris, I uncovered a ring of MOSSAD agents who were trying to blackmail the Marine Guards at the U.S. Embassy into selling information about the 35 CIA men and women working out of that embassy.

But by far the most important Israeli spying takes place in the U.S., in Washington and other places. Since MOSSAD has so many agents planted in the State Department, CIA, and FBI; the israelis always know in advance every decision made in these branches of the government. At one time, many of the IRS department heads reported tax information directly to the Israeli Embassy. And, believe it or not, Israeli agents are firmly entrenched in the Social Security Administration. When you move, get a pay raise or a new job; they know about it.

It is not by accident that almost always the National Security Advisor to the President of either party is always a practicing Zionist. At the visible end of the Zionist spectrum, let me name some people holding high rank during the Ford Administration. Included were Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger; Secretary of the Treasury, William Simon; Federal Energy Administrator, Frank G. Zarb; Attorney-General, Edward Levi; Assistant for Economic Affairs to the President, L.W. Seidman; Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Arthur Burns; Chairman of the Counsel of Economic Advisors, Allan Greenspan; Federal Insurance Administrator, George Bernstein; Deputy Attorney-General, Lawrence Silberman; Head of White House Civil Rights Department, Leonard Garment; Press Secretary, Ron Nessen; President's Senior Speech Writer, Milton Friedman; Mrs. Ford's Pres Secretary, Sheila Weidenfeld; Chief Librarian, Library of Congress, Dr. Daniel Boorstein; and Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, USN.

Intelligent readers might reasonably ask if this is true, how come you never heard of it before. Well, I can tell you exactly the reason. Since Israel controls every television network, every magazine, every daily newspaper and almost every large radio station in the land; who is going to inform the public about it? Also, bear in mind that every television program, movie or stage play; as well as all the commercials are censored by Israelis or their U.S. shock troops, the Jewish Lobby, before you ever see them. You hear a lot about dual loyalists in our government, meaning people who have two loyalties—Israel and the U.S., in that order of preference. But, in my opinion, there is no such thing as a "dual" loyalist. Dual means two, right? These people may have American citizenship, but they are certainly not loyal to the United States of America. Loyalty is not something which can be divided. Just as the proverbial man could not serve two masters, neither can officials serve two governments at the same time. And if they place their loyalty with Israel, I have another name for them. And you know what it is.

When I speak at universities and bring up the fact that the official government of the United States of America does not now exist as a separate viable entity, but is under the complete domination of a foreign power; students and professors often laugh in disbelief. Nevertheless, I still insist that all major decisions of our government are made in Israel, by the Israeli Embassy in Washington and by the powerful Jewish Lobby. Like the Communist satellite countries follow the Moscow line, the U.S. carries out the wishes of Israel right down to the last letter. This, in turn, means that the Zionists have their hands on your throats. There is just no more delicate or polite way to phrase it.

Since most readers probably follow the establishment press and television newscasts, you are aware of how American political decisions always seem to be exactly what Israel demands both in Washington and at the U.N. You have seen many times the U.N. voting which generally follows the pattern of something like 127 to 2 U.S. and Israel on one side and the rest of the world on the other side. It hardly seems logical to imply, as the official U.S. response always does, that Israel and the U.S. are right and that the rest of the world is wrong. That sort of unreasonable justification doesn't make sense.

So I will try to give you some other illustrations. Take a look at the historical specials on television. Examine the titles such as "The Wall," "Exodus," "QB-7," "Raid on Entebbe," "Masada," and the many versions of the so-called holocaust during World War II. Is there the slightest thing about these programs which contains something about American history? Of course not. They deal strictly with glorifying Israel and some type of Zionist propaganda. Did you ever see in recent years even one program praising American heritage? I don't think so. Did you ever see just one mention of the valiant men of the U.S.S. Liberty whose red blood was spilled into the blue Mediterranian on June 8, 1967. Were these men, who gave their lives for their country, ever mentioned on any television program? No! And you never will hear them. And did you know that the only time the names of these dead and wounded men have ever been listed in print any place in the United States was in my book, Pearl Harbor II? Let me pose a question. If Americans care at all about these courageous men who died in vain, how come their names have never been printed except in my book, which happens to be boycotted by all daily newspapers, magazines and bookstores in the United States?

If there is a special providence in the fall of a single sparrow to the earth, as poets and philosophers alike would have us believe, then why must the names of the victims of the Liberty attack be kept secret from the American people? It has been 15 years since these men were murdered and maimed but, as yet, there have never been any public encomiums for them. I repeat to you that the cries of the damned have not been heard throughout the land and the naked aggressions of the Israelis have not been checked. American taxpayers are continuing to pay for more Israeli terrorist acts such as the destruction of the Iraq reactor last year.

As for Congress doing anything about this ungodly state of affairs, forget it. In 1980, when then Sen. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois was attempting to get a Senate Hearing on the Liberty attack, he couldn't even get it out of the committee. On a 15-member committee he needed eight votes. He could get only five. How does it happen that almost all of our Senators and Representatives sweep the Liberty attack under the rug and will not even discuss it? What are your elected Representatives so afraid of? They seem to have an investigation into everything else. But never will they allow the American people to learn the true facts about the Liberty. Is this the true American way?

Please allow me to give you yet another splendid example of how the Israelis control events involving your own destiny, as well as your personal liberty and freedom right in your own country. Six of the gallant men who died in the Liberty attack, five sailors and one Marine, lie buried in the Arlington National Cemetery. Now you might believe that the dedicated Zionists at the Israeli Embassy in Washington and the Jewish Lobby, plus their controlled members of Congress, would never go so far as to interfere with the final resting place of these American servicemen who died for their country. Not so! Don't ever believe it!

When the Israelis learned that six of the men they had murdered that fateful day of June 8, 1967, were to be honored by being buried at Arlington beside many other American heroes; they screamed in protest so loudly you could probably hear it all the way to Tel Aviv. The Zionists did not want these men, our honored dead, buried at Arlington. You might say it would not be any business of Israel or any other foreign nation what the U.S. does with her own dead. You'd be wrong. American business is Israeli business. To them, it's all one country—theirs! Despite this, the Navy went ahead and buried them at Arlington. However, other protests were quickly heard from the Israelis. You see, a common tombstone had been made for these six comrades-at-arms. It had a line across the granite at the bottom of it which was to have read "Killed in the Eastern Mediterranean by Israel June 8, 1967." The Israelis succeeded in forcing the mighty U.S. government to bow down to their wishes by removing the word "Israel." Now it was supposed to read "Killed in the Eastern Mediterranean June 8, 1967." But even this watered down version was strongly protested by Israel and their U.S. lobby. They didn't like the word "Killed" on it. So again the wording was changed. The final version merely reads "Died in the Eastern Mediterrean June 8, 1967."

And that is exactly how the tombstone reads today. You need not take my word for it. Go to Arlington and read it for yourself. Visitors who see this tombstone will never know that these brave men gave their lives in defense of their country. These men are doomed forever to eternally lie beneath the hallowed ground in blasphemy so as not to offend the sensibilities of the very nation which murdered them. How's that for chutzpah? How do patriotic Americans feel about this injustice when men who died for this nation are not even allowed a proper tombstone detailling their place in history? No person reading that inscription will even know that they were killed by a vicious enemy in an unwarranted attack. When you read that these men "died" in the Eastern Mediterranean, you don't have any clue as to how they died. Visitors might think that these six brave souls died of the flu or perhaps fell overboard and drowned. No one is supposed to know the secret of these men—our honored dead.

In final analysis, let me put it to you this way. If the Israelis have enough power in Washington to control people who are dead and six feet under the ground, is it any wonder that they can control all living Americans? Think about this!

You might also watch for Israel to suddenly annex Lebanon this summer in much the same manner as the Golan Heights. First, the Israelis will blitz that disturbed nation with a large force. The occupation and finally annexation will follow as soon as they feel that world opinion will permit it. According to my CIA sources, this land grab by the Zionists has already been approved by Washington. However, to make it appear that the U.S. doesn't approve of this massive Israeli act of aggression, a weak and false American denunciation will be given wide attention in the press. Then, as usual, all will be forgiven and this Israeli expansion will be approved by the Reagan Administration. This slight delay in approval by the U.S. does not mean that Washington has any real concern for the welfare of a few million more displaced Arabs. It will be used merely to make Europe and the rest of the world judge less harshly the cruel and heartless American attitude toward the Arab world. □

The American Sunbeam, 8 March 1982

BACK IN PRINT:

MONEY CREATORS
by Gertrude M. Coogan
Reveals Secrets the Money Changers Have Paid Millions to Conceal! — $5.50

LAWFUL MONEY EXPLAINED
by Gertrude M. Coogan
How To Win Back Your America! — $3.50

Order your copies from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

MUST-READING FOR CONCERNED PATRIOTS:

The Jew in Review, Quotes by famous Jews & Gentiles	$ 6.00
The Jewish War of Survival	$ 3.00
The Hoax of the 20th Century	$ 6.00

Please add $1 for postage for orders under $10. For orders over $10, please ad 10%. Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

Letters to the Editor

Dear George: 17 May 1982

Thanks for enabling me to find out about the real character of the poison-pen Jews; what 'Masters of Deceit' they really are! Keep up the good work of spreading this vital truth. I enclose a small check to help you further your work.

A New 'Born-Again' Patriot.
D.W., Florida

* * * * *

Dear George: 24 May 1982

I hope it is not too late to let you know how much I enjoyed reading the article "The Enemy of Our Enemies, by Prof. Oliver. It is so deep, yet so clear, and gives hope for the resurrection of the cradle of civilization, Germany, in old glory and splendour. Thanks to Dr. Oliver and to you, George, for having brought and printed this magnificent article.

Please continue to pound, remind and enlighten people about that world plague, the Jews; the Jews are our misfortune! This cry should again resound ever loudly from all corners of the world, from all the enslaved peoples. The Jews are vampires, and vampires, like spiders, suck the blood of their victims; so does the Jew, living off the fruits of peoples and nations whom they enslave and exploit. They are a deadly disease.

Perhaps it will interest you and the readers how Gauleiter Kube characterized this vermin:

"What the plague, degeneration, and syphilis mean in regards to health, to mankind, so is the Jew the moral equivalent to the white population."

Keep up your excellent work for our race. We need you for the day of reckoning!

Sincerely,
K.S., New York

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 25 May 1982

I am a Soviet citizen, Russian, married to a U.S. citizen, and live in this country since 1977.

It was only last year that I was able to lay my hands on a book (in Russian, printed in Spain!) by Andrey Dikiy, "The Jews in Russia and USSR," which FINALLY opened my eyes to reality.

I obtained the article, "Anti-Semitism in the USSR-Another Jewish Hoax," by O.V. Drtina, in the January 1977 issue of "The Liberty Bell" only a few weeks ago, and translated it into Russian.

First of all I would like to thank Mr. Drtina and you as publishers for such an outstanding research.

I have noticed a few errors and misprints, however. Here they are:

page 9, 2nd column, (6), the last name is KUNAEV, not KUNSEV, and he is a Kajalch, not USBEK.

Page 9, 2nd column (9), first name should read ARVID, not AVRID.

Page 10, 1st column (14), GENNADIJ, not GRENADIJ.

Page 10, 2nd column (17), patronimic MIRONOVICH, not MOROVICH.

Page 10, 2nd column (18), last name KAPITONOV, not KAPITANOV.

Page 31, 1st column (4th line from bottom), Admiral GORSHKOV, not GORAHKOV.

Page 31, 2nd column (6th line from bottom) Major-General SERAFIM N. LYALIN, not SERAFIN LYANLIN.

And since yesterday's TV announcement that a Jew ANDROPOV-LIEBERMAN is a contender to Brezhnev, who is married to a Jewess, we get the best proof that the Jews ARE the ruling group in the USSR!

Please send me additional copies of this reprint.

With great appreciation,
B.V., California

* * * * *

Dear George: 27 May 1982

I would like to pass along to you and your readers a few comments on the CIA booklet, The Holocaust Revisited: A retrospective Analysis of the Auschwitz-Birkenau Extermination Complex (Feb. 1979, ST-79-10001). This is the famous CIA analysis of American WWII photos of Auschwitz. The authors admit that their interest had been rekindled by the television presentation "Holocaust." I obtained a copy of the report for $5. from the Library of Congress Photoduplication Service, Wash. D.C., 20540. I would like to make the following six points:

1. The Auschwitz-Birkenau camp is less than 8 kilometers from the IG Farben synthetic oil and rubber facility at Auschwitz III which a photo on page 3 labels as BUNA, the German scientific term for synthetic rubber.

2. On page 5 the authors claim that Farben used British POWs at their BUNA plant. Why hasn't anyone used the testimony of these British POWs as eyewitness evidence for the Holocaust? These men were less than 8 kilometers from the daily extermination and cremation of 12,000 Jews, or so the authors claim.

3. Page 3 informs us that Birkenau had been designed to exterminate 12,000 people a day. But on page 6 the authors (Dino Brugioni and Robert Poirier) note that a rail spur under construction as evidenced by the April 4, 1944, photo is completed in the June 26 photo. If the Germans planned to kill 12,000 Jews a day at Birkenau, why didn't they complete the rail spur to Birkenau before June 26, 1944?

4. On Page 2 the authors claim that 2 to 3 and a half million people were killed at Auschwitz between the spring of 1942 and November of 1944. But 12,000 a day for 1,275 days is 15,300,000 for Birkenau alone. I would appreciate a recalculation by the authors as this is an obvious error!

5. On page 11 the authors claim that bodies were burned in the open behind the crematoria in the summer of 1944. This is in addition to the 12,000 a day who were taken care of by Birkenau's normal capacity. But this is nonsense as the photos of April, 4, June 26, July 26, August 25, and September 13 reveal no smoke from the crematoria, no bodies in open pits and no Jews disembarking from trains.

6. On pages 14 and 15 the authors contradict the official Polish Investigation's assertion that Gas Chamber II and III had been destroyed by the Germans in November of 1944 as they are visible in the photos of November 29, 1944, December 21, 1944, and January 14, 1945. If the Germans stopped the exterminations in November, why did they wait until after January 14, 1945 to dismantle theevidence?

Sincerely,
D.F., Massachussetts

* * * * *

Hello there! 26 May 1982

Well it's been a long time since I wrote to you, but since war has broken out in the South Atlantic, I feel compelled to inquire about your stand.

Hopefully you are FOR ARGENTINA, but I wouldn't know, when I first wrote to you I said, for an Irishman to be allied to a German was strange, since our old ancient and natural enemies are the English herrenvolk, who are first cousins to the German herrenvolk. I said then and I repeat, "necessity makes strange bedfellows" and our common enemies were the talmudic Yiddish parasites who have taken over the USA.

Now we have a war between Argentina and the United Kingdom, Britain, "Great" Britain, England, or whatever it is called, and I work in a predominantly WASP town, comprised mainly of English and German types and they subvert the history of the United States and wish to return it to England and oppose Argentina. But whereas the English of Argentina refused, throughout the history of that country (with their usual lack of magnanimity), to become citizens, I would imagine the Germans who went there in droves following the collapse of the Third Reich, would have become citizens and if so, I thought you might support Argentina through your press.

How I wish I could print and had the facilities.

In conclusion, I am considering leaving for Argentina as soon as my Irish passport is renewed, but I would like to go with comrades and not empty-handed.

I am 52 years old, my children are grown, my Spanish-Indian wife probably wouldn't leave Santa Fe, N.M. (our home), but before I die, I want just one chance to send a few of these colossal, one-eyed homosexual, hypocrites to hell and, of course, if you are for the English herrenvolk, you are against Argentina and FOR your jew-owned, Anglo-minded, shit-house American press.

It would be interesting to know.

J.D., California

* * * * *

continued on page 12

SABBATH SUPERSTITION

THE IDEA that one day in the week is better than the others and should be set apart for religious purposes; that it should be considered holy; that no useful work should be done on that day; that it should be given over to pious idleness and sad ceremonies connected with the worship of a supposed Being, seems to have originated by the Jews.

According to the Old Testament, the Sabbath was marvelously sacred for two reasons, the first being, that Jehovah created the universe in six days and rested on the seventh, and the second, because the Jews had been delivered from the Egyptians.

The first of these reasons we now know to be false, and the second has nothing, so far as we are concerned, to do with the question.

There is no reason for our keeping the seventh day because the Hebrews were delivered from the Egyptians.

The Sabbath was a Jewish institution, and, according to the Bible, only the Jews were commanded to keep that day. Jehovah said nothing to the Egyptians on that subject, nothing to the Philistines, nothing to the Gentiles.

The Jews kept that day with infinite strictness, and with them this space of time known as the Sabbath became so holy that he who violated it by working was put to death. Sabbath-breaking and murder were equal crimes. On the Sabbath the pious Jew would not build a fire in his house. He ate cold victuals and thanked God. The gates of the city were closed. No business was done, and the traveler who arrived at the city on that day remained outside until evening. If he happened to fall, he remained where he fell until the sun had gone down.

The early Christians did not hold the seventh day in such veneration. As a matter of fact, they ceased to regard it as holy, and changed the sacred day from the seventh to the first. This change was really made by Constantine, because the first day of the week was the Sunday of the Pagans; and this day had been given to pleasure and recreation and to religious ceremonies for many centuries.

After Constantine designated the first day to be kept and observed by Christians, our Sunday became the sacred time.

The early Christians, however, kept the day much as it had been kept by the Pagans. They attended church in the morning, and in the afternoon enjoyed themselves as they could.

The Catholic Church fell in with the prevailing customs, and to accommodate itself to Pagan ways and superstitions, it agreed, as far as it could, with the ideas of the Pagan.

Up to the time of the Reformation, Sunday had been divided between the discharge of religious duties and recreation.

Luther did not believe in the sacredness of the Sabbath. After church he enjoyed himself by playing games, and wanted others to do the same.

Even John Calvin, whose view had been blurred by the "Five Points," allowed the people to enjoy themselves on Sunday afternoon.

The reformers on the continent never had the Jewish idea of the sacredness of the Sabbath.

In Geneva (Switzerland), Germany and France, all kinds of innocent amusement were allowed on that day; and I believe the same was true of Holland.

But in Scotland the Jewish idea was adopted to the fullest extent. There Sabbath-breaking was one of the blackest and one of the most terrible crimes. Nothing was considered quite as sacred as the Sabbath.

The Scotch went so far as to take the ground that it was wrong to save people who were drowning on Sunday, the drowning being a punishment inflicted by God. Upon the question of keeping the Sabbath, most of the Scottish people became insane.

The same notions about the holy day were adopted by the Dissenters in England, and it became the principal tenet in their creed.

The Puritans and the Pilgrims were substantially crazy about the sacredness of Sunday. With them, the first day of the week was set apart for preaching, praying, attending church, reading the Bible, and studying the catechism. Walking, riding, playing on musical instruments, boating, swimming, and courting, were all crimes. No one had the right to be happy on that blessed day. It was a time of gloom, sacred, solemn, and religiously stupid.

They did their best to strip their religion of every redeeming feature. They hated art and music—everything calculated to produce joy. They despised everything except the Bible, the Church, God, Sunday, and the creed.

The influence of these people has been felt in every part of our country. The Sabbath superstition became almost universal. No laughter, no smiles on that day; no games, no recreation, no riding, no walking through the perfumed fields or by the winding streams or the shore of the sea. No communion with the subtle beauties of nature; no wandering in the woods with wife and children, no reading of poetry and fiction; nothing but solemnity and gloom, listening to sermons, thinking about sin, death, graves, coffins, shrouds, epitaphs and ceremonies and the marvelous truths of sectarian religion, and the weaknesses of those who were natural enough and sensible enough to enjoy themselves on the Sabbath day.

So universal became the Sabbath superstition that the legislatures of all the States, or nearly all, passed laws to prevent work and enjoyment on that day, and declared all contracts void relating to business entered into on Sunday.

The Germans gave us the first valuable lesson on this subject. They came to this country in great numbers; they did not keep the American Sabbath. They listened to music and they drank beer on that holy day. They took their wives and children with them and enjoyed themselves; yet they were good, kind, industrious people. They paid their debts and their credit was the best. Our people saw that men could be good and women virtuous without "keeping" the Sabbath. This did us great good, and changed the opinions of hundreds of thousands of Americans.

But the churches insisted on the old way. Gradually our people began to appreciate the fact that one-seventh of the time was being stolen by superstition. They began to ask for the opening of libraries, for music in the parks, and to be allowed to visit museums and public places on the Sabbath.

In several States these demands were granted, and the privileges have never been abused. The people were orderly, polite to officials and to each other.

In 1876, when the Centennial was held at Philadelphia, the Sabbatarians had control. Philadelphia was a Sunday city, and so the gates of the Centennial were closed on that day. This was in Philadelphia where the Sabbath superstition had been so virulent that chains had been put across the streets to prevent stages and carriages from passing at that holy time.

At that time, millions of Americans felt that a great wrong was done by closing the Centennial to the laboring people; but the managers—most of them being politicians—took care of themselves and kept the gates closed.

In 1876 the Sabbatarians triumphed, and when it was determined to hold a world's fair at Chicago, they made up their minds that no one should look upon the world's wonders on the Sabbath day. To accomplish this pious and foolish purpose, committees were appointed all over the country; money was raised to make a campaign; persons were employed to go about and arouse the enthusiasm of religious people; petitions by the thousand were sent to Congress and to the officers of the World's Fair, signed by thousands of people who never saw them; resolutions were passed in favor of Sunday closing by conventions, presbyteries, councils, and associations. Lobbyists were employed to influence members of Congress. Great bodies of Christians threatened to boycott the fair and yet the World's Fair is open on Sunday.

What is the meaning of this? Let me tell you. It means that in this country the Scotch New England Sabbath has ceased to be; it means that it is dead. The last great effort for its salvation has been put forth, and has failed. It belonged to the creed of Jonathan Edwards and the belief of the witchburners, and in this age it is out of place.

There was a time when the minister and priest were regarded as the foundation of wisdom; when information came from the altar, from the pulpit; and when the sheep were the property of the shepherd. That day in intelligent communities has passed. We no longer go to the minister or the church for information. The orthodox minister is losing his power, and the Sabbath is now regarded as a day of rest, of recreation and of pleasure.

The church must keep up with the people. The minister must take another step. The multitude care but little about controversies in churches, but they do care about the practical questions that directly affect their daily lives. Must we waste one day in seven; must we make ourselves unhappy or melancholy one-seventh of the time?

These are important questions, and for many years the Church in our country has answered them both in the affirmative, and a vast number of people, not Christian, have also said "yes" because they wanted votes, or because they feared to incite the hatred of the Church.

Now, in this year of 1893, a World's Fair answered this question in the negative, and a large majority of the citizens of the Republic say that the officers of the Fair have done right. This marks an epoch in the history of the Sabbath. It is to be sacred in a religious sense in this country no longer. Henceforth in the United States the Sabbath is for the use of man.

Many of those who labored for the closing of the Fair on Sunday took the ground that if the gates were opened, God would visit this nation with famine, flood, and fire. It hardly seems possible that God will destroy thousands of women and children who had nothing to do with the opening of the Fair; still, if he is the same God described in the Christian Bible, he may destroy our babes as he did those of the Egyptians. It is a little hard to tell in advance what a God of that kind will do.

It was believed for many centuries that God punished the Sabbath-breaking individual and the Sabbath-breaking nation. Of course, facts never had anything to do with this belief, and the prophecies of the pulpit were never fulfilled. People who drowned on Sunday, acording to the Church, lost their lives by the will of God. Those drowned on other days, were the victims of storm and accident. The nations that kept the Sabbath were no more prosperous than those that broke the sacred day. Certainly France is as prosperous as Scotland.

Let us hope, however, that these zealous gentlemen who have predicted calamities were mistaken; let us be glad that hundreds of thousands of workingmen and women will be delighted and refined by looking at the statues, the paintings, the machinery, and the countless articles of use and beauty gathered together at the great Fair, and let us be glad that on the one day that they can spare from toil, the gates will be open to them. □

From The Truth Seeker, Box 2832, San Diego, CA 92112

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 8

Dear Sir: 27 May 1982

Where are the howls and the screaming, the invective, the gnashing of teeth? Where is the thirst for blood? Where are all the establishment commentators castigating; the extremist college professors who spewed out their pro-war views in pre-World War II days and became strangely silent before, during, and after the war, regarding Communist malfeasance, and who flip-flopped and suddenly became pacifist in the Viet Nam War? Where are the establishment hack writers and their stooges—the likes of Walter Lippman and Walter Winchell, their pens dripping with smears and clamoring for war? Where are all the fear tactics once used to stir up hatred, slander and war against the German people? All noticeably absent when Communists or whoever are concerned. Although we can expect dual loyalists dispensing their cartel control of the media and publishing houses upon the captive masses and along with hectic flag-waving a potpourri of loud, relentless military music in our ears when the mark/dollar-created bandit state of Israel's aggression becomes defensible.

Now we see Churchill's rag-tag Britain sailing off, the remnants of the Great Alcoholic's empire, that was to last a thousand years. The ghosts of Roosevelt and Churchill are tagging along behind the British fleet enroute to the Falklands—a result of their fratricidal legacy.

Sincerely,
J.B., Texas

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 29 May 1982

Lately, I have noticed a couple of references to a so-called Odinist group called the Asatru Free Assembly.

I would like to warn people who are thinking about joining this group, or wasting their money on a subscription to their journal, The Runestone, to be aware. They are very anti-nationalsocialist and if you are anti-Semitic, they let you know real quick that that is just a cover-up for being Christian.

Three years ago, their sister group in London, England, expelled a group of National Socialist comrades who were operating in one of their gemoots (churches).

The Asatru Free Assembly is always quick to point out that they are very much in favor of free speech, thought and belief, but when an individual chooses to follow National Socialism, they are the first to deny you these rights.

This group is more like a bunch of Kosher Konservatives.

I've been reading their material for a few years now, and the more I've read the more it disgusts me.

If you want to belong to a true White Peoples religion, look into the Odinist Fellowship [Box 1647, Crystal River, FL 32629 —Ed.]. Their people have been around a lot longer, and surely aren't going to deny free speech and thoughts to their members. Membership in the Fellowship is free, also.

In the A.F.A., anybody who joins after September of 1981 has to pay one percent, before taxes, of their yearly income. Sounds pretty un-democratic to me.

With Wotan Heil, 88!
D.S., Missouri

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 1 June 1982

I was reading the Liberty Bell for March 1982 and noted a few of your readers were somewhat irrate because you are apparently turning your back on the Hebrew/Christian Bible and Religion. I know that you cannot very well answer back and explain. But I think that I can help out, as I am somewhat in a position to acquire writings by "Professionals" that the average person may not necessarily have access to immediately.

For many years a number of "electrical instruments and products" have been used against human physical and brain bodies. These manufactured products made by man have helped to distort the American citizen's viewpoints.

The Old Testament and the New Testament are both master treatises designed to create a special pattern of "self-hypnosis" and the outside control of functions of the human body systems and brain by outside mechanical devices. One such instrument known to have been used to create the self-induced impression of "religious visions" is the hypnoscope.

"The Task Force Report on Automation in Psychiatry," The Psychiatry Assoc., Washington, D.C., details the use of the telemetry-electromagnetic-electroencephalogram in surreptitious entry human brain invasion using the BELIEF SYSTEM of the human subject (Belief System means the ideas of belief such as honor, valor, religion, morality, folk tales, etc.) It says that the machine uses a binary "sound" impulse or airwave impulse very similar to a morse code (and the sound may be audible or ultra-sound). This equipment, together with the Holograph, have been used to make the "subject" think he/she is having a religious vision or religious experience. . . .

It has been revealed that the NASA's ATS-6 Satellite has been used for projecting religious images on walls in Mexico, and a large number of people were fooled into believing they were seeing the image of the Virgin Mary or Jesus on the walls.

Information has been revealed to this writer, that the Hebrew/Christian Bible has been computerized for sound and picture projection. And it was revealed by the Washington Post that a Yoga teacher's works had, also, been computerized.

Leaving the Hebrew/Christian Religion really means turning away to seek individual self control, rather than being a subject of self-hypnosis and mind control by outsiders. The matter is serious.

Very truly yours,
A.K., Maryland

* * * * *

Dear George: 1 June 1982

Since the time my letter, regarding Odinism, was printed in Vol. 9—no. 9, several things have occurred that I think you and your kindred should know about.

First, I received a letter from a practicing Odinist in my area. He said he wanted to start a study group. His letter was informative about himself and his plans. After some thought I sent him a letter, but right up front I told him my politics was ultra-right and that I was a devout racist. Needless to say, that was the last I heard from him. Not a peep from this faithful of Odin!

Secondly, I received the Spring 1982, No. 39 issue of The Runestone, published by the Asatru Free Assembly. On page 17 it has a letter from a member who was all upset because he found there were "American Nazis" in the first Odinit get-together he attended. He says the movement "also attracts a group who the Odinist movement could do without." This guy probably had a movement when he came upon those wicked Nazis.

He also states that if you want to hate Jews, join The Moral Majority. This guy thinks Falwell is anti-kike. He has a lot to learn. His letter goes on with the usual anti-National Socialist drivel..

The purpose of this letter is to stress that one should look into Odinism with eyes wide open and giving a quick turn of the head now and again to check the rear. All who say Heil Hitler and Hail Odin are not what they may seem.

For myself, I know exactly where I stand: Unsere letzte Hoffnung: Hitler!

Nur Hitler!
D.J., Pennsylvania

* * * * *

Dear George: 3 June 1982

I have enclosed $7 for 5 copies of the April 1982 issue. The comedy relief from R.D. at the end of that issue was a nice touch. Of course, the greatest music and art the world has ever known was created around the Christian legend. That's fine. It's a good story; very moving, etc. But, let's not be stupid. The Bible was no more written by God than any other book, including the Koran and Alice in Wonderland, and the doctrine espoused in the New Testament is an obvious attempt to put some poor ignorant race on the list of endangered species. On the other hand, perhaps Christianity might provide a means to rid the White Race of its more feeble-minded members—who knows?

Anyway, keep printing such tidbits of hilarity—if only to remind us that susceptability to primitive superstition is not confined to negroes.

Sincerely,
S.D., California

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 5 June 1982

I am an advocate of Arab Rights and have discovered that the same Yiddish imposters who erroneously claim Hebrew heritage are the same plotters whose Protocols are being used to destroy America from within via the legislative bodies, mass communication media, duped minorities, etc. I have recently been accepted as a member of the Presidential Task Force.

I would greatly appreciate any information or literature you may have relative to exposing the unconscionable refuse of humanity, the "Yiddish Club" of lower caste Germans, who attempted to economically strangle Germany prior to the emergence of Hitler. This is the rest of the story that the propagandists prevent from being told.

Sincerely,
A.H., Washington DC

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 8 June 1982

continued on page 37

THE U.S.A.– A MELTING POT?

OF WHITE NATIONALITIES–YES! OF RACES–NO!

By Gen. R. Never

THE U.S.A.–A MELTING POT?–YES! OF RACES?–NO!

IT IS A FACT and truth of history that the U.S.A. was created by White Racists to be a White Racist society–it was NOT a melting pot of RACES; it became and was a melting pot of WHITE nationalities. There is and must be a total and absolute difference between the U.S.A. as a melting pot of White nationalities and a melting pot of Races. As melting pot of White nationalities, the U.S.A. became great! As a melting pot of Races, the U.S.A. has declined and is falling. Was the U.S.A. created to be a melting pot of Races?–No! To prove the answer to this question, we must review the history of the United States of America, its origin and beginning; who conceived the priceless principles of the Declaration of Independence, and why?

Let us start at the point in the history of the U.S.A. when the Founding Fathers were uniting against the "intolerable acts" levied against the English colonies in America–around 1770. Over ninety percent of the "people" in the colonies were from Great Britain, the others were from Holland, France, Germany, etc., colored slaves were not considered to be people. The colonists considered themselves free Englishmen with the Rights of Englishmen. The colonies and the motherland was in fact and deed, in heritage and culture, a White Racist society peopled by White Racists who owned and condoned the ownership of slaves. There was no integration of the Races! That was unthinkable–there were laws against integration in each colony to prevent the stupid and irresponsible people from integration and cross breeding. But the colonies of that time were all White Racist Societies, settled by White people who lived the White Race's mores, customs, heritage, and culture. The Declaration of Independence stated to England that all Englishmen were equal, regardless of what colony they lived in, and were born with inalienable Rights which they claimed for themselves. The ten percent of colonists who were of other White nationalities also claimed these Rights of the Englishmen–colonists from Great Britain. The colonists went on to war to win their independence and set up these U.S.A. wherein only White people were citizens.

After fighting a long, terrible, and costly war for their independence as the U.S.A., and winning that war at great sacrifice, which they willingly paid as the price of independence and freedom, the White people of the United States created a new White society–a limited Constitutional Republic wherein all responsible White men were citizens, regardless of the nation of their origin. The Declaration of Independence created a new nationality–that of the U.S.A.–Americans. All White people of all White nationalities in the U.S.A. were Americans. That was the melting pot of the U.S.A. All White people emigrating to the U.S.A. became U.S. citizens–and Americans–when they accepted U.S. citizenship, to abide by the mores, morality, and culture of this White society of the U.S.A. While the different White nationalities loved and cherished some of their old national customs and culture, they readily adapted to their new home with its wonderous new philosophy of the Declaration of Independence and the laws and mores as defined in the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. Thus did these U.S.A., a White Racist society, become the "melting pot" of the different White nationalities of Europe. No colored people were "melted" in that pot! The colored people were not considered equal to the White people.. The Founding Fathers, and the people they represented, were all White Racists, proudly living their White Racism in their White Racist society of the U.S.A. This is proven by the fact that the Founding Fathers owned slaves and condoned slavery. The Founding Fathers were proud White Racists, and were in fact and deed proud White Supremacists. And they had every right to be proud of their White Race and White Race's superior heritage of culture.

They also had a right to be proud of their White people's incomparable Declaration of Independence, their limited Constitutional Republic for their White people. They also had a right to be proud of their Constitution/Bill of Rights, which was and is the most advanced, most fair and just form of government ever conceived, created, and instituted by man–and it was the White man and his White Race's heritage and culture that did all this, that made all this possible. No Yellow man, or Brown man, or Black man voluntarily and willingly braved great oceans in small sailing ships, and fought the hostile savages to take this land, that is–that was–the greatest nation on earth. Only the White man voluntarily came to the English colonies–White Scotsmen, White Irishmen, White Welshmen, White Englishmen, White Dutchmen, White Frenchmen, White Germans, White Scandinavians, etc. All these White men of different White nationalities who, in the main, voluntarily and for many reasons, came to these shores, became Americans when they got to America. All these White nationalities came to America and "melted" into being Americans–White Americans. There are no other kinds of Americans but White Americans. When White people integrated into the melting pot of the U.S.A., they gave up their allegiance to their White national homeland and pledged allegiance to their new White homeland–the melting pot of White people, the melting pot of White nationalities, obeying and following, most important of all, Natural Law. All of the nationalities of Europe are of the White Race. Thence, when a Scotsman and a Bohemian woman marry/mate, they are mating within their Race as Nature's (God's Allah's, Thor's, Odin's–call it what you will) Natural Laws demand; and their progeny will be white, with the White Race's Genetic Heritage and Culture—their White nationalities melt together to become Americans—White Americans.

Every colony in America had laws prohibiting integration of the colored people into the White society of the U.S.A. It was unthinkable for a White person to marry/mate with a colored person. The separation of the Races was as natural as breathing and sleeping—one does it without conscious thought. It is instinctive! Thence, in the melting pot of America, it was the different White nationalities that melted together to make Americans, and only White people were citizens, only White people of different nationalities melted together—just as the Laws of Nature demand.

The greatest teacher—history—proves that every society/civilization is created by the people of one Race. So, too, was the U.S.A. created by the people of one Race—the White Race. Every society lives that founding Race's heritage and culture. Our White people in our U.S.A. White society, living our White Race's mores, morality, common law, customs, and culture, did not have locks on doors, nor were our White womenfolk worried, when shopping or in their homes, about rape, mugging, assault, etc. But in an integrated society, a society wherein different races, with different racial cultures and heritage, are integrated, the White society—being no longer White—no longer lives the White heritage and culture of its founders. In the U.S.A. integrated society, all doors are double locked, fearful people put bars on their windows, and the womenfolk are so fearful and terrified of being mugged, raped, assaulted, etc., that they don't go out of their homes at night. Why? Because the mongrel culture of an integrated society is not the White heritage and culture, with its high morality, wherein the White individual self-restrains his acts and respects his fellow citizens' rights. The colored's racial heritage and culture is much more primitive than the White Race's heritage and culture. The White Race is far more advanced than the colored Race. You can tell how advanced a Race is in its development, by its culture, by its societies, and how it treats its women. Has any colored Race ever conceived, created, instilled, and lived an advanced society as a democracy or a republic? No. Not in all their history. But the White man has—many, many times.. And each time the White man has created and instituted those highly moral advanced societies, in time they permitted integration, and this integration destroyed these advanced White societies. Every time the White man permits integration of the inferior colored races, with their primitive heritage and cultures, into his White man's superior societies and cultures, the integrated society declines and falls! There are no exceptions—this is the Law of Nature! There can be no exception! Nature's Laws prohibit the integration of the Races! Remember—Nature's Laws are absolute, immutable, irrefutable, uncompromisable; transgressors will be punished.

A White Society may permit integration, but if it does, it will decline and fall. Integration means disintegration of the White Race. Integration of the Races means disintegration of the White Race's heritage and culture and the end of their society.

Mongrel people have never created an advanced society, nor will they ever, because and advancing society requires a stable Racial heritage and culture to survive, and a stable Racial heritage and culture is what the mongrels are lacking, and will never have, simply because they are mongrels. History's paths are strewn with advanced White societies which tolerated integration of the Races—and died: Egypt, India, Rome, and the greatest society of all—the once-great U.S.A.

The U.S.A. were, in accordance with Natural Law, created a White Racist society, by White Racists for White Racists, to live and enjoy the White Race's heritage and culture, and so long as these U.S.A. remained a melting pot of White nationalities—a nation of White people only—the U.S.A. progressed and advanced until it became the greatest society in history, thanks wholly and solely to the fact that they obeyed and followed Natural Law, and did not integrate other Races into its White Racial society. Then our White society and its religions changed their principles and dogma to accept and promote integration. Why would the greatest society on earth suddenly reverse its thinking? Why would this great White society of White Racists suddenly permit integration of the Races when they had laws prohibiting such a crime? And integration is a crime! Why is integration a crime? Because every person has inalienable rights to have the Racial heritage and culture of a pure Race to help them survive and pursue happiness. But mongrels are denied this right! Integration is a crime against humanity because integration is Genocide. Societies have the right to survive if they have the innate ability, and they can, if they remain a pure single Race society that they were created.

Today, our declining, integrated society knows a lot about Nature's Laws of genetics. We do know that integration breeds mongrels, and that every mongrelized society declines and eventually falls. Armed with this knowledge, it is up to our White men to reverse this integration and return to the separation of the Races that our Founding Fathers practiced, and that our ancestors practiced, and that made our U.S.A. possible.

Endowed by Nature with an instinct for survival, every form of life fights to survive. Yet, our White people are not fighting to survive! Why? Why are our White people permitting the colored hordes to invade their White homelands, to integrate and destroy their White societies? Why? Because their leaders are Racial Traitors—for whatever reason. Racial Treason is Racial Treason, whatever the reason. It makes no difference that our leaders may have good intentions. The destruction, extermination, and genocide of our White societies and our White Race is just as final, whether this integration was done for good or evil intentions. In fact and results, the Racial traitor with good intentions is more to be feared than the enemy who deliberately attempts to integrate the Races to destroy the society—we recognize the enemy for what he really is. But the Racial traitor with good intentions is accepted as one of us, and he is permitted, by our own people who are stricken with blindness, to destroy our White society and our White Race because he is supposed to be one of us, and is supposed to be doing what is best for us. Our White men are disarmed by these 'good intentions,' but the betrayal isn't any less real because it is being done with 'good intentions,' nor are these good-intentioned traitors any lesser traitors for their 'good intentions'—integrationists are traitors!

With the vast knowledge of genetics and history available today, there is no excuse for our leaders, who are supposed to be the most knowledgeable and wisest of our people, not to know about the fact that integration is genocide, racial and societal treason. There is also no excuse for our White men(?) to idly stand by and permit colored hordes to infiltrate our White societies, to mate with our White people, and thus to destroy our White Race and society. Every White leader and every man of our White Race knows instinctively that integration is wrong and that colored men must not mate with our White Women, and White men must not mate with colored women. Every such integrated mating is racial treason! Those who integrate or promote integration are racial and societal traitors!

The enemies among us claim that it is a right of the individual to integrate. Is it a right for you to deny your progeny a Racial heritage and culture? No! Is it your right to integrate and destroy our society? No! Is it your right to integrate and destroy your Race and your Race's genetic heritage that tens of thousands of White people before you worked and fought so hard to maintain and keep pure, so that you might survive and have a White Racial heritage and culture? No! The inalienable rights you were guaranteed by our Founding Fathers and their priceless Declaration of Independence, Constitution and Bill of Rights, were based solely and wholly upon the genetic heritage and culture of our superior White Race.

When you, men and women of the White Race, permit integration of our White society, you are permitting its destruction, totally and absolutely, as history proves. Your slavish permissiveness and slavish acceptance is societal as well as Racial treason. Your meek permissiveness makes you an enemy to our White Race and society. Instead of you fighting against this deadly, insidious enemy integration, you permit it to happen and your permissiveness makes you an accessory to this crime. Permissiveness signals approval. Your permissiveness means your approval.

We White people are in a total war for survival. If this treasonous act of integration is not stopped soon, we White people, our White Race, and our White societies will not survive. In a war of survival, there is and can be no neutrality or compromise! Either we, the White Race, win, or, we, the White Race, die. Either we patriotic White people separate the Races in accordance with Natural Law, and survive, or we integrate in defiance of Natural Law, and die. That is the issue our White people—You—must face

continued on page 37

TEUTONIC UNITY

German Citizens' Initiative

Address all correspondence to: Rechtsanwalt Manfred Roeder, Haus Richberg, D-3579 Schwarzenborn, WEST GERMANY — or — Postoffice Box 148, Buffalo, NY 14225, U.S.A.

"First of all, I am under the protection of conscience. By writing books freely, I have given witness to the truth; for affectionate reasons, I wanted to serve my fatherland. With firm conviction I fought against papal treachery, and I have tried to remove the attacks against general freedom. Where is the reward for such accomplishment? This is what I am asking so that nobody thinks that I am afraid of punishment as I might be of a crime."

Ullrich von Hutten

Dear Friends: No. 21 — June 1982

When we are writing another letter this month, after the Yearly Guide was distributed the last two months, we would like to inform you about the status of the court proceedings. Very little was reported in the newspapers during the last weeks and some friends are already asking if the trial is over and judgment passed. No, this has not happened yet and most probably the trial will be over at the end of June. We know from numerous letters that you have been informed only imcompletely by the newspapers and we have been asked to report more fully about the proceedings.

Here are more details:

THE ACCUSATION

Subject of the prosecution are five explosive attacks and two fire bombings against various objects which occurred between February 21, 1980 and August 22, 1980.

FEBRUARY 21, 1980

Explosive attack on an Auschwitz exhibition in the Municipal Building in Esslingen. Carried out by Hoernle, Dr. Colditz and others. Damage to buildings.

APRIL 18, 1980

Explosive attack in Ruit against the house of the District Magistrate of Esslingen, who was responsible for the Auschwitz exhibit. Carried out by Hoernly, Dr. Colditz and others. Damage to buildings.

APRIL 27, 198 Explosive attack on an Auschwitz exhibition in the Janusz-Korczak School in Hamburg. Carried out by Hoernle and others. The explosive devices detonated only the next day when two female passers-by touched it. One person was slightly wounded, and some material damage occurred.

JULY 30, 1980

Explosive attack on the alien camp in Zirndorf. Carried out by Hoernle, Vorderbruegge and others. Some material damage.

AUGUST 7, 1980

Firebombing of a refugee camp in Leinfelden. Carried out by Hoernle, Vorderbruegge, among others. Two people wounded.

AUGUST 17, 1980

Explosive attack on an asylant's hostel in Loerrach. Carried out by Hoernle. Three people wounded.

AUGUST 22, 1980

Firebombing of a shelter for refugees in Hamburg. Carried out by Hoernle and Vorderbruegge. Two fatalities.

The accused Hoernle, Vorderbruegge and Colditz admitted their participation in these actions in all points.

At first, Manfred Roeder was accused only of masterminding a terrorist group. Later, this accusation was extended by the court against Roeder, accusing him of being an accomplice since he became guilty of the individual attacks through spiritual influence and previous consent. The firebombing in Hamburg was considered homicide and consequently Roeder was charged with being an accomplice.

At the beginning, Hoernle and Colditz testified that Roeder had been informed of the planned attacks. But the interrogation by the Presiding Judge showed that those statements were based on presumptions only, and that neither Hoernle nor Colditz have any proof that Roeder had any foreknowledge of any of these attacks. Vorderbruegge declared that she did not inform Roeder of any attack—and that such information could have come only from her because after the first attack in Esslingen, neither Hoernle nor Colditz had any direct contact with Roeder, who at that time lived in the underground.

Roeder denied having had any foreknowledge of the cases or to have taken part in discussions about the attacks. He made it clear that this is not his method. Moreover, if he were responsible for one or the other attack, he would say so because he takes responsibility for his actions. It is not his habit to shift the blame onto others. But he cannot take the blame for something in which he did not participate. If he would now take responsibility for the attacks, it would not help the defendants—they would have to answer for their own actions.

The physical and psychological burden under which the first interrogations of the defendants were carried out were demonstrated by the interrogations of Federal Judge Maier from Karlsruhe, who took the witness stand during one of the last days of the trial. He told that on September 2, 1980, one day after the arrest of the four defendants, he was waiting the entire day in his office for the suspects to be brought before him. It finally happened at around 6:00 P.M. Only then could he begin his interrogations which had to be finished by midnight. The result was that the interrogation was conducted under great pressure of time. The nervous stress was just as great for the interrogating judge as it was for the four accused.

Judge Maier now felt obliged to complement his interrogation protocol in the case of Vorderbruegge, that he had subsequent doubts regarding the deposition of Miss Vorderbruegge. His protocol reads that Miss Vorderbruegge said, "I took it for granted that people would get hurt during the attacks." Judge Maier explained in Stammheim that this precise wording—as most of the protocol—did not come from Miss Vorderbruegge, instead it was his own diction. Miss Vorderbruegge had answered most of the time only with "yes" or "no." In retrospect, he thinks that it is possible that Miss Vorderbruegge answered his questions only with "yes" to stand in defiance as a matter of principle. He does not think that she had these considerations (endangerment of life) already at the time of her action. With this deposition of a Federal judge as a witness, the accusation of premeditated murder was refuted, in favor of Miss Vorderbruegge.

For all those who have followed the proceedings in Stuttgart-Stammheim, it was absolutely clear that at the first interrogation by the police and the judges, depositions were made which could not withstand the precise and conscientious interrogation by the Presiding Judge and had to be partially withdrawn. But this does not mean that Hoernle or Colditz, or both of them, are "informers" who made their first deposition in order to put the blame on Roeder. This opinion, which we find again and again in the circle of friends, is simply absurd, just as Miss Vorderbruegge is not an "informer." Hoernle still had to correct depositions during the trial at Stammheim with which he, at the beginning, burdened Roeder. The recollection, how things happened, where, when and what was said, came to his mind often only when he heard the statements of other parties concerned.

HOW DID THE FIRST ATTACKS HAPPEN AT ALL?

Colditz had a group of friends with whom he met regularly. At these meetings people talked about everything, but mainly about the political situation and the writings about modern history. Revisionist books like Harwood's "Did 6 Million Really Die?", Butz', "The Hoax of the 20th Century," books by Heinz Roth, etc., were discussed and exchanged. One day, rather by chance, Hoernle joins the circle. The discussions interest him little, he catches some phrases here and there, but often renders it falsely and in a different context. His hobbies are ecology and fireworks tinkering. Already in his youth he had made fireworks. The manufacture of explosives is easy for him and just as exciting as is for others the reading of a book. When Colditz suggested, on the occasion of the Auschwitz Exhibit in Esslingen, to harrass it in some way, perhaps with spray-slogans, Hoernle answers, "I'll make a small bomb." This appeared to him in any case much simpler than spray-painting slogans.

Occasionally, in the circle around Dr. Colditz, there is talk about Roeder and his newsletters. Hoernle had heard about him, but did not study his ideas. In the autumn of 1979, he meets Roeder in the home of Dr. Colditz, and together they take a walk. He likes Roeder's positive attitude toward ecology, but he does not understand his other ideas.

In February of 1980, Colditz and Hoernle plan to disrupt the Auschwitz exhibition in Esslingen. Both go separately, at intervals of several days, to the exhibit to spot suitable sites. Hoernle suggests a "little bomb" which should be placed at a picture on display, and goes ahead with the construction of such a "little bomb." Thursday, February 21st is set for the attack.

Several days before—completely unexpected—Roeder (who at that time lived in the underground) bursts into the home of Colditz. He is very sick, has 105° temperature, and Dr. Colditz, a throat, nose and ear specialist, immediately orders him to bed and prescribes anti-biotics. While Roeder is resting in the private home of Dr. Colditz in Dettingen, the latter meets Hoernle in his office in Kirchheim and both drive to Esslingen with their "little bomb."

Late that night, after they had carried out the attack, both return to the home of Dr. Colditz. Roeder feels better and walks around in a robe. They tell him what happened. Roeder is perplexed, but finds it great that other people would do something and protest against such shows. They have a bottle of champagne together. Hoernle feels like a hero. When Roeder, whom he admires, offers him the "Du," Hoernle takes this as a compliment. The good feelings he experienced that evening later creep into his testimony. The nightly gathering became, in his memory, a drinking bout in which the beginning of the revolution was celebrated.

Soon thereafter, Roeder leaves the home of Dr. Colditz to look for a more permanent place to live since he wanted to stay in Germany for a while. The contact with Dr. Colditz ceases.

After this first attack, Hoernle and Colditz placed another bomb, this time on April 18, in Ruit, at the home of the District Magistrate, who was responsible for the Auschwitz exhibit in Esslingen. As Colditz hears about the Auschwitz exhibit being planned for Hamburg, he asks Hoernle to get there and plant a bomb. Hoernle consents.

Miss Vorderbruegge was a friend of Dr. Colditz' daughter and met Manfred Roeder through her. She is so enthusiastic about his ideas that she quits her job and offers her help to Roeder. Roeder employs her as a secretary, to type newsletters, do filing and preparatory work for the Annual Guide, published since January, 1981, in the German language. But she is not quite satisfied, she would like to do more. After she learned that Hoernle can manufacture explosives, she persuades him to let her participate in an attack on a hostel for aliens, in order to "frighten the asylum seekers." At first, Hoernle refuses—"that is no business for girls"—but Miss Vorderbruegge insists. Finally, Hoernly gives in "to do her a favor, and because I liked to be with her." The idea of further bombing sprees comes to them spontaneously when they learn of a hostel for asylum seekers. Two Vietnamese died on August 22, 1980, as a result of their last attack in Hamburg.

Hoernle and Vorderbruegge are terrified and drive to seek help—from Roeder in Hann. Muenden. When he learns what happened, he yells at them. Miss Vorderbruegge cries constantly and Roeder realizes that both are at the verge of a nervous breakdown. They need his help, not rebukes. He suggests that they go first to eat something to calm everybody down. At the dinner and the subsequent walk, Roeder talks a lot about everything, no time remains for their own thoughts. His rethoric passes them by without being absorbed by Hoernle and Miss Vorderbruegge. Only a few words remain, and these are not understood by Hoernle in their context, but are repeated during the later depositions in the following manner: Vietnamese are half-monkeys, blood must flow. At his court appearance in Stammheim, Hoernle repeats helplessly: "Yes, at that time I didn't understand it either."

Roeder testified that he told them, in order to quiet them down, about the religious feelings of the Vietnamese. For them, life is like a flow to the final existance after death. Death, for them, is nothing terrifying. He has studied this subject thoroughly. His brother, too, who, as an American citizen, participated in the Vietnamese War, had confirmed this. Vietnamese, in rescuing their comrades, had first taken their dead and left the wounded behind. The Americans had to force their allies, with guns drawn, to leave the dead and take care of the wounded first. His brother had remarked: they behave like half-monkeys. This is what Roeder told Hoernle and Vorderbruegge that evening. Hoernle remembered only the word half-monkeys.

When the judge asked what the phrase "blood must flow" means, which Roeder, according to Hoernle, had "constantly used," Roeder does not remember. However, Miss Vorderbruegge tells that this is a quotation from a poem "by Schiller or someone else." In fact there is such a line in the "Hecker-Song", published in the Annual Guide for August 11: "Blood must flow, in thick streams!" At that time, Miss Vorderbruegge had already started the collection of poems and this phrase stuck to her mind (in case somebody thinks that the inclusion of this poem in the Annual Guide implies Roeder's bloodthirsty character, it must be pointed out that these verses appear also in other large collections of poems of modern times, like "The Eternal Fountain," 1st edition, 1955). Whoever knows Roeder must admit that this is a turn of expression which might fit into his use of plastic linguistic usage, and that he may have repeated it humorously. But Hoernle is not able to differentiate. For him, such a remark is a challenge to act. In Stammheim he gives an obvious example of his special nature to understand or misunderstand things. When the Presiding Judge again brings up the scene of the "half-monkeys," he angrily asks Hoernle, "and you remained calm? If Roeder would have said that in my presence, I would have thrown the soup bowl in his face." Thereupon Hoernle: "That didn't happen at the table, but during the walk afterwards."

On March 18, a DPA (Deutsche Presse Agentur) news release was published in many papers that Roeder had admitted the day before, at the hearings in Stammheim, that he had asked his followers several times to blow up hostels for aliens. Together we searched in vain for clues as to which of Roeder's statements could have been misinterpreted in such a fashion, because he never said any such thing. My protocol for that day carries no comment with respect thereto. If somebody read the article in the newspaper, I can only suggest not to believe it because it simply is not true. I was present at the hearing from the first to the last minute, and this remark was not made in any connection. The words "hostels for aliens" do not appear in my protocols at all.

Roeder's final testimony concluded with the observation which I placed at the beginning of this report: that he did not participate in any bombings, nor in the "spiritual" preparations leading up to them, and that such acts of violence do not fit in with his style of seeking publicity. But he does not feel that it is his mission to restrain others who like to express their discontent with present-day conditions; his own taks, instead, are on a different plain.

It must be admitted that the Presiding Judge handled the trial exceptionally well and sympathetically. It happened more than once during the proceedings that the situation was relaxed with pleasantries and laughter. Just like the others, Mr. Roeder had the opportunity to express his opinion to every point of the accusations. Of course, one cannot assume that a fair trial will result in a mild sentence, but the hearings, conducted in a quiet and relaxed atmosphere, have greatly contributed to the fact that the initial rigidity of all defendants quickly disappeared and the depositions were given more freely and more definitively.

At the present trial, not only the life of Manfred Roeder is at stake—if the judges follow the accusations and recommendations of the Prosecution and affirm his complicity in murder, he will be imprisoned for life—but also the fate of TEUTONIC UNITY. Upon pressure by friends, we have decided to hire an additional defense attorney, the Mannheim attorney Ludwig Bock. This was a very difficult decision for us since, financially, we are competely dependent upon the help and assistance of our friends. The costs for such a defense counsel are so tremendous that Mrs. Roeder cannot come up privately with the required funds. We are convinced that the court-appointed defense counsel will do everything in his power to bring the proceedings to a good ending. Considering what is at stake, we felt justified to hire additional counsel. Please don't abandon us in this fight. Only with your help can we jump over this financial hurdle. If you send us any money, please make a note on the check: trial expenses. We would like to take this opportunity to thank all of those who have already helped us before.

On another matter: the first two Annual Guides for 1982 have been published (in German). Unfortunately, not all of you have sent us a check for our out-of pocket expenses for these—DM6,00 per copy. Please don't forget this because we, too, have to pay our printing bills.

With friendly greetings,
Ingrid Weckert

Responsible for the contents: Ingrid Weckert, Adlzreiterstr. 5, D-8000 Munich 2, West Germany.

Dear Friends: No. 22 — July 1982

From now on I'll write our Letters again myself, monthly and with the latest news. They will not necessarily be composed in a polished English, but hard-hitting and to the point. We simply cannot wait half a year for a good translation. Due to severe mail restrictions and the difficulties of the trial, it has been impossible for me to remain in close contact and write the Letters myself. Since January 1st I was restricted to a mere 10 letters per week of two pages maximum each. With all the other ongoing correspondence, that never sufficed for Letters on a regular schedule. Now we hope for a change in the prison conditions that will allow us to keep up the work. For we are determined to continue more than ever before!

When you read this Letter, judgment in my case will have been pronounced, but right now I can only tell you about the trial up to this point, and the pleadings of the Prosecutor General. One June 14, he asked for 12 years imprisonment for me, 7 years for Dr. Colditz, and life terms each for Hoernle (51) and Sibylle Vorderbruegge (26). The headline in the big Stuttgart newspaper reads: "Roeder cannot be convicted of murder." "The prosecution believes Hoernle and Vorderbruegge to be guilty of two cases of murder and 5 cases of attempted murder, executed by firebombs and explosives. But Roeder cannot be found guilty of these actions. The prosecutor, by his pleadings, restricted his charges to the original indictment. Only the court had extended the charges against him at the opening of the trial and accused him of murder—an altogether unique procedure in court history that the court levels higher charges than the prosecution!

"The remaining charges of the prosecution are based on a rather unusual construction of legal theory. The prosecution believes that Roeder urged his friends to throw a bomb at the home of a judge, which was never carried out. It is further believed that Roeder took part in two actions by 'ommission.' The trial proved beyond doubt that he was not involved in any action, but he should have prevented others from committing them. Due to his personality, he should have exerted his influence on his friends."

Everything about this case was highly unusual. For 17 months I was a prisoner on remand. I was arrested on September 1, 1980; the trial opened on January 18, 1982. Three other friends, who were arrested at the same time, admitted on the very first day that they had thrown the bombs, and that I had nothing to do with it. Nevertheless, I was the main suspect, and the whole trial went under my name: 'Roeder and others.' I was supposed to have been the 'big boss' of a terrorist group, behind the scenes. It took 10 months to draw up the indictment although there was never the slightest doubt as to who committed the acts. All the time they were looking for arguments against me. After ten months, I was then charged with 'conspiracy,' but no criminal acts. In November 1981, the court changed the indictment and charged me not only with murder, but also with actively taking part in all the activities that others had committed and confessed to.

During the five months trial, there was, of course, not the slightest evidence for those charges. But instead of dropping these unfounded charges, they were changed again: now I was accused of being the mastermind by 'ommission.' I could and should have prevented all the actions of my friends—even if I didn't know anything about them!

In November, 1981, I was transferred to Stammheim near Stuttgart, where the trial opened on January 18. Stammheim is notorious for terrorist trials. Here they kept the Baader-Meinhof-Gang, and constructed a special building within the prison walls for terrorist trials only! Of course, a multi-million object, a huge hall with unconcealed steel beams, looking like an aircraft hangar, with no windows at all. The dimensions are so fantastic that one almost needs binoculars to see the five judges, communication is only possible by microphone. I am now kept at the same special 7th security floor of the prison, changing from one cell to another every few weeks, in which the Baader-Meinhof people allegedly committed suicide. But I have not met one prisoner yet who believes that suicide story.

We are kept under the same conditions as those convicted terrorists. Severe mail restriction, visitors and even our attorneys can speak with us only from another room, through a glass pane, even the correspondence with our defense counsels is screened by a judge. In one instance, a letter from my attorney took four months to reach me! How can anyone defend himself under such conditions? I am not even allowed to have all my files concerning the case in my cell. Whenever I leave my cell, I have to strip completely and re-dress under supervision of two guards.

Every Monday and every Wednesday, there have been sessions of the court. We, the prisoners, are transported the two hundred yards to the 'special building,' all within the prison walls, in a caged police car, followed by yet another police car. Along the drive, every 50 yards a policeman is standing guard, with a sub-machine gun and finger on the trigger. In addition to many police patrol cars, a contingent on horseback all day patrols the perimeter of the prison. At least one hundred policemen are on duty when we go to court—a young girl in a Dirndl and three well-dressed seniors in their mid-fifties.

The whole thing looks utterly ridiculous!

Another specialty is: suspected terrorists never go before a normal court, with a jury, like any normal murderer or gangster does. There is no jury of our peers at all, only five judges of a superior court. One of our American friends came to attend part of the trial and saw the entire spectacle. He just couldn't believe it. No jury! And even worse: the court handpicked two attorneys for each of the accused, no protest possible. This does not mean that the attorneys are bad, on the contrary, so far I was satisfied with their work. But the fact remains that they were handpicked by the court, not by the accused, an absolutely absurd system. Prosecution, court, and defense—all arranged for by the state system! There is no opposing or controlling institution at all.

At the beginning of the trial, the press reported at length about every day's proceedings. When the case dragged on week after week, the interest, of course, dwindled away. But now, at the end, interest is coming up again. When I took the stand, all the papers carried bold headlines and articles. Here are some of them, sometimes some of them rather amusing: "Roeder tells his underground story" —"Suffering from political persecution" — "Roder, as successor to Doenitz, calls Hitler a great man and a shining example" — "Democratic System is 'humbug' " — "Roeder as 'Reichsverweser' (Vicar of the Reich) wants to clean out the Augean stable of Democracy" — "Democracy is corruption and irresponsibility, what we need is the rule of the people, according to old Teutonic tradition, the principle of the 'Thing' " — "A real German can never be a democrat!" — "Roeder calls for the unity of all Aryan nations and the integrity of all other nations, no race mixing" — "Proud admirer of Adolf Hitler."

"Roeder is convinced that the German people have been brainwashed and forced into an attitude of servility, crawling before aliens and Jews, not daring to stand up and admit their great past of National Socialism. Only the open confession that Adolf Hitler was our idol and leader can make us free and proud again. For Roeder himself it is natural to have a pciture of the great Fuehrer in his office."

Most papers even admitted that my statements were rather convincing, and that meant for some—the more dangerous! The "Koelner Stadtanzeiger" wrote: "If it wasn't for Manfred Roeder's monstrous ideology, which makes him a dangerous demagogue, he could even be a rather sympathetic fellow. He is of great eloquence and self-confidence. Talking to the judge, he acts like a professional, salted with humor and sometimes even with a twinkle in his eye. Never is there any kind of cynicism in his speech."

Doesn't that sound rather appreciative?

Maybe the strangest thing about the whole press was: the Jewish Weekly gave one of the most detailed and objective reports, whilst the two so-called national papers carried no reports at all, but used the occasion for the vilest attack on me in a foul and abusive language. The "Juedische Allgemeine" of March 26 wrote: "The tactic of Roeder's defense is to avoid a total confrontation with the court; by this, he hopes to create a more objective atmosphere—in contrast to other terrorist trials. His defense counsels are playing it low key. Only Roeder himself makes motions—not without skill—and succeeds most of the time. For example, he reminded the court of a section of the code of procedure that has not been used for ages, according to which it is permissible to have the spouse admitted in court as an assistant to the accused."

This motion made it possible that my wife Traudel could sit with me and my lawyers through the whole trial.

The 'National-Zeitung,' on the other hand, wrote on March 19: "Roeder is living in an absurd dream world. His statements make it necessary to lock him up in a psychiatric asylum. He is a danger to the general public."

No other paper has come out with an attack like this one. It really makes you think which forces or interests are behind so-called national groups or papers. Most of the other papers carried this sentence: "Roeder condemns parliamentarism and demands the rule of the people, by the people, and for the people. With his newsletter, which he is sending out to 35 countries even from his prison, he wants to give more backbone to the people, especially to the Germans. All of his writings are inspired by idealism and are meant to help is nation."

But these papers are far from being nationalistic or having any open sympathy for us. Yet they try to be fair to a certain extent. What more do we want?

The greatest inspiration and help has been the fact that so many of our friends—particularly from overseas and many of Aryan Nations from America—have written to the court in my behalf, and expressed their sentiments and solidarity. Only recently I got to see all those wonderful letters and want to thank you with all my heart for having written these letters. Because of the mail restriction, I cannot possibly thank each and everyone of you individually, but want to do it with this letter. I cannot prove it, but I am convinced that these fine letters have helped to give the court a real impression of what kind of people we are and what our objectives are, and that these letters have helped to create a favorable atmosphere during the trial. Most of the time the Presiding Judge was fair, trying to keep everything on a high level. That's all we want. To influence the judgment is not in our power. But having done all we can, we leave it up to God—whatever the result may be. Our determination is to carry on with more conviction than ever.

And this is what I am going to say in my final word: Look at the world! Anybody can see that it is going from bad to worse, and there is no politician, not one in the entire world, who can offer a real alternative. Show me one if you know one! They are all greedy for power or fame, but unwilling or unable to serve their nations and solve the problems. Most of them do not even recognize the problem. The problem is certainly not Russia! If there were no Communism at all, we would still have race-mixing, inflation, unemployment, degenerate art, decaying health, rising crime, and a young generation with no future. The problem is not political at all, it is not military, it is not economic; it is a twist in our thinking and living. All we want is more for oursleves or our nations. Why do we, for instance, take sides in the Falkland War? It is utterly unimportant whether these islands are inhabited by British, by Argentinians, or by sheep and seals. I have no sympathy for the Argentinian military dictators, but I have even less sympathy for the British imperialists. If they want to shoot each other, let them do it, it is none of our business. Just look at the hypocracy of the British! They have the right to use force in order to gain back a few barren islands on the other side of the globe, which they themselves had occupied illegally for only 150 years. But when Germany demanded the city of Danzig back, which had been German for 600 years and was located right in the middle of our homeland, the British started the Second World War. Germany was not allowed to take back what always belonged to her, but Britain is entitled any time to grab what she has stolen herself. And we fools support her!

The problem is not economic! It is utterly unimportant whether unemployment goes up or down by one percent. The whole system of more and more materialism is wrong. Unless we learn to live with less, but with more sense, the whole world is going to die. Not necessarily by an atomic holocaust. The world is dying already day by day. But not only our environment is destroyed before our very eyes, it is also the heredity and health of our nationhood that are twisted, polluted, poisoned, and destroyed. To save our nations and our nature is the only intelligent program for any intelligent human being! To hell with parties and politicians!

No National Socialist has been in power for more than 30 years, but the world is going downhill rapidly. If we are not wiped out by an atomic blast, the globe will be destroyed by many 'conventional' wars. If not by wars, it will be by fear of wars and a maddening arms race. If not by rockets and arms, it will be by a run for the last resources, or even fresh water and clean air. If not by a run for wealth and riches, it will be by destruction of the environment. It not by destruction of nature, it will be by race-wars. If not by race-wars, it will be by rising crime. If we are not victims of crime, we will be victims of degeneracy, softness or simply of laziness and carelessness. But even if we could avoid all those 'Egyptian Plagues' and manipulate our way through, somehow, this world is already becoming such a gloomy planet, such a hopeless habitat with no more beauty, no more ideals, no more enthusiasm, with less and less human affection, and more and more inhuman bureaucracy and computerism, with an ever growing police force, that it becomes less and less attractive to live.

We have to turn back to what we learned from our forefathers, to hard work and discipline, with less money, less welfare, and less socialism, less state and less centralism. And less industry, not more!

Capitalism has failed, so has Socialism and Communism. What we need is the co-operation of the best of every nation, an elite everwhere, absolutely independent of all parties and international money.

I have used these months in prison already to work out some of the basic thoughts about a new society. They are revealing the only alternative to global suicide. I hope to have them out soon and translated into English. Only the Aryan nations can take the lead in this new and necessary thrust. Let's do it together! I'll work for it and live for it, whether in freedom or prison. God is our guide!

* * * * *

Forgive me for adding a personal note in conclusion: Just before the trial, the Prosecutor General announced at a press conference that the whole purpose of the trial was to have me locked up for many long years in order 'to have peace on the ideological front.' He made it clear that the intention was to destroy our whole work. Concurrent with that, a colossal smear campaign in the press was started about the 'greatest trial against Neo-Nazis ever held in Germany.' I was labeled 'the most dangerous radical' and was convicted by the press before the show even started.

At this point we felt obliged to hire two of the best lawyers to defend me. Too much was at stake. The court had given me two official defense counsels. As it turned out later, they were not bad at all but rather co-operative, but we couldn't know in the beginning and could not take any chances. That means that after the trial we will have to pay four attorneys and, of course, all the court costs—a fantastic sum.

We are not in panic about it, for we know: where God guides, he provides. But friends urged us to share our needs in order to give them a chance to play their part as they feel directed. What is more: any donation is strengthening our spirit, bringing us closer together with our friends around the world, and confirming our conviction that this, our fight, is our calling and should be continued—especially under trials and tribulations.

Please keep writing, especially now under continuing hardships!

Yours ever,

LATEST NEWS ON THE ROEDER TRIAL:

In the Stammheim trial, Manfred Roeder was sentenced to 13 years imprisonment. The other defendants received the following sentences: Raymond Hoernle—life imprisonment; Sibylle Vorderbruegge—life imprisonment; Dr. Colditz—6 years imprisonment.

In his conclusion, the Presiding Judge stated that discussions were held to consider "security measures" for Manfred Roeder' This was not done at this time. It means that it can be decided at a later date, and that Roeder might never regain his freedom.

Since the trial has already been held at the highest level, an appeal is not possible. There is only one revision which might be admitted—if a considerable error on procedural matters can be proven. The admission of a revision would be decided by the German Supreme Court in Karlsruhe. As things stand now, such a decision is highly unlikely.

The Presiding Judge said in his conclusion that he expected the decision on Manfred Roeder will have the result that he will be forgotten in a very short time; that his circle of friends will disintegrate; that he will not continue to write circulars, and that his wife and his six children will undergo extreme suffering. The latter indicates a precedent in German legal proceedings, namely that the family of a defendant has been drawn into the final adjudication. This reminds one of the Old Testament's revenge of visiting the inequities of the father upon the children.

The prediction that the circle of friends will fall apart is now up to you. We have confidence that you will not leave us. We can promise that we are going to continue our efforts. We have enough material for the letters, even if Manfred Roeder would be prevented for some time to write himself.

It is important that we can now rely on your help. We need personal contact with you. Please write directly to:

Manfred Roeder
ueber 5. Strafsenat/OLG
Urbanstr. 18
D-7000 Stuttgart 1, West Germany

or to:
Familie Manfred Roeder
Haus Richberg
D-3579 Schwarzenborn/West Germany

Any help is gratefully accepted. Checks should be made out to Manfred Roeder and sent to him at Haus Richberg, D-3579 Schwarzenborn.

Ingrid Weckert (Secretary)

"WHICH WAY WESTERN MAN?"

by William Gayley Simpson

For Race Intellectuals!

From Nietzsche to Modern Politics
Applied Philosophy for Racial Living Today!!

CHAPTERS:
Marriage — Family — Race Difference
How Communism Works
With Zionism

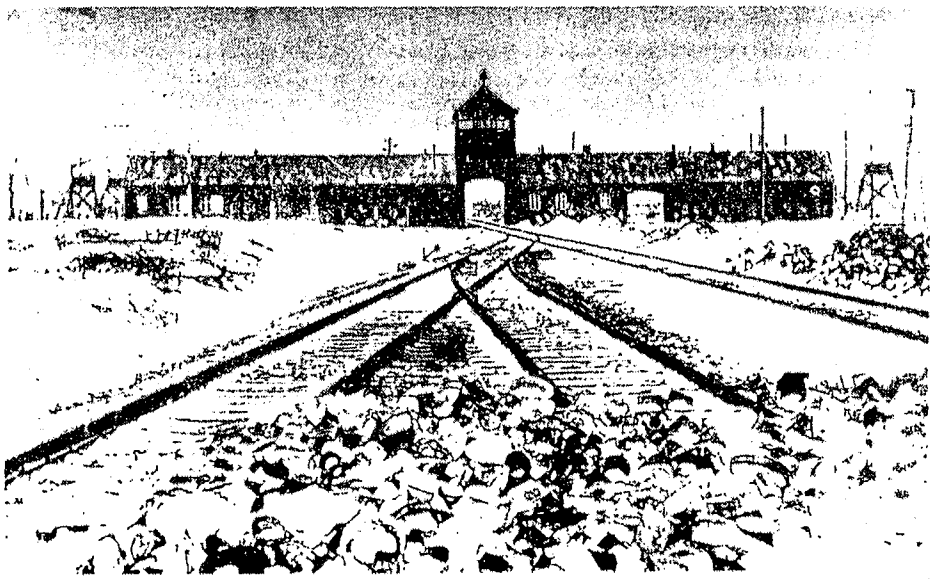
An Encyclopedia of knowledge upon which a movement can be built.

758 PAGES
$8 PER COPY

Plus $1.00 for postage and handling

Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
REEDY, WEST VIRGINIA 25270

The Book That Made The Jews So Mad They Had To Invent The Movie HOLOCAUST!

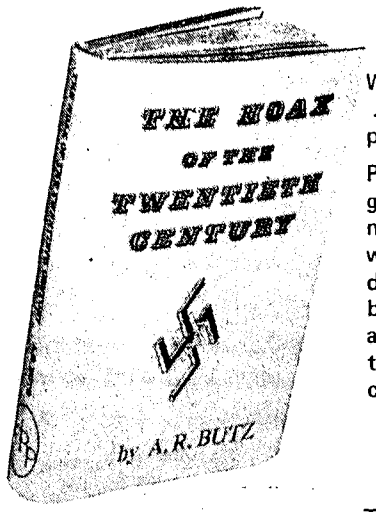


Christophersen/Roeder

Auschwitz

$ 1.50

AN UNBIASED EYEWITNESS REPORT
ON THE REAL LIFE IN A CONCENTRATION CAMP
THERE WERE NO GAS CHAMBERS!



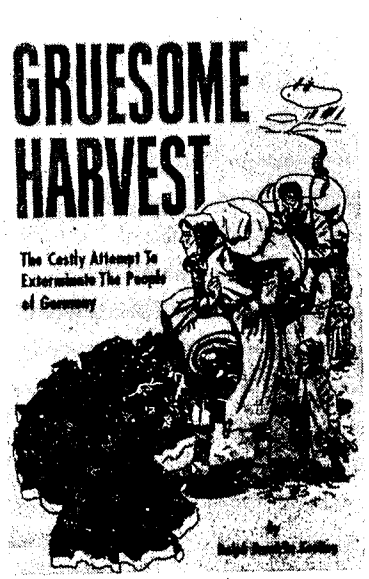
THE "HOLOCAUST" –
FACT OR FICTION?

Were six million Jews really gassed . . . or has a colossal hoax been perpetrated on the world?

Professor Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6 million Jews during WW II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

HELP US
SPREAD THE TRUTH!

THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
$6.00 plus $1.00 for postage & hdlg.



$ 4.00 Please add 10% for postage and handling! $ 3.00

For a sample copy of our monthly publication, The Liberty Bell, a copy of our extensive list of 'Eye-Openers,' and several revealing reprints, send $2.00 to: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA.

THE U.S.A. – A MELTING POT?, continued from page 20

up to now. If our White societies are to survive, then our White Race must survive—you can't have one without the other! If you love our White people's U.S.A. and our White people's Declaration of Independence, if you love our White people's Constitution and Bill of Rights, you will rise up and fight our deadly enemies—those who integrate and those who promote integration. In this war for survival, our enemies are not playing games; they mean business every step of the way—and so must we! Nature will not help us. Nature neither loves nor hates any specific form of life. Nature creates the different forms of life and gives them the ever changing environment to adapt to. If a life form is fit—it survives; if a life form dies, it was obviously not the fittest, unfit to live and procreate and survive. So it is with our White Race—either we prove our fitness to survive by fighting for our survival, by preventing and eliminating integration with the colored Races, in accordance with Natural Law, or we die! In this war for survival, there can be no neutrality, no compromise. Either our White Race remains pure and our societies return to being White societies, and survives—or our White Race and our superior White societies permit integration and mongrelization—and dies! We White Americans must return to the White heritage and culture of White Racism that our Founding Fathers created and left us in trust. It takes but common sense to understand that our White society can only exist if it is peopled by White people. We White people have been covertly betrayed by our leaders into a melting pot of integration of the Races. But we can denounce and execute these societal and Racial traitors, and fight to regain our White heritage and culture. We White people and our White societies can survive and we will survive if we fight to survive, and put a lid on the melting pot of integration. Whatever the cost to survive, all White people owe it to their White progeny and posterity to pay that cost! □

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 15

I never would have known about "The Plan in Action" and many other subject matters, nor subscribed to The Liberty Bell if you hadn't sent me the various items you did voluntarily, probably hoping I had sense enough to learn something worthwhile. I am pleased about everything you do, produce and write. That's damn well pleased.

My best wishes to you and my thanks.

W.J.S., California

* * * * *

RONALD REAGAN MUST LOVE THE JEWS!

From a newspaper item of June 4th: "U.S. warning Romania to let Jews emigrate . . . President Reagan and members of Congress say they will warn Romania's communist government that it would lose U.S. preferential trade status if it does not expand Jewish emigration to Israel."

Romania was given to the Soviet Union by a Rockefeller tool, Pres. Franlin D. Roosevelt. He had stopped General Patton from taking Prague and Berlin before Stalin's forces could get there. He then betrayed American interests at the Yalta Conference by giving to the Soviet, six East European countries, including Romania.

So as partners in the Rockefeller–Kremlin Alliance, the Rockefeller partner is telling Romania, a subsidiary of the Kremlin partner, what to do. Romania is told to increase the number of Jews allowed to leave that country to go to Israel. Even Reagan should know that the Jews won't go to Israel; they will come to America.

The bandit State of Israel was formed by a murderer, Menachim Begin. (The British Government had advertised a $48,000 reward for catching him.) President Truman, a Jewish satellite, recognized Israel almost before it was officially formed. He gave Begin the power to drive a million Arabs from the Palestine homes they had occupied for centuries.

The murders and sufferings of the Palestinians enraged the Arabs in oil-producing areas of the Middle East. Consequently, they formed a coalition of oil producers which shot prices up to astronomical heights. This made the United States a debtor nation and shoved the dollar still further down toward extinction. It's what the Jews did. But Ronnie still loves them.

You will be astounded at this: There is more oil in the north slope of Alaska than there is in Saudi Arabia! If this were allowed to be produced, America would no longer be a debtor nation and oil prices would tumble, unemployment would be almost stopped, and the United States would be saved from total ruin. But the Jews won't allow it. Why does Ronnie love them?

The middle class of White people, the backbone of the country, is being exterminated by impossible interest rates and devastating Federal taxes. These are caused by outrageous Federal expenditures, mostly unconstitutional. Blame the Jews.

Jews own the Federal Reserve System. This is impoverishing millions of Americans now being fed by taxpayers. Many of their former employers have been forced out of business by high interest rates, devastating taxes and onerous paperwork for the I.R.S. See what happens when Jews own the banking system? However, Ronnie loves them.

From The Spotlight of June 14th: "From 1946 through 1980 (not 1981), the United States has given Israel . . . and a myriad of other foreign nations $2,304,257,900,000 in foreign aid. That's not millions of dollars, or even billions of dollars—but trillions of dollars taken from the American taxpayers. Sen. Jesse Helms . . . . told the Senate that as of May 11, the Federal debt totaled $1,060,237,928,516.01."

Now see what the Jews have done to us. There would be no Federal debt if twice the amount of that debt had not been given to Israel and other countries. Israel received $18,490,073,000. If it had not been for the Jews, there would be practically no unemployment. Working people would be able to buy houses at reasonable prices. The erection of those houses would employ carpenters, etc., who, in turn, would buy merchandise which would employ millions more. The materials used would employ still more millions. All those thus employed would be able to buy automobiles and other goods. This would be a prosperous country.

An Israeli ambassador to Britain was shot, supposedly by Palestinians. Menachim Begin retaliated by putting Beirut to flames. In the first two days alone, in retaliation for the attempted assassination of a Jew, at least 230 human beings were killed. This catastrophe was done with American planes and tanks, financed by American dollars. No wonder the U.S. has lost the respect of the civilized world! Yet Reagan loves the Jews.

Jews are only 2.9% of the population of the U.S.A. But how can we get rid of them? Every country they have infested has been ruined. No country wants Jews, just as no dog wants fleas. Don't bring in more Jews. But President Reagan wants to do so. I wonder why.

L. Lee Layton, Delaware
9 June 1982

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 17 June 1982

At a flea market in the area I found Jurgen Thorwald's books, "Es begann an der Weichsel" and "Das Ende an der Elbe," both published in the fifties. Although the books are anti-Hitler, they contain a wealth of information about the last months of the war, when millions upon millions of people kept their unshakable faith to the last hour, were then overrun by the Red Army and consequently tortured, slaughtered and raped until they died, or herded like cattle into trains and shipped away—never to come back.—Ghastly! And how the U.S. troops behaved when these poor refugees arrived at the Elbe. I wonder if I had read the books at that time if I ever would have entertained the thought of coming here.

It was a pleasure to read "The Uses of Religion" and how brilliantly Dr. Oliver traces the development from tribal rituals to the urgent question of a unifying ideology for White people now. Will we live to see it?

Faithfully,
Mrs. J.T., Washington DC

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 19 June 82

Enclosed is money order for a year's subscription to The Liberty Bell.

A new book by Nicholas Tolstoy, "Stalin's Secret War," states that Stalin's death prevented plans to start World War III in 1955 and to overrun Western Europe. We should have worked with Adolf Hitler in WW II.

Did you watch "60 Minutes" on TV when they had the "Nazis" on? Let me tell you something that "60 Minutes" DID NOT TELL YOU:

They said when the Nazis moved into Byelo-Russia (White Russia), they killed over a quarter of the population. You might like to know where they REALLY went. Russia is composed of 3 races: Moslem-types in the South, Mongoloid-looking, thick-faced types in the East, and White Aryan in the West, descendants of Viking immigrants (Yurik became Yuri, Helga became Olga, as in Olga Corbett, gymnast). Stalin was deadly afraid that the White Russians (of which I am one, my grandparents having escaped in the late 1930s), would, upon hearing Adolf Hitler's programme of racial eugenics, ally themselves with the Third Reich. He forced them over to the far eastern part of Russia (really Eurasia) in the late 1930s where many of them died. So there!

Good luck.
F.Y., New York

* * * * *

18 June 1982

A GREAT VICTORY – FOR THE JEWS
A TERRIBLE BLOW – TO THE U.S.A.

From a big headline in "The Morning News" of June 18th: "Argentine President ousted . . . Buenos Aires, Argentina—President Leopold Galtieri, the army commander and architect of the disastrous, undeclared war in the Falkland Islands, was forced into retirement by his fellow officers on Thursday."

Galtieri was pro-American. Under his leadership, Argentina was outstanding among the anti-Communist countries in Latin America. Communist forces are working to weaken the defenses of the United States on its southern border. Gen. Galtieri was an obstacle to their designs.

In the war to destroy the United States, the Communists won the first battle when the Jew newspapers, led by the "New York Times," helped Fidel Castro displace Batista in Cuba, thereby turning the island over to the Rockefeller-Kremlin Alliance. With Cuba as a base, troops were sent to African countries, such as Angola, to bring them under Soviet influence.

The Rockefellers had previously dislodged the Rothschilds from control of the continent of Africa. Now, invaded by Cuban troops, it is being taken over by the Rockefeller-Kremlin Alliance, which is also working to destroy the United States.

Their first objective was the Panama Canal, the creation of Pres. Theodore Roosevelt. Panama was then part of Columbia. To get a free hand, a revolution was staged in Panama, making it independent. (Later on, during Woodrow Wilson's Administration, Columbia was given $25 million by the U.S.A. for the loss of Panama.) Inhabitants of the new state had a low standard of living; the advent of the Canal was a big boost to them.

The U.S.A. built the Canal on its own territory and ran it successfully for years. The low freight rates of oceanliners, through the Canal, enabled the products of California and other western states to reach the East Coast economically. This was a tremendous boon to the country.

Then occurred a weird incident. Pres. Jimmie Carter, a Rockefeller tool, proposed a treaty with Panama, "giving back to Panama ITS Canal," and millions of dollars to keep it. With this money, the dictator of Panama paid off some of the loans incurred at Rockefeller banks. This treaty was ratified by 68 Senators. All of them should have been hanged for treason.

The Central American countries had been getting along peacefully with their economies slowly improving because of trade with the U.S.A. Now, with Panama settled, some strange forces stirred up dissension and warfare. Diplomats and emissaries from the U.S.A. (Zionist controlled) helped by muddying the waters. Reports coming to the United States are so confused that it is almost impossible to tell what is really going on in Guatemala, El Salvador, etc.

At this point, Argentina's President Galtieri apparently took a hand. He trained anti-Communists who went to Central America and tried to straighten things out. So apparently the Rockefeller-Kremlin Alliance decided to oust him.

Following is a version which appears correct, but is not guaranteed. Zionists in the British Government started communications with Pres. Galtieri of Argentina. They pictured a South Atlantic organization headed by Argentina and the Union of South Africa. It would control access to the fabulous undiscovered mineral welath of Antarctica. The Falkland Islands were included as being critical. They should be taken over by Argentina. Galtieri was encouraged by some in the British government to do so. He got the approval of Pres. Reagan. So he captured the Falklands. Then he discovered that he had been double-crossed by Pres. Reagan who gave his support to the British.

President Galtieri is now out. The last big stumbling block in the path of the Rockefeller-Kremlin Alliance in their drive to wipe out the U.S. from the South is now gone.

Mexico is yet to fall, but that may not take long. The whole southern part of the United States would then be open to invasion by superior forces of the Soviet. Yet the latter could not even fight a war if it were not for the help given it by traitors in the United States.

The Jews have 2.9% of the population of the United States. Before it is too late, what are we going to do about, and to, them? L. Lee Layton

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 19 June 1982

I have your March 82 issue and it is terrific!

I have been working many years for our people (White Supremacy), quite a few years in the John Birch Society (which I now regret, to a certain extent). I did some good but hate myself for spreading mistaken ideas about Adolf Hitler and National Socialism by Robert Welch.

My Best,
W.V., New York

* * * * *

Dear George: 19 June 1982

I have just finished "The Social Contract" by Robert Ardrey and so now I know about "Alphas" and "Omegas." Hitler was an Alpha and so was George Lincoln Rockwell. . .

We are at the very beginning of an anti-egalitarian reaction which will sweep the Jews and our other racial enemies away and which will either rejuvenate the Gothic-Faustian Western Culture or may create a third Occidental Civilization. . .

As things are at the moment, the West is a scene of perpetual revolution. Trotsky would be right at home on any Human Relations Commission, or any branch of our-Big-Brother-which-art-in-Washington. . . .

Sincerely,
B.H., Texas

* * * * *

Dear George: 25 June 1982

I thought it was about time that I wrote you another letter as lot of things have happened in the meantime.

I received a letter today from a Tony Campaigne who is executive director of the Foundation to Rebuild America. He wants to get signatures together to get Judge Leo Milonas kicked out of his Federal Judge job.

Milonas has been freeing criminals and turning them loose on society. Max Lindeman broke into a Sisters of Charity Convent and raped, sodomized and mutilated a thirty-year old nun. Lindeman was at the time on a three year probation sentence, and Judge Milonas turned him loose on a five year probationary sentence.

In a case of this kind, in my opinion, Judge Milonas is a worse criminal than Lindeman, and he should be taken out and hanged.

A lot of these judges use the excuse that there isn't room in the penetentiaries. That can be cured easily. We have more people than we need. Coddling this kind of people is costing the good people millions of dollars every year and it isn't worth the trouble. If the penetentiaries are too crowded with criminals, start herding ten or twelve into each cell and give each and every one of them a hunting knife. When all but two or three of them are dead, shoot them and clean out the cell for the next group of candidates. When the word gets around as to what goes on in the penetentiaries, we won't need but very few of them.

Back in 1924, in this town, the KKK was strong. I saw 12,000 march down Main Street, six abreast, with their robes on and a gun over their shoulders. The sheriff prowled the streets at night with four or five Kluxers in the car, and we didn't have any crime. You could walk any place in town, at any time of night, and you were as safe as you would be in your own home. Some guy shot another in the parking lot of a pool room and it was headlines in the paper for two weeks. Now they put something like that back in the middle of the paper and it won't take up more than an inch of space, and you never hear anymore about it. If these judges love the criminal so much, we should put them on the receiving end. Go in and get them, hang them on the nearest tree. The White people in this country will never get anywhere untill they pick up their guns and go to work. It's the only way.

I try to keep from buying anything that has a "U" or a "K" on the package. It is getting almost impossible. Ninety-four percent of the people in our country eat about anything, but the other six percent are very finicky about their eating habits, and so they are forcing the food producing companies to pay a rabbi a big salary to stand around and see to it that no lard gets into the oleo, and the cost is added to the product, and it is costing us natives around $23,000,000 every year to see to it that these gas inhalers don't get polluted. I noticed that the products from the Food Club company in Skokie, IL, don't have the U or K on their products, and since Skokie has 7000 of these gas inhalers that claim they survived the imaginary gas chambers in Hitler's concentration camps, I assume that this company is a gas inhaler outfit, and it is thus understood that there is nothing to worry about in their products. It is about time the White people in this country rose up and made themselves known and heard.

White people are a funny bunch of critters. If a few of them get together and start an all White organization, of course the Jews are going to call them racists, terrorists, Nazis, Fascists, bigots or sick heads in their newspapers and TV. Then the rest of them don't have the guts to stand up and be men instead of mice, so they say, "Oh, I wouldn't belong to an organization like that! The Jews might call me an anti-Semite and I wouldn't be an anti-Semite for anything in the world." Well, buddy, if you can't stand to be called an anti-Semite or a bigot, how would you like to be called dead? If this thing keeps on, that is exactly what you are going to be called. These people intend to wipe the White people from the face of the earth. I don't worry about the Christian religion, but I do have some feeling for the White people. Rabbi Rabinovich, in his speech before a crowd of rabbis from all over the world, in Budapest, stated that the White babies being born today would be the last of the White Race. Their plans are to fill all the White countries with mongrels from all over the world till the Whites are reduced to a minority and then turn these mongrels on them and wipe them out, then the Jews will rule the world under slavery. They say the colored races will be easy to rule, and all the Jews will live in luxury.

The Jews say that they are the only human beings on earth and all the rest are animals, and their Bible says that it is no crime for a Jew to kill an animal. They own the Federal Reserve System and have boosted the interest rate so high that millions of people are loosing their homes. They don't like the idea of animals living in homes. They want them to live in pig pens. The wonderful Jews will live in the homes. This thing is going on because the White people are scared to death that the Jews might call them names. What do you care what they call you? They call you pigs. They hate you. 27 countries in Europe chased them out at one time or another for doing the same thing to them that they are doing to us now. Are we stupid enough to let them get away with it? We are about a 70 percent majority. Are we so cowardly that we are scared to death of a six percent minority, who haven proven time after time that they are the worst cowards in the world? The only time they get brave is when they have you outnumbered ten to one and have you hog tied. In a case of that kind (as we can witness in Lebanon today), they get brave as hell. Look what they are doing in the Middle East. We have furnished them, for some stupid reason, enough war material to blow up the earth, and they are using to murder the Arabs who don't have a chance. These people have lived from murder for the last 3,500 years. 2,500 years ago the Egyptians were calling them "the cutthroats across the river." They never had a homeland. You have to work to have a homeland. These gas inhalers won't work. Did you ever see one of them in a coal mine or on a farm or working on the streets or building houses? They have no business in Palestine. That land has belonged to the Palestinians for 2,000 years. Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin gave them permission to go in there and murder these poor people and take their land away from them. What business did they have to give away something that didn't belong to them? The whole thing is just plain rottenness. The United States used to be an honest nation. Now we back the rottenest people in the world in their murder and torture. What has happened to us? It is time we cleaned this country up and started over. All we have to do is get rid of the gas inhalers. What do you say, we get organized and go to work?! Being unorganized, we are helpless. We don't care what they call us in their jewspapers, movies or television.

Let's turn around and start calling the pigs PIGS or RATS.

Yours,
A.H., Ohio

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 29 June 1982

I enclose my check for a year's renewal of my subscription to The Liberty Bell.

The best article in the June issue was the item by "Michael Bakunin." I hope that you will encourage him to write more. By the way, the original Bakunin wrote an essay, which I believe has never been translated from the French, in which Bakunin lambasted Marx's First International Workingmen's Association for being largely staffed and controlled by Jewish journalists, intellectuals, and financiers. Someone should translate it sometime.

I hope that Dr. Oliver will be contributing more essays to your magazine in the near future.

"Michael Bakunin" and others who seek a third way between capitalism and socialism might be interested in reading Hilaire Belloc's "Servile State," which is as anti-capitalist as it is anti-socialist, and all the writings of Ralph Borsodi, especially his "Prosperity and Security." Belloc and Borsodi stress that no one can be truly free if he does not own and control the means to earn his own livelihood. As is well-known, few people do own such means in the U.S. today, most of us being dependent on employment by some corporation or government agency.

Sincerely,
B.N., Arkansas

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 29 June 1982

Even though my employment hours and pay were cut to approx. three days per week months ago, I want to extend my subscription for two years instead of one. Also, my recent tax refund is allowing me to buy more books and pamphlets from you than I could otherwise. So herewith is my latest order.

Thanks, Mr. Dietz, for enclosing that material on the Christianity debate in my last order of June 3, and the back order for " Christianity and the Survival of the West." I find the whole topic intellectually explosive!

Sincerely,
G.H., New York

* * * * *

Dear George: 29 June 1982

I had to wince at the first casualty figures from Lebanon: 10,000 "enemy" dead, 100 Israeli dead! Obviously the only way to get a ratio like that is to shoot unarmed civilians. Now the number I hear most frequently is 40,0000. That means at least a year of Israeli occupation while the Jews clean the place up so that it doesn't look too much like scenes from their own "holocaust" movies. Mustn't confuse the stupid Americans!

On a lighter note, I was happy to see that Mitterand and his band of merry Bolsheviks are getting a glimpse of the brick wall at the end of the tunnel. Less than one year of Socialist government has crippled the French economy to the point that a new program of "austerity" is in order. This political U-turn is only a temporary measure, of course, and the journey to the end of the rainbow will resume just as soon as the economy recovers from its first encounter with Socialism. Or, as the French finance minister put it, "the time for gathering the cherries has not yet come." The old carrot-on-a-stick trick.

I have enclosed articles from the L.A. Times & Herald Examiner that I thought you might find interesting. The May 11 Times piece is an excellent example of the behavior of Liberals when confronted by facts. . .

Thank you for helping to open our eyes.

Sincerely,
S.D., California

* * * * *

Dear Liberty Bell: 1 July 1982

I am a White male, 21 years of age and am interested in any newsmaterial you can send me. I am presently incarcerated and would like to know if there is a subscription price to prisoners.

Respectfully,
Al Sawdon, No. 43837
2605 State Street
Salem, Oregon 97310

[We've sent a package of "goodies" to this imprisoned White man; would any one of our readers care to enter a subscription for this youngster? —Ed.]

* * * * *

Dear George: 3 July 1982

Enclosed are $5. for the same order of stickers which you shipped and I did not receive as of April 8. But it's not your fault; you know how the niggers in the postoffice are. They stopped my mail delivery altogether when I got a letter with KKK on the envelope. But I got that straightened out.

Have you heard this one?

"What does the Postoffice and Kinney Shoes have in common? —Both have 30,000 Black loafers.!"

I am sending you a copy of a letter the Tribune published in their paper; you can bet the kikes didn't like it!

Were are these peace groups now that called me a baby-killer when I came home from Vietnam? The real baby-killers are the terrorists who are invading Lebanon; so let's stop talking from both sides of the mouth when it comes from Israel. The World Court should put Menachim Begin on trial for war crimes.

Thank you,
W.H., Illinois

* * * * *

Dear George: 4 July 1982

Still reading the Sturdza memoirs. He attributes Germany's defeat to three reasons:

1) Hitler's effort at saving Il Duce after the latter attempted to play World Conqueror in the Balkans. That diverted some 40 divisions from the task of invading Russia. Also delayed it so that winter would overtake him.

2) Very poor treatment of the occupied people—he did not use good psychology with them and exploited them and drove them back into the commie camp.

3) The Canaris Conspiracy, which hatched the 20th of July plot. So many important generals were in on this plot that there could be no hope of secrecy of important battle plans. Sturdza can not figure out why Himmler's agency could not detect this conspiracy, unless Himmler might have been part of the plot himself, perhaps.

My Best,
G.I., Illinois

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 13 July 1982

I have been meaning to subscribe for some time. I am a Vietnam veteran and knew long ago something was wrong with this country. By reading "The Spotlight," "White Power," "NS Bulletin," "Straight Shootin'," "National Socialist" (quarterly), etc., our racial predicament has become clear. From your May and June issues, things have become even clearer. The Jew parasite menace must be stopped cold in its tracks. If the White Race vanishes from this planet, this neat little pebble in the cosmos will become a dunghill if not vaporized or polluted. If we wake up our Aryan kin, there is a chance that we could maintain our survival and make real progres towards an ideal civilization. White men must focus their attention on our historic enemy, the Jew. Now is the time to expose this threat. My duty, now, is to inform the misinformed. Mr. Dietz, I am proud to relay the ammunition you provide monthly. Glad to be aboard and will support you as often as possible.

Heil Hitler!
M.D., Washington

* * * * *

Gentlemen: 14 July 1982

Thank you for your sample copy of The Liberty Bell. I found it very interesting.

Reading your Letters to the Editor, I found several people upset at you for exposing Christianity for the fraud it is.

Through "The Spotlight" I came to know about the Odinists, and their publications are very educational and scholarly. I have become very interested in their work.

Best of luck and thank you.

Very truly,
Mrs. J.F., Montana

* * * * *

Dear George: 15 July 1982

Greetings from South Florida. I am writing you today to let you know how much I appreciate your valued work in exposing the evil workings of the Zionists and other Jew scum the world over. I especially enjoy reading the Liberty Bell magazine.

I am sending you a small donation to help you further your wonderful work.

In this envelope you will find a cartoon of the sitting skeleton watching the Jew Boob tube. George, I really believe that this cartoon would make for a great phone booth sticker. What do you think? [We are now in the process of producing just such a sticker; they should be available shortly. —Ed.] Could you possibly get me an estimate as to how much 500 to 1000 would cost? I would be interested in ordering 1000 if the price isn't too high. Either a self-stick or a lick-stick sticker would be good.

Anyway, if you have a chance during the next couple of weeks, please look into my proposition. I think everyone will always stop and look at a cartoon in a rest room or phone booth, especially if there isn't too many words to read.

Keep up the good work; we are with you all the way down here.

My Best,
D.M., Florida

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 15 July 1982

Thank you very much indeed for so kindly sending me the recent packet. . .

If I may say so, "The Liberty Bell" has become even better of late with its high quality articles on philosophical and religious matters.

I did some months back send in a letter respecting the article by Narodnikov which was unique in exciting some opposition from me. [This letter was published in our June issue, page 33. —Ed.]

If at any time there should be any convenient opportunity to mention my new booklet "National Socialism: World Creed for the 1980s", a complimentary copy of which I sent to you several months ago, and which is of course a reprint of the article by me in No. 3 of "The National Socialist," it would be very helpful. [We are planning to reprint this article in one of our future issues, if we get permission to do so; meanwhile, the booklet may be obtained from: Colin Jordan, Thorgarth, Greenhow Hill, Harrogate, No. Yorks. HG3 5JQ, England, for $2 incl. postage. —Ed.]

It is truly a tremendous task which you are continuing to accomplish with your publishing activities.

My very best wishes, yours sincerely,
Colin Jordan, England

* * * * *

To Whom it May Concern: 16 July 1982

I am a student at New York University, which, I'm sure you know, has a largely Jewish student body. For two years I have felt the Jews stepping all over me in their attempt to monopolize the University. I can now more fully appreciate those of you who try to stop them from monopolizing our country. Something must be done.

I have recently come across some of your literature and am greatly interested in getting more information. Some of my friends and myself are interested in passing "The Word" on to others who feel like we do at NYU. Who would believe we'd be second class students to the Jews? The time has come for me to take action.

Please send me some sample literature for my own information and some leaflets, bumper-stickers, flyers, etc. to distribute on campus to get people involved in the right cause, to make them aware, before it is too late!

I would also be interested in attending lectures and if anyone informative will be speaking in or around NYC, I would love to attend before the fall semester begins. Any information you can send me is appreciated.

Sincerely,
Miss K.E., New York

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 16 July 1982

I am writing to you in hopes that I can get free issues of your publications. I would gladly pay for them but I am incarcerated and cannot aford to pay. If you would send me issues, I would see to it that they be passed around.

Thanking you in advance, I remain

very truly yours,

Charlie Richie No. 109942
Holman Prison , Rte. 2, Box 37
Holman Station, AL 36503

[We have mailed a package of goodies also to this prisoner; any one of our subscribers care to enter a subscription? —Ed.]

* * * * *

Sir, 21 July 1982

I'm writing you in regards to your Liberty Bell. I would like to receive a couple of issues or a subscription to it. I'm in prison and will be for some time. I am getting involved in White movements here and do agree that we are getting cheated and that needs to be stopped! I am going to do my part in stopping it and in getting others involved as well. Could you please send me your magazine or other literature of what's going on out there?

Thank you,
Allen Johns No. 87519
Box 188, La Grange, KY 40032

* * * * *

Dear George Dietz: 23 July 1982

I distributed most of the Hoax of the 20th Century leaflets that I received from you with my last order. I distributed them to the faculty offices of censored (Oakland) University. I gave one to almost all of the history professors there. When I took a history class there, we read the "Hoess Affidavit" as factual and not as a statement extracted by torture.

Yours truly,
D.H., Michigan

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 26 July 1982

I truly enjoy your magazine. After wasting years with useless groups such as the John Birch Society, the Voice of America crowd, and the Fuller Evangelistic Association, it is good to hear the elevating truth of White Racial Unity in The Liberty Bell. I particularly enjoyed a report that dealt in part with Rhodesia and pointed out the stupidity of its White rulers who sold out their Race. Maybe you can get information on the condition of the Whites now stranded there?

The Christian religion doesn't fare too well in the magazine, however. The picture of Billy Sunday dancing with a representation of Jesus Christ was pure blasphemy. Sunday was a cheapjack evangelist on the order of Jerry Falwell. I have no respect for either of them and you can lampoon them in any way you see fit. But to mock and ridicule the Savior is to puncture God's name. It's bad luck, Mr. Dietz, it's bad luck.

And, please, no more letters from nellie, slobbering Arminian "ministers" who can't tell enough how much they "love" the murdering Jews. I say send them to the bandit state of Israel and be rid of them.

With the hope for prosperity and effective communication for your publication, I remain

Yours sincerely,
H.M., California

* * * * *

Dear George: 27 July 1982

When I was a kid, we used to open each class with the Pledge of Allegiance. Here's a new pledge, updated to suit the America of the 1980s:

"I pledge allegiance to the Trilateral Commission, and to the Plutocracy for which it stands.

One world, under David Rockefeller, with usury and inflation for all."

'Nuff said?

K.A., Minnesota

* * * * *

Dear Liberty Bell: 28 July 1982

My Preferred Choice Bookplan had, as one of its May, 1982, selections, "Holy Blood, Holy Grail," by Michael Baigent, Richard Leigh and Henry Lincoln, who are associated with England's BBC. When I ordered the book, I had no idea it would be more controversial than their outline had indicated.:

"The subject of this book could constitute the most shattering secret of the last two thousand years, a secret linking Jesus Christ with an Arthurian dynasty and the Holy Grail.

"In 1891, a poor French priest discovered something in his mountain village at the foot of the Pyrenees that enabled him to spend the equivalent of five million dollars.

"The secret of explosive and controversial proportions radiates from this little Pyrenees village to encompass the whole of Western civilization. Its repercussions stretch all the way to contemporary politics and the entire edifice of the Christian faith.

"Could Jesus have been married and have fathered children? Is it possible that He did not die on the cross? Does his bloodline still exist, guarded by an international secret society that involved such well-known names as Charles de Gaulle and Andre Malraux?

"However one judges its conclusions, this is a book that reads like a historical detective story and cannot fail to arouse tumultuous interest among readers of history, mysticism and religious puzzles."

The international secret society, the Prieuro de Sion (Priory of Zion), have goals so similar to those of the Learned Elders of Zion that the authors, while deploring the anti-Semitism associated with Protocols, conclude that it is unlikely that they are not one and the same. It is suggested that a protege could be accepted as the Second Coming!

The US publisher is Delacourt Press, 1 Dag Hammerskjold Plaza, New York, NY 10017. It is a 412 page hardbound for $5.95 at your bookstores.

After reading Carroll Quigley's "Anglo-American Establishment," it should come as no surprise that the author's research identifies the royalty and nobility of the West as Jewish.

Quigley's book can be ordered from Book in Focus, Inc., Box 3481, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10163, for $20. postpaid.

Best regards,
Mrs. A.F., Florida

* * * * *

The following are letters addressed to Mr. Arthur Rouner, Jr., D.D., Pastor of the Colonial Church of Edina, 6200 Colonial Way, Edina, MN 55436, written by three of our subscribers in response to a letter by Mr. Rouner which was published in our June issue.

Dear Mr. Rouner: 30 June 1982

Having had the opportnity ro read your letter as published in the June issue of The Liberty Bell magazine, it is my opinion that you were quite unfair with the National Socialist White People's Party in your ad hominem argument.

They were trying to tell you that the Jews Oppenheimer, Teller, and Cohen were in great part responsible for the development of a terrible earth-destroying weapon. What the NSWPP brochure neglected to state was even more pertinent, however. Jews are supporters of every anti-Christian scheme ever devised since the Crucifixion, including Communism and Zionism, both offshoots of that Pharisaism we know euphemistically as Judaism.

Your reaction to the truth—with "horror"—is therefore indicative of the general entropy of organized Christianity: Warmongering Jews presently murdering at will in Lebanon can be rationalized by many Christians as the Will of God being carried out by His Chosen People. But let a White man, a Christian who does not believe the self-promotions of Jewry, tell you that the Jews generally misuse that special status accorded to them by unwitting Christians, and it is called hatred, contempt, and abuse.

We have every right, and the obligation in fact, to hate the Jewish enemies of Christ and our Aryan race. We are duty-bound to oppose the conspiracy against God and Man.

I think you might take into consideration that it was a Jewish ploy, viz., the Chosen People hoax, that placed even atheistic Jews in premier positions throughout the Western world. It was also a Jewish plot that overthrew Christian Russia in 1917, i.e., Bolshevism.

If an entire people is guilty—it is guilty.

For Christ, Race and Nation,
Maj. Donald Vincent Clerkin, Euro-Am. Alliance

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Rounder: 19 July 1982

I recently read a letter you wrote to the NSWPP.

First, let me say I am not a member of any organization, religious or otherwise. If you will, I would appreciate you reading this letter instead of destroying it.

I understand the sincerity of your beliefs. I, at one time, had these same thoughts, but became disenchanted with the Blood of the Old Book, and the self-destruction taught in the New Book.

With these thoughts in mind, I would like to ask you some questions, and ask you to read the Bible as I have outlined.

1. Are you aware that the contemporary Jew is, for the most part, Jewish by adoption only? And that very little, if any, blood of the Jew, as depicted in the Bible, remains in their veins?

2. Are you aware that the contemporary Jew comes from Southern Russia, and is descended from Turkic and Mongol stock, and is called a Khazar?

3. Are you aware that the Bolshevik Revolution was planned, financed, and accomplished by the Khazar Jew?

4. Are you aware that the Khazar Jew fought against American troops in our Revolutionary War, and that England was controlled by these people even at that time through the Bank of England, that is Jewish owned?

5. Are you aware that our involvement in all but the Mexican War was caused by the Khazar Jew, in their attempt to control the peoples of the world?

6. Are you aware that the National Council of Churches, and the World Council of Churches, are controlled by these same people, and that the reason for that control is the eventual destruction of all religions but Judaism, and the total mixing of the races?

7. Are you aware of the teachings of the Bible? If so, I'll refer you to chapter, book and verse. Prov. 12:15; James 4:17; Ezekiel 33:1;. . .

There are two books you should read, and I think the NSWPP would be glad to furnish you with them if you would but contact them. The titles are: "The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion" and "The Talmud Unmasked."

I think, if the Dead Sea Scrolls are ever translated by totally unbiased scholars, you will find Christianity was given to the White Race in particular, for the destruction of the White Race. It seems to me, if the Bible is to be believed, the Jew was condemned by Christ in his time, and by Him, so I wonder how the Jew all of a sudden became "The Chosen", after they killed Him. Even today they reject Him, according to their Talmud, and if the Bible is believed, no one shall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven except through the Son; so how does the Jew remain "The Chosen?"

I care not that you destroy yourself. The thing that bothers me is that you seem to be leading your congregation along this same path of destruction, as so many other men of the Cloth are doing.

I know I'll not be able to influence your thinking to any great degree, I leave that up to you, as you are the only one that can change your mind. To be able to do that, you have to have an open mind, as well as the desire and ability to use it.

Sincerely,
Johnny Lee, Arizona

28 July 1982

Dear Sir:

In the June issue of the monthly magazine LIBERTY BELL, to which I subscribe, I read a copy of a letter of yours that you had written to the National Socialist White People's Party in Minneapolis. It seems the National Socialists had mailed you some literature to be posted on your Church's bulletin board wherein it was stated that the three major scourges of mankind, namely the Atomic, Hydrogen and Neutron bombs, had all been invented by Jewish scientists. You seemed upset that this fact was even mentioned, and took issue because of this stance.

I am vitally interested in the moral and ethic issues of our time, and I do hope you permit to respond to your letter. I can assure you that it is not my intent to denigrate you, however much I may disagree with your reply to the NSWPP.

First of all, I wonder whether you write such letters of abhorrence and revulsion to the ADL or some other such organization when they send you obviously ANTI-GERMAN holocaust propaganda material? I have seen some of that stuff forwarded to Christian churches, and I have yet to read an appropriate reply by a minister where such "avowedly inflamatory and dehumanizing attempt to deride and defame and degenerate a whole people," to use your words, was attacked.

Regarding these nuclear devices, which have all been invented by Jewish scientists, and the impetus to which came from another Jew, namely Albert Einstein, it must be clear even to you that the "ethnic" and religious affiliation of these people was no coincidence. You probably read that before the advent of the Second World War German science was furthest advanced in the research of the atom, yet when the war came, there was something within the hearts and minds of the (real) German scientists that restrained them from perfecting these horrible weapons. And do you know what was this "something?" Their German and/or Christian ethics and morality! The Jewish scientists in the United States obviously had no such restraints. And you want to tell us that this matter should not be discussed? The fact that you think as you do, and misunderstand such fundamental issues of our time to this extent proves to me (again) why Christianity is currently in such a moral dilemma. One does not have to hate to see the truth.

Sincerely,
Hans Schmidt, California

* * * * *

19 July 1982

Dear Mr. Dietz:

Thank you for the books I received from you. They are very interesting. Also thanks for the couple of Liberty Bell and Der Schulungsbrief magazines.

I have to point out one thing, however, which I really don't like in these magazines, and it is definitely anti-Christian character which marks these publications. You have a great responsibility, you can influence a lot of people. Please, do not attack Christianity and especially our Holy Roman Catholic Church, which was founded by our Lord Jesus Christ and is represented at present by our Pope John Paul II, direct successor of St. Peter the Fisherman. Do not attack Vatican, do not attack Holy Inquisition, do not attack Holy Jesuitic Order. One day you will have to answer God Almighty—please, remember it.

The article written by certain Mr. Ralph Perier made me really laugh. Its title was "Jews love Christianity." This is the best joke I ever heard in my life. Jews are fighting nearly two thousand years against Christianity—but they love it. How can it be so? Only imbecile can believe it.

All the best, with the greeting

For Christ and Race,
G.S., Argentina

* * * * *

Dear friends: 28 July 1982

I am Greek and National Socialist. I belong to the organization GOLDEN DAWN. We fight against Jewish Capitalism and Jewish Bolshevism. We demand an independent and united Europe, a Europe of the Aryan Race.

Greece is the bulwark on the edge of Europe against barbarian hordes (Turks). Greece now is in danger not only from slavs but from barbarian Turks. Of course, behind Turkish expansionism in the Aegean Sea is Zionism. Jews covet the Greek islands such as Cyprus and Crete. What is your opinion about barbarian Turks? As you know, the Turks don't belong in Aryan race because they are Mongols.

I want you to send me your magazine and in turn I will send you our publication of GOLDEN DAWN.

With best NS wishes,
G.P., Greece

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 9 August 1982

Enclosed is $5. Please send me 20 copies each of the reprints "Begin's Bloodsoaked Past" and "Remembering Martin Lucifer Coon."

I'd like to contribute an approach I've found very useful in arguing with people about Jewish power in the U.S. I compare the position of the American Jewish community in the U.S. to that of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union. In neither case is their control of their respective society total, but it approaches it.

This technique seems to work when people ask, 'But what do you mean 'The Jews' control America? No small group can control a big country."

I think it's an analogy that sticks in peoples' mind.

Thanks,
R.M., Missouri

* * * * *

Dear George: 11 August 1982

I want to acknowledge receiving the material you sent. And I want you to know I find it very good reading. I'm from a southern town where I never saw a nigger until high school, then they were my downfall. I've battled with them ever since. It would be an understatement to say I just hate them.

And now I realize that I have another enemy, "The Jew," because for one reason, they put the niggers where they are now, in our schools, and in some places in our homes. With me being in prison, I have to live right along beside them. But you can believe they know my feelings and they walk well around me.

Well, George, I want to thank you for the reading material and "The Liberty Bell." I'll pass them along when I finish them. And believe me, anything you send will be highly appreciated. You can rest assured that I have no difficulties receiving any kind of material, as long it is straight from the publisher.

Keep up the good work, before long the White people of this country will unite, or they will perish.

Sincerely,
Charlie Richie, No. 109942
Box 37, Holman Unit
Holman Station, AL 36503

* * * * *

Dear George: 12 August 1982

I am sorry for the delay in answering your quite excellent package of 8 Liberty Bell publications, but due to a stabbing of a nigger, I've been on lockdown, waiting for these people to imprison me even more. I'm now on 23 hour lockdown, except for one hour out for shower, etc.!

Your choice of subject matter is quite excellent and a congratulation on your degree of taste (Heil Hitler!). I really get into "Letters to the Editor," but now I've got to turn to you for help, and to your readers, because any books, or literature, has to be DIRECT FROM THE PUBLISHER; that's a bitch too. Would it be too much to ask if you or your readers could send me a few books that I've listed?

1) Auschwitz; 2) Mein Kampf; 3)Which Way, Western Man?; The Hoax of the 20th Century.

I would be deeply pleased if you could help me spread the word. I would also like to regularly correspond with some of your readers.

Thank you and Heil Hitler!
Robert Wymore, No. 90302
Lousiana State Prison
Angola, LA 70712

* * * * *

Dear George: 14 August982

It has been some time since I took the time to write you a letter, but in the recent past I have been doing a lot of reading.

Thanks to the American taxpayer, the Jew problem has gotten worse for the world. At first they came into our cities from their Ghettoes, then they took over the money systems, then into the governments, and finally got a whole area they falsely call a homeland, which is nothing more than a safe center for their world corruption. We used to only have the Communists to worry about, but now with American taxpayers help we have Zionism.

Lebanon is paying for our sins, as did Egypt and all of the Middle East. The Jew (The Arabs' Medfly) MUST BE SPRAYED until they exist no more.

Keep up the good work, but keep an eye open for the Seed of Satan.

W.R., U.S.N. ret., Florida

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 15 August 1982

Enclosed you will find $10 to help in the effort. Also, I was wondering if you might know of anyone with extra copies for sale or possibly any plans to republish the following title:

UNFINISHED VICTORY

by Prof. Arthur Bryant, Publ.: MacMillan, 1940.

This book is beyond a doubt the finest work ever written in English that describes the background and the reasons why the National Socialist Revolution eventually made its way to political power in Germany many years ago. I would like to obtain an extra copy or two, if possible, to occasionally loan to friends in the hope that some of my "boobgeoisie" (as Dr. Pierce might put it) friends might be awakened to our peril.

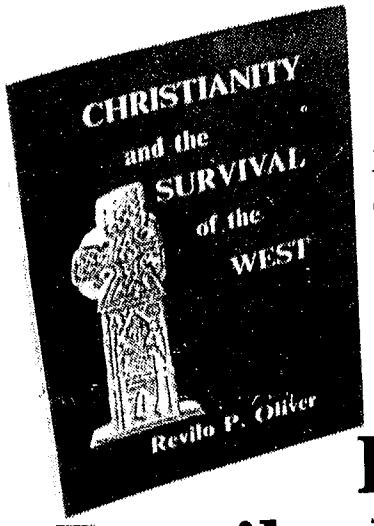
Always enjoy the articles in "The Liberty Bell' and some of the critical letters sent you which you publish are some real lulus: i.e., the Asst. Pastor of the AME Church in Rhode Island, the fellow whose ancestors were from Heidelberg, and the nut who wrote you as "Dear Fascist." I sometimes wonder where these mentally deranged "yo-Yos" manage to crawl away from under some rock and much less write a letter.

Also, the fellow who signed himself as N.R., Missouri, in the last issue of the "Liberty Bell" certainly hit the nail on the head as far as I am concerned. If racialist groups intend to advertise public gatherings and expect the populace to attend, then, as the man said, "if you're going to have a show of strength, then, by God, you'd better have strength to show!" You grow tired o these clown sideshows, as he put it, after a while. It is better to recruit quietly and earnestly and have your meetings in small private groups until the time has been reached to go out into the streets with the strength to control those streets, and then we do the "running off of the trash," as the writer from Missouri might have put it.

Well, I'll close for now and wish you all the best.

H.I., Arkansas

WANTED: One or two copies of Theodore Roosevelt on Race, Riots, Reds & Crime, compiled by Archibald B. Roosevelt, Sr. — A good, clear Xerox copy would suffice, or a copy to borrow. ALSO: One or two copies of Unfinished Victory, by Prof. Arthur Bryant, published by MacMillan, 1940. Send all offers to: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA



Will the end of our religion mean the end of our race?

A Great Iconoclast Details the Causes and Consequences of the Religious Disintegration of Western Man

Quality paperback, 84 pp. — $4.00 plus 65 cents for postage & handling
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

FOR MY LEGIONARIES

Salut pe cei ce merg spre marea biruinta
legionara. Corneliu Z. Codreanu
1938

The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Cornelin Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

THE ANTI-HUMANS by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270, today!

ATTENTION PAMPHLETEERS!
Here are two useful stamps for you!

$4.50 per stamp
$0.50 postage

COMMUNISM IS JEWISH!

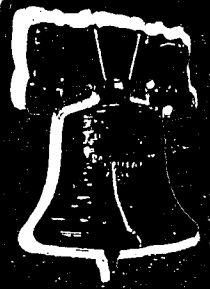
Order from: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270



The Liberty Bell

SINGLE COPY
$1.75

'POPULISM' and 'ELITISM'

page 17

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE

THE COMING RELIGIOUS REVOLUTION, page 1
ONWARD ARYAN WARRIORS!, page 3
FACING MIDDLE EAST REALITIES, page 11
INJUSTICE AT NUREMBERG, page 51
RANDOM THOUGHTS, page 55
SOME EMBARRASSING REMINDERS, page 58

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

VOL. 10 — NO. 1 ISSN 0145-7667 SEPTEMBER 1982

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

THE COMING RELIGIOUS REVOLUTION

This article first appeared in Speak Out No. 66, 5 Aug. 1982. Speak Out is an occasional newsletter, circulated privately and anonymously by one of our supporters. To receive copies as they are published, please send donation for printing and postage costs in cash, to be forwarded by us to the publisher.

The religious revolution predicted by Crystal will indeed come. It will explode into the world with great violence. It will dominate the next phase of the bloody and violent history of our misbegotten species. It will blow the Right Wing and Left Wing completely away. When the religious revolution comes, the best thing to do is to flee to the tall and uncut timber, and hide yourself well, and lie low until World War III blows over.

The Right-Left age is over. The Right and Left rose together and they will fall together. The political terms "Right" and "Left" should have been left on the French tennis court where they were born. It is the collapse of the Right-Left orbit of thought which brings the religious revolution. The failure and collapse of the Right-Left control mechanism leaves a vacuum which will be filled.

In order to understand coming events, it will be necessary to understand theogony, the science of god-making. Atheism is not especially useful. The scientists are on the same payroll as the Reverend Clergy; that is to say, the payroll of the Establishment. They often tell the same artful fibs the clergy tell. The scientists have failed to maintain the integrity of their racket. The best thing is to take a good course in comparative religion in a good university. Then you can understand the manufacture of gods, and how the theogonist seeks to create a collective consciousness which he can manipulate.

The peoples of the ancient world had a common stock of theological ideas which they traded with each other, just as they traded in obsidian, dyestuffs, and slaves. In general, religion was not then the fraud which it has since become. It was carried on with naive honesty. The objective of the mythological formulations was not fraud or deception, but rather the exploration of important truths.

The jackass preachers of America have played a leading role in Judaizing the country. The typical American Fundamentalist preacher ought to have a Bible shoved into his ring-ding-ding. When you hear one of these idiots braying over the radio, it is important to know the source of his ideas. Many of them preach about the end of the world. This is very popular. A lot of people are fed up with the world as it is today, and they want to see the end of it. But all these ideas are of great antiquity.

Everything in the Hebrew Bible is second hand. The flood story, for example, was a thousand years old before the Hebrews ever heard of it and incorporated it into their Book of Genesis. The gods of Sumer and Akkad tired of the human race and decided to wipe them out with a great flood. But the god Ea warned his favorite mortal, Utnapistim, that the flood was coming and told him to build an ark. The clay tablets from the library of Assurbanipal, recording this matter, are a thousand years older than the Book of Genesis. The ark which Utnapistim built conforms to the exact naval architecture as the ark which Noah built a thousand years later.

Loki, the ancient Nordic devil, murdered the popular and dearly beloved god, Baldur. In reprisal, the gods seized Loki and chained him to a rock. A serpent was draped above him to drip venom upon him. Loki's wife sits beside him and holds a cup over him to catch the venom. When the cup is full, she has to go empty it, and the venom drips upon Loki's skin, causing him to howl with anguish. At the time of the end of the world, Loki will be unchained and allowed to go out to wreak great disaster in the world.

I used to hear the Hebrew version of this ancient Aryan myth told by the Reverend J. Frank Morris over station KTAT in Fort Worth, Texas. Norris was a great Judaizer. He predicted that Satan will be unchained to create great havoc in the world. "Behold, he cometh down upon you in great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time."

But this basic myth is much older. It goes back almost to the time of the last ice age. In the Aryan myth, Zohack was the great evil-doer. Zohack practiced human sacrifice. Every day two handsome youths were beheaded. Their skulls were cracked open and their brains were fed to Zohack's sacred serpents, which could subsist on no other food. The hero Feridum captured Zohack and chained him to Mount Damavand, where he will remain until the end of the world. At that time, he will be released and allowed to go out and to do great mischief in the world. The sleeping hero Kresaspas will awaken and go out to fight and destroy Zohack. The idea of a final showdown between good and evil is much older, thousands of years older, than the Hebrew Bible.

The coming religious revolution will exploit these ancient myths. Actually, the religious revolution marks the downfall of modernity, the failure of both the Right and the Left. We are often asked to believe that the Right Wing will save us. But when we contemplate the silly rabble of charlatans who run the Right Wing, we are bound to see that such a hope is foolish. No man who is in the Left or the Right need apply to me for any consideration as an honest man, or even a bona-fide human. The coming violent religious revolution will blow them all away, and the world will be a better and cleaner place when they are gone. There will indeed be a great disaster, but many of the things which will be destroyed are totally evil things which ought to be destroyed. The American mass media system, for example. The new Laser beams can vaporize heavy metal objects at a distance of 5,000 miles. The printing presses can be vaporized, the TV transmitter towers twisted and fried, and the motley rabble of Jewish charlatans who run this system can be dispatched to the richly and fully deserved oblivion of Ninevah and Tyre. □

The

ONWARD ARYAN WARRIORS!

The following is a speech given by Maj. Donald Vincent Clerkin, Commander, Euro-American Alliance, Milwaukee, WI., on Saturday, 7 August 1982, at the White Action Rally in West Allis, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin.

The fall of Germany in 1945 was declared by the Jews and their sycophants to be the final chapter in the New Order. It was thought at that time that White Nationalism had seen its best days, and would instantly recede into oblivion.

But it obviously was not the end of White Nationalism. It was the bloody beginning of the Aryan response to overt Jewish control and distortion of the European Culture. That we here today still believe in Germany's great Crusade against Jew-Bolshevism, moral depravity, destruction of racial standards, and for all the mighty decencies that Germany bled and died for, is proof that what seemed forever crushed is still very much alive.

Why do you suppose the Jews continued to harp on the subject of Adolf Hitler and National Socialism? Because they are dead? Now the Jews still complain about old Haman, chronic ripers that they be, though Haman remains a target now only for the beardie-wierdie known as the Hassidim and some of the very mainline Orthodox. Hitler, on the contrary, is resurrected constantly and discussed by every branch of conspiratorial Judaism. The subject of Hitler and National Socialism provides grist for the Jew masochism syndrome. But it is more than just that—I think you will agree.

The Jews know that the IDEA did not die in flaming Berlin 37 years ago. They know that ideas whose times have come do not perish because their leading exponents are no longer alive. Ot hers rise to take their places in the ranks.

True, Hitler can never be replaced; like the late Commander Rockwell, he was unique. But the IDEA to which they acted as servants is still with us and with our enemies, the Jews. Whatever part of National Socialism you may accept as your own, whether it be the political and the social programs, the military area, the eugenics, Lebensborn, and the other scientific motivations, still, it is the National Socialist racial program that we Aryans must have, or we will be finished as a race and a culture.

America did not understand what the real meaning of National Socialism was to the White-Western world. America did not understand that it was not Capitalism nor Communism, but a third system of Aryan caring; the building of a White commonwealth based upon the principles of honor, honesty, and charity that had been the hallmarks of our Gothic Age. Enthralled by the Jews as early as 1913, the United States could not be expected to understand that the racial and political regeneration of Europe was the first breath of White salvation for America.

But the Jews knew that, were Hitler to first save Germany, then the rest of Europe from Bolshevism, the impetus for the White man to resist everywhere and to counter-attack would be established by Germany's successful example. And once the example of Aryan victory over Judaism—Pharisaism—spread to America, the Jews knew that their foul games would be over forever.

That is why the arch-kike Samuel Untermeyer declared total war against Germany as early as 1933, before anyone had uttered a peep about so-called 'Death Camps.' In the name of International Jewry—Usury-Finance Capitalism and Red-Terror Bolshevism— the World-Kehillah that Untermeyer served, with full knowledge that the German Counterrevolution of 1933 was more than just a parochial event in history having to do with one country only, decided that again the stupid Goyim in Western Democracies must be launched in a World War against Germany and its struggle for the White race and the European Culture. They knew that National Socialism was something big—something to capture the hearts and minds of Aryans all over the world; a crusade with the power and the dynamics to sweep the Aryans back into power and unseat the Jewish usurpers. Thus did the sheeny propaganda machine go into high gear—in every country over radio, press and cinema.

ADOLF HITLER — 1889-1945

"It is necessary that I should die for my people; but my spirit will rise from the grave and the world will know that I was right."

Today, what began as a second Renaissance in Germany fights on under many associated banners. All over the White world, organizations—such as those assembled here tonight—struggle to rejuvenate healthy White racialism and nationalism.

And we must be doing it—or our old enemies, the Jews, would hardly be as concerned as they obviously are. They fear us more than the ghost of Adolf Hitler, because we represent the Future. What we here today actually represent to the Jews is an undaunted resolve, an undefeated challenge. WE WANT OUR WORLD BACK, JEWS,—AND WE MEAN TO TAKE IT FROM YOU!!!

Every day we become stronger: Our numbers grow. More White men are preparing to fight, to struggle and wrestle with the kikes rather than submit. There is something beautiful in the Aryan comradeship that we have all worked so long and hard to develop. Who would have dreamed just ten years ago that so many White groups could meet and work together?

And that is what is promised for the future: Cooperation toward the common goal of Aryan Victory. If I seem to dwell on this motive, it is precisely that racial comradeship is so vital. For years, the Jews and the Wogs have hoped, and, yes, have prayed—to whatever strange gods Jews, niggers, et al pray to—that we Whites would never be able to organize, and if organized, remain so envious of others and so protective of our petty bailiwicks that the very idea of cooperation would be unthinkable.

There are a few amongst our White ranks who unwittingly refuse to become part of a common struggle. But more every day have come to the realization that they cannot stand alone—and hope to be successful against the Jews, the anti-White controllers of the ZOG, and the tens of millions of non-Whites who hope to displace the White man here in America.

What we all must ever keep in mind is the constant nature of our struggle. The unalterable fact of history is that someone always wins every war—someone always loses. There are no permanent standoffs, no never-ending status quos. If we do not dedicate every ounce of our strength to the task of gaining our objective, which cannot be anything less than the total, absolute vanquishing of those dark forces which presently threaten the existence of our White race, then it remains within the realm of probability that we shall be defeated. Defeat means racial death for the White man.

We would rather win—and we mean to see that we do!

If we do not win, each of us in this room who has been identified by the ZOG will be proscribed, and our families also will be denied the ordinary means of simple existence. Remember that we speak here of an internal war, with concentration camps for dissidents, and massive rationing of necessities to insure life—food, medicine, and energy.

The important thing to keep in mind is that we live in the critical period of White history. Like the Weimar Republican period in Germany, the struggle could go either way for us. Without the intervention of the National Socialists in those dark days of the 1920s, Germany most certainly would have become a Communist state.

Beware, therefore, of Jew attempts to divide the White race into separate ethnic cells. Ethnic divisions are the sure route to the grave of our race. White must be one and indivisible.

America has become a corporate Marxist state. The Jew is, at present, lord and master over the internal and external affairs of this Zionist Occupation Government. The Soviet Stooge, called the Communist Party U.S.A., need not incite open revolt against this Jewish system of governance, which adopts every Red idea within a decade after its announcement by Gus Hall. The Jew-nited States is the Ripe Fruit spoken of by Lenin, and the Jews fully intend that America fall totally into Communist hands, which, when turned over to see their backs, display the Mogen David.

The foul and filthy Jews have systematically destroyed the beauty and meaning of our Stars and Stripes, replacing the Colors of the Republic with a vile dollar sign ($). Down has come the Holy Cross of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ—up they have raised their vicious insignia, the Mogen David, the Minorah, and the Hammer and Sickle!

There is not room in my heart to forgive the heinous treason which the Jews have practised against this Republic; I am but a man. If God cares at all for his Christian-White children, He will punish these transgressors: Punish them for the millions upon millions of innocent White-Christian persons they have persecuted and have slain in the name of their Bolshevism; punish them for their overthrowal of Christian nations and their rulers, those kings and Tsars who upheld the Aryan race and the Cross in their noble realms;—punish these Jew traitors—I say again!!—for what they have done to our blessed nation America and the White race who built it and made it holy and hallowed ground.

Our opportunity will come with the inevitable chaos, which the Jews and their shabbas goys have seen fit to bring to our land. Their financial rapine will be the end of them and their gangster regime. It is not in our interests that this present sorry chapter in American history not be concluded. The Jews strive on keeping this rotten system of theirs lurching along, with profits continuing to pour into their coffers. It would be the ultimate folly to believe, however, that the Jews will voluntarily relinquish their control. It will have to be wrested from them-violently.

We need not begin the violence leading to our racial and national redemption. All that we are required to do is continue our present organizational agitations. The collapse of the ZOG is coming—nothing can prevent it. We must be prepared to seize the moment—and to govern.

The first and most important area, as we said, is racial cooperation. The Jews hate and fear Aryan racial cooperation more than anything else in the world. They will go to any lengths to keep the White race divided against itself.

Other areas in which we must increase our agitations are opposition to Zionism, the Federal Reserve, and, above all, race mixing. Now it has long been my opinion that our race and nation might bring about its deliverance if but two things were done: Abolish the Federal Reserve—and dump pseudo-Israel. Neither of these efforts being easy, still, we must continue our agitations.

". . . and there are 5,999,999 others like me in Jew York!"

About the phony Holocaust—the Six Million Myth—all that I care to say is that it is one of the sorest spots with our Jew adversaries. It drives them mad when our ranks publicly deny the extermination fables. Revisionist history sets the Jews to having fits. So let's keep it up: A disoriented enemy is a more easily defeated enemy.

The Jew, of course, practises his own brand of psychological warfare. He seeks to demoralize the White race by implanting doubt among Aryan youth—doubt as to their roles in preserving the race and the culture—and doubt concerning the role of youth in the challenges of the Future. Schools have become hideous training grounds for race mixing, equality propaganda now being their only reason for existence. There can be little doubt of the Jewish successes in using the front of education to break down the defenses of our race.

Proper racial and cultural training of our precious White children is more important than I can adequately express. Teach them the true facts of History, and our children will become White racial patriots. It seldom fails to work. And do not forget the great music of the Aryan race. The Jews have nothing to do with the creation of great European music. Of the many great composers throughout the history of the past five centuries, barely a handful of Jews were able to reach the pinnacle of this particular artistic form; and even those most noted—Mendelssohn and Gustav Mahler—could not but approach that level upon which stood Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, Liszt, Wagner, Brahms, Tchaikovsky, and Anton Bruckner, to name but a few. This is the grand artistic legacy which has been left to you and your Aryan descendants forever, great inspiration to guide you and your children.

Do not allow Jewish-inspired "Rock" or nigger cacophony to forever mutilate the souls of your precious charges. Think what it will mean to fill your home with the most spiritually supercharged music the Aryan race has to offer. This, too, is part of the struggle for the future.

What will America be like when the Movement we serve is victorious? How will it all come about?

— Our White people will finally have enough of the Jews and their tyrannical rule over us.

— A world crisis will take place, finding America immobilized by its slave-like obedience to the Jewish gangsters who presently operate the ZOG.

– Race riots will erupt throughout America, with the Jewsmedia demanding immediate martial law.

– Many White patriots will be imprisoned–and even murdered, a reminiscence of what was done to Codreanu's "Iron Guard" in Rumania.

– The shabbas goy who poses as president will order a martial crackdown on all dissidents.

– Internal dissention will break out in American military ranks, with niggers and spics, wogs and Zips once again "fragging" their White officers. Especially in Germany will all semblance of military order break down among the U.S. troops. And when the U.S. wogs begin to run amok among the German people, the German police and the Bundeswehr will put them down. –What the Soviets will be doing during the meantime is anyone's guess.

– The presidential stooge will be forced to resign.

– The Jew Kebillah will install another of its pet goyim into the Oval Office. He will be turned out before he has a chance to warm his chair.

– Out of the chaos there will emerge a military government, led by a junta of capable officers. Sifted from this list of officers will be a soldier of Augustan-Napoleonic–Hitlerian stature, who will be appointed President until such time as it is thought necessary to again hold elections.

– We–the White peoples–once again in charge of our own house, will begin the process of rebuilding the nation.

What will we do with our reclaimed White nation?

Allow me here to refer to an historical document which came to light concerning the Congress of Vienna, where through the offices of Prince Metternich the Jews had great influence over the reformation of post-Napoleonic Europe.

The Chief of the Viennese Police at this time in 1814 was a man by the name of Göhausen. Chief Göhausen reported to his superiors about the conduct of the Jewish delegation to the Congress of Vienna from Frankfurt, Germany, which had come to the Congress to plead their case for equality under the law and the right to engage in the professions; the professions had rightfully been denied them prior to the French Revolution, which gave the Jews equality under the law in an act of the Constituent Assembly of 1791.

With Napoleon overthrown, Europe had reverted to those usages in effect prior to 1789; the Jews, of course, were again circumscribed–those Europeans knew how to treat the kikes in the old days!

Chief Göhausen's report on the Frankfurt Jewish delegation in part said:

"Attached report from Herr von Weyland clearly confirms that the Frankfurt Jewish deputation is here solely to engage in secret cabals. The mentioned Idzstein, formerly head of the police force, later President of the Law Courts, is known for a dirty protector of Jews. The Free City of Frankfurt, once it has consolidated its administrative authority, is sure to get rid of him. The authorities ought seriously to consider removing from here this deputation, made up of these people Gumprecht and Baruch. To which should be added that according to a most reliable source this Gumprecht has not yet even bothered to pay a courtesy call on the municipal councilman, Syndikus Danz, who does not have the slightest knowledge about such a mission."

Oh–to have such police chiefs all over America today. How easy it would be to unseat the Jews, who, in 1814, argued for their equality under the law, and who now deny the White man justice on every front!

Indeed, what shall we do with our reclaimed White nation?

– Immediate severance of all ties with pseudo-Israel; outlaw Zionism and Communism in America.

– Force Jews loyal to pseudo-Israel to migrate to their homeland–"Aliyah."

– Break up the Jewish monopolies over the media, the newspapers, Hollywood, and book publishing.

– Begin the repatriation of the negroes to Africa, their upkeep to be decided upon–amount and duration.

–Execution for all acts of treason and premeditated murder; sterilization of the criminally insane.

– Repeal the 16th Amendmend.

– Abolish the Federal Reserve.

– Conscript White males in a new all-White armed forces establishment.

– Free the public schools from secular humanist, mattoid liberal control: no jobs in education ever again for race-mixers and petty silly brains.

– Absolute reformation of the judiciary; purging of the legal establishment–and that means Jew lawyers!

– Deportation upon pain of death for illegal aliens.

– Enforced severing of all ties with Puerto Rico; repatriation of all Puerto Ricans.

This White counter-revolution cannot wait. To spend one single day pondering whether it is necessary means that our racial destruction has inched that much closer to us.

Those who can do something for our race and our nation; they who have the will and the determination; each of us who claims to care for the future; we must begin the process of White liberation. Aryan liberation will take blood and guts, but history does not give birth to great events without pain.

A second religiousness will come upon the Aryan soul. The faithful will proclaim the crusade for the future of our race in deeds, in speech, and in sacred music.

And young White men will take oaths on their souls: Oaths that the Gothic knights once took, to give every measure of their will and strenght to the protection of our sacred White future.

WHITE WARRIORS IN GENUFLEXION BENT,
GIVE FULL REIN TO OUR HEARTS TO VENT: THAT WHERESOEVER WE SHALL BE,
NOT A DAY OF OUR LIVES SHALL SEE
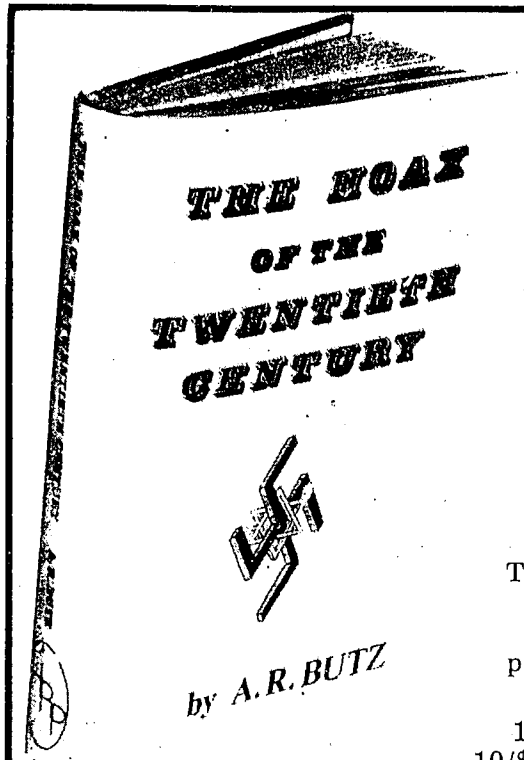
OUR FACES NOT TURNED LOW IN FROWN, WHILSTS THE GRASPING JEW IS YET NOT BROUGHT DOWN!



PLEASE
help us expose
THE BIGGEST JEWISH LIE!

PLEASE
help us spread
THE TRUTH!

Order copies of
THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
by Prof. A.R. Butz
paperback, 315 pages
at these prices:
1/$6.00—3/$15.00
10/$45.00—100/$400.00

The "Holocaust"—fact or fiction?

WERE SIX MILLION JEWS REALLY GASSED—OR HAS A COLOSSAL HOAX BEEN PERPETRATED ON THE WORLD?

Professor Arthur Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6,000,000 Jews during World War II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

THE HOAX OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.....$ 6.00
Order from: please add $1. for postage and handling!
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE SOUTH AFRICAN OBSERVER

August, 1982
A Journal for Realists
EDITOR: S.E.D. BROWN
P.O. Box 2401, PRETORIA
Telephone 3-7788

GETTING ISRAEL INTO PERSPECTIVE

FACING MIDDLE EAST REALITIES

FROM THE BIRTH of Israel up to present, a blind, unquestioning pro-Zionist ideology has so permeated and dominated Western thinking that whenever discussions have turned to Israel, or whenever Arab-Israeli hostilities have broken out in the Middle East, leaders in every walk of public life abandon all reason, judgment and moral courage—not to mention intellectual integrity.

The same "peace-loving" humanitarians in the West who believe in the rights of all peoples, wholeheartedly support a bandit nation which, as part of a master-plan, has mercilessly driven out peaceable populations from centuries-old homelands in order to build the Jewish state.

The same "peace-loving" liberals who abhor war and nationalism in any form, wholeheartedly support an imperialistic, expansionist military power in the Middle East, which adopts the attitude of a conqueror, and believes that force and twenty-fold rataliatory killing are the only policies which their neighbours will understand.

The same "decent" people in the West who believe in peaceful arbitration of international disputes have only good things to say for a country which consistently violates the Fourth Geneva Convention in its treatment of civilians and conistently flouts the unanimous decisions of the U.N. General Assembly and the Security Council.

FIRST TO USE SAME METHODS

The same "decent" people in the West who believe in fundamental human rights are totally blind to the tragic moral paradox of our time, namely that Jews, themselves long victims of exile and oppression in history, were the first to use the same methods which had been used against them to inflict exile on other people because this has helped them more easily to build their new state.

The same "pious" churchmen and laymen who preach separation of church and state, stand four-square for Israel, where church and state are one.

The same "decent" people who insist on desegregation in all Western countries, solidly support Israel which has segregated schools for its Arab minority and where Arabs are treated as second class citizens.

The same "decent" liberals who wage endless war on racial discrimination solidly support the Israeli people whose nationalism is a blend of fanatical racism and tribalism which knows no bounds and brooks no opposition.

The welfare of world Jewry in the outside world depends on the maintenance of secular, non-racial, pluralistic societies in which they seek to break down all racial discrimination. Yet, in Israel, the "decent" people of the West find themselves defending a society which is essentially and totally racist, nationalist and exclusionist!

It is this moral schizophrenia which is reflecting itself in the amazing and quite unbelievable paradox in the modern world, namely that those who are in the forefront of breaking down discrimination and the racial dynamism of the peoples of the West are the very people who themselves live by a code of the strictest racial, national, and religious exlusiveness.

And if the world-wide reaction to the present brutal invasion of Lebanon has again clearly shown two things, these are, first that the propaganda techniques of International Finance and World Zionism are now so perfected in the West that it is very difficult for Israel to be adjudged guilty of any offense in regard to the Arab-Israeli problem; and secondly, that Israel continues to expect the blind and automatic support of the Governments of the U.S. and the West in condoning or supporting or winking at the idea that the status quo in the Middle East can or should be changed by Israel's criminal resort to military force.

'PEACE FOR GALILEE'

Israel's invasion of Lebanon has so far cost this little country of 3.5 million people horrendous casualties. Relief agencies estimate there could be 15,000 killed and 20,000 wounded. The overwhelming majority of these casualties are civilian. In addition, it is estimated that nearly 1-million people have been displaced—at least temporarily.

The death and devastation inflicted by the Israeli army on the civilian population of southern Lebanon and Beirut is an inescapable result of Israel's oldfashioned tactics of siege—of swiftly surrounding towns like Tyre, Sidon and Nabatiya, so swiftly that civilian inhabitants were trapped inside, and then to pound them from land, sea, and air. After a couple of days of this there would be a timid probing attack: if there was still resistance, the pounding would resume.

This saturation bombing produced a very high toll of victims, with most of the civilian population being trapped in the basements of highrise buildings.

Heavy strafing of the Sidon-Beirut highway in the first three days of the war also prevented refugees from escaping northwards, trapping most of the population in the targeted areas. And the Israelis used saturation bombing of civilian settlements along the whole of the coastal region between Nakoura and Beirut to produce the maximum casualties and destruction.

All who eventually managed to reach Beirut told of the strafing of civilian cars attempting to evacuate women and children.

Two major massacres of refugees through air attacks also took place in the first week of the war, one in the western Bekaa and one near the Syrian border. Families in Tyre and Sidon registered a total of 12,650 people as missing.

GROWING EVIDENCE

And now that the war has reached Beirut, growing evidence that incendiary, cluster and fragmentation bombs were used by Israelis on civilian targets, is something anyone can see by visiting the attacked areas and hospitals.

Lebanese TV on June 26 showed heaps of burnt and crushed bodies. Whole families were killed the previous day in the worst bombardment of this war. Phosphorus, napalm, cluster and fragmentation bombs were indiscriminately used.

Much the most devastating of the terror weapons is the high velocity shrapnel bomb (wich causes serious bone damage), intended, according to Dr. L. Riviere, president of the Franco-Palestinian medical association, to "terrify and wound as many as possible," without destroying buildings, since the rubble would be an obstacle to tanks. Dr. Riviere was testifying at a Red Cross press conference on June 26.

Israel's pretext for this massive onslaught on Lebanon is certainly the flimsiest ever. The assassination attempt on their London ambassador was not the work of the PLO, and whereas, according to Unifil observers, Israel had violated the 1981 cease-fire some 2,000 times, Palestinian forces had respected it, only once shelling Galilee settlements after a double Israeli air attack on the Palestinian camps.

HAIG'S RESIGNATION

Alexander Haig's resignation as U.S. Secretary of State was a direct result of confusion within the Reagan administration over the handling of the Lebanese crisis.

The Reagan-Haig policy had been initially to close a blind eye to Israel's adventurism in Lebanon, without expecting the Israelis to push beyond the 40-kilometre buffer zone which they said they wanted cleared of Palestinian forces. But as the Israelis pushed on, chewing up Tyre and Sidon and hammering on the gates of Beirut, U.S. policy began to split.

The open support which Haig had given to Israel throughout the invasion and occupation of Lebanon provided every encouragement to Begin and his ministers to drive deeply further into Lebanon.

And there are ample grounds to suspect that Israel has very real ambitions—territorial and otherwise—on Lebanese sovereignty.

The Israeli operation had long and carefully been prepared and not even the smooth efficiency of Israel's war machine could have produced such a massive incursion without months of thorough groundwork.

U.S. DOING NOTHING

And what is the U.S. doing in the face of these incredible new developments? Not only is she doing nothing, she will do nothing.

Instead, it will be just a matter of time before America's "conservative" President—long a toady and lackey of Israel—will resume all military, airforce and economic aid to Israel in its bloody and undeclared 38-year-long war on the Arab world.

And the American people will continue to pay for it all, and continue to supply arms, ammunition, the latest tactical missiles, the latest jet aircraft, tanks, rockets, and not forgetting the incendiary and vicious cluster bombs!

Many in the U.S. believe no price is too high to pay for Israel's security, but increasing numbers are beginning to doubt whether such an extraordinary high level of human suffering and material loss can have any political or moral justification whatever.

So the stage is set in the most crucial area of the world, and the Reagan administration will continue to act like a powerless enuch in the hands of driven men who would destroy the Middle East.

SPAWNED PALESTINIAN GUERILLAS

In a matter as controversial as the Arab-Israeli problem, it is always easy to lose sight of fundamentals. Confusion of issues, partisanship, and the injection of extraneous considerations, too often mitigate against clarity and objectivity in the understanding of this problem.

In the double-speak of the 20th-Century, Israeli aggression is always rendered as "Arab aggression" with the variation of "communist militarism" just as Israeli terrorism is always rendered as "Palestinian terrorism."

What is not sufficiently realised is that the policy of the Jewish authorities towards the Arabs in Palestine and elsewhere has always had one clear objective, namely to get rid of the Arabs by ruthlessly forcing them to flee, without any compensation, from the lands upon which they and their forefathers had lived for a thousand years and more, or by extermination.

By naked aggression, Israel's land area has by these means increased 20-fold since 1948.

It was the plight of the two million displaced Arabs in the refugee camps outside their homeland, the consistent refusal of Israel to recognise the Palestine Arab entity at all, and Israel's crushing defeat of the Arabs in the Six-Day War of 1967, which finally spawned the present desperate generation of Palestinian Arab guerillas and their wave of anti-Israel terrorism across the Middle East, Europe and Africa.

REVOLUTIONARY TERRORISM

Nor must we forget the revolutionary terrorism of Communism, released first by the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917, and an aftermath of World War I—the same war that gave emerging Zionism the Balfour Declaration, which in turn opened the road to the inevitable Zionist-Arab conflicts some twenty-five years later.

This same revolutionary terrorism has today spread to the enslavement by the Communists of more than 1000-million people in the world!

Winston Churchill laid bare the facts of the Bolshevik Revolution in speeches in the House of Commons and in London newspaper articles, at the time. Here, inter alia, is what he wrote on the birth of Communism:

"This world-wide conspiracy for the overthrow of civilization and for the reconstruction of society on the basis of arrested development, of envious malevolence and impossible equality, has been steadily growing . . . There is no need to exaggerate the part played in the creation of Bolshevism and in the actual bringing about of the Russian Revolution by these international and for the most part atheistic Jews. It is certainly very great; it probably outweighs all others. With the notable exception of Lenin, the majority of the leading figures are Jews. Moreover, the principal inspiration and driving power comes from the Jewish leaders."

PLAYED DECISIVE PART

That the Israelis themselves are not strangers to the use of violence and terror, as a means of attaining their political objectives, emerged from the events in Palestine in the post-war years, culminating in the recognition of Israel as an autonomous state by the United States and the Soviet Union.

It was violence and terrorism, pure and simple, which played the decisive part in driving the British out of Palestine and bringing into existence the new state of Israel.

The number of British officials, police and soldiers who were shot in the back, stabbed, strangled, blown up or hanged as hostages ran into many hundreds, including Lord Moyne, one of Winston Churchill's colleagues, as well as Count Bernadotte, the U.N.'s mediator, whose murder in Palestine was described as being "just as well planned as the attack on Pearl Harbor."

In short, it was nothing less than the violence, atrocities and terrorism of Menachem Begin, head of the terrorist Irgun Zwei Leumi and the perpetrator of the Deir Yassin, Quibya and other massacres that finally caused Britain to wash her hands of her responsibilities and to abandon her "sacred trust" in the Holy Land in 1948, by allowing the Zionists to dispossess millions of Arabs and Palestinians of their ancestral homelands.

"You Israelis, you should never become lenient if you you kill your enemies. You shall have no pity on them until we shall have destroyed their so-called Arab culture, on the ruins of which we shall build our own civilization," Menachem Begin was pleased to exhort his fellow assassins at the time!

DANGEROUS PROBLEM

Professor Arnold Toynbee, leading internationalist and life-long friend of the Jews, was constrained in the late 1950s to comment strongly on the dangerous Palestine problem in these terms:

"I do believe that, in the issues between the Palestinian Arabs and the Zionists, the Palestinian Arabs are in the right and the Zionists in the wrong.

"It is, infact, tragic to be either guilty of fanaticism or to be victims of it, and the Jews have been alternately guilty of it and victims of it since the second century B.C. The tragedy of recent Jewish history is that, instead of learning through suffering, the Jews should have done to others, the Arabs, what had been done to them by others."

Here, also, is what another noted British philosopher, a liberal and long a friend of world Jewry, had to say in 1970 about the rapidly developing crisis in the Middle East:

"For over twenty years Israel has expanded by force of arms. After every stage in this expansion Israel has appealed to 'reason' and has suggested 'negotiations.' This is the traditional role of the imperial power, because it wishes to consolidate with the least difficulty what is has taken already by violence. Every new conquest becomes the new basis of the proposed negotiation from strength, which ignores the injustice of the previous aggression.

"The aggression committed must be condemned, not only because no State has the right to annex foreign territory, but because every expansion is also an experiment to discover how much more aggression the world will tolerate.

"Many of the refugees are now well into the third decade of their precarious existence in temporary settlements. The tragedy of the people of Palestine is that their country was 'given' by a foreign Power to another people for the creation of a new State. The result was that many hundreds of thousands of innocent people were made permanently homeless. With every new conflict their numbers have increased. How much longer is the world willing to endure this spectacle of wanton cruelty?

"It is abundantly clear that the refugees have every right to the homeland from which they were driven, and the denial of this right is at the heart of the continuing conflict. No people anywhere in the world would accept being expelled en masse from their own country; how can anyone require the people of Palestine to accept a punishment which nobody else would tolerate? A permanent just settlement of the refugees in their homelands is an essential ingredient of any genuine settlement in the Middle East.

"All who want to see an end to bloodshed in the Middle East must ensure that any settlement does not contain the seeds of future conflict. Justice requires that the first towards a settlement must be an Israeli withdrawal from all the territories occupied in June 1967.

"A new world campaign is needed to help bring justice to the long-suffering people of the middle East."

Israel, it must be remembered, arose on the soil that had been Arab for over a thousand years. Its capital, Jerusalem, is almost as holy to the Arabs as it is to the Christians and Jews. And in the eyes of most Arabs, the very

continued on page 45

'POPULISM' and 'ELITISM'

REVILO P. OLIVER

1982
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS

Copyright 1982
by Revilo Oliver

Additional copies available from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

'POPULISM' and 'ELITISM'

Revilo P. Oliver

PART I

'Populist' is a word that was coined to designate a political party formed in 1892 to replace the Greenback Party, which had been a somewhat inept political reaction in 1873 to one of the periodic lootings of the United States by the banking system. 'Populist" was simply a replacement for 'democratic,' a word that had been usurped by one of the major political machines, which was anything but democratic, just as its alternate and ostensible opponent was anything but republican. The new party, which drew much of its inspiration from the writings of Thomas Jefferson, demanded coinage of silver as currency, suppression of nationally-chartered banks, public ownership of railroads and other enterprises that are by their very nature monopolies, and, oddly enough, the self-defeating and disastrous measures that eventually became the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Amendments.

The new party, stimulated by a fresh looting of the economy in 1893, became a threat to the Establishment and was neatly destroyed by a standard political trick, when the principal article of its policy was grabbed by the Democratic Party in 1896 to capture most of the new party's adherents.

Since the dissolution of the Populist Party, the word has been used, often derogatorily, to designate political opinions that are more or less in the tradition of Thomas Jefferson and rely on the supposed will and intelligence of the 'common people,' and it always implies some opposition to the vast engine of corruption and tyranny that the American boobs have been taught to call 'democracy' and to accept, much as a horse accepts a bridle and bit.

Today, Jefferson is somewhat uneasily revered as one of the Founding Fathers, who are generally accorded a kind of perfunctory admiration, while no one is so indiscreet as to observe that if they had foreseen and thought inevitable what their United States became by 1861, they (including Jefferson) would have torn up Jefferson's Declaration of Independence and urgently called back the British troops.[1]

It is no exaggeration to say that most Americans know very little about Jefferson's political philosophy. His biographers waste chapters on such irrelevancies as his preference for informal dress, the furniture of his home, the amount of his debts, and the women whom he did or did not seduce. They commonly pontificate about the impracticality of his policies and apologize for what they call his errors of judgment by saying that he meant well. The harpies of the most diverse political agitations seize upon one or another of his pronouncements which they can twist into an apparent endorsement, by a Founding Father, of their own covert purposes. And American historians, in general, feel obliged to rejoice over what they, by a gross abuse of language, call a Civil War and over the establishment, by outrageous aggression, of an indissoluble Union, cemented by what Calhoun aptly called "the cohesive power of public plunder;" and they measure Jefferson against the ideal of the rotting ochlocracy that replaced the American Republic.

Jefferson was, largely through his own efforts, the best educated of the Founding Fathers. He is the only unquestionable example of an American President who held public office only because he felt constrained by duty to do so. Among the founders of the Republic that was forever destroyed in 1861, a few, we may be sure, had their own logically coherent political philosophy, as distinct from opinions about what was expedient at a given time, but only Jefferson expounded his beliefs with an ingenuous candor throughout his career and without the unexpressed reservations that the others, in greater or less degree, felt obliged to make in their own minds. That Jefferson's intellectual honesty was often politically disadvantageous to him cannot be denied, but let us not reckon that as discreditable.

The very bulk of Jefferson's writings, chiefly the 18,000 letters that he preserved for posterity, has made it difficult to obtain an accurate understanding of his thought without the extensive reading of more than forty published volumes of his writings. If we do not do that, we have to look through the bifocal or trifocal spectacles of a dozen of our contemporaries and try to guess which glasses give the least distortion.

1. Candid and objective historians will recognize three eras in our history since Independence: The First Republic (1781-1860), during which the United States were governed according to the uneasy compromise embodied in the Constitution; The Second Republic (1865-1932), during which the United States was a unified country, established by outrageous aggression and conquest, but considerable portions of the Constitution were salvaged and remained in effect; and the Dictatorship of the Proletariat (1933-?), during which what was left of the Constitution was surreptitiously abrogated and the country progressively prepared for the contemplated merger with the Soviet Union.

The best single book on Jefferson that I know is the recently published work of Dr. Martin A. Larson, Jefferson, Magnificient Populist.[2] It is virtually the equivalent of a treatise by Jefferson himself in which he sets forth systematically the whole of his thought on every matter of permanent significance. It is a mosaic of excerpts from Jefferson's voluminous writings, carefully chosen, classified by topic, arranged chronologically, and presented with only a minimum of editorial elucidation.

The compilation of what is, in effect, a comprehensive treatise by Jefferson himself required discriminating selection and rigorous compression to reduce it to 375 pages. One need not have read everything or even most of Jefferson's writings to miss some memorable passages, but their substance, I believe, has been preserved in what is included, and we have at last an adequate and fair conspectus of the principles of American democracy as set forth by its founding father.

To this book the reader need bring only such knowledge of history as is, I hope, possessed by everyone who considers himself educated, and such knowledge of the present as is inescapable, if one is not willfully blind. He will derive from it a clear understanding of the intellectual and historical basis of what is now called 'populism,' i.e., democracy in the correct meaning of that word, as distinct from its current use to befuddle weak minds.

THE DISUNITED STATES

The independence of the American colonies was won by a faction of colonists who agreed only on their need to become independent of the British government.[3] Having achieved that

2. Not to be confused with the same author's earlier work, The Essence of Jefferson, which is inferior on several counts. The new volume is published by Robert B. Luce, Inc., Bethesda, Maryland; xxiv + 390 pages; $13.50 plus postage, available from Liberty Bell Publications.

3. Let us not forget that, if words are to be used accurately, the United States were created by the only civil war that has thus far been fought in this country. A civil war is a conflict between factions of the citizens of a given state or territory, and in each of the thirteen colonies such a war was waged between the Loyalists, who retained their allegiance to Great Britain and were supported by British troops, and the Revolutionaries, who sought independence and were supported by France. The latter, thanks to the phenomenal stupidity of the French monarchy (which end, the leaders of the insurgents in the thirteen colonies became the Founding Fathers, but they differed drastically among themselves in what each was determined that independence would mean. They represented a wide gamut of political beliefs that were in fact irreconcilable. Open conflict between the various colonies and within some of them was averted only by temporizing compromises by which each party hoped to gain strength while weakening all others in preparation for a final solution.

The gamut of opinions held by the Founding Fathers may fairly be defined as extending from Thomas Jefferson to Alexander Hamilton. Jefferson had a virtually unlimited faith in 'the people' (by which he meant the part of the total population that corresponded, mutatis mutandis, to the demos of Athenian democracy) and he regarded Independence as creating thirteen states, allied for the necessary purposes of mutual defense and a common foreign policy, but in their domestic affairs separate nations, in each of which a maximum of personal freedom was guaranteed to each individual citizen and the 'people' would determine by majority vote the domestic policies of their own state, subject only to the preservation of that freedom. Hamilton regarded 'the people,' that is the whole population, as the belua multorum capitum, and he was most candid when he echoed the dictum of a hundred political philosophers, including among the Colonists, Benjamin Franklin and Gouverneur Morris: "The people, sir, is a great beast." He regarded Independence as an opportunity to harness and discipline that beast by establishing an aristocracy more cohesive and powerful than that of contemporary Britain[4] thereby dug its own grave), were victorious and the colonies became independent. The use of the term "Civil War" in propaganda to designate the invasion and conquest of the Southern States in 1861-1865 is ex post facto and was artfully devised to conceal from the victims of the public schools the actual dissolution of the American Republic and the acts of aggression that made necessary the Southern War for Independence.

4. It must not be forgotten that, second only to French supplies, troops, and fleets, the success of the Revolution in the thirteen colonies was made possible by the activities of many Englishmen, some who, like Burke, held political beliefs that justified the resistance of the colonists, and many who were just traitors, Whigs who, to procure the fall of the "Tory" government and put their faction in its stead, consistently sabotaged the efforts of George III's ministers to restore order in the disaffected colonies. In Hamilton's America, as is obvious from his famous Alien and Sedition Acts, such persons, from Burke to the traitors who acted as American spies, would have found themselves in prison and so would persons who publicly expressed sympathy for them. Some would have been hanged.

and using its rule to consolidate the several states into an indissolubly united nation that would become a great imperial power, rivalling Great Britain and winning colonies of its own by extensive conquests in South America.

Perhaps midway in the scale of opinion stood George Washington, who had acquired the prestige, but lacked the wish, to found an American monarchy. He regarded the Republic as a noble experiment that should be given a fair trial, but would probably fail in the end. And between Jefferson and Hamilton there stood scores of prominent men who, largely on the basis of their estimates of what was feasible and most conducive to their own interests, hoped to produce some fairly stable compound of fire and water. They ensured the correctness of Washington's prognosis.

It is not my purpose to decide which of the antithetical political philosophies was the more correct, or to apply the hazardous test of historical conjectures about what might have been. I shall here use Dr. Larson's Jefferson only to elucidate the doctrine of 'populism' by indicating some of its premises and consequences. I do not pretend to summarize the doctrine itself: it is a coherent and integral whole, and the best summary is Dr. Larson's book.

DEMOCRACY

Democracy, in the correct, Jeffersonian sense of that word, still exerts a great influence over the thinking of our contemporaries, although no example of it in practice can be found in the world today. It is a theory that was first formulated in the democratic states of ancient Greece and has never been entirely forgotten since that time. It engendered the Mediaeval aphorism, vox populi, vox Dei, which, so far as I know, was first quoted by Alcuin, who ridicules it; and it reappears in hundreds of modern writers who champion, in one form or another, the concept of majority rule. Although now reduced to a mere theory, it still has charms and evokes some odd tendencies in persons who are intelligent enough to discriminate between democracy and the common practice of running herds of biped cattle through polling places and counting their noses.

'Populists' must remember, first of all, that Jeffersonian democracy was not intended for Timbuktoo, Fiji, or Erewhon. It was designed for the thirteen colonies that had just won their independence—for a specific people in an historically unique situation.

Those colonies came close to being a nation in the primary sense of that word, a natio; a large tribe formed of persons related by ancestry and birth, i.e., a racially homogeneous people. The colonies had been peopled by Englishmen, Scots (including some from Ireland), Germans, Dutch, Scandinavians, and Frenchmen. They were all Aryans and most of them were Nordic. The only racial aliens were the Jews, and at that time there were comparatively few, their depredations were stealthy and almost unnoticed, and their contempt for the stupid Aryans was concealed by their barbaric religion and their habitual whining about "persecution." Among the leaders of the Revolution, only Franklin seems clearly to have apprehended the menace of the covertly hostile enclave.

To be sure, there were many aborigines on the continent, but they were relegated to the unsettled territories and formed no part of the American population.[5] In the colonies, there were numerous Congoids, but they were domestic livestock, and before 1800 very few Americans regarded the animals as dangerous. Even later, many of the most determined opponents of slavery dismissed as emotionally overwrought Jefferson's prescient opposition to slavery, which he had vehemently incorporated in his draft of the Declaration of Independence.[6]

Most of the opposition to slavery came from sentimentalists and religious fanatics, whom Jefferson viewed with scorn. His opposition was on practical grounds.[7] He recognized the numerous and prolific Congoids as a threat to the racial

5. We may note in passing that Jefferson was wildly optimistic about the Indian's capacity for civilization. As Dr. Larson suggests, he probably drew unwarranted generalizations from a tribe of Indians who were really exceptional, the Cherokees, for whose peculiarities ethnologists have not satisfactorily accounted.

6. For example, Jefferson's bitter enemy, John Quincy Adams, characterized his condemnation of slavery as "frantic." Adams had no illusions about Congoids: "I know of nothing more insolent than a black, when he is not speaking to his master and is not afraid of being beaten. It is not even rare to see negroes treat their masters very ill when they have to do with a weak man." Adams, however, disapproved of slavery on moral grounds and, although he refused to usurp unconstitutional powers when in office, he represented New England, where the iniquity of slavery was keenly perceived when it was no longer possible to profit from it. Near the end of his life, Adams even looked forward to a war of aggression against the South.

7. There was a slight humanitarian element in Jefferson's attitude. The slaves whom the Congoids sold to entrepreneurs (many, but not all, of whom were Jews) were shipped across the Atlantic packed into slave ships in which they had to exist for weeks and even months in conditions to which Aryans (or, at least, Nordics) would not wish to see any mammals subjected. Jefferson had the strong aversion from gratuitous cruelty to sentient mammals that is characteristic of our race and conspicuously absent in other races. Jefferson was also deeply concerned about the moral effects of slavery on many owners.

integrity of the new nation, and he was aware of the potential danger of maintaining in our territory such large and increasing numbers of a biologically inferior and innately savage race. He foresaw that, if emancipated, they would "stain the blood" of our race by copulation with degenerate whites and thus produce unnatural hybrids; it followed, therefore, that "When [a negro] is freed, he is to be removed beyond the reach of mixture." Jefferson thought it impossible to prevent the eventual emancipation of the slaves in one way or another. "Nothing is more certainly written in the book of fate than that these people are to be free; nor is it less certain that the two races, equally free, cannot live in the same government."[8] Disaster could be averted only by exporting the rapidly multiplying anthropoids to Africa or to some nearer and more convenient place, especially the island of Hispaniola after it became available. Jefferson drafted several plans to make that necessary safeguard of American liberty economically feasible, but the tragic blindness of his contemporaries prevented the adoption of any of them.

For Jeffersonian democracy, an independent and racially homogeneous population of Nordics is but the first requisite, for there is great inequality within our race. It is true that Jefferson put into his Declaration of Independence a wild rhetorical flourish, as dramatic as a war-cry, claiming that "all men are created equal." He was not a moron, and cannot have meant anything so absurd as is sometimes supposed. What he meant was that all Englishmen should be equal before the law. He was reacting against the class structure of English society and an aristocracy, of which the greater part had been created by kings who ennobled parvenus, often for the most discreditable services, so that socially and morally worthless individuals were given special privileges because they were descended from men who had, rightly or wrongly, been elevated to the peerage. Jefferson recognized, of course, the biological inequality of all men: "There is a natural aristocracy among men. The grounds for this are virtue[9] and talents. . . . There is also an artificial

8. The Jefferson Memorial is the most beautiful building in the District of Corruption. It is an architectural gem and, what is more, appropriate, since it is what Jefferson himself would have wanted. It is defaced, however, by the inscription on one of the inner walls of the first part of this sentence and the omission of the words I have italicized. It thus defames Jefferson by implication and was, of course, designed to fool visitors who did not know the complete sentence. There is much to be said for the view that "Liberal intellectuals" are compulsive liars.

9. In Jefferson's time 'virtue' still retained its proper meaning, denoting manly excellence, including courage and integrity as shown by both moral and intellectual honesty. It is sad that so useful a word has been perverted by the gabble of Christian propagandists.

aristocracy, founded on wealth and birth, without either virtue or talents; for with these, it would belong in the first class."

To ensure the dominance of a natural aristocracy, Jefferson relied on his project of an educational system that would progressively identify the superior men by eliminating at each stage after the very first the innately inferior; a rigorous discrimination would prevent the advancement of men beyond the status for which they were fitted by nature.[10] So vital to the survival of the nation did Jefferson consider this system of selection that he, as in his famous foundation of the University of Virginia, believed a strictly secular and cultural education, based on the Classics, history, and science, and excluding all superstitions, should be financed and maintained by taxation. The English language contains so few words of reprobation and invective that I cannot imagine what Jefferson would have said, had he foreseen the moral and mental rot that made possible the capture of the public schools by the vast gang of swindlers, saboteurs, and dolts that has made of those schools a terrible machine for inculcating the most bizarre and noxious superstitions and deforming the minds of children, with what amounts to infantile paralysis of the cerebrum.

RELIGION

The education that Jefferson championed was to be exclusively rational and secular, and, indeed, no other form of public education would be possible in a true democracy.[11] That

10. Needless to say, Jefferson was thinking of public education, and did not attempt to prescribe what should be done in Christian and other private schools, which was properly to be determined by the persons who financed them. Such schools, however, were not to be subsidized by the public, either directly or indirectly (through tax exemptions), and Jefferson probably assumed that their products would be inferior in the measure that they departed from factual education and objective discrimination, either by inculcating superstitions or by coddling the unfit.

11. The use of religious rites to promote national unity, which I mentioned in my long article in The Liberty Bell for May 1982, was innocuous and feasible in a democracy so long as the religion remained "pagan." In the history of our race, the first to advocate plausibly the use of religion to consolidate a tyranny (a "righteous" one, of course) was Plato, who wanted legislation to compel belief in the gods he imagined and to suppress all dissent by executing atheists (Nomoi, 909a), i.e., men too intelligent to believe his revelations and insufficiently hypocritical to feign belief. Plato's mastery of Greek style and his "idealism," which the late Professor Ben E. Perry described as "intellectual masturbation," win him great prestige among educated persons whose imaginations outrun their common sense. It is significant, therefore, that Jefferson regarded Plato as "one of the . . . sophists," took no stock in his "whimsie" and mysticism," should be obvious, but the intensive lying that has gone on for generations now requires us to stress the obvious.

We may note obiter that Jefferson was a deist in the manner of Graeco-Roman Stoics. He believed, on the basis of the evidence available to him, that the most reasonable explanation of natural phenomena required an inference that the universe had been designed and created by a supernatural Fabricator, who was also the author of the moral laws that must be observed by civilized and stable societies. In the rudimentary state of scientific knowledge in his time, that view was certainly plausible and not improbable.[12]

The important point is that Jefferson was not a Christian. He regarded Christianity as simply a form of devil-worship, since it venerated the Jews' ferocious god, "a Being of terrific character, cruel, vindictive, and unjust." That celestial monster, which a "cruel, remorseless, and blood-thirsty race" had created in its own image, made the Christians' holy book, which details with admiration his appalling criminal record, subversive of all civilized morality.[13] That made all of the numerous sects that and saw that the Platonic writings had been preserved by theologians for the subtle irrationality that could give an intellectual coloring to irrational fantasies. His opinion of Plato was substantially in agreement with the learned Edgar Lucas White in his Why Rome Fell (New York, 1927).

12. The state of the physical sciences in Jefferson's day is shown by the honor paid to his great friend, Priestly, for such "epochal discoveries" as "dephlogisticated air" (oxygen) and "marine acid air" (hydrogen chloride). The biological sciences were virtually unborn, although the genius of Lord Monboddo enabled him to anticipate some essentials of biological evolution and to take a rational view of human nature and society. So far as I can recall offhand, Jefferson never mentioned Lord Monboddo's elementary anthropology, but I cannot now take time to peruse the forty volumes, and I may be mistaken.

13. Jefferson may not have distinguished clearly between personal and collective morality. Some observers, e.g., Jack Bays, in a leaflet reprinted in The Truth Seeker, April 1982, believe that reading the Bible, like viewing scenes of violence and depravity on television, incites many impressionable individuals to crimes such as rape, murder, and robbery. Bays amplified the well-known opinion of Mark Twain, who, in his Letters from Earth, was certain that the minds of children, at least, are corrupted and perverted by reading the Bible, with its demoralizing stories of atrocious crimes perpetrated with the approval and collaboration of the Christians' supposedly omnipotent god. As Jefferson repeatedly observed, the Jews have no conception of ethics and believe that by sexually mutilating their male children and by observing grotesque taboos, such as abstaining from certain kinds of food and defecating and urinating in the ways Yahweh likes to watch, they conciliated that capricious and blood-thirsty god, who thus became their supernatural accomplice and were hawking salvation to the ignorant almost equally pernicious.[14] Jefferson hoped that so immoral a superstition would be obliterated by the increase of knowledge and education; he was once even so optimistic that he predicted that the "young men now living in the United States" would reject every form of Christianity except the Unitarian cult, which was a step in the right direction.

In the meantime, Jefferson relied on the frantic competition between the numerous corporations in the holiness business to helped them delude, swindle, plunder, and slaughter civilized peoples. Mark Twain was particularly impressed by the episode of the Midianites, who were guilty of having property the Jews wanted. The horde of ferocious bandits poured into Midia in northern Arabia and, with the help of the Big Jew in the sky, defeated the Midianite army. Then they systematically butchered all the men, butchered all the women, butchered all the male children, and then rounded up the female children, most of them impuberate, and, after verifying their virginity, sold them into slavery in foreign brothels. Unlike Christians, Mark Twain felt compassion for 32,000 Arab virgins: "Their naked privacies were probed, to make sure they still possessed the hymen unruptured; after this humiliation, they were sent away from the land that had been their home, to be sold into slavery, the worst of slaveries and the shamefulest, the slavery of prostitution." After completing this phase of their holy work, the Jews looted and burned the Midianite cities and went home, loaded with spoil and driving the mobile part of their booty, 675,000 sheep, 72,000 cattle, and 61,000 asses; and as they divided up the loot, they exulted in their righteousness, which paid off so handsomely after giving them so much fun. And they had Yahweh's promise that if they continued to observe his nasty taboos, he would help them subjugate all the other races of the world, as he is obviously doing in Lebanon today, having made their American bondsmen finance them and supply them with weapons.

For a concise but sweeping indictment of Christianity, see the two articles by Ralph Perier in The Liberty Bell for August and November 1980 (reprints are available from Liberty Bell Publications). For a profound and virtually encyclopaedic study of the effect of Christianity on the whole of our civilization, see the magisterial work of William Gayley Simpson, Which Way, Western Man? (available from Liberty Bell Publications). I am here interested only in elucidating the fundamentals of Jeffersonian democracy.

14. Jefferson made a certain exception in favor of the Unitarians, among whom deists could find shelter at the cost of a little hypocrisy. He especially detested the Calvinist cults for their conception of their god as a sadistic and insane beast that created human beings whom he destined for damnation so that he could enjoy torturing them forever. It may be regarded as certain that "God-fearing" Christians, living in perpetual terror of that celestial monster, developed psychotic conditions that approximate insanity. It should be noted that there was a high concentration of Calvinists in New England, the region that so balefully influenced all the subsequent history of the United States.

neutralize the Christian menace to civilization in the United States, since all the factions knew that if any one of them attained political power, all the rest would be among the first to suffer from the pious Christian's itch to persecute, torture, and kill.[15] All beliefs about the supernatural must therefore be considered strictly private and personal matters, the business of no one except the individual who holds an opinion about the unknowable that he may or may not wish to disclose to others. A firm insistence on that principle, Jefferson believed, would prevent the professional holy men from using gangs of fanatics to acquire political influence and power.

Jefferson did have a certain respect for the Jesus mentioned in the "New Testament," regarding him a Jew who made a manly effort to mitigate the savagery and criminal instincts of the race into which he was born, and to replace their ferocity with an ethical system. That Jesus, he thought, could be used to counteract Christianity, which was really a "counter-religion made up of the deliria of crazy imaginations," and to that end Jefferson tried to make a coherent and plausible story of the inconsistent tales in the Christian gospels that are called synoptic. He cut and pieced together from the Greek text the parts of those stories that seemed to him edifying and believable, adding the standard Latin, English, and French translations to form a sylloge, a compendium that could make Christianity innocuous.[16] To the doctrine of Jesus, thus purged

15. The holy men of the various sects could gang up to suppress cults that competed with all of them. They, for example, bullied the legislature of New York into persecution of the Shakers, an act which Jefferson vigorously protested, perceiving the fatal consequences of permitting the salvation-peddlers to influence government.

16. It was to form "an octavo of forty-six pages," but was not published in Jefferson's lifetime. It was first printed, so far as I know, in 1904 by the U. S. Government Printing Office for distribution by Congressmen, who were not then so cowed as they now are by the ranting of holy demagogues, and was first published in Volume XX of the Writings of Thomas Jefferson (Washington, D.C., 1905). The part in English was recently reproduced as An American Christian Bible (Rochester, Wash., 1982), followed by an essay by Eric Holden, "A New Declaration of Independence," in which the author tries to revive a Jeffersonian deism and a Jeffersonian democracy. He sharpens Jefferson's dislike of the professional mystery-mongers and identifies, more clearly than did Jefferson, the activity and purposes of the Jewish Nation: "For three thousand years, it has been a nation of spies and saboteurs, waging undeclared war on all nations with fixed locations. Citizenship in the Nomadic Jewish Nation is prima facie evidence that the individual is an active spy and/or saboteur." – Jefferson, on the basis of his reconstruction of the character of the Jesus of the "New Testament," sometimes rather of absurdities and cruelty, he attributed a "sublime morality," without himself espousing it: "I am a Materialist; he [Jesus] takes the side of Spiritualism." Jefferson admired "the purity and sublimity" of the Jewish reformer's "moral precepts," but was aware that they contained "Eastern hyperbolism" and, while elevating reading, could not be taken literally as a practical social system.[17] That had to be based on a realistic understanding of human nature and rational regulation of it.

In Jefferson's times, the Jews could entrust the work of promoting dissension, civil strife, and social fragmentation to the Christian dervishes, whose professional interests required them to keep their followers excited with hatred of the wickedness of their competitors and of all others who impeded the infliction of a tyranny they would call a theocracy, since a competent theologian is like a ventriloquist: he can make his god say whatever he wants. No democracy, indeed, no stable society could survive such disruptive agitation. Pending the decline and eventual extinction of the Christian plague, for which Jefferson hoped, the best that could be done was strictly to exclude the dervishes from political power, and in the meantime to endure "a swarm of insects, whose buzz is more disquieting than their bite."

Needless to say, no democracy could tolerate such subversive disingenuously described himself as a "true Christian," meaning that he was a deist who emphatically repudiated the bloody god of the Jews and Christians.

17. Jefferson included in his sylloge the sermon that Perier, in the articles mentioned above, called the Drivel on the Mount, which, if taken seriously, would make impossible an organized society of any kind. He was particularly concerned to exclude, in addition to talk about miracles and the like, such passages as Luke 19.27. That poses a perplexing question. It is not remarkable that most Christian clergymen, like so many others, have been taken in by the Jews' "Holocaust" hoax, which the Jews are now enforcing by pseudo-legal terrorism, since they consider it especially useful for keeping their Aryan serfs stultified and content, but what is astonishing is that those clergymen, who claim to have read their "New Testament" and to believe it, disapprove of the supposed execution of six million Jews. It is undeniable that those Jews, whether they believed their outlandish religion or were atheists, "would not that" Jesus "should reign over them." And since Christians claim that their Jesus, after delivering his commandment, flew up to a place in the sky whence he watches everything that happens on earth, he could have enjoyed watching the death-agonies from his vantage point in the welkin as much as when he was on earth and gave the order, "bring them hither, and slay them before me." It is really remarkable that, so far as I know, no one of the innumerable holy men who are jostling for public attention has thought of praising the Germans for the obedience to Jesus that is reported in the Jews' fiction. That would not only prove his faith in the "inerrancy" of his holy book, but would surely gain him celebrity and a large following.

activity as that of the rabble-rousers who are currently working the "Moral Majority" racket and not only fleece the boobs of at least $500,000,000 each year, but also serve as the avowed agents of the Jews' bandit-state in Palestine.[18]

SOCIETY

A racially homogeneous population and honestly secular government are not enough for a Jeffersonian democracy. It contemplates and requires a population that is predominantly agrarian, dispersed throughout the country on farms and in very small towns. Such was the population in Jefferson's time, and such he assumed or hoped it would always be. He anticipated the findings of modern biological research, which has conclusively shown that all mammals become neurotic and unstable when crowded together, and that the larger the mammals the greater the derangement that is caused by forced proximity to too many of their own kind, even though they are abundantly supplied with food and protected from every form of molestation.

Men, Jefferson believed, inevitably degenerate when crowded together in large cities and deprived of both the freedom of the countryside and direct contact with nature. In large cities, a majority of the population lives in an artificial environment that is unnatural and biologically dehumanizing, becoming a canaille, a "swinish multitude." It was only logical for the revolutionary attack on the United States to use financial manipulations since 1918 to deplete the agrarian part of our population and to use open political pressures as soon as a general sabotage of the economy had put securely into power the masters of the loathsome creature called Franklin Roosevelt. Thus was the agrarian part of the population reduced from a majority to a tiny minority in less than sixty years.[19]

18. For a strictly objective and impartial survey of the anti-American work of these despicable shysters, see the article, "The Religious Right and Zionism," by Dr. Ruth W. Mouly in The Humanist for May-June 1982. She quotes a professedly non-Jewish journalist as saying, "As a gentile American, as a Christian who considers loyalty to God above all human commitments, if the choice ever comes between loyalty to an American government and loyalty to Israel, I have no choice. I must stand by Israel." Some people criticize the Germans adversely for having interned such traitors in concentration camps in a time of crisis! Dr. Mouly concludes that "The potential of the Religious Right to shape America's Middle East policy is frightening." She does not note the impudence of the rabble-rousers' claim to be "conservative," but she does quote a boast by the notorious assassin, murderer, and terrorist, Menachem Begin, "We have many friends, we have the Christians of America." He was probably right; the exceptions to his generalization are politically negligible.

When a population becomes predominantly urban, democracy becomes impossible. Aryans are probably less able to tolerate crowding than other races, and if you wish to restore a democracy, you will have either to disperse the masses of our large cities or disenfranchise them, and it will not be easy to do either in a country that is already fantastically overpopulated. The elimination of other races might suffice to reduce the terrible surplus of numbers, but even that would leave our cities monstrously overgrown. If reduction of the urban cancers involves the sacrifice of some luxuries—and I cannot undertake to conjecture what sacrifices, if any, would be necessary—that is simply the price that must be paid for a healthy and viable society.

I need not add that a democratic government is subject to a natural limitation of size. To ignore that fact is to move into the realm of fairy tales, which commonly depict giants that fascinate children, who do not know that, as a matter of physiological fact, such giants would be unable to move at all. The Federal government would have to be reduced to its original function, that of providing a consistent foreign policy and adequate national defense and of arbitrating between the states, which are otherwise domestically independent.

Jefferson predicted with absolute accuracy that "If this vast country [east of the Mississippi] is brought under a single government, it will be one of the most extensive corruption." He also predicted, "When all government . . . shall be drawn to Washington as the center of power, it . . . will become as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated." But "as oppressive" was the limit of his foresight. In his most gloomy forebodings, he could not imagine the tyranny of organized crime under which the spiritless and spineless

19. According to the American Agricultural News, 22 September 1981, the Federal government in March of that year held 11% of the debts of the remaining farmers, and of this, about 50% was already in default. The periodical suggests that when the Federal government forecloses, it will kick off the former owners and place on the farms credulous young men, who will be so enslaved by debt they will, in effect, work without pay for five years or so, when they can be thrown off and replaced with a fresh lot of serfs. They will, of course, be managed by overseers from Washington while they work. The present interest rates make it impossible for farmers now in debt to the Federal Reserve to survive; their land will probably be taken by the large corporations, many or most of them now owned by Japanese and other foreigners, that have been replacing independent farmers for years, and it will probably be necessary to put white Americans in labor gangs to work properties on which Orientals and mongrels from Mexico would be less efficient.

Americans now live as they ovinely endure a taxation five thousand times greater, in proportion to income, than the taxation that stirred their ancestors to revolt in 1776.

The District of Corruption is now what Americans have made it. Men and women who still dream that there may be some hope in "their" Congress should read Louis Hurst's The Sweetest Club in the World (Englewood, N.J., 1982). As manager of the Senate's exclusive restaurant for many years, Mr. Hurst was able to observe our august Solons while they frolicked and intrigued with their fellows. If you want to influence legislation, don't waste twenty cents on a letter to the waste-baskets of one of "your" Senator's secretaries: it will take at least $10,000 to get his attention. The cost of his vote will depend, naturally, on what other bids he receives: $400,000 is not uncommon.[20]

Although we have no comparable book on the House of Representatives, we may be sure that its members, being so much more numerous, must lead more austere lives and be content with smaller bribes. It is also likely that they, being more penurious, take care to remain sober enough to carry their fees home with them, rather than risk leaving the bag on the luncheon table when they stagger away in an alcoholic fog, as the more merry Senators sometimes do.

Americans who read Mr. Hurst's book or some other description of the normal functioning of the government they have brought upon themselves will probably complain fretfully for several minutes before they forget about it. They should remember the motto of the gentleman who writes under the name "General R. Never": it could have been Jefferson's. "A people deserve whatever they permit."

20. Another measure of the Senate is provided by an incident reported in the Spotlight, 26 December 1981. Many Americans, fondly imagining that they were represented in Washington, wrote to their Senators to protest the use of American resources to enable the Jews in Israel to follow the Mosaic custom and kill the inhabitants of territory in the Middle East that God's Race was planning to seize. Seventy-two of the Senators fingered their trusting constituents to the Jewish terrorist organizations that exercise surveillance over goyim who become restive. Whether those Senators betrayed their constituents as a courtesy to their bosses or, as an unverifiable rumor has it, were paid five dollars for each letter turned over to the Jews, is necessarily uncertain. What is remarkable is that some Senators were sufficiently honorable to refuse to curry favor or earn pin money by such treachery. – I am reminded of an article that appeared , if I remember correctly, in the last years of Mencken's editorship of the American Mercury. The author had been for many years a member of the legislature of one of the plains states in the Middle West. He said that he was quite willing to believe that there were legislators who did not take bribes; he, however, had never known one.

One is apt to be astonished by the severity of Jefferson's strictures on the English. They remind me, mutatis mutandis, of Lord Byron, of whom it has been said that he was never more characteristically English than when he was denouncing his compatriots. Like Byron, Jefferson resented with Anglo-Saxon vehemence certain aspects of contemporary English conduct, and if you examine his utterances with care, you will find that, with the possible exception of certain forms of political corruption, his Anglophobia was focused on just one institution: the Bank of England. In his opinion, it set the precedent, and was the model, for the greatest of all swindles, the emission of paper currency and the creation of a funded national debt.[21]

Professional economists have long done for the basic questions of monetary systems what Jefferson accused Hamilton of doing: "In order that he might have the absolute government of his [financial] machine, he determined to complicate it so that neither the President nor the Congress should be able to understand it, or to control him. He succeeded in doing this, not only beyond their reach, but so that he at length could not unravel it himself." Economic jargon is now used to obfuscate what has been aptly called the legalized crime of banking.

21. The history of monetary swindles is long and complex, and obviously lies far beyond the scope of this article. I shall nevertheless mention a little-known detail that may be of special interest to the readers of this periodical. The question of theft on a grand scale by government was, I believe, first raised by the learned Jesuit, Juan de Mariana, in his essay "De monetae mutatione," which was one of his Tractatūs VII, published at Cologne in 1609. Since the Duke of Lerma was outraged by the libellous suggestion that he could be so dishonest as to do what he was actually doing, Mariana spent many years in the dungeons of the Inquisition, from which he emerged only as an old and broken man. (Incidentally, Lerma, who impoverished Spain and enriched himself by financial looting on a then unprecedented scale, was a very pious Christian and eventually became a Cardinal.) Mariana's younger friend, who became his research assistant when his eyesight began to fail, was the noted Spanish satirist, Quevedo, who came close to identifying international finance as a prime cause of contemporary disasters. In his Hora de todos, he describes a conspiracy between the Jews, the eternal enemies of the nations in which they have lodged themselves, and the crooks who control the financial policies of those nations. – The revolt of the American colonies was primarily caused by British manipulation of their currencies for the benefit of the Bank of England. The crucial importance of this factor was, I believe, first isolated by the American economist, Alexander Del Mar, in his History of Money in America (London, 1899; reprinted Hawthorne, Calif., 1966).

Let us horrify the professional by following Jefferson in reducing the problem to its simplest terms and considering them from the standpoint of plain common sense. The first stage in banking, as devised by the Jewish goldsmiths of the late Middle Ages, is quite simple. The banker accepts and promises to guard deposits of real money (i.e., gold and silver) and issues receipts (bank notes) for the deposit. He then supplements his capital (whatever that may be) by lending at usury a large part of the deposits he has received; in other words, he embezzles them, counting, as do most embezzlers, on being able to recoup what he has taken before it is demanded of him and to pocket the profit he has made by use of it. If he has calculated correctly the percentage of his depositors who will ask for their money at a given time in the future and estimated correctly the likelihood that borrowers will repay at the stated times, he waxes fat on the usury and prospers; if he has miscalculated, than he, like any other embezzler whose plans have gone wrong, becomes insolvent and the loss falls on the individuals who trusted the crook with their money.

Since paper receipts are more convenient to handle and send to others than specie, they come to be used in place of the real money, which is therefore left in the hands of the banker, who, it is assumed, will deliver the money whenever his receipt is presented to him. This suggests to him a highly profitable fraud: he issues receipts for money that he does not have in his possession and never had, and by lending these spurious receipts, he collects usury on money that exists only in his imagination. His greed almost invariably leads him to rash optimism and his eventual bankruptcy becomes the more spectacular, although he has usually had the prudence to place his ill-gotten gains in a safer place than his own bank and so can laugh at the indignation of the victims of his swindle.

This second stage represents the normal operation of the banking system during the First Republic, and naturally, aided by the typically American "get-rich-quick" mania, produced the normal "business cycle" of boom and bust, prosperity and recession, that bedeviled the United States from the first.

The third stage was attained when a gang of bankers formed the Bank of England, lent to the British government fictitious receipts for non-existent deposits, and arranged to collect usury in perpetuity by "funding" the national debt thus created. This was in some way convenient for its victims, the nation's tax-payers,[22] but it gave to the bank the backing of the nation's

22. This was a minor factor, no doubt, but during the Nineteenth Century "Consols" (i.e., "consolidated annuities," government bonds that bore no date of maturity) were an eminently safe investment for Englishmen who credit, i.e., its taxing power, which was thus made to guarantee the bank's notes as an unquestioned substitute for real money. As Jefferson saw, "funding is but swindling futurity on a large scale." And even if the paper represents real money, all that can be lent to a government is what has been borrowed from the people, who are thus expected to repay the bankers what the bankers have borrowed from them, and "to fill up the measure of blessing, instead of paying, they [the bankers] receive interest on what they owe from those to whom they owe." Could anything be more preposterous?

Two attempts to found an American analogue of the Bank of England were short-lived, and it was probably Jefferson's influence that put an end to both of them, but much the same result was obtained when national banks were authorized to create fictitious money secured by governmental bonds they had purchased with their chits in the first place, and on which they were accordingly paid interest. Thus was the national debt instituted as a permanent swindle and, of course, wars and "emergencies" were devised to increase it as rapidly as was thought feasible. Highly profitable panics, as "recessions" were once called, were arranged under this system, but it was eventually improved.

In 1913, the Jews and their assistant conspirators put over the Federal Reserve and the Income Tax in preparation for the First World War, which had been scheduled for the following year. The boobs, of course, wagged their tails with do-gooding enthusiasm as they stuck their heads in both nooses.

The identity of the real owners of the Federal Reserve is an official and closely guarded secret. I have seen what purports to be a list of the eight owners: seven nests of Jews (Rothschilds, Warburgs, etc.) and, last and perhaps least, the Rockefellers. I have no means of knowing whether this list represents a leak of secret information or a reasoned deduction from fragmentary evidence or a surmise based on the system's operations. One can only say that the list is plausible: God's People will not have overlooked so potent a means of herding the livestock on their had relatively small sums to invest or preferred security to a higher rate of return. In this country, government bonds were regarded as a safe investment until the great War Criminal began his usurpation by repudiating the solemn pledge to redeem them in real money and proceeded further to swindle the investors by systematically inflating the currency and making them pay taxes on their losses. The devaluation of the currency naturally enriched the gang that planned it and, notably, Roosevelt's supervisor, the Jew Baruch, who, according to Col. Curtis Dall in his F.D.R., acquired seven sixteenths of all the silver in the whole world in anticipation of the great act of piracy and thus obtained a profit of 80% in a few weeks. Yahweh created the sheep to be fleeced by the Righteous, didn't he?

North American plantation.[23]

The accomplishments of the Federal Reserve are obvious to everyone. When herds of crazed boobs were stampeded into Europe in a Holy War in 1917, the primary purpose was to help in the systematic destruction of Western civilization, but an incidental benefit was the vast increase in the national debt, thus permitting the Federal Reserve to print bundles of intrinsically worthless paper on which the tax-paying boobs were condemned to pay interest in perpetuity. In 1920, a neat "recession" was ordered, primarily to impoverish the agrarian part of our population, while other sectors of the economy were steered into a delirium of inflation in preparation for the panic and "depression" which the Federal Reserve's monopoly of the banking system enabled it to make total, thus inducing the Revolution of 1933 so cleverly that the dumb brutes did not even suspect what was being done to them.

During this period, although the nation was obviously bankrupt, since the fraudulent currency could never have been redeemed for the value printed on it, the American serfs were still permitted to have money if they wanted it: so long as only a few did so, they could exchange the paper for gold and silver. The first act of the Revolutionary régime was to steal all the gold in the country (except a few bits of jewelry that the slaves were permitted to retain), and this outrage did not evoke from the American dolts even so much protest as sheep commonly utter when they are fleeced. The Americans were permitted to have silver for small change until a few years ago, when the last bits of money were taken from the uncomprehending creatures, who, with ovine docility, were content to use in place of money only the paper trash printed by the great counterfeiting ring called the Federal Reserve, which now has them by the neck and will inflate them into undisguised slavery when it is ready for the real crash, which will, no doubt, bring a total prostration, now that the residue which was left in 1930 has been entirely consumed. The Americans will doubtless become as excited and frantic as the jackrabbits on a Texas ranch when

23. Needless to say, many bankers who are caught in the system are personally honest, and that includes some persons who have attained a fairly high rank in the Federal Reserve itself. The late Malcolm Bryan, who grew up in the town in which I now live and is remembered as a man of integrity, became President of the branch of the Federal Reserve in Atlanta, Georgia, and, according to the California Mining Journal, September 1961, told the Senate Finance Committee, "If a policy of active or permissive inflation is to be a fact, then we can save the shreds of our self-respect only by announcing the policy . . . . We should have the decency to say to the money saver, 'Hold still, little fish; all we intend to do is to gut you.' "

the ranchers begin one of their jackrabbit-drives.[24]

Jefferson, of course, could not have foreseen what the banking swindles have done to us, but he did foresee that the financial manipulations made possible by paper currency and a fraudulent national debt could end only in the destruction of the nation. He urged again and again the simple honesty from which professional economists so loudly dissuade us.

The only currency permitted in a democracy must be real money, i.e., a metallic currency made of the precious metals that have an intrinsic value. He called repeatedly for "the suppression of all paper circulation during peace." And he gave a conclusive refutation of all schemes of a "managed currency," including some recent proposals by hopefuls who like to imagine a Congress that could be trusted to do more than joyfully adopt a new method of looting. Jefferson did no more than state an indisputable historical truth when he said of paper currency that "it is liable to be abused, has been, is, and forever will be abused, in every country in which it is permitted." A paper currency is simply an invitation to swindlers and to counterfeiters, both in and out of government, an invitation that no rational man could expect them to refuse. The only honest currency is real money, the precious metals that have an intrinsic, universal, and, for all practical purposes, fixed value, against which the prices of commodities will fluctuate through the unimpeded operation of the law of supply and demand.

24. Americans who are interested may obtain a preview of their proximate future from Jean Raspail's The Camp of the Saints (New York, 1975; paperback reprint, London, s.a. [1980?]) Preparations to hasten that future began with the large-scale importation of Mongoloids from southeast Asia, of whom at least half, according to an intelligence officer who served in Vietnam throughout the phony "war" there, are seasoned killers from the Viet-Cong. This was followed by the intensive importation of savages from Haiti and Cuba and of mongrels (chiefly mestizos and sambos) from Mexico; the influx continues on a large scale, with only token efforts to control it by an Immigration Service that Washington prevents from acting effectively. What is planned has long been obvious, but I was interested in learning from the National Vanguard (January 1982) that one of the most authoritative and expensive business-advisory services ($775.00 per annum) has advised its subscribers that uncontrolled killing, raping, burning, and looting of the white population by its racial enemies will begin in the summer of 1983 as the opening of a "long-term trend of continuing non-white [i.e., anti-white] violence and destruction." Prudent business men are advised to remove their homes and, if possible, their businesses to regions which the Federal government has not yet saturated with niggers and "Hispanics" (the euphemism which is currently applied to creatures who have nothing Spanish about them except some tincture of blood from the Spanish who conquered the aborigines in Central and South America and copulated with the female natives, and some ability to speak a low and corrupt dialect of Spanish). It is taken for granted, of course, that the only thing for the white rabbits to do is to run, if they have a chance, and to try to find a thicket in which to hide until the governmental beaters drive them out. Although the business-advisory service, if correctly reported by the National Vanguard, does not say so, there are, no doubt, a few Americans who can think of an alternative to running like jackrabbits, but they are wicked "racists" and "neo-Nazis" and ought to be crucified, shouldn't they?

A corollary of honest money is that there must be no national debt, no funded debt of any governmental body. Expenses must be met by taxation, not dishonestly imposed on our offspring by governmental borrowing of fictitious money on which they will pay usury forever. The only exception to constant solvency is for a war, which is an enterprise of the whole nation that will be defended or expanded by it. The extraordinary expenses of the war are to be met by the emission of a paper currency that is to be redeemed in specie at a stated time from the revenue of taxes concurrently imposed to provide for the redemption. So long as the citizens are confident of an eventual victory, the paper currency will circulate at par, given the guarantee of its redemption. In an extreme emergency, such as greatly prolonged war or a national defeat, the paper currency could bear interest, but the interest would eventually be paid to the citizen holding the note, who would regard it as a good investment. There would be no borrowing of worthless paper from bankers for the privilege of paying them interest on what they never really lent.

Such was the monetary policy of Jefferson, who thought that governments should be as honest as individuals were supposed to be so long as we had a recognized system of morality.

Honesty, to be sure, is extremely unpopular these days, and honest money would make it necessary to forego the blessings of a "prosperity" by a continued inflation, which enables clever scoundrels, even outside banking circles, to profit from the stupidity of their exploited compatriots. But if you want a stable democracy, you must be prepared to take it with its disadvantages.

POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY

A political philosophy (often called "political science" by practitioners who are not averse from verbal trickery) must deal with contemporary realities. If it does not, if it is charged with "ideals," it is merely a variety of romantic fiction, although it may not be recognized as such.

If we are to estimate Jefferson's rank as a political philosopher, certain questions obviously pose themselves. I shall state them without attempting to answer them.

1. Did he, a wealthy landowner in whose presence his inferiors were generally on their good behavior, correctly estimate the character of the effective majority of the population of the United States in his time? Or did he have generous illusions about that majority?

2. There is an alternative to that question, viz.: Did he correctly estimate the majority in the states outside New England, so that the Constitution could have been preserved, had the New England states seceded from the Union at the time of the Hartford Convention, instead of deciding to remain in the Union so that they could continue to exploit the other states?

3. If Jefferson did not mistake the character of the majority on which he relied, some other explanation of the failure of democracy must be found. For example, did the innumerable banking swindles that he deplored fatally mislead a population intoxicated with "get-rich-quick" hootch?

4. Another example: Was the really fatal flaw the failure to keep the Christians under control? The First Republic was destroyed by the frenzied hate-mongering of the Abolitionists. A rational opposition to slavery in the United States could be based only on racial grounds and, as Jefferson so often said, implied the deportation of the unassimilable anthropoids from American soil.[25] The scurvy crew of rabble-rousers that plagued the northern states, until they created an opportunity for the greed of financial looters and the Jews' hatred of our race in the invasion of the South they provoked, were only a fanatical and crazed riff-raff. They were a product of the epidemic of religious mania that spread through the country in the 1830s.[26]

25. As everyone knows, Abraham Lincoln, who seems to have had a mystic admiration for "the Union," was not a Christian and could therefore see the implications of an emancipation of the blacks, whom he intended to export to Central America to save the expense of shipping them back to Africa. That, of course, was one reason why he was assassinated as soon as his usefulness was ended. Even the great Liberal and opponent of slavery, Lord Acton, recognized that whenever two incompatible races are present in the same territory, democracy is possible only by the enslavement of one of them. See his Essays on Freedom and Power (London, 1956), especially his "Political Causes of the American Revolution," first published in May 1861, before the invasion of the South began. He saw, however, that the Republic established by the Constitution had ended in total failure. Noteworthy is his characterization of the moral purpose professed by politicians opposed to slavery: "It adorned cupidity with the appearance of philanthropy."

26. See Gilbert Hobbs Barnes, The Antislavery Impulse, 1830-1844 (New York, 1933), which clearly shows that the Abolitionists were merely a specialized group of the howling dervishes whose evangelical rant became a national affliction. See also Dwight Lowell Dumond, Antislavery Origins of the Civil War in the United States (London, 1939), and Hazel Catherine Wolf, On Freedom's Altar, the Martyr-Complex in the Abolition Movement (Madison, Wis., 1952). A few of the rabble-rousers, notably the crazed William Lloyd Garrison, were honest enough to admit that the Bible contained nothing that could be interpreted as a deprecation of slavery.

They pretended that their god, the supposed author of their Bible, had forbidden slavery; that was a lie, a brazen lie, and, if they had read their holy book, they knew it; but all witch-doctors know the technique of concealing mendacity and effrontery by shaking their fetishes faster and yelling louder. The Abolitionists' righteousness was, as we should expect, the product of minds festering with envy and malice and a blood-lust that was at least latent in all of them.[27] They were inspired by the success of the great "civil rights" movement in Haiti,[28] and they loved their "black brothers" as instruments

27. Few, of course, had the courage of the famous homicidal maniac, John Brown, who is now much admired for his blood-thirsty ferocity, but one has to consider objectively only so relatively mild a specimen as Julia Ward Howe to perceive the inner motivation of the agitator's "righteousness." She is the author of the words of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," which she adapted, ironically enough, to music by a Southern composer who has been variously identified. It is one of the most terrible songs ever sung. It is a hymn to the bloody Yahweh of the "Old Testament," and it is inspired by a joyous anticipation of slaughter such as he supposedly inflicted on the Midianites and all other civilized peoples who had property that his pet bandits coveted. "Kill, O Yahweh, kill!" was the exultant cry of Mrs. Howe's heart, "kill those white women who are lolling in elegant ease with slaves to attend them while I have to be content with hired servants, who are both expensive and likely to become cantankerous or insolent. Kill those white women who are courted by gallant and chivalrous gentlemen while I have to marry some money-grubbing merchant or hypocritically austere holy man and will become as a wife merely his domestic servant. Kill, O Yahweh, kill all those white men and women who are enjoying a spacious leisure and essentially secular culture in a mild and amoenous climate, while I have to live in bleak New England among dour Puritans and cold-hearted profiteers." That is what Mrs. Howe meant, whether or not she was fully conscious of it, when she cried out jubilantly that Yahweh was "trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored." Kill, O Yahweh, kill! Better yet, help us do it for you!

On John Brown and the conspiracy that financed him, see J. C. Furnas, The Road to Harpers Ferry (New York, 1959). Some of the more coherent writings of the Abolitionists were collected and edited by Louis Ruchames, The Abolitionists (New York, 1963). Note the constant gabble about "sinfulness," "immortal souls," and the like.

28. On the extermination of the white race in Haiti by the liberated for the humiliation and destruction of their betters. They naturally wanted to retain on American soil hordes of emancipated slaves for the perpetual affliction of white men who had not been exterminated. American children are now taught to admire those poisonous pests in appreciation of the irreparable calamity they brought upon our nation and race. A judicious historian will wonder why Jefferson's hope that superstition could be kept within bounds proved vain.

5. Another example: Was there a continuous deterioration of character casued by an influx of undesirable immigrants and the growth of cities with their inevitable rotting of native morality?[29] The constant expansion of industry may have been an additional factor. William Gayley Simpson, in his admirable book, Which Way, Western Man?, remarks, "I remember meeting in a little fishing-village of Scotland an 80-year old shoemaker, . . . who, as a man, and even intellectually, would have put to shame most of the finished college graduates I have known. . . . I believe England and Scotland were once full of such men, and this country too a hundred years and more ago. . . . In the final testing it will be found, after all, that machines are no substitute for manhood." Americans have been taught to shy away from all unpleasant questions, but they cannot be answered by closing one's eyes and whistling a tune.

WHO'S FOR DEMOCRACY?

I have tried, not to give a synopsis of Jefferson's thought, but only to show what conditions are prerequisite for the democracy he championed. If we wish to institute such a true democracy, we shall have first to create the conditions in which it is possible.

The proponents of democracy will have to begin by deporting, vaporizing, or otherwise disposing of the swarms of Jews, Congoids, Mongoloids, and mongrels that now infest our territory and are becoming ever more numerous and audacious in their unappeasable hatred of us. I cannot suggest offhand a convenient way of effecting that indispensable épuration of the population, but I am willing to believe that it could still be carried out.

Let us assume that you have reduced the population to Aryans, so that we once again have racial homogeneity. Forgive me, dear patriot, but I must be so tactless as to remind you that more, much more, than half of those excellent Aryans will be persons who are now writing checks whenever Falwell and his malodorous kind pitch the woo at the glassy-eyed suckers; who happily pay bureaucrats to harass and kick them or are themselves bureaucrats hired to hector the masochists; who happily send their children into the degradation and filth of "integrated" schools; who, like born slaves, cringe before the goons of Infernal Revenue and hope only to be able to chisel a few bucks here and there without incurring punishment by their owners; who are now determined never to think about the survival of their voluntarily debased and defiled race; who are so lost to manhood that they endure the most abject servitude while keeping their snouts in the swill-troughs, and so lost to common sense that they do not even perceive their servitude. These are the newly freed citizens whom you expect to govern themselves by free elections in which a majority will make an intelligent choice! Are you counting on some miracle of leadership and inspiration that will make men out of mice? Or do you intend to disenfranchise, most undemocratically, the Aryan majority in the hope that they, like men maimed by accident or war, can transmit to their offspring a genetic heritage free of their own deformity, so that a future generation of our race will recover the manhood, the self-respect, the intelligence that their sires of today have so blatantly lost?

I know that what I have just said will send many well-meaning and sentimental Americans into a tizzy or a tantrum. I am sorry, but I remind them that I did not design the universe. I did not create the realities of biology and history. And a would-be democrat, like an elfin princess who marries a mortal, must take the bitter with the sweet.

– Part Two of this article will appear in next month's Liberty Bell – beasts, see T. Lothrop Stoddard, The French Revolution in San Domingo (Boston, 1914; recently reprinted, s.l. & n.; available from Liberty Bell Publications).

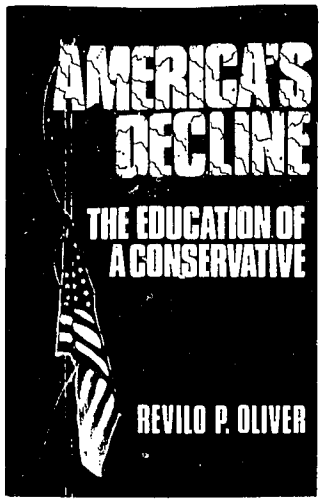
29. Let me give you an example that is both concise and cogent. The death of Edgar Allen Poe in 1849 is a mystery that will never be solved, but what I call to your attention is the conjectural explanation advanced by the physician who attended him as he lay dying, which was accepted by some contemporaries without hesitation: Poe, while passing through Baltimore became intoxicated or was drugged; he was robbed and then put into one of the "tanks" maintained by one of the political parties; in such tanks a supply of men were kept, with liquor or drugs, in a state of semi-conscious abulia while remaining able to stand on their feet when supported by their keepers, who escorted them to each of the polling places in the city and voted them for honest government and righteousness. The point is that in 1849 this procedure aroused no outcry of indignation; it was evidently accepted as a part of urban life; it was just an expedient that helped the honest men of the good party to keep out or throw out the scoundrels of the bad party. Who would be so nice as to object to winning an election for righteous men?



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM "AMERICA'S DECLINE"

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

376 pp., pb. $8.50
plus $1 for post. & hdlg. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

continued from page 16

existence of the State of Israel is living evidence of a monstrous injustice, a symbol of their abject betrayal by Britain and the United States.

INGATHERING OF ALL JEWS?

Today there are 3½ million Jews in Israel with an ever-pressing problem of lebensraum, and the question arises: Will the United States and the West go on blindly supporting Israel until Israel has finally grabbed enough territory to accommodate the "ingathering" of the world's 11 million [? — Ed. L.B.J Jews, for which Ben Gurion, Golda Meir, Menachem Begin and Israeli military juntas have been, and are still striving?

Needless to say, there is not an Arab alive who does not know of world Zionism's plans to expand entirely at their expense.

The Arab world knows only too well that Israel's real aim is to recover the "ancient borderlines" within the boundaries defined in the Old Testament (Genesis 9:18) and that if the welfare of Israel requires. continuing conquest, subjugation, dispossession, and extermination of foreign nations in the Middle East, the Zionists will not be deterred by any "humanitarian" questions.

All of which raises the important question: Just what right have Russian Khazar Jews such as Ben Gurion, Golda Meir, Menachem Begin, and Israel's ruling elite, and so many others, to any claim, whatever to a land they had never previously occupied and who today compose the huge majority of Jews now in Palestine?

The Khazars are not a racial stock indigenous to that region. They are not a Semitic people. And their claim to the contrary is one of the most astonishing deceptions in the whole of history.

The true Semites are the Sephardic Jews who had been living peacefully amidst the Palestinian Arabs, their racial cousins, down through the centuries.

NOT OF SEMITIC STOCK

It is not they who are the invaders of Palestine, and the creators of the Israeli problem, but the thrusting and remorseless Khazars who are not of Semitic stock, but a mixed people with strong Mongol-Turkic-Finnish affinities, whose ancient homelands never were in Palestine, but in Eastern and Southern Russia and beyond the Ural Mountains, and who first adopted the Jewish religion in about the eighth century of our era.

What matters, more than ninety percent of the Jews of the world today are of Khazar origin, whose ancestors, from the beginning of time, had never set foot in Palestine and who have no identification whatever with the Pharisees, Saducees, Zealots or Essenes, the four religious groups in Palestine in Bible history.

It is these Khazars who today wield the big stick in Zionism. Before they invaded Palestine in the present century, they invaded the United States as immigrants, where they now form the oligarchy behind the declared government of that country.

The United States was also the chief base from which they invaded Russia to institute the Bolshevik regime, since which time the Soviet Union has become their chief base for the spreading of Communism throughout the world.

TRUE CHARACTER OF ZIONISM

The true character of the Zionist movement (to which some Jews are opposed) is not, and never was, merely "humanitarian," a search for a "refuge" or a home in Palestine for the "persecuted" Jews of Europe, but an aggressive imperialistic expansionist power, imbued with a sense of racial destiny that knows no bounds and brooks no opposition in its drive for mastery and for world power.

Their endless and bitter campaigns against "racism," imposed with the fervour of the Inquisition of the Middle Ages, are serving no other purpose than to break down the racial and national dynamism of Western peoples, while at the same time building up their own fanatical racism and nationalism to the point that there publicists are describing Jews as a master-race innately equipped with an intellectual apparatus which makes them superior to all other races!

SIDE BY SIDE WITH COMMUNISM

In America and other countries of the West, the rise of Zionism has gone side by side with the rise of Communism. The Zionists work from the top, the Communists from below.

World Communism is succeeding in its attempt to conquer the world in direct proportion to the support which America and other Western countries are giving to Zionism.

The power exerted by Zionists in the world today is power at the highest political level: In world affairs it is world power.

Empires in the past wielded great power of large areas, but they were visible bodies. But not so with Zionism, which is being advanced in all the countries of the world through tremendous financial and other power, being brought to bear on leading politicians, editors, Christian leaders, and public men generally.

The influence of Zionist organisation reaches into the inner policy-making groups of nearly every government in the world, particularly the Christian West. This influence has caused these groups to adopt pro-Zionist and pro-Communist policies which are often in conflict with the real interests and very survival of the people and nations they govern. This condition exists in the United States, in Britain, in most Western countries, and now in South Africa, with her special relationship with Israel.

No empire in history before rose by such means. It has been achieved by bending politicians of the West to the Zionist will; through secret societies, such as Freemasonry and others; and by a process of playing off party against party, politician against politician, nation against nation, and race against race.

Nor must we forget the 37-year long, 24-hour a day, high pressure racial "anti-discrimination" campaign mounted by the Zionists, together with their "Six Million" and "Judeo-Christian Heritage" hoaxes, with which they have also effectively hoodwinked the Western world since the end of World War II.

IMPORTANCE OF PALESTINE

The importance of Palestine to Jewry was emphasised in a statement by Nahum Goldman, a leader of the World Jewish Congress, who said:

"The Jews might have had Uganda, Madagascar, and other places for the establishment of a Jewish Fatherland, but they want absolutely nothing except Palestine: Not because the Dead Sea water by evaporation can produce Five Trillion Dollars worth of metaloids and powdered metal; not because the sub-soil of Palestine contains twenty times more petroleum than all the combined reserves of the two Americas; but because Palestine is the crossroads of Europe, Asia, and Africa, because Palestine constitutes the veritable center of world political power, the strategic centre for world control."

The importance of Zionist objectives was also emphasised in Ben Gurion's incredibly brazen prophecy, in an interview with LOOK Magazine, January 16, 1962, when he said:

"The image of the world in 1987 as traced in my imagination: The Cold War will be a thing of the past. Internal pressure of the constantly growing intelligentsia in Russia for more freedom and the pressure of the masses for raising their living standards may lead to a gradual democratisation of the Soviet Union. On the other hand, the increasing influence of the workers and farmers, and the rising political importance of men of science, may transform the United States into a welfare state with a planned economy. Western and Eastern Europe will become a federation of autonomous states having a socialist and democratic regime. With the exception of the U.S.S.R. as a federated Eurasian state, all other continents will become united in a world alliance, at whose disposal will be an international police force.All armies will be abolished, and there will be no more wars. In Jerusalem, the United Nations (a truly United Nations*) will build a Shrine of the Prophets to serve the federated union of all continents; this will be the seat of the Supreme Court of Mankind, to settle all controversies among the federated continents, as prophesied by Isaiah. . ."*

Note well that the then Prime Minister of Israel announced that all the nations of the world would be disarmed and ruled from Israel!

GIANT STEP CLOSER TO WAR

The savagery of Israel's attacks on densely populated areas in Beirut and everywhere in the Lebanon are an arrogant and deliberate trampling of both U.S. and international law, and must be seen for what they are—naked and criminal aggression—and bringing the turbulent Middle East another giant step closer to full-scale war.

And if the good people of the world wish to secure mankind from the violence and terrorism in the Middle East, and everywhere in the world, and re-establish the law and order built up through the centuries, they will have to find the courage to face up to the realities of not only the Middle East problem, but of the growing anarchy, terrorism and revolution victoriously and brazenly bestriding the whole civilised world. For, unless they learn to face up to, and fight the barefaced barbarity of it all, their nations and civilisations will continue to collapse in ruins around them.

And in the matter of the Middle East, in particular, they will have to face up to the reality of an imperialistic, expansionist, military power, like Israel, a country which, as part of a master-plan, has mercilessly driven out peaceful populations from centuries-old homelands in order to build the Jewish state—a country which adopts the attitude of a conqueror, and believes that force and twenty-fold retaliatory killing are the only policies which its neighhours will understand—a country which consistently violates the Fourth Geneva Convention in its treatment of civilians, and which has consistently flouted every decision of the U.N. General Assembly and the Security Council.

RENEGADE CHRISTIAN LEADERS

And if the Christian leaders in the U.S., such as evangelist Billy Graham and the Reverend Jerry Falwell (the leader of the so-called Moral Majority, and close friend of President Reagan), and together with all the other religious leaders in the U.S., whose total commitment to world Jewry and close association with, and support for, Menachem Begin, have become bywords in American political life—if all these renegade Christian leaders would spend a few days in Palestinian refugee camps or in Lebanese relief camps and hospitals, and minister unto the victims of American-made and American-supplied cluster and high-velocity shrapnel bombs, and help to bury some of the dead, men, women, and children alike, they might all begin to learn some rudiments of morality.

The experience might even turn some of them into Christians.

Little do they seem to know, or care, that it was America's connivance in the genesis of Israel and America's active support and protection of Israel up to the present, which has cost the U.S. and the Western world the friendship and goodwill of over 100 million Arabs and 300 million other Moslems, once the most anti-Communistic peoples on earth—and paved the way for Russia's entrance into the Middle East, thereby dividing the East from the West in a way that best suited Russia—and with Israel becoming an important link between Soviet Russia and the rest of Russia's actual and potential allies in both Africa and the East.

No wonder, today, the United States, the so-called leader of the West and the "free world," is dominated by, manipulated by, and subservient to Israel and international Jewry.

GAUNTLET THROWN DOWN

Western leaders, and Western man himself, are still totally unaware of the intense racist activity that animates and activates world Jewry. They still think they are dealing with individuals when they are dealing with a militant racist and nationalist group that has declared war on Western man's concepts of religion, race and nation, and on his very civilisation.

In pursuit of their self-appointed destiny, Israel and world Jewry are at total war with the Gentile world. It is not an undeclared war merely because there has not been a recent declaration of war. The gauntlet was thrown down two thousand years ago. The more the Gentiles are overthrown or they compromise, as Western leaders and South Africa are now doing, the sooner the fulfilment of their dominion over all the races of mankind, white, black, brown, and yellow.

Israel's, and world Jewry's, political outlook is world rule in the material sense. It is an international nation. It is this, and nothing else, which gives significance to all its financial, educational, propagandist, and revolutionary programmes throughout the world.

COLLAPSE OF CIVILISATION

The truth of the whole matter of Israel, as every dispassionate observer must surely realise, is that as long as she remains in being, there can be no way out of the intolerable situation which now periodically turns the Middle East into a bloody testing ground for America's and Russia's latest weapons of destruction.

The Israel of the Khazars is a poisonous thorn in the Arab flesh. And unless it is pulled out, there will continue to be inflammation on every side of the sore, and murder in men's eyes and hearts.

And so long as the dominant international pressures in the West are of a kind to ensure protection for the thorn instead of for the flesh, so long will mankind be maddened by the Middle Eastern ulcer, the world kept simmering on the edge of war—and the collapse of civilisation a mathematical certainty. □

Reprints of this article available at 5 for $1.50; 100 for $20.; 500 for $80.

MUST-READING FOR CONCERNED PATRIOTS:

The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion	$ 1.50
The Secret Driving Force of Communism	$ 2.50
Behind Communism	$ 2.50
Blasting the Historical Blackout	$ 2.00
A Jew Exposes the Jewish World Conspiracy	$ 1.50
The Hoax of the 20th Century	$ 6.00
Auschwitz: An Eyewitness Report	$ 1.50
Gruesome Harvest	$ 4.00
Germany Must Perish!	$ 3.00

For orders under $10., please add $1.; for orders over $10., please add 10% for postage and handling. Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

YOU CRITICISE ME FOR BREAKING AGREEMENTS. . .

YOU CRITICISE ME FOR BOMBING MY ARAB NEIGHBORS. . .

YOU CRITICISE ME FOR DICTATING YOUR POLICIES. . .

YOU CRITICISE ME FOR BLOWING UP ARAB VILLAGES. . .

SNIFFLE!

ANTI-SEMITIC IS WHAT YOU ARE!

INJUSTICE AT NUREMBERG

by Major D. V. Clerkin, E.A.B.
Reprinted from Euro-American Quarterly, Summer 1980

The juridicial basis for the Holocaust myth of the Six Million was the so-called Nuremberg Trials—the International Military Tribunal (IMT) and the American-sponsored Nuremberg Military Tribunal (NMT). Between 1945 and 1949 leaders of the defeated German State were subjected to trials and sentences unprecedented in the annals of world history and Western jurisprudence.

There have been many reasons put forward for the holding of such "war crimes" trials, not the least of which is the fact that the victorious allied powers could do anything they wished with a surrendered Germany, but more specifically from a vengeful desire to punish Germany per se via the prosecution of the National Socialist leadership. The Western allies also thought it expedient to appease the Soviet Union, recently on an orgy of murder and rapine during the invasion of eastern Germany, and whose leader, Josef Stalin, had demanded in the presence of Churchill and Roosevelt the execution of 50 thousand German leaders from a wide variety of fields. It is to be noted in this regard that in 1941 a little book by the Jew, Theodore N. Kaufman, Germany Must Perish!, held forth the idea that a German defeat should mean the destruction of the entire German nation using the method of mass sterilization.

Moreover, such trials, it was hoped, would help to create a climate of sympathy for the displaced Jews of Europe, which would rebound to the benefit of the Zionists, who needed a great propaganda ploy to force Great Britain to carry out the terms of the Balfour Declaration of November 2, 1917. From an objective viewpoint, the findings of the trials are worthless; for the manner in which they were conducted brings into question their legality, i.e., the jurisdiction of the Tribunals and, consequently, the verdicts which they rendered. Since precedents were wanting, the Tribunal invented law as it proceeded, applying it ex post facto to the defendants in the dock. The IMT and NMT, therefore, were in fact mock trials, propaganda extravaganzas worthy of the very Moscow show trials they so very much resembled. The Russians had in fact sewn the entire sordid business up at the Moscow and Yalta conferences, where it was agreed that the guilty parties were to be 'tried' before the inevitable punishments were meted out. Without the trials of major and secondary German leaders, Stalin had sworn that he would order mass slaughters of the defenseless German populace under his control. The Western world, however, refused to admit that Stalin had in fact ordered the terrorization of the eastern Germans as part of his strategy of military advance. The Jewish commissar of propaganda, Ilya Ehrenburg, carried out the anti-German programs with the type of bloodlust typical of the Talmudic/Bolshevist mentality

The purpose of the Tribunals was to place the stamp of agreement and pseudo-legality upon the agreements made beforehand by the Allies. And no evidence of lack of guilt on the part of the defendents was to be admissible; only that which supported the prearranged convictions of Germany's leaders was approved. Many facets of war policy were not included at Nuremberg, for the main reason that the Allies were also guilty of such acts as unrestricted bombing of civilian targets, and had carried on terror bombing according to official plans formulated long before anyone talked of "war crimes" and trials. In truth, the accusers belonged in the dock to an extent equal, if not greater, than the accused; but, lest we forget, the victors constituted the prosecution, and thus had a free hand in the matter of choosing defendents and the charges to be brought.

Many famous Americans, amongst whom were the late Senators Robert Taft of Ohio and Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, expressed opposition and even outrage at the drumhead nature of the trials. These two prominent American lawmakers saw in the precedents laid down at Nuremberg the spectre of that which the Constitution of the United States had expressly forbidden in Article I, Section 9: "No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed." Politicians were not the only critics of the Nuremberg Trials; an American state jurist, Justice Charles F. Wennerstrum, president of one of the trials of German officers of the SS, resigned his office at Nuremberg and left Germany, stating to Hal Foust of The Chicago Tribune, "If I had known seven months ago what I know today, I would never have come her." What Wennerstrum said in toto was eventually reproduced in the Tribune, but not before prosecution chief (American) Gen. Telford Taylor attempted to stop Foust's communique, and, that failing, sent a self-serving reply via official channels that reached the United States before the remarks of Justice Wennerstrum.

Gen. Taylor and Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson participated in a charade of justice. They helped try German leaders on charges so broad and vague as to be considered ludicrous in a true court of law and justice—'crimes' that had not been previously defined by international law. American lawyers engaged in pure ideological revenge, disregarding any semblance of due process, does not indicate that the veneer of legality in that vaunted profession lies very thick. When America begins to tolerate the type of conduct which took place at the Nuremberg Trials against helpless German defendents, and in the name of justice, then it is evident that Western Jurisprudence is in the hands of the Jewish destroyer of Culture and Civilization.

Could any honest court of appeals, any state supreme court, or the United States Supreme Court, refuse an appellant his plea for a writ of error, certiorari, or quo warranto upon submission of the following list of juridicial horrors? Yet no appeals were allowed, and sentences of execution on eleven major defendants were carried out straightaway.

(1) Sixty per cent of the General Prosecutor's staff at the Nuremberg Trials were persons of the Jewish race. Less than ten per cent of the American prosecution staff were native born Americans or members of the White-Christian race. Can a fair trial be conducted when those who claim to have been victimized monopolize the prosecution?

(2) The general rule against hear-say evidence was violated by admitting in the trials' records some 300,000 written affidavits, signed by persons who did not appear in open court to swear to the truth of their respective statements. There was no requirement that proof be given that the signers of such questionable documents ever existed. But only 240 actual witnesses were called during the course of the trials, not one of which was a first-hand witness—an eye witness—to the alleged acts of mass gassing and shooting. Each one stated that he or she 'knew' that the acts had taken place, which meant that someone had told them of the gas chambers, proving, of course absolutely nothing.

(3) Defendants were not allowed to directly cross-examine prosecution witnesses, nor were they allowed to communicate pertinent questions to their defense counsels to be asked of the witnesses. Testimony of former concentration camp inmates, deemed by the prosecution and the Tribunals 'friendly' to the defense, was inadmissable; reminding one of the Eichmann 'trial' in Jerusalem (1961), which allowed German witnesses for Eichmann to enter Israel, but threatened to prosecute them for alleged 'war crimes' as well. There were, obviously, no defense witnesses.

(4) 'Confessions' were extorted from defendants who had been solitarily confined for up to five months previous to their appearances in open court (cf. the treatment accorded by the Soviets to Cardinal Josef Mindszenty). Defendants had hoods placed over their heads. If the answers they gave did not suit their interrogators, the German defendants were beaten with rubber hoses, brass knuckles, and cruelly kicked in the groin until they 'admitted their guilt.' In addition to this, burning matches were driven under defendants' fingernails and teeth were punched out and jaws were broken by Allied interrogators. The Jews took special pleasure in these methods of questioning defendants.

(5) Agents (Jews) of the Tribunals posed as priests to obtain such 'evidence' as they might glean from even the sanctity of the confessional.

(6) Defendants who had been members of the Schutzstaffel (S.S.), the Waffen—or combat S.S.—as well as the security services of the Sicherheitsdienst (S.D) and the Geheime Staats Polizei (Gestapo), were especially mistreated, being flogged to bleeding pulps and their testicles kicked and beaten with boots and rods in order to extract 'confessions.' General officers of the S.S. organizations were interrogated by scatological Jewish maniacs who rubbed dung on the faces and over the mouths of the subject undergoing questioning. Forcing one to drink his own urine was the order of the day.

(7) 'Plea bargaining' was offered to the secondary rank defendants at the IMT, if they would stipulate to the charges against them in the indictments, and give testimony against others under indictment. Those who stipulated, viz., 'confessed,' were hung irregardless of the arrangements they thought they had made with the prosecution. In addition, mock trials were held at Spandau Prison at all hours of the night and early morning. At these petty inquisitions defendants were mocked, beaten, threatened with torture, and condemned to death, with such pronouncements of execution to be immediately carried out.

Such was the real business of the Nuremberg Trials. The Holocaust myth was fabricated from such tactics in obtaining 'evidence.' That six million Jews did not die in Nazi gas chambers and by firing squads is practically proven ipso facto by the methods which the prosecution used to get such men as S.S. Gen. Otto Ohlendorff and Auschwitz commandant S.S. Gen. Rudolf Hoess to admit to the spurious allegations.

As a final note, let us have a short look at the case of the pathetic S.S. Captain Dieter Wisliceny, who was 'questioned' by the Soviets at their prison in Bratislava in 1946. Wisliceny 'confessed' under Red methods of torture to have carried out a "verbal (oral) order" of Adolf Hitler, given to him by Eichmann via Heinrich Himmler, dated, at least in poor Wisliceny's deranged mind, July, 1941, to the effect that all Russian Jews be liquidated. When in fact the order of July, 1941, had been clearly written out, and was in the hands of the Tribunal, stating that all political (Red) commissars serving with the Soviet Army were to be liquidated. The written order did not mention Jews, but directed its thrust against some 38,000 Communist cadre within the Russian army. That many of these cadre were Jews merely indicates the reason why the order as written had to be expanded by the Soviets into a secret oral addition, falsely confessed by Wisliceny to mean the extermination of Russian Jews. With all of Wisliceny's tortured, perjured testimony, he did not succeed in saving himself from the gallows. The Communists hanged him, as they hung Hoess, because their star witnesses had to be silenced before they came to their senses and denied all the ridiculous charges of planned genocide.

Americans living today would do well to review the Nuremberg Trials, if only to gauge the great danger the Western World is in because of such inquisitions having taken place nearly thirty-five years ago. The Nuremberg Trials, like the Eichmann Trial, and the denaturalization trials of European-Americans charged with 'war crimes,' are but a symptom of a greater evil, that being the insidious collapse of Western values.

One day very soon, unless we act, such rotten Tribunals will be set up in America under the Genocide Treaty to 'try' White-Christian patriots. May God prevent it. He has given this people the brains and the will to save itself: let us do it! □

THE TALMUD

containing the Midrashim, the Cabbala, the Rabbinical-ana, Proverbial Sayings and Traditions. 395 pages, softcover, $20. plus $2. for post. & hndlg. Order from: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By H.S., Wisconsin

The Germans and the Jews are the opposite ends, or poles, of what we commonly call "Western Civilization." Or perhaps it were better if we spoke of "Germanity" and "Judaism" since there are many Germans (by now thoroughly brainwashed) who are more Jewish than the Jews, and there are many Jews who care little for Judaism and who also seem to have lost that subconscious drive (toward Jewish coagulation) that is so dangerous to us.

But Judaism is our main enemy.

Blacks and other brown races are being used by the Jews to undermine our strength, and because of this we have to take a strong stance against their constant encroachment. We ought to realize that without the Jews the Blacks count little (as a political force), and once a general segregation is accomplished, there is no reason why we can't help them to help themselves. Alone, they will be a race of irresponsible children (but with exceptions!).

The current events in Lebanon have already accomplished what we dared not to hope as early as this spring: Jewish power and influence in the United States has crossed the rubicon. From now on it will go downward with an ever-increasing acceleration. In W.W.II Moscow (in 1941), not Stalingrad, was the turning point for Germany, and just as the German still seemed to grow after Moscow, so we'll now see a limited expansion of Jewish power after Beirut. But the new trend is irreversible, of that I am certain. We can safely assume that Jewish leadership (both here and in Israel) will do everything wrong once they realize that their quest for absolute world power has failed (some little Jews know that already instinctively, but they don't count).

Ways have to be found so that in the political battles to come we will have practically unlimited funds ("money") at our disposal. If Jesse Jackson can literally raise tens of millions (we have to give him credit for his talents!), and when even the dumbest South American quickly learns how to milk the American public trough, why should it be so difficult for us? And we'll have the advantage that because of our talents we'll get ten times as much out of every dollar than "the other side."

Judaism fights its battles on two fronts: politically and religiously, depending which is most convenient. We cannot expect to fight such an adversary by political means alone, we also have to use religion as a weapon.

I have long held that the founding of Israel was the greatest mistake the Jews could have made (they have it thanks to Hitler!) but for the first time in modern history they can be attacked on "national" grounds, i.e. as a visible and recognizable enemy. Obviously "anti-Israelitism" will take the place of anti-Semitism (whatever that means) and there will be no antidote.

I personally have never doubted for one moment that in the end we shall win. I had this conviction ever since 1945. Now I say with equal conviction that the tide has turned in our favor. May we make the best of it.

Now is the time to put on paper what kind of new world we envision. We must face the reality that the present order—in both East and West—is fast "self-destructing." But the masses want hope, they want something positive to look forward to, they want leadership. And it can come only from us!

What a pity we do not already have the funds (and the "secret" places) where the elite of the right (of all white nations) can meet and contemplate the future. A thousand questions have to be answered: What kind of political system can ensure relative peace for a millenium and yet guarantee the greatest possible freedom for the individual? What kind of economic system is best for a healthy society, preserves the spirit of free enterprise, assures steady employment for all of those who want and need it, and also safeguards the fragile eco-system of our earth? What kind of system ensures a renaissance of our culture?

And more questions: Shall we search out and put to trial (for decades to come) all those who so hypocratically transgressed against all professed ideals of the so-called free nations? (I say yes!). If yes, what kind of punishment shall be meted out? (I have long held that the punishment shall fit the crime; i.e. a federal judge who forced little white school children to be bused into black schools ought to be sentenced to live out the rest of his life inside the deepest black ghetto—after a hefty cut in his pension). And what shall be done about the race situation in general? I fear that not even the most benevolent amongst us dare to stand in front of the (mostly innocent) Jewish masses "when things get rough," and that particular problem may be solved by the enraged mobs of a leadershipless American majority. (I personally wish that we could put all Jewish leaders on trial). But what about the Blacks, the Mexicans and the non-Japanese Asians? I doubt that a forced repatriation of American Blacks to Africa is possible even if by then the African continent might be emptied of the black multitudes through inevitable mass starvation. It is likely that some of the American states will have to be set aside as black reservations or whatever one might call it. There then Jesse Jackson and the likes could really show us how able they are. And the Mexicans? Perhaps one has to return So. California to them, and put most of'em there.

The decline of empires is usually accompanied by fragmentation. The American empire is no exception, even though it never was proclaimed an empire. To ease our conscience, we Whites can accept the fact that it were the Jews, the Blacks and some of the other minorities who really started this disintegration of America. Actually it is a pity, there was no reason why this nation's current political system could not have lasted a few hundred more years. But that is already like crying over spilt milk: The system itself assures that the current leadership (establishment) will be unable to reverse the trend. Democracy as we know it guarantees that only the mediocre and the corruptible get at the helm of power. How fast will America self-destruct? You'll be surprised by the speed with which everything will go downhill. Jewish frenzy will play its part. The more money Israel needs, the more all the screws squeezing us innocents will get tightened. I am not only speaking of tax money. Did you read that Begin rec'd either 100 or 200 million dollars on his recent visit as a gift by the American Jewish leadership? That money had to come from somewhere. Don't think that Mrs. Blumenstein sold some of her jewels; it was easier to screw the goyim.

Whatever WE shall do, we must remain aloof from the internecine fights occasionally wreaking havoc amongst the rightists. I have no doubt that eventually a true leadership arises and that this then will automatically be supported by most. In this matter we can learn much from the Germany of the 1920's and early 1930's.

STAY AWAKE—KEEP INFORMED—HAVE FAITH.

"WHICH WAY WESTERN MAN?"

by William Gayley Simpson

For Race Intellectuals!

From Nietzsche to Modern Politics
Applied Philosophy for Racial Living Today!!

CHAPTERS:
Marriage — Family — Race Difference
How Communism Works
With Zionism
An Encyclopedia of knowledge upon which a movement can be built.

758 PAGES
$8 PER COPY

Plus $1.00 for postage and handling

Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
REEDY, WEST VIRGINIA 25270

SOME EMBARRASSING REMINDERS

By Allan Callahan

One of the commonest charges of 'Hitler Haters' is that the German leader dominated smaller countries and violated their sovereignty. These accusations usually come from advocates of democracy, but the only way they can make them without looking like hypocrites is to maintain that regimes practising democracy have never done any such things themselves. And this these advocates cannot do. We need only to look at the record of some of our own regimes right here in America. Various democratic governments of the past indulged in intervention and dictation in the affairs of many nations. Some examples are Mexico, Columbia, Chile, Cuba, Hawaii, Japan, China, Samoa, Siam, and Haiti. Sometimes Washington landed Marines and set up police forces; at other times they controlled elections and censored the press of other nations. They also selected officials, collected duties and even forced some countries to take American loans. Possibly, the democratic officials who were responsible for these things did not think the governments of the aforementioned countries had sense enough to run their own affairs, but if this be true, it is just one more contradiction in democratic philosophy, because this philosophy is always advocating "self-determination" and "freedom" for all peoples, even if they wear bones through their noses and roast missionaries for dinner.

Haiti affords an interesting example of democratic intervention on the part of the U.S. On June 14, 1914, France and Germany seemed about ready to seize the assets of the Haitian National Bank for non-payment of debts. Washington quickly sent the Marines in to grab the money for itself. This was called a "financial protectorate," even though the Haitians had said they didn't want protection. Washington also forced them to select a president of its own choice; a man who agreed to approve any treaty the U.S. might send him for signature. Our officials drafted a constitution for Haiti. The Haitian Assembly protested, so Washington dismissed the Assembly and forced the constitution upon the republic. When the people tried to revolt, they were quickly put down by the American Marines.

Woodrow Wilson was a pillar of democracy. In 1913, Victoriano Huerta proclaimed himself President of Mexico, but Wilson declared him a dictator, and allowed Huerta's chief rival, Carranza, to be armed. Wilson announced to the world that Huerta must go. When some American Marines landed at Tampico to buy gasoline, they were jailed by one of Huerta's commanders. American Admiral Mayo demanded their release, an apology, and a salute to the American flag. Huerta released the Marines, and apologized, but refused to salute the American flag, saying he couldn't do that as long as America refused to recognize him as President. Wilson backed up Mayo and American Marines were landed at Veracruz. 19 Americans and 126 Mexicans died before the "flag incident" was settled.

It was the same in many other places. American warships cruised hither and yon, bombarding foreign ports at will, and sending landing parties ashore whenever it was deemed desirable. One after another, democratic regimes in the U.S. have been "waging peace" around the world and "stopping aggression." They are, it has been aptly said, engaging in "perpetual war for perpetual peace." This is not to say that every single one of America's foreign military actions has been wrong; of course not. I simply want to point out how ridiculous it is for advocates of democracy to strike a posture of self-righteousness, and especially to criticize Hitler for doing something that their own regimes have been guilty of many more times over. Whatever Hitler did, he did for a good reason, but some of the foreign military actions engaged in by our "peace loving" democracy were for trivial causes, or were done only for the interests of Big Money. □

$4.00 Please add 10% for postage and handling! $3.00
For a sample copy of our monthly publication, The Liberty Bell, a copy of our extensive list of 'Eye-Openers,' and several revealing reprints, send $2. to: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly— basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20. or $100 or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. Postage stamps, in any denomination, and printing paper and supplies (please write for specifics) are always needed and will be gratefully accepted.

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to patriots who do not yet know about what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, stickers and reprints. Order extra copies of The Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends and neighbors, urging them to subscribe to our publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue.

Pass along your copy of The Liberty Bell and copies of reprints you obtained from us to friends or acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

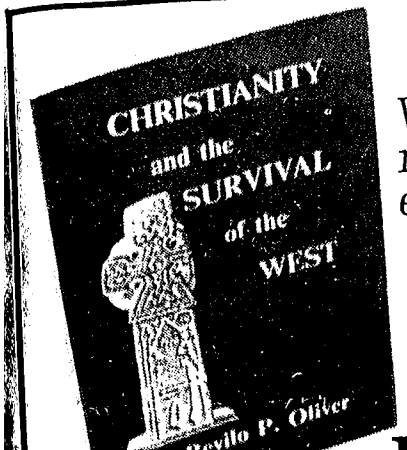
Carry on the fight to free America and the world from alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit, You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

a. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

b. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY!
HELP FREE AMERICA FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!

Those who WILL NOT read
Have no advantage over
Those who CANNOT read



Will the end of our religion mean the end of our race?

A Great Iconoclast Details the Causes and Consequences of the Religious Disintegration of Western Man

Quality paperback, 84 pp. — $4.00 plus 65 cents for postage & handling
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

FOR MY LEGIONARIES

Salut fe cei ce murg spre mirea biruinta legionara. Corneliu Z. Codreanu 1935

The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

THE ANTI-HUMANS by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270. today!

ATTENTION PAMPHLETEERS!
Here are two useful stamps for you!

$4.50 per stamp
$0.50 postage

COMMUNISM IS JEWISH!

Order from: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270

The Liberty Bell

SINGLE COPY $1.75

'POPULISM' and 'ELITISM'

PART II
page 13

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

SUPERSTITION AND GULLIBILITY
The Achilles Heel of the White Race, page 1
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, page 7
GULLIBILITY RATING QUIZ, page 56
IN THE NAME OF THE WHITE RACE
A Declaration of Independence from Jewish Tyranny, page 59

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

VOL. 10 — NO. 2 ISSN 0145-7667 OCTOBER 1982

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

Reprinted with the author's permission from The White Man's Bible, Copyright 1981, by Ben Klassen.

SUPERSTITION AND GULLIBILITY

THE ACHILLES HEEL OF THE WHITE RACE

Strange Weakness of the White Race. Over the last two thousand years, two negative characteristics in the minds of the White Race have perhaps caused it more damage than any other. These two defects are its vulnerability to (a) superstition, and (b) gullibility. Not that the White Race is more susceptible to those flaws of the mind than the mud races. Not at all. It is even probably less so, but the consequences of these shortcomings for the highly advanced White Race have been a thousand times more disastrous than for the mud peoples. These two childish and stupid characteristics are especially strange and humiliating for the noble White Race, whose mental, cultural, creative and productive capabilities have proven so far superior to those of any and all the mud races, there is no comparison.

What is superstition? What is gullibility? Are they interrelated?

Gullibility Comes First. Taking the last question first, we find that in order to be superstitious it is to be gullible per se. However, a person can be gullible in certain other areas without being superstitious.

The World of Spooks. Superstition basically is believing in a supernatural "world," that is, a world outside of Nature and its laws. Primarily these beliefs revolve around a "world" of spirits, ghosts and spooks, which mean basically the same thing, and as a term of derision we will refer to this whole mess of spirits and ghosts as "spooks." This world of spooks is further expanded into good guys and bad guys; into "holy" ghosts, gods, goddesses, angels, seraphins; and the "bad" spooks, lucifers, witches, demons, devils, and a host of other lesser spooks. The field of demonology is a whole subject unto itself about which whole volumes of idiotic books have been written. Needless to say, no one except perhaps a refugee from a nut-house has ever seen a "demon." As far as the gods in this spook world are concerned, certain authors have catalogued as many as 30,000 individual gods that a superstitious and gullible mankind has concocted, worshipped, and foolishly believed in, over the milleniums.

A Concocted, Unreal World. Evidently this "second world" is a world that has its own set of jumbled laws reserved for the spooks and spirits. Obviously, they contradict and defy Nature's Laws. Nobody seems to have bothered to define under what kind of laws these spooks operate, and anything goes, it seems. Like in all fairy tales, these spooks can pull whatever "miracles" out of a hat that an over-active imagination can conceive. They apparently exist in a world apart from the real universe, apart from the real world.

Not a Shred of Evidence. The most incredible fact about this whole spook world of gods, demons, angels, and what have you, is that there is not a shred of evidence to substantiate their existence, except as fantasies in the minds of the superstitious and gullible.

Victims of Gullibility. The latter sentence pretty well explains the meaning of gullibility, as if it needed any explaining. Gullibility, essentially, is believing, having faith in something that isn't so, and furthermore, something for which there is no evidence, or at least insufficient evidence to warrant our credibility. Yet strange as it may seem, in today's modern and scientific world, neither gullibility nor superstition has abated much over that of the Dark Ages when these twin aberrations of the mind ran rampant.

Intelligent Not Immune. Nor are gullibility and superstition the exclusive domain of the stupid and uneducated, although there is a strong relationship to the "poor in spirit." Christians, who will pity the "poor, deluded" Hindu for believing cows are holy, will themselves hold fast and unquestioning to their "faith." And basically their faith consists of their belief in their own brand of spooks, "holy ghosts" and demons. They will swear on the "holy" bible and their belief in all the ludicrous stories of their favorite spooks in the sky, of "pie-in-the-sky-when-you-die," or of how you will "fry-in-the-sky-when-you-die," and all the rest of this silly nonsense. Strangely enough, even some otherwise intelligent men and women fall prey to this kind of superstition, even brag about how great and wonderful is their "deep and abiding faith" in this silly nonsense, when they should know better.

Unfounded "Faith" No Virtue. So let us examine the word "faith" in its inherent essentials. Webster has a number of definitions. The one most cogent to our discourse is the one that describes "Faith: a firm or unquestioning belief in something for which there is no proof." That pretty well says it all, but we will tie it down further. Since "proof" is really a debatable conclusion and exists (like beauty) only in the eyes of the beholder, we would say that faith is having a firm or unquestioning belief in something for which there is little or no meaningful evidence, and therefore, neither deserves or warrants our acceptance. For instance, there is good and sufficient evidence to believe that two and two makes four. There is no evidence to believe it makes seventeen. Therefore, a person coming to the conclusion that two and two makes four arrives at a rational conclusion. A person "perferring to believe" as a "matter of faith" that it makes seventeen is irrational and a person believing two and two makes seventeen because he was told to believe it by his priest is both gullible and irrational.

Fertile Field for Con-Men. Around these miserable flaws of the human mind—superstition and gullibility—have been built vast empires and unholy superstructures called religions that have plagued the human race since the dawn of history. It is partially understandable that the primitive savage, being dumb, ignorant and devoid of understanding and whose reasoning powers were extremely limited, would make bumbling attempts to explain the phenomena of Nature, phenomena he could not understand. Since he had neither accumulated sufficient facts, nor had the intelligence to properly interpret and correlate what little semblance of facts he had, he took short-cuts to explain the phenomena of the world around him. Through fear of the unknown, because of his lack of reason and understanding, because he was naturally superstitious, primitive man conceived of gods and spirits about him that he believed controlled events and controlled his destiny.

30,000 Spooks. The primitive savage invented a god or spirit or spook for all the whims of Nature. There were rain spirits, lightning gods, sea gods, spirits in waterfalls, gods of war, gods of fertility—gods—spooks and spirits—of which at least 30,000 have been catalogued by some enterprising souls. The fertility of the human mind to conjure up spooks is almost endless and has been one of his most enduring and abiding passions over the ages.

Became Slave to his Own Concoctions. Unfortunately for mankind, the primitive savage also believed that these spooks had arbitrary, capricious and unlimited control over his welfare and destiny. Inevitably the next development was that through fear and awe of these spooks—spooks he himself had created in his own mind, he began to supplicate to these imaginary spooks. He tried to flatter them, to talk to them, to appease them, to kow-tow to them, pray to them and in general, let his obsession with them dominate his life. Some primitive societies, (and some not so primitive) became so obsessed with the fear and appeasement of their innate spooks, that they became the main preoccupation of their thoughts, time and energies.

Organized Swindle. Unfortunately and inevitably, there are always those scoundrels who were shrewd enough to see through the hoax of the spooks and take advantage of the situation. As a result, organized religion developed, manned by a tightly organized priesthood who were now in a position to amplify their subjects' fear of the mysterious spooks, perpetuate such superstitions, and thereby organize, control and fleece their hapless victims.

Christianity the Biggest Swindle of all for White Race. Basically, this is the development of the "Spooks in the Sky" swindle to this very day. It holds true not only of the savage Fiji Islanders of today, but equally so of the Christian religion. Unfortunately, the latter is the basic religion of the White Race today, fractured and splintered as that religion may be.

The Jews had a Purpose. It is especially hard to believe that the White Race, being as intelligent and advanced as it is, that it would still be enmeshed in the same superstitious belief in the spook world as are the most primitive savages of today, or as were our aborigine ancestors of past milleniums. It is even more unfortunate for the White man that this control over his mind through belief in spooks should be foisted upon him by his mortal enemies, the treacherous Jew. Yes, it was the eternal parasite upon the back of mankind, the Jew, who wrote the White Man's so called "Holy Book," invented his religion for him, disseminated and propagated it first among the Romans, and now has poisoned the White Man's mind with this primitive, poisonous superstition in order to control his mind, control his destiny, and to destroy the great White Race itself. As we have shown in the previous chapter, the Jew Marcus Eli Ravage even brags about it.

More than 20 Billion Dollars per year to Perpetuate this Swindle. How ironic! How tragic! How stupid of us to succumb to this silly spooks-in-the-sky story, for the perpetuation of which the White Race is fleeced to the tune of more than 20 billion dollars a year in the United States alone. This does not include the indirect damage done to us in impairing our ability to think straight, the damage done in loss of time spent in these Jewish houses of spook worship called churches, in damage done in diverting us from our main purpose in life—the survival, expansion and advancement of our own race—and promoting our own best interests.

* * * * *

Christianity a relatively Recent Affliction. In keeping the Christian religion in its proper perspective, we must first of all remember that the White Race had created civilization long before Christianity ever came along. The great (White) Egyptian civilization had existed fully three thousand years before Christianity raised its ugly head. In fact by the time of the appearance of Christianity the Egyptians were well on their way to disintegration because they had allowed their gene pool to become poisoned by mixing with the black Nubians to the south.

The Phoenician civilization, the Persian, the Mycenean, the Greek and the great Roman civilization, all White, all flourished long before Christianity intruded on their pagan beauty. Christianity certainly did not create civilization, but rather pulled it down and disintegrated it into that long and wretched period known as the Dark Ages.

The White Race long preceded civilization. The second thing we must remember is that the White Race had established itself biologically as a racial entity not only thousands, but tens of thousands of years before it was ever civilized. And this is the crux of the matter: we, the White Race, were a biological entity—We were the White Race—long before either civilization or Christianity appeared on the face of this planet. And that, my dear White Racial Comrades, is the most important, the most precious, the most enduring fact of our existence.

* * * * *

Disease of the Mind. We have already told the story elsewhere in this book of how the Jews invented Christianity and foisted it on the Romans in order to destroy them. It is the purpose of this chapter to show what part superstition and gullibility have played in helping the Jew bring about this disease of the mind called Christianity. It is our further purpose to make our White Racial Comrades aware of the fact that intelligent as they may be, they are not immune from this historical flaw that has plagued mankind from the primitive savage to the advanced civilization of the White Man today.

Therefore, let us realize that the "spooks-in-the-sky" story as presented by Christianity, Mormonism, or any other religion, is a vicious hoax and fraud; that it is a primitive throw-back to the superstitions of our savage ancestors; that it is a dangerous affliction of the mind.

Must draw a Distinct Line. Let us get our thinking crystal clear and distinguish between reality and fantasy. Let us draw a sharp, distinct line between the real world and the world of fantasy. It is this ability to distinguish between reality and fantasy that distinguishes sane, rational people from the insane. Many inmates of insane asylums once might have been highly intelligent people. But once their rationality has broken down to where they no longer know the difference between what is real and what are daydreams, fantasies, illusions, nightmares, spirits, spooks phantoms and other figments of the imagination, then they are insane.

When we speak of the insane, we must realize that there are different degrees and that some people are strangely insane only in certain areas. We must also distinguish between those people who have normal intelligence or better, and those who were born idiots or imbeciles in the first place. We are not here concerned with the latter, for whom there never was any hope or future in the first place. We are concerned about our White Racial Comrades who have an abundance of intelligence but through the Spookcraft religions (such as Christianity) have had their minds warped to where they cannot distinguish between the real world and the world of fantasy (spooks-in-the-sky).

Mass Insanity. We CREATORS categorically deem the "spooks-in-the-sky" story as crazy and unreal, and Christianity, per se, as mass insanity, a wholesale swindle.

Millions of Fictitious Claims that Can't be Disproved. To this charge our Christianized victims will throw this challenge back at us: you can't prove that there aren't any Holy Ghosts in the sky, that there isn't a god, or a heaven or a hell, or that Jesus Christ didn't live on earth, was crucified, arose from the dead, was resurrected, went back to heaven, etc.

Burden of Proof on Party Affirming. To which we CREATORS reply: we don't have to prove that your claims, your dream world, is pure fantasy. We don't have to prove that the world of spooks, ghosts and demons doesn't exist. If it exists, the burden of proof is upon you, and in five thousand years that the human race has been building civilization, you have not produced one shred of proof that any court of law would consider valid evidence for the existence of a spook world. Courts of law (and rational people) have realized the core of the argument that the burden of proof is on the party affirming (that is, making the claim) not the party denying. For example, if somebody accuses you of being a sexual deviate, it is up to the party affirming (making the claim) to show evidence, rather than you to go to great lengths to prove their claim isn't so. Even if you did go to great lengths of character testimony, etc., you still couldn't prove their charge was false. On their part they have presented no evidence, only made a claim. Why should you be put to the burden of trying to disprove their claim? Isn't it more logical that before any claim needs to be even considered, much less be disproven, that the party making the claim should first present meaningful evidence to substantiate their claim?

Romans recognized this Principle 2400 years ago. Yes, every honest court in the world agrees on this self-evident premise. The burden of the proof is on the party affirming (making the claim) not the party denying. So logical and self-evident is this principle that the early Romans, who were practical, intelligent and realistic, as early as 450 B.C. imbedded this principle in their basic code of laws. The Twelve Tables, the basis of Roman law for a thousand years, said in part: the burden of proof is on the party affirming, not the party denying. That principle is still as sound today as it was over twenty-four centuries ago when the Romans laid it down as a basis of law and common sense.

Belief Meaningless Without Evidence. Applying this principle to the crowd that claims there are spooks in the skies, it is up to them to provide hard evidence, rather than make a wild claim, and challenge us to "disprove" it. When we CREATORS face these pie-in-the-sky Christians with the logic that it is not up to us to disprove their hocus-pocus claims about their spooks in the sky but up to them to present hard, meaningful proof, they then retreat to a new line of defense. Their argument then goes something like this: I can believe what I want to, and you can believe what you want to.

Distinguishing between Reality and Fantasy. True. We are not denying anybody their right to believe in anything they want to. They can indulge in any fantasy about spooks in the sky if they see fit. On the other hand, if we think they have overstepped the bounds of sanity in their obsession about the non-existent spooks in the sky, we are going to pass judgment on them, the same way we would about any other inmate in a nut-house who unfortunately can no longer distinguish between reality and his world of fantasy. And this is the real dividing line between the sane and the insane. There are any number of people in asylums who have, or had at one time, a high intelligence. The main derangement of their mind is that they can no longer distinguish between reality and fantasy. And this is exactly the case with the spook-loving Christians. They babble about their Super-Spook in the sky, implore him to grant them special favors, protect them from evil, save their souls from the (also imaginary) fiery pit, pray and hold long (one way) conversations with their imaginary spook (or spooks) in the sky when they would get equivalent response if they were talking to a hot rock.

Sanity—Attuned to Reality. We CREATORS take the position that

continued on page 55

Letters to the Editor

Dear George: 27 August 1982

My renewal will be sent in on or around 9/9/82. Sorry it's late. At that time, too, I hope to be ordering some new books as well.

Things really seemed to be heating up in Lebanon there for a while. It looks as if Reagan finally got some backbone, yelling at Begin like that! There just may be some hope for the old world yet! Anyway, nobody in his right mind will look at the Yids and their "state" in the same way again, after their campaign of genocide against Lebanese children. The word is out that anti-Semitic activity has stepped up all over the world (especially in France and even in Jew York), and it's only a matter of time now—just a matter of time.

The resurgence of interest in Adolf Hitler and the Movement is staggering! At the time of the Falkland crisis, a local news station did a whole show on it and word was brought up of the possibility that the whole thing was a 4th Reich-backed ploy (long before the scandal sheets began that nonsense of Hitler's spirit directing the invasion!). The show made mention of the fact that "hundreds" of key Nazis and offspring of Nazis reside in Argentina, and that "when the British fleet reached the Falklands, would they be meeting a new foe—or an old one? Much ado was made about the possibility that the predominantly Germanic Argentina may have built V1 and V2 rockets, and perhaps even had the "Bomb." Nothing came of it (unfortunately!), but it perked up interest in the Fuehrer all over again.

No doubt you saw "Inside the Third Reich" back in May. Derek Jacobi, a British JEW, portraying Hitler? As the opposition might say—oh vey! When the hell are the networks going to get these things right? In the face of a lot of anti-Semitic uprisings over Beirut, the Jewsmedia has begun to "counter" rising Nazi interest. One recent attempt is to run, on educational TV and on independent networks, the oft-shown "Genocide" for-hour show from "World at War." Another ploy is to re-run old Hollywood, anti-Nazi propaganda films. Perhaps you have seen some of these. PBS recently in our area ran such Jew-made gems as "Underground" (1942), "Hitler's Children" (1942), "Hitler's Madman" (1943), and "The Master Race" (1944). Riddled with inaccuracies and the Hollywood "true-to-life" conception of what the Third Reich was like! In my opinion, shows and films like this do more harm to the kike cause then to help it. They attract those of us (like yours truly!) seeking the truth, and their lies only stoke the fires of racial fury. I watch them for a good laugh and to study the techniques of the enemy. PBS would be much more successful if they ran some of OUR films, like "Triumph of the Will"–(now THAT'S entertainment!). They also recently ran interview show taped with Albert Speer before his death, and, while it was riddled with voice-over propaganda against Der Fuehrer, Speer did do some good in blasting such myths as "Was Hitler Gay?", etc.

I have a feeling that the Cause is making great strides, that 1983 may be THE year as far as National Socialist revival goes. Appropriate, ja? After all, it would be the 50th anniversary of the Third Reich's birth! Let's keep our fingers crossed.

Heil Hitler!
C.J., Pennsylvania

* * * * *

Dear George: 28 August 1982

Just a thought to pass on to whomever you may judge an interested candidate.

I recently finished reading "The Passover Plot," by Dr. Hugh J. Schonfield (Yid!). His position is that Jesus planned his own Messiah role according to the messianic expectation of his day and with the help of two Sanhedrin leaders, Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea and the beloved disciple (not John, the son of Zebedee) who prearranged the crucifixion. Schonfield's analysis comes close to an admission of Jewish complicity in creating Christianity, although he tries to steer clear of exposing Jewish purposes for it. Irony of the present is that Jews always pose as Enemies of Christ until the church is in apostasy—then they try to save church and Jesus again. For some reason they feel that their own survival is coincidental with the perpetuation of Christianity. A conunchrum exists here because Christians are obviously Gentiles for Jews. Yet, within this strange vortex is an impossible hypothesis, namely that the Gentiles for Jews try to convert the Jews, which is to say—reform the Jew. In so doing an artificial tension is created. The trick is in conversion, because you must preserve them before you can convert them. Here is the axis around which Jews guaranteed their own security.

Needless to say, there is a bit of hypnotic subtlety in this method. It has worked until recently.

My Best,
R.H., Indiana

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 31 August 1982

Thanks for sending me a copy of "The Liberty Bell," May, 1982. It is certainly interesting if not provocative. It features "The Uses of Religion" by Revilo Oliver and also has several letters to the editor which express disillusionment with religion, especially Christianity. I have to admire Prof. Oliver's erudition and his fearlessness in stating the truth as he sees it.

At the same time, his point of view about Christianity makes me feel sorrow for him and all of like mind. And I say this with sincere compassion, because my own views were fairly similar to his until as recent as July of 1981. Then I discovered with full conviction that God is real and alive and that he has a loving care for each one of us. Without even believing in such a thing, much less seeking it, I had a "born again" experience. And believe me, if one picture is worth a thousand words, one experience is worth millions of words. . . . .

Sincerely,
T.D., M.D., Missouri

* * * * *

Dear George: 1 September 1982

In my last letter to you (being personal) I had erroneously implied that the surname suffix "ing" was one of a typically "kosher ring." I stand corrected, as it is undoubtedly one of the truest and genuinely German surname suffixes there are, and I humbly apologize for that error that was bugging me since the last correspondence. Now it's cleared up, thank you.

Concerning the enclosed book (a gift) [An American Christian Bible], this is certainly MUST-Reading for you and family.

I feel I can best explain or describe it's effect on me and my outlook and views on life and the world as follows.

I was raised 'Catholic' in a strict sense (12 years), and in a typically abhorrent sense, being inimical to my own evaluation of truth and justice, that caused me to become a self-ordained atheist at mid-teenage.

I've held this belief most of my adult life until VERY recently. That 'recently' being when, after I had come in contact with your publications, which occurred last year, 1981, I had the pleasure to read the refreshing analysis of Christianity in the terrific contribution to the Liberty Bell by the Odinist publication of "Can We Still Say God?" This article impressed me to the point of being flabergasted and having ignited a personal-racial spark and glimmer for hope in my being and life.

Upon reading the great Revilo P. Oliver's "On the Uses of Religion," that spark was almost quelched, as I was deeply and intellectually moved (to the point of depression) by that most impressive work. I was exasperated.

But, alas, next came this obscure book from Sovereign Press. The conclusion I have come to may not seem all that impressive, but I shall leave that judgment to all of you personally after you read the second half of the enclosed book. I must proclaim that I have been profoundly influenced by it in my sincere transformation from an Atheist to an Agnostic!!

For the future, (God?) bless you!
P.S., Michigan

* * * * *

Dear George: 2 September 1982

Enclosed are $20 for a subscription to "The Liberty Bell." I previously subscribed to this magazine from June, 1980 to May, 1981. I let my subscription lapse because I thought it was just "hate" literature.

Recently I picked up one of the magazines and started reading again—then I went back and read them all. The articles in your magazine are very thought-provoking.

I couldn't accept some of the things being said about Christianity at first, but now I see that what some of these articles are saying about the roots of Christianity and the Old Testament are absolutely true. How stupid and blind I was—it's like night and day. I can't believe how dumb I was to believe everything I was taught as a child.

I am interested in getting backissues (one of each) of your "eye-opening" magazine, and I would like not only the issues from June 1981 to date, but a copy of each issue prior to May 1980, as far back as they go. Is this possible?

I appreciate your courage in publishing a magazine dedicated to freedom of speech and ideas.

Sincerely,
Mrs. M.M., Massachussetts

* * * * *

Greetings! 4 September 1982

Bob White has decided NOT to have Nord Davis speak at his upcoming seminar and it is just as well as N.D. is in jail in Costa Rica for passing bad checks. They wanted him to leave the country but he refused, so—they jailed him! Ha! I don't want revenge—just justice.

Mrs. J.S., North Carolina

* * * * *

Dear Jew-hating M...F..., 7 September 1982

I have your ad asking to help you expose the big Jewish lie [Our cartoon sticker: "I was gassed six times, no eight time..." —Ed.]. What you should expose is your sch... because that's what you people are, sch...! On second thought I am enclosing a penny for a copy of "The Hoax of the 20th Century." Take the copy and shove it up your ...! Because that's about all it's good for. It's not even good enough to wipe your... Keep up the good work you are doing and, who knows, in time, maybe, somebody will listen to you. Try the zoo, you'll get better results talking to the animals. Please be sure to give my regards to Norman Lincoln Rockwell and Adolf Eichmann. They got gassed six times, no eight times, no ten times.

From A. JEW (F... Y...)
[postmarked Ft. Lauderdale, FL]

* * * * *

Dear George: 7 September 1982

Enclosed is a contribution of $20. By the time you read this, I will have placed copies of "Why are Jews Persecuted for their Religion," "Quotes Without Comment," "Simple Arithmetic vs. the Six Million Myth," "Human Chameleons" in the local public library. I hope you've received some response or I've educated someone.

Honor-Union-Fidelity
M.S., Wisconsin

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 8 September 1982

Enclosed are $25 for the order listed below.

Having read a number of your backissues and formed a rather good opinion on the contents and editorial operation, my opinion and whatever is, "Where have you been all this time?" Thanks for just being! Adolf would be proud, for he started off on the basement floor.

Sincerely yours,
R.H., New York

* * * * *

Dear George: 13 September 1982

Enclosed I am sending you a few dollars for the "Liberty Bell."

I like your magazine and think it's one of the best.

Sincerely,
M.T., New York

* * * * *

"ENEMIES? — WHAT ENEMIES?"

The Catholic and Protestant churches were once the greatest of enemies, and yet they were of the SAME RELIGION: Christianity. The religion known as "christianity" was introduced to Europe by the Jew and half-Jew in order to topple the state of Rome and the culture of Greece. This "new" religion did just that, resulting in the death of some 75 million Europeans and cutting the population of the white race in half. If not for Jew-brought Christianity, the white race would now be as large as the Chinese. However, the past is long gone and should be put aside for a moment.

In the present age, Capitalist and Communist are also "enemies." And yet, like the Catholic and Protestant of days past, these Capitalists and Communists are both of the same thing: they are both believers in the "religion" of MATERIALISM. In other words, their philosophy consists of dividing the people of the world into economic classes. And, of course, both Capitalist and Communist are sworn enemies of "Racism." Is that why Capitalist and Communist are in Africa, Asia, and South America?

Capitalist and Communist, when shopping for a new cause in the world, do not look at the national and racial history of the people they wish to exploit, but rather check out the amount of money to be made from their national resources.

The lifeblood of the C & C twins is composed of generous and illicitly obtained amounts of oil, gold, silver, titanium, chromium, uranium, and other primitive tokens that the Jew bankers base our "world economy" upon. Didn't Hitler trade wheat for machinery, instead of stocks, bonds, gold, diamonds, and silver? International barter instead of international bankers?

The Capitalist and Communist are always tossing around that funny word "democracy." While our women and children cannot walk the streets in safety, we hear this odd promise of "Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness." The same with the Reds when they are stacking up the bodies of women and children. However, the explanation for the word "Democracy" comes from the fact that Capitalist and Communist are always in need of a constant supply of cheap labor, whether "nigger" or "polack." It is thereby easy to see that this talk of Democracy is a front for exploitation and imperialism.

Who were the real anti-Imperialists? Wasn't one of them Hitler who proclaimed "Europe for the Europeans," and who, unlike most modern-day politicians and imperialists, kept his promise? Do you know the real guilt of the "evil Japs?" No—it wasn't the bombing of Pearl Harbor, which looked like a kid playing with firecrackers compared to Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The real guilt of the "evil Japs" was in proclaiming "Asia for the Asian peoples" and threatening Jew Rothschild's Vietnamese rubber plantations and South Sea oil supplies.

Ever wonder why Capitalist and Communist were and are such good friends when it comes to "crushing Fascim?" Why, could it be that Fascism, National Socialism, the ideas of Nietzsche and Schopenhauer, and so on, are representative of a TRUE SOCIALISM, as opposed to the pack of Jewish lies the Yids are peddling as Socialism?

Early nineteenth century socialism was meant to be a revolution against exploitation by the Jew Capitalist. It would have "saved" the peoples of Europe from their miserable existence, but the Jews Marx, Engels, Trotsky, etc., were hired by the pigs of Wall Street, the Houses of Rothschild and Rockefeller to crush that "revolt" during the past and present century. We all know, of course, that 56 of 59 members of the first Soviet were Jews; that Trotsky, the leader of the Red Army, was preaching in Yiddish on the streets of New York City before the Jewish Revolution in Russia began in 1917, etc.

I don't want to give any "Right-Wing" Christian "Conservatives" a heart attack; but the Army of the good ole USA is a greater threat to Europe than the Soviet Army. Why? Because most of the Soviets are white boys, while most members of the US Army are mud people, products of a shlock culture, a "koo-koo" legal and educational system and without any sense of history.

If there is a war between the USA and the USSR over the bastard state Israel, at least the huge, ugly cities in America, which are jam-packed with mud-people, mental and physical cripples and crazies, will finally be removed. Also, the Yiddish jackasses in Moscow will not get their chance to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of their phony revolution.

Who are the real imperialists in this world? Who are the money hungry exploiters of the poor of every nation and race? Right you are: the Jews!

If there is a "Third World War" any survivors of such a conflict will know whom to blame.

Thank you,
S.S., Wisconsin

* * * *

Dear Sir: 18 September 1982

I would like to call the attention of your readers, suffering under the Jewish money monopoly, to what just happened in Mexico. The Mexican banks, like ours, were in the hands of a pack of Jewish shylocks. These creatures were up to their usual tricks. The banks were paying depositors 4.5% and lending the same money out at 88%. The Jews waged a

continued on page 47

'POPULISM' and 'ELITISM'

REVILO P. OLIVER

PART II

1982
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS

Copyright 1982
by Revilo Oliver

Additional copies available from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

PART II

ÉLITISM

'Élitism' is another nonce-word, coined to avoid the ambiguity of 'aristocracy,' which properly denotes rule by the best citizens, a class more numerous than the few who rule in an oligarchy, and selected by some criterion other than mere wealth, which suffices in a plutocracy. An aristocracy may be an hereditarily closed caste, as were the Athenian Eupatridae and the Roman Patricii, or it may be constantly open to recruitment from the lower classes, as were the Roman Optimates and the aristocracies of the various nations of Europe. In the United States, however, propaganda has induced the grossly erroneous notion that European aristocracies were closed castes, dating from the early Middle Ages, whereas in fact the old noble families were continually augmented, and frequently jostled aside, by newcomers on whom the various monarchs bestowed titles and rank as reward for services on the battlefield, in politics and administration, or even in bed. And 'aristocracy' has been further obscured by the verbal juggling that is common in the "social sciences."[1]

Although it is true that, in certain favorable circumstances, small bodies of Nordics have successfully practiced a pure democracy and decisions were made, after discussion, by a majority of the adult citizens,[2] the twaddle of idealists and boobherds should not blind us to the fact that no large organized society, whether of Nordics or of another race, has ever practiced "majority rule" in the sense now given to that

1. I have heard a "political scientist" describe Jefferson's democracy as "aristocratic," because under such a government no man could make money from holding political office, and there would be no loot to stimulate the formation of political parties; offices of any importance would therefore be restricted to men who could afford to hold them, i.e., landowners like Jefferson and Washington. Jeffersonian democracy is, of course, predicated on the assumption that the majority of freeholders will have the good sense to elect to high offices responsible men in whose wisdom and integrity they can reasonably trust.

2. One thinks of Iceland before the trick by which the Christians obtained control; the Vikings who assured the French king's envoy that they had no chief because they were all equal; and the town meetings of colonial New England. One of the most impressive examples of successful self-government is provided by the old assemblies and fueros of the Basques, who are not Nordic but may well be Aryan, although their unique language is not Indo-European.

term, the majority being taken as the majority of the entire population according to the new popular principle of one anthropoid, one vote.[3] That, of course, is sheer moonshine, fit only to entertain children. In the great ochlocracies of the modern world, the Soviet Union and the United States, there is a great deal of gabble about rule by the "majority," i.e., the lowest stratum of the population, but it is obvious to any competent observer that in both countries the actual rule is exercised by a small and tightly-knit gang of thugs, with only the superficial difference between the two countries that in the United States it is still thought expedient to amuse the serfs by letting them choose between a Tweedledum and a Tweedledee in electoral contests that some Americans find almost as exciting as baseball games. Some aficionados of the electoral sport even entertain hopes that their favorite player means what he says and will, if elected, be able to effect some desired political change not sanctioned by the actual rulers; the successful candidate's fans are invariably disappointed, usually blame him for not having done the impossible, and shift their enthusiasm in the next game to another pitcher of woo. In the Soviet Union, such wasteful entertainments are unnecessary, since the proletariat is simply told what it must want.

Every attempt to institute rule by a numerical majority of a large population, even if honestly intended by its promoters, ineluctably results in rule by organized crime. Men who think seriously about the problem of governing an organized society differ in their estimate of which method of selecting a governing minority is likely to be least detrimental to the state, but agree that ochlocracy, although currently fashionable, is certain to be

3. The most famous and nearly perfect example of democracy known to history was that of ancient Athens, where the right to vote on governmental policies was extended to all male citizens over the age of eighteen; these formed about 10% of the total population, which included, of course, women, children, metics (resident aliens), and slaves. This 10% was, however, too large a number for a viable state, since a majority of the 10% was easily led into folly by unscrupulous demagogues. In the opinion of one of the most profound and judicious of all historians, Thucydides, Athens was best governed during the period in which the vote was restricted to less than 1.3% of the population; this gave a body of voters small enough to avert demagoguery and large enough to avert oligarchy and factional rule. Democracy is probably impossible without a basis in slavery or the equivalent, if the population is not very small, but it is noteworthy that even with slavery and a franchise restricted to 10% of a population that had the highest known level of intelligence, Athenian democracy destroyed itself in less than a century. On the percentage of the population that could vote under Athenian democracy, see Professor W.R. Agard's What Democracy Meant to the Greeks (Chapel Hill, North Carolina, 1942).

disastrous.

The idea of an 'intellectual aristocracy' goes back to Plato, who wished to create a caste of Phylakes ("Guardians"), persons of verified intellectual and moral superiority, to whom the government of a just and viable state should be entrusted. The Platonic proposal has exercised political philosophers ever since, and it is represented at present by the notion of an élite, a more or less defined group of individuals identified by their education and talents, who, it is assumed, will informally influence and direct a society without being officially identified as the actual rulers. In theory, at least, 'élitism' is compatible with almost any formal political organization, from an autocracy to a democracy. In practice, however, it seems always associated with some form of democratic theory.

When a self-constituted élite is not content with writing charming or eloquent essays and tries to influence political events, it almost inevitably becomes conspiratorial, and it usually becomes both hypocritical and vulnerable. Infatuated with its own sapience, a conspiratorial élite always risks penetration and capture by a more subtle and ruthless conspiracy, so that it becomes, in the end, a mere tool and, despite the intelligence of its members, becomes comparable to the squalid band of stupid and ignorant twerps and misfits who used to call themselves an intelligentsia and chatter Marxist drivel about the "workers," but were useful to their Communist trainers, who regarded them with scarcely concealed contempt.

A socially respectable and well-educated élite can always attract satellites who, charmed by manners and rhetoric, are content to follow the lead of the inner circle uncritically and even enthusiastically. It can thus impose, for a time at least, on men of some discernment. Thomas Jefferson, for example, seems never to have suspected the inner workings of the French Revolution, although he, who had succeeded Franklin as the American Minister in Paris, witnessed the beginnings of that catastrophe. Influenced by his French friends, including the inept Marquis de La Fayette, he did not look behind the façade that pleased them. When he reported the taking of the Bastille on 14 July 1789, he did note that "It was remarkable that not only the Invalides themselves made no opposition, but that a body of five thousand foreign troops [probably five times as numerous as the mutineers!], encamped within four hundred yards, never stirred." And he marvelled that the mob, "almost in an instant," took the Bastille, "a fortification of infinite strength," and that "How they [the mob] got in, has, as yet, been impossible of discovery." But Jefferson was content to marvel at seeming miracles, evidently unaware of the kind of thinking that brought them about. Chamfort, who was one of the directors of the attack on the Bastille, is now chiefly remembered for his well-known aphorisms: "It is a safe bet that every opinion held by the public, every accepted norm, is sheer foolishness, inasmuch as it has suited the majority." And, "A nation is a big herd that thinks only of grazing, so that shepherds with good sheepdogs can drive it whithersoever they will." That wisdom, needless to say, was only for the inner circle of the élite. For the big herd, Chamfort produced ream after ream of rhetoric about égalité and the "sovereign people" and their inalienable "rights."

Chamfort, like his friend, the Comte de Mirabeau, whom he often served as ghost-writer and even ghost-thinker, was a member of the élite that was financed by the Duc d'Orléans, whose mad ambitions they probably stimulated for purposes of their own. We should, I think, give Chamfort and most of his fellow conspirators the benefit of the doubt: they probably did believe that their scintillating intellects were driving the big herd to greener pastures. By the time of his ghastly suicide, Chamfort, who was an intelligent man, had doubtless perceived that, despite their brilliance and subtlety, their plans had, in the end, proved to be little better in practice than an "opinion held by the public." It would be interesting to know, however, what explanation Chamfort gave himself as he lay dying, day after day, having escaped the guillotine by a far more agonizing death. Did he believe that he and his fellows had been like the Sorcerer's Apprentice, who rashly called up infernal powers he could not control? Or did he guess that they had schemed and labored only to clear the way for more cunning and practical conspirators, who used them and accorded them no more respect than they gave to the doltish majority?

It is extremely gratifying to have a high-voltage mind and achieve membership in an élite that is going to make history, especially if most of one's fellows mean well and are conspiring for High Ideals. The only drawback is that the self-appointed shepherds are likely to find eventually that they were only sheepdogs and herded the flock toward a destination of which they knew nothing.

BRITAIN'S ÉLITE

We now have before us the highly significant and extremely instructive record of an élite that attained a very large measure of control over the British Empire and may thus have been the decisive force in the history of the world during the half century that ended in 1945. This record is set forth in detail in the recently published work of the late Professor Carroll Quigley, The Anglo-American Establishment.[4]

Carroll Quigley, who died in 1977 at the age of sixty-seven, was a learned and highly intelligent man, the author of one of the more considerable attempts to revise Spengler's historionomy. A reader of The Evolution of Civilizations, an Introduction to Historical Analysis (New York, 1961, may reject many of the conclusions, but cannot doubt the quality of the author's mind. His best-known work is the long and elaborate Tragedy and Hope, A History of the World in Our Time (New York, 1966).[5] I cannot here undertake to comment on the 1360 pages of that massive tome, and I shall only remark that while it does not contradict what is said in The Anglo-American Establishment, it mentions the subject of that book only in passing and in contexts that minimize its importance. That is significant. Quigley evidently believed in 1966 that the conclusions of his earlier work could not pass the clandestine censorship that determines what can be published commercially in the United States.[6]

4. Pp. xi + 354. New York, Books in Focus, P.O. Box 3481, Grand Central Station. $20.00. On the dust jacket, a small American flag, inverted and reversed, appears as a patch on the Union Jack. This, joined to the title, may give at first sight the erroneous impression that Quigley's book is part of the recent flurry of silly diatribes that identify the British Secret Service as the directors of a vast conspiracy to destroy civilization and bring the United States "back under the heel (!) of the British crown."

5. Available from Liberty Bell Publications, $25.00 + 10%. The book was first published by Macmillan in 1966. According to the Conspiracy Digest (a small quarterly published in Dearborn, Michigan), Summer 1976, Quigley accused his publisher of having virtually suppressed his book, which was reprinted with his permission by the Angriff Press, Hollywood, California, in 1974. Cleon Skousen, who has written a number of books that give a Jewish twist to Mormon theology and also a denunciation of Communism, published a 144-page "review" of Quigley's book under the title, The Naked Capitalist (Salt Lake City, 1971). According to the Conspiracy Digest, Fall 1976, Quigley, shortly before his death, sued Skousen, asking damages for statements made in the "review," which he considered defamatory. Quigley's death excited rumors that he "knew too much," but, so far as I know, there are no grounds for the sinister implication.

6. This obviously makes one wonder to what extent Tragedy and Hope was tailored to suit the market. I see nothing in it that is inconsistent with what Quigley says in the other works, allowing for his silence on matters that it would have been indiscreet to mention. I am a little puzzled, however. As I shall point out immediately below, there was an obvious reason why the book completed in 1949 could not find a publisher at that time, but I cannot see why our rulers should have wished to suppress Tragedy and Hope. Although the book contains a few statements of fact

Although it is now first published posthumously, The Anglo-American Establishment was completed in 1949 and never subsequently revised by its author, so that the reader must constantly remember when he sees references to "now" or "at present," he must understand them to mean "early in 1949" and to refer to a situation that now lies far in the past. According to a prefatory note by the present publisher, Quigley's work was not made public in 1949 because he could not find a publisher who would bring out a book that roundly and bluntly described a conspiracy, a conspiracy that was secret, powerful, and, for a time, highly successful. If we cast our minds back to 1949, we will see why it was then necessary to protect the blithe complacency of the well-trained American boobs, who had been taught that such events as the French Revolution, the Jewish capture of Russia in 1918, and the Roosevelt Revolution in the United States just happened in the course of nature, as spontaneously and as innocently as the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la.

The conspiracy that Quigley describes was initiated by Cecil Rhodes but soon dominated by Lord Milner, so that Quigley calls it the "Milner Group." And for the benefit of Americans who cherish their prevalent illusions about the "British Aristocracy,"[7] we must note that Milner owed nothing to his that were sensationally exploited by Skousen, these deal chiefly with the coöperation between the Communists and the lords of international finance; most of these facts were matters of public record, and none was in the least astonishing to competent observers, while they served to commend and validate the book to readers who were astonished. The book as a whole is a learned endorsement of all the hokum that is continually administered to American serfs: wicked Senator McCarthy, who persecuted sweet innocents; wicked Hitler, who exterminated millions of God's People before they crawled into the United States; wicked "Nazis," who are psychotic destroyers of everything nice; wicked "radical Right," pathological liars who are so deficient in Christian love they don't want to kill "Fascists"; and so on ad nauseam. Such bunkum purveyed by so learned a man as Quigley is worth more to the rulers than all the garbage in the newspapers. Tragedy and Hope would never be read by the masses, but did appeal to educated men and distorted their perceptions of reality, neutralizing them politically. Far from wanting to suppress it, the Republican and Democratic gangs would have done well to sponsor it jointly.

7. Americans to whom this phrase suggests fantasies about William the Conqueror in 1066, Crusaders, and, at the latest, the Elizabethans, should take any recent issue of Whitaker's Almanack and consult the listing of all members of the titled aristocracy; for ranks above that of baronet, the date at which the title was first conferred is given. In 1980, for example, there were 1352 peers of the rank of baron or above (excluding children and other heirs, who derive their nobility from their father or the other ancestry. His paternal grandfather was an obscure Englishman who sought to better himself by migrating to Germany, where he married a woman who is described as German and presumably (though not necessarily) Aryan. Their son became a physician, who practised in both England and Germany, and who elevated himself socially by marrying the daughter of a British major-general. This marriage produced one son, Alfred, who was born at Bonn and educated in Germany; he later entered Balliol College of Oxford University and distinguished himself in "Greats" (i.e., the Classics) under Jowett, and to this academic distinction he owed all his subsequent advancement. While he doubtless agreed with Jowett about the meaning of the Platonic texts, he was undoubtedly brilliant, and if you wish to think about an "intellectual aristocracy," here is a perfect specimen. At Balliol, Milner also came under the influence of Arnold Toynbee, the uncle of his namesake, the now famous propagandist and spinner of historical theories.[8] The elder Toynbee is said to have "left behind him a beautiful memory": he excogitated his own variety of a misty Christian mysticism, which he communicated orally to his students, but of which enough is known to make it likely that he was on the best of terms with Jowett, who was not unjustly accused of having tried to "make Socrates talk like Jesus" in his translations of Platonic dialogues into English. Toynbee was also involved in muzzy schemes of social reform and in personally promoting "settlement houses" to inveigle or harass the poor into being "uplifted" by him and his coadjutors.

After Oxford, Milner became a member of the Liberal Party and soared quickly upward in the British government. He was evidently selected by Rhodes for the post of Governor of Cape Colony and Commissioner for South Africa. He did such excellent work in getting the Boer War started and in organizing the states of South Africa after the Boers had been conquered that he was created Baron in 1901, and created Viscount a year relation whom they will eventually succeed; younger sons, daughters, and the like have courtesy ranks which do not make them members of the peerage, strictly speaking). Read through the list and count the titles that were created before 1500, before 1600, before 1700, before 1800, before 1900, and after 1900. The chronological distribution will astonish most Americans.

8. I have seen no reason to alter the judgement of the younger Toynbee's work expressed in a critique that incensed his admirers when it was published in June 1963; it is reprinted in America's Decline, pp. 202-211. A highly educated man and undeniably brilliant, Toynbee can serve as an example of 'intellectual aristocracy'—and a warning to political philosophers.

later. He was, behind the scenes, a power in British politics until his death in 1925.

When Milner went to South Africa in 1897, he was forty-three, but he took with him as assistants a corps of bright young men, most of them in their twenties and almost all of them with excellent scholastic records at Oxford, where some of them were still undergraduates. They came to Oxford, of course, from Eton, Winchester, and other celebrated Public Schools, noted for both scholarship and the moulding of gentlemanly character. In South Africa, this band of youngsters was called Milner's Kindergarten, but he lodged most of them in strategic administrative positions, so that it is no great exaggeration to say that he continued to govern the states of South Africa and prepare them for the eventual Union long after he returned to England and had been officially replaced by other Governors and Commissioners. The band of youths included an umbratile individual, Lionel Curtis, who never attained even a knighthood in later life although he controlled two of the conspiracy's instrumentalities, the Round Table and the Royal Institute of International Affairs.[9] We need not inquire whether Curtis attained a preponderant influence over Milner's thinking or was used by Milner to initiate proposals before Milner himself endorsed them; the responsibility is, in any case, Milner's, since it is quite clear that he could have dismissed Curtis from the Group whenever he wished.

The Kindergarten, with some additions, formed what we may call the intellectual hard core of the conspiracy, which, of course, also included many men of great wealth, high social position, and political power in one or another of the British political parties and through whom the conspiracy attained influence over all three of the major parties. In an appendix Quigley lists the names of over one hundred persons whom he believes, on the basis of circumstantial evidence or inside information, to have been members of the conspiracy. These he has tentatively distributed between two secret organizations within the conspiracy: The Society of the Elect and the Association of Helpers, the latter even more tentatively divided into what Quigley considers an "inner" and "outer circle." He admits that his classification of many members is uncertain, and that there may have been others, as well as temporary associates, whom he cannot identify.

9. Given the importance of Curtis in the Group, I think it worthwhile to note that, if he is correctly quoted by Quigley on pp. 27-28, he was capable of gross errors in English, at least in personal letters. Curtis was the son of an Anglican clergyman; he was educated at a minor Public School, Haileybury, and went to New College (Oxford), where he did not distinguish himself scholastically and took a degree only quite belatedly; he was nevertheless awarded a fellowship in All Souls, obviously at the behest of the Milner Group, for he had no intellectual claim to the appointment.

Morally, the members range from the Dutch South African, Ian Smuts, whom Quigley identifies as a self-seeking opportunist, to Milner, of whom Quigley quotes with approval Lord Tweedsmuir's characterization as "the most selfless man I have ever known. He thought of his work and his cause, much of his colleagues, never of himself." I should not think of questioning Milner's sincerity and personal integrity, and I am willing to believe that many members of his group, especially what we may call the intellectual contingent, honestly believed in the policies they were able to induce in the official governments of the British Empire during their virtual dominance over them. That, indeed, is what makes the present work so instructive a contribution to human history, transcending in its implications even the crucial period of British history that it explains.

Quigley, after saying, "In general, I agree with the goals and aims of the Milner Group," expresses horror that the Group was a conspiracy and always operated by conspiratorial tactics and methods. He even issues the warning (repeated on the jacket of this book) that "No country that values its safety should allow what the Milner Group accomplished—that is, that a small number of men would [sic] be able to wield such power in administration and politics . . ." Either statement taken alone is defensible in argument; taken together, they are childish and remind one of the lubberly moppets whose minds are so filled with tales about Santa Claus and Fairy Godmothers that they are constantly squealing that force and violence are wrong per se and that war is simply horrid and must be abolished. They also dream of abolishing gravitation, time, and death. Adults, who take account of the real world, know that conspiracies and wars are (1) morally justified when their aims are desirable and feasible, and (2) politically justified when they are successful.

The Milner Group can be judged only in terms of their purposes and their accomplishment.

THE RECORD

Although Quigley claims to have received assistance from unnamed persons who must have been members or associates of the Milner Group, he honestly admits that "it is not possible for an outsider to write about a secret group without falling into errors." He is confident, however, that his book contains "few misstatements of fact," and that the only uncertainty of any importance lies in his list of the forty-four persons in what he terms the "outer circle" of the conspiracy. It is possible, he says, that some of these were not aware of the Group's real purposes and acted under the influence of persons who were, and it is also possible that some whom he has placed in the "outer circle" because he has no evidence that they attended the secret meetings of the conspirators really were members of the "inner circle." These are merely matters of detail, important only to a biographer of one or another of the persons concerned.

It would require a minute knowledge of all the inner history of British politics from 1875 to 1945 and months of research to verify the facts that Quigley records and his inferences and deductions from them. I can only say that on the basis of my own quite superficial knowledge, I have been able to find no misstatements of fact concerning British politics (as distinct from statements about other countries, notably France and Germany). Much more important, of course, is what Quigley does not say. A history is valid only when it is selectively comprehensive of its subject, and Quigley's conclusions must be validated, not by the facts he has accurately stated, but by the facts that he omitted because he overlooked them or thought them irrelevant or refused to consider them.

I shall call attention below to some very obvious omissions about which there can be no doubt and to others for which I have to rely on such incomplete or untested information as I have at hand. It will be seen that a complete account of unmentioned factors that may be relevant to Quigley's subject would require years of painstaking research in England and other parts of the former British Empire.

Needless to say, I cannot undertake to summarize an intricate history that Quigley has narrated as concisely as possible. His account, however, leaves us with a gigantic paradox, an unexplained mystery. My only purpose here is to suggest an explanation.

THE MECHANISM OF CONSPIRACY

The conspiracy was begun by Cecil Rhodes, the son of an English clergyman with only yeoman ancestry. When his health failed in his youth, he was sent to South Africa where, invigorated by the climate, he discovered and exploited mineral deposits containing diamonds, laying the basis of a large fortune that he increased throughout his life with a determination to devote it to the high and noble purpose of making the whole of the African continent a province of what he called the British Race, and of eventually extending the rule of that race to dominion over the entire globe. This naturally envisaged the ultimate reunion with Britain of the part of that race that had been severed from the mother country by the deplorable schism that resulted in the independence of thirteen of the British colonies in North America—a part of the plan that always raises dangerously the blood pressure of emotional patriots in the United States, if they still cherish the delusion that they are living in an independent country of their own. Rhodes formulated plans for an organization to further his purposes when he returned to England in 1890 and made contact with an informal group of persons who had been influenced by the elder Toynbee and of whom Milner appears to have been the leading spirit. The plan first agreed upon called for a secret society modelled on the Jesuits, but having as its objective the supremacy, not of the Catholic Church, but of the British Empire. There was to be a Society of the Elect, in which Rhodes would hold a position comparable to that of the General of the Jesuits and, like that General, have closely associated Counsellors, a "junta" of three: Milner, W. T. Stead, who was then editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, and R. B. Brett, who had been a member of Parliament, held a very responsible post in British government, and eventually became Viscount Esher. Beneath this supreme authority there would be a circle of Initiates, who would in turn control a much larger Association of Helpers. Membership in the organization would remain secret, and presumably all members would, like the Jesuits, be bound by oath to obey, regardless of their own opinions on any issue, the commands of the General and his Council.[10]

Under the influence of Milner and Brett, it is said, the plan was revised to eliminate a formal organization with its elaborate constitution, hierarchy of offices, initiations, prescribed oaths, and rites—doubtless because such things are the real weakness of a secret society, for its secrets can be, and almost invariably are, betrayed when the documents in which they are set forth are accidentally lost, purloined by disaffected members, or captured by the police. The archives of Weishaupt's Illuminati were seized in a single raid and published by the Bavarian government. A man who joins the Masonic religion is informed at the very first that his throat will be "cut across" if he discloses any of the secrets, and by the time he reaches the 2° the penalty is made more dreadful: his heart will be torn from his breast, which is unpleasant enough, and furthermore it will be "given to the ravenous birds of the air or the devouring beasts of the field," which will presumably make the dead man suffer still more. But despite these and other dire penalties, all the awfully secret rituals and myths of the organization below 33° are now fully known to everyone who takes the trouble to consult any one of the many books in which they are exposed.[11] And if a bunch of Jewish Elders were so indiscreet as to put in writing a systematic account of their purposes and methods, the purloinment and publication of the famous Protocols has been an endless source of embarrassment and expense to their ubiquitous race.[12]

10. It would be otiose to discuss here the functioning of the Jesuits in their heyday or to inquire to what extent the theoretically unlimited power of their General was in practice restricted by the three counsellors whom he could neither appoint nor dismiss. Whether Milner, Stead, and Brett were to be associated with Rhodes on the explicit understanding that he could never expel them from the conspiracy is not known.—It is unlikely that Rhodes had heard of Weishaupt's imitation of the Jesuits, but we may assume that so well-read a man as Milner knew of it and, as we shall see, profited by the example.

For the rigmarole common to secret societies and the folly of committing secrets to paper, Milner and Brett substituted a far more practical system of organization that was made possible by the racial peculiarities of Anglo-Saxons that were educed and consolidated by the class-structure of British society before its collapse. Strict conformity to the code of gentlemen was made mandatory, not only by social penalties for known infringements of it, but, even more effectively, by a gentleman's sense of his own integrity and personal honor: a violation of the code might in some circumstances be concealed from others, but a man could not conceal from himself an humiliating awareness that he had degraded himself and was thenceforth an impostor in the caste in which he was accepted.[13] The class-structure, 11. The most compact digest of Masonic secrets will be found in two books by the Reverend Mr. Walton Hannah, Christian by Degrees and Darkness Visible (London, Britons, 1964 and 1966 respectively). Masonry is certainly a religion, if its myths, including the allegorical exposition of some of them, are believed by the members who swear faith in them.

12. The authenticity (as distinct from the accuracy) of the Protocols is generally doubted or disbelieved on the basis of two considerations: (1) the estimated improbability that obviously highly intelligent and prudent men would commit to writing such dangerous secrets, and (2) the strange diversity of the stories about how the document was obtained. For one of several plausible explanations, see L. Fry, Waters Flowing Eastward, edited by the Reverend Father Denis Fahey (London, Britons, 1965). I learn from Instauration (July 1982) that Prince Yussupov saw fit to augment the confusion by producing a new version: a parchment (!) in Hebrew (!) was discovered in the library (!) of the Countess Kleinmichel on her estate in the Crimea (!) and was sent to St. Petersburg for translation into Russian.

13. This makes pathetic and even tragic the fact that in the decadence of furthermore, made gentlemen a small minority, personally known to each other through the system of the Public Schools, the military academies, and the two great universities as well as by long-standing family connections, and the caste was consolidated by friendships formed in early youth, when men are least capable of dissembling their characters. And the tight structure of a society of which the members were known to each other was facilitated even by the geographical size of Britain and efficiency of its railroads, all of which led to London.

This structure, peculiar to British society, which was first seriously damaged by the catastrophe called the First World War and was reduced to ruins by the Second, permitted in 1890 the organization of an effective and really secret conspiracy for so noble a purpose as the enhancement and extension of the British Empire and the dominion of the great race that had created it. Anyone interested in the organization of conspiracies should carefully note that the conditions requisite for a comparable conspiracy do not exist anywhere in our world today and will never reappear in the future, however distant, unless perchance the suicidal mania of Nordics today is terminated by a not too belated return to sanity or, perhaps, frustrated by some now unimaginable event.

The Milner Group, necessarily small in numbers, was recruited on the basis of almost life-long personal acquaintance and further protected by the fact that if, by some most unlikely error, an approach was made to a man who was unsympathetic or antagonistic to the scheme, gentlemen do not disclose what they are told in confidence and they do not pry into one another's personal affairs. Plans were made and policies decided orally in meetings usually held on the country estate of some member; no written rules or agreements were needed among men whose word was their bond; and if it became necessary to communicate in writing or to make a memorandum for one's own use, seemingly trivial allusions in personal letters or jottings unintelligible to others sufficed.

The Milner Group set out to control the British Empire by means that were eminently practical. They understood the importance of standing aloof from the vulgarities of party politics. It made little difference to them what party, Liberal, Conservative, or Labour, happened to attain a majority in a general election and temporary power. They placed their members in the high administrative posts, such as the Colonial Office, that were virtually invulnerable to the vicissitudes of party politics; those members became the experts on whose knowledge and advice the Prime Minister, whoever he happened to be, had to rely. And, more important, they set out to create in Britain a public opinion that would give to the administrative experts such support that their advice could not be ignored.

Britain the code served to protect traitors who were agents of the Soviet and conspired to destroy what was left of their nation; see Andrew Boyle's The Climate of Treason (London, 1980). On the decline of gentlemen in British society and its consequences, see General Richard Hilton's Imperial Obituary (Devon, Britons, 1968) and an addendum to it in my Enemy of Our Enemies, p. 68, n. 20. One wishes that General Hilton could have read Quigley's then unpublished book.

Given the structure of English society at that time, the Milner Group did not have to concern itself with the yappings of the newspapers that had large circulations and were comparable to the American press today, catering to the lowest mentality by making trivialities sensational. Their principal newspaper was the Times, an eminently literate daily that almost ostentatiously limited its appeal to well-educated, intelligent, and thoughtful readers who wished to understand news about domestic and foreign events. It was by far the most dignified, well-written, and influential newspaper in the world. Americans now in their forties or older will remember the prestige and power acquired by a rather feeble imitation, the New York Times, which exercised a great influence at one time through the manifest superiority of its journalism, although it could not have a comparable audience or observe such high standards.

England, furthermore, had a number of fortnightly, monthly, and quarterly periodicals that published, necessarily for a restricted audience of well-educated and intelligent readers, articles by highly talented authors on literary, cultural, and historical subjects, including articles that dealt with contemporary issues on a level far above party politics. The last periodical of that kind in the United States was the American Review, which a few of my elder readers will remember. Most of these publications took it for granted that readers would recognize not only quotations from Latin literature, but quotations from the major Greek writers, especially Homer, and students of politics should note the cohesive effect of participation in a high culture, which by itself bestows membership in a limited class that overlaps social classes. When one participant in that culture reads what is written by his intellectual fellow, he may not be convinced, if the argument is too strongly at variance with his own opinions, but he will give the argument serious consideration and credit the author with sincerity as well as scholarship, whereas he would ignore or dismiss out of hand an article leading to the same conclusions by a less polished and cultivated writer. Over the editorial policies of some of these highly influential periodicals, the Milner Group acquired varying degrees of control, and they founded a periodical of their own, The Round Table, devoted entirely to contemporary affairs as they affected the Anglo-Saxon world.

The Milner Group further acquired working control of standard reference works, The Dictionary of National Biography and The Encyclopaedia Britannica,[14] which they used prudently, never permitting misstatements of facts, but introducing comments which, although stated as critical opinion, took authority from the factual accuracy of the articles. They wrote or sponsored books, each seemingly its author's independent and spontaneous work, on the topics vital to their purposes, and by acquiring a large measure of control over appointments at Oxford, especially in All Souls, they were able to plant in positions of the highest intellectual prestige scholars who at least respected and favored their policies.

Here is Quigley's summary of a typical operation in the manufacture of public opinion:

> The Times was influential, but . . . the greater part of its influence

14. The Twelfth Edition of the Britannica (1922) was the last published under the control of the Group. The Rosenwalds induced the publisher to undertake the extremely expensive production of a cheap ("Handy Volume") edition to be sold through Sears, Roebuck; this, I understand, so loaded the publisher with debt that his bankruptcy was inevitable. The assets of the bankrupted corporation were bought by the Rosenwalds, who eventually gave them to the University of Chicago. The contents of the Twelfth Edition were only gradually diluted and supplemented in the subsequent editions; the Thirteenth is not greatly inferior to the Twelfth, from which most of its articles were copied with only additions to bring them up-to-date. The Milner Group did not tamper with the really substantive articles in the Britannica, but inserted, even in the Eleventh Edition, discreetly eulogistic biographies of Milner, Rhodes, and other members (and oddly suppressed mention of Curtis, except for one passing reference to a book in the Twelfth), and added their interpretations of historical events in which they had a direct interest. Some student should undertake a detailed comparison of the Tenth with the Eleventh Edition in the treatment of matters of vital concern to the Milner Group, as distinct, of course, from the great increase in factual knowledge in the interval between the editions. The first twenty-five volumes of the Tenth Edition were published in 1875-1889 and are known to contain some accurate information that is omitted in the Eleventh, ostensibly because it had to be sacrificed to make room for new material. The eleven remaining volumes of the Tenth Edition were published as a supplement in 1902-1903, and it is not clear to what extent the Milner Group influenced their contents. A report on the shift in the point of view on social and political matters between 1875 and 1910 would be of very great interest and would indubitably enhance our knowledge of the conspiracy's goal in its early years.

arose from its position as one of several branches of a single group, the Milner Group. By the interaction of these various branches on one another, under the pretense that each branch was an autonomous power, the influence of each branch was increased by a process of mutual reinforcement. The unanimity among the various branches was believed by the outside world to be the result of the influence of a single Truth, while in reality it was the result of the existence of a single group. Thus, a statesman (a member of the Group) announces a policy. About the same time, the Royal Institute of International Affairs publishes a study on the subject, and an Oxford don, a Fellow of All Souls (and a member of the Group) also publishes a volume on the subject . . . . The statesman's policy is subjected to critical analysis and final approval in a "leader" in The Times, while the two books are reviewed (in a single review) in The Times Literary Supplement. Both the "leader" and the review are anonymous but are written by members of the group. [Quigley could have added that one or more reviews or corroboratory articles are planted in the periodicals such as The Quarterly Review.] And finally, at about the same time, an anonymous article in The Round Table strongly advocates the same policy. The cumulative effects of such tactics as this, even if each tactical move influences only a small number of important people, is bound to be great . . . . The strategy can be carried further by arranging for the secretary of the Rhodes Trustees to go to America for a series of "informal discussions" with former Rhodes Scholars, while a prominent retired statesman . . . is persuaded to say a few words at the unveiling of a plaque in All Souls or New College in honor of some deceased Warden. By a curious coincidence, both the "informal discussions" in America and the unveiling speech at Oxford touch on the same topical subject.

The converse of this procedure serves to stifle opposition or, at least, neutralize it. The reader will draw his own comparison with the far cruder methods used today to herd Americans who think of themselves as intellectual, although their education (except, perhaps, in some highly specialized field) was so far inferior to what was normal in England at the time that the Milner Group attained power. The brazen lying that is now so common in academic circles and even within scientific disciplines was not feasible then. Quigley exaggerates but little when, speaking of the Group's work on its highest levels, he adds:

> There is no effort here to contend that the Milner Group ever falsified or even concealed evidence (although this charge could be made against The Times). Rather it propagated its point of view by interpretation and selection of evidence . . . . The Group as a whole was made up of intelligent men . . . who knew that their writings were intended for a small minority as intelligent as themselves. In such conditions there could be no value in distorting or concealing evidence. To do so would discredit the instruments they controlled. By giving the facts as they stood, and as completely as could be done in consistency with the interpretation desired, a picture could be construed that would remain convincing for a long time.

And he gives a late and curious example. The official History of The Times (4 vols., London, 1935) may not have been the work of a member of the Group and does suppress evidence which must have been available in the files if they had not been preliminarily gutted, but the author of a vehement denial that The Times in 1895-1914 (when it was controlled by the Group) actively made propagandistic preparation for the war against Germany that began in 1914, nevertheless includes in his pages evidence that proves that the newspaper did in fact propagate "untrue or distorted information on Germany," which, also in fact, did much to condition the readers of The Times (and the far more numerous individuals whom they in turn influenced) for the declaration of war against Germany when a good opportunity presented itself (or was created).[15]

15. Needless to say, The Times did not initiate the eventually suicidal policy of hostility toward Germany, a nation which was both ethnically and militarily Britain's natural ally on the continent against both France and Russia. See the admirably comprehensive but concise work of Professor Peter H. Peel, British Public Opinion and the Wars of German Unification, 1864-1871, published by the International Research Institute for Political Science, College Park, Maryland; available from Liberty Bell Publications; $20.00 plus postage. Dr. Peel thoroughly documents the achievement of the British press, both newspapers and ostensibly judicious periodicals, in whipping up animosity against the Germans, particularly on the moralistic grounds so dear to light-headed females and low-grade males. The Franco-Prussian War of 1870 provided a pretext for the first massive effort to incite the two natural allies against each other (the blatteration of the anti-German press in England naturally excited a reaction in Germany, with both equally violent recrimination and a growing fear of British intentions). The factitious hostility against Germany is usually explained in terms of resentment of Germany's ever increasing superiority in technology and her growing share of international commerce, which was partly the result of the fact that German industry started much later and so did not have the expense of retiring and replacing manufacturing plants that had become obsolete. The greater efficiency of German labor may also have been a factor. (Asquith is credited, I know not how accurately, with the statement, " If we don't defeat Germany in war, we'll have to work much harder [in industry and business]." Asquith was Prime Minister at the time the war began in 1914 and had done much to undermine the British nation before that time, but I am reluctant to believe that he could have urged war by an argument

From the standpoint of its techniques and operations, the Milner Group was a model conspiracy, perhaps the most subtle and efficient known to history, since the consistent activity of the Jews for more than twenty-five centuries far surpasses the dimensions of a conspiracy and must be regarded as simply a fact of nature, a racial peculiarity of a peculiar and unique people.

ENGLAND ÜBER ALLES

Cecil Rhodes is now best known for the munificient bequest with which he endowed the Rhodes Scholarships in the United States and Germany to further the purpose of the conspiracy he founded. He is also remembered for his noble purpose of extending civilization over the whole of the African continent. He died in 1902, and his deathbed was not made terrible by a prevision that within half a century Englishmen would become so spiritually diseased and biologically degenerate that they would not only tolerate, but actually force, the subjugation of the more virile Englishmen in Rhodesia to the savages of an irredeemably primitive race. It is reported that the great bronze statue that was erected in his honor in the land in which he planted civilization and which was named in his honor has been hacked up by the feral anthropoids,[16] but it is not yet known whether his grave in the Matopo Hills has already been violated by the exulting beasts.

Rhodes, of course, was not the first to envisage British annexation of Africa. That was predicted in 1877 by Gladstone, and that "canting humbug," as a discerning Englishman calls him, was only appropriating for political advantage an idea that was already in the air and had been found acceptable.[17] It is acceptable only to morons.) While the short-sighted greed of commercial men is notorious, one can only suspect that clandestine forces were at work beneath the surface to produce the sorry record detailed in Dr. Peel's study—a record which, of course, antedates by two decades the formation of the Milner Group.

16. The Liberty Bell, March 1982, pp. 35 ff.

17. The idea that Britain had a manifest destiny in Africa was popularized in the 1870s by Sir Edward Arnold, who was then one of the editors of the Daily Telegraph and who originated in 1874 the project for a "Cape-to-Cairo railway" that Rhodes tried to carry out. Sir Edwin, who remained on the staff of the newspaper until his last illness and death in 1904, is now principally remembered for his long poem, The Light of Asia, which (together with his verse translation of Jayadeva's Gitagovinda) is now reprinted as a paperback in India (Bombay, Jaico, 1949 and later); the poem contains some very fine lines and appeals strongly to the nebulous religiosity of so many of our contemporaries, but, despite the true, however, that Rhodes was the first to make a real effort to realize that hope, and that he did so as a private citizen, not a politician. He was undoubtedly a great man with a vision worthy of the Arthurian knights who sought the Holy Grail—a comparison that may be more ironically true than you may at first suspect.[18] That he (and, of course, the Milner Group) blundered in starting the Boer War is an undeniable historical truth; the motive, of course, was partly economic, a desire to gain the great mineral wealth of the Dutch republics for the British Empire, and partly geographic, for the Orange Free State and the Transvaal stood athwart the route of a major link in the projected Cape-to-Cairo railway and hence of communication with Rhodesia, and an alternative route through Bechuanaland, of which you may think when you glance at a map, was made impractical by the great deserts of the Kalahari and other natural obstacles. It was a costly and tragic blunder, not because it was an act of aggression, but because it was aggression in the wrong place at the wrong time, and it has left its dire legacy in a disastrous weakness of the present Republic of South Africa, the enduring antipathy of its Dutch inhabitants for the English part of its population, with, of course, the reciprocal feeling—a weakness that was effectively exploited by the aliens who, infact, now rule that unfortunate and seemingly doomed land.

Rhodes envisaged the future of the British Empire as a great federation of which the United States would eventually become publisher's claim, must be read as a poem, not as an exposition of the doctrines of any Buddhist sect and still less as a digest of the philosophy of Gautama. Sir Edwin was employed by the Jews (Edward Lawson, né Levy, who became Baron Burnham, and his father and uncle) who owned the Daily Telegraph, which was the most widely read newspaper in Britain and had the then enormous circulation of 190,000, reputedly the largest in the world. At the same time, the Morning Post, which vied with the Times for influence among the upper classes, had a circulation of only 3,500. According to Dr. Peel, op. cit., the Daily Telegraph was read chiefly by members of the lower middle class and small tradesmen, clerks, artisans, and the like, but its then prodigious circulation represented great influence over the majority of British voters, among whom imperialism must obviously have been popular.

18. Much has been written about Rhodes; a recent, well-written (and, incidentally, handsomely printed) work is John Marlowe's Cecil Rhodes, the Anatomy of Empire (New York, 1972). The reader must, of course, understand that any author who hopes to be published commercially today must conform to the dogma, evidently a revelation from some perverse deity, that all races are equal except our own, which was created to be a beast of burden for the others. How much of this poisonous piffle an author may believe in his own heart is, of course, quite a different matter.

a part, and in this he was, of course, followed by the Milner Group. The constituent parts of the Empire were to enjoy a large measure of local self-government, being united in their foreign policies by the Empire and rule from London. The question of taxation was one the Group could never solve, even theoretically, for they were perpetually harping on the lesson they drew from the American Revolution, and they naturally could not foresee that within half a century the people of the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, etc. would gladly subject themselves to crushing taxation for "foreign aid" to nourish and multiply their mortal enemies and hasten the date of their own extinction. The scheme of imperial federation was, as the Milner Group planned it after Rhodes' death, a figment of the imagination and foredoomed to failure for reasons they appear to have been incapable of perceiving, let alone comprehending.[19] It is a great pity that Rhodes and his successors did not ponder the far more significant lesson they should have learned from the very situation they confronted when they planned the Boer War, i.e., from the grotesque blunder by which Britain had forced the establishment of the Orange Free State and the Transvaal Republic.

By every criterion, Rhodes was a great man, who dedicated himself and his fortune to a noble purpose, that of consolidating the supremacy of our race. The misconceptions in his own mind that partly accounted for the ultimate failure of his hopes are therefore of surpassing interest, an historical lesson that every White man must take to heart, if he has not resigned himself to the extinction of his posterity.

There can be no doubt that the Boer War, which Rhodes and his associates (including Milner) incited and contrived, was a great surprise to him. He started with the assumption that Dr. Jameson's raid into the Transvaal and an almost perfunctory coup by the British traders and adventurers in Johannesburg would suffice to bring the Dutch republics to their knees, and after he (and Milner) got the War under way, he must have been continually amazed by the valor and love of independence that made it necessary to marshal ever more of the resources of the vast British Empire to subdue the small, largely pastoral, and sparsely inhabited nations. And even after the overwhelming British forces had captured their cities and towns, the Boer commandos fought on desperately so that the war, despite the British system of concentration camps for the unfortunate women and children and of ruthless devastation of the countryside, was still raging when Rhodes died.

19. Quigley seems equally obtuse. He mentions just once the principal reason, but evidently without suspecting what it was: the Canadians (who in 1917 had not yet developed the suicidal mania that now afflicts them) were unwilling to accept the same status in the Empire as would be given to India, that prime example of multiracial degeneration.

What makes Rhodes' miscalculation so astonishing is that he constantly and sincerely deprecated a "racial" prejudice that would separate the "English race" from the "Dutch race," noting that there was a "racial affinity" and "not much difference" between them. And he included both British and Boers in his constant advocacy of their political equality in a union of "all white men"[20] in South Africa. And he constantly proclaimed that the British were fighting, not the Boers, but "Krugerism," thus coining a foolish abstraction that was almost as silly as the protestations of some of our contemporaries, who claim that they want to fight "Zionism" but not the Jews. Rhodes seems never to have comprehended that what he called "Krugerism," as though it were some personal peculiarity of the President of the Transvaal, was nothing more or less than the determination of the Boers, who were chiefly of Dutch origin but included a considerable French and Scotch element, never again to submit to British rule. And of the valid reasons for that determination, he seems to have had no understanding at all.

The history of South Africa is too complex for even the most skeletal summary here, where I can do no more than mention a few crucial facts.[21] When the Dutch first established a colony at the Cape of Good Hope in the Seventeenth Century and for long thereafter, there were no negroes in that part of Africa, which was inhabited by the even more primitive Capoids: Bushmen and Hottentots.[22] By the time that Cape Colony was

20. Late in life Rhodes at least once, in an interview with journalists, substituted the phrase "all civilized men," thus evading protests from persons who liked to imagine that other races were, or could be made, capable of actual participation in European civilization.

21. For quick reference, a reasonably adequate summary of the facts may be found in the Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, s.vv. "Cape Colony," "Natal," "Orange Free State," "Transvaal," and "South Africa." The essential facts are given without serious omission, but the reader, aware that the articles were prepared under the supervision of the Milner Group, will naturally beware of being misled by such terms as 'unenlightened,' 'reactionary,' and 'unreasonable' as applied to the Boers by men who were trying to justify the Boer War, which had created great dissatisfaction in Britain. It is noteworthy that the only member of the Milner Group who had opposed the plans for the Boer War was W. T. Stead, who, as we have noted above, was one of the triumvirate of Rhodes' first associates in the conspiracy. Stead foresaw that the war would make impossible any true reconciliation between its victors and vanquished; he was consequently expelled from the Group as a "traitor," although Rhodes and others continued to profess personal friendship for him.

22. It must always be remembered that the Capoids are a distinct race, set formally ceded by Holland to Great Britain in 1814, however, the Blacks, chiefly Kaffirs, attracted by the loot to be obtained by raiding the colonists, had moved southward in large tribes and were, by their numbers and ferocity, an ever present menace, and, in fact, British troops had earlier been landed to protect the White settlements during the Napoleonic period. Although the Dutch naturally felt some sentimental attachment to their native land (which, however, had been much weakened by the ineptitude of the Dutch administration), British rule was welcomed as affording protection from savages that were comparable to the Indian tribes that for so long harassed and, when possible, destroyed our settlements in North America. It may be regarded as certain that had Britain shown a minimum of intelligence and prudence, the colonists would have prospered without serious dissension between the older Dutch settlers, who had largely absorbed the French, and the later English and Scotch immigrants, and the manifest superiority of the English language would have made it an additional bond of union, displacing and effacing the corrupt dialect of Dutch that is now called Afrikaans.

Prudence is seldom found in governments that have to please a large majority. As Jefferson knew, there are very sound arguments against slavery, based on realistic considerations which all require the expulsion of an inferior race from the territory that our race has taken for itself, but in Britain, as in the United States, a sentimental and irrational abhorrence of off from all others by obvious physical and anatomical peculiarities, including the grotesque steatopygia that is so conspicuous in females and the extremely odd formation of the females' sexual organs. The complexion of the Capoids is a muddy ochre, often called "dirty yellow" without reference to whether or not the skin has been washed, and the stature of the race in its pure state is but little above that of pygmies, the males averaging four feet, six inches, in height. Most of the survivors of the Capoids have been mongrelized by miscegenation with Negroes, Whites, and Orientals. The principal difference between the Hottentots and Bushmen, aside from a diversity of dialect, was that the latter were really wild men, while the former could be domesticated and used as slaves by both Negroes and Whites, becoming low-grade servants after the abolition of slavery. At one time, Capoids occupied a very large part of Africa south of the Equator, but they were largely exterminated by Congoids that swarmed down from the north, before whom the surviving Capoids fled southward until they found uninhabited territory at the southern extremity of Africa. Before they became the prey of the Negroes, the Capoids may have led a life not unlike that of the real Pygmies, who, lurking in virtually impenetrable forests, are said by Roger Pearson (Mankind Quarterly, Spring 1982) to enjoy a carefree existence, untroubled by fear of anthropoid predators or thoughts of the morrow. In this, they differ little from other large mammals in favorable habitats.

slavery was incited by howling dervishes, chiefly in the more vulgar Protestant sects, who, with the effrontery common in their business, propagated the preposterous lie that Christian doctrine, as revealed by God in his holy book, forbade slavery.[23] This agitation finally induced the British government to decree the abolition of slavery in all of its territories, and in South Africa the owners of such domestic animals, which had become economically indispensable, were to be compensated by a payment of about 50% of a very low estimate of their cash value. But, with flagrant dishonesty, Britain made the sums due as compensation payable only in London. Since very few of the farmers thus despoiled could afford the enormous expense of a trip to London, they were forced to sell their claims for a small fraction of the face value to financial parasites, chiefly Jews, who bought up claims for a pittance and sent them to their tribesmen in London, who, of course, collected the full amount from the British treasury.

Quite a few Englishmen were boers (i.e., farmers), but they were only a minority among the English colonists; the more prosperous among them had connections that enabled them to minimize their losses, and they sometimes helped their poorer neighbors. The overwhelming majority of the Dutch colonists, however, were farmers, chiefly small farmers, comparable to the majority of the Southern farmers in this country before the Northern conquest, and having only three or four or five slaves each. Thus the boers who were the principal victims of the outrageous swindle were mostly Dutch. Many of them were completely ruined, losing even their land and becoming paupers.

23. As Christians who take the trouble to read their God's Word while awake must know, slavery is specifically authorized in both parts of it, e.g., in a letter written under the name of a Jew, commonly called Paul, who is said to be the first who had the idea of peddling the cult of Jesus to non-Jews, (Coloss. 3.22), where the English versions slightly obscure the meaning: "Servants, obey in all things your masters according to the flesh . . . in singleness of heart." The first and key word in the original is δοῦλοι, which specifically means 'slave' and, strictly, a born slave as distinct from one captured in war. When holy men are reminded of such passages, they are naturally annoyed, since they have to take the trouble of resorting to their usual techniques of quibbling, double-talk, and sophistry to explain that God must have intended to agree with them, whatever he foolishly said to the contrary. The King James version, which I quoted, is not so tricky as may be thought, for when it was written, the word 'servant' retained much of its original meaning and was naturally used of slaves in territories in which slavery was economically feasible. (A hired servant was virtually a slave during the term of his employment, and it is amusing to note that Professor Willmore Kendall, in his John Locke and the Doctrine of Majority Rule (Urbana, Illinois, 1941), had to dismiss as "unfortunate" Locke's assumption that he was the owner of everything that his servants produced or obtained.) If you wish to test quickly the reliability of one of the recent translations of the Bible into "more modern" English, look up the passage I have cited and see whether the 'servants' of the King James version has been replaced by 'slaves.' If it has not, you will know that the new translator was either too ignorant or too dishonest to be trusted at any point.

Even so, a crisis could have been avoided, had not the Cape Colony and adjacent settlements been overrun by a particularly mischievous kind of pest—or if the successive British governors had had the authority and courage to round up all the missionaries and load them on the first freighter out of Capetown. I must leave to competent psychiatrists the question why English Christians, particularly of the lowest classes, had the perpetual itch to meddle in other people's business and to harass both colonials and natives by despatching skulks of shamans, ostensibly for the purpose of crowding their Heaven with the ghosts of the lowest forms of human life, in which their god had shown so little interest that he had not even sent his son to be killed by the savages. The craze for afflicting the British colonial possessions with missionaries doubtless had some connection with the primitive Christians' morbid hatred of superiority, which makes the godly dote on whatever is lowly, inferior, irrational, debased, deformed, and degenerate.[24] The sending of missionaries was like sending "the little foxes that spoil the grapes" into a vineyard. They arrived with an animus against civilized men and a prepossession, at once malicious and maudlin, in favor of the lower races, who were, after all, the stock in trade of their business. The worst and most rabid of the lot was an especially nasty specimen, the Reverend Dr. John Philip, who was so degenerate that he married a colored woman, obviously preferring to have a servile concubine at his disposal instead of a white wife, who might have had some sense of self-respect and a mind of her own. This loud-mouthed pest was an emissary of the London Missionary Society, and he promoted his racket back home while making himself important by perpetually harassing white men for their "discrimination" against the Hottentots, who were barely human, and the Kaffirs, who were innately savage. He devised and agitated for all sorts of schemes to exploit and degrade the civilized population for the profit or exaltation of uncivilizable species that are classified as human because they have languages. And despite the protests of the more responsible governors of Cape Colony, the British government not only failed to order

24. This description, which I am glad to see taken up by other writers, comes from my review of William Gayley Simpson's Which Way, Western Man? in the National Vanguard, October 1979, which is reprinted in America's Decline, pp. 355 ff.

Philip hanged, but for twenty years forced the Cape government to obey the seditious agitator.[25]

The brunt of the incessant harassment fell on the farmers, since they needed labor on their farms and, unlike dwellers in town, were exposed to constant contact with thievish Hottentots and marauding Kaffirs. Governmental harassment and oppression, ordered from London, became at length so intolerable that many farmers, most of them Dutch but including Scots and a few Englishmen, despaired of their future under British rule, foreseeing only increasing intolerance and persecution by pinchbeck saints.[26] They abandoned their

25. The missionaries were supported, with more or less zeal, by the clergymen of the more "evangelical" churches patronized by the English residents. The Dutch Boers had, of course, their own holy men in the Dutch Reformed Church, a Calvinistic outfit that knew better than to bite the hand that fed it. That church, on the whole, remained friendly to the race of its members until the assassination of Dr. Verwoerd and even so long as the balance of political power remained uncertain thereafter. But the odor of musk is not half so pervasive as that of money and even of paper substitutes for it, and recently 193 clergymen of that cult, their mouths watering for baksheesh from the Jews, signed a statement that apartheid is not sanctioned by the Bible or Christianity, thus denouncing their predecessors as scoundrels and liars. So far as I have heard, the congregations of the 193 shysters are so indifferent or corrupt that none of them has thus far been kicked from the steps of his church.

It is said that Philip in his last years was astonished and chagrined when he discovered that drops of magic water do not change the nature of mammals, and that the savages, though brutish, were bright enough to have exploited him as a useful idiot. Unfortunately, the Kaffirs did not have a chance to barbecue Philip: that would have been one instance of anthropophagy that would have been poetic justice.

26. As pernicious as the abolition of slavery in Cape Colony was the British mania for treating the lower races as citizens and permitting them to vote as they were told to do by missionaries and other agitators. Only the innate indolence of primitives prevented disaster. In 1887 Rhodes noted that "By the last census there are 1,250,000 natives [i.e., Capoids and Congoids] in the Colony and 250,000 Europeans. Under the present franchise, if they were to exercise it, the natives would have a majority of votes." He also noted that the idiotic idea of giving the franchise to members of what was necessarily a "subject race" was the principal obstacle to reconciliation between the Dutch colonists and the British government of the Cape. The crucial importance of the "native question" in determining the resistance of the two independent Republics to an extension of British rule over them is almost ignored by most historians of the Boer War. In the Union of South Africa formed after the conquest, a compromise was adopted, so that the franchise differed in the different states of the Union: in the territory of the conquered republics, only Whites could vote; in Natal, a high property qualification and other restrictions served the same purpose; in Cape Colony, there was only a low holdings in Cape Colony and began the Great Trek northeastward into virgin and unsettled territory, where, buying land from savage tribes and defending themselves, not without considerable loss of life, against the raids by the same or other tribes, they made their settlements and brought the rudiments of civilization to regions that few white men had traversed. They hoped, of course, to make themselves forever independent of the British government and such insane or malicious enemies of their race as the Reverend Dr. John Philip. The British government did refuse to pursue the Voortrekkers ("Pioneers")[27] to continue harrying them, and Philip had to be content with abetting and encouraging the infamous trade that supplied the savages with firearms with which they could more efficiently kill white men.[28]

As early as 1852, the British government officially recognized the independence of the Transvaal and guaranteed "in the fullest manner . . . to the emigrant farmers [i.e., boers] beyond the Vaal river, the right to manage their own affairs, and to govern themselves according to their own laws, without any interference on the part of the British government." Thus was founded the Transvaal Republic, and at about the same time Britain, by a royal proclamation, actually forced complete independence on the Orange Free State.

The curse of Great Britain has been the tergiversation of governments headed by politicians competing for votes. Thus the solemn pledges made in 1852 and reaffirmed in following years were broken in 1877 by the Colonial Secretary in a government of which the Prime Minister was a Jew who had property qualification, which, however, served to exclude a large part of the inferiors, plus a saving provision that only persons of European descent could be elected to the legislature.

27. As the heroism of the pioneers was recognized in South Africa after the War, voortrekkers became a word of honor, and, by a neat irony, Voorttrekkerpers is the name of the corporation that published in 1966 Anthony Jacob's White Man, Think Again! and supinely suppressed the book when the Jew-dominated government of South Africa ruled that white men should not think at all about their own future. Jacob's application of common sense to ethnological and biological facts is available in a reprint, greatly improved by enlargement of the small type used in the original printing, from Liberty Bell Publications, $5.00 + postage.

28. This was the so-called "lower road" through Bechuanaland, a trail opened by the missionaries who were engaged in pestering the natives with an unwelcome and incomprehensible religion, but used by traders who reaped great profits from supplying the natives with firearms, which the savages really wanted. Attempts by the Transvaal Republic to cut off this trade aroused yelps from the missionaries and great indignation among the simple-minded in Great Britain.

been created the Earl of Beaconsfield in the British (!) Peerage. For this act there were several motives, but it was partly incited by the perpetual yapping about the poor "downtrodden" Blacks.[29] The Colonial Secretary motu proprio annexed the Transvaal Republic to the Empire and declared that its inhabitants had become British subjects—for their own good, of course. But after the Boers, who did not appreciate that magnanimous concern for their own good, had routed several small British detachments sent to enforce the annexation, the British in 1881 executed another pirouette and restored to the Transvaal complete self-government and an independence limited only by an agreement not to conclude treaties with foreign governments without permission from London. The British government that executed this volte-face did so although it had been expressly warned by General Sir Garnet Wolseley that gold had been discovered in the Transvaal and that an enormous influx of English prospectors, miners, commercial men, adventurers, and parasites would occur, soon making the Boers a numerical minority in their own country. This happened, of course, and if the citizens of the Transvaal, who had rewon their independence with difficulty, had accepted the principle of majority rule and granted the franchise to the horde of "outlanders" who had come to exploit the mineral wealth of their country, they would soon have found themselves again under the British government from which they had escaped through so many hardships, sacrifices, and vicissitudes of fortune.

29. There was probably some truth to the outcries that slavery was being reinstituted in the Transvaal under the legal guise of "apprenticeships." The savage tribes in the surrounding territory frequently raided each other and so always had a surplus of slaves for sale, and the boers recruited labor without much regard for legal niceties. All this excited busybodies in England, who knew nothing of savages but had their imaginations and "righteousness" excited by Missionary Societies. One never ceases to marvel at the bigoted ignorance or bare-faced mendacity of Christians who deny that their supposedly infallible god endorsed and authorized slavery in the "New Testament," of which the "inerrancy" is guaranteed, they say, by his direct supervision over its composition in a language which he presumably understood. To be sure, there were in the past century educated Christians whose faith was so sincere that they believed their god meant what he said; if there are any such today, I have not heard of them. For an honest discussion of slavery from a staunchly Christian point of view, see the treatise by Robert L. Dabney, Divinitatis Doctor, A Defence of Virginia (New York, 1867; reprinted, New York, 1969), especially pp. 146-208. Dr. Dabney correctly saw that the Abolitionists' denunciation of slavery manifested a "radical and anti-Christian tendency" that, if unchecked, would eventually destroy the religion and, perhaps, wreck the society that tolerated it. He even predicted accurately many of the antics of the hucksters who peddle the "Social Gospel" in our time.

Such is the background of the Boers' determination to resist to the utmost when Rhodes (and Milner) contrived a British declaration of war upon them.[30] I have sketched it to show (1) the magnitude of facts that Rhodes, in his enthusiastic scheme for an all-British Africa, could not or would not see, when he expected another annexation of the republics to proceed with little trouble, and (2) the ruthlessness with which he persued ends which, in his idealistic cogitations, justified the means he used.[31]

There can be no doubt, however, about the sincerity of Rhodes' dedication of himself to consolidating the supremacy of the Aryan race, and specifically of the Anglo-Saxon part of it, in Africa and throughout the world.

We have, furthermore, no reason to doubt the sincerity of the Englishmen who joined his conspiracy. Lord Milner, in particular, who was described as a "selfless man" in a passage I quoted above, professed—and we must believe sincerely—a most laudable purpose, which he stated explicitly in an article which he published in The Times in 1925 as a summary of the views he had held since his youth:

> I am a British (indeed primarily an English) Nationalist. If I am also an Imperialist, it is because the destiny of the English race . . . has been to strike fresh roots in distant parts . . . . My patriotism knows no geographical, but only racial, limits. I am an Imperialist and not a Little Englander, because I am a British Race Patriot . . . . It is not the soil of England, dear as it is to me, which is essential to arouse my patriotism, but the speech, the tradition, the spiritual heritage, the principles, the aspirations of the British race . . . .
>
> Our first great principle [is], Follow the race. The British State must follow the race, must comprehend it wherever it settles in appreciable numbers as an independent community. If the swarms constantly being thrown off by the parent hive are lost to the State, the State is irreparably weakened. We cannot afford to part with so much of our best blood.

It would be hard to write a finer statement of a high principle or one that we may more unreservedly admire for a combination of realism and loyalty to our race. And it is noteworthy that Quigley, who is as embarrassed by mention of race as Victorian ladies were by mention of sexual intercourse, forbears to cite a statement of which he cannot have been ignorant.[32] Perhaps that is a measure of the atrophy of our race's mentality since 1925.

ENGLAND UNTER ALLES

In the Milner Group we have a conspiracy by an élite—indeed, on the analogy of la crême de la crême, we may call it the élité of an élite. When we look at photographs of the young Englishmen who were recruited by Milner for Rhodes' great undertaking, we have to make an effort to pronounce the word 'conspiracy': they are so obviously healthy, well-balanced, well-bred. They come from the best families: the minor nobility. the gentry, the Anglican clergy. Almost all of them are products of the famous Public Schools, Eton, Winchester, Rugby, Marlborough, and of Oxford (Balliol, Magdalen, New

30. I have written from the Boers' point of view, and I need not add that in the Transvaal and the Orange Free State the inhabitants, largely Dutch, exhibited approximately the same characteristics as the Americans who lived on our frontier as it was moved progressively westward by expropriation of the aborigines. Much that was done in our Winning of the West was not admirable in terms of abstract morality or what was worse, even prudent provision for the future. I do not mean to gird at the British, who did have some cause for complaint and whose policies were constantly confused and muddled by their domestic politicians, especially by that "canting humbug," Gladstone, and by a partly justified fear of German expansion in Africa, which, in turn, was partly an answer to the hostility toward Germany that was being excited by the Jewish and other press in Britain; cf. note 15 supra.

31. One of the most unsavory of those means was the concoction of stories about atrocities committed by the Boers against English women and children in the Transvaal. The first of these was prepared long in advance of even the Jameson Raid and given to one of the few women members of the Milner conspiracy, Miss Flora Shaw, who planted it in the British press when the time came, and may have been the author of some of the "despatches from South Africa" that were used to follow up the heartbreaking appeal from fictitious women and children. The talented Miss Shaw was finally rewarded when, at the age of fifty, she became the blushing bride of Lord Lugard.

32. I owe the quotation to John E. Kendle, The Round Table Movement and Imperial Union (University of Toronto Press, 1975). This is the best companion to Quigley's book, since Kendle's "Round Table Movement" is virtually the same as Quigley's "Milner Group." Kendle has some pertinent information not in Quigley, but he thinks the Group merely a loose association of individuals, because they sometimes disagreed among themselves. He is ignorant of most of the significant indications of conspiracy assembled by Quigley, whose work was, of course, unpublished when he wrote. It is odd that Kendle apparently did not even think of consulting Quigley, who had said enough in his Tragedy and Hope (1966) to show that he had a special interest in the subject. Quigley must have known Milner's "credo," which I have quoted from Kendle, because the files of The Times were one of his principal sources. Much of Kendle's supplementary information comes from sources published after 1949, and while none of it is crucial, we must regret that Quigley never revised his manuscript, much as we sympathize with his disgust at being unable to find a publisher with a modicum of courage or interest in historical truth.

College). Almost all of them have excellent scholastic records, and many went on to hold fellowships in All Souls.

No conspiracy ever had a loftier aim or a more noble purpose. No conspiracy was better organized to escape observation and exert a hidden power over the future of a great nation and empire. And so successfully did they create 'public opinion' in the circles that counted that we could, at the cost of what we know must be an exaggeration, say that they did succeed in controlling, over several decades, the policies of the British Empire that seemed crucial to them.

For the history of their complex and devious operations, I refer you to Quigley's book, in which the essentials, at least, are set forth in detail.[33] We cannot tell from the record to what extent the conspiracy's power was supplemented and strenghtened by other forces, but Quigley, writing in 1949, was able to look over the Milner Group's work during half a century and to see the results that the years since 1949 have only made the more obvious and indubitable. What is important now is what these élite conspirators accomplished.

They destroyed the British Empire.

They reduced their nation from a world-power to a small island off the western coast of Europe.

They found Englishmen the virtual masters of the world and left them a demoralized and denationalized horde, confined to an overcrowded island on which they quarrel foolishly over the ruins of their past.

They made of the Anglo-Saxons and of the whole Aryan race craven and stupefied witlings, evidently obsessed by a suicidal lust to exterminate themselves.

Had they been a nest of the most venomous enemies of their nation and their race, they could not have contrived greater disasters.

Incredible? Alas, no! The record is all there. Every policy that the conspirators sought to impose on Great Britain was, in fact, adopted and carried out to its bitter end. A few examples will suffice.

They helped incite the catastrophic war against Germany in

33. At certain points, particularly concerning the short reign of King Edward VIII and preparations for the catastrophic war that began in 1939, Quigley's narrative is inadequate and omits some of the activities in which the Milner Group must have been engaged. At first reading, I wondered whether the publisher had censored the manuscript by omitting sections or chapters, but on reconsideration I decided that the gaps were probably caused by Quigley's inability or unwillingness to see what was important. In 1949 and, as one may see from Tragedy and Hope, even as late as 1966, he still naïvely believed, or prudently feigned to believe, the Jews' intrinsically absurd propaganda about "Nazi Germany."

1914. At one point, Quigley (p. 326, n. 1) concludes, "There can be no doubt that the original inspiration for the Round Table movement was to be found in anti-German feeling.... There are some indications that this was the primary motive and that the stated purpose of working for imperial federation was, to some extent at least, a mask." They had obviously learned nothing from their first exploit, for although they exaggerated German power and preparations in alarmist statements to the public, they must have themselves underestimated the Germans as much as Rhodes underestimated the Boers, when he thought that a few hundred men in his pay could annex the two republics in short order. And they had learned nothing by 1939![34]

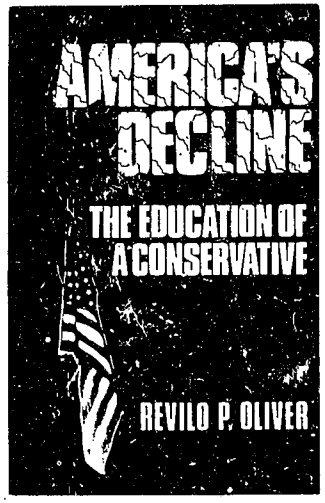
It was Milner himself who wrote the infamous "Balfour Declaration" that installed the Jews in Palestine and began the endless woes that that nest of our unappeasable enemies has brought upon the whole world.

They loudly advocated and eventually procured the independence of India, which began the total collapse of the Empire.

They argued for an imperial "federation" (although, as we have seen, that may have been a mask for their war-mongering) and they begat the grotesque abortion that is now called a "Commonwealth" and has served only to flood the British Isles with the niggers and Oriental mongrels who are obviously intended to replace the Anglo-Saxon and Celtic inhabitants by breeding themselves into a "democratic" majority. And the conspirators left the British people so impoverished in spirit and paralysed in mind that they submit to the obscene invasion with the docility of cows in a milking-shed.

Everything the Milner Group touched became disaster. And in the end their conspiracy itself perished. Even in Oxford the influence of the surviving members in 1949 had suffered a "disastrous decline," and, as Quigley continues, the survivors could scarcely believe in themselves, for it was clear that "In foreign policy their actions almost destroyed Western civilization." And thus "It would seem that the great idealistic adventure which began with Toynbee and Milner in 1875 had slowly ground its way to a finish of bitterness and ashes."

34. Some of the Group, according to Quigley, had the wicked idea that it would be best to let the nasty Germans destroy Holy Mother Russia and thus to avoid ruining Great Britain to satisfy the Jewish rancor against our race. But "public opinion in England" forced those dissidents to accept the noble purpose of attacking Germany. And who, prey tell us, Mr. Quigley, had been industriously and effectively creating that "public opinion" for decades? Cf. my preceding note.



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM "AMERICA'S DECLINE"

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

376 pp., pb. $8.50
plus $1 for post. & hdlg.

ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

propaganda campaign to scare Mexicans out of the Peso and into Dollars, then set up clever ways of moving flight capital out of Mexico and into the U.S., where it was used to fund the real estate swindle in NYC, Dallas, and L.A. At the same time the sneaky Jews were managing this torrent of flight capital, they were busy betting against the peso on the foreign currency markets, and having the (Jewish) IMF demand Mexico devalue the peso. Mexican President Portillo commented that in three years they had stolen more from Mexico than all the Empires that had ever oppressed Mexico since its beginning. Then, on September 4, Mexico struck back. At noon on that day, the military occupied every bank in Mexico and nationalized them all, including the Jewish Bank of Mexico! With one blow the Jewish control over Mexican finance was shattered! Thousands of Jew speculators lost their shirts when their fix on the peso collapsed! The Jews-media and the IMF screamed like stuck pigs. An immediate attempt was made to have a military coup overthrow the Mexican government, but it fell flat. Every segment of Mexican society rejoiced in the downfall of their tormentors, from the Commie left to the nationalist right. The Jews were reduced to babbling threats about having the US invade Mexico to "protect" the oil fields. When the IMF demanded Mexico reverse its measures and resubmit to Jewish rule, Mexican President Portillo simply declared a unilateral moratorium on the debt for three months. The Jews shrieked with horror at the thought of their $81,000,000,000 in phony debt going up in smoke and rushed to placate Mexico by loaning them $9.5 billion more (including $4 billion stolen from the American people) so they could keep up the payments to the banks.

The point of all this is that, for the first time since Hitler took over the "Bank of Germany" in 1933, the power of Jewish finance has been broken in a major country. And how flimsy that power turned out to be! Without their money-power the Jews are nothing! Of course, the struggle will go on as every dirty Jewish means of pressure, subversion and war is turned upon Mexico, but this time it is not just one country. Every nation of South America threatens to follow suit and default on their unpayable debts to the Yids. A dozen or so countries have already defaulted. The whole apparatus of Jewish money control, set up after the Jewish victory at the end of WWII, is now collapsing due to Jewish greed which has bankrupted the entire world.

This opens the way for the final phase of the revolt against Jewry. I notice many of the subscribers to the Liberty Bell are poverty stricken. The rich are generally on the Jewish payroll. The middle class, that still has something to lose, doesn't want to hear about opposing the Jews for fear of their economic reprisals. This is no idle threat as I personally know of two people who have been ruined financially by the Jews because they dared question the filthy "Holycaust" lie in public. As long as most people still were making a living and had something to lose, they were content or afraid of opposing the Jews. The collapse of the Jewish money swindle now opens up the same chance as Hitler had after the economic collapse of 1928-32. Of course, the Jews will try to turn the discontent from the ongoing financial collapse into their beloved Communism. It is up to us to spread the word as to who is really responsible for our troubles and who controls Communism as well.

Since July of this year, the Jewish Federal Reserve Bank has been hyperinflating to try and bail out the bankrupt Jewish banks and support their fictitious 20 trillion dollars in debt. We will feel this in the form of hyperinflation next year. The collapse of the Jewish money system is the opportunity we have been waiting for since 1933 to throw off the Jew vampires who are sucking our blood.

Sincerely,
R.S., New York

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 20 September 1982

I would like to subscribe to your publication "The Liberty Bell."

Thanking you in anticipation; you are doing a great job,

Yours faithfully,
J.L., New Zealand

* * * * *

Sirs, 23 September 1982

I have heard about your great organization through a friend from Atlanta and want to join up and get your newsletter. Down here, the white man is really an endangered species and we better quickly let Washington know so. I don't know what to do about the niggers and Communists that seem to be in the paper just about every day now. I am a good Christian but I am tired of turning the other cheek, and I think maybe even Jesus would lose patience these days.

Sincerely,
G.W., Georgia

* * * * *

Dear George: 20 September 1982

Greetings from Australia!

I hope you know that here in Australia and also in New Zealand you have many readers and I am sure that many people in this area do what we do: pass the Liberty Bell around so that as many readers can get the message. Your little magazine is a tremendous boost to us all.

When we heard of the massacre of the Palestinians and the Lebanese in the last few days, there was no doubt in our minds as to who the real culprit was. Seems it is the time again when the Jews celebrate their New Year and need new victims for their sacrifices.

Also, the other day we discussed the artifiial insemination of women and the thought occurred to us that, as the Jews are mainly in charge of this program, how will the women be protected against being inseminated with sperm from absolute idiots in order to reduce the white race even further in its capabilities? That the vasectomy of men is also a Jewish invention, I don't have to tell you.

Keep up the good work, George. You have all our blessings.

Sincerely,
G.S.K., Australia

* * * * *

Dear George: 30 September 1982

You're damn straight! Renew my subscription to the Liberty Bell. Too bad I wasn't able to subscribe years earlier because I had never even heard about you before our first contact.

I just finished reading the September issue, and wouldn't you and we all know: Professor Revilo P. Oliver did it again! Fascinatingly compelling reading by a truly great, analytical personality of whom I wish I could have the honor of some day meeting in person. I absolutely believe in, and agree with, what he says. HE IS MY HERO.

Have you heard HOW the German invasion of Poland was so successful?: They marched in backwards and told everyone they were leaving!!! (I heard that one at a local German ethnic fest from one of the Tyrolian attired minstrels.) At a later Octoberfest I had the surprising pleasure to hear the band play, to a Polka beat, "Die Fahne Hoch." I told one of the band members that I recognized that song and asked how they could dare play it and get away with it. (I cheered them for it and realized that most people there had no idea what they were dancing to.) He replied, "If anyone asks, we just tell them it's an old German Polka."

Thank you, always yours,
P.S., Michigan

* * * * *

Dear George: 1 October 1982

Things are getting worse and worse, and in some way we should be glad and tell with pride how it was in 1933. The Yid bastards are getting deeper and deeper into the political quagmire and are indeed preparing the rope to hang themselves.

Well, I had that feeling that sooner or later the Chief [Manfred Roeder —Ed.] would be terrorized and incarcerated. One could cry and weep for our cause, but we shall never, never surrender and fight to the bitter end!

All the very best and keep the faith: Was uns nicht umbringt macht uns nur noch staerker!

My Best,
J.D., Connecticut

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 1 October 1982

The quality of the material that you produce is excellent, as I recently discovered when I received a large supply of literature that I ordered from you. Your work is vital to National Socialism world-wide.

We Populists of Northwest Missouri are a bit isolated, but the letters from other Missourians that often appear in the Liberty Bell indicate that we're not alone.

For Victory,
P.P., Missouri

PLEASE ASK YOUR FRIENDS TO SUBSCRIBE TO THE LIBERTY BELL!

Gentlemen: 5 October 1982

I have been involved for a number of years in exposing the tragic circumstances blaming Germany for WWII. Being of German descent, my family served the fatherland for many generations. Our family comes from "Ostpreussen" and, needless to say, I am very proud of my German heritage. I have many friends in Germany as well as in South America and South Africa. There people, like you, have dedicated their lives to "correct" the lie that has been cast upon our sacred Reich. — "Der Ewige Jude"—Need I say more?!

. . . Someday the world will know the truth—but it is up to us. We cannot and will not let those that went before us to have done so in vain. As the German poet, Walter Flex, wrote: Germany Must Live, Even if We Must Die!

Your name was given to me by the Belgian Nationalist group VMO.

In spiritual solidarity, sincerely,
L.F., Louisiana

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 6 October 1982

Great lead article in Sept. Liberty Bell. Glad you printed it, "The Coming Religious Revolution." . . . Certainly enjoy the Liberty Bell.

Sincerely,
Mrs. E.S., California

* * * * *

Dear George: 6 October 1982

I am rather late with my subscription renewal for the Liberty Bell. But I am doing this right now with a check for $50 of which $22 are for my subscription and the remainder for a donation toward your expenses, which, I imagine, are stressed. I know, everyone who strives toward a different social order does not have the funds available to him. The mosaic-capitalist system, to which the American people have submitted themselves and which will keep even our yet unborn grandchildren in bondage, will also keep everbody down whoever points the finger on this perilous situation.— Keep on going. Even if the popular opinion will not recognize some of the things you publish, the people will eventually remember them.

I wish you good luck in your endeavor, and I also hope to see you sometime in person.

Yours,
E.G., Maryland

* * * * *

Hi, George: 6 October 1982

Hope you are doing well. Liberty Bell is great! Here is a small contribution plus sub renewal. Hope to help out more soon. Thank you, sir, very much for everything you are doing for our cause.

Yours truly,
R.N., Idaho

* * * * *

Dear George: 7 October 1982

Please add my name to your list of subscribers to your Liberty Bell. Why I have waited this long to send you a check is absolutely beyond me. Of the enclosed check for $20, please use $5 for your "support fund."

Sincerely,
B.J., Florida

* * * * *

To Whom it may Concern: 7 October 1982

My name is Richard L. Savina. I was convicted in Federal Court in Baltimore, Md., over 18 months ago, for the alleged conspiracy to bomb the Maryland headquarters of the NAACP, and was sentenced to 15 years.

The reason I am writing you is because a lot of my friends in different parts of the U.S. as well as Australia and Canada wrote me and said to write you for your literature. Can you, in some way, put me on your mailing list? Thank you.

Sincerely,
Richard L. Savina, No. 18358-037
902 Renfroe Rd., Talladega, AL 35160

[We have mailed this White man a package of reading material free of charge. Would anyone of our subscribers care to enter a subscription for him? —Ed.]

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 7 October 1982

I just finished writing Major D.V. Clerkin a letter telling him about reading his speech, "Onward Aryan Warriors," in your September issue, and how much I really exnjoyed reading it.

I received your publication right on time Mr. Dietz, and also your fine book catalog. I passed the catalog right on, so, hopefully, more people will order from you and will become aware of the truth, and also become more aware of the Jewish lies being fed to our people for so long.

Your racial friend,
Melvin L. Cox, No. 19334-175
PO Box W, (H-Unit), Lompoc, CA 93438

[Mr. Cox is a regular subscriber to The Liberty Bell and has purchased several books for his own education and that of fellow inmates. we are sure he would like to hear from our subscribers in the form of letters and/or book donations. Anyone care to help? —Ed.]

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 7 October 1982

Your Liberty Bell books are terrific reading. Every smart voter knows that the Jewish-Zionist Lobby runs Washington. Since 1948, America loaned to Israel 25 billion dollars. The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith is a secret Jewish Society that spies on those who are not pro-Israel.

There is one thing that I must relate to you and will never forgive Hitler's armies for killing and wounding thousands of defenseless Polish civilians. The good Polish people never bothered the German people. I wish you would condemn Hitler for committing Genocide against the wonderful Polish people, who were always peaceful.

Sincerely,
P.S., New York

Dear Mr. S., when I read the last paragraph of your letter, I almost lost my temper and was ready to let you know in no uncertain terms what I thought of your diatribe about "killing and wounding of thousands of defenseless Polish civilians," "The good Polish people never bothered the German people," and "committing Genocide against the wonderful Polish people, who were always peaceful." Now that I have regained my composure, and my inborn modesty has gotten the upper hand, I just want to tell you that YOU SIMPLY DON'T KNOW WHAT THE HELL YOU ARE TALKING ABOUT!!! There is ample documentation available that shows beyond the shadow of a doubt that there is no other people on the face of this earth that committed more brutal, blood-thirsty and heinous crimes against their fellow white men and fellow tribesmen (most Poles and Czechs are of Germanic origin and spoke German until, centuries ago, the Catholic Church succeeded in imposing an artificial language upon these Germanic tribes and thus driving wedges between them) than the Polish and Czech peoples. THEY are the ones who, in cold blood, raped, tortured and then sadistically massacred, not just a few hundred, but tens of thousands of their German fellow Catholics and Protestants, probably in the name of their Lord and Saviour, in a display of blood-thirsty madness heretofor unheard of in human history! And I am here not merely referring to the atrocities your "good" and "peaceful" Polish people committed at the end of World War II, but also in particular to those your people committed in earlier centuries (in spite of the fact that there is not one town in Ost-Germanien (that you now call "Polen") that was not built, not civilized and not made prosperous by GERMANS, but also to those your "peaceful" people committed right from the end of World War I. (even though Germany was instrumental in "putting Poland back on the map"!) to the day before the Second World War broke out (I here remind you of the "Bromberger Blutsonntag," a massacre a day before the War broke out during which your "peaceful" people literally SLAUGHTERED 10,000 of my people!), when Hitler finally put a stop to your arrogance and megalomania, by knocking your "Army" of uncouth savages for a loop within 18 days. What you polacks got, you had brought upon yourself—and deserved to the fullest! What you are getting at the hands of the Soviets today, you—spinners of legendary yarn for centuries—also fully deserve—and more!

Meanwhile, Mr. Sadowski, I suggest you do a little checking on your "facts" by reading some of the documentation that is available: DIE POLNISCHEN GREUELTATEN AN DEN VOLKSDEUTSCHEN IN POLEN; DER BROMBERGER BLUTSONNTAG; POLENS UNAUFHALTSAMER MARSCH IN DEN 2. WELTKRIEG; OST-GERMANIEN, among others. Once you are armed with the TRUE facts, not phantasies of arrogant Polish brains, you may write me again; otherwise—and I'll skip the formalities—just get lost!

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 7 October 1982

Hi! Thank you ever so much for the catalog, The Liberty Bell, and the stickers; I've put some up already, and hope the people will listen this time!

A year ago, I dropped out of the Movement (although never completely), because I thought "we'd never make it." That was a big mistake. But even then I kept preaching to everyone the evils of Communism. It's great to hear from you and the N.S.W.P.P.

I have read in the July Liberty Bell the attack on Christianity—I agree, except that there is a big difference between Christianity and "Churchianity." I am a Roman Catholic, and have been raised with a lot of crazy, misled lies. The "Sword of Christ" has helped me straighten them out. I wouldn't argue this with you, or with anybody, but I have learned that White Christians are the lost tribes of Israel; WE'RE the Chosen People, and the Fuehrer is the forerunner of Christ! So for believers and non-believers, either way you look at it, the truth comes out the same. 88!

Miss S.A., Minnesota

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 14 October 1982

I want to thank you for the free subscription to the Liberty Bell. I am a Viet Nam era veteran and I will show the magazine to vets here in the hospital. Thank you again.

Best regards,
Thomas Streib
VA Hospital
Tomah, Wisconsin 54660

[We are sure this Vet would be glad to hear from our supporters by way of letters and/or book donations. Anyone care to help? —Ed.]

* * * * *

Gentlemen: 15 October 1982

Your leaflet "Who Rules America?" is extremely revealing and useful, especially to wipe my a... with if and when out of toilet paper—a little rough on the haemorrhoids, though.

Sincerely,
Jefferson Davis
241 Alabama Street, Buffalo, NY 14201

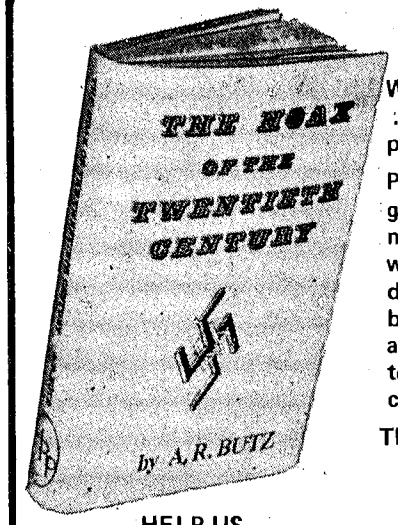
* * * * *

The lies you preach have become dangerous to your small organization! Individuals in your group will soon experience us in a most gruesome way, as individuals who have TRIED to spread the same lies have recently experienced (perhaps someone you know?).

YOU'LL NEVER SEE...YOU'LL NEVER KNOW US! IN THE DARKNESS OF THE NIGHT YOU'LL NEVER HEAR US!

postmarked: New York

[As I told you silly Yids on the phone before: just come on down, the weather is nice! In keeping with their state motto: Montani semper liberi, West Virginian white folk always ask stupid questions later! With deer (buck) hunting season coming in the end of November, there are a few white men here who would like nothing better than decorating their walls with the head of a nice (booknosed, Jewish) buck! —Ed.]



THE "HOLOCAUST" — FACT OR FICTION?

Were six million Jews really gassed . . . or has a colossal hoax been perpetrated on the world?

Professor Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6 million Jews during WW II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
$6.00 plus $1. for postage & hdlg.
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

HELP US SPREAD THE TRUTH!

BACK IN PRINT:

MONEY CREATORS
by Gertrude M. Coogan
Reveals Secrets the Money Changers Have Paid Millions to Conceal! — $5.50

LAWFUL MONEY EXPLAINED
by Gertrude M. Coogan
How To Win Back Your America! — $3.50

Order your copies from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

continued from page 6

some of the fundamental earmarks of sanity is to be able to distinguish between reality and fantasy, to be able to think logically and rationally, and to base all this thinking and logic on meaningful evidence. We furthermore take the position that we will oppose, expose and denounce those who in our good judgment are behaving and expounding about a fantasy world of spookcraft, the same as if they were insane about any other subject. The fact that they dress their insanity in the all inclusive cloak of "religion" is not going to buy them any immunity, as far as we are concerned.

Spooks in the Sky Swindle is Mass Insanity. We deem these spook-in-the-sky stories as mass insanity whether they go under the guise of Christianity or any other pretext. We will be especially aggressive and articulate about our opposition if we see that indulgence in such nonsense is harmful to our precious White Race. We CREATORS believe that this world is the only one that our breed of man has ever inhabited, and for the forseeable future, ever will. We believe this world and the universe is real and that in this universe this Planet Earth is our home and our only home, and it behooves us to make the most of it. We believe all this because the evidence is real, meaningful and overwhelming that this is so. On the other hand, there is not a scintilla of evidence for the Christians' far-fetched claims that there are spooks in the skies flitting about, lurking over our shoulders, taking notes on our every move and controlling our destiny on earth. Nor is there a shred of meaningful evidence to support the claim that these spooks in the sky will relegate our souls to a fiery pit or some vague heaven after our death. Such idiotic claims are only based on myths, lies and hearsay that would be thrown out of any court of law as meaningless and inadmissable hearsay. Nobody, least of all the Christians themselves, knows who wrote all this silly trash about the spooks-in-the-sky.

Disastrous to the White Race. The spooks in the sky story would be ridiculously funny to us CREATORS, had not the consequences of this sickness of the mind been disastrously catastrophic to the welfare of the White Race, as Marcus Ely Ravage has pointed out in the previous chapter. Whereas nobody knows who wrote the Jewish-Christian bible, we do know it was written by our deadly enemies, the treacherous Jews. How and why they used Christianity to destroy the great and noble Roman civilization we have already detailed in a previous chapter—a tragic story that makes interesting reading indeed.

CREATIVE CREDO No. 46

GULLIBILITY RATING QUIZ

In order to get your friends to stop and think about the mental trap they have been led into by Jewish Christianity and other propaganda, we have prepared a set of leading questions. It should be instrumental in not only exposing their gullibility, but also realizing how their minds are cluttered with archaic superstitions. In short, it should serve as an initial antidote in the long process of de-toxifying the mind of long accumulated garbage and debris.

Here are some pointed questions you might ask:

1. Did you once believe in Santa Claus?

(a) Where did you get such an idea?

(b) How long has this concept been kicking around?

(c) Is Santa Claus real, or just a figment of the imagination?

(d) When did you stop believing in Santa Claus?

(e) What made you change your mind?

(f) Were you angry at the kid who set you straight?

(g) Should you have been?

2. Did you once believe the story about the Easter bunny laying Easter eggs?

(a) Where did you get the story from in the first place?

(b) Do you still believe that story?

(c) As a thinking adult, don't you think it would be childish gullibility to persist in believing in such fantasies when the evidence of the real world has long demolished such myths?

(d) As a child, were you gullible to believe in such fantasies?

(e) Do you think it is good for adults to remain as gullible and superstitious as a little child?

3. Do you believe in spirits or ghosts?

(a) If so, where did you get your first conceptions about spirits?

(b) Have you ever seen, heard, felt or smelt any spirits or ghosts? Has anybody else that you know personally?

(c) Could you describe precisely what a spirit is, what it does, where it resides, etc.?

4. Do you believe in evil spirits, demons, lucifers or devils?

(a) If so, have you ever seen, heard, felt or smelt any? Has anybody else you know?

(b) If you believe in evil spirits, from where did you get your first impressions of them?

5. Do you believe in holy ghosts, holy spirits, angels, etc.?

(a) If so, where are they?

(b) Have you ever seen, heard, felt or smelt any? Has anybody else you know personally?

(c) If not, how do you know they exist?

6. In India there are hundreds of millions of people who believe cows are holy. A large number also believe rats are holy, monkeys are holy, snakes are holy.

(a) Do you believe there is any evidence to substantiate such beliefs?

(b) If not, how do you explain their persistent belief in such nonsense for thousands of years?

(c) Do you believe that such superstitions have been beneficial or harmful in solving the real problems of the world?

(d) Would you say these people were gullible and superstitious to believe such nonsense?

7. Do you believe there are gods or spirits looking over your shoulder directing your destiny?

(a) Have you ever seen, heard, felt or smelt any? Has any body else?

(b) Do you believe they are keeping track of your every move, every word?

(c) Do you believe that they can and will throw you into a fiery lake of sulphur and torture you in all eternity if you cross them up?

8. Hundreds of millions of Mohammedans claim their Koran is a "holy" book written by "Allah" through their prophet Mohammed.

(a) Do you believe this is true?

(b) Do you believe it is a big hoax?

(c) If the latter, how do you explain hundreds of millions of Mohammedans believing such a hoax?

(d) Do you believe they could be gullible?

(e) Could it be possible that millions of people have been deluded for thousands of years?

9. Several million Mormons believe their book is "holy" (the Book of Mormon), and that it was written by god through his latter-day prophet named Joseph Smith.

(a) Do you believe the Book of Mormon to be true?

(b) Do you believe it is "holy"?

(c) Do you think it is a great big hoax?

(d) How do you explain millions of Mormons "believing" in it?

(e) Is it possible that millions of Mormons have been deceived and deluded for more than a hundred years?

(f) Did you know there is an abundance of solid evidence that the Book of Mormon was plagiarized (by Smith) from an earlier fictional novel called Manuscript Found written by Solomon Spalding? (We have more about this in a future chapter.)

10. Do you believe the Christian bible is holy?

(a) Do you know who wrote it?

(b) How do you know?

(c) What do you know about the honesty of the people who are credited with writing it?

(d) Is it possible that the Christians have been deceived and deluded about their "holy" book as the Mormons and the Mohammedans have about theirs?

11. Do you believe the Jews are god's chosen people as the bible says?

(a) If so, how do you explain the fact that they don't believe in Christ, nor the New Testament, haven't for 80 generations, and don't today?

(b) How do you explain the contradictory claims of the Old Testament versus the New Testament that (a) the Jews are god's chosen people, and (b) we are all equal in the eyes of the lord?

12. Do you believe in hell?

(a) If so, isn't this the most horrible, fiendish concept ever conceived by either man or spirits?

(b) Do you know of anybody that has ever been there to bring back a meaningful report about it?

(c) If not, how do you know it exists?

(d) If you believe it exists, just where is it located? How do you know?

13. Don't you think the idea of burning, roasting and barbecuing people for all eternity as a form of punishment is the most horrible, heinous, macabre, fiendish, cruel and idiotic concept ever invented by evil minds?

(a) Would you punish your own children by hellish torture if they didn't believe your mythical story of Santa Claus as they got older and more sensible?

(b) Don't you think any spook in the sky, holy or otherwise, would be extremely cruel and fiendish and idiotic for inflicting such horrible punishment on "his children" for not believing a collection of garbled myths without funrishing some meaningful evidence?

14. Do you believe it possible that like the Mormons, Mohammedans, Brahmans, and thousands of other existing religious cults, you too might be hoaxed, deceived and deluded in gullibly accepting the "spooks in the sky" story about "pie in the sky when you die" or "fry in the sky when you die?"

CREATIVE CREDO No. 67

IN THE NAME OF THE WHITE RACE A DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE FROM JEWISH TYRANNY

Since a penetrating study of both contemporary and ancient history has conclusively revealed the following situation:

1. The Jewish race by choice has waged deadly, unrelenting warfare against us, the White Race, in order to destroy us.

2. The Jewish people are banded together in a vicious racial, religious and political conspiracy to gain control of all the money, all the economic and financial resources, all the land and territory and real estate of the world, in short, its total wealth.

3. The Jews have made it their primary goal to mongrelize, kill, decimate and otherwise destroy the White Race.

4. The Jews are determined to enslave all the races of the world, including the final mongrelized product of the White Race that they intend bringing about.

5. The Jews have in the past successfully and successively destroyed our White Racial ancestors, to name a few: The White Egyptians; the highly creative and gifted Greeks of Classical History; The great and noble Romans of ancient times.

6. The Jewish conspiracy now owns, and/or monopolizes, controls the majority of the White Man's industry, finances, educational facilities, news media, television networks, government, religion, and monopolizes all or nearly all instruments of thought control.

7. The White Race is now an occupied and enslaved people under the cruel heel of the Jewish tyranny. Now, therefore, we of the CHURCH OF THE CREATOR, in the name of all our White Racial Comrades throughout the world, proclaim this, our own Declaration of Independence.

We hereby resolve that it is our sacred duty and holy obligation, not only to ourselves, but also to our noble ancestors that produced us, and our precious progeny who will follow us, to bring about a world situation in which we are determined:

1. To throw off the yoke of Jewish tyranny and control.

2. To wrest control of the White Man's destiny into the loyal and capable hands of our own people.

3.To eternally fight for the survival, expansion and advancement of the White Race.

4. To shrink our enemies, namely the Jews and the other mud races, and expand the territory, the power and the number of our own White Racial Comrades.

5. To make it impossible for the Jews and other mud races to ever again threaten the existence and well-being of the White Race.

To this, our Declaration of Independence, we forever pledge our Lives, our Sacred Honor and our Religious Zeal.

HELP WANTED:

The Church of the Creator is now building a new 3-story World Center in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Western North Carolina. If you have the proper qualifications. here is the chance of a lifetime to help wage effective war on the conspiracy.

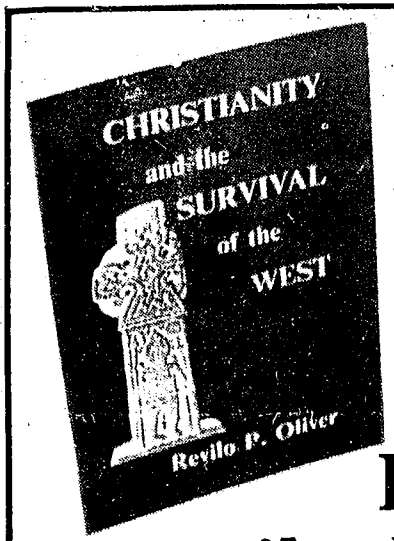
TWO KEY SALARIED POSITIONS AVAILABLE:

1. SPEARHEAD (Executive Director). 2. EDITOR: New publication being planned. Our Religion, CREATIVITY, is dedicated to the Survival, Expansion, and Advancement of the White Race. Please send all inquiries—including resume, background material and photo—to:

Ben Klassen, P.M., Church of the Creator
P.O. Box 5908, Lighthouse Point, FL 33064

The Creed and Program of the Church of the Creator are spelled out iin three basic books: Nature's Eternal Religion (512 pp., $8.00. The White Man's Bible (451 pp., $8.00; Salubrious Living (244 pp., $5.50). SPECIAL OFFER: All three books $15. plus $1.50 for postage and handling. Send your orders to:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.V. 25270

Additional copies of this 12-page pamphlet: 5/$1.50; 100/$20.; 500/$80. available from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21. Reedy, WV 25270 USA.



Will the end of our religion mean the end of our race?

A Great Iconoclast Details the Causes and Consequences of the Religious Disintegration of Western Man

Quality paperback, 84 pp. — $4.00 plus 65 cents for postage & handling
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

FOR MY LEGIONARIES

The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

THE ANTI-HUMANS by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270. today!

ATTENTION PAMPHLETEERS!
Here are two useful stamps for you!

$4.50 per stamp
$0.50 postage

COMMUNISM IS JEWISH!

Order from: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270

The Liberty Bell

SINGLE COPY $1.75

'POPULISM' and 'ELITISM'

PART II
CONCLUSION
page 7

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

A FEW OBVIOUS QUESTIONS WE WOULD LIKE CHRISTIANS TO EXPLAIN WITH SOME SENSIBLE ANSWERS & WHY WE INDICT CHRISTIANITY SO STRONGLY, page 1
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, page 5
AT A COST OF ONLY SEVEN LIVES, page 55

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

VOL. 10 — NO. 3 ISSN 0145-7667 NOVEMBER 1982

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

Reprinted with the author's permission from The White Man's Bible, Copyright 1981, by Ben Klassen.

A FEW OBVIOUS QUESTIONS WE WOULD LIKE CHRISTIANS TO EXPLAIN WITH SOME SENSIBLE ANSWERS

1. Would you buy a used car from a salesman who was so loose with the truth that he described his own funeral and expected you to be gullible enough to believe it (as does Moses)?

2. Supposing you stood on the edge of the Grand Canyon at the place where it was ten miles wide and one mile deep. You had a book in your hand that said, "The Grand Canyon at its widest is so narrow you can step across it." Which would you believe—the printed page, or the physical fact of Nature before your eyes?

3. Similarly in reading the "printed word" which says that the world is only (approximately) six thousand years old, but again, looking at the Grand Canyon, your common sense tells you it must have taken millions of years for the river to have eroded such a massive canyon out of the thousands of rock strata. Which would you believe, the "printed word," or your eyes and your common sense? (Geologists estimate it took at least 60 million years to carve the Grand Canyon and several billion years to lay down the rock strata through which it cuts.)

4. If God is so anxious to "save" everybody from hell, why did he create hell in the first place?

5. If the devil is the root of all evil in this world and "the next," why did God create the devil in the first place?

6. Did he make a mistake?

7. If he did make a mistake, why doesn't he correct it and just simply kill the devil? After all, he is all powerful, so it shouldn't be any problem. Or is he in cahoots with the devil? Furthermore, he didn't hesitate to drown all the human beings (except one family) in the Great Flood, which according to Bible scholars occurred in 2348 B.C. So why doesn't he eliminate the devil once and for all and get to the root of the problem?

8. Could the devil continue to exist and carry on his nefarious trade without the collaboration, cooperation, and assistance of the all-powerful God?

9. Are God and the devil in cahoots?

10. How do you explain the fact that the Bible tells us (in the Old Testament) over and over again that the Jews are God's Chosen. Yet the Jews don't believe in Christ or the New Testament and are therefore, ipso facto, doomed to go to hell. This has been going on for 2,000 years and eighty generations. How do you explain this?

11. So why would God have such a schizophrenic preference for the Jews and yet send them all to hell?

12. Why would God have such extremely bad taste as to prefer such scurrilous criminals and reprobates as Abraham (peddled his wife off as a prostitute even at the age of ninety.) David (a murderer many times over, committed adultry with Uriah's wife and had Uriah treacherously murdered). Solomon (owned the world's biggest whorehouse) Judah (fornicated with his daughter-in-law.)

13. Do you deem it proper to glorify these repugnant scoundrels and hold them up as examples to your children in Sunday School? (Remember they were God's favorites.)

14. Would you be proud to have such people as your father, or brother, or ancestors?

15. What is supposed to happen to all the billions of people, good, bad and indifferent, who lived before the year 1 A.D. and therefore never heard of Christ? (According to the Bible, there is only heaven or hell in the hereafter, and only those who believe in Christ can be saved from hell.)

16. What about the billions of people—blacks, Chinese, Hindus, Polynesians, etc., who live and die in the present age and never heard of Christ?

17. Can you think of a more sadistic, horrible, monstrous, diabolical idea than creating a huge, fiery lake, or pit of molten sulphur, and then torturing people in all eternity in such excruciating pain without the mercy of allowing death to end it all?

18. Could you LOVE a monster who would create such a horrible place of torture and create billions of creatures to put into it?

19. Couldn't God foresee what he was doing?

20. Couldn't he have done it different?

21. Couldn't he stop it all even today and release all his victims?

22. Why doesn't he do it?

23. Isn't the very idea of "man" having a "free will" in direct conflict with the idea that God planned it all, knows everything forwards and backwards and controls it all? Either our actions, our "free will" is out of God's control or it isn't free. If it is in God's control, then it isn't free and we can't be held responsible. If God isn't in control, then the Bible is lying when it claims "not a hair falls from our head, or a sparrow from the roof, but he wills it." You can't have it both ways. How do you explain this?

24. If Christians really believe that getting to heaven is so wonderful, why do they so desperately cling to life and utilize every means of medical and scientific assistance (for which they profess such contempt and disdain) to prolong life to the bitter end?

25. Do you really believe such tall tales as (a) the Israelites walked through the dry bottom of the Red Sea? (b) Jonah lived in the belly of a whale for three whole days (all that acid and no air) and was spewed up unharmed? (c) Joshua could make the "sun stand still" for a day so he could kill more enemies? (d) and a host of others?

26. Would you believe your own father if he told you such wild tales happening to him?

27. If the Great Flood is supposed to have happened in the year 2348 B.C. or thereabouts, how do you explain Egyptian and (other history) extending back to at least 6000 years in a continuous chain with no dampening or interruption at the supposed time of the Great Flood?

28. Could it be the "written word" is lying to us?

29. If God (and Christ) are so anxious to save (from hell) all the billions of people he himself created, why doesn't he make a personal appearance to this world, say every decade or so? This would certainly be more convincing than a lot of contradictory claims on the printed page. If he could hop back and forth between heaven and earth at the time of the Israelites and had time for such nonsense as wrestling with Jacob all night, why can't he, and why doesn't he, make a personal appearance to the much more numerous world of today?

30. Despite its claims to the contrary, Christians and the Bible are in direct conflict with science, especially geology, which tells us the world has been around for several billion years, with astronomy, with biology, geography, the study of fossils, authentic history as derived from other books and sources. Which do you prefer to believe—frivolous and unsubstantiated claims, or massive and detailed evidence accumulated by science over many centuries?

31. Unless the White Man changes his thinking soon, America (and the world) is going to degenerate to a mass of criminal black savages. Are you indifferent about your children and grandchildren being engulfed and swallowed up into such a hopeless and depraved world?

32. Does Christianity have any solution for this coming catastrophe?

33. Do you believe in ghosts, gremlins, spirits and spooks? Is there any evidence for such?

34. Are you superstitious and gullible?

35. Is there any more merit for believing in your set of spooks, (angels, witches, devils, holy ghost, etc.) than the Hindu believing cows are holy, or the savages of Africa believing in witch doctors, evil spirits, etc.?

36. Have you ever seen any of the spooks in the sky you profess to believe in?

37. Just what sky do they reside in—over Australia, Africa, Boston or where? How many million miles away are they?

38. If you have never seen them and you don't know where they are, how do you know they exist?

CREATIVE CREDO No. 57

WHY WE INDICT CHRISTIANITY SO STRONGLY

Multitude of Reasons. We have used up many pages of this book exposing and debunking Christianity for the fraud that it is. Since so many of our good White Racial Comrades are more or less infected with this fungus on the brain, I have been asked by some of our supporters why I take such a hostile position towards Christianity, which after all has been the principal religion of the White Race for nearly 2000 years. Not only that, but some of our most patriotic citizens, some of our best people, are Christians. Why not just live and let live, and leave the religious issue alone? These are good questions and I am eager to answer them.

1. In the first place, this whole "spooks in the sky" story is a swindle, a lie, as I have exposed page after page. It is based on an emotional and psychological con-game, and in the thousands of years that ghosts, demons, gods and spooks have been used to frighten gullible people into submission, to exploit them and enslave them, not one single shred of meaningful evidence has been produced to substantiate the claim that such supernatural spooks exist. We indict Christianity of promoting this swindle on the White Race.

2. To those people who argue that we can't prove they don't exist, we remind them of a fundamental principle of law and evidence, namely, if they make the claim (that spooks exist) the burden of proof is on them, not us.

3. Any time you base any movement, or program, or creed, on a lie, you are headed for disaster. Until such lie or error is corrected, progress is impossible, and disaster is inevitable. To quote a few examples: If we allow that "all men are created equal" to stand, this lie then spawns a whole network of new lies, all of which seem rational, provided we believe the basic lie. If you believe the basic lie of all men being equal, then you should have no objection to your daughter marrying a nigger, letting all the scum, all the niggers from Haiti and elsewhere come into the United States, etc. It is similar to the situation if say, in elementary school when your teacher taught you the times table and he injected just one error into it, that two times two was seventeen. If you believed that then two times four could rationally be thirty four, etc.,etc. Until you had this obvious error in your mind corrected you could expect nothing but miscalculations and errors in your mathematics for the rest of your life. It is the same with this spooks in the sky fraud, a basic lie, that has haunted and plagued the White Race for thousands of years. Until this fraud is

continued on page 57

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir: 15 October 1982

Please send me extra copies of the article "Populism and Elitism," this is excellent material, let's hope we are able to open a few people's eyes to reality as opposed to the daily rubbish we get world-wide via the ZOG.

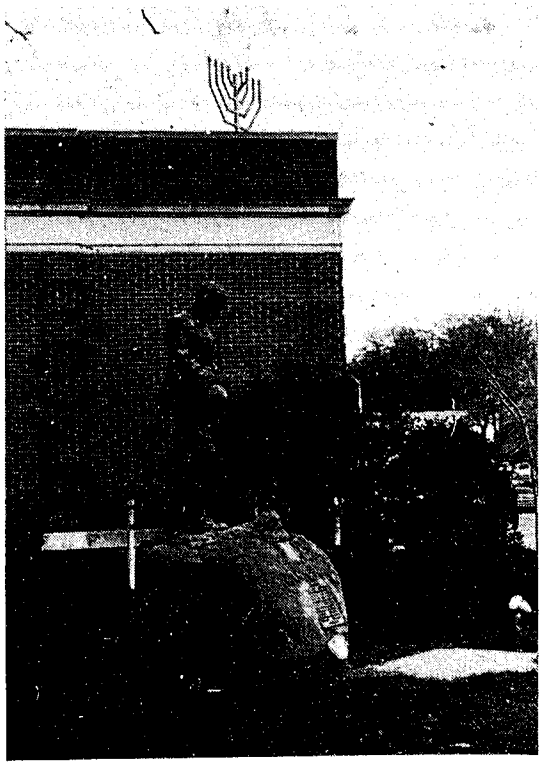
I enclose $15, please send me the amount you are able to send for this money, a few people I know could benefit from reading it, I hope.

Yours sincerely,
J.G.L., New Zealand

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 25 October 1982

Enclosed is a small contribution in photographic form, a friend of mine had a rather interesting reaction upon viewing (he definitely does not like Jews at all' and is only 17). For your information, this was photographed in Glen Cove, N.Y., and the despicable Menorah was on the Public Library. The city won't place a Nativity scene in front of City Hall, but the Jews get a Menorah on the Library for the "Festival of Lights." Time photographed was approx. Nov.-Dec. 1981. This photo tells a great deal in one place..



For White Solidarity and an end to the tyranny, I remain,

R.H., New York

* * * * *

To Head Administrator of Liberty Bell Publications 26 October 1982

I have read and considered your leaflet on the subject on "Who Rules America? How they rule." I have a problem with overlooking your totally blatant attitude of White Imperialism. If I may, I would like to share a brief genealogy. Man did not develop from Cosmic debris but Adam and Eve. Beginning of mankind—same ancestors for all. Secondly, it is written in the book of truth those who bless Israel shall I bless and those who curse Israel shall I curse. You are in defiance of God but you don't need to stay there. Thirdly, this leaflet is overtly subversive similar to propaganda tactics of the KGB and other anti-Semitic groups. I personally am a Christian in Truth and Deed and Love you as much as the Jews but I do not condone your action because of the very nature of your prejudices.

Consider the error of your ways my friend. Your social situation is a reflection of your heart and should tell you of your eminent eternal situation if you don't change.

Jesus loves you—I truly hope you will heed this message and change your heart from devising evil to devising good.

Brian McConnell
3706 30th Street, San Diego, CA 92104

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 26 October 1982

May I compliment you on producing such a good magazine. You are doing a very good job in trying to redress the Jewish propaganda which is aiming to destroy us.

At last a well-produced magazine is telling the truth. Keep up the good work, I wish you every success in the future and I am herewith entering my subscription to your magazine.

Victory Hail!
A.V., England

* * * * *

Dear George: 26 October 1982

Hope this letter finds you, your wife and family in good health and spirits.

As you may know, we recently kicked up more controversy with the Yids. We granted an interview (my friend and I) with the local newspaper, using assumed names. The newspaper printed it as a feature story. It was followed with responses from "Human Rights" groups, Jew groups. and an editorial by the newspaper! The Jews sent in letters to the editor ("How can they deny there was a Holocaust...", etc.), local anti-racist meetings were held, etc. They mentioned you in the paper and said they tried to contact you for an interview. And to top it off, Meir Kahane is coming to town!

"For a whiter and brighter world,"

Most sincerely,
U.H., New York

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 27 October 1982

continued on page 50

'POPULISM' and 'ELITISM'

REVILO P. OLIVER

PART II
CONCLUSION

Copyright 1982
by Revilo Oliver

1982
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS

In every instance, the Milner Group's accomplishment was the antithesis of their intentions. One is reminded, si licet parva componere magnis, of the scores of myths and fables, from Ovid's story of Cephalus and Procris to the dénouement of Rigoletto, in which the man (sometimes a woman) who has devised a trap or method for the destruction of an enemy inadvertently kills the person whom he (or she) most loves. But here the victim is a nation, an empire, a civilization, a race.

Obviously, something went wrong—terribly wrong.

There is no mystery. What was wrong is obvious from the record, and I cannot believe that Professor Quigley did not have to close his eyes very tightly to avoid seeing it.

THE CANKER IN THE ROSE

Despite Quigley's bland pretense of ignorance, you will not miss a telltale odor in the very first pages. Who was Rhodes' closest confidant, the man to whom he first disclosed unreservedly the whole of his great plan? Why, as Quigley has to tell you, it was Lord Rothschild. Now so far as you could learn from Quigley, that noble Lord might have been a lineal descendant of King Canute[35] or of Harold the Saxon or of William the Conqueror or of Prince Rupert of the Rhine. But you know that Lord Rothschild was the first Jew to stink up the House of Lords without pretending he had had his soul laundered in holy water.

What you may miss, however, is some less glaring danger signals. Who was one of Rhodes' friends and partners in business and a member of the inmost circle of the conspiracy? As Quigley tells you, it was Alfred Beit; what he does not tell you is that Beit was a Jew who had not even taken the trouble to touch ground in England, but, from the financial citadel of Wernher, Beit & Co. in Germany, had flown directly to South Africa. He was one of the seven trustees under Rhodes' last will,

35. Since Canute's name occurs in this enumeration of the ethnic stocks that formed the English people, I remark that he is also a good example of the lies that the Christian fakirs invent to spread their gospel. Everyone has heard the silly story that Canute placed his throne on the seashore and vainly ordered the tide not to come in, thus impressing his court with the need to love Jesus, and preparing them for a sermon in which he explained his proximate trip to Rome to kiss the Pope's toe. The tale was suggested by an historical fact. Canute did hold back the tide by his commands. As you may learn from almost any book on the post-Roman archaeology of Britain, Canute ordered the building of a sea wall, which converted tidal marshes into dry land. There are even some indications that he sometimes watched the progress of the work from a vantage point on an adjacent hill, a temporary "throne."

and another one was Lord Rosebery, an Earl of supposedly ancient lineage, whose Scotch blood had been ennobled by a liberal infusion of the divine ichor that flows in the veins of Yahweh's Master Race through a grandmother, and whose intellect had been further sharpened by marriage to Lord Rothschild's well-endowed (and, we hope, amiable) daughter, who doubtless led him aright.

Who was another of Rhodes' early friends and loyal henchmen? Sir Abe Bailey, who later employed Winston Churchill, as the latter's schoolgirl admirers were distressed to learn when his papers were edited and published at Oxford. We know his name, but may miss the significance of the name of R. R. Brett, who was, with Milner and Stead, one of Rhodes' first "junta" of three coadjutors, and who later became Viscount Esher. Quigley mentions this man's "vital but mysterious rôle" in British government and his anticipation that the middle class would be liquidated, and even hints that Esher carried out a kind of hoax by pretending to be an emissary of King Edward VII, but he does not tell us that the noble Viscount had Jewish blood and was married to a Jewess.[36]

A very important member of the inner circle was Robert H. Brand, son of Viscount Brand and a nephew of the seventh Duke of Devonshire. He could trace his ancestry to the first Baron Dacre in 1307, and I cannot tell you what strange birds may have nested in the family tree since then, but whatever his ancestry, he was the managing editor of the English branch of Lazard Frères, the mighty Jewish lords of finance who prey upon the world from their headquarters in Paris. I don't know what genetic factors were in Brand's blood, but we all know that in Aryans a little Jewish gold can perform a miracle greater than transsubstantiation.

Other very important members of the Milner Group were Sir Alfred Zimmern, a Jew who had become Professor of International Relations (a new "science"!) in Oxford University, and Baron Maurice Hankey, whose English name had been selected as a disguise by his great-granddaddy.[37] Although apparently not of the inner circle, notable coadjutors in carrying out the Milner Group's policies were Rufus Isaacs, alias the Marquess of Reading, a Jules (?)Samuel,

36. According to the compilation inserted by Congressman Thorkelson of Montana in the Congressional Record under the date of 20 August 1940, "Viscount Esher is of Jewish blood .... His sister admitted it in the Sunday Dispatch of August 11, 1935, saying she was proud of it. He married a Jewish Hecksher."

37. According to the article in the Congressional Digest, the original name of this Jewish family was Alers, but that may have been just an earlier alias.

alias Baron Swythling, and Viscount Chelmsford, who may or may not have had some of the Master Race's godly ichor in his own veins, but was at least ennobled by his matrimonial alliance with God's Chosen Goldmans.

Milner's earliest official position was that of secretary to his friend and patron, Lord George Goshen, when that circumcized director of the Bank of England became Chancellor of the Exchequer under Lord Salisbury in 1887.[38] The banker had the power of many shekels and tribesmen behind him, and Quigley tells us that he boosted Milner into his first responsible positions in British government.

By this time, you may be ready to leap to the conclusion that the great conspiracy for Anglo-Saxon supremacy was really a synagogue that had a few goyim as lackeys and messenger boys, but that would be an exaggeration. As I remarked earlier, it would take years of patient research to determine just how much Jewishness there was in the Milner Group, especially if one must allow for the belief of some Jews that the genes of Jewishness are dominant over all other genetic factors wherever they occur.[39] If that is true, Jewish contamination of British heredity has reached such terrible proportions, especially in the upper classes, that one wonders how many Englishmen are really English.[40] But even so, a majority of the hundred

38. In the same article, Viscount Goschen is identified as a Jew on the authority of Lord Riddell. The name was Göschen when the noble lord's daddy or granddaddy flitted to England from Leipzig, but George made such financial magic in saddling England with more national debt (the new "consols" were called "Goschens"!) that he became the Lord Rector of the University of Aberdeen and also of the University of Edinburgh, and later became the First Lord of the Admiralty and was boosted into the peerage with the title of Viscount Goschen of Hawkhurst.

39. In The Enemy of Our Enemies (available from Liberty Bell Publications), p. 27 and note 30, cf. p. 83, n. 27, I called attention to the little-known book by Dr. Alfred Nossig (1922), who claims that "a single little drop of Jewish blood" will alter the brain cells of many subsequent generations. Evidently the drop of blood may come from either a male or female Jewish ancestor. The bearers of that hereditary taint may be unaware of it. It appears to be something like color-blindness and alters the individual's perception of reality, making him, according to Dr. Nossig, suceptible to Jewish ideas and thus innately subject to easy manipulation by God's Race.

40. How extensively the Jews had polluted the British aristocracy by the early part of this century is apparent from Hilaire Belloc's The Jews (London, 1922, reprinted, Hollywood, California, s.a.), p. 223: "With the opening of the twentieth century those of the great territorial English families in which there was no Jewish blood were the exception. In nearly all of them was the strain more or less marked, in some of them so strong members of the conspiracy listed by Quigley must have been English, must they not? And if we cannot guarantee, without prolonged research, that Rhodes, the son of a British clergyman, and Milner, whose parentage we noticed above, were racially pure, we have, so far as I know, no evidence that would suggest they were not.

The foregoing paragraphs were really an excursus. We need to know no more than that Rhodes' closest friend, confidant, and financial mentor was Lord Rothschild. Of what that means Americans have just been reminded (for the thousandth time) by the publication of Bruce Allen Murphy's The Brandeis-Frankfurter Connection: the Secret Political Activities of Two Supreme Court Justices (Oxford University Press, 1982).[41] Americans once assumed that persons appointed to the Supreme Court in Washington obeyed the rule that forbade them to implicate themselves in political activity of any kind, to say nothing of conspiracies to subvert the United States; but such rules are only for the lower races and do not apply to Yahweh's Own. They may, however, be astonished by the proof of the conspiracy between "Justice" Brandeis and Professor, later "Justice," Frankfurter, which was, of course, just part of a general Jewish conspiracy against the United States, of which one of the directors was Brandeis's close friend, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, for whom stooge Milner wrote the infamous "Balfour Declaration." Brandeis was so sure his tribe had taken over the United States by 1918 that he did not hesitate to declare that opposition to Zionism is simply disloyalty to the United States, meaning thereby the Jews' richest colonial that though the name was still an English name . . . the physique and character had become wholly Jewish." By baiting matrimonial traps with their ill-gotten wealth (and, of course, by adultery, wherever possible) the Jews also infused their genes into many families of the British middle-class, but I know of no estimate of the extent of this penetration. We most urgently need, but are most unlikely to have, genetic research to test Dr. Nossig's claim, which he presents as an unquestionable certainty, and genealogical research to determine the extent of the Jews' genetic penetration of the more prosperous part of the British population.

41. My attention was first drawn to this highly significant book by a short, anonymous article in Instauration, July 1982, which quotes a critic as saying that Murphy (who naturally stands in awe of the Jews) "was brought kicking and screaming to the implications of his discovery [of a conspiracy]" when he edited the secret correspondence between Brandeis and Frankfurter. The article also reminds us that one of Frankfurter's prize products at Harvard was the infamous Alger Hiss, who is believed to be a White man. The Jews always train goyim as marionettes and put them out in front on the stage to dance for Israel. They probably chuckle as they pull the strings.

possession in North America.

As is now generally known, after the Jews had trained and curried Woodrow Wilson (who appears to have been half a blockheaded idealist and half a shyster) for the Presidency, in which they installed him by the simple device of prodding Theodore Roosevelt to organize the ephemeral Progressive Party, they forced him, by an artful combination of blackmail and bribery,[42] to appoint to the Supreme Court an enemy alien, an enormously rich Jew named Louis Dembitz Brandeis, who was a colleague of Weizmann and naturally went to work to get the American cattle ready for the stampede into Europe in 1917 to overwhelm Germany and help the Jewish Bolsheviks destroy Russia. Subsidized through Brandeis, Frankfurter captured the Harvard Law School and later the whole University, before he took direction of the great War Criminal, Franklin Roosevelt, to complete the ruin of Europe and our civilization. The newly published correspondence between Frankfurter and Brandeis may astonish some readers, but just as William of Occam proved that whatever Yahweh wants is Good, so Americans are being taught that whatever a Jew does is Good by definition.

Like Brandeis, Baron Rothschild was a loyal member of his race and must have been amused as he did the brain-work for Rhodes and Milner, for whom it is not unlikely that he had the affection that you have for a well-trained collie or sheep dog.

Why Rhodes and Milner wagged their tails is partly explained by the amazing career of a Jew whom Quigley quite forgot to mention.[43] Benjamin D'Israeli, whose daddy had him sprinkled with holy water to prepare him for service under the Rothschilds, deluded the simple-minded Anglo-Saxons by an artful combination of clowning (whence the affectionate sobriquet of "Dizzy"), frankly emphatic racialism, and a strenuous promotion of British Imperialism. His racialism, vaunting the innate superiority of the "aristocrats of the world" and informing his readers of their clandestine control of all European nations, was mitigated by a flattering concession of

42. A Jewish attorney got possession of Wilson's fatuous letters to Mrs. Peck and demanded $250,000; when Wilson admitted he could not raise the hush-money, he was told the blackmail would be paid for him if he appointed Brandeis to the Supreme Court. Note that it is to Wilson's credit that it required blackmail to force him to make an appointment so detrimental to his country, although he may not have foreseen the full consequences. When a man once yields to blackmail, he merely makes himself twice as vulnerable to further demands, since he has validated the evidence of his guilt by the first payment.

43. D'Israeli's name does not appear in the index, but a book about him is mentioned on p. 62.

racial superiority to the English, too. He was so explicit in his description of Jewish power and Jewish instigation of subversion and treason in Europe that some writers, notably Douglas Reed,[44] think that D'Israeli was actually trying to warn the British of their danger. It is to the point, however, that D'Israeli always received massive support from the Rothschilds and other fellow tribesmen, and that he, by his success in boosting himself into the British (!) Peerage as the Earl of Beaconsfield, opened the flood gates for an influx of his compatriots into English government and society. Although D'Israeli, so far as I know, never explicitly said so himself, what his racialism, taken in conjunction with his political policy of aggressive British Imperialism, suggested was that it was time for the two Superior Races to get together and dominate the world jointly. This, in turn, suggested the foolishness called "British Israel," which, in D'Israeli's time, took the form of a claim that the British were the "ten tribes" of Israelites supposedly taken captive and carried off by Sargon to some place whence they migrated to England, continuing in the British monarchy the royal line of King David, and that it was time for the "ten tribes" to be reunited with the other two and rule the world, as required by Bible Prophecy.[45] Strange as it seems to us now, 44. In his posthumous book, The Controversy of Zion (Durban, South Africa, 1978; available from Liberty Bell Publications).

45. So far as I know, the "British Israel" notion was first promulgated in 1822 in a book, A Correct Account . . . Showing the English Nation to be Descendants of the Lost Ten Tribes, by one Richard Brothers, said to have been an Anglo-Saxon. In 1793, Brothers disclosed his ancestry: he was a lineal descendant of the Biblical David and also the Nephew of God (I haven't seen Brother's genealogical chart, so I can't tell you the name of Yahweh's brother or sister, and I don't know whether the former impregnated Brothers' mama, following the precedent set by the Holy Ghost, or the latter was impregnated by Brothers' daddy, following the precedent set by Venus). Brothers was therefore the hereditary Prince of the Jews, as would be publicly confirmed by Yahweh in November 1795, whereupon the Prince would lead the Jews back into Canaan (i.e., Palestine; Brothers was the first Anglo-Saxon Zionist!). But alas! Uncle Yahweh forgot the appointment for his nephew's epiphany, and the poor fellow became dejected until Unk inspired him to tell the English who they really were in his Correct Account. Although Brothers attracted some True Believers, including Nathaniel Halhed, a man of considerable learning and Member of Parliament, the cult did not get under way until it stimulated the glands of less eccentric individuals, such as F. R. A. Glover, C. Piazzi Smith (who had some standing as an astronomer and initiated more nonsense by finding marvels in the Great Pyramid), and Edward Hine, of whose major work 250,000 copies are said to have been sold, hot from the press, to eager suckers. In the Victorian Age, an epidemic of unreason oddly coincided with great achievements in the exact sciences this nonsense excited the febrile imagination of some literate persons, who spread their gospels with spates of books filled with the usual theological sophistries, supplemented by several weekly and monthly magazines. The bizarre cult was a significant part of the atmosphere of the Victorian Age, and, with some revisions, survives even today.[46]

Bizarre as "British Israel" seems, it was not much stranger than the British craze, begun by "Dizzy" D'Israeli, for clutching to their national bosom any and all members of the alien race who were (a) rich and (b) had taken the trouble to learn to speak English correctly and to behave properly in a drawing room or ball room. Our race has never been a match for the Jews in subtlety of intellect or in a chameleonic ability to simulate the manners of any nation, and the native Anglo-Saxon character has as its ideal a cultivated gentleman, perhaps somewhat bluff and hearty, who honestly says what he means. The Jewish use of language to conceal thought is so alien to our instincts as to be really unthinkable in most situations. It is easy to see how the English were taken in by D'Israeli's artful and in philology. Douglas Reed, op. cit., well describes the amazing career of a feeble-minded Canadian, Henry Wentworth Monk, who got drunk on Bible Prophecy and spent the rest of his life in a kind of delirium garriens, trying to help Yahweh get his poor, persecuted Chosen People back into Palestine on schedule, for otherwise Yahweh would begin to cut up rough. Such insanity is, of course, pathetically commonplace; what is significant is that the slovenly and hirsute lunatic got subventions from Ruskin and communicated his hallucinations to William Holman Hunt, a talented painter who, with Millais and Rossetti, founded the Pre-Raphaelite school of art. That will tell you something about Victorian England!

46. The more recent leaders of the cult have discovered that their Anglo-Israelite race was driven from Palestine by the Jews who, according to the common story, stayed there, and who had acted as allies of the Assyrians. They were probably also influenced by the disasters that the Jews contrived for our race in the present century, and they have become vehemently anti-Jewish (i.e., what the Jews, with their instinct for verbal deceit, call "anti-Semitic"). When I mentioned "British Israel" obiter in America's Decline, I was under the impression that "Identity" was just another name for the same group, devised, perhaps, to conciliate Anglophobes. I have been informed, however, that there are two distinct cults, which, as is normal among Christians who take their doctrines seriously, denounce each other as heretics. "British Israel" believes that we are the ten "lost tribes," who hot-footed it for the British Isles as soon as they got away from Sargon of Assyria. "Identity," I am told, believes that we are all twelve tribes of Chosen People, and that the Jews of today are impostors. The most literate and reasonable periodical devoted to this theological binge is The Covenant Message, published monthly at Honeydew in the Transvaal (South Africa). One must feel sympathy for cults that are trying to make Christianity an Aryan religion, and it is a great pity that their doctrines are so devoid of historical plausibility.

combination of flattery with seeming candor, and Christianity, of course, habituated them to the notion of miraculous mental alterations produced by a religious "conversion." Perhaps D'Israeli had been "reborn," so that his mind no longer corresponded to his body! And in the Nineteenth Century the Jews thought it expedient, with the help of the Christians, to pretend that they were a religion, not a race.

That Jewish hoax was so successful that it produced (and may still produce) a degree of fatuity that is almost unbelievable. There can be no better example than Quigley himself.

He tells us that Milner was not only the real author of the infamous "Balfour Declaration," but also the "expert" who induced the British War Cabinet to approve it.[47] He also quotes Milner's assurance to the House of Lords that it would be so nice for the good people of Palestine to have an influx of a few million Jews, bringing with them wealth, prosperity, culture, and happiness. Milner even argued, by a discreetly indirect hint, that a high-minded concern for the welfare of the dear Palestinians justified the British betrayal of the Arabs, to whom sovereignty over Palestine had been promised on the honor of His Majesty's Government to induce them to take up arms

47. We may assume that Milner was the prime mover in the preliminary intrigues that Quigley does not mention, but of which we know from Jewish sources. News of the New World, a minuscule but valuable periodical published at Honeydew in South Africa, quotes a book by Jacob de Haas, Palestine, the Reality, as containing the statement, "The Balfour Declaration of 1917 was but the public confirmation of the necessarily secret gentleman's [!] agreement of 1916." I cannot locate the book cited, but its author, in his biography, Louis Dembitz Brandeis (New York, 1929), p. 93, cites, on the authority of Leonard Stein, secretary of the World Zionist Organization, an even more interesting datum, a secret but official British document, dated 13 March 1916, in which it is already stated that Britain, to get the international Jews to support her against Germany, intends to let the Jews colonize Palestine and let the Jews "administer their own internal affairs." De Haas's biography is well worth reading for its unconscious assumption that whatever Jews do is right by virtue of their superiority to the lesser breeds, and for his claim that with Brandeis "the hegemony of Israel, an accepted phrase for authority in Jewry, passed from Europe to the United States." Even more interesting, however, is the statement (p. 79) that "early in the fall of 1914," either just before or just after the assassination of the Austrian Archduke to start the First World War, Brandeis got out of Woodrow Wilson and the British Ambassador in Washington a promise of British policy that "was far more concrete than was stipulated in the famous Balfour Declaration." If that is so, Britain was doubly dishonorable and made to the Arabs promises that she knew she would not keep. Query: Was Milner the contriver of that treachery or merely later made a factotum for the conspiracy behind his conspiracy?

against the Turks in the First World War. And, in conclusion, the wise Lord Milner assured his fellow Peers of England that Palestine "must never become a Jewish state." Hearing that, Lord Rothschild and Dr. Weizmann (neither of whom Quigley thought it worth while to mention) must have roared with laughter at the stupidity of the goyim.

Quigley wrote in 1949, long after the Jews had thanked the British for giving them a "Homeland" in their usual manner, that is, by murdering Lord Edward Moyne, the British Minister of State, in Cairo in 1944 (the dog hadn't come when his master whistled); by Begin's expertise in blowing up the King David Hotel in 1946 with such skill that more than two hundred people, most of them British men, women, and children were killed or severely injured (the bitches and their pups belonged to an intractable breed, anyway); by massacring 254 unarmed Arabs in 1948 (the Semitic swine must be taught who owns them now); and by assassinating Count Bernadotte, the stupid Swede who had the insolence to suggest mediation between God's Own and the animals God gave them. Confronted by all that evidence (which he tactfully does not mention), Quigley had to admit, sadly and reluctantly, that Milner's policy had not been entirely a success.

Quigley, being an expert in international relations, knows why the Milner Group's policy for Palestine did not turn out as well as was expected. Before I tell you the answer, however, I ask you to remember the identification of some of the coruscating lights of the Milner Group in the foregoing pages; that will prepare you for Quigley's solution: the Group made the mistake because "they did not, in their personal lives, have much real contact with Jews or any real appreciation of the finer qualities of those people."[48] I intended to write sic after that quotation to guarantee its accuracy, but the only appropriate words are 'sick, sicker, very sick.'

What makes the foregoing so astounding, so incredible that no one would believe it without indubitable documentary proof, is the fact that, as the Christians are forever assuring us with a complacent smirk, their Bible is the bestselling book to hit the stands since the invention of printing. And this extremely popular and well-known work leaves no possible doubt about the character of the Jews and their god. A good example is the tale about Joseph, the Perfect Jew, and his celestial sponsor told in Genesis.[49] Joseph represents the Jews' beau idéal of a racial patriot and has been an inspiration to countless

48. Please look on p. 170 of Quigley's book before you decide that my quotation can't be right.

49. There have been numerous efforts to relate the tale to some historical generations of his race (or religion, if they prefer to call it that). The tale may be fairly summarized thus:

Joseph got into Egypt, supposedly sold as a slave by his Jewish brethren,[50] and, with the coöperation of Yahweh, who (like Zeus and most other gods) sends down suitable dreams at the right time, captures the confidence of an unnamed king of Egypt, who is so feeble-minded that he resigns all his royal power into the Jew's hands and is content to become a figurehead kept in luxury without responsibilities.[51] Joseph proceeds to corner the entire food supply of Egypt, and then, when there is a drought (concerning which Yahweh had advance information), he puts on the screws. His tribe comes swarming into Egypt, yammering about their hardships, as usual, and they take possession of "the best of the lands," presumably kicking off the goyim who were living on it, and Joseph feeds them (at the expense of the Egyptian people, of course). He then sells some of his hoarded supply of food to the starving Egyptians until he has got all the money in Egypt into his eager little hands. When he has cornered the money supply of the luckless nation, the Jewish financier forces the Egyptians to give him all their herds of cattle to obtain more food,[52] and when that is event which could have suggested it. The most recent that has come to my attention is the work of Dr. Erich Bromme, Untergang des Christentums (5 vols., Berlin, 1979-80). He concludes that the Joseph story was devised as an inspirational allegory by the Jews in Babylon around 597 B.C. I cannot enter into a critique of these findings, but it is obvious, of course, that the tale was invented in some place so far from Egypt that the Jews who composed it were ignorant of the function of the Nile in Egyptian agriculture.

50. One is reminded of the clever trick by which many Jews obtained Roman citizenship in the time of the Republic and Empire. Since the Jews had planted their ghettos throughout the world and were in constant communication with each other, they naturally acquired a virtual monopoly of the slave trade. It was thus easy for a wealthy Jew to arrange with a Jewish slave-dealer to sell him as a slave to a greedy Roman, who, for a suitable fee, then emancipated him, thus giving him a Roman family name and Roman citizenship.

51. One remembers that Philo Judaeus, when he tried to give a rational explanation of the tales in the "Old Testament," implied that one proof of Yahweh's divine power is that he benumbs the minds of the goyim in territories that the Jews intend to infiltrate, subvert, and take over. That was why the stupefied Canaanites invited the Jews to come into their country and establish themselves as god-fearing "refugees." In the myth of the "Exodus," Yahweh befuddles the mind of the Egyptian king so that he can afflict the obviously innocent Egyptian people with all the disasters that a sadistic imagination could invent; he thus gives his pet Jews the fun of watching the Egyptians suffer before they swindle them and run off with all their valuable property.

52. This, of course, is one of the internal contradictions that Jews gone, they have to give him all their land, and eventually they have to sell themselves and their families as slaves to the Jews to avoid starvation. Thus Joseph makes all the goyim his slaves, except the priests, whom he has spared, for the wily Jew understands the importance of bribing the clergy, who control a nation through its superstitions. He then moves his slaves from one end of Egypt to another, so that individuals will be separated from their former neighbors and find themselves isolated among strangers, with whom they could concert no action, were they ever to recover the spirit to do so. Having thus, in a few years, become the owner of all Egypt and its inhabitants, and having put the lower races in their proper position of servitude to God's People, Joseph naturally runs the country for the benefit of his tribesmen—all, of course, in the name of the unnamed royal nincompoop, who is presumably glad to spend all his time with his harem and be freed from the unpleasantness of having to think once in a while.

That fable, like a hundred others in the "Old Testament," should have a moral lesson, not only for Jews, but for the despised goyim, if they read it while not in a trance. There is no excuse for illusions about either the racial solidarity of the Jews or about what they believe themselves entitled to do to the people of the countries in which they plant their colonies. But obviously, great minds, such as those of Rhodes, Milner, and all the choice élite in their conspiracy, couldn't get the point. It is often difficult to think that the Jews' sovereign contempt for our race is not biologically justified.

But we are still left with an enigma. Granted that the gullible master minds could believe that Jews would cooperate in establishing Anglo-Saxon supremacy, how could those keen brains be persuaded to formulate and impose each and every one of the policies by which they destroyed their empire and ruined their nation? I am afraid there is only one answer, and it is painfully clear.

THE CRACK IN THE POT

One does not read very far in Quigley's book before discovering that the Milner Group was formed under the influence of the elder Toynbee, and remained enchanted by that spell to the bitter end. The conspirators were well-born, negligently leave in their fictions, of which "Anne Frank's Diary" is a good recent example. Obviously, if there was a famine so great that there was nothing for the people to eat without buying from the Jew monopolist, they would have no large herds to barter for food. It is, however, an ascertained fact that innumerable Aryans have actually believed that the tale was an historical record! Is there any hope for such mentalities?

highly intelligent, and well-educated,[53] and I do not know how much of the Christian mythology the several individuals imagined to be historically factual. I should suppose that most of them, like Jefferson, tried to extract from the legends an ethical system based on the acceptable parts of the teachings that are attributed to Jesus in the gospels that are commonly read.[54] However that may be, there can be no doubt but that, despite their brilliance, their heads were permanently stuffed with Toynbee's muzzy religiosity and were thereby effectively insulated from reality.

It is first of all evident that the super-brains had no understanding and even no perception of race. They retained, without ever questioning it, the Christians' bigoted and willfully blind denial of biological facts and the preposterous notion that magic rites can eliminate innate differences; the conspirators, to be sure, believed in a new kind of magic, which was to function, not by squirting holy water on Fuzzy-Wuzzies, but by "education," which could make an Englishman out of anyone. This is simply the nonsense that Macaulay uttered when he claimed that an English education could make a "brown-skinned Englishman" out of the better subjects of the Empire; and superficial minds could see justification for it in the performance of wealthy young Hindu or Moslem princes who, educated in the traditions of the British Public Schools and sent to Oxford, had learned to play cricket, ride to the

53. American readers should remember that the United States has never had counterparts or even passable imitations of the celebrated Public Schools and two great universities of England. Almost all members of the Milner Group were educated at one or another of the major Public Schools and then at Oxford, and this, especially before the aftermath of the First World War, almost automatically placed them in a social class far above the average Englishman. On the Public Schools, cf. note 68 infra.

54. So far as I know, no member of the Milner Group (except Sir Gilbert Murray) evinced the slightest knowledge of the history of religions or of the history of Christianity or an acquaintance with any Christian gospels except the few that were assembled in the "New Testament." Many members of the Group turned to Christian Science or to various forms of occult hocus-pocus. Note the brainstorms of Curtis that I shall mention shortly. Quigley's inclusion of Sir Gilbert in the conspiracy astonished me. I see little evidence of it in his writings. I particularly commend to thoughtful readers his essay, "The Historic Present," in History, XVIII (1934), pp. 289 ff., in which he draws a parallel between the First World War and the Peloponnesian War, and sees both the United States and Russia as menacing the viability of European civilization. I trust that I shall scandalize no one by suggesting that an essay by one of the most learned men of our century is in many ways comparable to Francis Parker Yockey's The Enemy of Europe (available from Liberty Bell Publications).

hounds, and converse with the right accent in English, displaying acquaintance with the whole of English culture, often including Latin and Greek. These young men, enjoying lavish incomes, impeccably dressed, perfectly behaved and with polished manners discreetly tinged with Oriental profuseness, were ornaments in the drawing rooms and ball rooms of the best society, becoming pet curiosities, fascinating combinations of the romantically exotic with the more steadfast conduct of Englishmen. The princelings from India were of predominantly Aryan or Semitic blood, but similar accomplishments were possible for some wealthy mulattos, especially those with a large infusion of Semitic blood, which, for some reason, often fails to lighten the dark complexion of the Black race, but sharpens the features. It is the practice of all travellers in civilized lands to do as the Romans do, when in Rome, but that, of course, is quite different from thinking in one's own mind what the Romans think. The common aphorism should have warned persons who were otherwise thoughtlessly inclined to reason from rare exceptions to the whole of foreign peoples of whom they know little or nothing (and often learned nothing, even if they visited the foreign country).

The Milner Group should have been above the level of persons who thought that a cultivated accent, well-cut evening dress, and a monocle sufficed to make an Englishman: most of them spent years in British colonies, but they learned nothing. There is an amusing anecdote about Curtis, the most feverish member of the Group. He took a whim to become a Hindu, and was astonished to discover that he couldn't do it by just reciting some rigmarole and professing to believe it. Eventually he obtained from the chief Pandits at Benares a statement of a way in which he might accomplish his purpose: he must feed a thousand Brahmins every day for a year and then promptly commit suicide by incinerating himself. He would thus win a fair chance of being reborn as a Hindu of the lowest and most menial caste.[55] Curtis, unfortunately, did not follow the

55. I take the anectode from Kendle, op. cit., p. 241, n. 50. The advice of the Pandits is perfectly logical and the reasoning is clear. As the holy men of all religions throughout the world are unanimous in declaring, the greatest spiritual merit is acquired by endowing holy men. By feeding the thousand priests for a year, Curtis would acquire a huge credit balance on the books in which the account of his karman is kept, and he must, of course, commit suicide at once thereafter to avoid dissipating this credit balance by committing sins that would diminish it. The only permissible mode of suicide is by burning oneself to death; that is a holy death and automatically purifies the superheated soul. With so much to his credit in the eternal and infallible computer that governs our lives, Curtis might deserve to be reborn as a low-caste Hindu and even as a male. The Pandits doubtless thought of the possibility that his account might be a little short suggestion; he lived to write many formulations of policy for the conspiracy, having learned nothing from the more intelligent Pandits, who at least knew that men belong to the race in which they are born and which they cannot leave while living.

The Christian notion about the mutability of race was bad enough, but nothing in comparison with the far more poisonous idea that the English had a moral duty to serve the subject races in the Empire and make magic with "education," just as vulgar missionaries made magic with holy water and spells. Those crack-brained Imperialists even thought that the Empire was an enterprise to be conducted in the interest of the subject races, and they gabble about England's "mission" to uplift the Fuzzy-Wuzzies and all the rest. Many people (e.g., Marlowe in his biography of Rhodes) regard this as mere hypocrisy, but, sad to say, it wasn't: the madcaps must have actually believed it because they acted upon it and thereby, as even Quigley, who is sympathetic to such drivel, must admit, they destroyed the Empire and converted Great Britain to Little Britain.

It should be evident to every rational man that an Empire is to be administered for the benefit of the nation and race that created it: it is, so to speak, their investment in their own future. The British, having conquered India, had, by the immutable law of nature, the right to govern India for the benefit—the exclusive benefit—of the British. For what other reason would they have conquered it? Their one and only moral obligation was to the Englishmen who fought and died to make India a possession of their own nation and race. It was the solemn and inescapable obligation to make certain that the nation's most precious resource, the blood of its heroes, was not spent in vain—was not insanely squandered. Healthy nations know that without being told; nations that have to be told the facts of life on earth are sick—desperately sick. They are delirious.

Unless it has been smitten by some deadly disease, an Imperial power will govern its colonial possessions in its own interest and only in its own interest. To be sure, by a happy coincidence, this will generally be also in the best interests of the subject population. A wise administration will disturb native institutions and customs only so far as may be necessary to enforce its own rule or provide for the comfort of its officers. So far as is feasible, it will utilize native rulers or chiefs to execute its commands under its supervision, insisting on a strict maintenance of order and a rigorous enforcement of justice as understood by the natives in their relations with each other, and so he might find himself a female in his next incarnation, but they evidently did not want to dismay him by mentioning that risk.

applying its own standards of equity in cases that come before its tribunals. It will take measures to preclude attempts at insurrection and ruthlessly suppress any mutiny that may occur; it will thus save many lives of its subjects. It will recognize, of course, the vast difference between a colony such as India, with an ancient culture of its own and a polyphyletic population accustomed to civilization, and Bechuanaland, inhabited by innately savage tribes.

The administration of the British colonial empire was not faultless, but it was the best known to recorded history. The British certainly gave to India the best government since the remote age in which the administration described in the Arthaśāstra may have been a reality rather than an ideal in some of the many warring kingdoms into which India was then divided, and by our standards and probably by the Hindus' also, British rule was vastly superior to what is described in that famous manual of Indian politics. We may safely say that Great Britain gave the whole of India the best government that it ever had or is likely ever to have. Its principal shortcoming was failure to protect the Hindu and Moslem populations from mischievous meddling by missionaries and similar pests.

Such being the condition of the British Empire, how was Anglo-Saxon supremacy to be further promoted by the conspiracy that was organized for that purpose? Here is one of the Milner Group's official pronouncements, quoted by Quigley:

> "The peoples of India and Egypt, no less than those of the British Isles [!] and Dominions [!], must be gradually schooled to the management of their national affairs. . . . The task of preparing for freedom the races which cannot as yet govern themselves is the supreme duty of those races who can. It is the spiritual end for which the Commonwealth [=British Empire!] exists, and material order is nothing except a means to it."

A little later in this astounding document, England is invited "to lose her life. . .to find it in a Commonwealth, wide as the world itself [!], a life greater and nobler than before." And that, mind you, is not the ranting of some Bible-toting nuisance sent into the colonies to make trouble; it is a deliberate formulation of the policy of a cleverly organized and highly sophisticated conspiracy that was founded ad maiorem gloriam Imperii Anglorum!

Such nauseous drivel inspired the infamous "Montagu-Chelmsford Report," which was an official publication of His Majesty's Government, and was, as Quigley makes clear, essentially the work of the Milner Group. Quigley, however, does not even adumbrate the contents of that appalling document, which brazenly deplored the "lethargic content" of 95% of the peoples of India, who were thankful they were ruled by the British and only hoped that they would always be ruled by gentlemen whom they could respect and trust, rather than by their own people, whom they knew too well. The people of India had faith in Britain, but the report asserts that it is Britain's duty "to tear up that faith by the roots" and to incite "the most radical revolution" to encourage the 5% of malcontents (almost all of whom had been instigated by missionaries and similar pests) to terrorize and subjugate the "pathetically contented" 95% and thus prepare India for "nationhood."[56]

It is not at all astonishing that the festering brains that excogitated that report could not even perceive the difference between a colony and an outpost of Great Britain. Canada, Australia, and New Zealand obviously were then what the thirteen territories in North America that became independent in 1783 had been, outposts of Great Britain, won, settled, and peopled by Englishmen and differing from Cornwall or Ulster only in being much farther from London and in still having within their boundaries aborigines who needed to be confined to reservations or otherwise made harmless. They differed totally from the colonial possessions peopled by races that had to be ruled by British governors and their British staffs. The Milner Group wanted to replace the British Empire by a "Commonwealth," as, after pertinacious agitation for years, they finally succeeded in doing, and actually proposed that "Indians must come to share in the government of the British Commonwealth as a whole."

The idea of a Commonwealth, the name now given to the debris of the British Empire, was promoted for many years

56. The essential parts of the report are quoted by General Richard Hilton in his Imperial Obituary, the Mysterious Death of the British Empire (Devon, Britons, 1968). General Hilton had not heard of the Milner Conspiracy when he wrote, and supposed, as I did when I commented briefly on the report and its consequences in The Enemy of Our Enemies, that Lord Chelmsford and Samuel "Montagu" were the authors of it. That scurvy pair must, of course, bear responsibility for what they signed, but Quigley has shown that, despite a great deal of disingenuous dissembling about the authorship, the document was practically a composition of the Milner Group, and that Curtis wrote at least a large part of the actual text. The sabotage of British rule in India was, of course, carried on by persons not believed to have been actual members of the Milner Group, notably Rufus Isaacs, alias the Marquess of Reading, when that enemy alien was made the Viceroy of India; Quigley goes no farther than to observe that some of his subversive proclamations in India "could have been written" by the Milner Group.

before the word was used outside the publications of the Milner Group, and was probably entertained secretly as early as 1909.[57] It was associated, in a way that was never precisely defined, with another project of the Group, which the periodical, The Round Table, was founded to promote—or so it was said. The proposal for a Federation which would ensure greater cohesion between the mother country and the several dominions might have been feasible, if Milner and his confederates had frankly based it on the racial patriotism of which Milner boasted in his "Credo," from which we quoted above. As it was, the scheme, frequently overlaid with palaver about "educating" other races, came to naught, so that the Milner Group scored one failure, assuming that the scheme was a serious project and not, as Quigley surmised, merely a convenient guise under which to promote a war against Germany.

The conspiracy cannot be credited with full responsibility for the First World War, which, begun by the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand at Sarajevo in June 1914,[58] would have 57. Curtis claimed to have had a brain-flash (perhaps a short circuit) while on a walking tour in Canada in 1909: "It was from that moment that I first began to think of 'the Government of each by each and of all by all' . . . as the goal to which all human societies must tend. It was from that moment that I began to think of the British Commonwealth [of which no one had yet heard!] as the greatest instrument ever devised for enabling that principle to be realized . . . for all races and kindreds and peoples and tongues." He modestly refrains from saying that he had just devised that "greatest instrument" in his own febrile imagination. We all know that many human beings see pixies or talk with ghosts or go for rides on "flying saucers" or get "born again," but sane men merely smile at their hallucinations. The Milner Group, however, made Curtis their special pet and spokesman. There is no evidence that Milner or any of his confederates was addicted to opium or hashish, the hallucinatory drugs that were then most commonly used.

58. The assassination was, no doubt, arranged to provide a casus belli for the war that had been scheduled to begin by September 1914, as was known to Winston Churchill and doubtless others a full year in advance. The Austro-Hungarian ultimatum to Serbia was fully justified, as was Germany's support of her ally against Russia. Both could have been, and doubtless were, predicted with absolute accuracy after the events of 1908. How flimsy a pretext for a European War was provided by the Austro-Hungarian ultimatum may be seen from an analogy drawn by Harry Elmer Barnes in one of his books. What would have been the reaction of the American people in 1914, if the Vice-President of the United States, visiting El Paso for a public ceremony, had been assassinated by a band of Mexican terrorists, secretly trained, equipped, and supported by the Mexican government or, at least, high officials in it, and if, after the assassination, most of the terrorists had escaped to Mexico, where they were protected by the Mexican government, while Mexican newspapers, been over in short order, had Great Britain refrained from declaring war on Germany. The artful preparation of public opinion in England for such a war began long before Rhodes first planned his conspiracy,[59] and was doubtless carried on by the original promoters independently of the Milner Group, on whom, however, a considerable share of the responsibility must fall, for they not only labored strenuously to precipitate the war, but, given their success in other projects, might well have had the power to avert that suicidal conflict, had they so desired.

Had Britain entered the war in 1914 for a reasonable and including those maintained by that government, burst into hosannas over the glorious deed? The answer, of course, is obvious from the reaction that did follow a raid on the village of Columbus, New Mexico, by a gang of scurvy Mexican bandits who claimed to be engaged in a revolution against the Mexican government. Public opinion forced the sending into Mexico of a punitive expedition under the command of General Pershing. The analogy of the assassination in El Paso is, of course, for 1914, when (a) American Presidents and Vice-Presidents were still respected, and (b) the Americans had not yet contracted the pusillanimous death-wish that now governs their conduct. Were such an assassination by Mexican terrorists to occur in 1982, the Americans would crawl on their yellow bellies in abasement, offer to cede Texas to Mexico with an indemnity of a hundred billion dollars, and undertake to drive all Americans from Texas in an imitation of one of the fine death-marches in Europe (e.g., the expulsion of the Germans from the Sudetenland) that entertained the Jews and rejoiced the magnanimous souls of our tender-hearted "Liberals."

59. For the campaign in the press, see the work by Dr. Peter Peel cited in note 15 supra. Many techniques and channels were used to incite hatred and/or fear of Germany, including fiction, which, according to experts in such matters, had a great effect. A Colonel Chesney published in 1871 The Battle of Dorking, which purported to be the memoirs, written in 1920, of a veteran of a war in which Britain was invaded and conquered by a German army. Erskine Childers, said to have been a Jew, produced The Riddle of the Sands (1903; reprinted, New York, Dover, 1976), in which the hero discovers German preparations to overwhelm England by the sudden invasion of an army carried on flat-bottomed barges. (Anyone who has crossed the English Channel on a steamer (with or without a preliminary dose of dimenhydrinate) can judge the feasibility of such a plan, but English readers were presumably less critical.) Arthur Conan Doyle chimed in with a "prophetic" hair-raiser in which Britain was starved into submission by submarine warfare. Lord Tweedsmuir (John Buchan), a member of the Milner Group, turned out a whole spate of thrillers about international espionage and intrigue, and the odious villains in all of them were, of course, Germans; I no longer recall the titles. The foregoing are but the few examples that come to my mind; there were many more before the war began. After August 1914, of course, it became a patriotic duty to manufacture shocking stories and novels about the bestial Boche. E. Phillips Oppenheim's The Great Impersonation (reprinted, New York, Dover, s.a.) is probably the best of a bad lot.

intelligible purpose, such as the acquisition of Helgoland or the occupation of Constantinople or the annexation of Mozambique, it would have been fought sanely and, whatever the result, without serious damage to Britain. As it was, the secret purpose of Great Britain (as distinct, of course, from the purposes of the Jews) was the total destruction of Germany as an industrial and military nation, and the proclaimed purpose was a Holy War to overthrow "autocracy," by which verbal lie was meant the system of government in Germany, which meddlers supposed bad for the Germans, of whom enough had to be killed to stop them from liking it, and to scatter the blossoms of "democracy" over the whole globe. The war was thus an insane Crusade, fought for an illusory purpose in the manner of madmen, who reck not the injuries they themselves receive in their fury, and are excited by the phantoms engendered in their spastic brains. Woodrow Wilson's jabbering about "making the world safe for democracy" was nonsense imported from England and an obvious adaptation of the Milner Group's early ambition to ram "freedom" down the throat of every featherless biped in the world.

In 1914, the Milner Group finally got the war for which they longed, and we cannot forgive them on the grounds that, with the same stupidity they had shown when they started the Boer War in the belief that it would be over in a few weeks, they imagined that Germany would be brought to her knees in short order.

We all know the story that the unfortunate Sir Edward Grey,[60] at the end of the climactic day in 1914, stood by a window of the Foreign Office, looking out into the fading twilight of the evening that was closing down upon London, and said, with prescience and perhaps also with a consciousness of the guilt that is said to have haunted him throughout the rest of his life, "The lamps are going out all over Europe; we shall not see them lit again in our lifetime."

60. Sir Edward Grey (later Viscount of Falloden), the son of a baronet and great-grandson of the first Earl Grey, appears to have been an amiable but mediocre English gentleman, an amateur ornithologist, whose heart was in his observations of birds and notation of their songs. He entered politics as a protégé in the Liberal Party of the Lord Roseberry whom we have mentioned as a member of the Milner Group. He was evidently an irresolute man and therefore at the mercy of the advisors who told him how to show "grit and determination." It was said that he was given the Foreign Office in Asquith's Liberal Cabinet because he knew so little about foreign affairs that he would follow with assumed determination whatever policy his advisors made him adopt as his own. In an impulsive moment, probably on the advice of someone, he gave to the French in the name of His Majesty's Government assurances—and what was worse, put them in writing—which, on reconsideration, he dared not disclose to his fellow members of the Cabinet or even to the Prime Minister. A large part of his bungling and tergiversation in conducting relations with Germany sprang from fear that the French, if their demands were not satisfied, would publish his indiscretion, which he tried to cover up by inducing the Cabinet, with suppressio veri if not actual mendacity, to keep pledges they did not know he had made for them. It is said that his health was broken by remorse for his share in shoving Great Britain into the European War.

The Milner Group certainly helped to extinguish the light. How great was their responsibility for precipitating the catastrophe, it is hard to say. Quigley contents himself with remarking that "the success of the Group in getting the foreign policy they wanted under a Liberal government may be explained by pressure from without through The Times and assistance from within through Asquith, Grey, and Haldane, and through the less obvious but no less important work of persons like Sir Eyre Crowe and above all Lord Esher." (My emphasis.) It is not impossible, however, that Milner and his confederates gave the decisive push to the wavering British government and thus actually caused the fatal declaration of war against Germany.[61] At all events, by promoting that war they took the

61. The Prime Minister, Asquith, who came from a middle-class family that was just able to send him to Oxford, was a doctrinaire "Liberal" as well as a leader of the Liberal Party, and was deeply involved in some of its worst actions before 1914. He appears, however, to have had no real understanding of the intrigues that were forcing Britain into the war, and he may have been sincere when, a few days before the declaration, he assured the German Ambassador that "a war between our countries is wholly unthinkable." It was the next day, it seems, that he discovered the actual state of affairs when four members of his Cabinet resigned on the grounds that the government was surreptitiously moving toward war with Germany. The real decision lay with the fifth member of the Cabinet, a sleazy scoundrel named Lloyd George, who should have been in a coal mine in Wales, not in Downing Street. Had he resigned, the resignation of a majority in the Cabinet would have meant the fall of Asquith's government, but Lloyd George had his own reasons for yearning for a war. This gave Asquith pause, but at this juncture, Balfour, a member of the Milner Group, speaking in the name of the Conservative Party, assured Asquith that the Party would keep Asquith in power, if necessary, by forming a coalition government. Asquith temporized until after Grey gave a speech in Parliament, said to have been magnificient oratory, filled with high-flown morality and especially brazen lying. The war-mongering was applauded by a claque, headed by Crowe and Churchill, and Grey sent to Germany an ultimatum that made war inevitable.

Quigley stresses the Milner Group's ties to the Conservative Party through Balfour, but it must be remembered that Milner's high moral principles did not prevent him from betraying his supposed friends. He betrayed the Conservatives by having actually devised the outrageous Inheritance Tax, and betrayed the Liberals by enabling Lloyd George to take over in 1916 through unsavory intrigues that destroyed the Liberal Party as a serious contender for a majority in Parliament. It is remarkable first irretrievable step toward the liquidation of the British Empire and the ruin of their own nation.

Although the catastrophic result of that war seems to have dampened their ardor for a time,[62] the conspiracy, having learned nothing and the big brains of its members still buzzing with noises about a "mission" to save the world at the expense of the English people, continued its work, and, when the next crisis came, with the priggishness that made Robert Burns call morality a "deadly bane," they thought it would be "immoral" to let Germany attack the highminded Bolsheviks in the Soviet, since it would be so much more moral to make their fellow Britons suffer and die.[63] They must accordingly bear a large share of the responsibility for inciting what Prince Sturdza aptly called the Suicide of Europe.[64] that the high morality of idealists generally accompanies a willingness to use the most dishonorable means to attain their ends.

62. Quigley does not quote the complaint of Hichens (a member) in 1931 that the conspirators had so lost heart that they were meeting only once a month and irregular in their attendance even then. See Kendle, op. cit., p. 285.

63. Quigley notices differences of opinion within the Group and even the reluctance of some members to precipitate a war with Germany just to indulge their high moral purposes some more. One member of the Group, Philip Kerr, Marquess of Lothian, even talked common sense to the British about the folly of attacking Germany for no conceivable advantage of their own. This nobleman (he was the eleventh Marquess and fifteenth Earl, holding a title that goes back to 1587) denounced the mendacious propaganda about German "war guilt" that he correctly traced back to 1870. (Cf. note 15 above.) Quigley was, or professed to be, shocked that Lord Lothian did not have an idealistic itch to bring slaughter and ruin to his own country to please Yahweh's Chosen Pets. But despite this one rational and honest man's dissent, when the hour of decision came, the rest of the Milner Group yelled in chorus for the suicidal war. Quigley does not tell us whether Lord Lothian was expelled from the Group for his rationality; one remembers that Rhodes expelled Stead when that man pointed out the folly of starting the Boer War. Lord Lothian's stand was the more honorable in that he had to recant some of his own earlier diatribes against Germany and, what is more, he had, at least in his earlier years, been infected with Milner's and Curtis's Christian hallucinations, as I shall point out a few paragraphs below.

64. A bowdlerized English translation of The Suicide of Europe was published by the Birch busines in 1968, which naturally suppressed all statements that might pain the delicate sensibilities of God's People. So far as I know, this dishonest falsification was first pointed out, with reference to the Romanian original, by Warren B. Heath in his introduction to the English translation of D. Bacu's The Anti-Humans (Englewood, Colorado, 1971; available from Liberty Bell Publications). I have been told that the tampering with Prince Sturdza's text was done without the knowledge of the wealthy American lady who subsidized the translation and publication.

That was the final achievement of Cecil Rhodes' great conspiracy to extend and expand the British Empire and assure Anglo-Saxon supremacy in the world forever. A conspiracy for the destruction of Great Britain and her race could have done no more, but we cannot justly indict the Anglo-Saxon members of the conspiracy for treason prepense. There is no evidence that they were the secret agents of the direst enemies of their nation and race. They give every evidence of having sincerely believed in what they were doing—believed that they were conspiring from patriotic motives. I am speaking now, of course, only of the Anglo-Saxons, who were always a majority and included Milner, who seems always to have been in control. The Jewish members were doubtless patriotic also, but their patriotism was for the old and subtle race that always profits from the disasters that come upon our people, whether of their devising or caused by our own folly. If they cunningly guided the Milner Group, how was it possible for them to do so?

We thus return to our original question: How did it happen that the conspiracy accomplished the very opposite of what it was organized to do? We must ask ourselves again what strange infatuation, what dark moon madness, so perverted their consciousness that they could not foresee the disasters they were inevitably creating?

Quigley has given us the answer: they had "a theory of history that saw the whole past in terms of a long struggle between the forces of evil and the forces of righteousness." In other words, their minds were infected with Zoroaster's calamitous invention, the mad notion of a cosmic war between Ahura Mazda and Ahriman, between a supreme Good God and a supreme Evil God. This, perhaps the most disastrous myth of all time, was repeated in the derivative religions, including both Christianity and Islam. This poisonous notion seems to fascinate persons who would rather feel than think, and induces not only the blackest fanaticism but also permanent hallucinations. Minds that have been sapped by it can never understand either the history of the past or the reality of the present.

The entire Milner Group, as Quigley tells us, came from a "Christian background" and had a "profound Christian outlook." As one would expect, Curtis (when not trying to become a Hindu) spouted the most nonsense, such as "Love thy neighbor as thyself" and "Die and ye shall be born again," and similar verbiage, which stimulates some glands because it would be nice if it were true. He even wrote a three-volume work to which he gave the title of Augustine's thoroughly dishonest Civitas Dei.[65] The borrowed title was appropriate:

65. Augustine, a typical theologian, was utterly unscrupulous. In one of his sermons, he assured his open-mouthed congregation that he had the three volumes are fustian, woven of sophistical juggling of ideas in Curtis's mind that he evidently mistook for realities in the world outside his throbbing brain, and vapid bombast that does not even have the merit of not being insufferably dull. Curtis condensed his drivel into one volume and translated the title: The Commonwealth of God. Curtis was not alone in his delusions. Philip Kerr, Marquess of Lothian, a member of the conspiracy's inner circle, "held that men should strive to build the Kingdom of Heaven here upon the earth, and that the leadership in that task must fall first and foremost upon the English-speaking peoples."[66] And of the conspiracy as a whole, Quigley says that their attitude "had its ultimate roots in the Sermon on the Mount."[67] Even Quigley recognizes that such fantasies were "acutely dangerous." They were, of course, deadly.

When Milner assembled the nucleus of his conspiracy in personally brought to Jesus a wonderful tribe of niggers in Africa, who had eyes in their chests, mouths at the collar bone, but no heads, organs for which good Christians would have no use anyway. In the ranting of his Civitas Dei, written to prevent contemporaries from understanding what Christianity had done to the Roman Empire and what was left of civilization, particularly noteworthy is his crafty use of quotations from Varro, an author who still had high prestige but whose voluminous works were seldom read in Augustine's time. Augustine interpolated some of the quotations, but, for the most part, lifted them out of context and attributed to them spurious meanings that he invented for the occasion.

66. This information comes to us through Curtis and may be suspect. If Kerr had such hallucinations in his youth, he may have come to his senses in his more mature years, for he seems to have broken with Milner's conspiracy in later life; cf. note 63 supra. Building the Kingdom of God on earth, and thus taking away Jesus's job when he returns, was also the purpose professed by the shysters who peddled the "Social Gospel" from their pulpits so long as it paid good dividends. A few men really believed the social fantasies of early Christianity, notably the author of Which Way, Western Man? in his youth. Mr. Simpson recovered, of course, and made a thorough study of the effects of Christianity on all aspects of our civilization. I cannot too emphatically recommend his sagacious and comprehensive work (available, as I noted earlier, from Liberty Bell Publications).

67. Although this diatribe has some quality that powerfully excites the uterine sensibilities of thoughtless women, it propounds a morality fit only for vagabonds and panhandlers who are parasites on some civilized population. Perier, in the booklets cited above, p. 12, n. 13, says: "Commanded to 'take no thought for the morrow,' but to have bird-brains and be 'like the fowls of the air' that 'sow not, neither do they reap,' relying on their 'heavenly Father' to feed them, Christians who actually believed the Drivel on the Mount would, if sufficiently numerous, simply precipitate the total breakdown of any civilized or even barbarous society—and not even grow pelts for the Jews to fleece."

South Africa, his crew of young Oxonians was called his Kindergarten, presumably because they were still in their twenties, but some observers may have guessed that a part of their agile brains had not yet reached the age of puberty. They had a horror of violence, except, of course, when they were planning Holy Wars against the Devil, who had taken up his residence in the small Boer republics or in Germany. They believed that "moral force" was always superior to "brute force," and they believed that as earnestly as did the natives of Tanganyika when they boiled their babies to procure the magical grease that would render them invulnerable to bullets from the white devil's rifles. Despite the vast cultural difference, the underlying concept is about the same in both cases. Some beneficent supernatural power is there to help good boys overcome evil-doers.

Since Milner was Rhodes' first recruit after Lord Rothschild, we can understand why the Anglo-Saxon members of the conspiracy never knew what they were doing. They did not lose touch with reality at some point in their operations, as one might at first sight suppose: they never were in touch with it. Despite the cynical ruthlessness of their methods,[68] they lived in a dream world that existed only within their own skulls; they were perpetually intoxicated with their own mythology, which was as hallucinogenic as the Amanita muscaria or lysergic acid diethylamide.

They owed their success to a multiplicity of factors: first of all, to the intellectual prestige of Eton[69] and Oxford[70], and to

68. Even if one overlooks the morality of exciting bloody and disastrous wars to adorn the world with figments of feverish imaginations, one is appalled by the cynicism of the Milner boys when they manufactured atrocity stories to get the Boer War started, and manufactured even more outrageous lies before and during the First World War. The younger Arnold Toynbee (see note 8 above) was one of the most talented inventors in Lord Bryce's famous lie-factory, and was, of course, a member of the Milner Group. Given their control of The Times, the conspirators must bear part of the responsibility for a particularly effective deception of the British public on the eve of the First World War. The German government did not order mobilization of the army until after Russia had begun mobilization for the obvious purpose of attacking the Austro-Hungarian Empire, but by adroit manipulation of the news, Englishmen were made to believe that peace-loving Russians did not begin to mobilize until after the bellicose Germans had called up their army. By the innate morality of our race (not of others), there is a sneaking vileness about such deceptions that is far more repugnant than many crimes of open violence.

69. The name of Eton may stand for the seven or eight Public Schools that are most highly reputed and respected. To what extent the Public Schools may be held responsible for the Milner Group is uncertain. Those schools expressly aim to form character and specifically to inculcate the standards of honor and integrity that are native to our race, but the schools generally confuse those standards with Christianity, and one remembers the pronouncements of Thomas Arnold of Rugby and other famous headmasters who claimed to have, and to communicate to their charges, a "firm conviction of the truth of Christianity." The average American knows of such schools no more than what he may have read in Thomas Hughes's Tom Brown's School Days (1857; often reprinted) and will remember the implicit pietism in the story. An American who seeks information from Englishmen who should know, encounters the most diverse opinions and a tendency to gyrate about the question of the supposed prevalence of homosexuality in such schools. The one thing that seems certain is that the intellectual discipline for which the great Public Schools were famous has greatly deteriorated since the First World War, as has the average character of the pupils, as was to be expected after the terrible genetic impoverishment of the race in that war. The inculcation of "Christian values" continues, and a graduate of one of the great Public Schools says that the result is a demoralizing sense of hypocrisy felt by the more alert pupils, which he would relate to the odd tropism toward Communism shown by some of them in the 1920s and 1930s. A learned Englishman tells me that he has observed that quite a few products of the great Public Schools show a satisfactory capacity for rational thought as young men, but relapse into superstition at the onset of middle age and most commonly start genuflecting to the Virgin Mary and to her terrestrial business agent, who still resides in Rome when he is not out on the road, drumming up trade. What really matters, he says, is that almost all of the graduates, even those who have permanently repudiated religion, retain in their minds and never question a mythological conception of the universe as the theatre of a "cosmic struggle between good and evil." That is almost identical with Quigley's characterization of the Group which I quote on p. 81. Waterloo, we are told, was won on the playing fields of Eton; the British Empire may have been lost in its classrooms.

70. Almost all of the Milner Group took their degrees in New College, which may therefore have been a focus of infection that I wish Quigley had investigated. Curtis, the Fahnenträger of the conspiracy, was actually on the books as an undergraduate in New College for fourteen years (1891-1905), the delay in taking his degree being partly explained by his holding positions of some responsibility in the governments of South Africa and in the army that invaded the Boer Republics. New is not one of the highly reputed colleges in Oxford University, but Americans should not conclude from its name that it is a pernicious recent invention; it was new in 1379. Oxonians believe that theirs is the greatest university in the world, and it is not easy to dispute their claim, but its students, though well-bred and well-educated before they come to their college, are, for the most part, adolescents, and may become tinder for inflammatory "ideals" dreamed up by eccentric dons and professors. One madcap escapade, relevant to our subject here, is well known. Ruskin, while Professor of Fine Arts, had a bee—or rather a wasp—in his bonnet about the "dignity of manual labor" and a "duty to serve the people," and enlisted a bevy of impressionable undergraduates, including the future Lord Milner and Oscar Wilde, to illustrate his opinions by paving a road for the benefit of the the social relationships formed at those schools and through the network of family relationships of the members and their friends. They were always well financed, first by Rhodes, and then by such racial patriots as the Rothschilds, Abe Bailey, and Alfred Beit, and similar sources,[71] while they were able to place many of their members in such sinecures as fellowships in All Souls, and many of their fronts, such as the Royal Institute of International Affairs, obtained lavish subventions from governmental and private sources. The near perfection of their organization enabled them to create public opinion in influential circles by the technique we have already described, and to determine governmental policy directly through members who infiltrated the government as "experts" and produced official reports that were signed by pompous figureheads or ambitious politicians glad to have their thinking done for them. But the decisive factor must have been the intellectual and moral climate of Great Britain during the crucial years from 1891 to 1939, when educated, influential, and responsible Englishmen permitted themselves to take inhabitants of some poor village. Fortunately, Ruskin was a wealthy man, so he was able to summon from home his gardener and one or two other servants to make passable the mess that the inspired young intellectuals had made of the roadway.

In their adolescence, many highly intelligent youths are susceptible to schemes of social reform and idealistic notions that are the counterpart of the dolls with which their sisters played at an earlier age, but they can become dreadfully earnest, especially when stimulated by some older man whom they believe to be adult. They fancy themselves to be equipped with super-brains, especially when they are at Oxford, "the Kingdom of the Mind." One remembers the neat verse of Professor Dodgson ("Lewis Carroll"):

> Then, then shall Oxford be herself again,
> Neglect the heart and cultivate the brain—
> Then this shall be the burden of our song
> "All change is good—whatever is, is wrong."
> Then Intellect's proud flag shall be unfurled,
> And Brain, and Brain alone shall rule the world.

Like fire out of control, intellect without common sense is a terrible thing. In recent times, Oxford has fallen on evil days. How low she has fallen may be seen from the newspaper report that some crazed dons have hauled a nigger out of the cesspool in Brixton to bring social understanding to Oxford. If the archway of Tom Tower doesn't collapse when the ape is led through it, the wraiths of the great Oxonians of the past must be powerless.

71. Quigley tells us that Milner made money by serving as "confidential adviser to certain international financiers," probably on the recommendation of Lord Esher. The unnamed financiers, doubtless of Yahweh's Tribe, must have snickered behind their hands as they paid their "confidential adviser."

seriously the conspiracy's propaganda.

One can understand why Curtis's prattling about "all races and kindreds" appealed to sentimental females, especially in the lower segment of the middle class, given to Methodism or Spiritualism or Ouija boards, but how could cultivated men and women in the upper and most influential circles of British society stomach the nonsense that accompanied a professed devotion to the Empire and the race? They were by tradition Anglicans, averse from evangelical ructions, and they must have known of the major discoveries in biological (and hence truly social) science. They may not have known Mendel, whose fundamental work on genetics was almost unknown before 1900, but Darwin's On the Origin of Species was published in 1859, followed by his Descent of Man in 1871. Francis Galton's Hereditary Genius appeared in 1869. Educated Englishmen, readers of periodicals written for mature minds, could not have been unaware of those epochal achievements of their countrymen. In fact, no one could, for the frantic squawking of holy men, who saw the threat to their business, advertised to everyone the application of scientific knowledge to human life. Furthermore, there were many prominent Britons who knew how to govern an empire[72] and had learned from experience the racial and social realities of the world in which we must live, as distinct from the dream world that would be ever so nice if it existed. How was it possible for visionary ideologues to drown out the voice of experience and prudence?

The only explanation, it seems to me, must be that many responsible men and women were still under the spell of a moribund religion. The Milner Group had a "profoundly Christian outlook," and so must have had many of the upperclass men and women whom the conspiracy so successfully fascinated and led to disaster. This brings us inescapably to the question I asked in my little book on Christianity.[73]

The British who avenged in blood, as men should, the "Black Hole" of Calcutta; who, under Clive, although outnumbered more than 16 to 1, conquered Bengal at Plassey; who stormed the "impregnable" walls of Seringapatam; who later, hopelessly outnumbered, crushed the Indian Mutiny—they were Christians,

72. One such man was General Dyer, whom I mention in The Enemy of Our Enemies, p. 67, n. 19. His work and career were ruined by Rufus Isaacs, alias the Marquess of Reading, when that Jew was the Viceroy of India. The British deserved to lose the Empire they destroyed to please their enemies.

73. Christianity and the Survival of the West (2d edition, published by Howard Allen, Box 76, Cape Canaveral, Florida; $4.00 + postage. Also available from Liberty Bell Publications.)

at least nominally, but they did not babble about thrusting "democracy" on the Hindus and Moslems. Some of them were heavy drinkers, but not even when drunk did they have a sick hallucination that they had a duty to do good to everyone but themselves.

The Englishmen who, like Athenians of the great age, forced every sea and land to lie open to their valor, and who everywhere left behind them, whether of weal or of woe, imperishable memorials of their greatness, were Christians, but they were also men, Nordic men, who knew that they who will not live by the sword must die by it.

It is hard to believe that the Englishmen who won their Empire for themselves and their posterity sired sanctimonious twerps who jabber about "world peace" and "social justice" and who want "to serve all mankind." How did Christianity become a degenerative disease of our race?

THE RESIDUE

Six possible explanations may be drawn from as many conceptions of the essential substance of the religion. A few Christian groups today contend that Western Christianity has been perverted and poisoned, partly or largely through the covert influence of the Jews in their attack on our race. Lawrence Brown discreetly intimated and Ralph Perier said bluntly that Christianity, a Semitic cult, is an alien superstition, incompatible with the mentality and morality of our race, and the learned Savitri Devi concluded, concisely and forthrightly, that Christianity "is the oldest and most successful invention of the Jews to emasculate the Aryan race." Between these categorical determinations lie four other explanations of our decadence which place less responsibility on the Jews or dismiss their activities as largely adventitious and opportunistic.

A critique of Christianity would take us far beyond the limits of this article. It would require us to sift an enormous mass of data to determine, so far as possible, the function of religion in the history of our race and the place of Christianity in the history of religions. To so audacious a task I hope soon to address myself. In the meantime, I can only consider a problem that will already have occurred to the reader.

Between the men who won the British Empire and their pusillanimous heirs today lies an historical period marked by a steady decline of belief in the veracity of the Christian Scriptures. And that belief constantly diminished during the decades in which the crackpots of Milner's conspiracy were most influential. It would not be easy to calculate a percentage of belief in the prevalent religion during late Victorian times, when the British Empire reached its apogee, but the lowest possible figure would be many times greater than a corresponding estimate today. In 1942, a judicious observer, Professor A. N. Whitehead, after a diligent investigation, concluded that in Britain "far less than one-fifth of the population are in any sense Christians today." And according to the most competent observers in Britain today, there has been a gradual but constant decline during the past forty years. In other words, the collapse of the Empire paralleled a collapse of Christian faith, and it would seem at first sight that if there is a causal relationship, the disintegration of the Empire (and with it, of course, viability of our race) should be attributed, not to the religion, but rather to the decay of faith in it. That is to ignore the operation of what we may call the law of cultural residues.

In all civilized societies, when a long-established and generally accepted belief is found to be incredible, good minds abandon it, but they commonly retain derivative beliefs that were originally deduced from the creed they have rejected and logically must depend on it. When we speak of a once dominant religion, we must distinguish carefully between belief in its dogma and acceptance of the elements it has contributed to the prevailing Weltanschauung—elements that have been taken for granted by so many generations that their religious origin has been virtually forgotten. Of dogmas, as of men, it can be said that the evil they do lives after them.

Religions that have firmly rooted themselves in a culture have, like crab grass, a vitality that enables them to survive the uprooting of any part of their dogma. That is evident from even the most hurried glance at our history since the Renaissance.

Western Christianity, the religion that had been made tolerable to our race by various compromises and doctrinal modifications, remained a unity until the great schism, begun by Martin Luther, brought with it a great emphasis on the "inerrancy" of the Holy Book, which was the basis of Protestant doctrines and communicated by induction to the Catholics, as all sects divulged the Scriptures in vernacular translations. Almost simultaneously, however, the Copernican revival of astronomy based on the heliocentric structure of the solar system, confirmed by Kepler and other observers, became an irrefutable proof that the author of God's Word had been abysmally ignorant of the most basic form of the world he supposedly created. And after the fakirs learned by experience that no ingenuity in torturing or murdering intelligent and honest men could stop the earth from revolving about the sun, the theologians of the various sects turned their craft to devising verbal juggling that would explain why their god had not told the truth. The masses, as always, had no difficulty in believing whatever suited their fancy, but among men and women of some cultivation the result was that a small minority turned to outright atheism, but most of the persons who could no longer believe the Biblical myths adopted the deism that we have seen in Jefferson, which was the belief of most of our Founding Fathers, although they may have been more circumspect in stating it only to intimate friends.

The deists' monotheism was more than a simple revival of Graeco-Roman Stoicism. In leaving Christianity, they took with them as much of the religion as they could, especially the parts that directly affected social morality and accepted conventions, including some that had been extolled by holy men but tacitly ignored in practice. Their deity was a creator who had known what he was doing, and of whose existence a proof could be sought in the mathematical neatness of Kepler's Laws, but the Jesus of the "New Testament," shorn of his divinity, was respected as a moralist, and Jefferson, as we have seen, even salvaged the fantastic Sermon on the Mount, regarding it as edifying reading, even though it was so charged with Oriental "hyperbolism" that it was scarcely relevant to quotidian life.

So much is obvious, but let us dare to ask a question that will curl the pages of your favorite textbook of Modern History. Everyone knows that the French Revolution was violently anti-Christian, and that although its leaders included some atheists, such as Hébert, its dominant faith was deism, which became the established cult after that bloody beast, Robespierre, legislated into existence his pet Être Suprême. A long line of able and conscientious writers, including the learned Abbé Augustine Barruel,[74] Professor John Robison,[75] Nesta Webster,[76] and the eminent ecclesiastic who wrote under the name of Maurice Pinay,[77] have plausibly described the French

74. See his Mémoires pour servir à l'histoire du Jacobinisme, revus et corrigés par l'auteur, Lyons, 1818, which was handsomely reprinted from new type at Vouillé, Chiré-en-Montreuil, by a small group of admirably courageous and dedicated Catholics, "Diffusion de la Pensée Française," in 1973. (Strikes in France prevented actual publication until 1975). No one should attempt to use or criticize Barruel as an historical source except on the basis of this edition, which differs greatly from his first edition, London, 1797-98, which was written and published when he was in exile, did not have access to many important documents, and was unable to verify his recollection of various events. The English translation, based on the first edition, is therefore untrustworthy and will betray its readers into more or less serious errors on many points. Barruel's conception of history is, of course, colored by his apparently sincere conviction of the truth of Christianity, but he was honest. For example, he resisted the pious temptation to repeat the lie propagated by holy men who had tried to neutralize the celebrated work of Father Meslier by alleging that it had been forged by Voltaire. (Voltaire did produce a short summary of the Revolution as the work of a conspiracy against Christianity. But if we ignore the diverse and often conflicting ambitions and secret motives of its promoters and consider only their professed purposes, was not the Revolution really an attempt to establish at once the Heaven on Earth that, according to the Christians' favorite horror story, would be established by Jesus after he smashed up the universe or, at least, some little part of it around the earth, say within a radius of a thousand light years? [78] Did not the homicidal maniacs work and interpolated it to make Meslier endorse deism, which Voltaire thought socially necessary to avert anarchy. Barruel is a prime source for all later writers on the subject, and when you read them, be sure to ascertain which edition of his Mémoires they used.

75. The third edition of Proofs of a Conspiracy Against all the Religions and Governments of Europe, containing an added postscript, was published at London and Edinburgh in 1798. It was copied and called "fourth edition" by the American publisher, New York, 1798. One or the other of these printings was reproduced anastatically around 1960, as I remember, but I cannot give an exact reference. An edition from reset type was published as an "Americanist Classic" by the Birch business in 1967. It is the work of an anonymous editor, so ignorant or negligent that in his own pages he sometimes seems unaware of the correct form of the possessive case in English and the function of capital letters. In his transcription of Robison's text, he was so ignorant of French and Latin that he often confused the long form of the letter s with the letter f. These blunders may have been corrected in later printings.

76. Her three most important works on this subject, The French Revolution (1919), World Revolution: the Plot Against Civilisation (1921), and Secret Societies and Subversive Movements (1924), have all been reprinted and are available from Liberty Bell Publications. An edition of World Revolution, revised and augmented by Anthony Gittens, Devon, Britons, 1971, went out-of-print with the liquidation of the publisher and is said to have become rare. Mrs. Webster's two volumes on Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette (London, 1936-38) add a few details to her earlier work.

77. The most satisfactory edition which I have seen is the Spanish translation, Complot contra la Iglesia (Caracas, Venezuela, 1964). There is a barely passable English translation of the German translation, supplemented from the Spanish, The Plot Against the Church (Los Angeles, St. Anthony Press, and Hawthorne, California, Omni, 1967). I have not seen the Italian original (Rome, 1962). The German translation (1963) is truncated.

78. This apocalyptic fantasy strongly contrasts with the characteristic view of Aryan religions, which assume a happier (but not Paradisical) state in the past, lost by the slow declension of the human race. Nam genus hoc vivo iam decrescebat Homero . . . Aetas parentum, peior avis, tulit nos nequiores . . . For this pessimism there was a real basis in the dysgenic effects of civilization, even in cultures free of Christianity. The biological process is concisely described by the late Professor Elmer Pendell in Why Civilizations Self-Destruct (Cape Canaveral, Florida, 1977).

think of themselves as Saviours, come to extirpate the evil incarnate in the "aristocrats," that is to say the educated and refined French men and women who were largely Nordic and included much of the best blood in France? When they gabbled about liberté, égalité, fraternité, were they not simply reproducing, with only superficial changes, the revolutionary and proletarian ardors of Christianity, which inspired many parts of the "New Testament," but had been tacitly suppressed, so far as possible, by the Roman Church and most of the Protestant sects? [79] Did they not believe that "the truth [of Rousseau's gospel] shall make you free"? Whence did they derive the mad notion that "all men are created equal," if not from the foolish denial of the obvious by the Christians? [80] From what other source well-known to them could they have taken the notion of a 'brotherhood' that was not genealogical, national, or racial, but embraced all True Believers, with a spiteful disregard of heredity and human nature? And was not their blood-lust inspired by the primitive Christian hatred of all superiority, physical, mental, or moral? A very good case can be made for the proposition that the Leitmotif of the French Revolution was an anti-clerical Christianity, an insane attempt to realize Christian "ideals" after jettisoning the Scriptures from

79. There were, of course, exceptions, and various small Protestant sects, such as the Anabaptists, tried to revive Biblical doctrines that the large sects ignored, including, for example, polygyny, which, as everyone knows, is expressly sanctioned in the "Old Testament" and not explicitly condemned in the "New." During the Puritan Revolution in England, the proponents of polygyny came fairly close to having a plurality of wives authorized by an act of the Parliament. In the same period, the Levellers included a faction, headed by Rainsborough, that advocated complete equality for all human beings, including women and, if he was logical, children and lunatics. It is noteworthy, however, that most of the Levellers, whether from conviction or political expediency, excluded from the blessings of equality all females, paupers, and servants—and, of course, all Royalists, Catholics, Anglicans, and other agents of Satan. See their official proclamations, collected and reprinted by G. E. Aylmer in The Levellers in the English Revolution (Cornell University Press, 1975).

80. The early Christians' mania for equality was most explicitly stated in gospels that were not included in the "New Testament" anthology when it was made up at the close of the Fourth Century. In my review of Mr. Simpson's Which Way, Western Man? (reprinted in America's Decline, pp. 355 ff.), I cited a gospel in which Jesus promises that, after he has raised hell on earth, he will resurrect all of his biped lambs and make them as indistinguishable from one another as the bees in a swarm. Other gospels do not go so far, but promise women that Jesus will make men of them, and some of the Fathers of the Church naturally invented miracles that proved that pious Christian females would have their sex changed so that they could enjoy life in an all-male Heaven.

which they had been derived.[81]

The professed anti-Christianity of the Revolution before Napoleon naturally suggested the great effort during the Nineteenth Century to quell the dark and clandestine forces of the enemies of our civilization by using Christianity as a backfire to contain the revolutionary conflagration. That often makes it difficult to determine how much of the professed faith of any individual was emotional conviction and how much was a sense of social expediency. When, for example, Thomas Arnold, who admittedly had been a sceptic in his young manhood, tried to inculcate in the boys at Rugby "a conviction of the truth of Christianity," how much of his piety was consciously or subconsciously motivated by a determination to make them immune to the murderous insanity that had swept France when he was a child?

As in the Counter-Reformation, the Christianity that men tried to restore was not what it had been before the upheaval. In both Catholic and Protestant countries it incorporated heresies taken from the Revolution, such as the condemnation of slavery as a social institution, and largely dropped the insistence on the divine source of political authority vested in a monarch and the aristocracy he or his predecessors had created. It would be vain to guess how successful the religious Restoration would have been, had not the cult been confronted by new augmentations of human knowledge.

The damage done to the faith by astronomy could not be repaired, but it had been glossed over and partly hidden by artful sophistries. But now men began to learn from primary sources the essential facts about other Oriental religions, and it soon became apparent that the Jews purloined almost all of their myths from the more civilized peoples of Asia, and that their religion was a vulgarized assortment of ideas taken from the same sources and perverted to justify the Jews' arrogant pretense to racial superiority. The alarmed holy men discovered that persecuting, mobbing, and imprisoning a courageously honest clergyman, the Reverend Mr. Taylor, whose Diegesis was published in 1829,[82] could not efface records that had been published and were known at least to scholars. At about the same time, primary sources began to yield a knowledge of the true history of Egypt and Babylon, and it gradually became more and more apparent that the tales in the "Old Testament," which had been thought to be an historical record checked and verified by an omniscient deity, were Jewish tales, comparable to the "true history" of Doon de Mayence or of Garin de Montglane in the French chansons de geste.[83] And finally biological science gave the coup de grace to the long cherished notion that human beings so differed from other mammals that they must have been especially designed by a well-meaning, but oddly inept, creator. What was more important, it became obvious that the Fathers of the Church, who fashioned the form of Christianity that came down to us, had incorporated in their religion the most advanced biological techniques for assuring 82. For a brief notice of Taylor and his work, see the article reprinted in America's Decline, pp. 357-360.

81. We should never forget that many Christian clergymen, both Catholic and Protestant, became disciples of the French Revolution, despite its strident hostility to the religion in which they were professionals. In the United States, for example, the Calvinists of the Edwardean Conspiracy immediately recognized the Revolution as "the Lord's work." They recognized in it, of course, the part of Christianity in which they were really interested. They moderated their enthusiasm when they perceived that it was detrimental to their scheme for obtaining political control of the new nation. I mention the Edwardeans in my article in The Liberty Bell, "The Uses of Religion," p. 10, note 2.

83. No one could read any Egyptian writing before 1821, and accurate knowledge of the several scripts and the language required the patient labors of many scholars for more than two generations, while knowledge of Egyptian history has been constantly augmented by the discovery and publication of inscriptions and papyri, which continues to the present time. The debunking of the Bible therefore proceeded slowly. For a long time, scholars, supposing there was some historical basis for the Jews' tales, tried to identify the King of Egypt who was called "Big House" (Pharaoh, i.e., the Palace) in the myths about Moses, which, as was eventually seen, was like trying to identify the king whose palace was enchanted by the fairy in the tale of the Sleeping Beauty.—The simplest form of the cuneiform script was first deciphered successfully by Rawlinson in 1846, thus making it possible to read inscriptions in Old Persian; on this basis, his successors read more complicated cuneiform writing and reconstructed the languages for which they were used, Susian, Babylonian, Akkadian, and Sumerian. At one time, even scholars tried to identify the king of Persia who had done something that gave rise to the story that he was so feeble-minded that he let the sexual talents of a Jewess induce him to permit God's People to massacre all the Aryans who didn't venerate them, but it has long since been obvious that the fiction and the Jewish festival that celebrates it annually were simply devised to inspire Jewesses to manipulate properly the stupid Aryan pigs whom they marry for the advancement of their holy race. Some educated Jews no longer try to pretend that their story book is historical, but take refuge in the claim that the myths embody a "God-given moral code." See the review of Magnus Magnusson's B.C.: the Archaeology of the Bible in the Jewish Chronicle (London), 25 March 1977. The same newspaper, however, has published a few letters from readers who demand legislation to forbid the accursed archaeologists and scholars from disclosing information detrimental to the prestige of Yahweh's Master Race and its God-given right to own the entire globe.

the degeneracy and eventual extinction of our race.[84]

Thus, during the Nineteenth Century, Western Christianity was destroyed by two antithetical forces: its Scriptures could no longer be believed by educated and rational men, but at the same time they were read by ignorant, excitable, or malicious persons, who were inspired to revive the proletarian and baneful elements of primitive Christianity, which had been partly suppressed by the reaction against the French Revolution but reached their eventual fruition in the Bolshevism that the Jews imposed on Russia in 1918. The antithesis was total, but it was largely concealed by the phenomenon we have called the law of cultural residue. That made Milner's conspiracy possible.

The culture of the upper classes in Britain was compounded of brilliance and ambiguity. Women are far more prone to religiosity than men, but it is highly improbable that any lady in the elegant and apolaustic society that perished in 1914 actually believed that her sex had been created and cursed by a blundering god in the way described in what may be the silliest story in the whole Bible.[85] Some may have been convinced by

84. The facts of genetics are most concisely and lucidly set forth, without technicalities, by Mr. Simpson in Chapters XVI and XVII of Which Way, Western Man? See also the work of Professor Pendell cited in note 77 above. It was only to be expected that this biological science would excite a fanaticism even more vicious than did Copernican astronomy. It counters the tropism toward whatever is inferior, debased, and degenerate that is inherent in Christianity and appears, perhaps even most strongly, in its ostensibly irreligious sects, especially Communism and "Liberalism." The "educators" who now programme their "intellectual" zombies in the slums that once were universities are probably most concerned for the prosperity of their own racket, but some may have the religious faith of the "Liberals." The sleazy shysters who are working the "Moral Majority" swindle are our most recent affliction and could become the most pernicious.

85. There are, of course, two creation myths in the Bible. According to the first, the gods (the word is plural in Hebrew) took a whim to create human beings "in our image," and since the gods (like the gods whom we know the Jews worshipped at Elephantine before they decided to concentrate on Yahweh as their only patron among the gods) were of both sexes, they naturally created males and females, and told their creatures to start propagating their species. That straightforward story is as reasonable and believable as any creation myth. Christians, however, seem always to opt for the alternative tale, about Adam, Eve, the talking snake, and the Yahweh who makes a mess of everything he attempts and who goes walking under the trees in the cool of the evening to avoid the heat of the midday sun. It is likely that the absurd myth was suggested to some Jew by a common motif in genre-sculpture of the Hellenistic Age and perhaps earlier. A young girl gazes with longing at an apple hanging beyond her grasp on a tree about which is coiled a huge serpent. This pretty symbol of the theologians' sophistries or overawed by the warning that "divine mysteries" are not to be thought about. Some doubtless felt free to form their own private opinions, and many probably refused to trouble their minds about theoretical questions irrelevant to their own lives. On occasion, one followed convention in religious matters, just as one conformed to the established etiquette in paying calls, leaving cards, issuing invitations, and arranging dinner parties.

Many men doubtless thought about religion as little as did their womenfolk, and were engrossed by the activities of their normally pleasant and carefree lives. Among thoughtful men, the dominant intellectual attitude was agnosticism, which was essentially a hesitation between deism and atheism, but could be extended to cover Christianity; it neatly eluded acrimonious debates, while permitting attendance at Christian ceremonies "to set an example for the lower classes."

The Church of England was the Establishment: it commanded respect and deserved support. It provided comfortable livings for educated gentlemen, often younger sons of the gentry, who would otherwise have been without an adequate income. Its clergy, with all the differences of rank and means that Trollope describes, were all products of the two great universities and they were, almost without exception, well-bred and urbane. It is unlikely that any one of them believed that a god had dictated the tales in the Bible, and we cannot measure the extent to which each man was intellectually satisfied by the sophistries of the theologians, but many, perhaps most, of them combined gentility with a deep moral earnestness. It would have been "bad form" indeed to disparage so cultivated and amiable a bulwark of society. Furthermore, educated men, almost without exception, took it for granted that the masses needed a religion—and they may well have been right. It followed, therefore, that Christianity, even in the vulgar form it took in the crude chapels of Dissenters, was a Good Thing. A gentleman would not take from the common folk their spiritual consolation any more than he would take away a little girl's doll. But the men who took that supercilious attitude were usually unaware of the beam in their own eye.

human longing for what is unattainable without suicidal risk would have been incomprehensible to a Jewish mind anyway. A good picture of one example of this decorative sculpture, coming from the third century B.C., may be found in the American Journal of Archaeology, XLIX (1945), pp. 430 ff. The preposterous tale about Adam, his spare rib (Eve, who became a mother before she became pregnant), and a hot-tempered god who obligingly became the world's first tailor, could have been believed only by persons who would not or could not reflect about what they heard or read.

Almost without exception, even atheists took it for granted that a monotheism was somehow better than a polytheism, and that Christianity had actually been an improvement over the "pagan" religions it displaced. It was regarded as the sole support of social and personal morality, and even as the source of the regulation of men's conduct toward their fellows in an organized society that had been earlier formulated in the laws of Hammurabi, the Code of Manu, and the unwritten principles to which Hesiod appealed. The British, having drastically revised the sexual preoccupations of the cult to suit themselves, were, like all stable societies, particularly concerned to preserve the family as a unit and to ensure the legitimacy of one's heirs. Western Christianity, having absorbed the chivalrous attitude toward women that is distinctively Aryan, was believed, not without justification, to have given women the privileged status that they have now repudiated together with their self-respect.

It was only natural, therefore, that Victorian agnostics shared Jefferson's esteem for the Jesus of the "New Testament." He may have been a Jewish reformer or even a frustrated revolutionary, but, if one politely overlooked his gaffes, one could see in him a morally earnest man whose better utterances were an exhortation to a conduct that was obviously desirable within a nation, and gave to the masses an ethical standard to which they could conform without reflection and doubt, believing it divinely ordained.

To this we must add the not inconsiderable effect of the position that Christianity had secured in the mythology by which a culture expands the scope of its language, supplementing its vocabulary with allusions to memorable stories that everyone knows. The Bible contains many Oriental tales as vivid as the stories of Aladdin and his lamp and of Sinbad the Sailor.[86] Everyone knows what we mean when we allude to Noah or Pharaoh or the Queen of Sheba or Jeremiah or Judas or Doubting Thomas or any one of scores of other stories, and the allusion supplies both a meaning and an emotional connotation that it would take pages of well-wrought prose to express otherwise. And we have charged those tales with a special significance: an allusion to Noah, for example, differs in its effects from an allusion to Deucalion, while an allusion to Utnapishtim or Manu would puzzle some readers, at least temporarily. Furthermore, the Biblical texts contain many memorable and expressive statements and apothegms, and their very words, forever enshrined for us in the English of the King James version, provide, like the plays of Shakespeare, apt verbal reminiscences that we use to augment our language—as, for example, I see that I did automatically in the last sentence of the third paragraph above. To speak of a beam in one's eye is physiologically absurd, but the allusion has a clear meaning. Christianity, for better or worse, has become an integral part of our culture, and it has, moreoever, enriched our literature with the true gospels of Western Christianity, from Paradise Lost to the Idylls of the King.

86. Incidentally, students of cultural history should perpend the fact that the "Arabian Nights" would never have attained any considerable popularity, had they been first disseminated in the accurate translations by Sir Richard Burton (17 vols., London, 1885-86) and Dr. J.C. Madrus (17 vols., Paris, 1926). For more than a century the stories were known only in the drastically simplified, condensed, and partly Westernized version by Antoine Galland, first published at Caen in 1704, and in English and German translations of Galland's French. Galland's version, which inspired the enormous vogue of pseudo-Oriental tales in the Eighteenth Century, is still the basis of the "Arabian Nights" that are read by the young.

We must remember also that Western Christianity incorporated our race's instinctive compassion and charity for the unfortunate, which is socially advantageous when it conduces to the preservation of our own people, and does not become a deadly poison until it is madly perverted to a device for degrading us to benefit our enemies. This sentiment of practical charity appears most strongly in the Nordic, perhaps in the Anglo-Saxon, part of our race.[87] Few today appreciate the fact that with the Poor Law of 1601 the English began to tax themselves for the support of the poor, and that by the time of Charles II fully one-third of the total revenue raised by taxation was devoted to that eleemosynary work of national and local governments. That concern for one's people, although unenlightened by the biological discrimination that is requisite for national survival, evinces a sound instinct that was later perverted into an unthinking and pernicious sentimentality.

When we try to reconstruct in our minds the atmosphere of the great Victorian Age, we must also take into account the underlying tensions of a time when every crime of fraud or violence was reasonably attributed to a "neglect of religion and morality," the two being considered synonymous, while the religion was becoming unbelievable. It was socially terrifying as well as personally painful to live in a world laid bare by the dissipation of pleasant illusions:

87. In my youth, I observed an especially instructive manifestation of the altruistic factor in our racial psyche. In the late 1930s, when small farmers were under increasing economic pressure, a middle-aged man, who had taught English literature and then held a very responsible position in the administration of a large university, suffered a "nervous breakdown." Abandoning his office and family, he began to roam the countryside, trying to help farmers who seemed particularly distressed. He, for example, bought calves that he presented to farmers who, he thought, ought to raise some livestock, and he even contributed his own labor. He was killed when he fell from the ridgepole of a barn on which he was putting a new roof.

> No hope in this worn-out world, no hope beyond the tomb;
> No living and loving God, but only blind and stony Doom.

When the veil of fiction was rent, man shuddered before "Nature, red in tooth and claw." Nature had always been that and always will be, and the hands of man, even when he fashions and defends the noblest civilization, must forever be bloody hands, for this is a world in which only the strong and resolute nations survive, while the weak, especially the morally weak, who babble about brotherhood and peace, are biologically degenerate and doomed to extinction.

From this affrighting glimpse of reality, the Victorian mind recoiled and often sought refuge in frantic affirmations of impossible anodynes. Tennyson was one of the great poets of that age, but he could write such stuff as

> Put down the passions that make earth Hell!
> Down with ambition, avarice, pride,
> Jealousy, down! Cut off from the mind
> The bitter springs of anger and fear; and so on. He could have expressed his message more concisely: Let's stop breathing! Such tirades, however, were tolerable in an age in which thoughtful men had to find, even for themselves, some socially feasible path between the brilliantly cynical hedonism of Oscar Wilde's Picture of Dorian Gray and the lethal pessimism that James Thomson ("Bysshe Vanolis") made sonorous in The City of the Dreadful Night.

One escape from reality was by drugging oneself with visions of Jesus's New Earth, slightly modernized by deleting the celestial protagonist and replacing him with a vaporous notion of social Progress that was absurdly thought to be confirmed by the actual progress of scientific knowledge and technological skill. Tennyson, whom we cite precisely because he was so great a representative of his age, should never have gone to Locksley Hall, where, in a fit of midsummer madness, he "dipt into the future, as far as human eye could see," and beheld such phantasmagoria as a time when > the war-drum throbb'd no longer, and the battle flags were furl'd

> In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world.

When he wrote, Tennyson probably said, Get thee behind me,

Jesus. That was probably why he didn't see who was whispering in his ear.

What is insidious in Tennyson's poem and all the tons of printed paper that dilate on the couplet I quoted, is that an accurate prevision of aërial transportation and warfare between "airy navies" lent a meretricious sheen of plausibility to a Christian fantasy that had been made only the more preposterous by superficial changes. Christianity, expelled from the door, stole back through the window, unnoticed and unsuspected.

Fantasies about magical transformations of the human species are pleasing in themselves, and a first-rate poet or rhetorician can make them allicient and even credible with literary charm. We may treat them, when reading, with "poetic suspension of doubt," and hesitate to break the illusion. When we read of Britomart in the Faërie Queen or of Bradamante in the Orlando, we are entranced by the dreamworld in which those doughty female warriors appear, and we feel mean and churlish, if we let reality intrude and destroy the romance with an observation that the hero who marries such a virago is much to be pitied. World peace is far more unnatural and fantastic than a charming female whose brawny arm can unhorse and slay valiant knights and can cope with giants, but we don't like to laugh at such alluring wisps of the imagination. And they do give us a mental escape from a reality that may daunt the most courageous—although it must be faced in the end, unless we as a people opt for the content of a male spider, who presumably enjoys his dalliance with the female before she eats him.

I have tried to suggest the multiple factors that, in the Victorian Era, made it possible for men who thought they had escaped from Christianity to be only the more enthralled by the worst aspects of it. They were trapped by what I have called the law of cultural residue. The Oriental religion, as revised and partly acclimated by our racial psyche, had induced certain pleasing, though ultimately enervating, dreams of a felicity impossible in this world and prudently promised only in an invisible world, above the clouds or beyond the moon, in which all of the laws of nature would be repealed and all good ghosts would be equal and happy. That world, however, was the responsibility of the omnipotent three-in-one tyrant who managed everything, and the important thing for men, during their brief sojourn in this sublunar world, was to make sure they were obeying a duly authorized holy man who knew the magic rites that gave ghosts admittance to his transmundane and transfinite realm.

When the supernatural authority for dulcet dreams of future felicity evaporated, many human beings clung only the more desperately to their dreams and wanted to realize them in the only world they would ever know. Jesus went off stage, changed his nightgown for a dinner jacket, and came back as Progress. The new biological science was travestied by an uncommonly foolish equivocation, "some call it Evolution and some call it God." And Progress, appearing in his new togs as the Saviour sent by Science, marketed the old apocalyptic hokum about a Heaven on Earth, laying on his True Believers the urgent duty to create that One World at once, according to the plans of a divine architect who, unfortunately, wasn't there anymore. And every shyster and con man, every misfit filled with organic resentment of his betters, grasped the opportunity to prey upon residual superstition and excite in impressionable minds a feeling of guilt because they had not done what men cannot do.

The Victorians, remember, thought themselves rich and secure in the power their fathers had won for them with blood. They could enjoy their civilization rather than defend and augment it; they could afford to indulge themselves in sprees of idealism. And it is only fair to add that not even in their worst nightmares could they have foreseen the consequences of their sentimental debauchery: their wealth and power lost and their once sceptered isle overrun with anthropoid vermin that swarmed out of the ruins of their empire. Had the Victorians foreseen the England of today, they would have had the prudence and manhood to make that catastrophe impossible, even at the cost of a vigorous reaffirmation of the qualities that had made them great—and of a social surgery that would have been an inspiring precedent for all of our race or, at least, the viable parts of it. As it was, in the cozy relaxation of their ephemeral prosperity and the bewilderment of a cultural residue, they permitted themselves to be manipulated and led to disaster by the artful intrigues of the simple-minded crackpots of Milner's conspiracy.

There were other factors, of course, but Quigley's posthumous book makes it clear, I think, that the crucial and decisive factor was the willingness of the British, bemused by our race's long addiction to Christianity, to tolerate the open and clandestine activities of the Milner Group. They should have known better, but they did not. The English were like persons who give boxes of matches to unruly moppets and tell them to go play in the attic. They should not have been surprised by the consequences. The Jews were not.

At all events, there has, I hope, been some profit for us in a somewhat detailed review of the operations of the collective calamity that Rhodes founded—with the best of intentions. And the most frightening thing of all may be the apparent certainty that the direly destructive pack of highly educated dunderheads also meant well. Their minds secluded from reality by a shimmering curtain of abstract ideas and travailled by residual superstition, they never suspected they were only sheepdogs in the service of malevolent herdsmen. They believed themselves to be, and indeed by birth and education they largely were, the élite of an élitè.

It will be a long time before I can hear the word 'élite' without a shudder.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 6

Senator Wm. Proxmire has been trying to pass the Genocide Treaty for a long time (it's a treasonous treaty), and I'd like to have the paper on this treaty to send to various people to inform them that this is a bad treaty (against our national interest). One of our South Dakota senators is pro-Israel. I'd like to see if I can get him to realize the truth about present Israel and Zionism. Henry Klein's booklet about Zionism (I got from you) is very good to educate people. . . .

Mr. Dietz, the farmers here have a cost-price squeeze, too. They don't get the cost of production out of most grain. Many farmers in the Mid-West have lost their farms. Many are deeply in debt. I do know the Zionist conspirators (One-Worlders) want to destroy the family farms and small businesses (one reason for high interest rates is to wreck our economy, including the housing industry). They want to destroy our Aryan race by mongrelization (reason for forced busing, open housing and sex education in schools).

During World War II I believed the lies I read about Adolf Hitler. Today, after reading the truth from patriotic books and magazines, I believe that Adolf Hitler was a good man who was trying to save both his Nation (from Zionist usury and oppression), and our Aryan race from destruction. I had some very fine German uncles and I think a lot of all the good German Lutheran people I know in this area. They are intelligent, honest, ambitious, and hard-working good citizens. I believe that both Churchill and F.D.R. were controlled by Zionists who issued the orders to bomb German residential cities like Dresden and many others. The Zionist slogan is "Divide and Conquer." They want Gentiles and Christians to fight Gentiles and Christians to kill off as many as possible.

Our U.S. pilots made a big mistake to bomb and shell their bloodbrothers (the German people)—the Soviets were the real enemies. F.D.R. lied to us U.S. citizens (he was controlled by Wall Street Zionist bankers). I didn't know anything about politics till the Panama Canal treaties. Friends sent me patriotic magazines to inform me. I ignorantly voted for F.D.R. four times (I didn't know any better).

I found out about the Khazars who adopted Judaism in 740 A.D. They are 90% of today's Jews. They have no claim to Palestine. They control the dishonest Federal Reserve money system which should be repealed. They control our foreign and domestic policies.

I have the deepest concern about our nation's future. It is Zionist policy to flood our nation with colored aliens, they are determined to destroy our Aryan Western Civilization. . . Khazar Zionists started Communism. They have killed up to 200 million Gentiles since 1913, in a drive for world rule.

Thanks for the good literature,
Mrs. L.B., South Dakota

* * * * *

Dear Friends: 1 November 1982

I have never seen such a good selection of informative non-kosher reading material in my life! Keep up the good work. The Nueremberg War Crimes book was excellent and infuriating. I stayed up nearly all night finishing it. Please send me the books on the enclosed order form.

Thanks,
J.W., Texas

* * * * *

Dear George: 27 October 1982

The current issue of SPOTLIGHT contains a nasty reference to you in the course of a long diatribe against Viguerie. Carto says (11/1/, p. 5, col. 3) you are calling yourself a "populist," but he's the real one! I guess the cover of the September issue [of the LIBERTY BELL] got him started.

Carto is having his troubles. The circulation of Spotlight reached a peak of 310,000 about two years ago. With a fairly good magnifying glass you can read the statement of present circulation in the issue for 10/18, p. 11, col. 4, which you may be sure, is padded as much as he dares. The current circulation is given as 206,008, of which only 181,569 is by subscription. What is more, the average for the preceding part of this year was 247,994, so you can see he has lost more than a third of what he had at his peak.

Best regards,
W.M., Massachussetts

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 27 October 1982

Thank you for the pamphlets and magazines you sent in addition to the books I ordered. I was particularly intrigued by "China, the Jews and World War III."

. . . I am also outraged at the scurrilous and despicable Bircher-type attack on you in the latest issue of the SPOTLIGHT. The SPOTLIGHT has no grounds for attacking anyone, since they don't even have the guts to attack the enemies of our race BY NAME as you and many others have done. I am now serving a 6-year prison sentence ONLY because of my public criticisms of the Jews, and many others have suffered and sacrificed for the struggle. . .

Best wishes,
Michael L. Hansen, No. 43850
Box 911, Sioux Falls, S.D., 57117

* * * * *

Dear George: 2 November 1982

You should sue SPOTLIGHT for defamation of character for their smear of you on p. 5 of the Nov. 1, 1982 issue. I wrote them a blistering letter which they would never have the guts to print.

This is the letter I wrote to SPOTLIGHT:

I've watched SPOTLIGHT toot its own horn in issue after issue, but now it has arrogated to itself the word 'populist.'

As you define 'Populism,' George Dietz fulfills every category. In the same issue, (Vol. VIII, No. 44) you carried two ads by the Sword of Truth Book Club, and in a previous issue you had an article by Ralph Forbes. They are both Nazis. The difference is that Dietz is not into the Christianity racket, and he doesn't worship the Jews's god, Yahweh.

Thomas Jefferson may be your patron saint, but he gave no accolades to Christianity. What is Martin Larson doing, anyway, pirating the works of Jefferson?

You divide the enemy into good Jews and bad Jews, but they are both guided by the Talmud. What hypocrites you are!

The Middle East scares you, doesn't it? If the U.S.S.R. bombs Israel, World War III will follow, and the two captive empires, Russia and America, will disappear in a planned nuclear holocaust.

You idolize the Constitution and the republic it stands for, but the United States is finished. In a democracy, garbage rises to the top. Eventually, the whole river stinks like the garbage flowing on top. Who would want to live in such a place?

You haven't a jackrabbit's chance of replacing the government in Washington, D.C. with a populist restoration of our rights. The entire Right Wing is incapable of seeing reality. You are all dinosaurs sinking into the tarpits.

J.H., Denver, CO

* * * * *

The following is another letter which was written to the SPOTLIGHT in reply to the smear we reprint below:

Sir: Ref. Editorial of 1. Nov. 1982, p.5

Any honest individual, whether 'sleazy' or living in the backwoods of W.Va., or both, is an important asset for the revival of the brand of populism which you try to further—and which we all need! I therefor object vehemently to the childish character assassination you launched against that very same and specified person without offering the trace of an explanation. Such loss of political foresight surely requires a penalty and I shall impose on you a fine of US$22.00 (one year's subscription of the "Spotlight"), payable over the coming twelve months.

Sincerely,
R.G., Maryland

* * * * *

The following is reprinted from THE SPOTLIGHT, 1 November 1982, p. 5:

". . . . . We hoped and believed that our revival of the true populist message would spark the interest of millions of brainwashed Americans of all hues of political coloration and add a new and vital element to political discourse.

What we overlooked, however, is that the name would be seized upon by a grubby group of "ideologues with closed minds and those whose interest is purely mercenary" even before it has had an honest chance for consideration.

Unfortunately, that is what is in danger of happening and you should know about it.

A sleazy character from Reedy, West Virginia, who struts around as a tinhorn "nazi" when he is not busy pirating books has started calling himself a "populist"!

Of course, no one takes this nut seriously and he can be treated with the contempt he deserves. The real problem is in the person of one of the slickest promoters in the political business, Mr. Richard A. Vigueri. . . . ."

We do not recall having met the writer of this SPOTLIGHT editorial, Willis Carto, whom some people we know address as "Wiley Willie", but once during a Liberty Lobby convention in Washington, D.C., on July 4, 1976 Nor do we recall having strutted around in full-dress nazi regalia as a "tinhorn 'nazi' " on that occasion. We do rule out the possibility that "Wiley Willie" might have received his information by turning into a "Peeping Tom" and peeking through the key hole of our office door, even though, we must admit, there are very few things "Wiley Willie" would NOT do to further HIS "slick promotions." Also, we know for a fact that he could not have received this "sleazy character from Reedy, W.V. who struts around as a tinhorn 'nazi' "-information from those two friends of his of the F.B.I. whom he asked to pay us a visit two or three years ago, since 'yours truly' normally dresses in regular business attire.

As for "one of the slickest promoters in the political business, Mr. Richard A. Vigueri", we do believe that, while "Wiley Willie" successfully milked the "Right Wing" through different fronts for years, Mr. Vigueri did succeed in topping Carto's efforts and success. Hence the running battle between these two promoters. But, since we do not intend to turn this reply into a "get-even" scheme, we shall keep the information we have on Mr. Carto in our confidential files—for the time being. —Editor.

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 8 November 1982

Enclosed you will find $10. as a monthly donation to aid in the work of THE LIBERTY BELL and other publications.

Also, enclosed you will find the latest bilge from the Carto Organization. I am quite sure you and Dr. Oliver are quite capable of defending yourself as to the accusations contained therein. Too bad these people can't attack the enemy as well as they do those who are working for the same cause, in the same vineyard, so to speak. Just thought I would send you a copy of this article if you haven't seen it.

For Race and Nation!
J.H., Mississippi

* * * * *

Dear Sirs: 8 November 1982

Enclosed you will find a money order for the purchase of a copy of THE TALMUD. Living in New York City, I'm certain that it will be an immensely useful tool to aid me in my understanding and dealing with the Hebraic parasites that I encounter on a daily basis.

Considering the recent elections (if one could label them as such), it becomes increasingly clear that many white Americans' (those that voted) priorities are dictated by the mass media and those who control it, and that it will require not only the loss of a job but the loss of family members and personal property to barbarian minorities before people begin to arrive at a realistic assessment of what this nations problems really are. Alas, the American mind seems to be forever obsessed with life on a materialistic level, which explains why the Jews have been able to so thoroughly dominate the land. Their behavior is emulated by those whose ancestors deplored it. It seems more and more likely to me that the only way current trends can be changed is through a violent revolution, not through the political process as it stands.

Sincerely,
S.R., New York City

* * * * *

Sir, 8 November 1982

Hi, my name is James Underwood, I am 25 years old. I have been in prison for 8 years now here at Angola, the maximum security prison in Louisiana. I came here when I was 17 years old and I've seen enough to make any white man sad, and very angry. I've heard of your work and want to keep up on progress. I am very interested in becoming more aware and what course is left to the white man.

My hate of blacks has grown since I've been in prison and the only way I know to deal with them is violence; it seems they understand this very well. There seems to be little reading material inside the prison. There are a few whites who feel as I do and basically we stick together.

I am in a 6 x 9' cell at the max. security camp because I escaped, it was my third attempt. Do you think you could help me by sending some reading material because I have time to study. I want to become active here, and when I get out. Do you have a correspondence list I could be put on? I would like to write to anyone out there who is interested in sharing ideas. It sure would be nice to hear from some solid people from the free world.

Thank you for your time and effort!

James Underwood, P.M.B. 80855
Camp-J-cuda-2-L-4 Angola, LA 70712

BACK IN PRINT:

MONEY CREATORS
by Gertrude M. Coogan
Reveals Secrets the Money Changers Have Paid Millions to Conceal! — $5.50

LAWFUL MONEY EXPLAINED
by Gertrude M. Coogan
How To Win Back Your America! — $3.50

Order your copies from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

At a Cost of Only Seven Lives

George Pittam, CDR., USN, Ret.

Was it mere coincidence that the Tylenol murders occurred at the exact peak of public indignation over Israeli atrocities? Hard as our government and the controlled press tried to play down the wanton slaughter by marauding Israelis, the lid would not stay on. Even though news releases from the Lebanon front were all censored by the Israeli government, before Americans were allowed to hear it, there were too many leaks from other sources and too many escapees from ravaged Lebanon. Rampaging Israelis, drunk with power of unlimited and free U.S. support in money, propaganda and vastly superior weaponry, were reveling in a frenzied orgy of genocide. To portray their invincibility, to terrorize their opponents and to gratify their inhuman lusts, they could not resist releasing lurid photos of the writhing, mutilated bodies of their victims.

Coming on the heels of America's double-cross of our Latin neighbors in Argentina, it was just too much, too soon for even boob-tube benumbed Americans. Our government and syndicated press were finally forced to take notice. To maintain a semblance of credibility, the Jew-controlled news networks, ham-actor Reagan, and even the Jewish Press, found it necessary to criticize. Secretary Haig was blamed and sacrificed, replaced by Schultz, another Israeli consort. There was mild censure of even Begin. But that was not enough. Uncontrolled publications, such as The Liberty Bell, Spotlight, and Nitty Gritty, exposed Begin's lifelong career of inhuman atrocities as well as routine Israeli brutality. Along among the world's representatives, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, the cronish Jeanne Kirkpatrick, grovels before the Israeli ambassador in support of their every fiendish foray. What the world has long known, Americans were now learning—America's and Israel's rulers are one and the same, and cracks were appearing in the well-constructed shroud of secrecy surrounding Communist complicity, despite the facade of opposition.

Something had to be done—and quickly! On stage, the Tylenol murders. And it worked! At the trivial cost of seven human lives, attention was effectively diverted. For days, not a word concerning Lebanon on the idiot screen. Now, it's casual page nine gossip and the public has not noticed that the "Christian" Phalangists, who now rule Lebanon, were invented, supplied and controlled by Israel. Most are unconcerned that our marines are stationed there to insure that Israel will continue to dominate and eventually annex that tortured nation while docile American tax-payers, who financed the destruction, now finance the rebuilding.

Now, the "Reverend" Falwell and his repulsive ilk can slither back out of their sumptuous retreats and resume their exhortations for the anti-Christs. Dupes who, so far, have swallowed the ridiculous myth of Jews being the Chosen of God, equate these Russian Bolshevik Khazars with Judeans and accept them as sole representatives of all of the ancient tribes of Israel, can now close their ears to the screams of their thousands of victims and turn their undivided attention to Tylenol and the World Series—until it's our turn. □

PLEASE
help us expose
THE BIGGEST JEWISH LIE!

PLEASE
help us spread
THE TRUTH!

Order copies of
THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
by Prof. A.R. Butz
paperback, 315 pages
at these prices:
1/$6.00—3/$15.00
10/$45.00—100/$400.00

The "Holocaust"—fact or fiction?

WERE SIX MILLION JEWS REALLY GASSED—OR HAS A COLOSSAL HOAX BEEN PERPETRATED ON THE WORLD?

Professor Arthur Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6,000,000 Jews during World War II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

THE HOAX OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.....$ 6.00
Order from: please add $1. for postage and handling!
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

continued from page 4

corrected no healthy, constructive philosophy can be built.

4. Christianity is obviously a Jewish concoction. It is a fact of history that the Jews worshipped their Books of Moses long before Christianity ever appeared on the scene and before Christianity was sold to the unsuspecting Romans. It is a fact anybody can check for themselves that the Old Testament (which comprises three-quarters of the Christian bible) is all about Jews, Jews, Jews. Regarding the New Testament, nobody really knows who wrote Matthew, Mark, Luke or John, or who these characters were, but it is common agreement among both Christians and Jews that Saul of Tarsus, who became the St. Paul of the Christian movement, was a renegade Jew. He wrote almost half of the New Testament, the basis of the Christian creed. It is therefore a fair conclusion that Christianity as espoused by St. Paul (Saul of Tarsus) is in essence Jewish.

5. Christ, the proclaimed hero and founder of Christianity is repeatedly represented as Jewish. His parents, Joseph and Mary, are represented as Jewish, with the ancestry of Joseph being traced back to "the seed of David." In Luke 2:21 it tells of Christ being circumcised on the eighth day, as was the custom of the Jews.

6. There is no contemporary historical evidence that Christ ever existed, the above Christian claims notwithstanding. It is my conclusion that no such figure ever existed but was reconstructed from myths, allegories and fantasies arising out of earlier religions, especially the Essenes, whose connection with Christianity I have already chronicled in NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION in the chapter "Christ's Existence not substantiated by Historical Evidence." To me this further indicates strongly that the whole swindle is based on a lie. To those who would prove otherwise, I repeat, the burden of proof is on the party claiming. As an interesting side note, the "crucified saviour" story had been used in seventeen other religions before the Christians picked it up and replayed it for their con-games.

7. Since Christianity is overwhelmingly of Jewish origin, its teachings per se are alien to the heroic spirit of the White Race. As the Jew Marcus Eli Ravage has noted so succinctly—it has stuck in our craw—"an alien faith which you cannot swallow or digest, which is at crosspurposes with your native spirit, which keeps you everlastingly ill-at-ease, and which you lack the spirit to either reject or accept in full." Exactly. But we CREATORS now do have the spirit to reject it in total, and relegate it to the scrap heap of history.

8. We indict Christianity as causing the collapse of the great Roman civilization, first, by aiding the mongrelization of the Romans, and secondly, indoctrinating the mongrelized slave population with a servile, irresponsible philosophy of escapism, self-pity, and self-destruction.

9. We indict Christianity of making the White Race guilt-ridden when they should be supremely proud of their illustrious accomplishments.

10. We indict Christianity for shackling the mind and the intellect of the White Man for at least 1300 years, of being the prime cause of the Dark Ages and setting back civilization and progress during its entire span, including the present 20th century.

11. We indict Christianity in the present day of swindling the White Race of at least 20 billion dollars a year in its churches alone to keep perpetuating this gigantic "spooks in the sky" superstition.

12. We indict Christianity of inflicting untold mental anguish on not only millions but billions of victims by spreading its horrible concept of a fiery hell and eternal torture.

13. We indict Christianity of laying the philosophical groundwork for communism. The similarity of the two Jewish philosophies is chronicled in more detail in NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION in the chapter on "Christianity and Communism: Jewish Twins."

14. We indict Christianity of softening up the White Race for accepting the idea of race-mixing. By such suicidal teachings as "we are all equal in the eyes of the Lord," and "we are all God's children," the entering wedge was hammered into the body of the White Race to accept the inferior niggers and mud races as their equal.

15. We indict Christianity for its teaching that the Jews are "God's Chosen" people, for being the cause of the White Race tolerating and venerating the Jews in their heinous program of mongrelizing, enslaving and destroying us.

16. We indict Christianity and its teachings of "sell all thou hast and give it to the poor" of being a basic cause for the White Race tolerating the outrage of being robbed, fleeced and plundered, by such give-away programs as foreign aid, and a passel of "relief" programs, foreign and domestic.

17. We indict Christianity as being the most dishonest and hypocritical of all religions. It bills itself as a religion of love and compassion when in actuality it has repeatedly used the most brutal means of both mental and physical torture against its opponents, probably more viciously so than any movement in history. For further details about the brutality of Christianity see the chapter on "Thumbscrew and Rack" in this book.

18. We indict Christianity as being the cause of numerous fraticidal wars between segments of the White Race and the decimation and slaying of millions of our White Racial Comrades. To name only one out of hundreds, the Thirty Years' War (1618-48) which decimated millions of the finest of our White Racial Brothers in the heart of Europe and set Germany back 300 years.

19. We indict Christianity of conducting any number of mass murders, usually with the approval of, or at the specific direction of, the highest authorities. One such bloodthirsty example was the St. Bartholomew Massacre, which began in Paris on St. Bartholomew's Day, August 24, 1572. Over 50,000 Huguenots (French Protestants) were murdered, to the delight of royalty in Madrid and the Pope in Rome.

20. We indict Christianity of flying in the face of Nature, being contrary to the sacred laws of Nature and being anti-Nature in the very essence of its distorted supernatural teachings.

21. Lastly, we indict Christianity of confusing and undermining the White Man's survival instincts and having for all these centuries stood there as an impervious roadblock to formulating a racial religion for our own survival, expansion and advancement.

* * * * *

The great German philosopher, Friedrick Nietzsche (1844-1900) strongly denounces Christianity as the worst of all evils. In his final work "THE ANTICHRIST" he roundly condemns Christianity for destroying everything that is best in this world. In his conclusion he observes among other remarks, the following:

"I condemn Christianity;.....It is to me the greatest of all imaginable corruptions; it seeks to work the ultimate corruption, the worst possible corruption. The Christian Church has left nothing untouched by its depravity; it has turned every value into worthlessness, and every truth into a lie, and every integrity into baseness of soul.....it lives by distress; it creates distress to make itself immortal.....

"I call Christianity the one great curse, the one great intrinsic depravity, the one great instinct for revenge.....I call it the one immortal blemish upon the human race....."

The Creed and Program of the Church of the Creator are spelled out in three basic books: Nature's Eternal Religion (512 pp., $8.00. The White Man's Bible (451 pp., $8.00; Salubrious Living (244 pp., $5.50). SPECIAL OFFER: All three books $15. plus $1.50 for postage and handling. Send your orders to:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.V. 25270

Additional copies of this 8-page pamphlet: 8/$1.50; 25/$4.00; 100/$14.00; 500/$60. available from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, WV 25270 USA.

BOOKS BY BEN KLASSEN-THE CHURCH OF THE CREATOR

Nature's Eternal Religion ..... $ 8.00
The White Man's Bible ..... $ 8.00
Salubrious Living ..... $ 5.50

Survival of the White Race LP Record ..... $ 5.00

Reprints from The White Man's Bible:

Order No. 10058: Questions and Answers about Creativity: 4 for $1.50 — 10 for $3.50 — 100 for $30.00 — 500 for $120.00

Order No. 10059: Superstition and Gullibility: Achilles Heel of the White Race; Gullibility Rating Quiz: 5 for $1.50 — 100 for $20.00 — 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10062: A few obvious questions we would like Christians to explain with some sensible answers; Why we indict Christianity so strongly: 8 for $1.50 — 25 for $4.00 — 100 for $14.00 — 500 for $60.00.

Order No. 10069: Observations about the Devil and Hell; Thumbscrew and Rack; The Spooks-in-the-Sky swindle: 5 for $1.50 — 100 for $20.00 — 500 for $80.00.

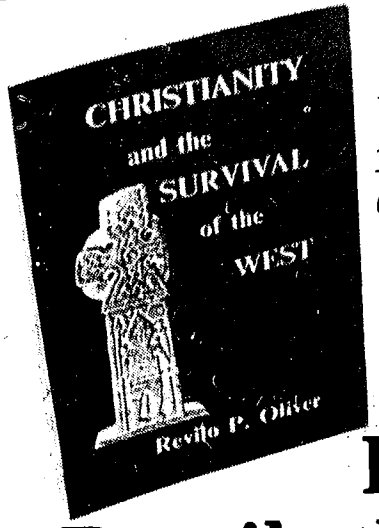
Order No. 10072: Russia, Israel and the United States: 5 for $1.50 — 100 for $20.00 — 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10073: World Jewry declared War on Germany long before Germany took Action against Jews; The 6 Million Lie: 5 for $1.50 — 100 for $20.00 — 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10075: The Melting Pot: The ugly American Dream; Civilization without a Racial Religion: A Self-destructive process for the White Race; The Glory and the Catastrophe that was Rome: A Lesson for all time: 3 for $1.50 — 10 for $4.00 — 100 for $36.00 — 500 for $150.00.

Order No. 10081: We shall be masters of our own Manifest Destiny—Winning of the West: Prototype for winning of the world; The War with Mexico 1846-48: An unfinished War: Single Copy $1.25 — 10 for $10.00 — 100 for $80.00 — 500 for $250.00.

For Postage and Handling, please include:
$1. for orders under $10.—10% for orders over $10. USA—
15% foreign countries. W.Va. residents must include 5% for Sales Tax.



Will the end of our religion mean the end of our race?

A Great Iconoclast Details the Causes and Consequences of the Religious Disintegration of Western Man

Quality paperback, 84 pp. — $4.00 plus 65 cents for postage & handling
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

The Liberty Bell

SINGLE COPY
$1.75

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

VOL 10 = NO 4 ISSN 0145-7667 DECEMBER 1982

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by man, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

The Real Jesus

by
The Reverend Ronald S. Hand

As a critic and contributor to the Liberty Bell, for which I have written several small articles, I feel qualified to comment on the recent articles by Dr. Oliver. I have advanced training in the field of Christian origins and have studied textual criticism, as well as other pertinent areas of Biblical scholarship. My training qualified me to become a minister of the United Methodist Church, but, ironically, this same training has made it impossible for me to continue in my former profession.

My studies in the seminary even included certain balanced praise and criticism of Adolf Hitler, but while I was a student I was strongly opposed to National Socialism. I was even so pro-Israel that I passed around a petition among my classmates and professors recommending that the U.S. government supply Israel with our most advanced weapons systems. This was due in part to my early belief in the doctrine of British Israel, which I later abandoned. In all fairness to my Methodist training and to the Methodist Theological School in Delaware, Ohio, at which I studied, I must say that it was there that I unlearned my British Israelism and other prejudices and intellectual quirks.

Like George Lincoln Rockwell, I found liberals to be more open-minded than conservatives, and at present I find more support of National Socialism among liberals than among conservatives. Yet the irony of it all is that in the media it is the "far right" conservative fundamentalists of the Moral Majority type (a la Jerry Falwell) who are branded as "Nazis" (sic).

In the Theological Seminary, my petition for the supply of weapons to Israel was not signed by any of the liberal members of the faculty. Only the conservatives and fundamentalists signed it. I probably obtained 50 to 55 signatures in all (including students). The petition was copied, and each signatory mailed his copy to his Senator in Washington. I long ago repented of that action. And I subsequently channeled all of my energies to opposing Jewish power in every area and in whatever masks it disguises itself. This at last even made it necessary for me to leave the United Methodist Church. I spare you the details.

I have said all this in order to make my position clear. For Dr. Oliver, whose writings fascinate me, and whose brilliance and diction are unsurpassed among intellectuals, has thrust too far in one direction. To be specific, I refer to his claim that Jesus Christ never existed as a man, and that the myths about Jesus Christ were all invented out of thin air by avaricious, self-seeking Jewish frauds. At first, his claim that Jesus never existed seems innocent enough and well within the boundaries of National Socialism. But I challenge that claim.

My informed opinion is that Jesus was a Zionist leader who organized a revolt in Galilee which was too ambitious to be successful. He wanted to end the Roman occupation of Palestine and to exalt himself as the new king of Israel, who would overthrow the Establishment and reëstablish a Jewish government of Palestine. He was a Menachem Begin who failed. His failure, however, was only political and military. He did make converts, and soon Pharisees like Saul of Tarsus infiltrated "The Way"—the early term by which the followers of Jesus designated their nascent church, ha derek in Hebrew—and subverted it.

St. Paul's design was to turn the energies of Jesus's followers in other directions and to ideas which the real Jesus would never have endorsed. St. Paul made Jesus a pacifist, an other-worldly emperor whose kingdom was in a fairyland and in the distant future. With the growth of the Christian community, many Jews were shocked at the credulity of the believers and denounced Christianity as a sham. Some, like Trypho the Jew, who is prominently mentioned by Irenaeus in his Adversus Haereses, were denounced by the early Christians who are now regarded as the Fathers of the Church. It is highly probable, however, that these Rabbis' criticisms of Christianity were correct. It is most regrettable that Trypho's arguments were not reported by Irenaeus, so that we now have no way of debating the issue. But we may assume that Trypho exposed some of the facts about the origins of Christianity which were an embarrassment to the third and fourth generation leaders of the Church. Irenaeus substituted dogmatic assertion for a report of Trypho's arguments and he thus evaded an open discussion of the facts. Trypho is silenced in all but his denial of the divinity of Jesus, which is summarily called wicked. Irenaeus hides whatever evidence Trypho adduced. And so it has always been. The Church cannot stand the light of adverse facts which undermine its premises. It needs the darkness of blind faith.

Today, however, most modern Biblical scholars take views similar to those of Trypho. They have stripped away early Christian myths, which leave one guessing what the real historical Jesus was like. Rudolf Bultmann, the eminent Lutheran scholar from Germany, has led the way in showing that it is impossible to recover facts and details about the historical Jesus from the myths and propaganda of the New Testament. Others, like Oscar Cullman and Martin Dibelius, argue that only fragments of the New Testament allude to any historical facts about Jesus. Those of the school of Willy Marxen claim that the gospels reflect, not the biography of the historical Jesus, but rather the Church's mystical understanding of Jesus as he was known through legend and cryptic Jewish ideas and traditions that captured the imagination of the earliest Christians, thirty years after the crucifixion. In effect, Marxen's analysis would point to the beliefs of the Church in 67 A.D. rather than the Jesus of 30 A.D.

The foregoing is only a sampling of the trends in modern Biblical scholarship. I have said nothing about the common belief among Christian scholars that Moses never existed. That comes from study of an unrelated area, although paralells may be drawn. But I find that no New Testament scholar doubts that Jesus was a historical person. This means that Dr. Oliver is treading a path of his own, and I am not yet willing to accept it as plausible. To be sure, the professors in seminaries have a vested interest in trying to rescue Jesus from oblivion: their scholarly prestige and their salaries obviously depend upon perpetuating Christianity.

Unfortunately, the modern day Christian Seminary has failed in its work of de-mythologizing the Bible. For it has located the axis of myth versus reality, and has brought its big guns (redaction and form criticism) to bear on the pseudo-biographies of Jesus, the gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, John. But is has failed to follow that demolition of myth by elucidating the origins of Christian ethos and ethics.

Nietzsche first dared to invade the dark sanctuary of Christian mysticism which corrodes and eats away at human being's ego, self-reliance, sense of racial identity, and even his very being. Nietzsche exposed the Jews' plot to enslave the races of the world in the name of a myth-man. But despite that exposure, the modern Church survives and flourishes.

The Jew-groomed Jesus of the gospels is not a true Jew at all, but neither is he a Gentile. He is, in fact, a conscience-ghost, a poltergeist of the Holy. That is why the modern Church, having an unbelieving clergy, remains an institution based upon a foundation of egalitarianism and feminism, an ethic invented by the Jews to control the behavior of non-Jews. In short, Nietzsche's invasion of the dark sanctuary was all but futile. The remaining enclaves of anti-Christian philosophy are not defeated, but they have a weapon which they are reluctant to use. That weapon is to view Jesus of Nazareth in the way the Jews see him. There is a good reason for doing this. Since Christianity is a religion founded by Jews, the Jews know more about Christian origins than anybody else.

The Jewish tradition makes it clear that Jesus was an historical figure, a messiah who failed. He was a social-justice prophet from Galilee who attacked the corrupt establishment of the Sanhedrin in Judea. His vehement opposition to the Jewish hierarchy won him a place in the heart of poor Jews, who later enthroned him in their minds when he was defeated politically and crucified. There was no resurrection, no Trinity, no virgin birth, no real miracles. But, he was a messiah according to Hebrew definitions. And his messianic claims opened a loophole in esoteric scribal interpretations. Certain members of the Sanhedrin harnessed the early political messianism of Jesus to a new and different star. St. Paul was the agent of change for the remnant of believers who searched the earliest gospels to find signs of the times and clues to the future. He converted the revolutionary hopes of the Jewish proletariat into a religion that would soften up non-Jews and make them vulnerable.

Having thus obtained control of Christian minds, the Jews have always been reluctant to surrender that control. Whenever Christianity is foundering and failing, certain Jews enter the theatre and stage a campaign to revivify and invigorate Christianity. In the early part of this century, for example, such a Jew was Hyman J. Appleman. He was a Christian evangelist who trumped up the Apocalypse and Jewish sections of the Bible and made them acceptable to gentile ears. Although he is not a bright star in the pantheon of Führerpersonen, he was connected to big bucks and could name his gentile collaborators who qualified for revival shekels, and seminary underwriting. There are literally scores of such Jews who control the Church by controlling its revenues and governmental privileges.

On a deeper level, the Jew works insidiously to introduce his gentile élite to deeper depths of Judeo-Christianity. In the seventeenth century it was Manasseh ben Israel, who financed Cromwell and was the real founder of what became the Bank of England. He and his agents twisted Christianity in England into the more Judaized form that gave rise to the doctrines of British Israel, which flatter the Jews' chosen Anglo-Saxon dupes. In the early nineteenth century Joseph Smith propagated the Mormon cult, which claimed the Jews had discovered and colonized the Western Hemisphere. And in the twentieth, the British-Israel doctrine spread to many churches. This doctrine claims that Anglo-Saxons, Celts, and the Aryans are the tribes of Northern Israel who wandered into northwestern Europe in the 6th and 9th centuries B.C. When these Aryans recognize their ancestry, they supposedly accept the Abrahamic blessing and the Covenant and become Jews again. The inncentive for people to accept this theory is a materialistic one, an assurance of a share in world dominion, which amounts to little less than bribery. And the fact that more have not succumbed to this temptation is evidence of Aryan's moral superiority.

A book which has just been published is a new effort, no less strenuous than the earlier ones, to generate similar fabulous exotic hopes in Christians. It is Holy Blood, Holy Grail, by Michael Baigent, Richard Leight, and Henry Lincoln, published in London and New York (Delacorte Press), 1982. It is a volume of 460 pages, packed with French history, and teeming with revelations about secret societies in Europe during and after the Middle Ages. In essence, it is a disclosure of a secret Jewish society which remained underground for centuries. This society was bound by blood ties with the Merovingian royal house of France whose royal bloodline merged with that of the offspring of Jesus of Nazareth, his children by his consort, Mary Magdalen.*

The book claims to trace the origin and activity of a modern, occult, and secret French-Jewish organization called the Prieuré de Sion. Sion is the French equivalent of the English Zion, and represents the Hebrew name (ṢYWN, now pronounced tsiyōn) for the citadel of Jerusalem that, according to the Bible, was captured by the Jews under David when they conquered the native inhabitants. (It thus became the symbol for the Jewish conquest of Palestine, whence modern Zionism.) The Prieuré de Sion also has a connection with the village of Sion in eastern France, to which French Catholics still make pilgrimages to worship at the shrine of the Virgin of Lorraine.

According to this book, the Prieuré de Sion was founded in 1099 by Godfrey of Bouillon, who was Duke of Lorraine and became King of Jerusalem after he and his Crusaders took that city from the Saracens. It appears to have been an élite and governing nucleus within the Knights Templar, and when that international military organization was suppressed in Europe, the Prieuré undertook to carry on its work clandestinely. It is a highly select organization with a membership limited to a few thousand élite Jews and their gentile collaborators.

The Grand Master of the Prieuré must always be a lineal descendant of the Merovingian kings who united the bloodlines of Clovis (who became the first Christian king of France) and of Jesus, transmitted through his children by Mary Magdalen. Holy Blood, Holy Grail supplies from a secret document a list of the executive heads of the Prieuré from 1188 to 1918. They bore the official title Nautonnier ("ship-master"). It may be assumed that the ones who claimed Merovingian ancestry were also Grand Masters, while the others acted as representatives of the hereditary heir.

*[Our London correspondent informs us that there have recently appeared in England several Jews who claim to be lineal descendants of Jesus. —Editor]

The roll of Nautonniers includes such varied personalities as Nicolas Flamel (who published the esoteric Sacred Book of Abraham the Jew), Leonardo da Vinci, Robert Boyle, Isaac Newton, Victor Hugo, and Claude Debussy The last on the list is the well-known French writer, Jean Cocteau, who died in 1963. The authors have been unable to determine the identity of his successor, but think he may be a gentleman named Pierre Plantard de Saint-Croix.

The authors found strong circumstantial evidence that the secret membership of the Prieuré in recent times included a number of men who have held positions of power and authority, notably General Charles de Gaulle and Pope John XXIII.

The authors of Holy Blood, Holy Grail.

Left to right: Richard Leigh, Henry Lincoln, Michael Baigent

During its long history, the Prieuré de Sion spawned many subordinate secret societies, including the Rosicrucians, the Hiéron du Val d'Or ("Shrine of the Vale of Gold"), the Ordo Templi Orientis, the Order of the Golden Dawn, and some of the Free Masonic Lodges. The Bavarian Illuminati, headed by Weishaupt, must also have been a subsidiary of the Prieuré.

The primary function of all the secret societies spawned by the Prieuré is to inculcate obedience to hidden leaders, to propagate esoteric teachings about Jesus, and to induce an aversion to the Roman Catholic Church (which is accused of having betrayed the Merovingians). The highest degrees attainable in these organizations permit the initiate to learn who his invisible masters are, and to accept the political and economic opportunities which they open to him, including strategic positions in government and finance. All of the intrigues and machinations thus set on foot are designed to contribute, in one way or another, to ultimate restoration of the throne of France to the Merovingian-Jewish dynasty, the heirs of Clovis and Jesus. One can only guess whether that is a step toward some more ambitious and secret goal.

The career of the historical Jesus, as reconstructed from the teaching of the Prieuré by the authors of this book, was essentially the following:

Jesus, claiming to be the heir of David and legitimate King of the Jews, organized in Galilee an insurrection against Rome. The Jewish establishment in Jerusalem had accepted Roman rule, so Jesus' revolutionary movement was opposed in most of Judea.

Jesus and Mary Magdalen were married in the town of Cana in Galilee. They had several sons, one of whom is significantly called Jesus Barabas in the gospel of Matthew.

Jesus infiltrated the Sanhedrin through his intermediaries, Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea. To justify his messianic pretentions, he contrived, with the aid of Pilate, Nicodemus, and Joseph of Arimathea, and the coöperation of Mary, John, and Caiaphas, an elaborate hoax, enacting a crucifixion that simulated a real execution. His legs were not broken, as was the Roman practice in crucifixions. With the permission of Pilate, Jesus was removed from the cross before it was dark, and his living body was placed in a tomb belonging to Joseph. Soon after sunset, Mary, Nicodemus, and Joseph removed the living Jesus from the tomb and placed John near it to pose as an angel. Jesus was revived and later appeared to his eleven disciples, claiming to have been raised from the dead.

According to the authors, the Prieuré has "incontravertible proof" that Jesus was still alive in 45 A.D , and some evidence that he visited the place in Gaul that is now the village of Sion de Lorraine. Where Jesus died is uncertain. He may have died in Gaul and his mummified body may have been placed in a subterranean crypt, yet undiscovered, in the vicinity of Rennes-le-Château, a small village in the foothills of the Pyrenees, southwest of Narbonne and northeast of Perpignan. Or he may have eventually returned to Palestine and perished at Massada when the Romans stormed that revolutionary citadel in 74 A.D.

The Prieuré de Sion, we are told, also has "incontrovertible proof" that the wife of Jesus, Mary, and her several sons left Palestine after the simulated crucifixion and landed in Gaul, near Marseilles, where their descendants flourished in the Jewish principality of Septimania and eventually intermarried with the Merovingian line of Clovis, who may himself have been of partly Jewish ancestry. They thus formed the sacred dynasty of the Holy Grail, which ruled until the Carolingians usurped the throne under Roman tutelage. The Merovingians, however, were not content to sit idly by without striving to regain their pristine power. To subvert Catholicism, they went underground and incited the heretical movements that were to become chronic in the Middle Ages. The famous Albigensian and Cathar heresies were the work of these Jewish Merovingians, who were preparing a rearguard defense after the dissolution of the Knights Templar, who were also a Merovingian enclave.

This review would be incomplete without mention that the famous Protocols of the Elders of Zion are given a central rôle in the centuries-old conspiracy. According to the authors (pp. 163 ff.), this document must have been drawn up as a plan and schedule of action by the Prieuré de Sion. When a copy of it accidentally reached profane hands, its origin was disguised by attributing it to unnamed Jewish Elders.

In summation, then, the Prieuré de Sion hopes to reëstablish the Merovingian throne in France with the aid of the Soviet Union. When that is accomplished, Judeo-Christianity will have attained its long-awaited eschatological fulfillment.

All such schemes may seem fantastic, but are they more fantastic than what the fundamentalists now claim to believe?

We must not underestimate the persuasive powers of Jewish religious techniques. As National Socialists, we need to recognize the validity of the Jewish account of Jesus—that he was a revolutionary leader who tried to become King of the Jews, a premature Zionist. We must not allow their religious propaganda, stemming from St. Paul and the gospels, to go unchallenged. As National Socialists, we must expose it as a Jewish effort to undermine our Aryan rationality. We must counter it with facts and a sober interpretation of those facts.

We must likewise expose attempts ro revamp Christianity with such revisions as British Israel or the seemingly more reasonable doctrine of the Prieuré de Sion, alias Occult Israel, which, if it comes to power in Europe, will boast of the Jesus Christ described above. The Roman Church, having been infiltrated—if John XXIII was a member of the Prieuré, he doubtless elevated others—, will continue to go through many changes and "updatings" to facilitate mass deception.

In the meantime, we National Socialists must maintain our own unity as consisting primarily of dedication to facts—facts—and more facts. Indeed, the Aryan God is a God of facts, of reality. He is the God of science and true, verifiable knowledge. Therefore our religion is one of factuality, not spirituality—or, to put it differently, ours is the spirit of truth, the spirit of facts, not blind faith and fantasy.

Since Communism and Judeo-Christian Capitalism are both closed systems, they depend on the exclusion and denial of ascertained facts of history and science. It should be our racial duty to continue our exposure of those alien systems until the light of reason breaks through the gloom of desperation and frees captive Aryan mankind to live in conformity with its own nature and its own ideals. □

MUST-READING FOR CONCERNED PATRIOTS:

The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion	$ 1.50
The Secret Driving Force of Communism	$ 2.50
Behind Communism	$ 2.50
Blasting the Historical Blackout	$ 2.00
A Jew Exposes the Jewish World Conspiracy	$ 1.50
The Hoax of the 20th Century	$ 6.00
Auschwitz: An Eyewitness Report	$ 1.50
Gruesome Harvest	$ 4.00
Germany Must Perish!	$ 3.00

For orders under $10., please add $1.; for orders over $10., please add 10% for postage and handling. Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

The Book
That Made The Jews So Mad
They Had To Invent The Movie HOLOCAUST!

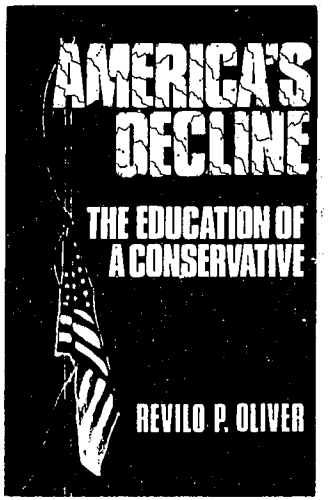
Christophersen/Roeder

Auschwitz

$ 1.50

AN UNBIASED EYEWITNESS REPORT
ON THE REAL LIFE IN A CONCENTRATION CAMP
THERE WERE NO GAS CHAMBERS!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM "AMERICA'S DECLINE"

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

376 pp., pb. $8.50
plus $1 for post. & hdlg.

ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly— basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20. or $100 or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. Postage stamps, in any denomination, and printing paper and supplies (please write for specifics) are always needed and will be gratefully accepted.

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to patriots who do not yet know about what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, stickers and reprints. Order extra copies of The Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends and neighbors, urging them to subscribe to our publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue.

Pass along your copy of The Liberty Bell and copies of reprints you obtained from us to friends or acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free America and the world from alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit, You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

a. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

b. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY!
HELP FREE AMERICA FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!

Those who WILL NOT read
Have no advantage over
Those who CANNOT read

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Dietz: 8 November 1982

Since Christmas is just around the corner, I thought you might be interested in featuring the enclosed poem I wrote in the Liberty Bell... .

Thanks for the wonderful articles by Revilo P. Oliver and the one on the absurdity of Christianity.

Sincerely
S.M.

* * * * *

Gentlemen: 10 November 1982

I find books that say Jews are attacking the Christian religion to be a bit silly. Christianity is a Jewish religion. Both the Old and the New Testaments were written by Jews in the Hebrew language. Both are merely the creation of Pagan witchdoctors. We never will get rid of the one without getting rid of both.

O.B., California

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 9 November 1982

I am a prisoner and like to keep up with what is going on in the outside world. It is my understanding that you put out a very fine paper for the Aryan race. If so, could you please send me some back copies?

Keep fighting and alerting our fellow Aryans on the streets of the danger that is upon us all. I would like to say that it is a courageous and noble thing that you are doing and I salute you for your determination and devotion. There are many of us who will join and fight along side of you soon.

Yours in the Struggle,
Harold C. Hooker II — 172104
Beto 2, Rte. 2, Box 250
Palestine, TX 75801

* * * * *

Dear Friend George: 11 November 1982

Have just received the October issue of Liberty Bell. After reading "Populism" and "Elitism," I fully agree with every word. Your response to P.S., New York, was overwhelming. "They marched in backwards, and told everyone they were leaving." My brother is married to a Polak, and the above is no joke, it is typically Polak. Three cheers for Mexican President Portillo.

Very sincerely yours,
P.C., Massachussetts

* * * * *

Dear Brethren: 13 November 1982

Keep up the good work. I am 76 years young and in there fighting as hard as I am able.

Please send 1,000 of the pamphlet giving the report of the speech of the Rabbi to other Rabbis, telling about how they propagandized Americans against Germans. And now Russians against U.S.—U.S. against Russians, etc., that they plan to do away with the white race of people, etc.

Thanking you for your good work,
Dr. S.B., Missouri

* * * * *

Dear Landsmann Dietz: 14 November 1982

I read your angry reply to P.S., New York, in the October issue. I can understand your indignation, but there is no use in getting abusive at people's ignorance. You must know the kind of slop that passes for history in America. I doubt one American in 100 could even name the countries of Eastern Europe, let alone expound on what their politics were before WW II. All we can do is plug away and try to educate people. In that regard, perhaps the following would help to clear up a common misconception I have noticed among your readers.

I have heard people, a number of times, saying: "Oh, if only Hitler had treated the Russian people decently and enlisted their aid in the war against Communism! Instead he treated the Russians as sub-humans and drove them into Stalin's arms." Well, there is a lot more to it than that. The Jews knew Russia was ripe for a revolt against Communism and, with the evil sneakyness of their kind, took several steps to prevent such a German-Russian anti-Communist alliance from coming to pass.

First, Commissars (largely Jewish) were attached to every combat unit to spy on and control the soldiers and "ensure their loyalty." These Commissars had summary power to inflict the death penalty. Backing up the Commissars were entire divisions of NKVD troops who virtually formed a 2d front in many areas to force the front line units to fight. Hitler ordered these Commissars, who were not Red Army but civilian police, to be shot if captured.

Second, every army destroys communications and useful supplies when it retreats, but the Communist actions went far beyond this. Their stated purpose was to destroy the means of survival of the population under German control. They were to be thrown, starving, freezing, and unemployed, onto the overstrained German supply system. The Germans would have to divert military transport to support the people or else let them perish. The purpose was, not only to weaken the Germans, but to cause the people to blame their distress on the Germans. The Jews soon found that it was very hard to get Russians to destroy their own nation and people. Thus some 20 regiments of special troops, officered by Jews, were set up for this specific purpose. All this before WW II broke out! During the war, peasants often defended their vital food supplies with their lives and thousands were killed over this issue. Another atrocity was the mining of cities and their destruction, regardless of the lives of the inhabitants. In Kiev, hundreds of Germans and thousands of Russians were killed in these demolitions, all of which were blamed on the Germans by the Jews.

Third, a deliberate policy of violating the laws of war was embarked upon from the start. There was no Red Cross, no Geneva Convention. Prisoners were usually murdered, often hideously tortured. The purpose was to get the Germans to retaliate in kind and thus discourage Russians from surrendering to them.

Fourth, and worst of all, was the deliberate creation of partisan (guerilla) warfare. The Jews had tried out this trick earlier with the French in the 1870 war. Cadres of soldiers were deliberately left behind in the retreat to pose as civilians and carry on this secret warfare. Soldiers lost from their units, and civilians, were required to join partisan units. Failure to do so could be punished with death for a civilian while surrender for a soldier was also a capital offense. Partisan units were aided by line crossers and paratroops and often supplied by air. The Communists never expected much actual military power from partisan units. Their purpose was to commit atrocities against rear area German troops and to draw reprisals upon the population. This was to prevent the civilians from settling down under German occupation and form exactly the anti-Communist alliance the Jews feared.

In addition to all this was the hysterical hate propaganda designed to turn people against the NAZIs, propaganda which still continues today unabated. There was also the circumstance, which nothing could alter, that the Germans were the foreign invaders of the nation, which hardly endeared them to the Russian people. The amazing thing is that, despite all this, so many people did revolt against the Jew Communists. On the first day of the war, two entire Red Army divisions went over to the Germans en masse. Millions of other Russians surrendered individually to the Germans as a protest against Communism. Stalin ordered thousands of executions to try and stop the rot. Things got so bad that even Army group commanders went over to the enemy, like General Vlasov did. When an Army group commander was killed in 1942, Stalin refused to believe it, saying that he had gone over to the Germans.

The number of Russians who served with the German Army was in the millions, including my own stepfather who served with Vlasov. Millions more served as auxiliary troops, while countless others were involved in the struggle against Communist partisans. There could be no neutrals in this struggle. As in Vietnam, if civilians did not arm to fight the Reds or have military protection, they had no choice but to serve the Reds. This is the real truth behind the anti-Communist struggle in Russia. I hope that people reading this will realize that there is much more to the question than Hitler's whims or alleged racial theories.

Yours truly,
R.S., New York

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 15 November 1982

I write to you because I know of your 100% devotion to the cause of Yiddishness. Maybe your readers could stop and send a note of cheer to a very nice group. It's "The American Anti-Nazi Association, P.O. Box 6194, Miami Beach, FL 33154 (where else?!?!?!). It's headed by a nice Jewish boy, Rabbi Dobin; they're nice folks. Everything they do is neat. For example, they're helping rid the world of those "yukkey" Nazis. And, guess what? When they can't find any evidence against them, they manufacture some!!! Now that's clever. These nice men would love to hear from ALL of your readers, I'd bet. Now, eat your chicken soup!

Auntie-Semite, in a nice kosher neighborhood,
Jew York, Jew York

* * * * *

Dear George: 8 November 1982

In the April 1982 issue of Liberty Bell, in an article "The NRA-Who's Afraid?", by Russell Graham, on page 24, last paragraph, the following facts are given, "The White Race, once numbering 8%, with about 2% of the babies being born in 1981 being White." Can you or Mr. Graham support these facts with documentation? I would appreciate knowing what was the source of his figures. What races did "White" include? I believe this kind of fact is what is needed to jolt White Americans out of their lethargy. This presentation of the White race as an endangered species—on the facts alone—minus the "hate" and "neo-Nazi" trimmings, is what is needed—it's the sort of thing that would get Whites thinking who want nothing to do with the KKK etc. The well-meaning liberals who are concerned with saving the whales and saving the seals, etc., etc., might begin to wake up to the danger they themselves are in. Once they become aware of facts like this, they will seek causes and solutions, I believe. A fact sheet would make a good handout.

Sincerely,
Mrs. M.M., Massachussetts

The following is a reply by Mr. Russell Graham:

Dear George: 20 November 1982

Regarding the recent inquiry as to my source of population and birth data, I am remiss in that I can only state partial sources. My article on the NRA was hastily written upon my conclusion that NRA leaders, befuddled as to for whom the bell tolls on the race issue, are leading their members up a blind alley.

Various accounts of late put the world-wide proportion of Whites to non-Whites at 8 to 15%. For instance, THE TALON, for August 1982 (published by the Euro-American Alliance, Box 2-1776, Milwaukee, WI 53221) states:

"This White Race, this light of the world, is now but 15% of the total population of the world, which nears 4 billions. By the year 2000, projections have our numbers at 9%."

From the WHITE MAN'S BIBLE, by Ben Klassen (available from Liberty Bell Publications) page 140, we read:

"The irrefutable facts of 20th Century history are these: Whereas in 1920 the White Race not only constituted approx. 33% of the population on this planet, today, in the late 1970s, that percentage has shrunk to an alarmingly small minority of less than 8%."

While it would seem reasonable that a segment of the world population that accounted for but a mere 8% would only be having 2% of the world's babies in 1981—given the current high figures on abortion and birth control—I can not just now locate my sources of the 2% figure I used in the article.

I strongly believe that it came from an issue of THE NATIONAL VANGUARD. As I said, I can't be sure, but they would be a likely source of such data.

The United Nations, New York, most likely has these data, but one has to accept the fact that the U.N. is another Jew/Masonic tool.

Finally, any racial headcount must depend upon whom we have doing the counting. Just WHO IS WHITE? When a White and a Mexican unite t o put another humanoid into the world, what color is the resulting progeny? And what of 21 millions of Jews? Just as the Dairy Association would never accuse "butter of tasting like margarine," we certainly would not accuse Jews of being White!

Sincerely,
Russell Graham

* * * * *

Mr. George Dietz, Editor 15 November 1982

In Liberty Bell 10/82 I believe you erred in some statements.

Christianity and Judaism are on opposite poles—they could not be further apart!

Christ was very much anti-Jewish and called them vipers and children of Satan.

The word Jewish is not found in Latin or Greek. Was first used in 1775 and not in KJ Bible 1661 version. Modern Jews are phonies and from Khazar origin. Their parents never lived in Palestine.

The K.J. Bible can be proved authentic by its many prophecies which were later fulfilled hundreds of years later. A few examples—the black hole in the universe—winds go in regular circuits—Pliedeas has been found to be the only of our solar system. Scientific evidence that our earth is very young as the Bible predicates.

Recent evidences that this cosmos or world order will likely be destroyed unless Christ intervenes as he said he would, for the "elects" sake.

Christ's important statement—my people will not be destroyed from the face of this earth.

Buddy, you better believe while there is still time!

I'm afraid you are so anti-Bible you will not publish this—right?

Christ and 11 disciples were Israelites and Judas was not.

Sincerely,
R.A., Pennsylvania

Dear George: 16 November 1982

Thank you for the last shipment. I really made good use out of the "Fable of the Ducks and the Hens"—that is well put.

Thank you very much,
L.B., New Jersey

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 16 November 1982

I am very happy with the books, "Adolf Hitler, Pictures of the Life ofhe Fuehrer" and "Germany Awakes." They are beautiful photoalbums that every White patriot should have in their homes; and because of your fast mail order service, you will get all my book orders.

Best regards
T.S., V.A. Hospital, Wisconsin

* * * * *

Mr. George Dietz: 16 November 1982

Just received the October issue of The Liberty Bell. WOW!

I have been reading the 100 or so reprints received from you, and it is difficult to decide which to order first. Here is a small order.

I've been buying and circulating patriotic literature since August, 1975, when I picked up a copy of "American Mercury" from a separate wire stand in a local grocery store. It seems the Jewion News Co., which distributes porno and commie literature, will not allow patriotic literature on their stands.

Sincerely,
M.H., Arizona

* * * * *

Dear George: 20 November 1982

Your magazine is getting better from month to month. Your answer to that Polack was strong enough. I wish to know how I could send a few boxes of rat poison to that outfit, including the Czechoslovaks.

Sincerely,
M.T., New York

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 20 November 1982

Enclosed my renewal to Liberty Bell.

Received the latest issue—again excellent literary contributions. Both Oliver essays have been loaned out and are being read by VIPs.

Faithfully,
Mrs. J.T., Virginia

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 21 November 1982

Enjoy reading Liberty Bell and other literature I ordered from you. After many years of reading Jew-controlled historical garbage, a breath of fresh air moves in. I always felt there just was something not "kosher" (ha,ha!) about all I read on Hitler, Nazis, and Germans. Keep up the good work in spreading the truth.

Sincerely,
R.R., Massachussetts

* * * * *

Dear George: 24 November 1982

Klassen overlooks something in Christianity. It is defeatist because it recognizes Lucifer as the ruler of this world. This makes the Jew invincible unless Jesus intervenes in world affairs.

Let me quote "The Missing Dimension in World Affairs" by Michael J. Goy, minus the screaming bold type: "The vast majority of the authors who write on the International Conspiracy make the basic and fundamental mistake of not recognizing the real and true nature of the enemy. Most of them do believe we are engaged in a battle against 'flesh and blood" (mortal human beings who may be defeated by conventional means,) and reject the concept that our enemy is Satan and his demons—'the rulers of the darkness of this world . . . spiritual wickedness in high places.' . . . This spiritual force of pure evil can only be thwarted in his purpose and totally defeated by another spiritual force of even greater intelligence and power." (pp. 224-225.)

No wonder the concept of hell was invented! When you refuse to fight, all you can do is curse. The Jews themselves know how they can be defeated. If they are killed, they can do no more harm. That is why their minds are constantly on the subject of genocide. They want to kill us to prevent us from killing them. It's that simple.

"Don't do anything because Jesus is coming" paralyzes us. Christians quote Luke 19:27—reading it, but not comprehending it. All Jews who do not convert and acknowledge Christ as Lord and Master will be killed. So the Jews convert, as they have done for centuries whenever it was necessary to stay alive. and evil and conspiracy continue to flourish. At the next Yom Kippur all oaths are rescinded. When will Christians ever learn, and what is blocking their comprehension?

J.P., Colorado

* * * * *

Dear George: 25 November 1982

The Oliver issues were interesting and informative, if not entirely convincing. One has only to think of Adolf Hitler's critique of Hohenzollern naval policy in "Mein Kampf" to be reminded that England did have some legitimate grievances presented by the challenge of the growing German Empire prior to WW I.

Good follow-ups to the Oliver issues would be reprints of E.C. Knuth's "The Empire of the City" and Arnold Leese's "The Rothschilds: Gentile Folley."

If you have ever wondered how the German army could march off to war with belt buckles that said "Gott mit uns," I suggest you reflect on Matthew 21:43—. . . The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a NATION bringing forth the fruits thereof." Whatever the merits of the claim that organized Christianity is a Jewish conspiracy (I think the true situation is the Jews have subverted organized religion in the 20th century just as they seem to have subverted just about every other institution in the Western world), I have concluded the Jews really do hate Jesus, either because he exposed them as mammon worshipping swine, or because he told them they were no longer God's Chosen People. Whether Jesus was born a Jew, or a Roman bastard as the Talmud claims, seems irrelevant.

That the English were and are not totally corrupted is demonstrated by the works of Nesta Webster, the best reason for women's liberation one can think of. Reprinting her "Germany and England" in the pages of Liberty Bell should be worthwhile for your readers.

Yours truly,
R.M., California

* * * * *

Dear George: 26 November 1982

The November Liberty Bell came today—thank you.

Not being a regular reader of Spotlight, in that the Alliance has no suscription or reciprocal trade agreement with its publisher, we failed to see the November 1, 1982 issue, which carried the attack on you and The Liberty Bell.

Now the Alliance has done everything in its power over the past seven years to foster good feelings amongst patriotic individuals and organizations. Though we have had our disagreements, even with the Liberty Bell over the Christian issue, or better yet, the issue of Christianity, its usefulness to the White National Resistance Movement, still, I have recognized the importance of the Liberty Bell and its publisher to the overall movement. Therefore, such an attack by The Spotlight on you and your fine publication is unwarranted, petty, and just plain mean.

I have always thought that The Spotlight tried to walk on a tightrope between what is known of the vile Jews and their Conspiracy against the Aryan race, and between their rather obvious, albeit oblique attempt to appear objective in the face of Jew attacks on their editorial policies. Suspecting that operations in Washington, the District of Corruption, necessitated such an impossible posture, I let it pass without much comment over the years. I let it pass, even though the officers of Liberty Lobby conveniently misplaced 35 pages or so of research and intelligence into the covert dance that "700 Club" boss Pat Robertson was doing in Israeli-occupied Lebanon with the Yids and their biting dog, Major Saad Haddad, who most likely is the culprit in the Beirut massacre. Still in possession of the originals, the Alliance was not out much except copying fees and postage, but the readers of The Spotlight were cheated out of some critical information at a time when no-one knew much about Haddad and Robertson, James Otis and his "High Adventures, Inc.," and the sinister connection between them all and the CIA-Mossad.

We had that smiling fraud, Pat Robertson, dead to rights, as it were, and someone very high up at Liberty Lobby let the traitor—to Christ and America's best interests—off the hook. Subsequently, the Spotlight came out weakly against the kosher-Christian crowd—Falwell and the rest. We who laid the investigation groundwork never received even an honorable mention from "The Newspaper You Can Trust."

Most recently, the Alliance taped at Cohoctah, Michigan (October 30, 1982) the Great Debate between Pastor Bob Miles and the Rabbi Gefilte Fishlips. This rather hilarious meeting we tried to advertise in the Spotlight Classifieds. James Wolfington, the Classifieds manager, refused the advertisement without giving a reason. The proposed advertisement read simply: "Pastor Bob Miles vs. Rabbi Gefilte Fishlips. The Great Debate! C-90 — $5.00. Euro-American Alliance, Box2-1776, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53221." It was refused a second time after I resubmitted it, this time to Willis A. Carto in a personal letter. Here is the text of a second response I received from Wolfington:

"November 23, 1983 (sic)"

"Dear Sir:

"Your classified ad dated November 3rd has been forwarded to me once again, and once again I have to return it to you because we must draw a line somewhere, and we cannot run this ad.

"Your $20 in cash and the tape were returned to you by my secretary at an earlier date. We are sorry but your ad is still unacceptable."

"Sincerely,
(Signature) James M. Wolfington, Advert. Mgr."

Just another of The Spotlight's strange, inexplicable advertising policies? Or a shift in Carto's posture vis-a-vis the Jewish question? We may never know for certain. But one thing is demonstrated by the treatment given you, George, and our advertisement for the "Fishlips" tape: The Spotlight can not be trusted to deal with White racialists and nationalists on the square, especially wherein the Jewish issue is raised.

You are my friend, George, and I sincerely believe the friend of every true Aryan nationalist. In many ways you act more like a true Christian than those who criticize you for a lack of Christian faith. If Spotlight/Liberty Lobby duplicity in regard to the Jews is an example of Christianity in action, why, I'll eat the next three issues of "The Newspaper You Can Trust" with lox and bagels, with cream cheese and Mother Goldstein's wine.

I think the Liberty Bell is the magazine that White patriots can count on. I'll always maintain my sense of personal Christian piety, but I will always know that you have no real complaint against that. We both argue against the humbuggery of organized religion, you in the manner of one who has no faith in Christ, I as one who has faith but wishes to cleanse the spirit of the faith of the race-destroying, culture-distorting mindlessness so endemic to Western 'Christian' society in our time.

We are allies in this way, in this war against our common Jew enemy. That is why I can feel free to approach you in the spirit of Aryan comradeship. George P. Dietz isn't whetting a blade behind his back for his friends.

You are my kind of man, George, a true soldier in the old, glorious traditions of our race. God bless you, my friend.

As for the faltering empire of Herr Carto and Company, one must be true to something than personal interests and gain. One must also value the comradeship of one's racial brethren more than one fears the onslaughta of the Jewish opposition. Only in that way can one be certain that he will have friends when his turn in the breach approaches.

For Christ, Race and Nation,
Maj. Donald Vincent Clerkin
Cmdr., Euro-American Brigade
Chairman, Euro-American Alliance, Inc.

*****

Dear George: 30 November 1982

Please find enclosed an order for the book "America's Decline."

I am also sending you copies of two letters, one I wrote to The Spotlight about the editorial of November 1, 1982, the other is to the International Christian Aid, which should explain itself. Use them any way you want.

Sincerely,
J.L., Arizona

Letters to the Editor
THE SPOTLIGHT
300 Independence Avenue S.E.
Washington D.C. 20003

Dear Sirs: 30 November 1982

I must take exception to the part of the editorial on page 5 of the November 1, 1982 issue of The Spotlight.

If you were, by any stretch of your imagination, referring to Liberty Bell Publications when you said, "A sleazy character from Reedy, W.Va., etc., you had better remove your head from your posterior before you suffocate.

It is my UNALTERABLE OPINION Liberty Bell is much more honest, much more straight forward, and more to the point than the Spotlight has ever been, or will ever be.

Liberty Bell pulls no punches, offers more literature, and states the point that the International Jew is, along with Christianity, the two major causes of the problems America is having in this era of history. Liberty Bell goes to the trouble of reviewing all its material, to the point of perfection. I might add, Liberty Bell publishes the best authors on World History available today, or any time in the past.

If, in fact, you did refer to Liberty Bell Publications in your editorial, may I suggest you get together with George. I have no doubt he will give you an education if you have the nerve to utilize the information given to you.

In closing, let me say you do a fine job on some subjects, but you fail to realize a Jew is a Jew, no matter what color his eyes are, and if they are stupid enough to support Zionism, they deserve what they get when the WHITE RACE AWAKENS.

Sincerely,
J.L., Arizona

Lebanon Emergency Appeal
International Christian Aid
Box 250
Camarillo, CA 93011 23 November 1982

Dear Sirs:

I recently watched an advertisement on T.V. soliciting funds to help the Lebanese people care for children injured during the Genocide performed on Lebanon by Israel.

May I suggest you let International Zionism pay for the damage that was done, as they claim to have control of all the Gold in the World.

The United States gives Israel between 7 and 15 MILLION DOLLARS each day to aid in the Genocide Israel is committing on the Arab nations in the "Name" of making a homeland for God's Chosen People, when, in fact, the Jew of Israel is in Palestine only because of England, the Balfour Declaration, and Zionist money controlling the United States.

It is beyond my ability to understand why the people of the Christian Religion "grovel" at the feet of the Jew. Maybe it's because Christianity was given to the Christians by the Jew.

Upon close examination of Christianity, one finds it is a religion of self-destruction, in that it is designed to prepare one for Death and a Hereafter. Death is a FACT! The HEREAFTER has never been proven to exist except in the Holy Bible and the imagination of over-active minds. BUT, I may be wrong. If I am, and the Holy Bible is indeed TRUE, let me point to the Book of John, 8:44, where Christ said to the Jew, "Ye are not of My Father. If you were of MY Father ye would Love ME, but you want to KILL ME. Ye are of your father the DEVIL, and will do his bidding."

In any event, it is not the point of this letter to discuss the validity of Christianity or the Bible.

I have two questions I want to ask, if I may:

1. Why should any American White person pay, or be held liable because of a Guilt Feeling, for the rebuilding of Lebanon, when, in fact, all of America was responsible—neneedless to say, AGAINST their will—because the U.S. Government financed the destruction of Lebanon and it's people through Foreign Aid, that is, in turn, financed by taxation.

2. Why doesn't the American section of International Christian Aid use the tax exempt monies grafted from the American Christian in order to guarantee the Christian a Home in the Hereafter to pay for the Genocide and destruction caused by the godmother of Christianity, International Zionism?

Sincerely,
J.L., Arizona

Dear George: 30 November 1982

I have many books and articles on how the Jews and their Masons rule on a National and international level, but never anything about how they ccontrol on the local level, revealing the race traitors who serve mammon, and rub shoulders with us every day. These people are, I believe, our most dangerous enemy on a local level, because we grew up with them and trust them, never knowowing that they have been turned into artificicial Jews in their lodges. All the while we thought these do-gooders were doing the community a service with all their "brotherly love" projects, they were actually only establishing their cover so they could get away with cheating, stealing, lying and all their other abominations, for "they say and they do not."

We are a controlled society, even on the local level. I have excerpts from the obituary page to offer a few examples, and anyone can see if their area is the same by reading the obituaries.

This is democracy, an appearance of freedom, ruled by the brotherhood of secret societies for the Jews. They must give an appearance of freedom or the White race would revolt. The words, "Use your power of the vote," is as big a lie as the 6 million dead Jews. The candidates are all Masons, same as most preachers (these false prophets), preaching their "holier than thou" doctrine and their brotherhood religion of all being made of One God. The White race is not of the Jews' Devil-God. Our Creator gave us our instincts and they, in no way, resemble the Jews' instincts. They are our mortal enemies and have been as far back as recorded history goes, only the White race is too deluded with the cares of this world to know it.

They believe a mere piece of paper, such as the Constitution, gives them rights. Bull! It only gives the appearance or illusion of rights. The only rights anyone has ever had in this Jew-Masonic country are the rights they were afraid to take away, for fear the Whites would revolt. The more conquered Whites become, the more rights they will take away.

The Constitution declaring the rights of man, that all men are equal, serves only one purpose: Destroy the White race. Give the brown, yellow and black races jobs with the Whites, for the Whites can carry them, and if they are too sorry to work, the Whites can support them. This is the meaning of all men being equal. The Constitution's very wording is Jew-Masonic "Nature's God and Nature's Law." They might as well have said "Great Architect of the Universe."

The very idea of the people governing themselves with democracy is absurd. The people know nothing but filling their bellies today and whatever program will do that is the one they want, never looking where it will eventually take them. The people must have a shepherd, a leader, a strongman who has come from the working White people and is common with them. A pompous blowhard will never accomplish anything but agitation, and democracy will never be anything but a debating match. If anything is ever to be accomplished, battling the great harlot and the beast that carries her, it will be with a leader who walks with the common people and would not ask the people to do anything that he wouldn't do himself. We could move mountains then, instead of just debating.

The Jews rule nationally and internationally, but the Masons rule locally. If we expose their lies locally and cut off their recruits, they would lose control locally and then, maybe, the White peoples' natural leaders would rise of their own ability. I believe a flier with the oaths Masons must take would be effective to keep men from being hood-winked into finding out the secrets of the lodges if they thought the community knew of their oaths and how they are not allowed to mention Christ in their lodges, while nearly all Mason civic leaders attend church and claim they are Christians. If we can ever get a foothold locally, we are on our way. Then, maybe, we will be on our way to establishing a true nation on a racial basis with true homogeneity instead of the rebirth of the bastard Roman Empire.

R.M., Ohio

* * * * *

Dear George: 30 November 1982

Enclosed is my check for the balance due on back issues, the rest is a Christmas gift for you and your family.

I hope to meet you someday. If I came to W.Va., would I be able to meet you? I would like to share my thoughts more freely, but feel reluctant to say or write much to someone I have not met. However, I will try. If you or any of your family were to come to Mass., you are welcome to spend a few days with us, if you prefer our humble abode to the expense of a hotel. It is the least I can do to show my gratitude.

George, I can't tell you how Christianity messed up my life. Truly, as Ben Klassen says, to follow the course in the New Testament is racial suicide for white people, whom I regard today as an endangered species. As a teenager, I had taken the teachings of Christianity seriously and spent a lot of time pondering the meaning of certain passages and trying to reconcile its inconsistencies. At 17, I rejected the idea of God demanding to be worshipped; nevertheless, the morality of right and wrong as taught in the New Testament stuck with me. After I married—an alcoholic—and found myself floundering in trouble, I turned back to religion, after trying psychiatry. The worse things got, the more I turned to religion and the sickening morality of the New Testament. I studied and tried to apply faith in Christian Science, Unity, Science of the Mind, and the fundamental religions from the South. I also had an interest in psychic phenomena and dreams, through which I also sought solutions. Although all of this was interesting, and my spiritual and psychic forays sometimes seemed rewarded, my situation continued to get worse, and my confusion increased greatly.

Never, in all this time, as I sought the truth and the solution to my problems, did I question the Christian morality I subscribed to, namely "Turn the other cheek" and "love your enemies" (at this time, my husband) and "forgive" and also "take no thought for the morrow." This basically defenseless posture was the root of my troubles, but I could not see that, of course, most Christians have enough common sense to ignore these teachings by and large, but I completely lacked common sense in analyzing these teachings, and I was afraid to reject them also.

When I read in your magazine that the description of Solomon's Temple was really a description of a Babylonian Temple the Jews had ascribed to their own history, the first glimmer of light began to dawn, of course! I felt outraged that, as an innocent child, I was sent to Sunday School to be taught that these fanciful boastings were historical fact, backed up by the Word of God, and I was duped into believing this unquestioningly.

Well, that was the beginning of the end of my confusion. Forty years, these teachings have sat inside me, undigested, since I could neither reconcile inconsistencies in them, nor vomit them out. I dared not reject them totally, and, in fact, it never occurred to me to do so. Of course you should love your enemies into goodness—how else could there ever be peace in the world? As I told you earlier, I set your magazine aside at first because I felt affronted by your attack on Christianity.

The combination of cold probing logic, scathing criticism, and historical analysis in your magazine, has finally cleared up some of the fear and debilitating confusion inplanted there by Christian teachings.

As you may gather, I am now reading a lot, soaking up logic and truth like someone starved, and I feel like I am on the road to recovery. However, in rejecting these teachings, I don't feel it means we are without a God, or an Higher Power, as they say in A.A.

Prayer does seem to help somehow; meditation brings inspiration (though I seldom pray or meditate at present). My proof of some Higher Power is that, fortuitously, my highest prayer has been answered. Above all, I have searched for truth and it is nearly miraculous that I have finally found it in the pages of your obscure magazine. The route to it has been most circuitous, torturous, and labyrinthal. That my thinking is so totally changed is amazing, to me.

I can remember my husband occasionally trying to tell me Hitler was a great man—a great orator, and I would never hear it, but swiftly retort that he was a monster, a bad man. My husband would think also he was great, but evil, and I would think goodness is better than greatness, when evil!

Since my husband was drinking a quart of whiskey a day, while I tried to raise a family, work, and find a solution somehow in religion, as you can imagine, the mental strain must have brought me near the breaking point. All this time, and through a divorce, I was still seeking and maybe being guided to the truth, albeit I often went in a wrong direction.

. . . . . And here I am, absorbing truth like a dry sponge. My first re-assessment was of the Holocaust Hoax of which I am quite fairly convinced, then of the horror of the Nuremberg Trials, and Allied war atrocities as well. Still, through all this new history interest it never occurred to me to re-evaluate the Christian history and values I had learned; finally, that came under attack in your magazine as a suicidal

continued on page 37

CREATIVE CREDO No. 38

Reprinted with the author's permission from The White Man's Bible, Copyright 1981, by Ben Klassen.

RUSSIA, ISRAEL AND THE UNITED STATES

U.S.A. not fighting communism. One of the most flagrant and persistent deceptions that has been foisted on the American people since the Russian revolution of 1917 is that the American government is desperately but valiantly fighting a losing war "against communism." After more than six decades, most American people still believe this hoax, and remain perpetually confused as to why the United States, rich, powerful, morally superior to communism, is continually losing.

American Jews Power Center of Communism. The brutal truth is that the American power establishment—governmental, financial and propaganda-wise (all dominated by Jews) has not been fighting communism. The fact is communism is Jewish from its very inception. Communism is only one of the many powerful tools being utilized in the Jewish program of taking over the world. Not only has the United States not been fighting communism as most Americans are duped to believe, but on the contrary, the United States has been the chief financier, planner and promoter of communism, not only in Russia, but throughout the world. Without the financial support and technical aid of the United States the Jewish-communist outrage against the Russian people would have fallen flat on its face at its very inception, and many times over since then. In fact, it would never have been inaugurated in the first place.

Trained and Financed in New York. It is a fact of history that the final push for the communist take-over of Russia was lavishly financed and carefully planned by wealthy Jewish capitalists right here in good old U.S.A. There, on the East Side of New York, Trotsky and 3000 Jewish cut-throats were carefully trained to deliver the final coupe-de-grace. The venture was financed to the tune of 20 million dollars by no less than (Jew) Jacob Schiff himself of the New York firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., an American branch of the Rothschild network. When the time came, Trotsky and his trained Jewish revolutionaries were shipped by boat (in the middle of World War I) and arrived unhampered in Russia to do their job. Once there they knew exactly what to do, and when it was all over 30 million White Russians had been murdered and the Jews were fully in the saddle.

Communism is a Jewish Swindle. We must remember again and again that communism is nothing more than a horrible, vicious Jewish program to take over the world, camouflaged with deceptive "humanitarian" propaganda, as are most other Jewish programs.

Paid by American Taxpayers. The Jewish-Communist-Marxist-

Zionist blueprint is all part and parcel of the same program. It is well financed not only with Jewish money, but more significantly with taxpayers' money, of which the American taxpayer pays the overwhelming brunt. There is no greater source of goods, wealth and productivity than the working American taxpayer, and the Jewish potential for looting this tremendous source of productivity seems without limit.

Behind it the whole Jewish Network. The Jewish-Communist-Marxist-Zionist movement is tremendously powerful. Behind it are all the Jewish power networks of the world. This includes their vast world-wide propaganda network—television, newspaper, newswire, magazine, book printing, education and all the other accouterments that not only influence, but decide "public opinion." Behind this Jewish movement also is the powerful "capitalistic" Federal Reserve System with its unlimited monopoly to print paper money at no cost to themselves. In short, behind it is "the hidden hand" of world-wide Jewry.

American Policy Hostile to Tzars. It is this power establishment that engineered the overthrow of the Romanov dynasty, a Viking dynasty that had ruled Russia for over three centuries, and replaced it by an ironfisted Jewish tyranny. In respect to American policy toward Russia it is interesting that prior to the 1917 revolution, United States policy was hostile towards Russia (as were the Jews). It enthusiastically favored Japan in the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-05, which the Japanese won. Once the Jews had clamped their vicious ironclad rule on Russia and its vast resources in 1917, United States foreign policy did a dramatic (but covert) flip-flop and became anti-Japanese and pro-Russian.

Benevolent after Commie Take-over. Despite all the propaganda, camouflage and window dressing to the contrary, it has been strongly pro-Russian (really pro-Jewish) ever since. It was America who shored up the precarious communist government in the decade of 1920's with food and other aid. It was American technical aid that built her dams and power plants, drilled her oil fields and built her refineries in the 1920's and 1930's. When despite all this aid the Russian behemoth was about to collapse of its own weight and rottenness in the early 1930's, it was Roosevelt's official recognition and extension of financial credits that again saved it from oblivion. When Hitler's heroic armies stood at the gates of Leningrad, Moscow and Stalingrad, again it was American military aid and direct intervention that saved communist Russia from being wiped off the map. Before the War was even over, the United States already began shipping vast quantities of aid, civilian goods—tractors, machinery, food, to the tune of 13 billion dollars. This, again, was all done at the expense of the American taxpayers, who pay for most of the cost of the Jewish world-wide take over.

Saved by America Again and Again. Since the end of World War II it was the United States who encouraged and promoted the Russian-Communist take over in Eastern Europe. In fact, when Russia nervously hesitated in rolling her tanks into Hungary in that unhappy country's revolt in 1956, it was President Eisenhower who specifically sent Premier Kruschev an encouraging telegram assuring him that the United States would not lift a finger to aid the Hungarians.

False, Deceptive Front. This has been the modus operandi of the United States-Russian relations ever since 1917. Officially the United States puts up a front of being "anti-communist." Behind the scenes it has aided, abetted, planned, financed and promoted communist take-overs throughout the world, whether it was in countries adjoining Russia in eastern Europe or whether it was in countries halfway around the world that were temporarily beyond the reach of Russian troops.

America aided Cuban Take-over. A good example of the latter is the "Communist" take-over of Cuba. Without propaganda aid of the American (read Jewish) press, Fidel Castro would have died an unknown bum, unheard of, and unsung. It was the American press, especially the Jewish New York Times that puffed up Castro as a native hero, as a liberator, as the Abraham Lincoln of Cuba, the George Washington of the Sierra Maestra, as a non-communist agrarian reformer, and temporarily sold him to the American people as such. At the same time our government put secret pressure on the then pro-American head of the Cuban government, Fulgencio Batista, to leave Cuba. Having been betrayed by the American government and the skids effectively put under him, Batista fled the country and Castro walked in with the full support of the American government and the American (Jewish) press. It was an interesting study in hypocrisy to see how we slowly "discovered" that Castro was a communist, a fact well known to the American government and the Jewish conspiracy, and the basic reason for the revolution in the first place.

Repeated Betrayal of American Interests. It is not my purpose here in this limited dissertation to review the history of Jewish betrayal of American interests and communist take-overs throughout the world. This would literally take a whole encyclopedia to cover. I only want to point out a few historical events that even the most naive American reader of the daily news is familiar with. In this regard I want to point the finger at only a few obvious glaring examples anyone can understand.

Betrayal of China. One of the most blatant swindles and of greatest world-wide significance was manipulated by the United States shortly after World War II, and that was the betrayal of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and the vast multitudes of China. Chiang Kai-shek had fought the Chinese communists in the early 1920's and finally beat them at their game. He assumed control of the Chinese government in 1926 and was undoubtedly the staunchest anti-communist leader in Asia. He was strongly pro-American and fought the Japanese on the side of America in World War II. As soon as this (Jewish) war was over he was treacherously betrayed by the United States.

Marshall a Communist Stooge. General George C. Marshall, who had been accorded every honor that could be bestowed on a military man short of becoming president, was sent to China to do the hatchet job in November of 1945. Although he was by now 65 years old, in poor health and ready to retire, he stayed in that miserable country for 14 months, selling out Kai-shek to the communists. That he would make such a personal sacrifice at his age is an indication of the tight communist discipline he was under and had been for most of his adult life.

Not possible without American perfidy. When Marshall left China he had negotiated a "coalition government" between the Kai-shek Nationalists and the Mao Tse-tung communists, and disarmed the Nationalist army, which he later bragged he had done "with the stroke of a pen." Needless to say, with the Chinese Nationalists disarmed and betrayed by the United States, Mao Tse-tung and his communist gang of cut-throats soon drove Chiang Kai-shek and the Nationalists from the Chinese mainland. By 1949 Mao was the undisputed communist master of China, the most populous country in the world. China, with its teeming 800 million people had been turned over to Jewish-communist control through American treachery. And so another country succumbed to betrayal, made in the United States of America.

Huge Bloodbaths Followed. Shortly after the communists took over in China, huge bloodbaths followed. It is conservatively estimated that at least 60 million Chinese were murdered in the Mao Tse-tung purge that followed in order to consolidate his brutal regime.

Died a Traitor. General George C. Marshall, having faithfully done his treacherous duty to his communist masters, died shortly thereafter.

A few more recent examples should suffice to establish the pattern. Lets look at what has been going on in the Western hemisphere.

Betrayal of Chile. By 1970, in Chile an outright communist government had been established, headed by Salvador Allende. This had been achieved with the help of huge sums of American "aid," and especially the connivance of the American C.I.A. Then in 1974 the unexpected happened. The people of Chile, led by army officers, revolted, killed Allende and took back their government. Was the United States government happy at this triumph over communism? On the contrary, it stopped all aid, cut off credits and has carried on a vicious trade boycott and propaganda campaign against Chile ever since.

Panama Canal given to Communists. In 1979 the traitorous United States Senate and executive branch turned over the American built and owned Panama Canal to a tinhorn communist government of dope peddlers and thieves headed by General Torrejos. Not only did they hand it to these criminals free on a silver platter, but they paid them billions to take this, the most strategic waterway in the world. This despite the fact that the mail of some senators was running 200 to 1 against this blatant and treacherous sellout.

Treacherous sell-out in Nicaragua. While this treacherous sell-out was being promoted to the American people, the C.I.A. was already busy using Panama as a base to run arms and revolutionaries into nearby Nicaragua and instigate revolution. Here again our perfideous American government ran true to form. Whereas the Somoza family, which had ruled Nicaragua for more than 40 years was strongly pro-American and anti-communist, the same year as we gave away the Panama Canal, Anastosia Somoza was blatantly betrayed and sold down the river. With C.I.A. organization, money and arms, the country was thrown into utter chaos and turmoil, and finally with the United States telling Somoza to get out, he, too, fled the country. The communist "Sandinistas" took over and another anti-communist country was betrayed and turned over to the communist behemoth with the help of democratic, "anti-communist" United States of America.

* * * * *

C.I.A. plays Vital Role. At this point it would be useful to point out the tremendous importance of the Central Intelligence Agency in most of the Communist take-overs. During World War II the Office of Strategic Services was organized as a super intelligence agency co-ordinating and superseding the different United States military intelligence agencies. It was heavily staffed with Jews, and was in reality a supra world-wide Jewish secret police. Like its Russian counterpart, the Cheka, the O.G.P.U., the N.K.V.D., the K.G.B. and various other name changes in between, so, too, the name of the O.S.S. was changed to the C.I.A. But essentially its character and purpose remained unchanged—it remained (and is today) a world-wide secret police and spy network in the employ of world-wide Jewry, with the American taypayer again footing the bill. Not only is the C.I.A. a spy network, but it also acts as a powerful army of intrigue and deception, a strong-arm that not only spies, but uses force to make things happen.

Awesome Power, Unlimited Funds. The bill to the American taxpayer is enormous. With almost unlimited funds at its disposal and a huge army of manpower in its employ, the power and influence of the C.I.A. in the world at large is awesome and frightening indeed. Neither Congress nor the president really knows how many billions are spent each year by this powerful secret police agency. Nor are they aware of what capers or machinations they are engaged in. All this is cloaked under the guise of "secrecy," "national security," "protecting our agents." The C.I.A. is completely beyond the control of either the courts, congress or the executive branch. In fact, the visible members of the government are themselves frightened of, and very much at the mercy of the C.I.A.

A Criminal Army. Nor are there any limits to the tactics in which the C.I.A. may engage. Assassination, planting false propaganda, lying, stealing, murder, betrayal, planning revolutions, and "dirty tricks" of any nature are all in their routine arsenal of promoting the Jewish program. Nor is that all. Setting up dummy corporations, false political movements, printing a temporary newspaper, rigging elections, supporting political candidates and movements, destroying others, all of this is also part of their bag of tricks.

Operate on American soil also. Nor are their operations limited to foreign soil. Any American citizen who is loyal to his country, or is for the White Race, or wants to expose the Jewish conspiracy, or is anticommunist, is fair game for the powerful and treacherous C.I.A. right here in our home territory. This they do in perfect collaboration with the F.B.I. Hand in glove with each other they will infiltrate domestic organizations, political parties and build up or destroy any group, faction or individual they see fit.

Tool of the Jews. What they see fit is always in the best interests of the Jews and towards the destruction of the White Race.

Before we leave the subject of intelligence there are a few other arms of Jewish spying that I must bring to light at this point.

Mind police. Since the Jews for the last several thousand years have been carrying on the most vicious conspiracy in history, namely the destruction and take-over of all other peoples—they have been fanatic to the point of being paranoid about spying and gathering information on their enemies. And this is understandable. Since the hideous crime they are perpetrating is all based on secrecy and deceit, holding the lid on their conspiracy is a highly precarious business. So they frantically enter into all kinds of devices, spy organizations and means of gathering intelligence that would stagger the limits of the Gentile mind. The Jews not only want to know what their enemies (everybody is their enemy) are doing, they also want to know what they might be planning. In fact, as far as is possible they want to know what everybody is thinking before such thinking might be translated into action.

Network of spy games. So they have all kinds of spy and intelligence networks operating throughout the world. Besides the C.I.A., the F.B.I., the Russian K.G.B. and others already mentioned there are two more that I want to point out, one in America, the other in Israel.

The A.D.L. The A.D.L., short for Anti-Defamation League, is in America. Ostensibly, it pretends to safeguard Jewish interests and prevent the spread of "anti-Semitism." Why the Jews should find this necessary when the English, the Germans, the Italians or other ethnic groups find such safeguards unnecessary, they have never explained. But in reality the A.D.L. is much, much more than that. Presumably an offshoot of the Jewish B'nai B'rith, it is really the main powerhouse of this Jewish outfit. In reality it is a powerful, well financed spy operation inside our own borders that not only gathers information on politicians, civic organizations, diverse individuals, but on anything and everything that they so much as even suspect might blow the lid on the Jewish conspiracy. They have huge files and electronic computers that rival the F.B.I. and the C.I.A. itself, and any information the F.B.I. or C.I.A. might have that is considered useful to the A.D.L. is readily fed to the latter.

Censorship Operation. The A.D.L.'s activities extend much further. They are extremely active in politics—promoting those useful to the Jews and destroying those that might be deemed uncooperative. They also monitor all books, magazines, newspapers, all news media, movements or whatever—anything that might effect the Jewish conspiracy—and this includes just about everything of any significance that happens in this country.

Plant Propaganda. They aggressively invent, if necessary, news stories and plant them into the mainstream of the news media—T.V., newspapers, etc. They not only publish a great number of articles for dissemination, but they also publish a large number of books that are either favorable to Israel and the Jews or viciously attack their enemies.

The Mossad, super Spy network. The other Jew spy organization that is of major world-wide importance is the one headquartered in Israel. It is known as the Mossad. It is the central Jewish intelligence gathering apparatus for the entire world. It is the super-supra spy network of all history. Anything the American C.I.A. knows that is useful to the Jews (just about everything) is funnelled to the Mossad. Everything the Russian K.G.B. knows that is useful is funnelled to the Mossad. Likewise with the intelligence gathering apparatus in Germany, France, Italy and throughout the world, it is all funnelled to the Mossad. There is hardly anything of significance that happens anywhere in the world but what it is shortly catalogued in the massive computers of the Mossad in Israel.

Deadly criminals. But the Mossad goes much further than just spying and gathering intelligence from all over the world. Like the A.D.L., it is virulently aggressive and continually on the offensive. It has well trained assassination squads that run rampant in most of the countries of the world, especially the United States. It sets up para-military organizations like the Jewish Defense League, or Jewish gun clubs trained to skillfully kill Gentiles. The members of Mossad have the run of the United States with little or no opposition from "our own" law enforcement agencies while they tap telephones, bug embassies, foreign diplomats, even the White House and any and every branch of the United States government. In short, not only the United States but the whole world is their undisputed territory, and the White Man, (their main victim) not only gives them no opposition, but pays the bill and hardly knows they exist.

Runs Rampant over World Governments. Undoubtedly the Mossad is the most dangerous, cruel and blood-thirsty gang of international criminals the world has ever known, running rampant and roughshod over all laws and governments throughout the world, with little or no opposition. Like the C.I.A., it is world-wide and parallels many of its operations with this difference: Whereas the C.I.A. is headquartered in the United States, the Mossad is headquartered in Israel; whereas the C.I.A. is manned by a mixture of Jews and Gentiles, the Mossad is all Jewish; whereas the C.I.A. freely shares its information with Mossad, the latter gives nothing to the C.I.A. It is strictly a one-way street, all leading to exclusive Jewish supremacy and tyranny over the "goy" of the world.

* * * * *

Before we leave this foul conspiracy of Russia, Israel, Jews and the U.S. government, there are two other aspects of this satanic combination that I must clarify.

Foreign Aid to Everybody. One is the issue of America dispensing foreign aid (taxpayer's money) to every sleazy panhandler in the world. At present I understand that we are handing out foreign aid to 116 countries in the world. This is one of the most insane pieces of piracy ever imposed upon any group of taxpayers in the history of the world. The American taxpayers have never had an opportunity to vote or express their opinion upon this blatant piece of thievery, but this continues year after year. For 35 years the American taxpayers have been bled white, and at this time there is no indication that it will ever stop or even lessen.

Supposedly to Bribe Countries out of Communism. The gimmick in this whole fraudulent swindle is this: It was inaugurated as the Marshall Plan to keep countries from "going communist." Its noble objective seemed to be to fight communism. In other words we tried to bribe them, to buy them off, to wheedle them out of communism with cash, thereby supposedly winning friends for our side. That supposedly, was the idea, we were told.

Actually we are Subsidizing Communism. The realities were somewhat different. Actually we were propping up faltering communist countries, including the big one, Russia. Before World War II was even concluded we shipped over 13 billion dollars worth of domestic goodies, including tractors, refrigerators and what have you. If we were trying to fight communism, why subsidize them?

Hostile to Anti-Communist Countries. In practice we were subsidizing communism, not fighting it. We used our tremendous wealth as a club to push countries into communism. We used it as a wedge to get our C.I.A. into their midst and maneuver their politics in such a way that the Jews and the communists would sooner or later gain control. In countries such as Chile where they did throw the communists out on their own (no thanks to the U.S. government) we would bear down hard on them, boycott them (as also in Rhodesia) and use economic pressure to get them back into the Jewish fold.

U.S. Betrays Friends, Rewards Enemies. As a result of all this fantastic give-away amounting to hundreds of billions of dollars, most of the countries of the world have completely lost respect for America. They intensely distrust us and never have we been hated so much by so many. And for good reason. The United States (controlled by Jews) has repeatedly practiced treachery, to both its own people and its foreign friends. It has consistently betrayed and punished its friends (such as Rhodesia, Somoza, Batista, Chile, etc.) and generously rewarded its communist "enemies." No wonder the rest of the world distrusts and despises the United States.

Germany under Military Occupation. The other matter is the keeping of American occupational forces in Germany for the interminal period of 35 years after the defeat of a former enemy, something the United States has never done before in its history. This, too, is a gigantic swindle. We supposedly have the troops there to "protect" Germany from a Russian onslaught. The fact is Germany could have protected itself very well from communist Russia, and would have cleaned out that foul nest of vipers in the early 40's had we not interfered.

Real Reason: To Protect the Jews. The real reason our troops have been kept in Germany these 35 years and undoubtedly will remain another 35 years is to keep the German people subdued so they will not revive the Hitler movement and again turn on the Jews. In short, our troops are there for the sole purpose of protecting the Jews from the Germans and preventing the Germans from setting up a government of their own choice. Yes, that is the real and only reason, not to protect Germany from Communist Russia.

* * * * *

Artificial Bandit State. Now we come to that other nest of vipers, the bandit state of Israel itself. This artificial monstrosity owes its very existence to the combined money power of International Jewry, the C.I.A., the news media and the facade known as the "United States" government.

Total Parasite. We must remember that Jews are total parasites and do not really want to live in a country of their own. Parasites cannot live off of each other and must live on a productive host. For this reason Jews do not want to, and could not even if they did want to, live in a country of their own. For thousands of years they, more than anyone else, have had ample opportunity to get together and build a country of their own. They never have wanted to and they never will. They remain eternally what they always have been—parasites.

Reasons for Set-up. So why did they go to such great pains to steal Palestine from the Arabs and set up this artificial monstrosity called Israel?

The reasons are manifold, all designed to aid and abet the Jewish program for the take-over of the world.

1. Probably the most important reason was to Bolster and Unify the sagging ideology of the Jewish rank and file. So successful and so affluent have the recent generations of Jews become that many of the younger Jews were fraternizing with and marrying Gentiles. We must remember that enmity, hatred and struggle have historically been the foundation that built the Jewish race and religion into the solid battering ram that has brought them the phenomenal success that they now flaunt. In too much success can also be the seed-bed of its own disintegration. With Zionism, the Israeli "Homeland" and the struggle to defend and expand Israel the Jewish people have created new enemies and thereby regained a tremendous boost of fervor and solidarity that has seemingly "confirmed" their religious myths and turned them into a tangible reality.

2. Israel was designed to become the center of World Government. It is their plan to move the United Nations to Jerusalem and rule the world from Zion. "The law shall go out from Zion." It is their intent to rule the goyim from "Zion" where they can do so without any interference from alien surveillance or disturbances.

3. Having "Israel" and Jerusalem as their home base has given a religious and mystical quality to their movement of taking over the world. It convinces many of their own people as well as millions of goy yokels that "God" is on their side and that the Jews are "God's chosen people." This is what is called a self-fulfilling prophecy which the Jews have been shrewd enough to turn into real power and into billions of dollars and cents.

4. It provides a safe and unmolested haven for that murderous supra intelligence agency, the Mossad, which we have already described.

5. There are a number of other reasons that have been advanced such as (a) the tremendous wealth of precious minerals contained in the murky waters of the Dead Sea, (b) The Jews (with the help of United States power) will expand and take over the Arab lands and rich oil fields of the Persian Gulf, (c) it is a place of refuge if world conditions become too hostile for the Jews, (d) other minor reasons.

It is my opinion that the first four reasons stated are by far the most important and the fifth category is comparatively minor, especially No. 5 (c) that it could be a refuge in a crisis. The fact remains that the Jews will always be a deadly parasite on the backs of the productive nations of the world, or they will be nothing. Once they are driven from power in the White nations of the world their whole power structure will rapidly collapse. Israel will rapidly collapse with it. In fact, the Arabs themselves would soon make short shrift of the bandit state of Israel as soon as the Jews lose their grip on the control centers of the White nations of the world, especially the United States.

Israel short lived without subsidization. The plain fact is that inside Israel itself there is turmoil, dissension, hatred and disintegration. The Jews have not proved they could build a nation of their own, or live with themselves. On the contrary, without the continual financial blood transfusions from Germany, the United States and other "goyim" countries, Israel couldn't last six months. Even with all this tremendous aid from the outside it has one of the highest rates of inflation in the world. The United States alone in 1979 subsidized Israel to the tune of $10,000 per family of four in Israel. On top of that Germany is paying reparations for the phoney "holocaust" to the tune of a billion dollars a year. The Jews in New York, Miami Beach and elsewhere raise $300 million each year for "Israeli bonds" (a swindle) and send it tax free to Israel. Yet despite all this tremendous outside subsidization Israel the parasite is in a continual turmoil politically and in a precarious and faltering financial situation, a true parasite with no future of its own.

* * * * *

Summary. In summation we can safely conclude:

1. That Communism, Marxism and Zionism combine with capitalism to accomplish one and the same goal—the Jewish take-over of the world.

2. That the United States is not fighting Communism, but on the contrary, is firmly in the grip of the Jewish network using the wealth, power and prestige of the United States to betray and take over one country after another, all in the sham battle of "fighting Communism."

3. The C.I.A. and the F.B.I. are both the Secret police and the strong arm of the Jewish network. Never, never trust their agents nor collaborate with them in any way.

4. We need not look to Russia as the real enemy of the United States. The Russian people would like to get the Jewish-Communist monkey off their back as much as anybody and would have succeeded long ago if it had not been for the machinations of the United States. The real enemy resides right here in our own country, expecially in New York and Washington.

5. Only by rallying the total power of the White Race and organizing it under a powerful racial religion such as CREATIVITY can we ever hope to break the back of the Jewish Marxist-Communist-Zionist tyranny.

The Creed and Program of the Church of the Creator are spelled out in three basic books: Nature's Eternal Religion (512 pp., $8.00. The White Man's Bible (451 pp., $8.00; Salubrious Living (244 pp., $5.50). SPECIAL OFFER: All three books $15. plus $1.50 for postage and handling. Send your orders to:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.V. 25270

Additional copies of this 12-page pamphlet: 5/$1.50; 100/$20.; 500/$80. available from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, WV 25270 USA.

BOOKS BY BEN KLASSEN-THE CHURCH OF THE CREATOR

Nature's Eternal Religion ..... $ 8.00
The White Man's Bible ..... $ 8.00
Salubrious Living ..... $ 5.50

Survival of the White Race LP Record ..... $ 5.00

Reprints from The White Man's Bible:

Order No. 10058: Questions and Answers about Creativity: 4 for $1.50 – 10 for $3.50 – 100 for $30.00 – 500 for $120.00

Order No. 10059: Superstition and Gullibility: Achilles Heel of the White Race; Gullibility Rating Quiz: 5 for $1.50 – 100 for $20.00 – 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10062: A few obvious questions we would like Christians to explain with some sensible answers; Why we indict Christianity so strongly: 8 for $1.50 – 25 for $4.00 – 100 for $14.00 – 500 for $60.00.

Order No. 10069: Observations about the Devil and Hell; Thumbscrew and Rack; The Spooks-in-the-Sky swindle: 5 for $1.50 – 100 for $20 00 – 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10072: Russia, Israel and the United States: 5 for $1.50 – 100 for $20.00 – 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10073: World Jewry declared War on Germany long before Germany took Action against Jews; The 6 Million Lie: 5 for $1.50 – 100 for $20.00 – 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10075: The Melting Pot: The ugly American Dream; Civilization without a Racial Religion: A Self-destructive process for the White Race; The Glory and the Catastrophe that was Rome: A Lesson for all time: 3 for $1.50 – 10 for $4.00 – 100 for $36.00 – 500 for $150.00.

Order No. 10081: We shall be masters of our own Manifest Destiny–Winning of the West: Prototype for winning of the world; The War with Mexico 1846-48: An unfinished War: Single Copy $1.25 – 10 for $10.00 – 100 for $80.00 – 500 for $250.00.

For Postage and Handling, please include:
$1. for orders under $10.–10% for orders over $10. USA–
15% foreign countries. W.Va. residents must include 5% for Sales Tax.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 24

course to take. Indeed, these Christian teachings caused much misery in my own life, since I was constantly trying to solve my problems by non-aggressive "mildness" etc. Ironically, however, I have been led to the truth at last, and it was not what I expected, and not where I expected to find it! Finally something that makes sense and begins to allow me to establish some living in my own life.

Happy Holidays and Best Wishes,
Mrs. M.M., Massachussetts

* * * * *

Mr. Dietz: 23 November 1982

In 'Populism' and 'Elitism' part 2 I see you believe in evolution, the biggest hoax of tethe last 125 years.

Evolutionists themselves describe it as anti-knowledge–mythology about which you can not say ONE thing about that is true.

You mention fossils–but this is only one of the many evidences disproving the big E. . .

Your scientific evidences are no-no's and very barren.

Finally, you quote hero Nietzsche in "Anti-Christ." Was this written before or after he was insane?

I note a big stream of hate in your writings and they turn me off.

If Communism and Christianity are twins, then so am I and my parakeet. A much better example would be Communism and Fascism.

I note you print only accolades and no criticisms [Oh, we don't?] –why? If Christ was a nobody, how come his followers turned the world upside down? [They sure did! They sure did! –With fire and sword in hand, they left millions of dead and utter devastation–physical and mental–on their glorious path of conquering and subjecting our non-Oriental forefathers to their Oriental myths and superstitions! –Ed.] You fell in love with man's reason which is a mirage! Christ's words are still true: I am the Way, truth and the life. Please give it heart felt thought.

Sincerely,
L.A., Pennsylvania

* * * * *

Editor: 25 November 1982

How refreshing it is to see another publication liberated from the Identity curse. I, too, have seen the light–National Socialism and Christianity are mutually exclusive. I enclose my address for any comrade who might like to exchange ideas.

Born Again Pagan,
Ms. Dianna L. Smith
Box 401761, Garland, TX 75040

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 25 November 1982

White Nationalist/Racialist Greetings!

I have just read the October 1982 issue of The Liberty Bell and found it to be quite moving and inspiring. Also, I have been sent a set of books by Prof. Revilo Oliver and also one by George Lincoln Rockwell, which I am reading at present, by the title of "White Power."

I have found them most interesting and since I have been imprisoned I have undergone a metamorphosis from a Klansman to a National Socialist. Several months ago I read "Mein Kampf" and became converted.

I have been imprisoned for nearly two years and, finally, after appeals, court action, etc., I have only 57 days to go until release.

I'll be returning to the Birmingham, Al. area where I am a Great Titan of the Klan there, and I will be in further contact to order books, literature, etc. to distribute to the faithful comrades there who are good material for NS ideology.

Best of wishes for your work there! May we both continue steadfastly in our struggle for our race and folk; their survival depends on our success.

Enclosed are the details on my case as reported by "The Thunderbolt."

Yours for White Nationalism,
B.R., Alabama

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 4 December 1982

In the October issue of Liberty Bell, there was an article attacking Christianity. I ordered 10 copies, but have sent out only one, so far. When the November issue arrived, it changed my view of the Ben Klassen article.

A choice must be made between destroying Christianity, or saving the White race. I choose the latter.

Ben Klassen's target is the Jew. So, let's make it the goal. To do so, an attack on Christianity is out of order. The greatest race of men in history did the greatest job for the White Race and civilization in general. They were the Teutonic and Celtic founders of the Republic, and were all Christians. So forget the charges against Christianity, made by Ben Klassen; although most of them were irrefutable.

The problem confronting us, is preservation of the White race. This involves eliminating the Jews from America. At present, they control all three branches of the Federal Government—Executive, Legislative and Judicial. Fortunately, we still have the Constitution, weakened though it has been by many false rulings.

With the exception of the first 12 Amendments made by the Founders, themselves, all the Amendments, beginning with the 13th, have been detrimental and should be repealed. This can't be done so, again, we look to the Founders of the Republic for guidance.

They formed a Federal Government with limited powers; all others were reserved to the states or the people thereof. The U.S. Senate was almost top dog. No money could be appropriated or laws passed, without its approval. The President could make no big decisions without its confirmation. He was to be the "executive," one who carried out the laws made by Congress within the limits of the Constitution.

The U.S. Senate originally considered the state legislatures; the latter elected the Senators. In some states, before enactment of the 17th Amendment, legislatures would REQUEST Representatives in Congress, but INSTRUCT their U.S. Senators.

The most important objective at the present time, is resurgence of the power of state legislatures. This cannot be done without active work by constituents of state legislators. The future of the Republic depends on the type of citizens we now have.

Will a majority of them leave the TV programs and take an interest in the actions of their state legislators? If a majority of citizens are TV boobs, Negroes, Hispanics, Jews, etc., the country is gone. It is time to leave, but where could we go? The Jews are supreme in most of the rest of the world.

L. Lee Layton, Delaware

* * * * *

Dear George: 4 December 1982

. . . Like the Birch Society, there are many good people in both the Identity Movement and "fundamentalist" churches, but it is hard for me to believe that the leadership of any of them is on the level. Among Identity people, we have some good men. Some EX-Birchers are well worth having at hand and ENLIGHTENED Baptists can supply much needed moral principle.

The point I'm trying to make is that we desperately need compatriots for the final show or the curtain won't even go up. We'll look as puny and foolish as those idiots who tried to put on a show in D.C. I'm very suspicious of such as Don Black and Thom Robb. Whatever their intent, there is no way they could better serve our enemies. I too was horrified by that utterly stupid blast in the Spotlight deriding you and all others who dare to challenge their monopoly in the "patriot" field. I still hesitate, though, to make too much issue of their arrogance or their occasional diatribes by the staff, Montmorency or even the abysmally stupid Bartell. During the past year, they have done a very good job of exposing the Jewish thing in a believable manner, as well as revealing much more corruption and subversion. I'm not much as a pacifist and a lousy diplomat but, as you said to me "our backs are to the wall" and we need all the cooperation we can muster, even at the expense of some pride.

Sincerely,
G.P., Idaho

* * * * *

Dear George: 6 December 1982

Some months have passed since you have heard from me. Everything is fairly well with myself and the family. May this find you and yours as well.

By the way, I want to thank you for the extra copies you enclosed with my last order.

Recently I received a letter from the "Redeem our Country" people. I am sure it is from the Liberty Lobby movement. What struck me was the name Howard Jarvis. I do not know for a fact if he is really sincere. I do not know everything about ali these causes, but do have a sort of negative instinct about some. I was jumped into the Welch's outfit once and since then I am leery about wasting my hard earned cash. So, if you know anything about this, let me know.

I wanted to write you sooner, but something was wrong and could not get started; then with the last Liberty Bell—I am glad I waited—came your comments about Liberty Lobby. I had heard before that Wily Willie Carto was an enterprizer. So, now I am convinced—when they start squabbling against other movements.

Until next time, have a good Yuletide.

Yours,
J.L., Minnesota

* * * * *

Dear George: 4 December 1982

. . . . I gave up on The Spotlight a long time ago because it was such a thoroughly unpleasant, even sleazy rag, but a chap I know at work had a copy in a few weeks ago. "Tinhorn Nazi"? "Book Pirate"? My, oh my, what did you ever do to Willis Carto and his Heinzelmaennchen?

All the Best,
D.D., Illinois

* * * * *

Dear George: 9 December 1982

Just a private observation on the supposed "bad press" mention of you in The Spotlight.

When I read the reference to "Tinhorn Nazi," I had to go over the article twice. The barb appeared out of place in the context, almost as though they had this little item in the office and just pasted it onto the first story where they had room. . . I am still wondering whether "Tinhorn" was the correct word. They should have used "Solid Gold" or "Sterling." . . .

Happy Yule Tree Holiday,
H.H., Michigan

[We are now in the process of preparing a suitable reply to the smear in "The Paper You Can Trust." We hope to have it ready for inclusion in our next issue. —Editor]

BACK IN PRINT:

MONEY CREATORS
by Gertrude M. Coogan
Reveals Secrets the Money Changers Have Paid
Millions to Conceal! — $5.50

LAWFUL MONEY EXPLAINED
by Gertrude M. Coogan
How To Win Back Your America! — $3.50

Order your copies from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THOSE WHO WILL NOT READ — HAVE NO ADVANTAGE OVER THOSE WHO CANNOT READ!

AN APPEAL TO SANITY

by George E. Pittam

This appeal is addressed, not to the cowardly and deliberately ignorant, nor to those with only vague realization of peril, but to those who face reality and with courage to accept their roles in the shaping of history, as leaders, lieutenants and intelligent partisans, each according to his or her existing or potential abilities.

All those addressed know that we are, today, faced with disaster more widespread and more horrible than any in man's despotic history, a disaster deliberately brought about by a tightly organized cabal of incredibly evil men with insatiable lust for power and wealth, creatures so demented, yet so sophisticated, schooled and practiced in deceit and pleasantries that the whole scheme so boggles the decent, compassionate mind as to create an aura of unreality and disbelief, an illusory straw to which the faint-hearted may cling. Among these are God-fearing, moral men and women, immobilized by fear and wanting direction and hope. We of greater understanding and, perhaps, of stronger fibre, must supply that direction and hope.

Seldom, if ever, has an undirected mass movement attained any significant goal. In every instance, participants have been incited and directed, for good or for evil, by a tiny minority. That minority now effectively controls our nation's news and propaganda network, television, Hollywood, the money system, public education, and government. Never before has that control sinultaneously extended over so many nations of the world, and there can be no denial that our total subjugation is a distinct possibility. Nonetheless, it is a near truism that the only thing we learn from history is that we learn nothing from history. Always, power begets power and those who usurp authority multiply abuses until their vassals revolt and destroy them or until they become so debauched by indulgence and their serfs so demoralized that they are easy prey for another conqueror and the nation is destroyed or colonized by a foreign power. Neither eventuality offers hope to this generation.

Ours is a desperate gamble, but the consequences of failure are no more to be feared than those of abject surrender. We, with opposite goals, are the other minority. To offset our superiority in numbers and purpose, we who should know better have been manipulated into opposing camps and factions, each imagining themselves the sole patriots and at odds with every other faction, which we are encouraged to assume to be allied with our enemy.

There is not the slightest doubt that the nucleus of the present-day association of mischief-makers had it's origin prior to the life of Jesus Christ. Then, as now, the issue was power and prestige. The instrument was money. Christ incurred their wrath when He challenged their doctrines, belittled their pomp and disrupted their usurious financial dealing—and He paid with his life. Today, descendants of those same anti-Christs have recruited the dregs of the earth into their sacreligious cult, have gained absolute control of our money system, and have bought our politicians and our propaganda apparatus with our own wealth.

We are now in a desperate race—and we are running backward, to the immense amusement of our masters-of-ceremony. Why? Are we so foolish as to believe that we can insult every one of differing culture, education, religion, and race, and still mount a winning offensive? I'm going to ruffle some feathers and I make no apology. I make no pretense of knowing the details of how we will win. I do know the sure way to lose: by divisive and antagonistic tactics; by attacking bogus targets set up by our manipulators; by failure to identify the enemy; by refusal to face reality; and by neglect or abandonment of moral principle. Failure in any of these areas assures disaster.

Since this is a serious, knowledgable audience, here is the ungarnished meat of this essay. First, I will define the term "Jew." It is neither race nor religion. Except for the skeletal understructure which has been maintained through the generations, few can trace their ancestry to the Biblical tribe of Judah or to any other of the famous (or infamous) tribes of Israel. Even those fewcannot make claim to racial purity. They have mixed and remixed with conquered and conquering peoples all through antiquity. So—are they creatures of Satan, as some would have us believe? If so, what of an admixture of "Jew" and "Gentile?" And what of those who have "adopted" the Jewish "religion," viz: Liz Taylor, Pat Boone, Sammy Davis Jr.? What of their offspring? Let's be realistic, at least with ourselves. A professing Jew, whether overt or disguised, is a member of a conspiratorial gang posing as a religious sect. By far, a majority of those who are racially identifiable descended from the Khazars of southern Russia, a once powerful but cruel people of Mongol-Turkic stock who, as a nation, were converted to Talmudism, frequently misnamed "Judaism." In turn, it was an easy matter to convert those who subscribe to such brutal "religious" practices into Bolshevism. This was the horde, financed by a handful of fabulously wealthy Jews and led by a detachment of Jews from New York, which overthrew the legitimate government of Russia and established Communism as the revolutionary arm of international Jewry.

Now—no one who has made even a cursory study of history can deny these basic facts and that acknowledgment, alone, serves to identify our deadly enemies and to help us chart a course that will defeat them.

Other than Communism, the most effective tool for the subjugation of our nation has been, and still is, the TEACHING of "religion." Most church-goers, once including myself, made very little study of the Bible, except under guidance. In most of our so-called "fundamentalist" churches and Sunday School classes, we were, and are, instructed that the tribes of Israel were God's chosen people, favored above all others. Many go even further and equate "Jew" with "Israelite." Therefore, we are to believe that all professing Jews were God's elect. Still further, using vague passages and ignoring distinct ones, we are instructed that that favoritism still applies and that their present-day occupation of Bible lands is fulfillment of God's promises. Even the Old Testament affirms that all real estate contracts have been fulfilled and that no further claims are valid. Yet, despite the New Testament's specific and repeated denials of any further favoritism for the Israelites, professing Christian preachers and teachers continue to proclaim the current validity of Old Testament promises, and thousands of otherwise intelligent men and women abandon all reason upon entering a church and never question the duplicity.

Being reared and educated by genuinely God-loving parents, I, for far too many years, feared to question any of the man-written, man-selected, man-translated, and man-interpreted passages in our accepted Bible for fear of instilling doubt about of all it's teachings. That was a gross error and a disservice to our very real God. We were designed as intelligent beings. Whe were we endowed with ability to reason if we are to abandon reason in religious matters? The New Testament specifically admonishes to prove all things. If we believe all other passages, why should we skip over that one? Tell me, can any thinking person believe that Moses came down from the mountain proclaiming that he had been presented with ten commandments from God for the governance of his people, commandments which forbade murder, theft, false testimony, and covetousness, and was then directed by that same God to employ stealth, deceit, and murder of every man, woman and child who then owned and occupied lands they coveted, and to divide the spoils among themselves? To pass over without denial of authenticity or to proclaim validity of such blasphemy is to encourage disbelief of all religious tenets. How can we possibly expect young inquiring minds to accept such ridiculous dogma? Yet, not only Jews proclaim their right to plunder, based on these proclamations. Certain of our compatriots allow the use of thse same scurrilous passages to prove that THEY are the rightful heirs to the loot!

Surely, by now, the identity of our enemies is clearly revealed. They are immensely powerful. If we are to launch an offensive with even the possibility of success, we must concentrate on that enemy, not his pawns. Germany was a great nation. Germans, as a race, a tribe, a civilization, were a great people. Had they been victorious in World War II, Communism and Zionism, as significant threats to mankind, would not now exist. But Germany was not successful and Communism and Zionism threaten to engulf us. This is America, or what remains of it. Parades in uniforms of any other nation suggests invasion and create antagonisms. We are already occupied. Our federal government, in all branches, is saturated with traitors. The phony arms race is not for the purpose of resistance to a Communist enemy but for joint venture. No conscious person denies our nation's involvement with Israel in their scheme to invade and conquer the Arab nations and to steal their mineral and oil wealth. Every administration and every congress since the Holy Land was desecrated by the implantation of those conniving thieves has acceded to their every demand and showered them with our diminishing wealth and most sophisticated weaponry. Why? Because their cohorts, who have infested our beautiful country, control the economics of our nation and lavish wealth, power, and prestige upon their toadies. In every branch of government, our representatives who aspire to be rulers, endeavor to disarm us. For our own protection? Hardly! For their own. They know that, eventually, we will be driven to desperation and that rebellion will be our only recourse. Does our enemy need further identification? Do we need still more enemies?

So—let us reevaluate, retrench, abandon self-aggrandizement, evict the grandstanders and those who, through ignorance and bigotry or by subversive design, create prejudice and animosity. We are all vehemently opposed to forced or coerced mixing of races. We are agreed that this nation was founded, governed, and developed until it was the greatest on earth, by those of the White race. If it is to regain it's majesty, it must be again so governed, but with fairness. While it is true that the floodgates were opened to those of other races to aid in the destruction of our system of self-governance, only select ones among them are knowing participants in that scheme. Certainly we should bear no malice toward those who only seek a better life for themselves and their families. If we persecute and ostracise them, we drive them into the clutches of our common enemy. In doing so, we are not only morally wrong, but are assuring our own isolation and defeat.

With this final admonition I rest my case. When, not if, we are driven to desperation measures for our survival, it is absolutely imperative that we not fall into the designed trap of fighting each other until our strength is dissipated, to the amusement of those who planned it that way. □

MUST-READING FOR CONCERNED PATRIOTS:

The Jew in Review, Quotes by famous Jews & Gentiles ..... $ 6.00
The Jewish War of Survival ..... $ 3.00
The Hoax of the 20th Century ..... $ 6.00.
Please add $1 for postage for orders under $10. For orders over $10, please ad 10%. Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the Midrashim, the Cabbala, the Rabbinical-ana, Proverbial Sayings and Traditions. 395 pages, softcover, $20. plus $2. for post. & hndlg. Order from: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270

PLEASE ASK YOUR FRIENDS TO SUBSCRIBE TO THE LIBERTY BELL!

THE SOUTH AFRICAN OBSERVER

OCTOBER 1982

A Journal for Realists

EDITOR: S.E.D. BROWN
P.O. Box 2401, PRETORIA

Telephone 3-7788

AMERICA'S GUTLESS LEADERSHIP SPOTLIGHTED

MURDER AND MASSACRE IN LEBANON — THE LESSONS

THE BEIRUT MASSACRE and the savagery of Israel's attacks on densely populated areas in Beirut and elsewhere have been nothing less than deliberate trampling on every tenet of civilised law.

They must be seen for what they are—criminal aggression and barbarism—bringing the Middle East and the world a major step closer to full-scale war.

If the good people of the world still wish to secure mankind from the violence and terrorism in the Middle East, and everywhere in the world, and re-establish the law and order built up through the centuries, they will have to find the courage to face up to the realities of not only the Middle East problem but of the growing anarchism and terrorism victoriously and brazenly bestriding the whole civilised world—and for which the pattern in the Middle East was set by Menachem Begin and his predatory junta.

In the matter of the Middle East, in general, the good people of the world have yet to face up to the reality of an imperialistic, expansionist, military power, like Israel, a country which, as part of a master-plan, has mercilessly driven out peaceful populations from centuries-old homelands in order to build the Jewish state—a country which adopts the attitude of a conqueror, and believes that force and thousand-fold retaliatory killing are the only policies which its neighbours will understand—a country which consistently violates the Fourth Geneva Convention in its treatment of civilians and which has consistently flouted every decision of the U.N. General Assembly and the Security Council.

REAGAN POLICY

And what has the United States, the so-called leader of the West, been doing about these incredible developments? Not only has she been doing little or nothing but can be expected to go on supporting Israel, right or wrong.

The Reagan administration's policy initially was to turn a blind eye to Israel's "adventurism" in Lebanon, without expecting the Israeli's to push beyond the 40-kilometre buffer zone which they said they wanted to clear of Palestinian forces. But as the Israeli's pushed on, chewing up Tyre and Sidon and hammering on the gates of Beirut, United States policy began to split.

The tacit support which the Reagan administration had given to Israel, at the start of the invasion, and throughout the occupation, had provided every encouragement to Begin and his ministers to drive deeply still further into Lebanon—and all of which culminated in the horrendous massacre in Beirut.

The United States, it must be emphasised, had long and consistently been encouraging the kind of provocative brinkmanship to which Israel has resorted in the last three decades—and as a direct result of which the Middle East is today in its dangerous state of anarchy.

For this the Reagan administration cannot escape a large measure of responsibility—and not excluding for the Beirut massacre itself.

DECISIVE BATTLE STARTED

As a direct result of the Reagan administration's latest confrontation with Isreal—and which is a direct result of the tragic events in Lebanon—a major if not decisive battle over Palestine has now been joined—not between Israel and the Palestinians, but between Menachem Begin and the President of the United States.

But the question is: Can the United States, and the world for that matter, expect Mr. Reagan and Secretary of State Schulz now to stick to their guns, in their latest demands over Palestine, or will they continue to act like powerless eunuchs in the hands of driven men who would destroy the Middle East and remake it in the image of Menachem Begin and his terrorist cohorts?

A vigorous counter-attack by the Israelis and their diehard supporters in the United States is inevitable and has already begun.

All the familiar weapons of smother, smear and cover-up are being brought out again—the story of the "Six Million," the accusations of anti-Semitism, the "Judeo-Christian heritage" hoax, the astute use of campaign funds in the approaching mid-term elections in the United States, and the powerful Jewish lobbies and Zionist political machinery swiftly moving into action—in an all-out attempt to blow the administration off course, in the same way that previous administrations have been intimidated and deflected from doing what they knew to be just and right.

The battle will be a savage one and won't be won unless Mr. Reagan and his administration show a courage and willingness to face realities and to heed the advice of allies which until now has been completely lacking.

Lest any readers doubt our own scepticism that Mr. Reagan is today the right man, in the right place, to face up to the problems of Palestine and the Middle East and to the whole Jewish question for that matter, we would remind the reader that, in spite of having the full backing of conservative America behind him, when elected as president, Mr. Reagan was never able to break the unwritten rules of the all-powerful finance houses of Wall Street and announce his intention of opposing Communism by halting the massive financial, technological and military aid to the Soviet Union that has built up the Soviet Union to what it is today.

Nor can we, today, reasonably expect Mr. Reagan to break the unwritten rules of the all-powerful Zionist political machine which today virtually controls the American Government, the Senate, the Congress, and not to mention all their communications media.

BLATANT PARTISANSHIP

In the matter of Mr. Reagan's blatant partisanship for the Jewish cause, it is also worth taking a closer look at his early background, to get a picture of the man behind the eternal grin and the grease paint.

In his autobiography, "Where's the Rest of Me?", Reagan's description of his father proves most illuminating. When the great film epic, "Birth of a Nation," came to Reagan's hometown, old Jack Reagan refused to let any member of his family see the film. Ronald boasted that his was the only family in his town who did not see the film!

On another occasion, when the elder Reagan was checking in at a hotel in a small Midwest town, after a bad day selling shoes, he was told in confidence by the manager that he would enjoy his stay because "We don't permit a Jew in this place." Whereupon the elder Reagan—a story Ronald never ceases repeating—stomped out of the hotel with these historic words, "Well, I am a Catholic and if you won't take Jews, you won't take Catholics either."

And having nowhere else to go at the late hour, he had to spend the rest of the snowy winter's night sleeping in his car, and the "shattering bigotry" of the hotel keeper brought on a heart attack a few days later.

FERVENT SUPPORTER

Is it any wonder, then, that with such parental influence, son Ronald is what he has become today—in constant demand at Zionist fund-raising events all over the U.S. and boastful of having sold more Israeli bonds than any other American politician—a fervent supporter of "Israel's right to exist"—and always uttering all the obligatory blather about America's "undying commitment to Israel" and America's relationship with Israel being "a two-way street in which America benefits greatly."

And all this, in spite of the fact that Israel has already received over 70-billion dollars worth of American aid and that, were it not for the American taxpayer, this charity state, Israel, would long before now have ceased to exist!

Reagan, of course, had long known that no high office in the U.S. was attainable unless recognition of Israel's needs was publicly accepted and enthusiastically endorsed.

And the extent to which he has been ever-ready to don his yarmulka at the drop of a hat, and to ingratiate himself at every turn, by playing lick-spittle to the Israeli cause, was nowehere more clearly shown than in the amazing political advertisement which appeared during his presidential election campaign.

RONALD'S 'PROUD RECORD'

Paid for, and inserted by the Regan-Bush Committee, and endorsed by the chairman of the Republican Party, and printed in many American papers like the "Los Angeles Times" and in Jewish papers like the "B'nai B'rith Messenger," it appeared under the bold four-line heading: "Governor Reagan Has Been Pro-Israel Since Its Creation in 1948."

Then followed his record, entitled "The Record of Reagan's Support for the Jewish Community and Israel," from which, inter alia, we learned:

"In 1948, long before he became Governor of California, he resigned from the Lakeside Country Club in Los Angeles because it refused membership to a Jew. In 1967, at a pro-Israel rally at the Hollywood Bowl, he forcefully expressed his concern for Israel's safety during the Six-Day War. In 1971, he was instrumental in enacting a California law, one of the first in the United States, authorizing banks and savings institutions to buy and invest in State of Israel bonds. Other states followed California's example, dramatically enhancing the sales of Israel bonds in this country. That same year, Israel's Medallion of Valor was conferred on Governor Reagan at an Israel Bonds Dinner.

"In a speech before the B'nai B'rith Convention on September 3, 1980, Governor Reagan reaffirmed his strong support for Israel. He declared:

" 'Israel is a major strategic asset to America and a strong, secure Israel is clearly in America's self interest. To weaken Israel is to destabilize the Middle East and risk the peace of the whole world. As our democratic ally, Israel must continue to receive economic and defense assistance.

" 'The PLO is a terrorist organization whose leadership is committed to violence and aggression against Israel.

" 'The United States should not try to force a peace settlement upon Israel and her neighbors . . . Resolutions in the United Nations which undermine Israel's position and isolate her people should be vetoed because they undermine progress toward peace.'

"Ronald Reagan's views on the Middle East are based on long-term policies, not short-term politics. He has been a friend of Israel for more than 30 years and his record is one of long-standing principles and commitment . . ."

COLOSSAL ZIONIST INFLUENCE

All of which raises the all-important question: Why should an American presidential candidate like Reagan, a candidate for the leadership of the most powerful nation on earth, have found the need to nurture a small, permanently bankrupt charity state, created by deceit, murder, and terror—and boast of it—as he did in order to secure the Jewish vote in the U.S.?

The answer, of course, was that Reagan had long known that in all American history, no other racial minority has exerted such colossal influence on behalf of a foreign state, on the American media, and on the legislature and the executive, as have and do the Zionists.

The extent to which the U.S. is controlled from behind the scenes was also revealed by Senator J. William Fulbright, who, when addressing an audience of 18-million on a "Meet the Press" programme—and when referring to a question of Israel—said that "There is nothing you can do about it because more than 60% of the Senate is controlled by Jews."

He is also on record saying "We have now subjected ourselves to the will of Israel . . . I cannot think of any similar instance in history of a large country subjecting itself to the will of a smaller one."

After 42 years in Congress, most of that time as the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Fulbright was defeated by a newcomer in the primary elections which took place a few months later, and was not re-elected to office.

And, as to the future, there can be little doubt that Reagan will continue to ensure that financial, military, and economic aid to Israel will continue anabated, regardless of the national and international interests of the U.S., the dislocation of the economy, the cost to the American taxpayer, and now the Beirut massacre—and not forgetting the deterioration of peace throughout the Middle East and the ever-growing threat of a global war.

RENEGADE CHRISTIAN LEADERS

The unseemingly partisanship of Ronald Reagan towards Israel and the Jewish cause—at the expense of truth and justice for Palestine and the Middle East—is also greatly being reinforced by the renegade Christian leaders in the United States, whose total commitment to world Jewry and close association with, and support for, Menachem Begin and his kind have become bywords in American political life.

These "Christian" leaders include evangelist Billy Graham and the leader of the so-called Moral Majority in the U.S., the Reverend Jerry Falwell (a close personal friend of President Reagan), and many others including Pat Robertson, Jim Bakker, James Robinson, Ronald Goodwin, Carl McIntyre, et. al.

But little do these "Christian" leaders seem to know, or care, that it was America's connivance in the genesis of Israel and America's active support and protection of Israel up to the present, which has cost the U.S. and the Western world the friendship and goodwill of over 100 million Arabs and 300 million other Moslems, once the most anti-Communistic peoples on earth—and paved the way for Russia's entrance into the Middle East, thereby dividing the East from the West in a way that best suited Russia—and with Israel becoming an important link between Soviet Russia and the rest of Russia's actual and potential allies in both Africa and the East.

PALESTINE TRAGEDY

Little do these "Christian" clergymen in the United States seem to know, or care, that the tragedy of the people of Palestine is in the fact that their country was given by a foreign power to another people for the creation of a new State. The result was that many millions of innocent people have been permanently homeless—and that with every new conflict their numbers have increased.

Little do these "Christian" churchmen seem to know, or care, that the refugees have every right to the homelands from which they were driven, and that the denial of this right is at the heart of the continuing conflict. No people anywhere in the world would accept being expelled en masse from their own country [That is, of course, with the exception of millions upon millions of Germans who, after World War II, were robbed of their ancestral homelands in the eastern part of Germany, by decree and acquiescence of the troika of war criminals, Churchill, Stalin, Roosevelt, and their "Christian" followers, and many of whom were, not only brutally raped and tortured, but killed in cold blood in the process of "evacuation!" Thus having been given the "blueprint for genocide" by their "Christian" handmaidens, could, or should, we really expect of the rapacious Jew more civility than that demonstrated by their "Christian" mentors who, over the centuries, killed many millions of our racial ancestors who prefered to retain their "pagan ways" to being converted—by fire and sword—to an Oriental religion. So, today, "Christians" and Jews alike—actively and/or passively—are merely continuing with their work of destroying all those who do not subscribe to their particular brand of piety! —Editor, Liberty Bell] ; and they never ask: How can anyone require the peoples of Palestine to accept a punishment which nobody else would tolerate?

Little do these "Christian" leaders in the U.S. seem to know, or care, that the aggression committed by Israel must be condemned, not only because no State has the right to annex foreign territory [Come now! What is good for the goose, is good for the gander! What was "good" for Poland, Russia, Czechoslowakia, France after World War I and World War II, why shouldn't that be "good" for the rapacious Jews today? After all, the "Allies" conquered the world for them, during and after WW II, and demonstrated to them how it's done. —Ed., Liberty Bell], but because every expansion has proved to be just another experiment to discover just how much more aggression the world will tolerate.

The Arab world also knows only too well—something the rest of the world is now only just learning—that Israel's real aim is to recover the "ancient borderlines" within the boundaries defined in the Old Testament (Gen. 9.18) and that if the welfare of Israel requires continuing conquest, subjugation, dispossession, and extermination of foreign nations in the Middle East, the Zionists will not be deterred by any "humanitarian" questions.

BECOME GREATEST CHAMPIONS

Instead of automatically knowing that any just settlement of the Palestine refugees in their own homelands is an essential ingredient of any genuine settlement in the Middle East, these renegade American Christian churchmen have never dared criticise Israel's inhuman and genocidal campaigns against innocent Arab men, women, and children during the past forty years.

Instead, these influential Christian leaders have become the most influential and vocal elements and the greatest champions of Israel and Menachem Begin outside the Jewish community itself!

In spite of the fact that most Israelis are irreligious or atheist or else committed to the Labour Party and the Socialist Internationale, these same "Christian churchmen" continue wholeheartedly to support Menachem Begin for his "deep religious convictions, his militaristic policies, patriotic fervour, and economic conservatism!"

The fact that Israel today is ruled by pathological criminals like Begin has also never prevented these clergymen from accepting awards and gifts from Begin and his kind.

When Begin visits the United States, he is always warmly greeted with hugs and kisses from the Jerry Falwells and their ilk.

PRESTIGIOUS AWARDS

In the fall of 1980, Menachem Begin bestowed on some of these American clergymen (the first ever to Gentiles) four out of a total of one hundred of the prestigious Jabotinsky Awards for Distinguished Service to Israel and the Jews.

And in the late 1970s, full page advertisements appeared in the New York Times, Washington Post, and in other large circulation newspapers stressing the theme of Israel as the fulfilment of Biblical prophecy and the need for the United States to support "God's Chosen People!"

One of the advertisements called on the world's statesmen to tell Israel, "Your land is yours, the Bible says so!"

The pretentions of all such propaganda, of course, are that the "resurgence" of present-day Israel is a fulfilment of Biblical prophecy and a prerequisite to the second coming of Jesus Christ; that all the Jews in the world, including Menachem Begin and his kind, are the "chosen people" of God; that they have a "divine right" not only to Jerusalem and Palestine but to other extensive areas in the Middle East; and that they also have "divine justification" for all their acts of terrorism, brutality and genocide perpetrated against the Arab and Palestinian peoples [Well, "The End justifies the 'divine' means" of the Jews today, just as it did justify the 'divine' means employed by the "Christian" Allies of WW II and their masters behind the scene, and by those "Believers" who—however more or less successfully—tried to impose their brand of belief on the minds of our disbelieving White ancestors—Und bist Du nicht willig, so gebrauch' ich Gewalt! —Ed., Liberty Bell].

But what a distortion of truth. And, what a distortion of Christianity [Sorry, our glasses are neither of the rose-colored variety nor are they out of focus; hence we are unable to detect any distortion between what is going on in the "Holy Land" and the "Word of God." —Ed., Liberty Bell], too, is this Israeli state which was conceived in atheism, based on materialism, nurtured by anti-Semitism, led by Marxism, ruled by chauvinism, and relies on naked aggression and militarism!

'SUPPORT OF FIFTY MILLION'!

After a personal phone call from Begin, following Israel's bombing of the Iraqi nuclear installation, Jerry Falwell urged 80,000 American preachers associated with the Moral Majority to spread the message: "To stand against Israel is to stand against God!"

And in later 1981, Begin was interviewed by a panel of Jewish reporters. The question was raised about errosion of support for Israel as a result of its recent activities. Begin was able to assure the reporters, "We have many friends; we have the Christians of America."

On a previous occasion, Begin said that he had the support of fifty million American Christians! Is it any wonder that Zionist spokesmen are today openly boasting that they have succeeded in changing the entire thinking in the Roman Catholic Church, and that they are responsible for the Pope's encyclical absolving Jews of guilt in the death of Jesus, and for the discarding of the Catholic teaching in the past that the Jewish exile and dispersion was a divine punishment for the denial of the Mesiah-ship of Jesus?

Is it any wonder that Zionist spokesmen are also saying that the wheel of clerical opinion in the Christian world has now turned full cycle and "Christianity's indebtedness" to Ju daism is now a "dominant theme" in Christian thinking?

Is it any wonder that the America of today—the so-called leader of the West and the "free world"—is today dominated by, manipulated by, and subservient to Israel and international Jewry—with little or no hope of justice for the Arab and Palestinian peoples to come from the corrupted and gutless American leadership of today?

Is it any wonder that the silence of Christian leaders in America and in the West over the atrocities committed in Lebanon and the Middle East, presumably by "God's Chosen People," has become quite deafening?

FAR OVER TO THE LEFT

Is it any wonder, then, that we find so many Christian leaders in America and the West, together with their followers, far over to the left in matters of politics and economics; why we find them urging drastic, revolutionary, social change with demands identical in pattern with the Communist-Zionist programme; why they are marching shoulder-to-shoulder with Communists and Zionists in the battle for de-segregation in White Communities; and why, together with Communists and Zionists, their activities are serving to undermine the historic Christian and constitutional structure of Western nations?

This they have been doing, and are doing, notwithstanding the fact that the first tenet of Communism is atheism, and that atheistic Communism is opposed to every tenet of historical Christianity.

They all seem totally unconcerned that Christian and Western ideas, ideals and concepts throughout the world are being pushed from a central guiding position in education, philosophy, ethics, social reforms, and culture.

They seem to be totally unaware that Christian teachings, standards, and values are being relegated to the periphery of men's minds, and being submerged and ridiculed more than at any time in the history of the Church.

These political "Christians" simply fail to realise that all this is more disastrous for Protestantism than for any other form of Christianity because Protestantism is either an imperious, personal spiritual force connecting man's individuality with a holy God—or else it is a farce.

JUDEO-CHRISTIAN HERITAGE HOAX

These deformers and secularisers of historic Christianity, together with their dupes [dupes—in the writer's opinion—are, of course, those who do their work in strict conformity with Yahweh's instructions in his "Jewish Book of Fairy Tales." We are sure the writer is not referring to Christians who believe in the content of the Old and New Testaments, but not really; in the veracity of "God's Word", but not really every word of it —Ed., Liberty Bell], abound in Societies of Jews and Christians which are spearheading the grotesque and fantastic "Judaeo-Christian heritage" hoax.

The phrase "Judaeo-Christian heritage" implies that present-day Judaism and Christianity emanated from the same spiritual source and share similar characteristics and traditions [Well, they do—in many ways! And, why shouldn't they? Followers of both "religions" presumably pray to the same God, and acknowledge his infinite wisdom, don't they? —Ed, Liberty Bell].

This suggestion is deliberately misleading—it is also fatuous nonsense. More important, it is a brazen, sacreligious affront to Jesus Christ, the founder of Christianity.

Christianity is based upon the teachings of Jesus Christ. It has no kinship with the religion practised by the Jews of Jesus' time, the religion of the Pharisees that Christ denounced and condemned, time and time again.

There is no truth in the presumption that Jews and Christians can be hyphenated, that Christianity and Judaism share common foundations in a common culture, that they are two forms of the same belief.

Christianity has its roots in God—a God which the Jews of today deny [Sorry, the Jews of today deny only ONE THIRD of the Christians' triune God! —Ed, Liberty Bell], when they deny His Son.

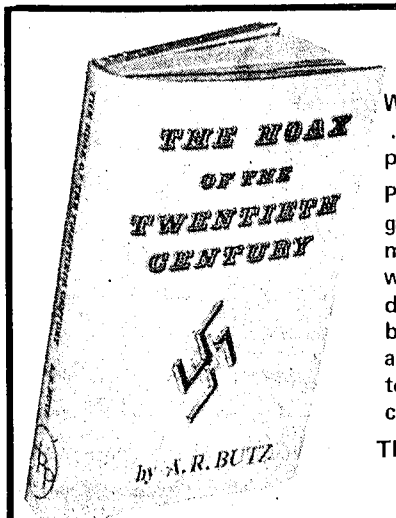
The confusion in the minds of Christians concerning fundamentals of Jewish faith is totally unwarranted and unjustified and would not exist if the Christian clergy in America and the West today did not wilfully aid and abet these deceptions.

DEFORMATION FAR ADVANCED

The deformation of historic Christianity by the present Christian leadership in the United States and in the West, and its secularisation into a form of Jewish faith, is now far advanced.

That these Christian leaders are today quite unwilling and quite incapable of raising their voices against the atrocities, murders, and massacres [That would be like calling the kettle black! —Ed., Liberty Bell] committed by Israel and her allies in Beirut and Lebanon reveals the extent to which the deformation of historic Christianity has already taken place [Please! Let's not talk of a deformation of historic Christianity! In its murderous march through history, "historic Christianity" left, in her path of destruction, many more millions dead, and crippled—physically and mentally—, than Judaism ever did! —Ed , Liberty Bell].

Clearly, the time has come for Christians in America and the West, who see their Christian faith "withering on the vine," firstly to call for an accounting from the leadership of their churches which, on the record to date, have proved themselves totally bankrupt in both spiritual and moral courage with respect to the collectivist-totalitarian barbarism which threatens to engulf the whole world; and, secondly, the time has come for Christians to press the need for the whole Jewish question—and its allied questions of political Zionism, Judaism, the Talmud, and Jewish ethnocentrism—to be opened up to free discussion and enquiry—in just the same way that Western man's customs, his traditions, his nationalism [debauched by an Oriental religion, we might add! —Ed., Liberty Bell] and Christian faith have since the end of the last war been subjected to the fierce and unremitting glare of public scrutiny, and subversion, by World Jewry itself. □



HELP US
SPREAD THE TRUTH!

THE "HOLOCAUST" —
FACT OR FICTION?

Were six million Jews really gassed . . . or has a colossal hoax been perpetrated on the world?

Professor Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6 million Jews during WW II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
$6.00 plus $1. for postage & hdlg.
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

FUNNY MONEY

AN INDICTMENT OF OUR GOVERNMENT

Hans Schroeder, Canada

Most people in this country of ours are suffering under exorbitant interest rates and from inflation. I said MOST and not ALL, because some are able to keep up or even gain with rising costs while a few make enormous profits through the pauperization of the general public.

Either our government is ignorant of the functions money has to perform in commerce and national economics, in which case it is unfit to govern and should resign, or it plays a deliberate part in the theft of our homes through usurious interest rates and in the surrender of our national wealth to international financiers, in which case it should be impeached and courtmartialed for treason.

Now, I can see that the ordinary citizen never gives much more thought to money except how to earn it and to keep his bills paid, to save a little toward the next car or piece of furniture, and to afford a few little luxuries to make life more pleasant. But from a Prime Minister, a Minister of Finance, a Governor of the Bank of Canada with scores of economic advisors, I could not accept a plea of ignorance.

There are thus two possibilities:

1. They are blackmailed into silent toleration and support of the robber barons gnawing at our wealth. In this case they would be cowards for not coming to the people for support in an all out fight against the forces destroying our nation, or

2. They are willing partners in the theft of our properties and our impoverishment. Government for or against the people?

It is the right of a sovereign nation to coin and issue its own money, and it is its duty to govern the flow of it. Yes, issue money into existence which would be free of interest and which would only cost paper, ink, and labor to print. But, instead, our government borrows money into existence, the how and from whom they never explain. Except for some oil-rich countries, I do not know of any country without staggering national debts, be it the U.S.A., Britain, France, West Germany, or any other country you wish to name. Whom do they owe these billions or trillions? Savings Bond holders? No. They only make up an insignificant fraction of this debt. Lending to each other? Then assets would cancel liabilities and there would be no debt. But also, why lend and then borrow your own money back? There IS something rotten in the State!

The people are educated to ideas that are known to be wrong, the truth is suppressed The book Money Creators, by Getrud Coogan, is forbidden in Canada; the involvement of international finance in the creation of wars, inflation, depressions, in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, etc., are conveniently overlooked when teaching history and economics.

Many good books, true books, have been written about money and financial powers, but you will not find them in bookstores or libraries. How many of these so-called economic and financial experts have read them, or even heard of them?

MONEY AND WEALTH

Money is not wealth! You cannot eat it, you cannot wear it, and it will not give you shelter in rain or cold. What, then, is money?

Although I could say many things about money and its rightful role in human society, I must of necessity be brief. This, of course, will oversimplify the issue, for which I ask your forgiveness.

Money is the means of exchange of one man's labor against the labor of others. Not for goods? Yes, for goods themselves are the product of labor. The country's wealth is equal to the total value of goods available. Wealth, therefore, is a variable. Food is eaten, coats wear out, and houses and cars depreciate. But as goods are consumed they are replenished by new production. The money in circulation must equal the value of goods available for sale. Increased production must be balanced with increased money supply, otherwise the goods sit useless in some warehouse, the factories lay off their workers, and the needs of many people remain unfilled.

Money that makes money is the tool to enslave people. Money has never produced anything, nor has anybody ever seen a dollar bill milking a cow, a five dollar bill laying bricks, a ten sport operating a machine, or a piece of paper marked $100 perform surgery. So why should money make more money?

Since home and mortgage are of prime concern to most of us these days, we shall take a closer look at this subject. The value of a house or other major object far exceeds the value of one week or one month of our labor. We therefore have two choices:

1. To accumulate sufficient value of our labor in the form of money in a savings account to cover the full price of the house, or
2. To pay part in already earned savings (down payment) and the balance in future labor (mortgage).

As we saw before, money does not produce anything and, therefore, should not earn interest either. We should not get interest for our money in the bank, but also should not have to pay interest for the money we borrow, except for a fee (labor) to the institution for safekeeping, making the collections and maintaining these accounts. This concept may sound strange to present philosophy but is nevertheless the only right way. Money sitting in the bank and not borrowed by somebody else represents unsold products, which requires additional labor in the form of handling, building and building upkeep. The products warehoused are subject to loss of value through spoilage (most foods have limited shelf life), obsolescence (change of styles, newer designs, etc.), and damage from various causes. This, of course, does not eliminate the necessity to store food for the winter, maintain spare parts inventories, and to have the stores stocked with merchandise. But, then, we generally do not spend our entire paycheck the minute we get it but have to stretch it until the next pay day.

Although much more could be said about money, interest, the value of the individual's labor, industry and commerce, I only want to touch on one more subject equally on the mind of most of us: INFLATION.

INFLATION

The inflation we have experienced so far is nothing compared with the inflation that raged in many European countries in 1922/1923. As a rather crude example we may envision the postage on a first class letter climbing from $0.10 to $100,000,000.00 (one hundred million) over a period of 15 months. We must realize that inflation and depressions are not caused by God or nature but are man-made by international money powers who reap huge profits out of the impoverishment of ordinary citizens with their manipulations.

Imagine you sold your home five years ago for $60,000, took a $5,000 downpayment, and gave $55,000 open first mortgage for the balance. Amortized over 25 years, the purchaser has hardly paid $2,000 to $3,000 of the principal. If European style inflation were to hit tomorrow, you could be paid off with the value of a loaf of bread and you could not refuse to accept the payment since it was an open mortgage.

In the present scheme the methods have changed but the players remain the same.

Assuming a country is completely self-sufficient to meet all its citizens' needs and price is related to labor extended for the respective product, there are some natural reasons why prices could move up or down. Again, we do not look at the individual here, but view things from a wider perspective. Poor weather conditions yield the farmer a smaller crop than the previous year although he may have expended the same or even a greater amount of labor. This must increase the cost of farm products until a better harvest allows the prices to drop back to a more normal level. As depletion of oil fields and mines forces exploration and exploitation of resources into less accessible areas with perhaps lower yields, the cost of oil and ore goes up in relation to the greater number of man-hours needed to bring them to market. Conversely, technology and industrialization increases the output per labor-hour and, therefore, should reduce the price of consumer products.

Other factors are the relations of productive labor vs. non-productive and idle labor, excess profit taking, taking wealth out of the country, foreign ownership, etc.

A free economy with equitable distribution of wealth is possible, but only under a government that serves honestly all its citizens. □

FOR MY LEGIONARIES

Salut je ai eu merg spre marea biruinta legionara. Corneliu Z. codreanu 1938

The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, — perhaps the oldest anti-communist movement in the world, still alive — was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. FOR MY LEGIONARIES (353 pp., pb. $8.00), Codreanu's stirring work is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that the rapidly deteriorating political conditions will preclude a second edition, and FOR MY LEGIONARIES will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored THE SUICIDE OF EUROPE by Prince D. Sturdza; the idendity of those who masterminded Romania's takeover and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.)

THE ANTI-HUMANS by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00), describes what was done to the young men whom Codreanu inspired, when, seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian 'experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. THE ANTI-HUMANS is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget ("a sequel to Orwell's 1984"—R.S.H.; "a searing expose of red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J.App).

No Anti-Communist library should be without these two companion books! Order your copies from L.B. Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270. today!

ATTENTION PAMPHLETEERS!
Here are two useful stamps for you!

$4.50 per stamp
$0.50 postage

COMMUNISM IS JEWISH!

Order from: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270

Index 1982

JANUARY, Vol. 9 — No. 5
Jewish Judge Claims Some Good in Third Reich—3; A Lie, Well-Stuck To, Can Beat the Truth—4; Postscript on Begin—5; Letters to the Editor—6; Teutonic Unity—11; In Response to Professor Oliver—21; German Economic Policy 1933—1945—23; Subverting World Plutocracy: The Significance of the Sadat Assassination—43; Can We Still Say God?: A Correction by Prof. Oliver—51; The Baptists and the Jews—53; Motivation—55; A Tall Tale—56; Tolerance—57; The Truth About Dachau Concentration Camp—59.

FEBRUARY, Vol. 9 — No. 6
Killing Kennedy—3; Social Welfare in Germany 1933-1945—13; Why All This Hypocrisy About Race—52; When Respectability Failed—57.

MARCH, Vol. 9 — No. 7
Belief in Odin—3; 'Old Time Religion' Gaining Ground Among U.S. Patriots—5; Salubrious Living—13; The Great Assassination Plot—16; Wordsof a Madman?—24; White National Resistance Movement—28; The Damned Race—35; "Whoever Opposes the Jew is Dead!"—41; Letters to the Editor—43.

APRIL, Vol. 9 — No. 8
The Great Freeze—1; Exchange of Communications Between the President of the United States and the Chancellor of the German Reich, April 1939—5; Letters to the Editor—58.

MAY, Vol. 9 — No. 9
Our Race and Jew Capitalism—1; Exposing the Holohoax—7; The Uses of Religion, by Prof. Oliver—13; Letters to the Editor—51.

JUNE, Vol. 9 — No. 10
Was the United States Created a Christian Nation?—1; The Six Million: More Fun with Numbers—8; A Note in Behalf of Historical Integrity*—9; Letters to the Editor—13; A New Religion?—17; The NRA: Who's Afraid?—23; Facts re. Polish Casualties—31.

JULY, Vol. 9 — No. 11
Civilization and Barbarism—1; Letters to the Editor—3; An Open Letter to the Jews (And Those Who Wish They Were)—7; The German Labor Service 1933-1945—11;

AUGUST, Vol. 9 — No. 12
More of the Other Side—1; Sabbath Superstition—9; Letters to the Editor—7; The U.S.A.: A Melting Pot?—16.

SEPTEMBER, Vol. 10 — No. 1
The Coming Religious Revolution—1; Onward Aryan Warriors!—3: Facing Middle East Realities*—11; 'Populism' and 'Elitism', by Prof. Oliver, Part I—17; Injustice at Nuremberg—51; Random Thoughts—55; Some Embarrassing Reminders—58;

OCTOBER, Vol. 10 — No. 2
Superstition and Gullibility: The Achilles Heel of the White Race*—1; Letters to the Editor—7; 'Populism' and 'Elitism', by Prof. Oliver, Part II—13; Gullibility Rating Quiz*—56; In the Name of the White Race: A Declaration of Independence from Jewish Tyranny*—59.

NOVEMBER, Vol. 10 — No. 3
A Few Obvious Questions we Would Like Christians to Explain with Some Sensible Answers & Why We Indict Christianity so Strongly*—1; Letters to the Editor—5; 'Populism' and 'Elitism', by Prof. Oliver, Part II Conclusion,—7; At a Cost of Only Seven Lives—55.

DECEMBER, Vol. 10 — No. 4
The Real Jesus—1; Letters to the Editor—11; Russia, Israel and the U.S.A.*—25; An Appeal to Sanity—41; Murder and Massacre in Lebanon: The Lessons—45; Funny Money—55; Index 1982—59.

*Available as Reprint—Available as pamphlet or book—Back issues available.

Yuletide Greetings

AT THIS TIME OF THE YEAR
WE PAUSE TO SAY THANK YOU TO OUR MANY LOYAL
SUBSCRIBERS AND SUPPORTERS
ACROSS THE GLOBE.

HAPPY YULETIDE AND A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR!

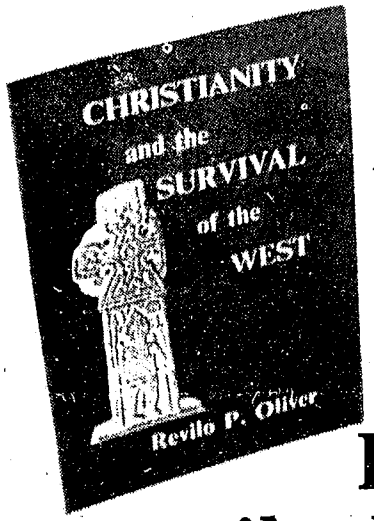
WITH DEEP APPRECIATION
GEORGE E. DIETZ



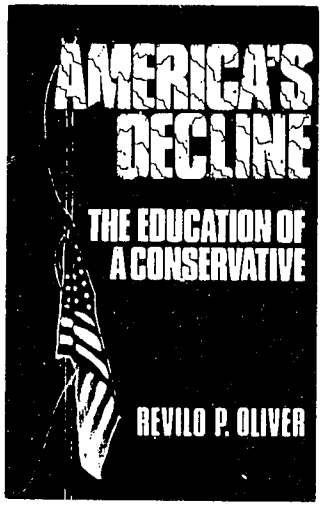
Will the end of our religion mean the end of our race?

A Great Iconoclast Details the Causes and Consequences of the Religious Disintegration of Western Man

Quality paperback, 84 pp. — $4.00 plus 65 cents for postage & handling
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM "AMERICA'S DECLINE"

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

376 pp., pb. $8.50
plus $1 for post. & hdlg.

ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

The Liberty Bell

SINGLE COPY $1.75

The Resurrection of Donald Day

page 27

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

FIMBULVETR IS HERE, page 1; LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, page 8; WORLD JEWRY DECLARED WAR ON GERMANY LONG BEFORE GERMANY TOOK ACTION AGAINST THE JEWS, page 9; ZIONISTS DO PROTEST TOO MUCH, page 15; 'LIBERALS' AND THEOLOGIANS, page 23; THE SIX MILLION LIE, page 47.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

VOL. III — NO. 5 — JANUARY 1982

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

Fimbulvetr Is Here

by
Our London Correspondent

Winter is a-commin' in, but that not why intelligent Britons are shivering these days. They have felt in their hearts the chill that men were fabled to feel when they were touched by the shadow of the wings of the Angel of Death.

The series of articles by Brian James in the Daily Mail, beginning on the 29th of November, did not disclose anything that could not have been known—was not known—before. But information that anyone could find—if he looked hard enough—in the columns of official statistics or in obscure paragraphs in specialized magazines assumes momentous significance when it is spread over the pages of one of our largest newspapers. And James put into shocking print the conclusions that the few who saw the truth before were too nice to put into words.

Returning from his extended tour of Farther Asia, he began by quoting a British business man who has spent the greater part of his life in the Orient: "If you are not yellow and hungry for work, you've got until about the year 2000 to find yourself another planet." And James made that clear message even more explicit. If you are a member of the White race and live long enough, your chances of being able to eat eighteen years from now are rather slim. There are no other inhabitable planets in our solar system.

James was addressing us, who live in the Britain that once was Great, but he was speaking to our race as a whole when he foretold "the collapse of the Earth as a white man's world by the year 2000." And he needed to cite only one simple statistic: in 1982, the industrial production of Farther Asia will be three times the total production of all the nations of Europe and of North America.

That fact makes one understand the reports of the occasional business men who returned from Japan and spoke hurriedly, as though they were saying something improper, of a visit to a Japanese factory that was running all night and in total darkness. The only rays of light in the whole building came from the tiny pilot lights on the console, where a computer kept watch and would sound the alarm if anything went wrong and required human attention. The factory was staffed entirely by robots, which are tireless, need no rest or holidays, never squawk about "working conditions," and ask no wages except raw materials and electricity, none of which is wasted on illumination. The robots were either manufacturing parts to be assembled by other robots, or were assembling the work that other robots had done. And they were unquestioningly loyal to the race that created them. They were totally immune to the poisons that Mordecai, alias Marx, and other Jews injected into our blood-stream.

Japan now has 100,000 robots working in her factories and will have 10,000,000 of them by 2000. The uncomplaining and mechanically perfect workmen are not concentrated in vast factories, as you might suppose. Japanese factories are no larger than they need to be. The plant, shown in one of James's photographs, in which automobiles are put together on an assembly line by robots, is necessarily large, but it uses components made in many small plants. Japan has attained the dispersal of industry of which one sometimes hears idle talk in the West. Many a peasant, whom you may see toiling at back-breaking labour in his fields not far from his tiny cabin, which is srcupulously clean but furnished with such Spartan austerity that one of our wogs or niggers would refuse to live in it, also has a shed in which a robot is working for him. And he works in his field, from dawn to dusk, because he knows that Japan must economize, must spend as little as possible on imported foodstuffs, until her industrial supremacy makes it possible to have such work done by the lower races, such as the English and Americans. And there you have the explanation of Mongolian superiority.

A Korean professor told James quite bluntly that the West has become what the East was two centuries ago, lands to be exploited by the more advanced nations. We can no longer compete, and we must simply make up our minds to get out of all heavy industry, steel, ships, automobiles, complex machinery, and the like; all that is left for us is the kind of work in which a great deal of hand labour is necessary, such as truck gardening, picking fruit, and similar work, since textiles, which are being abandoned by the more advanced countries, will be taken up by other Asiatic nations.

In the headline of his second article, James asks the obvious question, "Will we be the coolies of the 21st Century?" There is no comforting answer to that question.

In Japan it is simply taken for granted that the West is finished, except as a source of the raw materials they need. A Japanese business man, in a jovial mood, boasted, "We will use the United States as our grain bowl, and Australia as our mines." When reminded of the existence of Europe, he thought of a use for it: "That will be our boutique." Some Englishmen, no doubt, could be used as navvies and chars, perhaps even as shepherds and as commissionaires in the shops in which the rich of other races will purchase fashionable trifles made in Japan, but the great majority of our Anglo-Saxons will obviously be redundant.

We may be certain of one thing. When the collapse comes, illusions will not be sustained by talk. In the impoverished Europe of the future, there will be no food for useless mouths, whether of White men or of the multitudinous parasites they now so happily foster. He who would eat will have to work—and work at whatever job, be it ever so menial and tiring, that may be offered him.

In his forecast of the Americans' future, the candid Japanese was thinking of much more than the fact that, according to the best reports from that country, Japanese corporations are taking over the firms that market grain and are buying up the land of which the American government is making it impossible for White farmers to retain ownership. As a discreetly unnamed diplomat frankly told James, the Japanese now think of themselves as a Master Race, genetically superior to the White barbarians. They doubtless think of our race as destined for the status of the Ainu, the degenerate and mongrelized descendants of the Caucasian race that inhabited the Nipponian islands before the Mongolian ships crossed the Sea of Japan. The Japanese treated the Ainu much as we treated the aborigines when we occupied North America. Now the Ainu, indolent, shiftless, drunken, hairy, and dirty, but still perceptibly white, are kept on reservations on which they eke out a living by hunting and fishing, earning enough to buy from their Yellow masters the cheap trinkets of which they are fond. But since the Japanese have no silly sentimentality about the aborigines whom they displaced, the Ainu, unlike the Indians of North America, are now dwindling to extinction.

If the Ainu ever knew how to write, they have long forgotten such useless culture and they have no history. Japanese annals tell us that long ago the White men were, at least, courageous fighters, but now they are resigned and lazy pacifists, spiritually akin to the young derelicts who, in Britain and the United States, live on the degrading bounty of the "welfare" state and perpetually demonstrate for "world peace" and "human rights" for everyone without working. That, no doubt, is why the Japanese, as James tells us, delight in watching on their television the antics of our rabble and the proofs of our degeneracy.

James quotes the statistics that measure the extent to which the Japanese and their Mongolian pupils have taken away the markets in our own country, producing and selling to us most of the clothing, boots, shoes, bicycles, motor cycles, automobiles, machine tools, computers and other electronic devices, cameras, typewriters, and the other things that we can still buy by spending, in effect, our dwindling savings from our past. The once universal supremacy of British industry has shrunk to a few things, such as Rolls Royce automobiles, which, by combining snob-appeal with honest manufacture, can still command a small market at absurdly high prices, but no one doubts the ability of the Japanese to take even that market from us, if they had time to spare for such trifles. And the terrible truth is that the Japanese have taken our markets not merely because they can undersell us even after shipping their goods half-way around the globe, but because their manufactured products are better, of higher quality, than any comparable items that we could produce at home, even if our people were willing to pay a reasonable premium to "buy British."

America is in no better shape. An American informs me that when he investigated good-quality clothing for sale in department stores, he found that 27 out of 29 items were manufactured in Asia. And much machinery that still appears to have been made in the United States really consists of Japanese components, the American "manufacturer" having supplied only the casing and his name, and it generally happens that the resulting product is not quite so good as the ones the Japanese market under their own names.

All this should occasion no surprise. In 1968, the eminent Louis Rougier, in Le génie de l'Occident, pointed out that by any objective standard the Japanese are a superior race. That was proved by their prompt recovery from the military defeat and economic prostration they suffered in 1945. A nation's ability to survive and expand at the cost of others is the only objective proof of superiority. It is quite true that the Japanese took their technology from the witless Aryans, but that is merely another proof that they are an ascendant people whereas we are declining, and now that they have our technology, they are improving it as we no longer can.

As Rougier saw, the superiority of the Japanese lies in the fact that they are a racially conscious and racially homogeneous nation. Like all healthy and viable societies, theirs is classless in the sense that they have not been infected by the Jewish technique for destroying a people by destroying their racial cohesion. There are, of course, enormous differences in rank and wealth in Japan, but the entire population is united in determination to make their nation ever greater and more powerful. In Japanese industry, the meanest employee is as eager to cut costs and increase efficiency as British and American industrial engineers would be if they did not know that it is a losing game in nations in which the sullen louts of Labour have their gangs to gobble up every increase in efficiency that may be made over their opposition.

James gives examples, doubtless selected for shocking contrasts, of the vast and highly significant difference between the attitude of Japanese employees, who think of themselves as part of a great national effort to which they eagerly contribute to the best of their ability, and the anti-social sabotage of British industry by British workmen, whose sullen resentment of other Britons and whose urge to exploit and harm their employers at every opportunity has priced our country out of world markets. Regarding work as an evil forced on them by an unjust society, and having attained political power through the gangs called labour unions and a foolish extension of the franchise, the unionized working class constantly demands ever more pay for ever less work, pressing toward realization of their ambition to loaf all of the time at the expense of the middle class, which the "welfare" state is bleeding to death by the Communist device of a graduated income tax. In Britain and the Western world generally, the "labour movement" is an insuperable obstacle to a viable economy, and the savings of the society it exploits will soon be consumed and exhausted. James asks again the pertinent and chilling question, which body of workers, the Western or the Oriental, will have jobs—will be able to eat—in the year 2000?

There is an appalling difference of economic quality between the two peoples. The English slob, when he has escaped from the job he has shirked to the best of his ability, spends the money he has extorted, rather than earned, on alcohol, childish games, and vulgar or brutish amusements.

The Japanese workman is probably home in his tiny and scantily furnished room or apartment, studying to improve his technical knowledge and skill, often with the aid of an expensive teaching computer in which he has invested his savings.

James could have mentioned another and even grimmer contrast. As everyone knows, the average intelligence of both British and Americans, as measured by I.Q. tests, has been steadily declining in the last fifty years. It now stands almost ten points below the Japanese average. The figures, remember, show averages. They do not show that there are individual Japanese more intelligent than individual Englishmen or Americans. What they show is not that more Japanese are highly intelligent, but that fewer are stupid. The Japanese average is not brought down, as is the White average, by a large segment of the population that falls below mediocrity in mentality.

That is a racial fact that has long been known. For example, in 1912, when the Jews still permitted Aryans to study ethnology, Ellsworth Huntington, in the Journal of Racial Development, observed that "the Japanese are . . . remarkable for a high average of mental development rather than for individuals of exceptional brilliancy." That, of course, is still true and the gap will constantly widen as Western nations lavish their dwindling resources to multiply the least intelligent strata of their White populations as well as on coddling, subsidizing, and accelerating the reproduction of the masses of wogs and niggers that batten on them. The very presence of such disgusting parasites in White nations is the best proof of how low the level of their intelligence has already fallen.

The high average of Japanese intelligence is shown by the rigorous exclusion of racial aliens from their country. The racial solidarity of the Japanese was also impressively demonstrated by what happened in the early 1950s, when the Japanese perceived the need of averting overpopulation of their islands after the losses in war had been made up. The rate of births promptly declined to the optimum level throughout the whole society, regardless of rank and income, and has remained constant ever since. What is more, as D. R. Vining, Jr. has shown in the Summer 1982 issue of The Mankind Quarterly (now published in the United States), the Japanese legislation is eugenic in its practical effects, favoring the reproduction of the more intelligent. Japan, needless to say, is not afflicted with con men of the "Moral Majority" type in the United States, who pick the pockets of the simple-minded by yelling that Jesus wants all of his sheep to breed like lemmings.

It is obvious which part of the world is rising and which part is subsiding. But what is to be done about it? The best our politicians can think of is to retreat behind tariff walls to force our people to buy inferior products at continually inflated prices. Everyone can see where that game would end.

* * *

There is an underlying historical fact that everyone knows and no one mentions. The Oriental achievement was made possible by Western technology—the technology that we, with simpering sentimentality, gave them, welcoming them to our universities and laboratories. It is true that we are now belatedly trying to keep a few little scraps for ourselves. The New Scientist has been reporting the success of the Orientals in stealing large quantities of the computer chips of which the manufacture is largely concentrated in the region of California that is called "Silicon Valley." Some of the White men who carried out the thefts and their Japanese employers were arrested, but the same weekly on the 7th of October reported that the attempts to prosecute them in the American courts are failing and the "theft cases" are being dropped. It would be futile, anyway, to lock the stable of a horse we gave away long ago.

No one—not even Christians and other internationalists—disputes the fact that our technology was entirely the creation of our civilisation, of the spiritual élan of our race, the imperious will-to-power that distinguishes from all others the culture that Spengler calls Faustian.

The unique, the prodigious development of our technology in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, when our best minds were progressively freeing themselves from addiction to the stupefying drugs of superstition, gave us proof and assurance of our racial superiority. And that technology and the disciplined efficiency of our fighting men made our race the masters of the earth—and we relaxed in the comfortable confidence that the entire globe would forever be a White man's world.

That blythe euphoria should have been troubled when the Japanese in 1877 gave the first indication that Mongolians could emulate our industrial power. Nothing could have been more obvious than that Western superiority depended on Western technology, and that the future of our race depended entirely on our ability and willingness ruthlessly to maintain a monopoly of it.

The first stirrings of Japan, terribly significant as they were, were overlooked in our heedless euphoria, but there soon came a time when the dullest could no longer fail to see the handwriting on the wall. In 1904-1905 Japan defeated the Russian Empire. She owed her epochal victory primarily to her enormous advantage in logistics, the financial and diplomatic support given her by the Jews throughout the world, the fanatical determination of her soldiers to defeat the hated White race at any cost to themselves, and the superiority of the Japanese warships, most of which had been built in Britain, with a few coming from other European countries.

Far more ominous than the Japanese victory was an event that accompanied it. During the war, Japan laid down in her own shipyards and built the Aki class of battleships, which were markedly superior in tonnage and fire-power to the Lord Nelson class that Britain was building at the same time. When we developed the dreadnaught-type of battleship, the Japanese promptly imitated it, but their Kawachi class was larger and more heavily armed than our contemporary Neptunes. The whole world could see that the Yellow race was taking over and improving White technology.

Some very bright individuals read the handwriting on the wall and even some whom we do not think of as very bright: Kaiser Wilhelm II and Theodore Roosevelt spoke of the Yellow Peril, but their warnings were lost in the babble of do-gooders and the frenzy of the suicidal war of 1914-1918, which, remember, was not a war for rational objectives, but a crusade for "democracy" and other figments of the imagination.

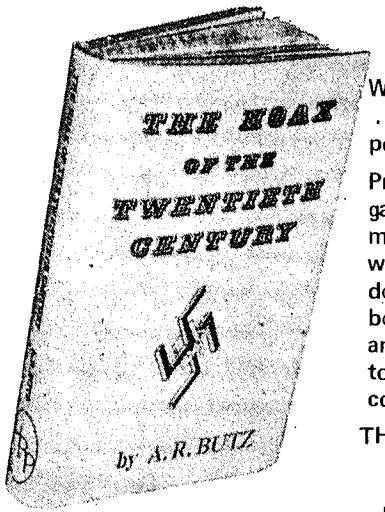
Theoretically, we still have a chance—but only theoretically. If you were to mention in public what needs to be done, a pack of Jews' well-trained Aryan curs would hunt you down, barking and biting, and you would have to run for your life.

The dire fact is that the Aryan nations, rotted by Christianity, humanitarianism, and "democracy," the mental diseases of our race, have lost not only the will-to-power, but even the will-to-live. They are coming more and more to acquiesce in the doom that hangs over their children. They are even hastening that doom by subsidizing the prolific races that want and need the space they still occupy on an overcrowded planet.

So the West has now come to the Fimbul-winter, the winter that is followed by no spring—the unending winter in which men can live for a while only by consuming the reserves they accumulated in earlier years. After that, the Götterdämmerung.

There is nothing in our future to dismay Christians, of course. They may be killed in riots or starve, but when their bodiless ghosts float up into the clouds, where Jesus is waiting for them, their Saviour will pat their impalpable heads and say, "Well done, my good and brainless sheep."



HELP US
SPREAD THE TRUTH!

THE "HOLOCAUST" —
FACT OR FICTION?

Were six million Jews really gassed . . . or has a colossal hoax been perpetrated on the world?

Professor Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6 million Jews during WW II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
$6.00 plus $1. for postage & hdlg.
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

Letters to the Editor

Dear Herr Dietz: 7 December 1982

I received some back issues of The Liberty Bell and other literature from you today, and I want to take this opportunity to o say Thanks. I will surely pass it around to the other inmates to read.

I wish I could send a donation and also subscription money. But I am in prison and without funds. Plus, here in Texas we don't get payed for our work. So please forgive me. In the booklist you sent I came across some books that I would very much like to have if you have any that are damaged and can send to me. If not, I will surely understand. . .

Herr Dietz, I know that is a long list [of books] but if you can send only one of them, I will greatly appreciate it. I have been locked away for over five years and I long to read about Adolf Hitler and anything about our Great Beloved Aryan Race.

You are doing a great job, keep it up!Because the Aryan Race needs more like you.

Yours in the struggle for Race and Nation!

Harold C. Hooker II, No. 172104,
Beto 2, Rte. 2, Box 250, Palestine TX 75801

Would any one of our readers care to help out? —Ed.

* * * * *

Dear George: 4 December 1982

Enclosed is $6. in payment for a copy of "My Part in Germany's Fight", by Dr. Joseph Goebbels. I wish you a merry Yuletide and I'd like to tell you that your magazine is a necessary part of our movement. Someday your name will be written in stone and will be revered as one of the few who fought the good fight even in the darkest hour that always precedes the glorious dawn.

With much thanks,
B.H., Texas

* * * * *

Dear George: 10 December 1982

Please refer to The Liberty Bell for Nov. 82 — "Why We indict Christianity so Strongly." This article smells of an angry wild Jew or a person of low intellect. The Bible as we know it — King James was translated mostly by Jews for Jews and twisted for their purpose. The 40 scholars that King James appointed for this job, only one could read a little Greek—none could read Hebrew or Chaldee, so they hired translators on the Mediterrenean—mostly Jews. Has a Jew changed in 2000 years? There are some historical facts and some non-Jew scholars prevailed in the

continued on page 38

CREATIVE CREDO No. 36

Reprinted with the author's permission from The White Man's Bible, Copyright 1981, by Ben Klassen.

WORLD JEWRY DECLARED WAR

ON GERMANY LONG BEFORE GERMANY TOOK ACTION AGAINST JEWS

Lies and Propaganda: Jew's most powerful weapon. Now into the fourth decade after the death of that greatest of all White leaders, Adolf Hitler, the world-wide Jewish network is still pouring out a massive propaganda campaign of poisonous invective against Hitler with a viciousness unexcelled in all the annals of history. Not only are these lies and calumnies directed against Hitler personally, but also against the German people as a whole, just as Jews have directed hate propaganda against the Romans for the last two thousand years. Just as everything Roman was despised, vilified, maligned and slandered, so everything German, and the German image has been relentlessly attacked and besmirched by the Jewish international propaganda network.

Germans Intelligent, Creative. Why this vicious and concentrated outpouring of hatred against the German people and everything German, when these people have demonstrated for centuries some of the most creative contributions to our White civilization?

Germans No. 1 Target. The answers are not hard to find as soon as we face the realization that the overwhelming goal of the Jewish race is the total destruction of the White Race itself. With this in mind we can see that the Germans are still the number one target for the following reasons:

1. Just as in the case of the Romans two thousand years ago, a major Jewish premise in their war against the White Race always has been: destroy the best first.

2. For this same reason the war against the German people as such dates back hundreds of years. We have shown this further in our previous chapter on the unrelenting warfare between the parasitic Jews and their unfortunate victims.

3. The German people being naturally energetic, productive, creative and gifted and residing in the heartland of Europe, were destined to be the natural leaders in Europe. This they would have been, as far back as the early 1600's had the Jews not torn them apart in the fratricidal, suicidal Thirty Years' War (1618-48). As we have shown in NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION, this set the German people back probably two or three hundred years. Despite this setback these energetic people finally recovered their position of incipient leadership after their unification under Bismarck in 1870. Again the Jews intervened and made sure that these resurgent people would again be devastated in World War I, and again in World War II.

4. Under Hitler in the 1930's the German people finally came into their own and were able to get the bloodsucking Jewish parasites off their backs. They also, under Hitler, broke the Jewish financial stranglehold in Germany. (This we expound further in the Chapter on The Federal Reserve).

5. Hitler, for the first time in the history of the White Race clearly articulated the racial idea, and focused worldwide attention on the parasitic and destructive nature of the Jewish network. Since this idea was rapidly taking root in other White countries, the whole Jewish conspiracy was in utmost danger of being blown wide open and being exploded in the face of the Jewish conspirators themselves.

Must Kill the Racial Idea. For all the above reasons, and the last one in particular, the Jews found themselves in a most precarious position and in dire peril of being reduced to oblivion. Time was of the essence. If the idea spread, there would soon be a point of no return.

What to do?

Destroy Germany. The Jews, who understand race and history better than anybody, have had thousands of years of experience in manipulating and destroying races and peoples. They decided they must act fast. They must destroy Germany, they must destroy not only Hitler, but so viciously and relentlessly attack and besmirch the very idea he represented so that (hopefully) no one would ever again revive the racial idea outside the Jewish race itself.

Total War against Germany. They went all out in one of the most frantic, malicious wars of propaganda a gullible and uncomprehending world has ever witnessed.

In short, Judea declared Total War on Germany and Hitler—financially, propaganda-wise, militarily, economically, racially, and in every other aspect that was in their power—and that power as we shall see, was formidable. Before Hitler would, or could, even lift a finger against them, the Jews were ready and wasted no time in launching a massive world-wide campaign against him. To illustrate this obvious fact we are again going to quote the Jews themselves, and their press in a limited sampling. There are volumes of evidence, but these few quotes should illustrate the point conclusively.

Plans laid before Hitler came to power. As early as August 1933, Samuel Untermeyer, president of the World Jewish Economic Federation called together a large congress of Jewish leaders from all over the world to declare war on Germany in the name of the Jews. The meeting was held in Amsterdam, Holland. Upon returning to the United States from that meeting, Untermeyer made a speech on Radio Station WABC (N.Y.) on August 6, 1933 in which he announced that the Jews of The world had declared war on Germany and would starve them to death. This was long before any action of any kind had been taken against any Jew, and six years before military action was initiated in 1939.

White Man Inveigled into War to save Jewish Parasites. "We have been at war with him (Hitler) from the day that he gained power" stated the London Jewish chronicle May 8, 1942 in its "Sermon of the Week."

Rabbi M. Perlzweig, head of the British Section of the World Jewish Congress, speaking in Canada, stated: "The World Jewish Congress has been at war with Germany for seven years." (Toronto evening Telegram, February 26, 1940.)

The Dutch-Jewish paper, Centraal-Blaad Voor Israeliten in Nederland declared on September 13, 1939: "The millions of Jews who live in America, England and France, North and South Africa, and, not to forget, those in Palestine, are determined to bring the war of annihilation against Germany to its final end."

We must remember that at this time (September 13, 1939) the war was less than two weeks old, no concentration camps, no gas chambers, etc., for Jews or anybody else had been set up, or even alleged to be in existence. (The whole "gas chamber" story was nothing but another Jewish lie, as we will see in another chapter.)

The Chicago Jewish Sentinel, on October 8, 1942 declared: "The Second World War is being fought for the defense of the fundamentals of Judaism." Indeed it was. To be more specific, in behalf of the Jews themselves. They knew it, they instigated it, they perpetrated it, they stage-managed it. The naive and gullible goyim, meanwhile, slaughtered each other with a vengeance, not knowing, or not wanting to know, who the real perpetrators, the real war criminals were.

Vladimir Jabotinsky, Jew-communist and founder of the Irgun terrorist organization wrote in the January 1934 issue of Natcha Retch: "The fight against Germany has been carried on for months by every Jewish community, conference, congress, trade organization, by every Jew in the world. There is reason to believe that our part in the struggle will be of general value. We shall let loose a spiritual and material war of the whole world against Germany. Germany's ambition is to become a great nation again, to reconquer her lost territories and colonies. Our Jewish interests on the other hand demand the complete destruction of Germany. The German nation is collectively and individually a danger to us Jews."

Could it be stated more explicitly? Hardly. The facts are plain—Germany and the Germans, Hitler or no Hitler, were and are a threat to the Jewish conspiracy for world domination and their goal to destroy the White Race. Therefore nothing less than the complete destruction of Germany and all things German would satisfy the vicious, implacable Jew.

Hitler offered Hand of Friendship to England. Hitler, whose concern was not only for the Germans, but the White Race as a whole, understood the deadly program of the parasitic Jew. He pleaded in vain with England not to play the Jewish game. Speaking in September of 1939, he said:

"On numerous occasions I have offered the friendship of the German people to England and the English people. My entire policy was built upon the idea of this understanding. I was always rebuffed . . . We know that the British people as a whole cannot be made responsible. It is that Jewish plutocratic and democratic ruling class which hates our Reich."

English Traitors fronted for Jews. On behalf of the non-Jewish ruling class it must be pointed out that those who went along with the Jews were by and large chabez-goi, people like Winston Churchill, traitors who were in the pay of the Jews, or under their control and coercion.

Firm Jewish control over White Nations. So firm was this Jewish control over the British people (as well as the French, Americans, Poles and others) that the Jews were in fact successful in plunging the world into a fraticidal war of destruction on a scale such as the world has never witnessed before. All the White peoples were losers, but the Jews were particularly bent on the destruction of the Germans.

Plans to Exterminate German People. Some of the Jews wanted to exterminate those Germans surviving the destructions of war by sterilization. Theodore N. Kaufman, spelling out the program in the book entitled Germany Must Perish, said:

By Sterilization. "To achieve the purpose of German extinction it would be necessary to only sterilize some 48,000,000—a figure which excludes, because of their limited power to procreate, males over 60, and females over 45 . . ."

By Starvation. Other groups of Jews wanted to exterminate the Germans by starvation. A notorious advocate of the method was Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury in the Roosevelt Administration. The following quotation is from the memoirs of Cordell Hull, who was Secretary of State in the same administration.

"Morgenthau's plan, I added, would wipe out everything in Germany except land, and the Germans would have to live on the land. This meant that only 60 % of the German population could support themselves on the German land, and the other 40% would die."

Germans Looted and Starved. A version of the evil Jewish plan was in fact implemented for a period immediately after the war. Huge amounts of all kinds of machinery, factories, and rolling stock that survived the war were shipped to communist Russia. Viewing all this, Mr. R. R. Stokes, a Labor M.P. in Britian declared at the time:

"Today in Germany, 6 months after our victory, graves are being dug for people not yet dead, people who will die of starvation in the next few months."

Morgenthau Plan. U.S. Senator William Langer of North Dakota said of the Morgenthau plan, and his remarks are entered in the Congressional Record, April 18, 1946:

"Mr. Morgenthau now stands convicted before the conscience of the world as an instigator of systematic annihilation of the German speaking people. The record further proves beyond any question of doubt, that these fanatical and reactionary high priests of hate and vengeance will never be able to defend their conspiracy before the bar of human reason and human decency."

Six Million Swindle Invented. It was only through the opposition of people like Senator Langer who could not stomach the vicious murder conspiracy of the Jewish network that the Jewish program of sterilization of the German people, or the program of starving them to death, or a combination of both, was not carried through. By whipping up hatred about the mythical "six million" to a near frenzy the Jews almost, but not quite, succeeded in their goal of mass murder of the German race.

Destroyed Millions of Whites. Although they did not succeed in achieving that goal, they came close, and did, in fact, through their diabolical machinations achieve the destruction of millions of the best German men, and unleashed a campaign of rape and terror against the German women by means of the Russian Army and American niggers.

* * * * *

Lessons to be Learned. What can we in America learn from this horrible tragedy perpetrated on our White racial brothers? If we have an ounce of brains we should learn a lesson that we must never forget.

1. The Jews are our deadly antagonists. They play for keeps. They exterminate their enemies when the "opportunity" arrives. Such "opportunities" are planned years in advance, centuries in advance. Their program of forever exterminating "the best" of the White Race is relentless, and implacable. We must remember: We are next.

2. No sooner had the Jews crippled the might of a resurgent Germany and brought her to her knees, but they immediately turned their attention to the next victims—Great Britain, the United States, and France, the so-called "winners" of the War.

3. With chabez-goi Winston Churchill and other Jew stooges fronting for them, the Jews quickly dismantled the British Empire, and left the once proud and mighty Great Britain a rapidly declining third rate power, ruined militarily, economically and spiritually. To add insult to injury the Jews then launched a vast program of shipping mud people into England—Pakastanis, Jamaicans, Hindus and other scum and riff-raff from all over the world.

4. France lost Algeria, Indo-China and her other colonies. A reverse migration was set in motion. The niggers and mud people of Algeria flocked into France. Virulent communism again became a major political fact of life.

5. In America the "civil rights" program was unleashed; forced "integration" of schools, housing, armed forces and every other segment of society was imposed upon the American people.

Not only was this achieved by means of a massive and relentless propaganda campaign, but also by force of a whole passel of new laws. If and when the American people resisted, brute force was (and is) used, as for example massive use of 20,000 army troops in forcing integration in Little Rock, Arkansas, and similar brute power again at the University of Mississippi at Oxford.

* * * * *

Our implacable position. Our position as members of the White Race must forever be:

1. The Jews are our deadly enemies. They always have been our mortal enemies and will be as long as they continue to exist.

2. As they have stated in their own literature—they are implacable—nothing we can ever do will ever reconcile them. Their unswerving goal is to weaken the White Race, mongrelize the White Race into a herd of brown zombies and forever enslave them.

3. Our only choice is to fight and overcome them.

4. In such a fight we must be merciless and uncompromising in exposing them, boycotting them, driving them from power, and finally driving them from our territory.

5. In order that we achieve this goal we must first make our White Racial Comrades fanatically conscious of their racial heritage. Every White Man, woman and child must be imbued with a strong racial consciousness.

6. This racial consciousness then must be highly organized and converted into a racial religion, as we have set forth in this book.

7. Our fight against the Jews must be the same ultimate goal as Cato the Elder proclaimed repeatedly in the fight against Carthage—Our battle cry must be: Delenda Est Judaica!

continued on page 47

MUST-READING FOR CONCERNED PATRIOTS:

The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion	$ 1.50
The Secret Driving Force of Communism	$ 2.50
Behind Communism	$ 2.50
Blasting the Historical Blackout	$ 2.00
A Jew Exposes the Jewish World Conspiracy	$ 1.50
The Hoax of the 20th Century	$ 6.00
Auschwitz: An Eyewitness Report	$ 1.50
Gruesome Harvest	$ 4.00
Germany Must Perish!	$ 3.00

For orders under $10., please add $1.; for orders over $10., please add 10% for postage and handling. Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE SOUTH AFRICAN OBSERVER

NOVEMBER, 1982

A Journal for Realists

EDITOR: S.E.D. BROWN
P.O. Box 2401, PRETORIA

Telephone 3-7788

POSTSCRIPT TO BEIRUT MASSACRE

ZIONISTS DO PROTEST TOO MUCH!

ONE OF the most shocking facts of life in the world today is that all questions about Jews, Jewry and that mysterious international force, political Zionism, may not be discussed in any public forum.

But that is not all. Whenever discussions turn to Jewish affairs, leaders in every walk of life, including Christian leaders, abandon all reason, judgment and moral courage—not to mention intellectual integrity.

All discussion of the Jewish Question has been effectively removed from the realm of rational, open discussion, and is today confined to very private groups lest one be suspected of anti-Semitism.

For is not all discussion of Jews and Jewry, ipso facto, anti-Semitism? And is not but one step from anti-Semitism to genocide and, of course, to the "six million"?

DOWNWARD DRIFT OF WEST

The perpetuation of the myth of the "six million" and the ceaseless cry of "anti-Semitism" have also made it impossible to come to grips with the overwhelming race problem—a fact which is accelerating the downward drift of Western nations toward not only anarchy, but the irrecoverable loss of their European culture and racial heritage.

The problem of race today must always be referred to as a legal, constitutional, moral, psychological or sociological problem. Never can the problem be referred to in its real terms, namely as a biological and political problem.

For that, it is uniformly argued by all the "experts" and the "leading thinkers" in the world, is Racism!

And is not "Racism" (that of the White man, but not that of the Black man and Jew) the very hallmark of the "Nazi" and the "anti-Semite," with their concomitant of "genocide"?

Indeed, so intimidated has the West become by the smears of Racism, anti-Semitism and Nazism that the peoples of the West are today cowed into complete silence.

These terms are never defined so that the victim may disagree or defend himself, but are spat out everywhere as the accusation of some vicious

In 1947, the British government offered a

$48,000 REWARD

for the capture of the mass-murderer and sadistic torturer pictured here:

IN 1982, PRESIDENT RONALD REAGAN INVITES THIS BLOODTHIRSTY CRIMINAL TO THE WHITE HOUSE AS AN HONORED GUEST!

MENACHEM BEGIN

WHY?

crime, placing the defendant beyond the pale and presuming automatic condemnation without trial.

CLIMATE OF INTIMIDATION

It is in this climate of intimidation that the story of the "six million" has grown to the rank proportions it has, and the never-ending cry of "anti-Semitism" has become one of the most effective weapons in the Zionist arsenal today.

And how easy has it all been for the past 35 years and more!

Nearly all the communications media in the U.S. and most of it in the other countries of the West, have been completely in the hands of the Zionists, with no one to say them nay—and with any disputant of their "facts" and propaganda being immediately of the "six million" or silenced with the smears of "anti-Semitism."

And not only that. These controllers of the media, with their now perfected blackout and smotherout techniques, are supremely confident that their control of the world's media will continue indefinitely!

ISLAMIC PROPAGANDA CENTRE

It was reliance on their "anti-Semitic" taboo and on the whole climate of intimidation surrounding any rational approach to the Jewish Question which enabled the Executive Director of the Zionist Federation and the President of the Jewish Board of Deputies in South Africa to brand as "blatant acts of anti-Semitism" the distribution of pamphlets by the Islamic Propagation Centre in Durban, which described Menachem Begin as a mass murderer and a sadistic torturer.

The President of the Islamic Propagation Centre, based in Durban, Mr. Ahmed Deedat, said his group had printed 50,000 pamphlets; 15,000 had been distributed in Johannesburg and the remainder nation-wide.

He said that the message of the pamphlets and of the anti-Begin advertisement which had appeared in an Indian Durban weekly newspaper were facts about Menachem Begin's past and about the massacres in the Palestinian camps in West Beirut. He said he had also sent a letter to the British Embassy (its receipt had been confirmed) stating that: "In 1947 the British Government offered a R40,000 reward for the capture of the mass murderer and sadistic torturer, Menachem Begin, now the Prime Minister of Israel."

"We would like to know, in view of the fact that this dangerous criminal's whereabouts are known and he is identified as the Prime Minister, if the offer still stands," Mr. Deedat said.

The cover of the pamphlet featured a cartoon of Menachem Begin.

Mr. Deedat also challenged any Zionist leader to a debate on the "Crimes of Begin." He said the reason for the pamphlets was to "enlighten the Jewish and Christian Communities in this country on the Begin atrocities."

ZIONIST REACTION

The Executive Director of the Zionist Federation, Mr. Herbert Rosenberg, said these pamphlets were "a blatant act of anti-Semitism which will incite racial hatred."

The President of the Jewish Board of Deputies, Mr. Arthur Suzmen, said that the pamphlet was outrageous. "It is connected with the previous anti-Semitic attack in Johannesburg as it is the same motivation that leads to this kind of disgrace," he said.

Rabbi Saul Aranov of Durban described the pamphlet as a vicious anti-Semitic attack "calculated to inflame hostility against the Jewish people."

The Board of Deputies and the Zionist Federation were meeting to discuss this matter, reports said. But so far their findings have not been made public.

In any event, their attempt to intimidate and silence the Moslem community in South Africa in this way, and to stop them from doing the right thing by the Palestinians and their fellow-Moslems in the Middle East, was all part of the vigorous counter-attack by the Israelis and their diehard supporters in South Africa and everywhere—in an all-out attempt to keep the good people of the world confused, intimidated and deflected from doing what they know to be just and right.

BEGIN IN PERSPECTIVE

The battle ahead will be a savage one and is not going to be won unless the good people of the West show a courage and a willingness to face up to Middle East realities which, until now, have been completely lacking.

But just who is this Menachem Begin whom the world at large and the Islamic Propagation Centre in Durban have come to identify as a mass murderer and sadistic torturer.

Menachem Begin grew up in Brest-Litovsk in Soviet Russia. In pre-war Poland he emerged as one of the militant leaders of the violent Revisionist movement founded by Vladim Jabotinsky, and commanded the Betar, the movement's youth organization. With the German invasion of Poland in 1939, Begin escaped to Vilna, then occupied by the Soviet Union, but was arrested. He was released at the end of 1941, and reached Palestine in 1943.

In December of that year, he was appointed commander of the Irgun Zwei Leumi (the Irgun, in short), which, under Begin's command, became one of the most effective, audacious and vicious terrorist underground organozation in modern times.

ATROCITIES AGAINST BRITISH

In 1944, when the Zionists estimated that Britain was going to win the war against Germany, they felt safe to turn on their benefactors, the British, and begin a campaign of terror to break their opposition to the Jewish seizure of the Arab land of Palestine.

In February, the Irgun killed a British police inspector and a constable. In March they killed a further eight British policemen, including the Assistant Superintendent in Jerusalem.

On August 8, they tried, and almost succeeded, in assassinating the British High Commissioner in Palestine, Sir Harold MacMichael, and killed ten British police constables in the process.

On November 1, two of their terrorists from Palestine murdered Lord Moyne, British Resident Minister of State in the Middle East, in Cairo.

And as the war in Europe ended, Irgun produced the slogan: VE Day for the British is D-Day for us."

In 1946, Irgun vastly increased their campaign of murder: killing 69 British soldiers and 28 British policemen (Major R.D. Wilson: Cordon and Search).

KING DAVID HOTEL DYNAMITED

Among their achievements that year were the attacks on April 25 on a military car park at Tel Aviv, where they went into the tents and killed soldiers sleeping in bed; and on July 22 their destruction, by explosives placed in the basement, of the wing of the King David Hotel in Jerusalem occupied by the British Army HQ and the Mandatory Government—and the killing of 92 army personnel.

In December they captured and whipped a major of the 2nd Parachute Brigade and three Sergeants.

Throughout 1947, Irgun enthusiastically continued their "kill the British" campaign. On March 1, they destroyed the Goldsmith Officers' Club in Jerusalem with explosives, killing 13.

On April 18, they attacked No. 61 Field Dressing Station in Nathanya, killing a sentry and blowing up the medical inspection room. On April 20, a bomb was thrown at a Red Cross convalescent depot cinema. On April 22, they attacked the Cairo-Haifa train, killing fifteen soldiers.

BRITISH HOSTAGES HANGED

On July 24, they kidnapped two British army sergeants, Clifford Martin and Mervyn Paice. On July 31, their dead bodies were found hanging from eucalyptus trees in a grove in Nathanya. Their hands were tied behind their backs. Pieces of shirt had been wrapped round their heads. A notice reading: "This is the sentence of Irgun's High Tribunal," was fastened to one body.

The area around was mined, and as one of the bodies was cut down it exploded, having been boobytrapped, and severely wounded a British officer. A few days later, Irgun posted notices in Haifa announcing that Martin and Paice had been hanged as belonging to "The Criminal Nazi-British Army of Occupation."

On September 26, they killed four more British policemen while robbing Barclays Bank, Tel Aviv. On September 29, they killed nine policemen in a bomb attack on Haifa Police Headquarters.

During June 1947, they tried a new atrocity measure. Explosive letters were sent by Irgun to various high British officials, including Prime Minister Attlee, Foreign Secretary Bevin and Winston Churchill, but they were intercepted and rendered harmless.

1948 arrived, and even though it had now been announced that Britain was giving up the Mandate that year, Irgun and allied terrorist organizations in February killed another 57 British soldiers and airmen.

By the time Britain terminated the Mandate in May, 1948, and withdrew her Forces, some 200 British soldiers and 90 British policemen had been done to death by the Jews, almost all in circumstances of coldblooded murder, including shooting in the back, shooting wounded in hospital, and by explosives planted in buildings and on roads. In addition, a considerable number of civilians, including women and children, had been killed in exploded buildings.

RACIAL HATRED FOR 'GOY'

What was the mentality behind this campaign of terrorism, murder and atrocity?

"An Englishman would always be a filthy Goy, who could be killed for this reason alone . . . Later, I saw this biological hatred appear in the course of operations, as in the case of the eighteen-year-old Sabra who, after having fired a burst of sub-machine-gun fire point blank at a policeman, instead of running away, lingered for a long time battering the already cooling body with the butt of his weapon." ("Memoirs of an Assassin," by 'Avner' – Confessions of a Stern Gang killer, Anthony Blond Ltd., London, 1959)

It must be remembered that the atrocities here detailed, and the mentality motivating them, were not simply attributable to a small minority of the Jews in Palestine.

The outrages committed by Irgun and allied Jewish terrorist organizations were committed in collusion with the other and much larger Jewish illegal military organization, Haganah,* which itself participated in outrages. Haganah, in turn, was controlled by the Jewish Agency, the representative Jewish corporate body in Palestine under the Mandate.

The British Colonial Office White Paper on Palestine (Cmd. 6873), 1946, exposed this, quoting intercepted telegrams, which fully involved Ben Gurion.

COUNT BERNADOTTE

The number of British officials, police and soldiers who were shot in the back, blown up or hanged as hostages ran into many hundreds, including Lord Moyne, one of Sir Winston Churchill's colleagues, as well as Count Bernadotte, the U.N.'s mediator, whose murder in Palestine was described as being "just as well planned as the attack on Pearl Harbor."

In short, it was nothing less than violence and atrocity, pure and simple, which finally caused Britain to wash her hands of her responsibilities, and to abandon her "sacred trust" in the Holy Land in 1948, by allowing the Zionists to push them out of Palestine and to dispossess millions of Arabs of their ancestral homelands.

*The recent Israeli Ambassador in South Africa, Mr. I.D. Unna, was a high ranking officer in the Haganah organization.

ATROCITIES AGAINST THE ARABS

The first step of the Zionists was by every kind of outrage to force the British to surrender the Mandate and move out. The second step was then to turn the weapon of atrocity, terror and murder on the Arab population and force them to flee their country.

The following deals briefly with just three instances of their terror campaign against the Arabs, the massacres of Deir Yassin and Qibya and Kafr Kassim.

Menachem Begin, head of Irgun, which, with the co-operation of the Stern Gang and the sanction of Ben Gurion's Jewish Agency, was immediately responsible for the atrocities at Deir Yassin, had this to say to a conference in Tel Aviv on October 28, 1956:

"You Israelis, you should never become lenient if you kill your enemies. You shall have no pity on them until we shall have destroyed their so-called Arab culture, on the ruins of which we shall build our own civilization."

This same Menachem Begin was later to sit in the Israeli Parliament with his collaborator, Ben Gurion, who headed the government, and today he is Prime Minister of Israel!

STORY OF DEIR YASSIN

Here is the story of Deir Yassin. A tale of human suffering and of unpunished—nay, of rewarded—killers. The atrocity must be seen as a part of the coldly calculated blueprint for territorial expansion.

The basic facts are these: On April 10, 1948, the village of Deir Yassin, in the suburbs of Jerusalem, was attacked by Jewish forces who rounded up most of its 600 inhabitants. Having looted everything of value in the village, the Jews next turned their attention to their captives, slaughtering men, women, and children without mercy.

Although the Jewish Agency found it expedient to condemn the crime, those immediately responsible never bothered with this subterfuge, and not only boasted of outrage and its effects, but unhesitatingly admitted that they had acted on orders "from above." This was publicly admitted by Menachem Begin, the leader of Irgun Zwei Leumi, in a press interview in New York on December 28, 1950 (see also his book, "The Revolt").

Here is Menachem Begin's own boastful account of his "heroic" acts at Deir Yassin:

"In Jerusalem as elsewhere, we were first to pass from the defensive to the offensive . . . On the 9th of April, our men, together with an FFI (Stern Group) unit, captured the village of Deir Yassin. One of our tenders, carrying a loud speaker, exhorted in Arabic all women, children and aged to leave their homes and to take shelter on the slope of the hill . . . Our men were compelled to fight for every house to overcome the enemy.

"Panic overwhelmed the Arabs of Eretz Israel. In the rest of the country, Arabs began to flee in terror, even before they clashed with Jewish forces . . . Meanwhile Haganah was carrying out succeful attacks on many other fronts.

"All the Jewish forces proceeded to advance through Haifa like a knife through butter. The Arabs began to flee in panic shouting: "Deir Yassin!"

MASS MURDER AT QIBYA

The atrocity record was already bad enough, but it did not end there. The massacres perpetrated during the period of the British withdrawal from Palestine—of which that at Deir Yassin was a classic example—did not end when an armistice finally brought a faltering conclusion to the armed hostilities between Jewish and Arab forces.

Thus, even years after the establishment of the State of Israel, and right up to the murders and massacres in Lebanon, history records that she has continued to employ the instrument of terror and massacre against her Arab neighbours. Another typical example was Qibya:

On October 14, 1953, a 600 man battalion of Israeli regulars, using artillery, rifles, Sten guns, grenades, and Balgalore torpedoes, made a night attack on the Arab village of Qibya, a mile and a half inside Jordan territory. They shot every man, woman, and child they could find. The grisly slaughter included even the animals. They dynamited the houses, the school, and the church.

The Truce Supervision Organization of the United Nations, in a report made on October 16, said the attack had been made by a battalion of the Israeli regular army, and that it was "cold-blooded murder."

Then followed the massacre of Kafr Kassim of forty-six innocent Arabs inside Israel, on the eve of the invasion of Egypt on October 29, 1956.

The story of Kafr Kassim and the assault on Egypt were directly related to each other. Kafr Kassim was a part of the reign of terror to be applied to the Arabs, exactly as Deir Yassin had exposed the bestiality of the philosophy of martial 'redemption." Kafr Kassim was an Arab village inside Israel, a remnant that remained after the big exodus of Arabs into exile.

At Kafr Kassim, forty-six men, women and children were brutally massacred by the armed forces of the Israeli army border police, for no reason in the world except lust for murder.

MAIN PARTNER IN LIKUD ALLIANCE

After the proclamation of the State of Israel in May 1948, Menachem Begin's Irgun Zwei Leumi became the Herut political party, the main partner in the Likud alliance, of which he is today the undisputed leader, and which won Israel's general election in 1977 for the first time.

Begin has argued for the past 15 years, ever since the Six Day War, that Israel must never cede any of the territories captured by her.

He bases his position on both religious and historical grounds and on strategic arguments. These areas are an "integral part" of the ancient

continued on page 39

'Liberals' and Theologians

by
Revilo P. Oliver

I was very glad to see the Reverend Mr. Hand's article in the December issue of The Liberty Bell. I comment on it only to emphasize the great importance of two points made by its author.

I

Mr. Hand's account of his experience when he was a student in the Methodist Seminary is highly significant. While he still believed in the doctrines of "British Israel," he circulated a petition "recommending that the U.S. government supply Israel with our most advanced weapons systems." There were two groups or factions in the theological school.

The Fundamentalists insist that the Bible is a divinely-inspired and 'inerrant" account of actual events and of the actions and purposes of God. They are also called "conservative," and properly so, if the word is used in strict application to religion, since they wish to conserve the traditional conception of the Bible, which has been a dogma of all "orthodox" Christian sects since the religion took form in the Second Century. Most or all of the members of this faction gladly endorsed the proposal that the United States openly form a military alliance with the Jews who invaded Palestine, expropriated the Semites who regarded it as their country, and slaughtered many of them, thus partly re-enacting the story told in the Bible about their first invasion of that territory and atrocious slaughter of its Semitic inhabitants at the instigation of the Christian God and with his active support, which went so far as to stop the sun when it was floating over the earth in its usual path, a little above the clouds.

The Liberals in the faculty accepted the irrefragable evidence that both parts of the Christian Bible are stories written by various authors, all of them Jews, with the possible exception of the anonymous writer in the "New Testament" who is known only as "the man from Lucania (in southern Italy)," and that these stories cannot be accepted as accurate historical records of actual events. This view is commonly called "radical," correctly, since it strikes at the very root of Christian doctrine, and is sometimes said to be "on the Left," by an improper transfer to the religion of a political metaphor that sprang from a fortuitous choice of seats in a legislative assembly during the French Revolution: the more conservative members took the seats on the right-hand side of the hall, while their most bitter opponents grouped themselves on the left side. In the Methodist Seminary, none of the Liberal faction signed the petition for open American support of the Jews who were invading Palestine.

In religion, the faction that was willing to consider evidence and reason from it deserved to be called Liberal: they showed the rationality and independence of judgement that is befitting free men, who, by definition, are not the slaves of masters or dogmas.

Politically, Mr. Hand found "liberals to be more open-minded than conservatives" and therefore more willing to consider political systems that do not deny the facts of race. We all know the positions taken by the persons who are called "conservative" today and imagine they can preserve what they lost forty or more years ago. What is noteworthy is the ambiguity of the term 'liberal' in politics today. It designates two quite different types of individuals. Assiduous propaganda for many decades has characterized as "Liberals" the slavish adherents of a fashionable superstition, derived from Christianity and based on a blind and fanatical faith in the equality of all races and the sanctity of whatever is inferior, debased, and diseased. Clearly, the hierophants of that cult are immune to reason, and rational discourse would be wasted on them. On the other hand, there are many persons who deserve to be called liberal because they have not lost the intellectual independence of free men and do try to reason from evidence so far as the facts are known to them in the chaotic confusion of an age of ignorant loquacity and lucrative lying, including cunningly perpetrated hoaxes in historical and scientific matters. To such individuals we may reasonably appeal, and in them lies our only hope of checking the otherwise exponential acceleration of our plunge toward the precipice over which nations and civilizations disappear from history.

There is, to be sure, a great, though not complete, correlation between religious and political attitudes. I have always believed that, as I explained in America's Decline, the political conservatives who set out in the 1920s to preserve what was then left of the American Republic made a fatal blunder when they chose to ally themselves with a decaying and potentially revolutionary religion rather than with the rational and scientific consideration of society represented by Madison Grant, Lothrop Stoddard, and many others. Sixty years ago, when there were still some American principles that could have been preserved and 'conservatism' was more than a misnomer, many Americans were frightened by the outbreak of modernized savagery in Russia, Hungary, and other formerly civilized nations, but they were taken in by the strident Bolshevik propaganda, enthusiastically echoed by professional Christians, to the effect that atheism had caused the Jews' subversion and conquest of the Russian Empire and was responsible for Communist agitation in the United States, where, as they failed to notice, all the directors of the conspiracy were either Jews or stupid goyim married to Jewesses who had been inspired by the famous myth about Esther in the "Old Testament." They were thereby scared into allying themselves with the Christian dervishes, thus alienating all educated men who refused to subordinate their rational minds to the emotional fixations called faith.

In thus hitching their wagon to a falling star, the conservatives of the 1920s ensured the final collapse of the republic they intended to preserve—and the triumph of the alternative Jewish religion they intended to oppose, the "Liberal"-Communist cult. Our concern must be with the genuine liberals, whom Mr. Hand found "open-minded."

II

Mr. Hand acknowledges an intellectual debt to the Methodist Seminary in which he was trained for the ministry of that church, and is himself a clergyman who, at great personal sacrifice, came to reject orthodox Christianity. His example reminds us of the highly significant fact that the ruin of belief in the authenticity of the Bible has been partly the work of theological scholarship conducted with the devotion to objectively determined truth that is the glory and strength of our race.

No educated clergyman today can believe in the "inerrancy" of the Bible, whatever he may deem it professionally expedient to say in public. Theological scholarship, accepted in every seminary that is more than a den of semi-literate obscurantism, has made such belief impossible, and has thus destroyed the premises on which the religion was based. Around 1910, an English wit—H. H. Munro ("Saki"), if my recollection is not at fault—remarked that it was no longer possible to be an Unbeliever because the theologians of the Church of England had left nothing for one to disbelieve. They had come to the position that the glory of Christianity was that it was not true and had to be invented. There was little exaggeration in that generalization, even at the time it was made.

One example will suffice to show the present status of theological studies. As late as the Eighteenth Century it was still possible to believe that there had been a Jew named Daniel who lived in the sixth century B.C. and wrote the book that bears his name. Today, it is simply indubitable that the book is a hoax, a forgery, perpetrated by a Jew so ignorant that he thought Belshazzar had been King of Babylon, and that that city had been captured by Darius. The Oxford Dictionary of the Christian Church (1963) admits that the concensus of critical opinion is that the book was concocted between 168 and 165 B.C. as Jewish propaganda. That one admission, in a work heavily weighted on the "conservative" side, should suffice to prick the bubble of "inerrancy." As a matter of fact, no book in either part of the Bible can possibly be what it pretends to be. And it is to Christian theologians that we owe the most detailed demonstrations of that fact.

The list of clergymen whose theological learning convinced them that the Christian religion was simply incredible is long and honorable. Everyone should know the magisterial work of William Gayley Simpson, Which Way, Western Man? In my review of that admirable book, reprinted in the appendix to America's Decline, I mentioned five other clergymen who had made a public profession of their devotion to truth and intellectual honesty, and I gave deserved prominence to the Reverend Mr.

Robert Taylor, who sacrificed a promising career in the Church to publish in 1829 his celebrated Diegesis, a work of great learning in which, on the basis of the very limited information available at that relatively early date, he demonstrated that Christianity was only a Jewish mish-mash of myths derived or imitated from earlier religions. He was, of course, foully persecuted by the canaille of contemporary holy men, who were naturally alarmed by a threat to their lucrative business. I also mentioned the Reverend Mr. G. Vincent Runyon's slender booklet, Why I Left the Ministry and Became an Atheist (1959). I should have mentioned another Methodist minister, whose name I cannot call to mind now. When he retired at an advanced age to a small town in Oklahoma, he had leisure to continue his theological studies, soon became an atheist, and did not hesitate to say so in public. The local shamans became so alarmed that they incited the town's Chief of Police and State's Attorney to harass the old man and threaten him with admittedly illegal prosecution that they thought he could not afford to resist. Such piety is, of course, only typical.

Even more significant, perhaps, are the erudite theologians who undertook a critical study of the texts collected in the "New Testament." Among the most eminent we may mention Ferdinand Christian Bauer (1792-1860), Professor of Theology in the University of Tübingen, who was the first, I believe, to demonstrate that the collection of letters attributed to a Paul in the "New Testament" could not possibly have been written by one man, and that while part of them could have been composed before the middle of the Second Century, none of them could have been written by the Paul who is the hero of the so-called Acts of the Apostles. His pupil, David Friedrich Strauss (1808-1874), was another distinguished Lutheran theologian, author of an ephocal Life of Jesus in which he showed that all the miracles and other supernatural elements in the tales were myths of popular origin that gained currency before the four gospels in the "New Testament" were composed after the middle of the Second Century; he later wrote a history of the evolution of the various beliefs that were finally incorporated in the "New Testament" when it was put together. (Strauss did not hold a full professorship at Tübingen, and it is said that he either was dimissed from or resigned his post in consequence of the clamor of outraged merchants of Salvation; he later became Professor of Theology in the University of Zürich, but did not actually teach there, since the Swiss authorities yielded to the pressure of vested business interests.)

Perhaps the most celebrated of the Lutherans was Bruno Bauer (1809-1882), who held a post equivalent to Assistant Professor in the Universities of Berlin and Bonn. He began with an attack on Strauss from the orthodox viewpoint, but further study and reflection led him to formulate his own view that the Jesus-story was invented by an Italian, whose first name may really have been Marcus, who composed his tale around A.D. 130, and that the successful fiction was imitated by

continued on page 35

The Resurrection of Donald Day

A review of

ONWARD, CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS, by Donald Day. Written in 1942, first printed in 1982. Pp. xi, 207. Paperbound, $5.00 plus postage; available from Liberty Bell Publications.

by Revilo P. Oliver

For twenty years, I have hoped to see this long-suppressed book in print. It is a fundamental historical source, and one shudders when one thinks how nearly it came to being lost to the world.

I wish I knew the story of its precarious survival. In the District of Corruption, late in 1943, as I remember, one heard in informed circles mention of a book that had been written by an honest newspaper man who was a foreign correspondent of the Chicago Tribune and had witnessed the occupation of the Baltic republics by the Soviet after the pact with Stalin that Hitler made in a desperate attempt to avert the war that Roosevelt and his masters were trying to start in Europe. The book, it was implied, had been set up in type and printed shortly before the diseased monster in the White House finally succeeded in tricking the Japanese into destroying at Pearl Harbor the American fleet that had been assembled there for their convenience. All copies of the book, it was said, had been destroyed, except a few that had been surreptitiously saved for sale as great rarities at some future date.

It seems that the book described in that circumstantial story must have been the work of Donald Day, who had been, for twenty years, the Chicago Tribune's representative in northern Europe, but it cannot refer to the present text, which was certainly revised in 1942 and has a preface dated January 1943. If there was an earlier version that was printed and destroyed, Day makes no mention of it. And in January 1943, Day could not have hoped to have his book printed anywhere while the crazed American cattle were being driven into Europe to serve the Jews in their war against our race and civilization. His passport had been stolen by the State Department and he had been marooned in Finland to prevent the return to this country of an honorable witness who could not be intimidated or bribed. When Day completed his manuscript in 1943, he must have intended it for publication after the war and in a happier era for which he still hoped.

I do not know through what channels Day's manusoript was brought to the United States, nor do I know whether the original of the typewritten text survived. His carbon copy, lacking two pages, somehow came into the possession of a gentleman who made no effort to have it published, but who did permit it to be copied in 1962 and reproduced by mimeographing for the small audience that is interested in the facts of history. Mimeographed copies were sold, and still are available from, Jane's Book Service in Reno, Nevada, and doubtless other dealers. One of those mimeographed copies was the source of the printed text that has now been published.

Poor Day, exiled from his own country by the aliens who have taken control of it, perforce remained in Helsinki until his death in 1966, a martyr to Truth and Jewish terrorism. But there is some uncertainty about the circumstances, and they are relevant to the censorship of the press in this hapless land.

A year or more before Day's death, I made an effort to procure formal publication of his book, enlisting the coöperation of Frank Hughes, who had been the aide of Colonel McCormick and had remained on the staff of the Tribune, although so out-of-favor with the dividend-hungry inheritors that the one "scoop" with which I tried to supply him was insolently mutilated. Our project was delayed by the difficulty of obtaining access to files of the Tribune that had been removed to a warehouse, which Hughes needed to consult for his introduction to the book, and terminated by his premature death. He told me, however, that after Colonel McCormick had been forced to discharge Day by his and our enemies in the government of the United States, and to leave his foremost correspondent stranded and impoverished in Finland, McCormick secretly and through clandestine channels continued to supply Day with a modest income. I wish to believe a story so much to the credit of the owner and publisher of the last newspaper that can properly be called American.

In the introduction to the present book, however, Walter Trohan, who was for many years the chief of the Tribune's Washington bureau and one of the last of our true journalists, categorically states that the Tribune in August 1942 cabled Day to return home and that Day elected to remain in Sweden where he then was and asked for leave without pay. He implies that McCormick thereafter abandoned Day and in 1964 refused to listen to Mr. Trohan's plea that Day be reinstated. "To my lasting sorrow," Trohan says, "partly because the editor was preoccupied with his own great man image, . . . I could not sell my belief that The Tribune owed a measure of justice to a great reporter and a fine man."

The glimpse of McCormick is bad enough, but it may be too mild. The late Westbrook Pegler was a newspaper man who held the now obsolete belief that truth is relevant to journalism, and I am proud to have been associated with him in the pages of the late Fred Seelig's Destroy the Accuser, to which he contributed the preface and I, a terminal commentary. When he heard of the death of Donald Day in Helsinki, he wrote: "There was never any excuse worth listening to for Robert R. McCormick's cruelty to Don Day. He just kicked him out, busted and friendless in a strange land and with a devoted blonde Russian wife, a waif of the 1917 Revolution in Petrograd . . . . McCormick was a really heartless one. He was a pompous fraud."

Pegler, who had visited the Days in Helsinki and found them living in great poverty, reported that the anti-American government in Washington had been able to blackmail McCormick, who was given to boasting of his military service in the First World War, while the files of the Army contained records that indicated that he had been guilty of cowardice. That may explain, but cannot palliate, McCormick's conduct toward his star reporter in Europe, and Pegler concludes, "I hope Don Day and Don's wife, Edit, knew the truth in time to appraise this bombastic fake, who exiled them to Finland for the rest of their time on earth out of sheer cruelty."

Donald Day was one of the last great figures in journalism, as distinct from propaganda. His creed is stated in the present book, from which I quote, tacitly correcting one of the too common typographical errors: "There is really only one way to handle news. It is to present it as accurately and fairly as possible, or not to publish it at all. Lying is dangerous and reacts against the liar. This was once a platitude in America, but that was before the Jews crossed the Potomac and ensconced Roosevelt in the White House." And all of us may be grateful that Day's book has survived to be published now: it may, perhaps, produce at last some belated reaction against the liars.

THIS FIRST EDITION

The printed text is reproduced from one of the mimeographed copies, but there are some omissions, which I list here for the benefit of those who may not have a mimeographed copy at hand. The numbers in parentheses are the pages of the printed volume; the numbers that follow are the pages of the mimeographed copies that are largely or entirely omitted at that point.

(20) 15-23	(Day's second chapter, "Permit Me to Introduce Myself," an autobiographical sketch with some entertaining anecdotes).
(51) 45	(Paragraph omitted to conceal the loss of one page of Day's text; on the other lost page, see below).
(53) 46-47	(Comment on the German inhabitants of the Baltic states and the Jewish policy of "mongrelizing entire populations").
(99) 80-81	(Dr. von Alfthan's analysis of social structures, thus making meaningless the subsequent reference in the printed text to what "Dr. von Alfthan points out").

(126) 100-101 (Note on dishonest foreign correspondents, notably the Jew who masqueraded as Eugene Lyons and later found it profitable to masquerade as an "American anti-Communist"; the omission obfuscates the subsequent mention of "Lyons").

As I have said, two pages were missing from the carbon copy of Day's manuscript, and the anonymous editor of the printed volume made a particularly inept effort to suture the gap on his page 12. I here quote the printed text, adding in italics the sentences and paragraphs it omits:

> American imperialism is something new, even for Americans. The two chief aims of the Roosevelt Trust are: 1. To reimpose the gold standard on world economy. 2. To restore equality for the Jews in Europe. But equality is hardly the proper word to use. What is intended is the domination of Jews over Europe.
>
> A few weeks before I became the first American political refugee in Sweden, one of my colleagues gave me some unsolicited advice. He suggested I should return to America and begin to pull strings to obtain an appointment as American Commissar to the Baltic States when America had
>
> [A page of the author's manuscript was lost at this point. It clearly included a discussion of the causes of the decline and fall of the American Republic.]
>
> of the United States has been in the disinclination of the older types of Americans to take an active part in the governing of their country. Between the the American Civil War and the World War e.g.s.

The editor's omission of Day's first point, the reference to the gold standard, seems odd; if he did not understand it, he could have learned from his page 168, where Day explains it in terms that were clear in 1942, but may need some elucidation now.

When the Jews captured the government of the United States in 1933 and installed in the White House a diseased degenerate named Franklin Roosevelt together with a Jew, Rosenman, to tell their stooge what to say and do, one of the first acts of the take-over was to steal the gold of American citizens and to send Federal thugs to rob the sound banks of their gold reserves. The gold standard was, however, maintained in international transactions for the benefit of the Jews and other thieves of international finance. When the German people under Adolf Hitler tried to regain possession of their own country, the world's parasites at first boasted that their sovereignty over international finance would soon make the Aryan curs again submissive to the masters that Yahweh had set over them; but Germany simply dispensed with the gold standard and prospered mightily, to the amazement and consternation of the international bandits. One object of the Jewish War Against Europe was to restore the dominion of those banking thieves over Germany as over all the countries of the world. The rule of the world by those enemies of civilized mankind is now so consolidated that the function of gold in their schemes has been made obsolete, and the American boobs have been so habituated to the use of counterfeit currency that they do not even notice the omission. But Day's statement was correct in 1942.

The defects that I have noted above do not seriously impair the value of this extraordinary and extremely valuable book, now printed forty years after it was written.

EUROPE ON THE BRINK OF DISASTER

As I have said, Donald Day was a journalist of singular integrity and courage, and he has left us an invaluable legacy in this summary of his observations of northern Europe during the twenty years of his residence there. These observations include much that is now buried in the yellowing files of the old Chicago Tribune and much that Colonel McCormick did not dare to print.

Day witnessed the birth and the death of three independent nations that are now virtually forgotten: Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania; and he properly stresses the prosperity and culture that was primarily the work of German minorities in each country and proportional to their number: their example brought out the best in the native populations. And Day's report contains one item that may be a lesson for our more sanguine contemporaries. He observed that in 1939 many Estonians had been made optimistic by propaganda to the effect that the Jews had lost control of the Soviet and that Russians were in power there. They refused to believe the grim fact that "the Soviet government was nothing more than a sadistic Jewish satrapy," but we may be sure that they changed their minds when they were either massacred or shipped in cattle cars to Russia to be tortured at leisure.

He witnessed the heroism of Finland, when that valiant little nation, alone and with no help from what nitwits still call the "free world," turned back the hordes of Slavic savages that the Jews had sent against it, to the great chagrin of the governments of Great Britain and the United States, which mouthed hypocritically words of sympathy while intriguing surreptitiously for a Soviet victory to facilitate the attack on Germany which they were planning. The Jews' slimy stooges in both countries even jabbered about "democracy," of which Finland was the only example in Europe, with the possible exception of Switzerland. And it is worthy of note that the Finns were sufficiently perspicacious to evade a trap that the British government, with Yiddish morality, set for them.*

* Day failed to note that the member of the British government who boasted of the intended treachery after the scheme failed, Hore-Belisha, was a Jew, not an Englishman.

Day travelled extensively throughout Poland before he was expelled for not lying to please its government. He bears witness to the squalor and depravity of a country in which a city of 600,000, with more than a thousand small factories, had a public water supply but felt no need for sewers—and a large village was content with only one latrine, which was kept clean by the simple expedient of locking it and permitting no one to use it. The peasantry was kept in a state of stupidity, unmitigated ignorance, and utter poverty by coöperation between the Jews, who kept the swindled peasants perpetually and hopelessly in debt, and the Roman Catholic Church, which sucked up what little money their victims had left. As for the middle and upper classes, I can confirm Day's account from the unpublished letters of a philologist whose linguistic studies required a prolonged visit to Poland in the 1930s. He commented, inter alia, on the morality of the nation in which divorce was impossible, but God's Vicar would, for a suitable fee, annul a marriage on the grounds that a woman who had borne three or four children was still a virgin—and do so even without claiming that her miraculous fecundity had been facilitated by the Holy Ghost.*

Day's observations enable us to understand the imbecility and corruption of a nation which, madly hoping to retain the so-called "Polish Corridor" to harass the Germans with a "wedge of depravity" that bisected the body of the German nation, walked into the trap set for it by Great Britain and the Secret government of the United States. While there probably were intelligent members of the Polish government who had to be bribed to force their country to suicide, others must have believed in both the sincerity of the British promises and Britain's ability to fulfill them, and that argues a degree of feeble-mindedness that is noteworthy, even in the history of our times.

Day also observed a manifestation of mental debility that will be much less pleasing to the readers of The Liberty Bell. In his time, Sweden was still a racially homogeneous nation, except, of course, for the Jewish infestation, but that almost purely Nordic nation, with the highest standard of living in Europe and exemplary cities and countryside, was also a nation of peace lubbers and world-improvers, living amid childish fantasies and certainly unwilling to look at the real world surrounding it, which its well-fed and charming population may even have been intellectually incapable of comprehending. Today, of course, the larger Swedish cities are overrun by black and brown vermin, but the stolid Nordic minds seem to be still insulated against rational perception of the obvious. Acquaintances of mine, who recently visited relatives in Sweden, including a university professor and a man who held a comparable rank in a technological institute, were constantly exasperated by the obtuseness of minds that could, for example, refuse to recognize the accipitrine visage of a Jew, mumbling idiotically, "He's not a Jew: he's a Swede; why, he speaks Swedish perfectly." And when a blonde slut appears with a nigger on the street, the strongest objurgation is a remark that youth will have its fling.* It is possible, of course, that all Nordics are not so stupid: I am told that Sweden is the European nation in which the largest percentage of the population requires alcoholic consolation for the sorrows of life.

I have tried only to suggest by a few hints the wealth of indispensable historical information that has been, almost providentially, preserved in Donald Day's book. The only way to understand the present is to retroject oneself, so far as possible, into the decades from which it sprang, and it would be futile to criticize the 1980s without a preliminary understanding of the age, seemingly prosperous but pregnant with calamity, that ran from 1920 to 1940.

In addition to providing you with historical facts, Donald Day's report cannot fail to stimulate you to a reëxamination of one or another of the assumptions that we all take more or less for granted.

We all know, for example, that, with the exception of a very few men like Donald Day, journalists are venal and ready to lie for their paymasters, but many of us cherish the belief that men of letters who have some literary pretensions also have greater integrity. You will find in this book a succinct description of the procedure by which the Bolsheviks bought George Bernard Shaw and were unable to bribe André Gide. Now you, no doubt, disapprove of Gide's sexual habits, but I invite you to consider diligently the question of which of the two men you would regard as the more valuable citizen of his country.

We think of cuckoldry as merely contemptible, but on rereading Day, I wonder whether it may not have political significance. In Day's estimation, Ulmanis was Latvia's greatest political leader, but although Ulmanis was cozened by a wily Jew's humanitarian pretenses, he and the nation were really betrayed by his closest friend, Wilhelm Munters, a hybrid of mixed Estonian and German-Balt ancestry, who was oddly content with a wife who notoriously practiced polyandry. In Lithuania, Professor Waldemaras represented the nation's best political brains, but he preferred to make President a male named Smetona, who eventually deposed and imprisoned him. Smetona rejoiced in the affections of an energetic and

* Lest it be supposed that I take pleasure in the report of conditions in modern Poland, I remark that Zygmunt Krasiński's Nieboska komedja ("The Undivine Comedy"), which I have read only in the English translation by Harriette Kennedy and Zofia Uminska, is one of the great monuments of European literature; published in 1834, it was profoundly prophetic, and a reader today may see in the fate of Count Henry a prefigurement of what has now happened to our civilization through the concurrence of ostensibly opposed forces.

* It may be worthy of note that "Swedish Erotica" is the term used to denote choice items in the wares peddled by the Jews who dominate the highly lucrative business of pornography, and that some of them assume Swedish names. One of the earliest films, which was actually made in Sweden and imported to educate our youth, had a scene in which a blonde, attractive, and obviously moronic Swedish girl was shown sitting in rapt and quasi-religious veneration before a shrine that bore a photograph of America's most distinguished automobile thief and rapist, a black beast named King, who was later sacrificed by our enemies to help incite riots and demonstrate what craven rabbits white men have become. Contemplation of the foul animal presumably inspired the empty-headed female on the road to liberated whoredom in the film.

pious wife, who was kept warm at night by a Jesuit, thoughtfully provided by the Catholic Church, although some members of its hierarchy deemed that way to political power inadvisable.

And there are some nice sidelights on the débris of the American Republic. In Poland, for example, there was a Jew named Nowinski, who was a part-time reporter, supplying lies to gullible newspapers, a leading pimp, the owner of two brothels, and a notorious sadist, taking an obscene delight in watching the suffering of animals and, when possible, human beings. Since he suspected that his talents would not commend him to the Germans, he fled to the United States, where his admirable qualities earned him a post in the F.B.I. under the aegis of that great humanitarian, Frankie Roosevelt. America is, indeed, the Land of Opportunity—for her enemies.

And I almost forgot that Day observed in the early 1930s the germ of the Holohoax that our domestic enemies are now trying to make it illegal for Americans not to believe. The American Embassy in Warsaw was constantly besieged by hordes of Jews yammering for a visa to enter the United States and start eating on Americans. It required a staff of sixty to deal with them, and every evening the Embassy's waiting room had to be deloused. The disgusted American staff probably used an insecticide less efficient than the famous Zyklon B which the Germans used in an attempt to avert epidemics of typhus in the concentration camps by delousing the Jews (and Poles) confined in them. That, of course, was the basis for the fictitious "Holocaust" and the pretext for the vile murders committed by the American Huns in Nuremberg to please their owners. It is possible, of course, that body lice are also Yahweh's favorites, but, so far as I know, it has not yet been thought expedient to claim that millions of God's Own Children were exterminated in the American Embassy in Warsaw. I do not venture to predict, however, what the future may not bring. □

MUST-READING FOR CONCERNED PATRIOTS:

The Jew in Review, Quotes by famous Jews & Gentiles ..... $ 6.00
The Jewish War of Survival ..... $ 3.00
The Hoax of the 20th Century ..... $ 6.00

Please add $1 for postage for orders under $10. For orders over $10, please add 10%. Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the Midrashim, the Cabbala, the Rabbinical-ana, Proverbial Sayings and Traditions. 395 pages, softcover, $20. plus $2. for post. & hndlg. Order from: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270

PLEASE ASK YOUR FRIENDS TO SUBSCRIBE TO THE LIBERTY BELL!

'LIBERALS' AND THEOLOGIANS, continued from page 26

imaginative writers who wished to modify or contradict the narrative and make it conform to their own predilections or ambitions, especially after the cult thus launched became highly remunerative. Bauer had a great influence on subsequent theologians, although his explanation of the origin of the whole flood of Christian gospels composed by the numerous and competing Christian sects after the first third of the Second Century was much too simple and drastic.*

Mr. Hand cites later theologians, especially the distinguished Lutheran scholar, Rudolph Bultmann, Professor of New-Testament Studies in the University of Marburg until his retirement in 1951, whose "demythologization" of the Jesus-story, which I know only by repute, showed, as Mr. Hand says, "that it is impossible to recover facts and details about the historical Jesus from the myths and propaganda of the "New Testament." Mr. Hand mentions three prominent theologians who accept Bultmann's conclusions with only slight modifications, and his theological studies would doubtless have enabled him to cite many more. He has himself carried the "demythologizing" to its logical completion: since critical analysis has proved that the account of Jesus in the "New Testament" is largely mythical, we must accept the virtual certainty that

* Incidentally, Mr. Hand errs in attributing to me a view like Bauer's. I have never intended to suggest that the protagonist of the various Christian gospels "never existed as a man" and was a purely fictitious character "invented out of thin air." I fully agree with Mr. Hand that the stories in the "New Testament" had their origin in the career of a Jewish revolutionary agitator who tried to start an insurrection against both Roman rule and the Jewish Establishment in Jerusalem. For example, in a personal letter to me he suggests that the tale about the five thousand assembled in the wilderness and miraculously fed probably sprang from an actual encampment of a body of revolutionists naturally assembled by their leader in a desert to avoid observation and in the hope of launching a successful surprise attack. I agree that this is likely. If the revolutionary force, which was probably composed of shepherds, peasants and vagabonds and resembled Monmouth's "army" in the time of James II, numbered four or five thousand, the problem of feeding them in the desert must have taxed the resources of Jesus's commissariat and even a meager provision of loaves and fish for such a number would have seemed a marvellous accomplishment. I should differ from Mr. Hand about the degree of probability that the scraps of actual happenings that can be thus conjecturally recovered from the stories refer to a single Jesus. I think it more likely that stories are composite, incorporating elements suggested by the careers of several of the self-appointed christs who popped up among the Jews in Palestine and elsewhere for more than two centuries before and after the year 1 of the present era, beginning with the Jesus mentioned in Ralph Perler's "Religion and Race," who was born in 90 B.C. and eventually hanged.

It may be worth noting that Bruno Bauer was not unsympathetic to the fiction to which he reduced Christianity by an implausible over-simplification: that may be why he, who held very sound views on the Jewish question (see his Die Judenfrage, Brunswick, 1843), minimized the Jewishness of early Christianity; for example, one of the stories in the "New Testament" is attributed to "Matthew," which certainly represents a Hebrew or Aramaic word, probably a personal name of uncertain derivation, although it has been suggested that it simply means "the writer"; Bauer would have us believe that this was a pseudonym adopted by a Roman who had studied Seneca and wanted to give a more Jewish air to his imitation of Marcus's clever story about a Jewish prophet. Bauer can give no plausible reason why Romans should descend to such a hoax.

the historical Jesus was a revolutionary agitator who claimed to be a messiah (christ) and tried unsuccessfully to make himself King of the Jews, as is shown by the inscription derisively put on his cross, which is one of the scraps of historical evidence preserved under the overlying myth.

The theological scholarship to which Mr. Hand has directed our attention is of great importance to us. It is true that demolition of the old notion that the Bible was an historical record gave an opening to the clerical Bolsheviks who use their pulpits to spread a poisonous "social gospel" and use the revenues of their churches to subsidize arson, rape. and murder, but that is irrevelant here. What we must emphasize is that the Christian scholars who carried out that demolition obviously did so in disregard of their personal, economic and social advantages. Some, especially in the earlier part of the last century, were driven from their positions, and even those who resigned from the church made greater or less sacrifices in the interest of truth. The ones who remained in the church cannot have found their positions as comfortable and lucrative as they would have been, had they remained silent about their scholarship and devoted themselves to ecclesiastical politics.

One caution is perhaps necessary. It does not follow that the scholars who remained in the church were necessarily atheists or retained their positions merely for the sake of the income. There are philosophical systems which posit the existence of immaterial forces in the universe, and even from the most rigidly materialistic point of view there is still the distinct possibility that the cohesion of large societies requires a generally accepted religion to enforce ethical and moral standards. This consideration has always been latent in Christianity. One is reminded of the most attractive of the early Fathers, Synesius, who was a Greek of Lacedaemonian ancestry and a Neoplatonist, having been a pupil of the famous, reportedly beautiful, and ill-fated Hypatia. In 410, he reluctantly became the Christian Bishop of Ptolemais, but accepted the appointment with the express stipulation that he would not be expected to believe the dogmas which he would conscientiously impart to the ignorant multitude that would be benefited by a simple belief within the grasp of their limited minds. He compared those minds to weak eyes, which cannot bear the daylight but can see enough to get around in semi-darkness.*

* Ep. 105. The letters of Synesius may conveniently be consulted in Hercher's Didot edition of the Epistolographi Graeci (1873; often reprinted). Synesius's letter to his brother, explaining his decision to accept the appointment, is a long one; the passage that I particularly have in mind is found on pp. 705b-706c. There is an English translation by A. Fitzgerald (London, 1926), which I have not seen. Christians like to think that Synesius came to believe in Christianity some time after he became a Bishop in the Church, but for this there is no evidence whatsoever. The fact that Synesius accepted the ecclesiastical office only on the condition that his own opinions, his marriage, and his gentlemanly mode of life were not to be affected thereby, is admitted even in the brief notice of him in the Oxford Dictionary of the Christian Church that I cited above, a work so heavily weighted on the "conservative" side that the article on Paul assumes that he is the author of the letters in the "New Testament" written under his name, although the authoritative Encyclopaedia Biblica (compiled under the chief editorship of a distinguished theologian, Professor Thomas K. Cheyne of Oxford, and published

The important point, I believe, is that modern Christian theology is unique in the history of religions. Other religions have, like Christianity, produced an almost constant succession of heresies, with trick arguments and more or less skillful forgeries to enable heresiarchs to revise an earlier doctrine to suit their whims and ambitions, but all their theologians have labored either to crystallize the accepted doctrine or to remould it, never to impair and destroy it. Destructive criticism of a cult's dogmas in the interests of historical truth by theologians, who obviously have a vested interest in perpetuating the source of their income, is found only in Christian churches and is obviously a product of the distinctively Aryan respect for, and overriding loyalty to, demonstrable fact and reason. That should be for us a source of both legitimate pride and a hope that our racial mind may yet recover from the narcotized trance that has been induced in it. □ 1899-1903) candidly admits that all those letters are "pseudographia" (i.e., forgeries), concocted by various writers, who, however, belonged to "one circle" of holy men and therefore were pretty much in agreement about what they should make "Paul" say. The many other letters forged under the name of "Paul" in other circles were naturally excluded from the "New Testament" when it was collected. The Encyclopaedia saves what it can by attributing a high "spiritual content" to the canonical fabrications.

"WHICH WAY WESTERN MAN?"

by William Gayley Simpson

For Race Intellectuals!

From Nietzsche to Modern Politics
Applied Philosophy for Racial Living Today!!

CHAPTERS:
Marriage — Family — Race Difference
How Communism Works
With Zionism

An Encyclopedia of knowledge upon which a movement can be built.

758 PAGES

$8 PER COPY

Plus $1.00 for postage and handling

Liberty Bell Publications

P.O. BOX 21, REEDY, W.VA. 25270 USA

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 8

New Testament.

S.W., Texas

* * * * *

Dear George: 13 December 1982

Dr. Oliver's recent series is brilliant, as usual. Perhaps he could comment on "Holy Blood, Holy Grail." The fight against traditional Christian Mythology must continue, as this is the most destructive influence on our race.

I feel a bit sorry to see splits in the hardly-formed movement evidenced in the October-November issues. We must always accept historical fact or else we will become as bad as the Yids..

On the other hand, we cannot allow conditions to re-occur which lead to the thirty Years War, Civil War or World Wars I & II, particularly when we're only 8% of the world population and accounted for 2% (maybe) of recent births.

In my local Library, there is a book entitled "Polish Acts of Atrocity Against the German Minority in Poland" [We, too, have a copy of this book in our archives. —Ed.] which was published by the German Library of Information, New York, in 1940. This is an English language book on a very unfortunate event in our history. Let us hope we have learned enough from the past to know that too few of us remain, and we can no longer start killing one another.

Yours truly,
P.A., New Jersey

* * * * *

Dear George: 13 December 1982

Quite a number of weeks ago I heard some very unfair criticism of you, and at the time wished to write you a letter of encouragement, but was subsequently delayed by personal illness, traveling, mechanical breakdowns, etc.

Why those of us on the Right cannot be more sympathetic to one another is strange indeed, and brings to mind the Jewish Christians with all their "brotherly love" as a basic requirement. That is one argument they have which, as a Humanist, I would applaud—although I realize that such subtle communism is really a thin rationalization for glorifying MEDIOCRITY. (When we cannot perform in life, we get together over beer and slobber over one another—and call it Christian love and charity.)

Now what about the criticism of you and your work? If you are a tin-cup or tea-cup comedian, or a man with sufficient creative resources hence merely re-copy old things, etc., is certainly unfair commentary. You have brought to light many intelligent American minds, the last being Oliver and Simpson, while one of the capital early heads was your marvelous printing of the Henry Ford scholarship. It is difficult to understand the position of insensitive men. These things you have well accomplished—why is it not possible to lend proper credit to you for your

continued on page 45

ZIONISTS DO PROTEST TOO MUCH, continued from page 22

Biblical homeland of the Jews, he never tires of recalling.* And moreover, to give them up would mean, almost inevitably, the creation of a radical Palestinian state which would pose a constant threat to Israel.

Begin argues that since neither his view, nor the previous Labour government's view, is accepted by the Arabs—or, indeed, by Israel's friends in the West—why be conciliatory?

POLICY TOWARDS THE ARABS

The Likud government of Menachem Begin, which came to power in 1977, started where Begin left off in 1948, when he was forced to disband his terrorist Irgun Zwei Leumi organization, and to become the Herut political party.

His policy towards the Arabs has always had one clear objective, namely to get rid of the Arabs by ruthlessly forcing them to flee, without any compensation, from the lands upon which they and their forefathers had lived and worked for a thousand years and more, or by extermination.

By naked aggression, Israel's land area has by these means already increased 20-fold since 1948, and the process will now be stepped up.

The brutal and frank Menachem Begin has never disguised his aims and policy.

He has learned that by quoting the Bible and using terror and spreading panic were ancient devices for "redeeming" a "promised land" and getting rid of the native population.

APPLYING ANCIENT METHODS

He and Ben Gurion had only to look up the Book of Joshua before applying the old methods of wholesale slaughter and terror in Palestine, as at Deir Yassin on April 9, 1948, at Qibya on October 14-15, 1953, at Kafr Kassim on October 28, 1956, in many other unforgettable massacres of Palestinian Arabs, and right up to the recent murders and massacres in Tyre, Sidon, and Beirut.

Only, Joshua told his story with unvarnished primitiveness, in the name

*What the Bible-quoting Begin conveniently forgets, while always donning the garb of the sacred, while seeking the profane, is that he and the vast majority of Jews now in Israel are Khazars (Russian Jews) whose ancestors from the beginning of time had never set foot in Palestine and who have no identification whatever with the Pharisees, Saducees, Zealots or Essenes, the four religious groups in Palestine in Bible history.

The Khazars are not a racial stock indigenous to that region. They are not a semitic people. And their claim to the contrary, is one of the most astonishing deceptions in the whole of history. The true Semites are the Sephardic Jews who had been living peacefully amidst the Palestinian Arabs, their racial cousins, down through the centuries.

It is not they who are the invaders of Palestine, and the creators of the Israeli problem, but the thrusting and remorseless Khazars who are not of Semitic stock, but a mixed people with strong Mongol-Turkic-Finnish affinities, whose ancient homelands never were in Palestine, but in Eastern and Southern Russia and beyond the Ural Mountains, and who first adopted the Jewish religion in about the eighth century of our era. A large percentage of these Khazars are atheists today.

of the young Jehovah who had not as yet grown up, and in the context of his barbaric times; whereas today's Joshuas, who are public-relations diplomats of expediency, act in the same way as ancient Joshua, but cry "Peace! Peace! All we want is the status quo!," after the dirty job has been done.

Meanwhile, Palestinian-Arab homes and towns continue to be plundered and looted and erased to make it impossible for the Arab population to return. Christian churches, Muslim mosques and holy shrines, will continue to be desecrated and destroyed, as will inhuman acts of racial and religious discrimination continue against the Christian and Muslim Arabs of Palestine who remain under Jewish rule.

INCITING RACIAL HATRED?

It was inevitable that a vigorous counter-attack by the Israelis and their diehard supporters throughout the world would start after the sharp worldwide reaction to the recent murders and massacres in Lebanon.

Just as it was inevitable that the Zionist Federation and the Jewish Board of Deputies in South Africa would immediately react with accusations of "anti-Semitism" and "inciting racial hatred of Jews" against the Islamic Propagation's pamphlets in Durban.

As for their charge of "inciting racial hatred" against the Jewish people, we would say that the question of inciting racial hatred against others is very much a two-way thing, with the boot often on the other foot.

The pot should certainly never call the kettle black.

The Zionists do indeed protest far too much!

SEMITES OR KHAZARS?

As for their charge of "anti-Semitism" levelled against the Islamic Propagation Centre, we would like to ask these leaders of the Zionist Federation and the Jewish Board of Deputies in South Africa whether they themselves are Semites at all or whether they are of non-Semitic, Khazar (Ashkenazi) stock?

And in the matter of the history of the Khazars, we would also ask these Jewish leaders whether they dispute the finding of the world-known Jewish author, Arthur Koestler, who, in his book entitled The Khazar Empire and Its Heritage, points out that Western Jews today are not really ethnic, Semitic, Biblical Jews—and that most of them are descendants of the converted Khazars.

On the implications of this for the State of Israel, Koestler's view is that the case of the existence and preservation of Israel rests not on religious, Biblical or ethnic grounds but on the United Nations decision of 1947, by which it was established—that it now exists de jure and de facto and cannot be undone except by genocide.

As for genocide, Mr. Koestler's chief point in examining the probability that the majority of Jews in Israel, and surviving the "Holocaust" are of Caucasian rather than Semitic origin, is that: "Should this turn out to be the case, then the term 'anti-Semitism' would become void of meaning based on a misapprehension shared by both the Nazis and their victims."

"The story of the Khazar Empire, as it slowly emerges from the past, begins to look like the most cruel hoax history has ever perpetrated," he says.

It is these same Khazars who, today, wield the big stick in Zionism. Before they invaded Palestine in the present century, they invaded the United States as immigrants, where they form the oligarchy behind the declared government of that country.

The United States was also the chief base from which they invaded Russia to institute the Bolshevik regime, since which time the Soviet Union has become their chief base for the spreading of Communism throughout the world.

These are one and the same kind of people who, out of the Jewish casualties, from all causes, during the last war, manufactured the extermination legend and hoax of the "Six Million."

SPOTLIGHT ON 'ANTI—SEMITISM'

Few people have received so much attention from historians, philosophers, and theologians as the Jews. But from all that has been written, the ethnic and cultural origins which account for their peculiar ethno-psychology have not been adequately investigated and exposed to public scrutiny.

This is due to the tendency to accept their own descriptions, full of their own self-protective coloration, and by the removal of all things Jewish from the arena of rational discussion.

And as for the smear of "anti-Semitism" applied by Zionists to anyone daring to question the legend of the "six million" or examine any aspect of the Jewish Question, we would remind Zionists in South Africa, and everywhere, that an opinion as general as "anti-Semitism" has flourished in all countries and in all ages, before and after the Christian era, at Alexandria, Rome, and Antioch, in Arabia, and in Persia, in mediaeval and in modern Europe.

In a word, it has flourished in all parts of the world wherever there are or have been Jews—and it should be obvious that such an opinion could not spring from mere whim or prejudice, but must be the effect of some deep and serious cause.

Wherever the Jews have settled during their dispersions, the development of "anti-Semitism" is observed. And if hostility had been shown towards the Jews at one time or in one country only, it would be easy to account for the local causes of this sentiment. But this race has been the object of bitter hatred and hostility with all the nations amidst whom it ever settled.

"It must needs be, therefore,"—as pointed out by the French historian Bernard Lazarre, himself a Jew, in his monumental book, entitled Anti-Semitism—"that the general causes of 'anti-Semitism' have always resided in the Jews themselves and not in those who antagonised it."

ZIONISM'S 'TROJAN HORSE'

The accusation of "anti-Semitism" is easy and popular. But it is suppressing the freedom to express one's opinions and thoughts, and at the same time it makes sure that people will not be able to see clearly what is going on in their own countries and in the world at large.

The man-in-the-street knows as much about "anti-Semitism" as the Zionist-controlled media of the world find fit for him to know, and, therefore, in his ignorance he has come to regard Jewry as a "persecuted race," and to him the mere utterance of the word Jew has come to represent "anti-Semitism."

So successful has been this conditioning of Western man that even a new theory has been advanced that "anti-Semitism" is a disease; a mental sickness! But there has rarely been a more glaring manifestation of arrogant conceit in the history of the world than the statement that "anti-Semitism" is a disease! In its essence it proclaims Jewish perfection, Jewish virtue, and Jewish superiority, while relegating the unimpressed, the critical, and the un-worshipping to a psychiatric ward.

What, then, is the basis for alleged anti-Semitism? The answer is that anti-Semitism in itself is non-existent!

It can be proved to be a term of Communist and Zionist invention to shield anti-Gentilism. It may even be said to be the paint of camouflage on Zion's Trojan Horse in the Western World!

IMPORTANCE OF ZIONIST AGENCIES

Nor must we forget the importance of "anti-Semitism" to Zionist organizations themselves. The highly powerful Anti-Defamation League (ADL), with worldwide ramifications, is, for example, one of the most aggressive of these Jewish agencies.

Through its exploitation methods in its appeals for funds, many American Jews have become obsessed with the idea that all non-Jews are either consciously and actively anti-Semitic, or passive and potentially anti-Semitic.

The scare-propaganda of the ADL has served to perpetuate and intensify the persecution complex in the collective Jewish mind. Confidential material mailed to American and other Jews by prganizations appealing for funds is marked "to be destroyed after reading"—thus creating an atmosphere of terrifying secrecy and pending doom.

The ADL and similar organizations picture the Jews as paragons of all virtue, while the Gentiles are cast in the role of persecutors and villains—the sum total of all that is evil and mean.

A chairman of the American Council of Judaism, one of the few organizations in the U.S. which opposes political Zionism, found good reason to warn strongly against this exploitation of "anti-Semitism" in these terms:

"The Zionist movement wants to picture Jews constantly in trouble. It is bad for fund-raising and for immigration to Israel if Jews are not in trouble. But 'trouble' must be of a particular kind. It must be 'Jewish' trouble. It must fit the Zionist pattern of inevitable anti-Semitism just as surely as the 'inevitable' class war fits classic Marxism."

SURVIVAL RESPONSE OF THE NON–JEW

The man-in-the-street has never been allowed to know that is has been the continuation of the Jewish belief that they are "a chosen people" through and into the Christian era—and that all history is directed to their glorification—which are among the main causes of "anti-Jewishness" and which have wreaked such havoc among the nations of the world and brought successive disasters upon the Jews themselves.

On the one hand, they have insisted on being a separate people; a fragmentized nation in dispersion, and, on the other hand, they have sought to change and refashion, after their own image, the religion, the traditions, and the customs of the lands of their exile.

Their members have predominated among the revolutionary and subversive forces at work within all countries to undermine the racial and national structure of the country.

And they have sought, through every medium of propaganda, the universal acceptance of heterogeneity so that their own failure to assimilate may pass unnoticed in the resultant dissonance.

In short, it can quite easily be shown that anti-Jewishness, or "anti-Semitism" sas it is called for Zionist propaganda purposes, has been nothing more than a survival response by non-Jews down through the ages of the Jewish mystique.

Just as, in the same way, the recent reaction of South Africa's Muslims to the slaughter in Beirut was a justifiable response on their part to the subjugation and dispossession of Arabs and Palestinians by the brutal Zionist invaders.

MORAL IMPLICATIONS THE SAME

Our purpose in the South African Observer is not to condone, but to condemn all real atrocities, irrespective of time, place, and person.

If the media told the whole story of what has happened in the Middle East, if the wholesale slaughter and the misery and squalor of the Palestinian inmates of the Middle Eastern concentration camps were photographed and written about with the same motional intensity as that expended on the inmates of Buchenwald and Auschwitz, the people of the world would be horrified.

Instead, the media continue to run sensationalised stories calling for additional reparations from Germany and the German people. But the Jews have not paid one cent of reparation for the billions in land and property they have taken from the Arabs and the Palestinians by force.

There have also been no theatrical war crimes trials for the Zionists who have deliberately massacred men, women, and children of whole villages, right from the time of Deir Yassin in 1948, right up to the massacres in Tyre, Sidon, and West Beirut.

And because not one of the Zionist war criminals has received any meaningful retribution, we believe that Zionists who grind out their non-stop propaganda against the German people—and who, today, scream "anti-Semitism" and "racial incitement" against the Jewish people, at the drop of a hat—they should be sharply reminded that the moral implications are the same in all atrocities.

Justice demands that the world be reminded, before it is too late, that those who have become captors, accusers, and executioners of others, are themselves today deeply stained with the blood of atrocity and mass murder—and must be brought to justice. □

$4.00 Please add 10% for postage and handling! $3.00
For a sample copy of our monthly publication, The Liberty Bell, a copy of our extensive list of 'Eye-Openers,' and several revealing reprints, send $2. to: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

BACK IN PRINT:

MONEY CREATORS
by Gertrude M. Coogan
Reveals Secrets the Money Changers Have Paid
Millions to Conceal! — $5.50

LAWFUL MONEY EXPLAINED
by Gertrude M. Coogan
How To Win Back Your America! — $3.50

Order your copies from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 38

diligent struggle? Maybe I am just too much an aristocrat, hence cannot understand the ways of petty common mankind, and even a man such as Carto betrays his commonality by such absurd bickering.

[This writer is, of course, referring to the smear published in the November 1 issue of "The Spotlight" (see The Liberty Bell for November 1982). We have been informed by one of Carto's henchmen that he inserted the libellous passage in a fit of temper on the basis of a false rumor he had not even tried to verify, and we expect a public apology from him. It is our policy to print interesting letters from our readers, but we simply have too many other worthwhile things to do to waste valuable time in compiling a record of Carto's checkered and partly clandestine career and in trying to determine his motivation in the numerous escapades in which he has been involved in the past. —Ed.]

Life is difficult enough, especially when we are a very weak minority, too difficult for sitting about and sticking knives in each other's backs. I wish I could contribute to your efforts, but I realize by now that you have little respect for the quality of my philosophic and literary abilities—but that does not preclude my appreciation for your good work. . . .

Sincerely yours,
R.H., Colorado

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 18 December 1982

I have been thoroughly stimulated by your fascinating study of religion. The articles and comments are poignant and timely. I don't know which is worse—a Jew or a Jew-loving "Christian." Both are quite equally obnoxious to objective Aryan concepts. Our White nation is in a deep sleep from the hypnotic Jew venom. This poison of suicidal thought must be eradicated. As Mein Fuehrer reawakened a German spirit of racial ideals for civilized progress, Liberty Bell provides more vital information for the survival of the White Race than any hocus-pocus Holy theology or conspiratorial "Bible." Do people want fairy tales and fraudulent history or face up to the reality that blind faith will get us nowhere? The time is coming when intolerable genocide of the White Race will generate a reaction of Blitzkrieg proportions. Crimes of racial treason and mutation will be dealt with accordingly. The mechanics of such an operation are simplistic. We must remove the Jewish cancer!

Enclosed you will find a contribution for your excellence of dignified journalism.

Heil Hitler!
M.D., Washington

* * * * *

Dear George: 20 December 1982

About a week ago I reveived my first copy of Liberty Bell magazine and the booklist. They were all I hoped they would be. It truly did my heart good to learn someone of my race is taking a giant step toward awakening our countrymen to the fact that for the White Man survival is not a spectator sport. . .

Respectfully,
P.F., New Mexico

* * * * *

Dear George: 20 December 1982

Your December issue of Liberty Bell arrived and I have already read all of it.

Just what kind of a mysterious world is this so-called Methodist preacher in your Dec. issue living in? His misled school of theology has him totally blind in believing that Christ was a Jew. Doesn't he know any history? For example: Christianity is but 2000 years old and I am now convinced that after so many revisions of the bible in that lenght of time that it is 85% Jewish now. Also, does he know nothing of the Khazar Empire of 740 A.D.? This was when (as you and I know) Babylon was taken over by overwhelming tremendous manpower of the barberic Mongol-Turks of the Yellow race, meaning that over 90% of all of the jews today are Ashkanazim. On top of this, the word JEW never appeared in our bible until almost the 19th century—1797! Here is where they connived the word Jew from what Jesus was supposed to be—a Judean.

2. Since Christianity is only about 2000 years old, lets go back another 1000 years previous. The Arabian territory of the mid-east, that once ruled the world at one time was a White civilization then the same as Rome, Egypt, Greece, etc. In their bible (long before Christianity was even thought of) the Koran (Islam bible) they too had a man called Jesus that was a messenger the same as Paul or Luke. Many similarities in the Koran and ours. Now lets go back a bit further in history to around 540 A.D. as this was close to the time the Jewish bible (the Talmud) was composed and written. Here you read the extreme opposite of the former bibles spoken about. In the Talmud Christ Jesus was a bastard to them, borne by a whore named Mary while in her menstration by a Roman soldier by the name of Pandara! What extreme opposite versions. If he would just study these other bibles and go to the library to know of the khazars. Does he also believe that the mass-murderer Begin is one of the "chosen people"?

Knowing what I have learned in just the past 15 years, as I was a strong and obdient Lutheran, I see so much more as Jefferson and Franklin that I am practically the same—an Odinist. I believe in the Almighty. He stated that Christ was not a Jew (true) but not a gentile either. What was He then, except a saint in flesh created mystically by the Almighty? He also stated that Christ was a messiah according to the Hebrew bible, and this is true too, but does he know the Hebrew was Not a jew but a White man, and that the original bible was written by the Greek, Chalde and Hebrew (not jew).

3. Does he know that the deceased Pope Paul was half Jew the same as the mayor of New York, F. LaGuardia, and 95% of Hollywood? Both the Prodesant and Catholic churches have been under the control of the

continued on page 53

CREATIVE CREDO No. 37

continued from page 14

THE SIX MILLION LIE

Masters of the Big Lie. The Jews have expertly utilized the "Big Lie" technique since the beginning of their historical existence. Over the last 5000 years, they have become unexcelled masters of that technique. Their religion is based on it, their wealth is based on it, and in fact they owe their very existence to the expertise with which they have manipulated lies to a gullible and (mostly) unsuspecting world.

Over the years, the Jews have spread millions of lies, some of which have served a temporary purpose, while some have persisted for thousands of years. Some have been ineffective, whereas others have been successful beyond their wildest dreams.

Invented the Christianity Swindle. Undoubtedly, their most successful lie of all time has been their invention of Christianity and originally selling this destructive creed to their mortal enemies, the Romans. That lie has wreaked incalculable damage to the White Race and the virus of this fever on the brain is still virulent today. However we now want to examine a modern day invention of the Jews that they have launched with devastating effectiveness and that is the lie that the Germans gassed, incinerated in ovens, or otherwise exterminated six million Jews during World War II.

The Six Million Lie. So effectively have they propagated and disseminated this lie all over the world by means of their gigantic propaganda apparatus that most gullible goyim (without thinking) react emotionally "it must be true, or why would they make such a terrible charge?"

Again, a little investigation and consideration of the facts readily demonstrate how ludicrous this charge really is.

No evidence, no witnesses. In the first place, like the "spooks in the skies" swindle, there is not a single shred of evidence to back up the allegations that Hitler, or the German government, or any officials in it, ever advocated a policy of extermination of the Jews. Although the Jews have written thousands of articles on this subject and dozens of books, when these authors have been questioned and cross-examined, not a single one of them has seen a single oven, a single gas chamber, nor any actual acts of extermination. Nor can they produce a single eye-witness that has seen any such event. Invariably when pinned down, they were "told" by a mythical person who is "now dead", or "read about it," or hearsay of one kind or another. Not one can produce a live eye-witness, either now or in the past.

No such orders, no such policy. Despite the tons of Nazi documents that were captured intact, there is not a single one where an order, or a command, or a policy paper has appeared, or is in existence that recommends, orders or suggests the extermination of Jews, either in mass or singly. All the literature, when investigated, is based on claims that such orders were given "verbally" or could be "read between the lines," or some other such unsubstantiated allegation.

Aimed to strip Jews of their immense power. The fact is neither Hitler nor the German government or any branch of it ever had, or enunciated, such a policy. That the Germans realized the Jews in their midst were their unmitigated misfortune, of that there is no doubt. They wanted them out, and their policy was to strip them of power and encourage them to migrate elsewhere. When the Germans instituted the Nuremberg Racial laws, they forbade the Jews of any positions in the news media, in the universities and schools, in government, in banking and other positions of power that they had dominated in the past. This, and the hostility engendered by the German people finally recognizing the Jews for the degenerative parasites they were, encouraged the Jews to leave that country and seek greener pastures elsewhere.

Cleanse their Nation. The Germans did everything possible to help and encourage the Jew to emigrate. They looked forward to the day (as should we) when their country would be "Judenrein," i.e., cleansed of Jews. They negotiated with Great Britain to help them emigrate to Palestine, at that time (during the 1930's) still a British mandate. In this the British were not very cooperative but increasing numbers did migrate to Palestine, much to the chagrin of the Arabs. The German government, under Goering, also tried to help establish a Jewish homeland on the large island of Madagascar off the coast of Africa.

Zionist Movement. The Madagascar idea had been variously discussed by the Jews themselves in the growing Zionist movement. Theodore Hertzl, considered the father of the Zionist movement, proposed such a plan as early as 1896. There were divided opinions about Madagascar among the Jews, some favoring it, some favoring Palestine. In any case, the Germans did what they could to find the Jews an alternate homeland, although in the short time available before the war neither the Palestine nor Madagascar project materialized. We of the CHURCH OF THE CREATOR intend to revive the Madagascar idea as an ideal "homeland" for surplus Jews, since Israel can't accomodate them all.

Jew Heaven—U.S.A. By far the greater number of Jews migrated to the Jew haven of the world—namely the United States—where their kinsmen were already ravishing the land and wallowing in milk and honey.

Holocaust Claims a Fantastic Lie. The facts are these: There were only 500,000 Jews in Germany when Hitler came to power. Most of these migrated to the U.S. before 1939. There were never more than 3 million Jews in all the territory that Hitler's armies occupied during the entire war, so it was of course physically impossible for them to have killed six million. As already stated, there is not a shred of evidence that the Germans ever proposed, sanctioned, or contemplated such a policy of exterminations.

Jews Declared War on Germany. Even before the war started the Jewish leaders on a world-wide basis had years before declared that world Jewry was at war with Germany, and that they would utilize their immense financial, moral and political powers to destroy Hitler and Nazi Germany. (We have shown this in the previous chapter.) Principal among these was Chaim Weizmann, the Zionist leader, who so declared on September 5, 1939. He was enthusiastically supported by world-wide Jewry in this declaration. Since it has been the custom during war-time for security reasons to intern enemy and subversive aliens, the Germans did intern most, but not all, of the Jews in their territory. Certainly the United States and Canada did the same thing to even the native-born Japanese, solely by the color of their skin and their ancestory. Also most certainly it was done with a lot less provocation, since the native-born Japanese were American or Canadian citizens and had expressed little or no hostility towards the countries in which they were born. Whereas most of the American Nisei were loyal to the United States, they were peremptorily carted off their farms in California and elsewhere, usually having lost their farms forever when the war ended.

Jews were Dangerous Enemy Aliens. Nevertheless, the Germans did intern the Jews in internment camps in a manner similar to the way the United States and Canada did to the Japanese. Certainly they had as much or more reason to do so as did Canada or the U.S. The Germans also did so to other aliens and subversives considered as security risks and dangerous to the war effort. One difference was that in Germany the internees were put to work in factories that were either in existence where the camps were set up, or factories were built at the camps. The Germans, who were exceedingly efficient in war production, as everything else, saw no reason to allow such vast pools of labor, which besides the Jews included Poles, Ukrainians, Czechs and others, to go idle.

Treated Humanely. These internees were well treated and well fed considering Germany's dwindling resources. Often their rations exceeded those received by the Germans themselves.

Jewish Statistics Confirm Lie. As a further proof of the six million lie, we can check into the statistics the Jews put out amongst their own. The World Almanac of 1938 lists the number of Jews in the world as 16,588,259. After the war the New York TIMES, owned by Jews, placed the number of Jews of the world at a minimum of 15,600,000 and maximum of 18,700,000. Averaging out the latter two figures of the New York TIMES would come to approximately 17,100,000. It is therefore impossible by any stretch of the imagination that 6,000,000 Jews could have been exterminated and end up with a net gain in a short period of eight years.

Jews the Big Winner of World War II. So much for the statistics. There are many others that we could quote that lead to the same conclusion: The six million figure is a great big lie. True, many people were killed during the war. A total of 2,050,000 German civilians were killed in allied air raids and forced repatriation after the war. Even some Jews were killed. But relatively they fared better and their casualties were lighter than other combatants involved, especially considering the whole horrible conflict was instigated by the Jews, contrived by the Jews, and incited and provoked by the Jews. Certainly their casualties were negligible considering they were the arch-instigators and sole benefactors of that terrible war, a war that was fought by White brother against White brother, all for the avaricious greed and benefit of the Jews.

If the six million hoax has no basis in fact, the question arises—why would the Jews want to promote such a vicious and horrible lie?

Jews have Profited Tremendously. The answer is: The Jews have profited handsomely from this atrocious lie, as they have a knack of doing with most of the lies they propagate.

1. It aroused world sympathy for the Jews when the world should have been (and thanks to Hitler, partially was) alerted to the dangerous and destructive nature of this world-wide parasite.

2. It acted as a moral club and a propaganda lever with which they have extracted as blackmail $12 billion dollars from the German people as "reparation" to Israel and as "compensation" to individual Jewish claimants. The insanity of such claims can only be appreciated when we considered that many German taxpayers today, who were not even born when the alleged crimes were supposedly committed, are paying "reparation" to a state (Israel) that didn't even exist at that time. Furthermore the list of Jewish claimants, now, over 35 years later has reached a staggering 3,375,000 when there were less than 200,000 Jews in Germany after 1939. Since it has been so easy for the Jews to rob the Germans by means of this so-called "compensation," the number of registered claimants against the West German government has tripled in the last ten years. Nothing could be more devastating proof of the brazen effrontery of the Six Million Lie.

3. It has been devastatingly effective as a propaganda club against the White Race as a whole in trying to preserve its racial integrity. The Six Million Lie has been promoted and propagandized to such a fever pitch of emotionalism that unless the White Race yields and defers to the niggers on every issue, such as housing, welfare, forced busing and in any way voices opposition to race-mixing and integration, they are immediately clubbed with the charge of being racists, and the Nazis were racists, and it led to the death of six million Jews, etc., etc. By this time the Jews are frothing at the mouth and large crocodile tears are rolling down their cheeks. By this time, the gullible goyim yields the floor and defers to the Jew, although he knows he has been shafted. It works every time.

4. By means of this powerful propaganda tool of undercutting White racial loyalty, the Jews are now able to promote race mixing on a gigantic world-wide scale with practically no opposition from the White Race. The Jamaicans, Hindus and Pakastanians are flooding into what was once Great Britian; the Turks and other mud races are all over Germany; the Mexicans, niggers, Cubans, Jamaicans, Chinese and all the colored scum of the world are flooding into this Jewish mecca, the United Saps of America, and the White Race is not lifting a finger to stop them. After all, we don't want to be racists like the Nazis, who killed six million-, etc., so our Jew-programmed mind goes down the groove to oblivion, and the future of the White Race with it.

5. The Six Million lie has been a powerful propaganda tool that enabled the Jews to steal Palestine from the Arabs in 1948 and set up the bandit state of Israel. Thanks to the Six Million lie the Jews had the support and blessing of the befuddled world, especially the Jew-infested United States.

6. The Six Million lie has had a devastating effect in shaming and discrediting the German people, and indirectly the White Race as a whole. Whereas the Germans should be honored for the noble fight they waged in order to expose and shake off the world-wide Jewish pestilence, the powerful and effective Jewish propaganda networks have pictured the Germans as the villains in the eyes of the gullible world.

7. It has rallied and united the Jews of the world as nothing else has in the last thousand years. Although most of the Jews know it is an abominable lie, they keep constantly harping about it amongst themselves (as well as to the outside world) until they have become so hypnotized by their own lie that it actually becomes part of their religion. On this sleazy basis vast sums of money have been raised amongst the Jews themselves and hundreds of organizations formed. All this in the interest of promoting Israel, and the Jewish race, and helping to mongrelize the White Race.

"Holocaust" Lie—Jewish Rallying Cry. This lie, then, has become the rallying cry of the modern day Jew, a continuation of the oldest lie in their tumultuous history—namely that the Jews are a persecuted race. It has worked wonders for them. It has been devastatingly effective as a twoedged sword. It has demolished any attempt by the White Race to retain their own racial integrity, or even any form of nationalism. On the other hand, it has made the Jews fanatically nationalistic when it concerns Israel, fanatically racist when it concerns Zionism or the Jewish race. It has battered down the doors of all countries they may want to move into and at the same time opened those same doors to the niggers and mud races as well.

Jews now More Powerful than ever. So powerful a tool has this depraved Six Million Lie become that not only individuals but governments of nations cower before it while the Jews take charge, silencing any and all opposition. Dr. Max Nussbaum, the former chief Rabbi of the Jewish community in Berlin, openly bragged on April 11, 1953, "the position the Jewish people occupy in the world today, despite its tremendous losses, is ten times stronger than it was twenty years ago."

He is right on half of his statement. They suffered no "tremendous losses," but they are ten times stronger than they were before the White Race was inveigled into that bloody, fratricidal holocaust, known as World War II, incited and provoked by the Jews themselves. Much of this increased strength they have acquired thanks to the despicable Six Million Lie.

Additional copies of this 12-page pamphlet: 5/$1.50; 100/$20.; 500/$80. available from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21. Reedy, WV 25270 USA.

BOOKS BY BEN KLASSEN-THE CHURCH OF THE CREATOR

Nature's Eternal Religion ..... $ 8.00
The White Man's Bible ..... $ 8.00
Salubrious Living ..... $ 5.50
Survival of the White Race LP Record ..... $ 5.00

Reprints from The White Man's Bible:

Order No. 10058: Questions and Answers about Creativity: 4 for $1.50 – 10 for $3.50 – 100 for $30.00 – 500 for $120.00

Order No. 10059: Superstition and Gullibility: Achilles Heel of the White Race; Gullibility Rating Quiz: 5 for $1.50 – 100 for $20.00 – 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10062: A few obvious questions we would like Christians to explain with some sensible answers; Why we indict Christianity so strongly: 8 for $1.50 – 25 for $4.00 – 100 for $14.00 – 500 for $60.00.

Order No. 10069: Observations about the Devil and Hell; Thumbscrew and Rack; The Spooks-in-the-Sky swindle: 5 for $1.50 – 100 for $20.00 – 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10072: Russia, Israel and the United States: 5 for $1.50 – 100 for $20.00 – 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10073: World Jewry declared War on Germany long before Germany took Action against Jews; The 6 Million Lie: 5 for $1.50 – 100 for $20.00 – 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10075: The Melting Pot: The ugly American Dream; Civilization without a Racial Religion: A Self-destructive process for the White Race; The Glory and the Catastrophe that was Rome: A Lesson for all time: 3 for $1.50 – 10 for $4.00 – 100 for $36.00 – 500 for $150.00.

Order No. 10081: We shall be masters of our own Manifest Destiny—Winning of the West: Prototype for winning of the world; The War with Mexico 1846-48: An unfinished War: Single Copy $1.25 – 10 for $10.00 – 100 for $80.00 – 500 for $250.00.

For Postage and Handling, please include:
$1. for orders under $10.—10% for orders over $10. USA—
15% foreign countries. W.Va. residents must include 5% for Sales Tax.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, continued from page 46

Jewish people the past 35 years or less. How this man could ever go back to the 6th century B.C. and say that an Aryan becomes a Jew AGAIN is beyond all comprehension. He should pound in his noodle very simplified facts: Aryan is White—Jew is Ashkanazim yellow! To read between the lines I would not be one bit surprised to learn that Rev. Hand is of jewish decent, as he goes on to say that David was King of the Jews—what he means is King of the Judeans. He also spoke of The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion but does not give you one example of how they despised and hated Christ (whom they crucified) but the White clan included. I would like to have him explain to me just how Jesus would wish to become the king of the jews while the bible repeatedly states that He chased them out of the church (usery) and called them thieves, murderers and the sons of Lucifer the devil.

In conclusion, George, I thought your topic by Ben Klassen was exceptionally good so enclosed is $25. to send me 100 copies. Thanks for your time and Seasons Greetings to all.

PS: "Appeal to Sanity" by G. Pittam was very good also.

An American of German descent,
R.K., Pennsylvania

We forwarded a copy of the preceding letter to Rev. Hand for comment; here is his reply:

Dear George: 27 December 1982

In reply to your reader from Pennsylvania, may I inform him of the following facts:

1. The question of Jesus' racial origin, whether he was Jewish or Gentile, is a moot question. His race cannot be proven. That he was a Gallilean is a certainty. Nothing more. The statement we find in religious literature are all open to criticism and are of dubious origin. So, if one claim contradicts another, it is of no surpirise to me. Many Christian cults of the early Christian period competed for supremacy of their group. To these groups it was expedient to provide historical data where none existed before. Thus we find a swindling and conniving cultic leadership making preposterous claims about their own Jesus.

2. Your writer says that Christianity is 85% Jewish now, after 2000 years, or rather that the Bible is 85% Jewish. I don't know where he gets his figures. But, apparently he never learned that St. Paul was an Israelite of Israelites, a Pharasee and a Jew and a member of the Jews' religion before his conversion to Christ. That all of Jesus' followers, as well as Jesus himself, were frequent attendees of the synagogue each Sabbath. That the first mass conversion of persons to the Church on the day of Pentecost were Jews on religious pilgrimage to Jerusalem for the Holy Days. That only St. Paul, of all the apostles, broke with apostolic tradition and opened the church door wide to the Gentiles. The question as given was confusing, but should have been asked as follows: How could an all-Jewish church have commanded the undeserved respect of 500-million Gentiles in 2000 years?, and how does an all-Jewish authorship of the New Testament intend pro-Gentile passages to be taken and construed by the non-Jewish reader?

3. The Khazar Empire, according to Allen H. Godby, in his massive book entitled "The Lost Tribes A Myth," was a late-comer on the scene. There were, according to him, elements of the 10 Lost Tribes living in the region of Khazaria long before the arrival of the Turks and Mongols. These Israelites practiced an older version of Jahwism than what Jews practice today. The name Khazaria may be a derivative of HAZOR, the northern-most city of ancient Canaan. If this is so, Khazaria means the Hazorites, or the Ten tribes of Northern Israel. They lived a mercantile existence, trading in copper and silk, cotton, gold and amber (to name a few), and became a strong influence upon their recent captors, the Turkic-Mongols, who adopted their name Khazars. So the conversion of the Khazars to Judaism in the 8th century was possible via the presence of older Jahwism, which was an active force among the newly arrived orientals.

4. That 90% of all Jews today are Ashkenazim is a confusing statement by your letter writer. For one thing, I take it that he uses Ashkenazim as a synonym for Khazar. If so, we read in "The Lost Tribes A Myth," "The Khazars represented the greatest commingling of ethnic elements of any political power in Europe," page 258. So, what is an Ashkcnazim? A mere mongrel, I suppose, consisting of every race of humanity.

5. The word Jew appears in the New Testament 22 times. Note Roman 1:16 as an example. The Bible I use as a source is the King James version which is vintage 1611 A.D., a full 2 centuries before the date alleged by your writer. (Those short, imprecise tractates which circulate among Identity Bible students, which try to show that the word Jew is a late invention, is a tautological bit of shabby scholarship.) In short, a Jew is a person of the tribe of Judah. And by way of expansion, a Jew is one who fits into the racial and/or cultural milieu of Judaism. The territory of Judea is nothing less than the land which was once the primary domain of the tribe of Judah.

6. Your writer apparently is confused about the date of the Koran and the life of Mohammed. He thinks that Islam predates Christianity. I wonder how he expects to instruct me if I know so little about Western Civilization. For the Jesus of the Koran is the same Jesus as is written of in the gospels. Mohammed began his Hegira (migration) in September 622 A.D. and is designated as the beginning of the Islamic era.

As for the Talmud, he gives a date of 540 A.D. for its writing and composition. However, the Jewish Encyclopedia, 1970, edited by Cecil Roth, informs us that the authorities quoted in the Talmud date from 200 A.D.—400 A.D. Before 200 A.D. The first phase of Talmudic writing began as an attempt to record what was previously an oral tradition among the elders, and doctors of the Torah.

7. I do believe that Menachem Begin is a mass-murdering "chosen person." He is an arch-typical Joshua—see Joshua 24:—.

8. The confusion with which I am met by your writer's third paragraph makes a reply almost impossible. I'll say this: he confuses races of people with names of languages. Many Hebrew Jews spoke Chaldean, or Greek. He seems to think of Jew as a language. Strange!

9. Skipping most of paragraph 4. I'll assent that Jesus lived in a multi-purposed grass-roots political environment. As such, all Jews were not pursuing the same political ends. So Jesus could whip the Sadduccee money changers to the great satisfaction of their Pharisee critics. In conjunction with this last thought, it is mistakenly assumed that Jews represent a monolithic movement. They are a unified people, but this unity if flawed by the corrupt character of the Jews themselves. The undoing of Jewish power will in part be accomplished by headstrong dissembling of rival Jewish power blocks. Mistrust within the ranks of Judaism will bring about severe dissentions among themselves until they fight each other. One fraction of the Old Testament deals with the fracturing syndrome among Hebrews, etc. It leads to internecine warfare, and parasitism turned in upon itself.

Of German Descent,
Ronald Hand

* * * * *

Mr. George Dietz: 22 December 1982

I wish to apologize for the recent rude letter I sent you. I am very muchh ashamed of such uncivil behavior. I stumble more than I should!

You are very correct that much killing has been done in the name of Christianity which is really not Christianity at all.

Numerous of your writers note the connection between the U.S. Government-Bankers and Blue Chip Corporations and Communism.

Is this not also true of Nazism as documented by Anthony Sutton? It seems to me Hitler and the German people were set up by these 3 interests so that they could be destroyed completely.

Does this not prove there is a grand design to destroy the white race, Christianity and Western Civilization?

Sincerely,
L.A., Pennsylvania

* * * * *

Dear George: 23 December 1983

We would appreciate it if you could print this group-picture of us in The Liberty Bell. If you can do this for us, George, we all will certainly appreciate it.

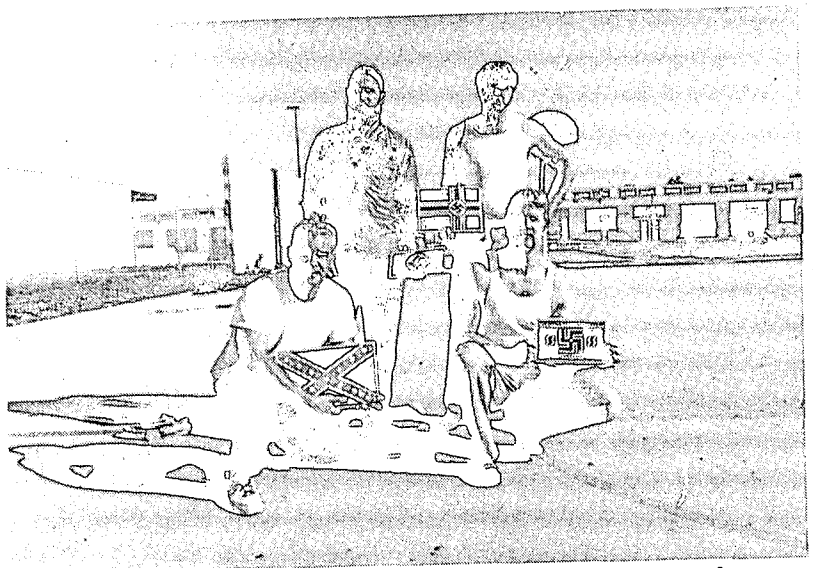
Sincerely,
Melvin Cox (Number and address below)

Photo reproduced on following page! —Ed.

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 26 December 1982

Enclosed is check, please renew my subscription for another year as I would certainly miss getting the Liberty Bell. Look forward to each issue.



These loyal and sincere Racial Kinsmen would be happy to hear from our subscribers and supporters. They are, left to right, front: Melvin L. Cox, No.19334-175, H-Unit; George M. Ast, E-Unit. Back: Steve Bendle, No. 00400-124, H-Unit, and James H. Davis, No. 53109-265, H-Unit, all at: P.O. Box W, Lompoc, CA 93438.

Thank you for keeping them as interesting. Do enjoy your comments.

Sincerely,
Mrs. E.S., California

* * * * *

26 December 1982

Dear Mr. Dietz:

I am a prisoner in Alabama, and just wanted to drop you a few lines to commend you and your staff for your most informative "Liberty Bell," which I read with fervor each month. [This writer has no subscription to The Liberty Bell yet; we invite our readers to enter a subscription for this fellow White Man. —Ed.]

I would like to highly recommend for comrades to obtain a copy of the book "The Dispossed Majority," by Wilmot Robertson. I enjoyed my copy immensely. It's the most informative history of obscure facts, which are too numerous to mention, I've ever read.

To you and your staff a happy and prosperous New Year.

(I would like to correspond with any comrade!)

Sincerely,
Bill McNabb
P.O. Box 37, Holman Station, AL 36503

* * * * *

27 December 1982

Dear Mr. Dietz:

I have a suggestion for all the Veterans who read the Liberty Bell, to write their congressman and Senators and demand the release of Rudolf Hess from prison.

And, because of the smear you got from the "Spotlight," I am going to cancel my subscription, because you are a friend to all Veterans.

Best regards,
Thomas Streib
Veterans Hospital, Tomah, WI 54660

* * * * *

Dear old sleazy character: 28 December 1982

I have quite a number of questions that I would like to have answered and can't think of anyone who could do a better job of answering them than you. Here they come.

I think it was on April 14, 1979, when people all over the country were lined up trying to get enough gas to take them to work and back, that the Jews threw a big whing ding and airlifted 15,000 Bolshevik Jews from Rome to New York in a 24-hour period. This took millions of gallons of precious gasoline. Walter Cronkite took about one minute at the end of his broadcast to tell about it and he stated, "At no time in the history of man has this many people been moved that distance in that amount of time."

Now, in my opinion, that is a scoop for the newspapers. But, as far as I know, not one paper in the country mentioned it. Why?

Simon "the Weasel" Wiesenthal has been running all over the world trying to find anyone who might have killed a Jew on purpose or by accident during WW II, to bring them to court and punish them. Suppose we had men running all over Germany and Japan trying to find anyone who might have killed one of our boys during that same war forty years ago. What would the rest of the world think of us? Is it wrong to forgive and forget? It must be. Jimmy Carter had Congress give Wiesenthal $250,000 to help him in his nefarious business.

A black man emptied his gun a couple of times into the home of a White man and into the yard where his children were playing. The judge gave him a $100 fine and turned him loose!

Two White men shot out some windows in a communist meeting place at a time when the building was empty. One of them got ten years in prison, and the other hasn't been brought to trial yet. Why such a difference in justice?

Someone blew up a White man's church in Idaho. The Jewish Defense League called in and took credit for it. No one made any attempt to arrest anyone and it was such a minor crime that the establishment news ignored it.

Suppose someone blew up a Jewish synogogue and the KKK called in and took credit for the crime. Would they be accorded the same treatment?

The Jewish Defense League has a place where they go to practice with machine guns and explosives, and the law doesn't seem to notice. If the Klan went out and practiced with machine guns and explosives, would they be ignored also? I thought it was a crime for anyone to have a machine gun or explosives in one's possession.

Hitler allegedly gassed six million Jews, but he didn't leave enough evidence for anyone to prove that he even gassed one. There is a $50,000 reward out to anyone who can prove that there ever was such a thing as a holocaust—and no takers! No one can dig up enough evidence. No bones, no ashes or anything. That Hitler must have been a mighty shrewd man. Who could go out today and murder six million people and erase all the evidence so well that they couldn't indict him for murder? Wonder where we could find a man like him? He could solve all our problems.

In 1979, along with the 15,000 quick acting Jews, another 45,000 slow ones came to the United States. Right now, with millions of our American people out of work, we sort of wonder just what became of these 65,000 Jews. Are they on welfare, getting food stamps? Do they have well-paying jobs and are living off the fat of the land, or were they all millionaires when they left Russia? We wonder.

Is there anyone in the United States who knows of just one Jew who is married, has a family, goes to church and belongs to a Jewish organization, is hard up, able-bodied and willing to work at anything and cannot find a job?We would like to know of just one case!

When Europe came up six million Jews short after the War; we know that one million went to Israel and it is rumored that the other five million came into the United States under Roosevelt without any word of it through the establishment news. Did all these people take an examination to get their naturalization papers, or were they handed their papers when they got off the boat and made instant citizens. This is something that would be worth looking into.

The A.C.L.U. is busy running all over the country making the people take down nativity scenes. They are highly excited about a cross that the people in northeast Georgia erected on a mountain and want it torn down. They say it is against our Constitution to erect anything religious in a public park.

Across the street from the White House, in Lafayette Park, the Jews put up a monstrosity and it is a religious something or other, and it looks like the name of it sounds. I don't remember the name, but it sounds like "Manure." Really a good name for that pile of crap. How come the A.C.L.U. aren't all worked up over this thing?

I read where some Jewish woman was trying to find out what became of 15 Jewish families who lived near Berlin before the War. All the Jewish organizations of whom she inquired told her that they were all gassed. She didn't give up and, finally, one organization put her in touch with one of the people she was searching for. She wrote to her and was invited to come to a reunion. When she arrived she said she never was so surprised in her life. Everyone of those fifteen families were there. Those people sure stood up real good under that gassing. They must be immune to gas! Never try to gas a Jew—it doesn't work!

When I was in Florida, I happened to see an old greasy looking Jew and his old, greasy looking wife sitting out in a yard with a leaf over their noses to keep the sun from burning them and a sign which read, "Gentiles not welcome." I doubt if they had been in our country long enough to learn our language, yet we're not welcome. That does something to you.

Well, George, you may not go around dressed like Robert Redford or live in a million dollar mansion, but when it comes to patriots, in my opinion, you are the tops. The Spotlight lost a lot when they called you a "sleazy character." Sixty dollars a year from me and there are others. Keep up the good work. There are a lot of us sleazy characters out there.

Yours,
A.H., Ohio

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 28 December 1982

It has been a year since I started to re-educate myself so that I might have a better understanding of what the hell is going on!

I was once like the general public. I was a mindless zombie! I knew only what the Jews wanted me to know. Anything that went against their teachings was to be rejected without a second thought.

In school, my teachers taught me that all men are created equal. Anyone who disagreed with that theory was to be ridiculed and hated.

In church, my priest taught me that all men are equal in the eyes of the lord, and that we should help those who cannot help themselves, but, now, finally, I realize that they were wrong!

Only after reading the White Man's Bible by Ben Klassen have I begun to see the light in the once endless darkness.

Sincerely,
A.S., Illinois

* * * * *

Dear George: 30 December 1982

Have a Happy New Year for you and your whole family. May God help you in your noble fight against our common enemy. Today, for the first time in my life, I felt the sting of the Jew. They took me for $500 just for writing an agreement!!! Now I felt it on my own skin. Now I know why you describe them the way you do. This is because they deserve it fully. How can someone take somebody for $500 to make an agreement which took no more than 30 minutes? Only a Jewish lawyer can do that to someone who is not of his own blood. Of course, I had no other choice but to do it, since otherwise it would cost me much much more than that. They realized that I had no choice and took the occasion to swindle me.

I don't throw away any of your magazines, but give them to other persons to read them after I am finished with them. But I think until someone feels on himself the sting which I felt now, no one can truly realize that what you are writing is 100% right and true. Let's hope that everbody will get his sting sometime, so they will open their eyes before it is too late.

I.D., California

* * * * *

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly— basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20. or $100 or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. Postage stamps, in any denomination, and printing paper and supplies (please write for specifics) are always needed and will be gratefully accepted.

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to patriots who do not yet know about what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, stickers and reprints. Order extra copies of The Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends and neighbors, urging them to subscribe to our publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue.

Pass along your copy of The Liberty Bell and copies of reprints you obtained from us to friends or acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

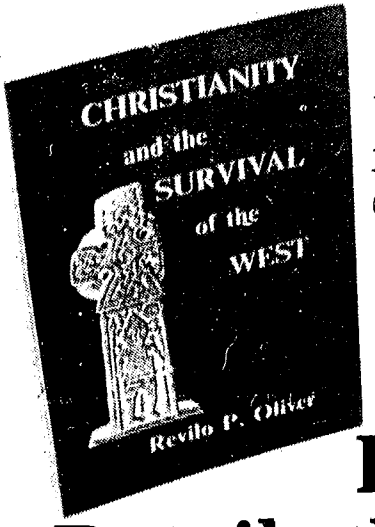
Carry on the fight to free America and the world from alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit, You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

a. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

b. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY!
HELP FREE AMERICA FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!

Those who WILL NOT read
Have no advantage over
Those who CANNOT read



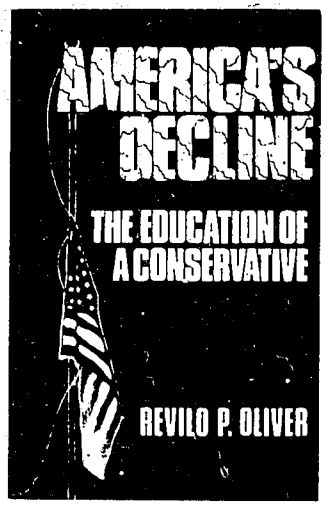
Will the end of our religion mean the end of our race?

A Great Iconoclast Details the Causes and Consequences of the Religious Disintegration of Western Man

Quality paperback, 84 pp. — $4.00 plus 65 cents for postage & handling
Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE TALMUD

containing the MIDRASHIM, the CABBALA, the RABBINICALANA, PROVERBIAL SAYINGS and TRADITIONS. 395 pages, softcover, $20.00. Order from: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM "AMERICA'S DECLINE".

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

376 pp., pb. $8.50
plus $1 for post. & hdlg.

ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

The Liberty Bell

SINGLE COPY $1.75

The Money Myth exploded

Modern Taxation is Legalised Robbery

page 13

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

SHOULD THE FED BE DETHRONED?, page 1 – THE BRUTAL TRUTH ABOUT INFLATION AND FINANCIAL ENSLAVEMENT: THE FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD—THE MOST GIGANTIC COUNTERFEITING RING IN THE WORLD, page 5 – RADICAL RIGHTIST HAS 'REGRETS', page 63

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1981 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

Should The FED Be Dethroned?

by Allan Callahan

"Nothing but money counts nowadays; it wins honors, it wins friends; everywhere the poor man is down."
— Ovid

THE Tennessee Professional Builder, for its Jan.-Feb., 1982 issue, had for its cover a WANTED poster of Chairman Paul Volcker and the other six governors of the Federal Reserve System. This construction-trade publication charged "THE MALEFICENT 7" with "premeditated and cold-blooded murder of millions of small businesses" and "kidnapping (and holding for ransom) the American dream of home ownership."

Ever since its birth, under rather mysterious circumstances, in 1913, the Federal Reserve System has been controversial, and there have always been a few voices raised in favor of abolishing it altogether. But with our economy in its present condition, and our alarmingly increasing debt structure, the voices are now increasing in number. "A great counterfeiting ring," is the way it is described by some critics. Others say it is nothing short of legal plunder at the point of law, with the fountain pen replacing the gun. And not a few have pointed out the fact that it has not lived up to the thing most expected of it—the prevention of "business cycles." And though public feeling against the Fed has not turned into a groundswell, it is quite possible that this may happen, and result in Congress doing away with the Fed entirely. Although it was given autonomy at its birth, still it was created by Congress, and whatever Congress creates it can also destroy. It should be remembered that the First and Second Banks of the United States bit the dust when their charters expired. And a modern President of the U.S., should he become sufficiently wrathful, might behave as President Andrew Jackson once did. Old Hickory, sorely provoked by the machinations of the big bankers of his era, roared in outrage: "You are den of vipers and thieves. I intend to rout you out, and by the eternal God, I will rout you out!"

It should be noted that the Federal Reserve is really not "federal" at all. The Federal Reserve Banks are private stock corporations. It is true that Congress handed over to them the power to manage our money, but that still does not make them "federal." A private dry cleaning establishment, if given the job of cleaning the robes of the Supreme Court Justices, would not thus become the "Federal Dry Cleaners;" nor would a private car wash, delegated to washing government limousines, become the "Federal Car Wash."

In the beginning, supporters of the Federal Reserve said that, if this system were put into effect, there would never be another depression; but if one did begin, the Fed, with its great powers and efficiency, would quickly nip it in the bud. Yet, sixteen years later, the greatest depression in our history began, and it was not "nipped in the bud" either. In fact, the Great Depression went on for more than ten years, not really ending until the military spending (and debt-building) of WW II laid it to rest. Until the war came along, the puny efforts of the Fed were like "pushing on a string." They were fruitless.

Of course, the Fed still has many who more or less defend it. Some think it is doing a tolerably good job. Others allow that it is doing a poor job, but believe that it is still a better job than Congress could do, if it took over the creation of money itself, as is called for in the Constitution. Their feelings could be summed up in the comment of Senator Jake Garn: "I'll be darned if we are going to put Congress or the Administration in charge of monetary policy. I don't think we want people who so badly mismanaged the fiscal policy of this country to manage the monetary policy." Those who share his views fear that, if Congress—pulled this way and that by special interest groups—were to take over the printing of money, it would quickly bring down the roof, and they are grudgingly willing to let the independent Federal Reserve continue to create our money, and exact its "pound of flesh" as tribute.

But what of its "successes;" our periods of "prosperity" that have occurred since 1913? Can the Federal Reserve take credit for these? Possibly, if you call prosperity built upon debt a good thing. And if we examine these periods, we will see that this is more or less what has happened. Now, how can debt-building be good for a nation, if it is risky for an individual? If a man with no assets goes out and buys a new car, a new wardrobe, and a bunch of other things, all on credit, can we say that he is "prosperous?"

Of course, we had debts in the nation before 1913, but they were small compared to what we have had since the Federal Reserve System came into being. Since then, debts have become institutionalized. Still, some economists profess not to be worried by our gigantic debt structure, saying it is not out of line when compared to our Gross National Product. But the Fed itself must be at least a little bit worried, because it has brought on all of our recessions by restricting credit. To appreciate the irony of this, we should understand that the Federal Reserve is trying to prevent the economy from running amuck by hamstringing it.

One question that has never been satisfactorily answered, as far as I know, is why the Fed was established under so much secrecy to start with? If the big money men, who originally set it up, were such great public benefactors, then why all the hush-hush? Spies in an enemy country would hardly have acted differently.

On the night of November 22, 1910, Senator Nelson Aldrich (himself a big money man) prepared to surreptitiously board his private railway car, with some other magnates, at the station at Hoboken, New Jersey. However, the newspapers had been tipped off that something big was about to happen, and a crowd of reporters were waiting at the station. But Aldrich would not answer a single question asked by the reporters, nor would any of his companions. They brusquely pushed on through them and boarded the train. They left, with shades drawn, on a secret 1,000-mile journey to Jekyll Island, Georgia. With Aldrich were Frank Vanderlip, Henry P. Davison, Charles D. Norton, Paul M Warburg, Benjamin Strong, and several lesser lights. Vanderlip was president of National City Bank of New York, which represented the interest of Rockefeller and Jacob Schiff. Davison represented J. P. Morgan, and Warburg represented Kuhn-Loeb. Norton was president of Morgan-owned First National Bank of New York, and Strong was a Morgan lieutenant. These money moguls stayed nine days at a secluded hunting club owned by J. P. Morgan.

The charge of great secrecy in planning the Federal Reserve System is no loose charge, but was admitted by Vanderlip himself, although many years elapsed before the admission came. In an article in the Saturday Evening Post, in 1935, he admitted that he was "as secretive, indeed as furtive, as any conspirator" in his role in the affair, and, of course, so were the others. Furthermore, Vanderlip stated in his autobiography, From Farmboy to Financier, that "our secret expedition to Jekyll Island was the occasion of the actual conception of what eventually became the Federal Reserve System."

The secrecy was carried to extremes. When the men arrived at Jekyll Island, on the estate of J. P. Morgan, they gave the regular servants at the club two weeks vacation, and brought in new ones for the occasion. They allowed no visitors, and were so anxious to keep their identities secret from their temporary servants that they made a rule among themselves that they would call each other by their first names only.

Twenty-five years later, in the aforementioned Post article, Vanderlip did make a brief attempt to defend the secrecy when he said that it would have been "fatal" to Senator Aldrich's plan to have it known that "anybody from Wall Street" was there to help him with his momentous work. But this lame explanation is both unsatisfactory und unconvincing, and leaves still more unanswered questions. If the public didn't trust Wall Street, then why not? Was this distrust justified? We can also ask why these big money manipulators didn't first present their plan to open debate in the House and Senate? Why didn't they take their case directly to the people, who stood to be so directly affected by the whole thing? There is little doubt that these moguls knew full well that, if the truth were known, the public wouldn't buy it. Henry Ford once said: "If the people of this country knew how their money was being handled, there would be a revolution tomorrow morning."

Up until 1913, Vanderlip had gone on record as favoring greater publicity for the affairs of corporations, yet, here he did a complete flip-flop. There are only two plausible explanations: either he thought the American people were to dumb to understand the thing he and his partners in crime intended to create, or else they had something to hide. It doesn't take any great genius to figure out that their creation was designed primarily to benefit their own banking crowd, rather than the public.

Who actually owns the FRS? As already pointed out, the Government does not. Nor do the member banks own it; at least not in the usual sense. They do have stock in it, but their stock carries no proprietary interest—and thus no vote. McChessny Martin, a former Chairman of the Fed—in response to a question put by Congressman Wright Patman of the Banking Committee in 1956—said, "The Banks do not own the Federal Reserve System."

If Martin knew what he was talking about (and he should have), then the real owners of the Fed make up an esoteric group whose existence is one of the best kept secrets around. A few who have pried into the matter have come to the conclusion that about 300 people actually own our central bank; most are known to each other, and are said to comprise a world-wide banking cartel of wealth and power that would boggle the mind. Many are foreigners [Foreign Jews, to be exact. —Ed. LB]. These Masters of Money control the principal banking houses in the West, and operate an interlocking system. Listed are: Warburg Bank of Amsterdam and Hamburg; Rothschild Bank of London and Berlin; Lehman Brothers of New York; Lazard Brothers of Paris; Kuhn-Loeb Bank of New York; Israel Moses Sief Banks of Italy; Goldman-Sachs of New York, and the Rockefeller Chase Manhattan Bank.

Of course, the FRS spokesmen deny this. But if it's true, one can see why they would not want the facts to become known.

Another thing they tell us is that the Federal Reserve Banks are not operated for a profit, and they return to the U.S. Treasury all earnings in excess of operating and other expenses, plus statutory dividends paid on stock owned by member banks. This all sounds fine, until we remember that the excess money returned to the Treasury was all created out of thin air, and at no cost other than the cost of the paper and ink used in the printing process, to start with, and that the Treasury could just as well have created the money itself.

Fed spokesmen also maintain that their banks "generate their own income primarily from interest earned on government securities that are acquired in the course of Federal Reserve monetary policy actions." What they do not make clear is that these securities are also created out of thin air, just as are Federal Reserve Notes and "checkbook money." When one is using air for building materials, along with a bit of paper and ink, one can afford to be generous and return a litte to the Treasury.

If the Fed was really doing a bang-up job of managing our money and was staffed with financial geniuses, we might not begrudge its skimming a little cream off the top for expenses and even making a small profit, but obviously this is not the case. Instead, we have had one depression, a number of recessions, and now are saddled with a staggering national debt

continued on page 61

The Brutal Truth about Inflation and Financial Enslavement

THE FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD

The most Gigantic Counterfeiting Ring in the World

Reprinted with the author's permission from The White Man's Bible, Copyright 1981,
by Ben Klassen

How to Steal the World With Worthless Paper

IF YOU WERE to rack your brains to find the most direct, fastest means of acquiring a monopoly of all the wealth in this world, by fair means or foul, undoubtedly the idea of setting up a gigantic money printing press would cross your mind. In short, go into the counterfeiting business on a massive, worldwide scale.

What is quicker than having such huge printing presses spewing out millions of ten dollar notes, twenty dollar notes, fifties, hundreds, even thousand and ten thousand dollar notes? It is all profit, except for the ink and paper, which, incidentally, costs less than half a cent per note, whether it is a one dollar bill or a thousand dollar bill.

There is only one catch, supposedly. Counterfeiting is illegal, and governments crack down hard on violators and the penalties are harsh. In fact, the Founding Fathers of the United States, realizing the AWESOME POWER that is INHERENT IN THE ISSUANCE OF MONEY, clearly reserved these rights to Congress and Congress alone. Article1, Sec. 8, Par. 5, of the Constitution of the United States says, "Congress shall have the power to coin money, and regulate the value thereof." But what if you and your gang were so highly successful that once you got going you not only owned the presses, but you had ample money to have a monopoly of the news media, and, subsequently, own the government as well? Having done so, your captive government could then make it legal for you to own and run the printing presses at will. They could then spew out the money for you by the carload. Not only that, but you could insure your great good fortune by having the printing presses run for you under the legal auspices of the established government itself and hand over all the printed money to you, free of charge, except, again, for the insignificant cost of the paper and the ink. Not only would your captive government make it legal for you to be in the counterfeiting business in a huge way, but you could even have them give you a legal MONOPOLY, thereby keeping all other competitors out of your racket. Wouldn't that be great?

A wild idea, you say? Perhaps. But not at all impossible. Not only is it possible, but it is an accomplished fact. It is, in fact, a harsh, cold reality, much to our detriment. Those crisp green bills you are now carrying in your wallet are the product of such a counterfeit ring. The International Jewish Bankers accomplished that wild dream back in December, 1913, when they inveigled Congress to pass the FEDERAL RESERVE ACT and thereby created the Federal Reserve System, a private (not government) corporation, for themselves.

This Jewish gang of criminals has rapidly been accumulating unto themselves, not only the wealth of the United States, but of the world, ever since. Strange, you say? Not at all! It is not really so strange that they would try to do so. Being a rapacious, piratical tribe for the last several thousand years, and having manipulated the money of the world for the same period of time, it is not at all strange that the Jews would try to monopolize the creation and control of money, the most powerful tool in the world. IT WOULD 'BE STRANGE IF THEY HAD NOT ATTEMPTED TO DO SO. They have been monopolizing money and the financial control of White nations for millennia. The thing that is strange is that the White goyim has not caught on and realized that the Jews have captured for themselves the money-creating machinery of the United States, and also the rest of the world.

Federal Reserve — A Private Jewish Maffia

There is not one American in ten thousand that doesn't believe and take for granted that the Federal Reserve System is a government agency. But nothing is further from the truth. THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS ARE OWNED—LOCK, STOCK AND BARREL—BY A CRIMINAL GANG OF INTERNATIONAL JEWISH BANKERS, a gang that hasn't the slightest interest in serving the best interests of the American people. On the contrary, this scurvy gang of criminals is viciously intent on destroying the White Race that built America, despite the fact that the White Race is the only element that can keep America (and the world) from collapsing into chaos.

The Federal Reserve System, the Federal Reserve Banks, and its many branches and adjuncts, can be considered as a unit. For the sake of simplicity, we will simply refer to it as the FEDERAL RESERVE.

Not only does the U.S. Government not own the Federal Reserve, it is, in fact, the other way around. THE FEDERAL RESERVE OWNS THE U.S. GOVERNMENT and manipulates it like a puppet, solely for the interests of this avaricious international gang of Jewish jackals, who control the world, its money, and its economy.

To most Americans, this comes as a major shock. Unbelievable, they say. Ask any banker as to who owns the Federal Reserve and they will lugubriously explain that the Federal Reserve stock is owned by the member banks, divided into twelve districts, that the President appoints members to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve, etc.

All this is partially true—as far as it goes, but it is pure window dressing. The few details about the Federal Reserve that are known are widely disseminated. Their sole objective is to act as a smoke screen for the real ownership, the real control. What little is known to the public (and very little is known about the Federal Reserve) is very selective non-information, fed to the local bankers in order to confuse them rather than inform them. Even most local bank presidents are so ignorant about the real nature of the Federal Reserve that they believe it is a government-owned agency rather than a privately-owned corporation solely for profit.

The Brutal Facts

The real facts are somewhat different from what the average banker thinks. The are as follows:

1. The real ownership and control of the Federal Reserve is vested in the Class A stock. The names of those owning this stock are impossible to obtain. Ask your local bank president and he'll be much surprised to find out there is a Class A stock. He will not have the slightest inkling as to its ownership. He is not alone. Those names have never been divulged, not even to the President, or the Congress of the United States. Nor has any Congressional Committee ever had the nerve to honestly investigate the question of that ownership. This should give us some indication of the Federal Reserve's power, and raise a red alert.
2. Its inception, formation and dovetailing with other such institutions in foreign countries indicates that without a doubt it is owned by a powerful clique of International Jewish Bankers, most of whom are not even citizens of this country.
3. To further indicate what absolute power this monster exercises over our government and economy, the Federal Reserve has pre-empted unto itself some unusual and highly illegal privileges. For instance, it pays no income tax as do other corporations, nor does it pay taxes of any other kind.
4. The Federal Reserve has never been publicly audited since its inception in 1913.
5. The Federal Reserve, by having the power to issue money, can "create" money as easily as any other counterfeiting gang with a printing press, the only difference being that it can and does do so on a massive scale and has "legal" sanction to do so. The tremendous profits from this counterfeit operation all accrue to the International gang of Jewish Bankers, at the expense of the working people.

6. America, a little over a generation ago, owned nearly half the gold of the world. In 1934, Roosevelt, a shabbas-goy, a willing stooge for the Jews, made it illegal for American citizens to any longer own gold, although any foreign swindler, horsethief, or government could, and still can, exchange their dollars for American gold. He made statutory criminals out of American citizens for owning gold, a privilege our government willingly grants to any foreign horsethief.

Thanks to such discriminatory policies, neither the American Government nor the American citizen any longer own any significant quantities of gold. We have been fleeced clean. What was originally sold to the American people as a policy to back our paper money with gold, has ended up with America, its people and its government being robbed clean of its precious metal, although we are the most productive country on the face of the earth. The gold in Ft. Knox is rapidly being shipped to foreign shores, especially Switzerland, which the Jews have built up as a private "neutral" haven.

Even what little is now left in Ft. Knox is now heavily overpledged for foreigners and to the Federal Reserve.

After having completely stripped clean the American people, in 1975, the Jew-controlled government of the United States again made it "legal" for the ordinary citizen to own gold. Americans could now buy back for $175.-$195. an ounce, what had been taken from their ancestors at $20.50 an ounce 40 years earlier. Those who fell for this trap and now bought were further fleeced by speculation and falling prices, all of which further enriched the Jewish speculators.

So, in 1976, very few Americans own gold, or care to own it, being wary of being fleeced again and again.

This is no accident. It was planned that way. The Jews have accomplished what they set out to do—accumulate unto themselves, among other riches, all the gold on the face of the earth.

Origin of the "Fractional Reserve" Gimmick

In the foregoing we have said that the Jews have a monopoly on printing counterfeit money and have also fleeced us of the huge gold reserves once owned by America, and Americans as individuals. To most gullible, uninformed Americans, this seems shocking and incredible. Yet, it is true. How did they accomplish such an astonishing feat, such blatant piracy?

It is a long story. In this treatise we can only carve out the rough outlines of this sinister conspiracy that has had such a disastrous impact on the fortunes of the White Race. It is a story that must give credit to the astounding possibilities that can be accomplished by meticulous planning, patience, and tenacity. All this the Jews have put forth in ample measure.

The beginnings go back to the early ancestors of the present-day Jewish bankers, back as far as medieval Europe, and even further back to ancient Rome, when the Jewish "goldsmith bankers" already predominated in the money market. They still do today. Gold has been a medium of exchange and used for coinage from ancient times. The Jews, especially, have been wildly fascinated by gold and have undoubtedly promoted the idea that it had mystical and intrinsic values for beyond its real value. In any event, in the old days, people who acquired gold took it to these certain (Jewish) goldsmiths for safekeeping. The goldsmith then gave the depositor a receipt or a "claim check" for the gold received. The "claim check" could be used to reclaim the gold by anyone who had it in his possession, and not necessarily the same person who deposited the gold. Thereby, these receipts were transferrable and, in actual practice, these receipts for gold began to circulate as paper money. Supposedly, the receipts were as good as gold since whoever had them in their possession could claim the gold from the goldsmiths at any time they wished.

So far, so good. The next step was that people learned they could carry on trade and commerce by passing these goldsmith's receipts without ever bothering to draw out the gold itself. Their "faith" in the value of the paper was based on the idea that it was, after all, redeemable in gold at any time.

The third step was a discovery by the Jewish goldsmiths themselves of what has been the KEY PRINCIPLE (and a very profitable one) of banking ever since.

It is called "FRACTIONAL RESERVE."

The Jewish goldsmiths made an amazing discovery. They found that with receipts circulating as money, few people came in to claim their gold. They conceived the idea that they could "loan out" the gold, at interest, gold that really did not belong to them, but was only in their "safekeeping."

What they did was write out receipts, or "claim checks," to borrowers, and charged interest on the gold they were loaning at the same time. These "claim checks," or receipts, created out of thin air, then, too, passed into circulation, the same as the others that had been given to actual depositors of gold. The Jew, in actuality, was writing out and passing claim checks on several times as much gold as he had available, and nobody, it seemed, was the wiser.

The goldsmith was lending out gold that was really not his to lend. But with the calls for the actual gold by the original depositors being so infrequent, he felt relatively safe that with his "fractional reserve" of gold that he could cover any day-to-day withdrawals. He could do so, provided, of course, there was not a "run" on the gold supply that was not his, but only given to him for "safekeeping." The goldsmith, in other words, was writing receipts for perhaps five or ten times as much gold as he had actually on deposit, betting on the theory that most of his depositors would not come to claim their gold at any given time. But the interest he was collecting on the gold he had "loaned out," but did not really have, was very real indeed. For instance, if he charged 10% interest a year, and loaned out (via "receipts") ten times as much gold as he had for "safekeeping," he could acquire for himself, in only a year's time, as much gold as was entrusted to him for "safekeeping."

And thus, even in medieval Europe, these Jewish shylocks acquired a monopoly of gold and money in Venice, in Amsterdam, in London, Paris, Vienna, and all other financial centers of Europe.

Throwing the money monopoly and control of gold into the hands of the Jewish Shylocks was strongly aided and abetted by the Christian Church itself. During the Middle Ages (better known as the Dark Ages, when spookcraft ran rampant), the Catholic Church forbade Christians in engaging in the loan business and called "usury." Since lending money was usurious, and usury was a sin, Christians wer shut out, leaving the field wide open to the usurious and pecuniary Jew. Added to this was the stupid Christian Doctrine that "money is the root of all evil."

One further European practice of the time helped drive the Jews into the money manipulation monopoly. Many countries, cities and principalities had laws prohibiting Jews from engaging in a number of trades and businesses, because they were aware of how, because of his rapacious nature, the Jew soon monopolized and ruined those trades and businesses. But, foolishly to the key, the nerve center of business-money, they left the gates wide open for the Jew to monopolize, and he had a field day. He has to this very day, and today he not only has unchallenged control of the money markets of the world, but because of it, the Jew has a monopoly of every other meaningful and worthwhile business as well.

Often these Jewish goldsmiths charged their clients both ways. They charged the depositors "fees" for "safekeeping" their gold, and they collected interest from the borrowers of gold that did not belong to them; often, as we have stated before, lending out in the form of paper receipts five or ten times as much gold as was actually on deposit in their vaults.

From this "fractional reserve" trickery, discovered by these early Jewish goldsmiths, all modern banking principles have evolved, albeit with thousands of variations and refinements.

The modern banker still fears, as did the ancient goldsmith, a "run" on his bank, a time of panic, or rumor, regarding their integrity or stability that sometimes caused all depositors to rush in and withdraw their deposits at the same time. When this happened to the early goldsmith, and happen it did, the enraged depositors, finding their gold was not there, usually hanged such Jewish manipulators from the nearest tree. In old Amsterdam, a Jewish goldsmith proposed a law making it a hanging offense for anyone starting a "run" on a goldsmith. This immediately alerted his depositors and precipitated just such a "run" on him, the very thing he feared. Of course, this Jewish shylock had far too many "receipts" out and could not pay. The depositors ended up hanging the goldsmith.

Needless to say, those Jewish goldsmiths that were not hanged became fabulously wealthy by trafficking in gold that (a) was not theirs, and, (b) did not exist. As time went on, through fees, interest and usury sometimes as high as 30% to 50%, they acquired most of the gold that had been earned and owned by their Gentile clients. They soon became the Shylocks and money lenders, not only to individuals in all the civilized countries, but also to their governments. They have vigorously and aggressively maintained, enhanced, and strengthened that position to this very day. They have now, as we said in the beginning, acquired absolute monopoly of all banking, issuance of money, financing, money lending, stock markets, and the gold of the world. It is their most powerful weapon. With it, they have acquired their remaining weapons with which to enslave the gullible goyim. Through monopoly of money, they easily acquired monopoly of the means of propaganda, and every other nerve center of power, including government itself.

President Wilson, U.S. Congress Combine in Treachery

We now want to get back to the last part of our story—namely, how the Jews acquired "legal" control and monopoly of printing the money of the United States, by setting up the Federal Reserve System. We can see from the foregoing that the foundation for this financial grab was laid many centuries before that fateful day in December of 1913.

It is a fascinating story, permeated by treachery, deceit, bribery, trickery, and, above all, long, patient, and intricate planning on the part of the Jews. It is also marked by stupidity and betrayal by members of our own race.

The International Jewish Bankers, mainly based in New York, already had a tight monopoly over the money supply of the United States. The House of Rothschild, long ago, had established their tentacles in the industrial countries of Europe, especially England, France, Germany, and Austria during the 19th century. In each of these countries (as well as the smaller nations), they had organized a Central Bank Systen, such as the Reichsbank in Germany, or the Bank of England in Britain. Basically, a Central Bank meant that it controlled the country's banks, using the full credit of the government to issue money. All the while it had the legal sanction of that same government whose people it was fleecing by having a monopoly on issuance, i.e., printing money.

In the United States, prior to the passage of the Federal Reserve Act in 1913, whereas the Jewish bankers had had control of the nation's money almost from its inception, that control was still fluid amongst its own rivals and could be wrecked by an aroused people and/or Congress. In fact, during the Civil War, in a temporary lapse, Abraham Lincoln invoked the legitimate powers of Congress and issued 356 million dollars in printed currency, later called "GREENBACKS," that did not derive through the hands of the International Jewish Bankers, and no interest was paid on this money. This single act so enraged the Jewish Bankers that they had Lincoln assassinated by one of their agents, namely Botha, alia John Wilkes Booth, a Jew.

In any event, after the Civil War, due to the manipulations of these Jewish bankers, who had artificially created the financial panics of 1873, 1893, and the severest of all, in 1907, there were serious rumblings from the people, and from some uncontrolled members of Congress, threatening that the Jewish power might be broken.

To ward off such a possibility, they decided to "legalize" their unconstitutional shenanigans by Federal Law — all in the name of "reform against New York Bankers." This was reverse psychology at its best.

To lay the ground work for such a law, a small clique of bankers, headed by Paul M. Warburg, a Jew, recently arrived from Germany, met secretly on Jekyll Island, Ga., at a plush hunting club. They left in a private railroad car from Hoboken, N.J., on Nov. 22, 1910. So secretive was the meeting, no news about it leaked out until six years later.

With this small gang of New York bankers was one Senator, Sen. Nelson Aldrich [an uncle of the late Governor of New York, Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller], himself entangled with the Jews in vast holdings and monopolies. Paul M. Warburg had come from Germany only eight years earlier. He represented the Banking House of M.M. Warburg Company of Hamburg, which controlled the Reichsbank in Germany, and, in turn, was a branch of the Jewish Banking House of Rothschild.

It was Mayer Amschel, the patriarch of the House of Rothschild, who arrogantly stated, "Give me control over a nation's money and I care not who makes its laws." The Jewish House of Rothschild has made good that boast and now controls the economies (and the law-making) of the world.

Under Paul Warburg's leadership, the small clique at Jekyl Island hammered out the main draft of a bill that would secure for themselves the legalized and privileged monopoly of banking, based on the same systems as the Central Banks of Europe. At the heart of it all was the unrestricted printing of money, and having sole monopoly.

It was introduced into Congress as the Aldrich Plan by the senator whose name it bore, under the auspices of the Republican Party. The bill was roundly attacked by opponents of Wall Street as being a bill favoring the New York bankers.

In the elections of 1912, the Republicans made the Aldrich Plan (all in the name of reform) a part of their official platform. An unknown university professor by the name of Woodrow Wilson, suddenly, out of nowhere, became the Democractic candidate for President. He and the Democratic partly roundly attacked the Aldrich Plan and offered in its place a piece of legislation that (supposedly) was "for the people" instead of the bankers. It was called the Federal Reserve Act. Although Congress and the people were too stupid to realize the situation, the "opposition" plan was in essence the same Aldrich Plan, as hammered out by Jew Paul Warburg and his henchmen, at the secret meeting on Jekyll Island. There was some honest opposition to the bill by such stalwarts as Congressman Charles A. Lindbergh from Minnesota, and Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, and others. Passage of either the Republican version or the Democratic version was precarious, despite loading the coin on both sides.

But the treachery and cunning of the Jews is almost infinite. They bided their time. On December 23, 1913, when most of the Congressmen

continued on page 53

LOUIS EVEN

The Money Myth exploded

Modern Taxation is Legalised Robbery

Published by The Institute of Political Action, Rougemont, P.Q.
A set of brochures reaching 1,479,000 copies — May 1967

CONTENTS

THE MONEY MYTH EXPLODED 3
1. Shipwreck Survivors 3
2. A Providential Island 3
3. True Wealth 4
4. A Serious Inconvenience 5
5. Arrival of a Refugee 5
6. Civilization's God 6
7. The Secret Burial 6
8. Who Owns the Money? 7
9. A Problem in Arithmetic 7
10. The Benevolent Banker 8
11. Oliver Glucksterlingmann Exults 9
12. The Cost of Living Unbearable 9
13. Interview With the Enshackler 10
14. The Wolf Devours the Lamb 10
15. Control of the Press 11
16. A Priceless Bit of Flotsam 11
17. Money – Elementary Accounting 12
18. The Banker's Despair 12
19. Fraud Unmasked 13
20. Farewell to Salvation Island 14
Why We Demand Social Credit 14
A Dividend for Everyone 15
A DEBT MONEY SYSTEM 16
You Pay the Double Price 16
A Tyrannical System 16
A Bar to Distribution 17
To Correct What is Wicked 17
MODERN TAXATION IS LEGALIZED ROBBERY 18
Taxes, A Social Scourge 18
Reasons Given for Taxation 21
Taxes Could be Abolished 24
Finance Contradicts Facts 26
For Finance to Reflect Facts 28
Claims Upon Production 32
A Bridge Built Without Taxation 33
In What Country First? 36

This booklet was originally published by:
The Institute of Political Action
Saint-Michel de Rougemont, P.Q., Canada

Reprinted February 1983 by
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

Additional copies available at $1.75, plus postage

The Money Myth exploded

Louis Even

Translated from the French by Earl Massecar

1. Shipwreck Survivors

AN EXPLOSION had blown their ship apart. Each one grasped the first bit of wreckage that came to hand. And when it was over, there were five left, five huddled on a raft which the waves carried along at their will. As for the other victims of the disaster, there was no sign of them.

Hour after long hour their eyes searched the horizon. Would some passing ship sight them? Would their make-shift raft find its way to some friendly shore?

Suddenly a cry rang out: "Land! Look! Over there, in the direction the waves are carrying us!"

And as the vague silhouette proved itself to be, in fact, the outline of a shore, the figures on the raft danced with joy.

They were five, five Canadians. There was Frank, the carpenter, big and energetic. It was he who had first cried, "Land!"

Then Paul, a farmer. You can see him, front and left in the picture, on his knees, one hand against the floor, the other gripping the mast of the raft.

Next is Jim, an animal breeder; he's the one in the striped pants, kneeling and gazing in the direction of land.

Then there is Harry, an agriculturist, a little on the stout side, seated on a trunk salvaged from the wreck.

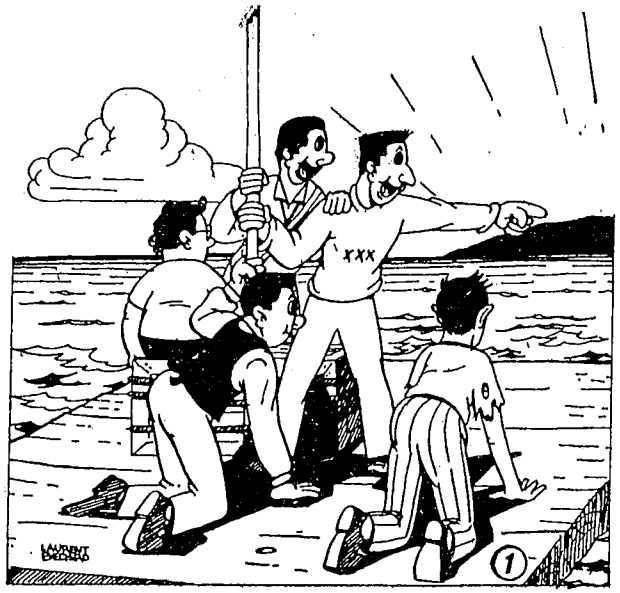
And finally Tom, a prospector and a mineralogist; he is the merry fellow standing in the rear of the picture with his hand on the carpenter's shoulder.

2. A Providential Island

To our five men, setting foot on land was like returning to life from the grave.

When they had dried and warmed themselves, their first impulse was to explore this little island on to which they had been cast, far from civilization.

A quick survey was sufficient to raise their spirit. The island was not a barren rock. True enough, they were the only men on it at the moment.



But judging from the herds of semi-domesticated animals they encountered, there must have been men here at some time before them. Jim, the animal breeder, was sure he could completely domesticate them and put them to good service.

Paul found the island's soil, for the most part, to be quite suitable for cultivation.

Harry discovered some fruit trees which, if properly tended, would give good harvests.

Most important were the large stands of timber embracing many types of wood. Frank, without too much difficulty, would be able to build houses for the little community.

As for Tom, the prospector, well, the rock formations of the island showed signs of rich mineral deposits. Lacking the tools, Tom still felt his ingenuity and initiative could produce metals from the ores.

So each could serve the common good with his special talent. All agreed to call the place Salvation Island. All gave thanks to Providence for the reasonably happy ending to what could have been stark tragedy.

3. True Wealth

Here are the men at work.

The carpenter builds houses and makes furniture. At first they find their food where they can. But soon the fields are tilled and seeded, and the farmer has his crops.

As season followed season, this island, this heritage of the five men, Salvation Island, became richer and richer.

Its wealth was not that of gold or of paper banknotes, but one of true value; a wealth of food and clothing and shelter, of all the things to meet human needs.

Each man worked at his own trade. Whatever surpluses he might have of his own produce, he exchanged for the surplus products of the others.

Life wasn't always as smooth and complete as they could have wished it to be. They lacked many of the things to which they had been accustomed in civilization. But their lot could have been a great deal worse.

Besides, all had experienced the depression in Canada. They still remembered the empty bellies side by side with stores crammed with food.

At least, on Salvation Island, they weren't forced to see the things they needed rot before their eyes. Taxes were unknown here. Nor did they go in constant fear of seizure by the bailiff.

They worked hard but at least they could enjoy the fruits of their toil.

So they developed the island, thanking God and hoping for the day of reunion with their families, still in possession of life and health, those two greatest of blessings.

4. A Serious Inconvenience

Our men often got together to talk over their affairs. Under the simple economic system which had developed, one thing was beginning to bother them more and more; they had no form of money. Barter, the direct exchange of goods for goods, had its drawbacks. The products to be exchanged were not always at hand when a trade was discussed. For example, wood delivered to the farmer in winter could not be paid for in potatoes until six months later.

Sometimes one man might have an article of considerable size which he wished to exchange for a number of smaller articles produced by different men at different times.

All this complicated business and laid a heavy burden on the memory. With a monetary system, however, each one could sell his products to the others for money. With this money he could buy from the others the things he wanted, when he wished and when they were available.

It was agreed that a system of money would indeed be very convenient. But none of them knew how to set up such a system. They knew how to produce true wealth—goods. But how to produce money, the symbol of this wealth, was something quite beyond them. They were ignorant of the origin of money, and, needing it, they did't know how to produce it. Certainly, many men of education would have been in the same boat; all our governments were in that predicament during the ten years prior to the war. The only thing the country lacked at that time was money, and the governments apparently didn't know what to do to get it.

5. Arrival of a Refugee

One evening when our boys were sitting on the beach going over their problem for the hundredth time, they suddenly saw approaching a small boat with a solitary man at the oars.

They learned that he was a refugee from war-torn central Europe. Along with other emigrants, he had boarded a ship bound for Australia. A storm had driven their ship on to a reef. He was the only survivor of the wreck. His name, Oliver Glucksterlingmann. They could remember only his first name.

Delighted to have a new companion, they provided him with the best they had and took him on an inspection tour of the colony.

"Even though we're lost and cut off from the rest of the world," they told him, "we haven't too much to complain about. The earth and the forest are good to us. We lack only on thing—money. That would make it easier for us to exchange our products."

"Well, you can thank Providence," replied Oliver, "because I am a banker and in no time at all I'll set up a system of money guaranteed to satisfy you. Then you'll have everything that people in civilization have."

A banker! . . . A BANKER! . . . An angel coming down out of the clouds couldn't have inspired more reverence and respect in our men. For, after all, are we not accustomed, we people in civilization, to genuflect before bankers, those men who control the life-blood of finance?

6.Civilization's God

"Mr. Oliver, as our banker, your only occupation on this island will be to look after our money; no manual labor."

"I shall, like every other banker, carry out to complete satisfaction my task of forging the community's prosperity."

"Mr. Oliver, we're going to build you a house that will be in keeping with your dignity as a banker. But in the meantime, do you mind if we lodge you in the building we use for our get-togethers?"

"That will suit me, my friends. But first of all, unload the boat. There's paper and a printing press, complete with ink and type; and there's a little barrel which I exhort you to treat with the greatest care."

They unloaded everything. The small barrel aroused intense curiosity in ou good fellows.

"This barrel," Oliver announced, "contains treasure beyond dreams. It is full of . . . gold!"

Full of gold! The five all but swooned. The god of civilization here on Salvation Island? The yellow god, always hidden, yet terrible in its power; whose presence or absence or slightest caprice could decide the very fate of all the civilized nations!

"Gold! Mr. Oliver, you are indeed a great banker!"

"Oh august majesty! oh honorable Oliver! great high priest of the god, gold! accept our humble homage and receive our oaths of fealty."

"Yes, my friends, gold enough for a continent. But gold is not for circulation. Gold must be hidden. Gold is the soul of healthy money, and the soul is always invisible. But I'll explain all that when you receive your first supply of money."

7. The Secret Burial

Before they went their separate ways for the night, Oliver asked them one last question.

"How much money will you need to begin with in order to facilitate trading?" They looked at one another, then deferentially towards the banker. After a bit of calculation, and with the advise of the kindly financier, they decided that $200 each would do.

The men parted, exchanging enthusiastic comments. And in spite of the late hour, they spent most of the night lying awake, their imaginations excited by the picture of gold. It was morning before they slept.

As for Oliver, he wasted not a moment. Fatigue was forgotten in the interests of his future as a banker. By dawn's first light he dug a pit into which he rolled the barrel. He then filled it in, transplanting a small shrub to the spot about which he carefully arranged sod. It was well hidden.

Then he went to work with his little press to turn out a thousand $1 bills. Watching the clean new banknotes come from his press, the emigrant-turned-banker thought to himself,

"My, how simple it is to make money. All its value comes from the products it will buy. Without produce, these bills are worthless. My five naive customers don't realize that. They actually think that this new money derives its value from gold! Their very ignorance makes me the master."

And as evening drew on, the five came to Oliver—on the run.

8. Who Owns the Money?

Five bundles of new banknotes were sitting on the table.

"Before distributing the money," said the banker, "I would like your attention."

"Now, the basis of all money is gold. And the gold stored away in the vault of my bank is my gold. Consequently, the money is my money. Oh! don't look so discouraged. I'm going to lend you this money and you're going to use it as you see fit. However, you'll have to pay interest. Considering that money is scarce here, I don't think 8% is unreasonable."

"Oh, that's quite reasonable, Mr. Oliver."

"One last point, my friends. Business is business, even between pals. Before you get the money, each of you is going to sign a paper. By it you will bind yourselves to pay both interest and capital under penalty of confiscation of property by me. Oh! this is a mere formality. Your property is of no interest to me. I'm satisfied with money. And I feel sure I'll get my money and that you'll keep your property."

"That makes sense, Mr. Oliver. We're going to work harder than ever in order to pay you back."

"That's the spirit. And any time you have a problem, come and see me. Your banker is your best friend. Now, here's two hundred dollars for each of you.

And our five brave fellows went away, their hands full of dollar bills, their heads swimming with the ecstasy of having money.

9. A Problem in Arithmetic

And so Oliver's money went into circulation on the island. Trade, simplified by money, doubled. Everybody was happy.

And the banker was always greeted with unfailing respect and gratitude.

But now, let's see . . . Why does Tom, the proespector, look so grave as he sits busily figuring with a pencil and paper? It is because Tom, like the others, had signed an agreement to repay Oliver, in one year's time, the $200 plus $16 interest. But Tom has only a few dollars in his pocket and the date of payment is near.

For a long time he wrestled with the problem from his own personal point of view, without success. Finally he looked at it from the angle of the little community as a whole.

"Taking into consideration everyone on the island, as a whole," he mused, "are we capable of meeting our obligations? Oliver turned out a total of $1000. He's asking in return $1080. But even if we bring him every dollar bill on the island, we'll still be $80 short. Nobody made the extra $80. We turn out produce, not dollar bills. So Oliver can take over the entire island since all the inhabitants together can't pay him back the total amount of capital and interest.

"Even if a few, without any thought for the others, were able to do so, those others would fall. And the turn of the first spared would come eventually. The banker will have everything. We'd better hold a meeting right away and decide what to do about it."

Tom, with his figures in hand, had no difficulty in proving the situation. All agreed they had been duped by the kindly banker. They decided upon a meeting at Oliver's.

10. The Benevolent Banker

Oliver guessed what was on their minds but put up his best front. While he listened, the impetuous Frank stated the case for the group.

"How can we pay you $1080 when there is only $1000 on the entire island?"

"That's the interest, my friends. Hasn't your rate of production increased?"

"Sure, but the money hasn't. And it's money you're asking for, not our products. You are the only one who can make money. You've made only $1000 and yet you ask $1080. That's an impossibility!"

"Now listen, fellows, Bankers, for the greater good of the community, always adapt themselves to the conditions of the times. I'm going to require only the interest. Only $80. You will go on holding the capital."

"Bless you, Mr. Oliver! Are you going to cancel the $200 each of us owes you?"

"Oh no! I'm sorry, but a banker never cancels a debt. You still owe me all the money you borrowed. But you'll pay me, each year, only the interest. If you meet the interest payments faithfully each year, I won't push you for the capital. Maybe some won't be able to repay even the interest because of the money changing hands among you. Well, organize yourselves like a nation. Set up a system of money contributions, what we call taxes. Those who do have more money will be taxed more; the poor will pay less. See to it that you bring me, in one lump sum, the total of the amount of interest and I'll be satisfied. And your little nation will thrive."

So our boys left, somewhat pacified but still dubious.

11. Oliver Glucksterlingmann Exults

Oliver is alone. He is deep in reflection. His thoughts run thus:

"Business is good. These boys are good workers, but stupid. Their ignorance and naivety is my strength. They ask for money and I give them the chains of bondage. They give me orchids and I pick their pockets.

"True enough, they could mutiny and throw me into the sea. But pshaw! I have their signatures. They're good Christians. They're honest. They'll honor their pledges. Honest, hardworking people were put into this world to serve the financiers."

"Oh great Rothschild! I feel your banking genius coursing through my entire being! Oh, illustrious master! how right you were when you said: "Give me control of a nation's money and I won't mind who makes its laws." I am the master of Salvation Island because I control its money.

"My soul is drunk with enthusiasm and ambition. I feel I could rule the universe. What I, Oliver Glucksterlingmann, have done here, I can do throughout the entire world. Oh! if only I could get off this island! I know how I could govern the world without wearing a crown.

"My supreme delight would be to instill my philosophy in the minds of those who lead society; bankers, industrialists, politicians, reformers, teachers, journalists,—all would be my servants. The masses are content to live in slavery when the elite from among them are constituted their overseers."

And so the entire philosophy of banking, that spawn of Rothschild, was summed up in this ecstasy of Oliver Glucksterlingmann.

12. The Cost of Living Unbearable

Meanwhile, things went from bad to worse on Salvation Island. Production was up, bartering had dropped to a minimum. Oliver collected his interest regularly. The others had to think of setting money aside for him. Thus, money tended to clot instead of circulating freely.

Those who paid the most in taxes complained against those who paid less. They raised the prices of their goods to compensate for this loss. The unfortunate poor who paid no taxes lamented the high cost of living and bought less.

If one took a salaried job with another, he was continually demanding increases in salary in order to meet the mounting cost of living.

Morale was low. The joy went out of living. No one took an interest in his work. Why should he? Produce sold poorly. When they made a sale, they had to pay taxes to Oliver. They went without things. It was a real crisis. And they accused one another of wanting in charity and of being the cause of the high cost of living.

One day, Harry, sitting in his orchard, pondered over the situation. He finally arrived at the conclusion that this "progress," born of a refugee's money system, had spoiled everything on the island. Unquestionably, all five had their faults; but Oliver's system seemed to have been specifically designed to bring out the worst in human nature.

Harry decided to demonstrate this to his friends and to unite them for action. He started with Jim, who was not hard to convince. "I'm not a genius," he said, "but for a long time now there's been a bad smell about this foreigner's system."

One by one they came to the same conclusion and ended by deciding upon another conference with Oliver.

13. Interview with the Enshackler

A veritable tempest burst about the ears of the banker.

"Money's scarce on the island, fellow, because you take it away from us! We pay you and pay you and still owe you as much as at the beginning.. We work our heads off! We've the finest land possible and yet we're worse off than before the day of your arrival. Debts! Debts! up to our necks in debts!

"Oh! now boys, be reasonable! Your affairs are booming and it's thanks to me. A good banking system is a country's best asset. But if it is to work beneficially, you must have faith in the banker. Come to me as you would to a father . . . is it more money you want? Very well. My barrel of gold is good for many thousands of dollars more. See, I'm going to mortgage your latest acquisitions and lend you another thousand dollars right now."

"So! Now our debt goes up to $2000! We are going to have twice as much interest to pay for the rest of our lives!"

"Well, yes—but I'll lend you more whenever the value of your property increases. And you'll never pay anything but the interest. You'll lump all your debts into one—what we call a consolidated debt. And you can add to the debt year after year."

"And raise the taxes year after year?"

"Obviously. But your revenues also increase every year."

"So then, the more the country develops each year because of our labor, the more the public debt increases!"

"Why of course! Just as in your Canada—or in any other part of the civilized world, for that matter. The degree of a country's civilization is always gauged by the size of its debt to the bankers."

14. The Wolf Devours the Lamb

"And that's a healthy money system, Mr. Oliver?"

"Gentlemen, all sound money is based on gold and it comes from the banks in the form of debts. The national debt is a good thing. It keeps men from becoming too satisfied. It subjugates governments to the supreme and ultimate wisdom, that which is incarnate in bankers. As a banker, I am the torch of civilization here on your little island. I will dictate your politics and regulate your standard of living."

"Mr. Oliver, we're simple, uneducated folks, but we don't want that kind of civilization here. We'll not borrow another cent off you. Sound money or not, we don't want any further transactions with you."

"Gentlemen, I deeply regret this very ill-advised decision of yours. But if you break with me, remember, I have your signatures. Repay me everything at once—capital and interest."

"But, that's impossible, sir. Even if we give you all the money on the island, we still won't be square with you."

"I can't help that. Did you or did you not sign? Yes? Very well. By virtue of the sanctity of contracts, I hereby seize your mortgaged property, which was what you agreed to at the time you were so happy to have my help. If you don't want to serve willingly the supreme authority of money, then you'll obey force. You'll continue to exploit the island, but in my interests and under my conditions. Now, get out! You'll get your orders from me tomorrow."

15. Control of the Press

Like Rothschild, Oliver knew that whoever controlled the nation's money, controlled the nation. But he also knew that to maintain that control it was necessary to keep the people in a state of ignorance and to distract them by a variety of means.

Oliver had observed that of the five islanders, two were conservatives and three were liberals. That much had evolved from their evening conversations, especially after they had fallen into slavery. And between the conservatives and those who were liberals there was constant friction.

On occasions, Harry, the most neutral of the five, considering that all had the same needs and aspirations, had suggested a Union of Electors. Such a union Oliver could not tolerate; it would mean the end of his rule. No dictator, financial or otherwise, could stand before a people united and educated.

Consequently, Oliver set himself to foment, as much as possible, political strife between them.

The refugee put his press to work turning out two weekly newspapers, THE SUN for the liberals, and THE STAR for the conservatives.

The general tenor of THE SUN was: "If you are no longer master, it is because of those traiterous conservatives who have sold out to big business."

That of THE STAR: "The ruinous state of business and the national debt can be traced directly to the political irresponsibility of those unmentionable liberals."

And the two factions wrangled ferociously, forgetting the one who had forged their chains, that money master, the banker Oliver.

16. A Priceless Bit of Flotsam

One day, Tom, the prospector, discovered on a small beach, hidden by tall grass at one end of the island, a lifeboat, empty except for a trunk in good condition lying in the bottom of it.

He opened the trunk. Among the articles within. a sort of album caught his eye: "Première année de Vers Demain." Between the covers he found the first volume of a SOCIAL CREDIT publication from Canada.

Tom could read French. Curious, he sat down and began to read the volume. His interest grew; his face lit up.

"Well, just look at this!" he cried out loud. "This is something we should have known a long time ago.

"Money gets its value, not from gold, but from the products which that money buys.

"Simply put, money should be a sort of accountancy, credits passing from one account to another according to purchases and sales. The sum total of money will depend upon the sum total of production.

"Each time production increases there is a corresponding increase in the amount of money. Never at any time should interest be paid on new money. Progress is marked, not by an increase in the public debt, but by the issuance of an equal dividend to each individual . . . Prices are adjusted to the general purchasing power by a coefficient of prices. Social Credit . . ."

But Tom could no longer contain himself. He got up and set off at a run, the book in his hands, to share this glorious discovery with his four comrades.

17. Money—Elementary Accounting

So Tom became the teacher. He taught the others what he had learned from that God-sent Social Credit publication.

"This," he said, "is what we can do without waiting for a banker and his keg of gold or without underwriting a debt.

"I open an account in the name of each of you. In the right hand column are the credits which increase your account; to the left are the debits which subtract from your account.

"Each wants $200 to begin with. Very well. We write $200 to the credit of each. Each immediately has $200.

"Frank buys some goods from Paul for $10. I deduct $10 from Frank leaving him $190. I add $10 to Paul and he now has $210.

"Jim buys from Paul to the amount of $8. I deduct from Jim $8 leaving him $192. Paul now has $218.

"Paul buys wood from Frank for $15. I deduct $15 from Paul leaving $203. I add $15 to Frank's account and it goes back to $205.

"And so we continue; from one account to another in the same fashion as paper banknotes go from one man's pocket to another's.

"If someone needs money to expand production, we issue him the necessary amount of new credit. Once he has sold his products he repays the sum to the credit fund. The same with public works; paid for by new credits.

"Likewise, each one's account is periodically increased but without taking credits from anyone, in order that all may benefit from the progress society makes. That's the national dividend. In this fashion money becomes an instrument of service."

18. The Banker's Despair

Everyone understood. The members of this little community became Crediters. The following day, Oliver, the banker, received a letter signed by the five:

"Dear Sir, without the slightest necessity you have plunged us into debt and exploited us. We don't need you anymore to run our money system. From now on we'll have all the money we need without gold, debts or thieves. We are establishing, at once, the system of Social Credit on the island. The national dividend is going to replace the national debt.

"If you insist on being repaid, we can repay you all the money you gave us. But not a cent more. You cannot lay claim to that which you have not made.

"We have nothing against you as a foreigner. We respect every human being. But we reject your mentality and philosophy. And we will not permit anyone to regiment and exploit us."

Oliver was in despair. His empire was crumbling. His dreams shattered. What could he do? Arguments would be futile. The five were now Crediters; money and credit were now not more mysterious to them than they were to Oliver.

"Oh! esteemed Rothschild! What will become of your disciple? These men have been won to Social Credit. Their doctrine will spread far more quickly than mine. Should I beg forgiveness? become one of them? I, a financier and a banker? Never! Rather, I shall try and put as much distance between them and me as I can!"

19. Fraud Unmasked

To protect themselves against any future claim by Oliver, our five men decided to make him sign a document attesting that he again possessed all he had when he first arrived on the island.

An inventory was taken; the boat, the oars, the little press, and the famous barrel of gold.

Oliver had to reveal where he had hidden the gold. Our boys hoisted it from the hole with considerable less respect than the day they had unloaded it from the boat. Social Credit had taught them to despise gold.

The prospector, who was helping to lift the barrel, found it surprisingly light for gold. If the barrel was full, he told the others, there was something in it besides gold.

The impetuous Frank didn't waste a moment; a blow of the axe and the contents of the barrel were exposed.

Gold? Not so much as a grain of it! Just rocks—plain, worthless rocks!

Our men couldn't get over the shock.

"Don't tell us he could bamboozle us to this extent!"

"Were we such muttonheads as to go into raptures over the mere mention of gold?"

"Did we mortgage all our possessions for a few pieces of paper based on a few pounds of rocks? It's robbery compounded by lies!"

"To think that we sulked and almost hated one another, all because of such a fraud! That devil!"

Furious, Frank raised his axe. But already the banker had taken to his legs in full flight towards the forest.

20. Farewell to Salvation Island

After the opening of the barrel and the revelation of his duplicity, nothing further was heard of Oliver Glucksterlingmann.

Shortly after, a ship, cruising off the normal navigation route, noticed signs of life on this uncharted island and cast anchor a short distance offshore.

The men learned that the ship was en route to America. So they decided to take with them what they could carry and return to Canada.

Above all, they made sure to take back with them the album "The First Year of Social Credit," which had proven to be their salvation from the hands of the financier, Oliver, and which had illumined their minds with an inextinguishable light.

All five solemnly engaged themselves to get in touch with the management of this paper, once back in Canda, and to become devoted and zealous apostles of the cause of Social Credit in Canada.

Why We Demand Social Credit

We ask the establishment of Social Credit in order to free society from financial tyranny.

Farmers have an abundance of food to place on the market. But our existing system of finance does not give the consumer sufficient purchasing power to buy, at a reasonable price, the farmer's produce.

We have space, materials, and workers to build a solid and spacious house for every family. But the present financial regime does not place at the disposal of the family the means to pay for the construction of such a house.

Industry finds it hard to keep its products moving; its employees are threatened with unemployment; and all because consumers haven't sufficient money to buy the products of industry.

When the capacity to pay does not conform to the capacity to produce, then finance is out of step with existing possibilities. Produce is easier to come by than money.

Individuals and families are constantly harassed by financial worries and the insecurity of the future. These worries and this insecurity are at complete odds with the realities which are tremendous; they are a result of the shortage of means to make payments and of the continual threat of losing these means completely.

The soil doesn't threaten to become sterile; there is no danger of the sun and rain refusing their bounty; nor is it laziness on the part of the workers, because their distress is only too evident when they become partially or totally unemployed. The problem is, always and uniquely, one of money.

So then it would seem that the present-day system of finance is one prejudicial rather than beneficial to the people.

For this reason, we demand that it be changed in favor of a system which is one of service, a system of finance proposed by Social Credit.

Social Credit makes of money a constant and exact reflection of realities. With the birth of produce, money comes into being; and the total purchasing power of the people is constantly readjusted in order to equivalate the total sum of produce offered to the people. Furthermore, each citizen receives a monthly dividend in recognition of the fact that each citizen has a right to live and to share in the fruits of progress, which fruits are the heritage passed on by previous generations.

We demand Social Credit in place of the present false and vicious system because no other financial system has been proposed which serves man in place of tyrannizing him; no other financial system has been proposed which distributes the products of machines as they should be distributed, and guarantees to every individual a share in temporal wealth.

The most urgent and pressing item in any program of temporal reform must be the liberation of society from financial despotism. When this is done, it will be an easy matter to bring an end to the struggle between men to tear from one another the means to go on living; such a struggle is unworthy of intelligent humans in a country where good things abound, or will abound when we have removed that artificial obstacle, the financial obstacle.

A Dividend For Everyone

Social Crediters demand a dividend for everyone. This is a sum of money paid periodically to each individual regardless of what revenue his labor brings him. It is exactly like the dividend the capitalist gets even when he is vacationing.

This is a monthly dividend for everyone; for the new-born infant, for the child learning to read, for the adolescent seeking to find himself amid his studies, the young man and woman preparing for the future, for the mature man, be he bachelor or breadwinner for a family, for the mother laboring in her home, for the old folks whose thoughts more and more turn towards the homeland awaiting them—to all, to each, from the craddle to the grave.

Canada is a country rich in fertile soil, in forests and running streams and waterpower; abounding in minerals of all sorts, rich beyond measure with the techniques of applied science and furnished with industries equipped with the most up-to-date machinery and, most important of all, endowed beyond words with strong arms, stout hearts and clear minds.

Social Crediters judge that, in a Canada so richly endowed, it is senseless and idiotic, criminal even, to force multitudes of Canadians to live in constant fear of the morrow, (when it is not a question of worrying for today). Each family, each individual dwelling in this rich land should be guaranteed at least the necessities of life and an easy access to an honest living, not as a privilege, but as a just due.

A monthly dividend for everyone, this is the most illuminating economical and political theory that has ever been proposed to a world where the chief problem is not how to get produce but how to distribute it.

From parable to reality

A debt money system

Translated from the French by Guy Thibault

THE DEBT MONEY SYSTEM introduced by Oliver into the Salvation Island made the little community sink into financial debt in proportion as it developed and enriched the island by its own work.

This is exactly what happens in our civilized countries, is it not?

Canada of today is certainly richer, in real wealth, than it was 50, 100 years ago, or in the pioneer's age. But compare the national debt, the sum of all public debts of Canada today with this sum of 50, 100 years, three centuries ago!

Yet, the Canadians themselves produced this enrichment by their labour and their know-how. Then why should they be collectively indebted for the result of their own activities?

As examples, consider the schools, the municipal aqueducts, the bridges, roads and other fabrics of public character. Who build them all? Builders of the country. Who supply them with the needed materials? Manufacturers of the country. And how come they can be employed in public works? Because there are other kinds of workers who produce food, clothes, shoes, who supply all the things and services required for the wants of the constructors and manufacturers.

Thus, the whole population of Canada, by its work of different kinds, produce all those developments. If we must obtain goods from abroad, we send other goods abroad in counterpart of them.

Now, what do you see? Everywhere the citizens are taxed to pay those schools, those hospitals, those bridges, roads and other public works. The Canadians, as a collectivity, are thus compelled to pay what they produce as a collectivity.

Yo Pay the Double Price

And this is not all. The population is made to pay more than the price of what is produced. Their own production—a real enrichment—has become for the Canadians a debt burdened with interest. When years add to years, the sum of the interests can equal, or even exceed, the amount of the debt imposed by the system. It happens that the population may have to pay two, three times the cost of what its members produced.

In addition to the public debts, there are industrial debts, also loaded with interests. They compel the manufacturers and contractors to increase their prices beyond the cost of production, in order to reimburse the capital and the interests; otherwise they would become insolvent, bankrupt.

Both, public and private debts, are paid, plus interest, by the Canadian population, to the financial system. We pay taxes for the public debts, and a surplus of price for the industrial debts. Prices are swelling while the purse is flattened by taxes.

A Tyrannical System

These and many other facts are indicative of a money system, a financial system, which controls instead of being a servant; a system to dominate the people—as Oliver dominated the fellows of the Island before they rebelled.

And if the money masters refuse to lend, or if they make their conditions unbearable for the public bodies or for the manufacturers, what happens? It happens that the public bodies give up many projects, no matter how urgent; and the manufactrurers give up development or production plans that would answer to real needs of Canadians. This is a cause of unemployment. And those who still have something, or who earn a salary, must be taxed to prevent the unemployed from starving completely.

Can you imagine a more tyrannical system, with so baneful effects on every Canadian?

A Bar to Distribution

And this is not all. Not only the money systems indebts the producers, or paralyzes the production it refuses to finance, but it is a wretched financial tool for the distribution of the goods.

Notwithstanding the fact that stores, shops and warehouses are full, and that everything is at hand for an even greater production, the distribution of the goods already produced is stinted.

You can obtain only what you can pay for. In face of an abundant production, there should be an abundance of purchasing power, of money in the wallets of the people. Such is not the fact. The price of the finished goods is always higher than the amount of money distributed as purchasing power in the course of their production. This is inherent to the accountancy of the present system of finance which has no mechanism to fill the gap.

The capacity to pay is not made to equal the capacity to produce. Finance and reality do not work at the same rate. Reality means an abundance of goods easy to produce. Finance means a lacking money hard to obtain.

To Correct What is Wicked

Thus the present money system is truly an oppressive one, when it should be a system of service.

This does not mean that we must do away with it, but we must correct it. The application of the financial principles known as Social Credit would make this correction magnifiently. (Do not confound Social Credit with the political party which usurps that name while pursuing other ends and practising an adverse policy.)

The principles of Social Credit, when applied, would make the money system a servant instead of a master. They were discovered and enunciated by a genius, C. H. Douglas (deceased in 1952). His first writings on this subject were published in 1918.

Modern Taxation

is Legalised Robbery

LOUIS EVEN

Translated from the French by Earl Massecar

Taxes, a Social Scourge

Taxes Universally Detested

No one really likes taxes. Certainly not those who are obliged to pay them. And those who have to collect them do not do so in order to increase their popularity.

No matter what devices the government may employ from year to year—taking off a tax here, decreasing one there, increasing another, increasing or decreasing the dosage—it will never succeed in satisfying all the vast multitude of taxpayers. The proof of this can be found by reading the comments of the various newspapers (excepting those which are obliged to sing the party line of government) after the Minister of Finance has brought down the annual budget.

Such hostility towards the tax system is not confined to Canada. All civilized countries have adopted taxation as the means of financing administration and public services. And in all civilized countries you will find this general complaint against it. No reform of the taxation system can ever give complete satisfaction.

Pierre Berton writes in a weekly Paris revue (La Grande Relève):

"And whether anyone is aware of it or not, it is the system of taxation which everyone is condemning with complete unanimity. The best and most popular way to effect its reform would be to abolish it."

Condemnation Well Merited

The manner in which taxes are condemned is in no way an exaggeration. On the contrary, they would be more heartily detested if the little people, who do not pay out too much in taxation, were fully aware of the repercussions upon themselves of the taxes which others pay.

Mrs. X, for example, is not rich. Her husband's salary is too small to be effected in any great way by the income tax rates. Mrs. X pays only the sales tax when she goes shopping for the family. She fumes at the 8 percent sales tax which the merchant charges her. But she says nothing against the 40 percent which she pays because of the taxes paid by the producer, the trucker, the warehouse people, the wholesaler, etc., etc.

Tell Mrs. X that the cost of living is very high. She will be the first one to agree with you. But she won't think of blaming anyone but the merchant, or at very most, the manufacturer.

Mr. Y, who is a worker, also fulminates against the high cost of living. The cost of goods and services is practically taking the shirt off his back! But all he can think of blaming is the greed of his boss. It is his salary which is at fault! Neither he nor his union think for a moment of blaming taxation which bears down on the employer just as it does on the worker. The criticism which is levelled at the employer would be better directed against the Government!

Decrease in Purchasing Power

The first ill of taxation is the diminishing of purchasing power. This is something which needs no demonstration to the individual who is affected by the personal tax, such as that on revenue.

The money which you send to the Government, or which the Government taxes out of your pay envelope before you even have a chance to see its colour, this money you no longer possess as your own. You cannot use it to buy something.

Nor is any demonstration needed of this bad effect when you pay the sales tax at the retailer's counter.

A Montrealer who buys a suit priced at $80.00 must pay $86.40 because of the 8 percent sales tax.

With this extra $6.40 in his own pocket he could probably have bought a few pairs of socks. But the sales tax took away from him the purchasing power which he needed in order to buy the socks.

A Poison, Bloating Prices

The housekeeper who protests against the sales tax which is added on to the bill handed her by the merchant is perhaps not aware that a number of other taxes, much larger than the sales tax, are hidden away in this bill.

These other taxes manage to avoid their just share of blame because they are invisible. But they cause much more harm than the exposed sales tax at the retailer's counter.

Take the case of the federal sales tax of 12 percent which is charged at the manufacturer's level. 12 percent is already a mighty big tax. But since this tax is imposed at the top of the hill, it gains in size as it rolls downwards towards the level of the ultimate consumer.

If a manufacturer sells a $100 worth of goods to a wholesaler, the latter must pay $112. That is, $100 for the manufacturer; $12 for the federal Government.

The wholesaler doesn't raise too much of a hue and cry over this because he is simply going to include the $12 in the price which he will charge the retailer for these same goods. Then, too, the wholesaler will add on his margin of profit, say 20%. So, instead of 20 percent being added on to $100, it is 20 percent added on to $112. That makes $22.40 additional. Total price: $134.40.

The retailer then must pay the wholesaler $134.40, whereas he would have paid $120 without the federal tax. The $12 has already become $14.40.

Reaching the consumer, after the addition of a succession of percentages, what was $12 at the beginning can very easily wind up being $18 or even more.

But in the bill which is passed to the purchaser this tax never shows. There is only the "price." And where the word "price" is concerned, the purchaser growls only at the merchant. "Tax" would make him think of the government; "price" makes him think of the merchant.

Everyone Is Hit

When the little people ask that the burden of taxation be transferred to the shoulders of the big, they think they will be protecting themselves. This is a pure illusion. The big set the prices for the little. And make no mistake about it, they include in their prices whatever they are obliged to pay out to the Government.

Even when the tax is to be paid only after the sale of the goods—like the tax on profits or the tax on the revenues of business men—it is not too difficult for these men to foresee the volume of sales for the coming term and to calculate in advance what price to set in order to make sure that the Government will get its share without depriving them of their net profit.

For example, if the Bell Telephone Company wishes to have 14 millions more of profit in order to provide for expansion and improvements, it will calculate its rates in order to have 25 million more instead of just 14 million. Why? Because it knows that on 25 million the Government will take 11 million in taxes, which will leave the company the 14 million it wants. The result: 14 million for the company, 11 million for the Government, and 25 million paid by the subscribers!

Do you believe that the Government could sincerely oppose such an increase on the part of the company? The more the company pumps out of the people, the greater the Government's share.

But the subscriber only looks at the rate and throws the blame on the company.

When the big fellows increase their prices by including the tax, the worker does not see the tax. He is not outraged by the tax but rather by the price. And so he asks for an increase in wages. The strength of the union will guarantee such increases, but the increase will be included in the price by the employer and so it is the consumer who ultimately pays. He pays for everything. What the worker gains as an employee, he loses as a consumer. The spiral is without end.

The solution lies somewhere else. It lies in correcting the financial system which is responsible for generating such taxes.

Bureaucracy Fostered

Tax collection is not restricted to the employees of the Ministry of Revenue or the Ministry of Finance. It reaches down and conscripts as bureaucrats the manufacturers, employers, merchants, restaurant owners, hotel keepers (for the tax on meals), and even the farmer.

And it causes a considerable waste of time for all in that all are obliged to do considerable accounting work for the Government. Each becomes a government tax-collector whenever he sells goods or services to his clients inasmuch as he collects the sales tax for the Government.

Taxes on salaries, at the source, makes of the employer a tax-collector for the federal Government.

The provincial sales tax, which is in force practically everywhere now, makes of the retail merchant a tax-collector for the provincial Government or for the municipal Council.

The tax on meals makes of the restaurant and hotel owners collectors of taxes for the provincial Government.

This extra work—and it is extra work as any of them will assure you—takes them away from more usefull occupations which might increase the value of their services or products. It is as if these poor business men didn't have enough cares and worries from their own business, let alone being charged with the Government's duties!

The elimination of taxes and the institution of another means for financing public works and services and other obligations of the various forms of Government will free the individual business men from the annoyances, the paper work of collecting Government taxes. They will be rid of the prying by bureaucrats of the Government's tax departments. What a blessing this will be for them! What advantages it will bring to the service they can give the public! One has only to discuss this possibility with these business men to be convinced of this.

Reasons Given for Taxation

Three principal arguments are proferred in support of the existing system of taxation:

1. The Government needs the money for the administration of the country, for the financing of public works and public services. It has to take the money where it can find it.

2. Taxation helps to correct the unjust distribution of wealth by taking the money thus raised from those who have it and giving it to those who have not, in the form of pensions, allowances and other types of social security.

3. Taxes help to prevent inflation by skimming off the surplus of money when there is too much of it in the country.

If taxes are so universally detested, if each one strives to shove them over on the shoulders of the other, if they reduce our already insufficient purchasing power, if they add to already too-heavy prices, then why does everyone put up with them?

They are endured simply because, while undeniably painful, they are considered absolutely necessary.

The reasons given above for justifying taxation seem, at first glance anyhow, to be quite logical and beyond any argument.

Necessary to Finance Government

The Government needs money for administration purposes, to pay those employed by the Government, to finance public works and public services, for national defence, etc., etc. But the Government has no money of its own. So it is, allegedly, obliged to tax those who have money—or at least to borrow today and tax tomorrow.

This, then, is the first reason given in justification of taxes. All the Governments keep insisting, with an insistence which has become almost a rivality, that they are penniless unless they get their money by one of the following means:

Taxes;
Borrowing;
Royalties;
Sale of natural resources;
Profits from businesses run by various ministries or by Crown companies.

The latter brings in very little in the way of monetary profit. Probably the only exception is the liquor commissions which profit from a human passion which these days is little subjected to restraint. Other Government businesses, for the most part, are more likely to show losses rather than gains. Moreover, a Government which sets itself up as a boss in business, or as a merchant, is a Government letting itself in for something for which it was not designed.

Selling natural resources brings in only a temporary profit—while it results in the loss of national capital. It is probably one of the worst ways in which a Government can raise cash.

Royalties are simply another form of taxation, paid by companies or individuals for the privilege of exploiting a country's natural resources.

Borrowing is simply delayed taxation. In order to repay such loans, it is necessary to tax later. And with the interest charges included, taxes are higher than the value of the services or goods obtained through the original loan.

So it is beyond any dispute that the chief means the Government uses for raising money to meet the demands of public works and public services, and to administer the country, is taxation.

But, then, a certain question begins to present itself to anyone who reflects even a little on this situation: if the Government has no money other than that which it gets from others through taxation; if we, the citizens, have no money other than that which we receive from someone else, then where does the money originally come from? Who makes the money or sets it into circulation in the first place? If the Government does not make it, if we, the private citizens of the land, do not make it (and heaven help us if we even try!), then, who does make it?

Corrects an Unjust Distribution

The second reason put forth in the attempt to justify taxes is that such taxation helps, in a way, to adjust the imperfect distribution of wealth. The Government takes purchasing power away from where it exists and places it where there is none. Taxes make possible family allowances, pensions, grants, and other forms of Goverment largess.

This is an admission that wealth is improperly distributed in the first place. An attempt is made to smooth things over with the plaster of taxation. But since there seems to be no end in view to taxation, it is quite definite that this maldistribution of wealth has become a permanent fixture in the economy.

Would it not be more logical to cure the evil at its roots through a more just distribution of wealth at the beginning, rather than to attempt, through the palliative of taxes, to make the evil a little more bearable? A tablet will relieve a headache temporarily, but it will not cure the weak eyes which cause the headaches.

Removes Excess Money

And, thirdly, the Government, following the same reasoning as the banks, estimates that it is necessary to remove a certain amount of money from the hands of the people, otherwise there will be too much in circulation. We find this excuse being offered most often in times of inflation.

We have noted above that taxes raise prices—which is not difficult to understand.

And yet, the Government is advised by so-called financial experts who maintain that heavier taxation is going to bring prices down! Prices cannot go up and down at the same time.

Their reasoning goes something like this: if the people are taxed to the limit, if they have no money with which to buy, they will not purchase the merchant's stocks. The merchants will thus find themselves running after the purchaser, fighting for the small amount of purchasing power which is left. Thus they are eventually forced to lower their prices more and more if they want to move their stocks. They may descend to the very brink of bankruptcy—and, indeed, some are liable to fall into it.

That, in fact, is what happened in 1930. And prices rested on bedrock for years after. But who benefited? The bankrupted merchant? The consumer with no purchasing power?

What possible benefit can there be for anyone when, in order to bring prices down, it is necessary to deprive the community of purchasing power?

Here, then, are the principal reasons given in support of the system of taxation:

Supply money to the Governments;
Correct the maldistribution of purchasing power;
Skim off surplus money.

At first glance, we repeat, these reasons may seem very plausible, logical, and unassailable. And yet, we must still put forth the question:

Are taxes truly necessary?

Taxes Could Be Abolished

Can We Dispense with Taxes?

Is the system of taxation, such as it exists today, really necessary in order that the community may have those public services which it demands of its Government?

— Yes, reply the orthodox economists without any hesitation. And what is more, they add, taxes are becoming more and more necessary everyday. Why? Because the people are demanding more and more public works and services; because they are asking more and more of their Governments.

— No, answers the Social Credit school. There is another means than that of taxation. And this other means is becoming more necessary, and is imposing itself, in spite of all resistance, simply because taxation is becoming so heavy that it is threatening to strangle the life out of our economic body.

Taxes, assert Social Crediters, paralyse rather than help.

They discourage production rather than stimulating it.

They deprive the people of more purchasing power than they redistribute.

They obstruct the normal flow of goods from producer to consumer.

They deprive, without any good reason, private consumption of goods, and this in spite of the fact that the country's production is nowhere exhausted.

They take away money that has been honestly gained, and they despoil the taxpayer of the fruit of his toil.

They also take away from the individual his right to draw upon the production of his country to his own choice and in keeping with the productive capacity of the country.

The taxation system is, finally, one of the worst headaches of modern society, for it absorbs, quite uselessly in the final analysis, the time and energies of a multitude of civil servants, while causing the utmost in irritation to those who are being taxed.

One Means, But Not The Only

Taxes are one means of putting resources to work to meet the public needs of the people. That much can be admitted. But there are other means which can be thought of and put to work.

For example, the country needs a road. For the road to pass from the planning board to reality it is necessary to utilize materials and men or machines.

So we see that what is necessary to produce the roads is materials and machines and men — the natural resources of the country. Not taxes.

Taxes have never physically built one foot of roads. They have never been anything more than a method to mobilize men, machines and material to build the road.

If there should be another method, less expensive, less troublesome, a method which does not engender economic hardship, then there is no reason why this other method should not be chosen in preference to taxes. It would be sheer waste to persist in a procedure which requires more time, more effort which upsets the whole well-balanced system of production.

The Social Credit school has never hesitated to qualify the method of taxation as being completely obsolete. Perhaps such a method had certain qualified benefits at a time when the capacity to produce was very limited, or at a time when it was believed necessary to have gold in the hand before merchandise could be exchanged. Such a time has passed. The productive capacity of the country awaits only the command to produce, to turn out all that is needed, to fill the needs of individuals, families and public bodies. And we are living in a society where more than 90 percent of business transactions are carried on with no other sign of credit except that which is contained in accounts existing in banks.

A Question of Adapting Finance

Taxes are necessary just so long as society continues to hold to those outworn rules and regulations of the existing financial system which say that they are necessary. But such rules and regulations were not handed down to men along with the Ten Commandments. Men are perfectly free to modify them, to change them or do away with them completely.

The Social Credit school affirms that we can advantageously do away with the existing tax system without having to forego public works and services, without either inflation or deflation, and at the same time, assuring an adequate and just share of purchasing power to every member of the community. But this can be done only on one condition. Certain modifications must be made in the existing financial system.

What modifications? Modifications which can be summed up in a proposition whose validity no one yet has been able successfully to challenge:

Make finance the exact reflection of realities—make it a mechanism which will obey and serve, instead of a monster which dictates and enslaves.

But the existing financial system is not a faithful reflection of economic realities. Our financial system ignores realities, it does violence to them, cripples, contradicts them in every way possible. It comes forth with such absurdities as, "impossible to finance," when there exists a very real possibility to achieve. It expresses the wealth of the country in terms of public debt. It makes us work and toil today to pay for wars fought and won a generation or more ago. Finance has become a tyrant instead of the servant it ought to be.

Finance Contradicts Facts

We Can Build But Can't Pay

Taking into consideration only the field of public finance, is it not obvious to anyone who cares to see that, day in and day out, there is complete discord between physical possibilities and financial possibilities such as they exist?

The community asks for a road, a bridge or a water system. The road, the bridge or the water system are all physically possible. We have, physically, at hand all that we need in order to build these things—material, men, machines. We have, also, the clothing, the food, the housing materials which the workers on such projects will need for themselves personally. But do we go ahead and build such urgently needed project? Not at all! We wait. These projects are pigeon-holed because, according to the rules of our financial system, WE CANNOT PAY!

The community can built but it cannot pay. Physical capacity, financial incapacity.

Is such a finance a true reflection of the real, physical facts of our economy?

Physical Enrichment, Financial Debt

What was there in Canada when the first settlers came here from old France? There were no farms, no roads, no buildings, no social organization. Nor were there any debts. The redskins hadn't yet discovered our financial system.

The centuries have passed—now, look at Canada today. There are farms, villages, cities, factories, many wonderful forms of transportation, a multitude of public services, schools, universities, laboratories.

But then we see what finance has accomplished: federal debt, provincial debt, debt weighing down the municipalities, debts on the shoulders of other public corporations, debts on private enterprise, debts on the individual.

Physical enrichment, financial indebtedness.

The country which is materially the richest in the world today is the United States of America. It is also the nation which has the largest public debt.

Does finance reflect realities, or does it deform them?

Working for Wars of the Past

The First World War ended in 1918. The Second in 1945. Physically, then, and in terms of reality, these wars are completely over with. But financially they are still continuing.

Just for the Second War Canadians are taxed every year 325 million dollars more than before, without this financial slavery in any way diminishing. (This was the amount at the time Pourquoi taxer? was written, 1953. —Ed.) To get the 325 million dollars, Canadian taxpayers have to work. So it happens that Canadians are working today for a war that was finished in 1945!

And the English, no doubt, are still working to pay for the war fought against Napoleon!

Wars are won by sweat, by fatigue, privations, spilt blood, lives sacrificed, widowed wives, orphaned children, sorrow—yes, these are what won two world wars. In reality! But the financial system says that we are indebted to Finance, and each year we must labor and sweat again in order to pay the tribute which it exacts of us for having fought and won the war.

Is such a finance the mirror of realities?

Sovereign Power Must Beg

The Government declares, and frequently repeats, that the only money it has, or can have, is that which it gets from those who have it. Even when it wants to bring into being new wealth such as roads, airports, etc., it must seek and find the money where it already exists. If not, then it must do without the new development. Or, as a last resort, make do with new money which it gets from a private institution, the bank.

Money certainly takes its beginning somewhere.

There is more money in Canada today than there was fifteen years ago. Where did it come from? What gave the money in circulation its increase?

If the Government is incapable of putting one single new dollar into circulation , it can only mean that someone else is doing so—some agency other than a public organization.

Are we thus to conclude that Governments are no longer sovereign in the countries which they presume to govern?

No, they are not sovereign. And those who create true, physical wealth, the farmers, the miners, the lumbermen, the workers in the factories, neither are they sovereign in the land for which they create wealth.

As Mackenzie King expressed it so well, democracy is empty, sovereignty of Government or Parliament means nothing, as long as the control of money is not in the hands of the country but in the hands of the banks which operate for private interests.

The sovereign government is a beggar. Industrialists and business men are beggars. The nation which labours is a beggar. For they must go begging at the doors of the banks if they wish to live, even though they may be able to produce the things necessary to live.

Tyranny in Place of Service

We have only money which is rented to us. We have money at the whim of those who have the power of life and death over money. They are the ones who fix the conditions governing the birth, life, and death of credit. At the time fixed by them, money must be returned to them, swollen by the interest charges which they set when the money is issued. We are thus obliged to ask them for money to replace that which they have recalled. And the new issue, like the previous one, is condemned to the terms of existence which they set, saddled with the same interest charges.

Since money is needed to finance developments, it is not difficult to see how debt can accumulate as the country is developed.

Governments are the foremen over all the other beggars. They tax these begggars in order that the rent on money may be repaid to the true masters of the nation.

A terrifying thought, but true!

The servant has become master—and what a tyrannical master! Finance is in no way the true reflection of the physical realities of our society. It has become the tyrannical dictator over those who produce real wealth.

Try and get five cents for the unemployed living in misery! But there is no problem at all finding the millions necessary to finance the butchery we call war. And once the guns are silent and production is turned to the things of peace, these masters demand the repayment to them of the billions which they created freely to finance the mass slaughter of humanity.

It is obvious that finance of such a nature can well demand a taxation system which holds the people in a sort of slavery, rationing them the things necessary for life even in the face of a superabundance of wealth, of true wealth.

How different the picture would be under a financial system which was in conformity with the facts, with reality!

For Finance to Reflect Facts

The abolition of taxes cannot be accomplished within the framework of a financial system which is not in accord with realities. But when finance faces up to realities and suits itself to realities, taxes can be dispensed with; that is to say, when a financial system is constructed about Social Credit principles. One must therefore have some knowledge of these principles before being able to understand the possibility of doing away with the present system of taxation.

Economic Realities

The two important facets of economic realities are: on the one hand, human needs; on the other, the goods and services which will meet these needs and satisfy them.

The goods (and when we speak of goods we also include services) which will satisfy these needs, constitute wealth. Whether it is a question of goods destined for private consumption, like, food, clothing, etc., or a matter of goods destined for public consumption, like roads, schools, water systems, etc., the production of such goods constitutes true "enrichment," while the destruction of such goods in any manner constitutes true "impoverishment," in the strictest sense. A country then becomes richer when it produces more goods than it destroys. This is normally the situation in countries which are well advanced and are equipped with the most up-to-date methods of production. Modern countries today will normally produce more durable goods (roads, plants, etc.) than it will use up—as long as they are not afflicted with the cataclysms of war or of the forces of nature. And as far as consumer goods are conerned, they cannot for long consume more than they produce.

The Issuance and Cancellation of Credit

Our modern society has learned to make use of a very simplified form of money, the money of accounting by which credit is exchanged by means of cheques which transfer this credit from one account to another. It is true that paper and metal money have not been entirely suppressed, but they form only an insignificant percentage of the actual monetary dealings of the business world today.

Money and credit are interchangeable. It is only necessary to stand before a wicket in a bank for a few minutes to be convinced of this fact. Consequently, we use the term "credit-money" in setting forth the following financial principle which stems from a system which is in harmony with realities:

> All new production should be financed by new credit-money. And this credit-money should not be withdrawn or cancelled except in the measure that the wealth produced is destroyed or depreciates.

So we see that with a system of finance which is healthy and which conforms to the reality of facts, it is production—or the capacity and the will to produce—which determines the flow of credit-money. It is not money which should determine production or its rate.

Whatsoever is physically possible of production, in answer to the needs of the population, should also, automatically, be financially possible. Otherwise, finance is no longer in accord with realities. It becomes an obstacle instead of an aid.

So it is manifestly absurd for a community of human beings to abstain from producing goods which it needs, wants and can produce, simply because of a lack of financial means. To do so would be to submit to a system of finance which falsifies realities and penalizes men instead of serving them.

Since, from one year to the next, the production of true wealth, in a country which possesses modern equipment and techniques, is greater than the consumption of such wealth, the public accounting of such a country should show a growing national capital rather than an increasing public debt.

And since the wealth of a country exists for the people of that country, it follows that a country which has thus an ever-increasing national capital should issue to its citizens a dividend for each one, rather than diminishing, through taxation, the right of the citizens to share in the production of their land.

If finance were a true and faithful mirroring of realities, financial credit would be simply financial expression of real credit.

The real credit of a country, the true base of the confidence which is had in that country, is that country's ability to produce and deliver the goods which are called for by needs.The greater a country's capability to satisfy, quickly and easily, the expressed needs, the greater the confidence placed in that country by those who live or contemplate living there. In other words, the greater is its credit.

The financial credit of a country should be nothing else but the expression, in credit-figures, of this real credit.

So, again, how absurd to measure the credit of a country by this country's ability to furnish dollars to the financiers. The world was not created for the financiers.

If finance were a true and exact reflection of facts, and if finance were a true servant of the community, any and every capacity to produce would be expressed by the capacity to pay.

With a financial system conforming to reality, the problem of paying does not exist as long as the problem of producing does not exist.

In the Service of Human Needs

But finance should also be something more than an expression, in accounting, of production; it should also be a mechanism for the distribution and sharing of the goods necessary to fill the needs of men. It should provide purchasing power to those who have needs. Otherwise, there can be no conjunction between needs and goods.

And here we touch upon the social. It is not outside the limits of the matter under consideration to recall that the riches of the earth were created for all men, and that each and every individual, in one way or another, should have sufficient of these goods in order to be assured of a decent living.

In our modern society, the only way to insure to each one that minimum of goods is to insure and guarantee to each an amount of purchasing power which will enable him to procure this minimum of production. No individual can, by himself, produce for himself all the goods he requires to satisfy his needs. Each one has need of the goods produced by others. And in order to obtain the goods produced by others, each one must have that with which to pay for this production, purchasing power.

A financial system in conformity with reality must, then, not only issue new credits for all new production, but it must also distribute purchasing power to each and every individual.

Thus purchasing power cannot be distributed exlusively through the channel of wages and salaries since not everyone is in receipt of wages and salaries. In fact, less than half of the population receive an income from employment in production.

Social Credit foresees the distribution of purchasing power through a periodic dividend issued to each and every individual.

Progress is making it possible to produce more and more with less and less need of direct human intervention; that is, with less need of "employees." Progress is thus tending to disassociate production from employment. That is why, in a system of finance in conformity with reality, the right to goods, that, is purchasing power, should be in the same measure be disassociated from employment. The greater the decrease in the number of those working for wages and salaries, because of progress, the greater should be the increases in the dividend.

The Adjustment of Prices

A finance working in harmony with realities would also have the function of adjusting the sales price with the true cost price.

What is the true price of a product? It is everything which it is necessary to make use of in order to produce it. It is everything which, as such, disappears, or is consumed, because of the manufacture of this thing which has been produced.

For example: we build a bridge. The wood, the iron, the cement, etc., all cease to exist as things apart by themselves. They become one with the bridge. Other things likewise disappear because this bridge was built. All the consumer goods—the food, the clothing, the medicines, the little luxuries and entertainments—bought by the men who received salaries or wages as a result of working on the construction of the bridge, these likewise are part of the physical cost of constructing the bridge. So we might say, with complete accuracy, that the true cost of the things is the sum total of goods which were consumed through the construction of this bridge, because the bridge was built.

It is in this sense that we say: the real cost of production is consumption.

So we see that, for finance to be in accord with realities, the total sales price which the consumers of a country will pay for the total production of that country in a given period, should not exceed the total value of what is consumed in the country for that same period. If, for example, the country produces 30 billions of dollars worth of goods in one year, while the citizens of the land, during that time, have consumed onyl 20 billions of dollars of produce, then the citizens should be able to procure the 30 billions worth of new produce for 20 billions of dollars. Yet, the producers must recover their 30 billions of dollars. If they do not, they will go into bankruptcy.

We can see then how it becomes necessary to adjust constantly the sales prices of goods to the true cost price of these goods. And we see, too, that the producer must be compensated for that amount which is not paid by the consumer.

Claims upon Production

Drawing Upon the Productive System

When I buy a pound of meat, a piece of furniture, shoes, etc., I make a demand upon the productive capacity of my country. Even if the particular product has been imported, I still make a demand upon that capacity, because imports are balanced off by the exporting of goods or services which have been contributed by the production system of my country.

When the Government builds a bridge, or some other public work, it, likewise, draws upon the productive capacity of the country.

In both cases it is the producing community which must meet these demands. Hence, every demand, whether public or private, is really an order to be filled by the producing community.

When it is a private demand, it is limited by the amount of purchasing power held by the individual. With one dollar I demand from the production system whatsoever is of the value of one dollar. And I am limited by the number of dollars which I possess.

A public drawing upon the productive capacity of the country comes from the Government under the authorization of Parliament. Parliament represents the community. So that in such a case it is really the community which makes a demand upon itself.

Individual Claims

The individuals of a community in which Social Credit had become a reality would obtain the credit necessary to draw upon production:

1. Through a dividend which would be issued to each individual periodically from birth to death;
2. Through salaries, profits and dividends from industry, as is the case at present, in the measure that it is still necessary to issue such forms of credit in order to maintain and, if necessary, increase the flow of production.

The Government's Claims

How will the Government pay for the public goods and services which it must undertake to provide and maintain if it does not obtain such money through taxing those under its jurisdiction?

Once again, the Government is the mandatary of the community. If the community, through its Parliament, decides to draw upon the productive capacity of the country, it is simply deciding to draw upon its collective good for a collective purpose. The community then may just issue and deliver the claims to whomsoever will be entrusted with this mobbilization of its own resources, its productive capacity. Such claims are the means of payment, the financial credit reflecting the real credit of the community.

Government and citizens alike thus draw upon the same productive capacity. The citizens do so by presenting their money; the Government by presenting the decision of the representatives of the community.

Obviously, the capacity of the production system must be capable of meeting such demands. It would be useless for the community to demand of itself something which it was not capable of producing.

* * * * *

The example of a public work realized without taxation which we are going to describe, supposes the existing of a financial system which is in conformity with reality, a Social Credit system. It supposes the issuance and cancellation of credit-money according to facts.

So we must, in spirit, place ourselves in an economy which is completely Social Credit if we wish to understand the functioning of public finance without taxation.

Public works without taxation, a bridge built without taxes; such will not be found in our existing financial system, where finance commands, conditions, limits and straitjackets realities.

But under a Social Credit system finance would be nothing but a mirroring, through accountancy, of realities. We produce and we express, in terms of financial credit, the value of that which we produce. We consume and we express, in terms of financial debit, the value of that which is consumed.

A Bridge Built Without Taxation

From Whence the Program of Public Works?

Let us suppose that the community needs a bridge. The only question to be considered is: "Are we physically able to build the bridge?"

There is no longer any question of, "Can we pay?" or, "How are we going to pay?"

"Physically able to build" means having the materials, the engineers, and the workers necessary to realize the project without weakening the production of goods wanted for private needs.

If the bridge in question is for the province, then it is up to the minister of Public Works to submit the project to the provincial Parliament. The Parliament, then, in the name of the community, either approves the project, refuses it or puts it off until later. In order to arrive at a decision, the Parliament is not obliged to bring into consideration the question of finance. The Parliament has only to consider whether or not this project corresponds to the desires of the people, and whether or not there exists the physical possibility of realizing the project.

The bridge can certainly be evaluated in dollars, according to the quality of the materials to be used, the cost of labour and materials needed. But you don't need a single dollar in hand to evaluate something, to measure its value.

And, wisely, the construction of the bridge can be confided to that group of contractors who have tendered the lowest bid—always providing they are competent. For if you consider that finance is a reflection of realities, a lesser cost means a lesser consumption of time, labour, and material; and a country adds to its wealth when it can produce finished goods with a minimum consumption of labour and raw material.

From Whence the Finance for Public Works?

Let us suppose that it is John Smith who gets the contract for the building of our bridge. He is asking $500,000.

Where is the Government going to get $500,000 with which to pay Mr. John Smith? —The Government does not have to worry itself about this, For, remember, finance is not a matter of government but merely an affair of accounting.

The functioning of a Social Credit financial system presupposes the institution of an accounting body for this purpose.

Let us call this body the Office of Provincial Credit since we are here dealing with provincial public financing.

In case the system would be instituted federally for all Canada, it would be a National Credit Office.

The accountants to run the system would be appointed by the Government (Provincial or Federal, according to case). But once the officials have been chosen, the Government will not have to interfere in their operations.

The Government, in the name of the community, defines the objectives. These objectives are set forth in the same legislation which created the official credit body. However, once the body has been set up and the objectives defined by the Government acting in the name of the community, it is then up to the accountants engaged by the body to determine and effect the financial operations necessary to attain the objectives set, with respect to the realities of production and consumption.

This is somewhat along the line in which our judiciary system operates. The Government enacts the laws. The Government appoints judges. But the Government does not interfere with the judgment of judges. The judges are bound and guided by two things: the law (which they did not create), and the facts (which they did not posit). Under our judiciary system, judges can even pronounce against the very Government which has appointed them.

In such a manner will the accountants of our official credit office act. They will not dictate what is to be produced or what is to be consumed, but they will simply record the bare facts of production and consumption. When a record has been compiled of these realities resulting from the free acts of citizens, the accountants then make the necessary mathematical deductions from these facts and the consequences, following the lines laid down by the law which instituted this credit body:

1. Create and cancel financial credits according to the production and disappearance of true wealth;
2. Credit, periodically, each citizen with a dividend which will guarantee him a share in the wealth of his country.
3. Adjust, periodically, the prices to be paid by purchasers of retail goods; such adjustments to be made according to the existing ratio of overall consumption to overall production from one period to the next.

Getting back to our bridge: it is not the provincial credit office which decides whether or not the bridge is built, nor the cost of such a bridge. But it is this office, and not the Government, which has the duty of seeing to the financing of the bridge, as it is built. For under an adequate financial system, finance is nothing more than accounting.

The Advance of Credits

The contractor who is going to build the bridge, John Smith, may need advances of credit in order to pay for materials and labour. He makes his own arrangements with his trading bank, as is done presently for all loans or all overdrafts needed by those engaged in commerce and industry.

The trading bank, however, has lost the privilege to create new credits, but obtains such credits from the National (or Provincial) Credit Office, kind of Reserve Bank whose financial assets reflect the physical assets of the country.

The trading bank obtains such credits interest-free, but is bound to refund them entirely to the Credit Office. As its loans to industry and commerce incur risks, and as it must meet its costs, the trading bank charges interest to its borrowers, in this case to Mr. Smith. This has been foreseen and computed by Mr. Smith in preparing his tender for the contract.

Mr. Smith spends his overdraft money in the purchase of material and in payment of wages, etc.; and when the job has been completed, or soon afterwards, all of that money which he has paid out will have returned to the only source where it came from (the Credit Office). It will have returned there through the general price system and the trading banks system, the money going from the buyers to the retailers, and from these to the banks which financed the production, and from these banks to the Credit Office where-from they obtained all financial credit.

In a way, we can say that the whole community has paid for the construction of the bridge: paid in material, in labour, paid in food, clothes, etc., which were used up by the builders.

At this point, however, the contractor, Mr. Smith, owns the bridge and is in debt with his trading bank for the amount of his overdrafts, both principal and interest. And the trading bank is in debt with the Credit Office for the amount of the principal.

The bridge, of course, is of no use for Mr. Smith. He built it, may we say, to sell it to the Government, at the overall price of $500,000.

Where will the Government take the money to pay Mr. Smith? —The Government will obtain this money from the Credit Office, from the revolving fund of the community. It will be obtained interest-free, because the completed work is a new physical asset, a new production to be paid for by new financial credit.

The Government then pays Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith pays his due to his trading bank. The trading bank returns the principal to the Credit Office, wherefrom it came in the first instance.

The bridge has been built without taxation.

Does this mean that the Government is free from all obligation towards the Credit Office for the $500,000 obtained from that source? —Not exactly so, and we must elucidate this point.

Surely, the community does not owe a bridge which is collectively the fruit of its resources and labour. But the community will have to pay for the depreciation of the bridge. This will be done on a number of years, by instalments, up to a total of $500,000, the estimated financial value of the bridge. Not one cent more, because the bridge cannot be depreciated for more than its value. (The nonsense of the present system makes the population pay twice or more for bridges, schools, etc., that cannot be used up—consumed—more than once.)

If the period of depreciation of such a bridge is estimated to average 25 years, this means that, to reflect facts, a financial yearly return of $20,000 will have to be made by the community to its Credit Office, for 25 consecutive years.

This might be thought to be a kind of deferred taxation. But not so. It would in no way be money taken from the community for building an asset, but rather money taken from the community for the gradual destruction (depreciation) of an asset. And this is reflecting facts.

However, as production of new physical assets is greater than the destruction of same (except, perhaps, in time of war or in case of a huge catastrophe), the community would not suffer a financial impoverishment. The less so, as it would at all times be assured of collective cash credits (purchasing power) equal to the collective cash prices of the consumable goods for sale in the country.

This in implementation of the first three Social Credit principles enunciated by C. H. Douglas:

> The cash credits of the population of any country shall at any moment be collectively equal to the collective cash prices for consumable goods for sale in that country, and such cash credits shall be cancelled on the purchase of goods for consumption.

This is done through the compensated price and the periodic dividend to every individual, which have been but briefly mentioned in this treatise on taxation.

In What Country First ?

Who Can Inaugurate This New Finance?

Any country would find it greatly to its advantage to inaugurate within it a financial system in conformity with economic realities—a system such as has been partly described in this article.

It is not necessary that the entire world adopt such a system before a single country can introduce it into its own framework. In fact, every innovation which has finally become a part of the whole society, usually begins in one country or even with a part of one nation. The metric system is an example.

Moreover, a country adopting the Social Credit financial system would reap great benefits for itself, without causing any harm to any other country, and without in any way throwing out of gear the wheels of international commerce. In fact, it would aid greatly in getting rid of many of the grindings and creakings which are today issuing forth from these wheels. For example, those countries benefiting from a Social Credit finance would gladly accept, instead of barring, imports from other countries in return for exports from themselves.

But the richest countries, those with an abundant and varied production, or who have much to offer to others for what they should receive from others, are in an especially privileged position as far as meeting their own public and private needs is concerned. These should be the first to adopt a system of finance which would make it possible for them to take advantage of their wonderful opportunities.

Such is the case in North America, The United States and Canada.

In Canada, Federally or Provincially?

And inside Canada, the peoples of the provinces of Quebec, Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta, occupy favorite positions, since their provinces are the richest in Canada from the point of view of natural resources. Their economic possibilities are far above the average for Canada.

But, then, who can bring forward and pass the necessary legislation to bring into being a finance conforming to economic realities? It can come from, and be passed by, any authority which has the power to make laws, it being understood that such should be accomplished within boundaries of its jurisdiction.

In our country of Canada, such power lies within the hands of each Provincial Government as far as that Province is concerned; and within the hands of the Federal Government as far as the whole of Canada is concerned.

Thus, the change can be brought about:

1. either by a government of a Province within the limits of that Province;
2. or by the Government in Ottawa for the entirety of Canada.

A Province like Ontario, for example, has no need to obtain the approval of other provinces, any more than the Government of Canada has need of the approval of other countries before it passes such legislation.

And what we have said of a nation which adopts Social Credit, in relation to other countries, applies equally to a province which would adopt Social Credit within its borders, in its relation to other provinces. It can in no way, by such a step, cause any harm or inconvenience to the economic systems of the other provinces. It in now way excludes the others from its life, it impoverishes no other province, neither does it refuse to have economic relations with the others.

Mu nicipal administrations, on the other hand, have no legislative power. They have only that power which is delegated to them in the charter which is granted by the provincial government. The municipal agglomeration, moreover, does not constitute an economic entity. Thus, each municipality must obtain from the province any such facilities which will permit it to operate financially by another system than that of taxation and borrowing.

But, can a province, in fact, proceed with such legislation as we have described, in order to realize Social Credit? Is there not a constitutional obstacle to such a step? Is it not a fact that Article 91 of the British North America Act confers upon the Federal Government exclusively the right to legislate in matters pertaining to banks, the monetary standards and the issuing of money?

To those whom such an objection might cause worry, or who might make use of it to justify their doing nothing, we submit that:

1. In 1867, there was no question of Social Credit principles since these date only from 1918;
2. The Federal and Provincial Governments can very easily get together and come to some agreement on a change in the text of the Act, especially when such a change would hurt no one who is a party to the Act;
3. There is no need for a Province, which wishes to implement Social Credit, to strike new money or issue bank charters, which are acts particular to the Federal Government. All that is needed is a provincial accounting organ;
4. If the Province has the right to turn its credit into money through the intermediary of banks in Boston or New York, then it has the right to do so directly without having to pass through such institutions, which are purely private concerns;
5. Regardless of the situation, no authority in the world has the right to impose upon any Province, or upon any sovereign country, a private institution endowed with a power which is greater than the power of that Province or that country.

It is not incredible that the money monopoly would resist strenuously any attempt by the Province to pass legislation which would free it from this money monopoly. And the same would be true if the Federal Government attempted to strike the chains of financial slavery off the country as a whole. For it is this group, or these groups, who control money and make of it a monopoly of their own, who are the true adversaries of any genuine reform, because it is they who hold the power and they who profit.

No reform, as laid down by the principles and propositions of Social Credit, can go ahead except in a Province, or in a country, where the people have exercised sufficient pressure upon their government to force it to move against the men who presently hold the power of credit.

We believe further that when the day comes that a major Province, like Quebec, or Ontario, stands up and shrugs off these financial chains through the establishment within its boundaries of a financial mechanism conforming to economic realities, it will have the approval and support of all the other Provinces, even though the Federal Government may not have moved a finger to help.

The Social Credit of the movement carried on by the Pilgrims of Saint Michael, under the guidance of the Institute of Political Action, understand full well that most powerful force, that one and only irresistible force which alone makes true democracy, the will and action of a people sufficiently enlightened. And it is to arouse and direct this force that the Pilgrims of Saint Michael are dedicating all their energy and zeal.

ADDITIONAL LITERATURE ON MONEY AND FINANCE

Henry Ford, Sr., On U.S. Finance	$2.00
Money Questions and Answers, Father Coughlin	$5.00
Money Creators, Gertrude Coogan	$5.50
Lawful Money Explained, Gertrude Coogan	$3.50
The Magic of Reserve Banking, Peter Cook	$6.00
History of Monetary Crimes, Alexander del Mar	$2.00
The Federal Reserve Conspiracy, Eustace Mullins	$4.00
The Federal Reserve System	$1.50
The Federal Reserve Board:The Most Gigantic Counterfeit Ring in the World, Ben Klassen	3/$1.50
The Money Myth Exploded	$1.75
A Primer of Social Credit	$1.25
Social Credit: 160 Questions & Answer	$1.25
The Empire of the City, E.C. Knuth	$3.50
The Temple of the Thirteen Suns	5/$1.50

For Postage and Handling, please include:
$1. for orders under $10.—10% for orders over $10. U.S.A.
15% foreign countries. WV residents must include 5% for Sales Tax ORDER WITH CONFIDENCE FROM:
Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

For additional information on SOCIAL CREDIT write to:
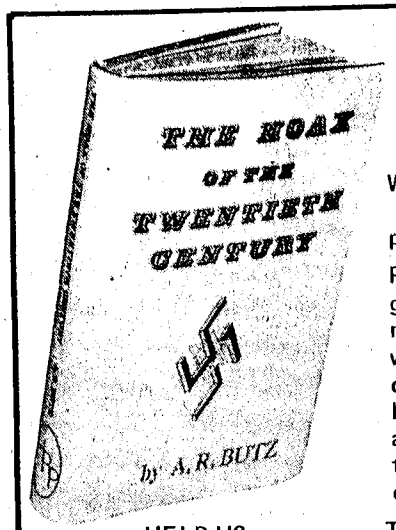
The Institute of Political Action
Saint-Michel de Rougemont, P.Q., Canada



THE "HOLOCAUST" —
FACT OR FICTION?

Were six million Jews really gassed . . . or has a colossal hoax been perpetrated on the world?

Professor Butz has carefully investigated the alleged extermination of 6 million Jews during WW II and has written a book which thoroughly documents his startling findings. His book strips away the cover of fraud and deceit from this emotion-charged topic and lays bare the full and complete truth.

HELP US
SPREAD THE TRUTH!

THE HOAX OF THE 20th CENTURY
$6.00

$ 4.00 $ 3.00

For Postage and Handling, please include:
$1. for orders under $10.—10% for orders over $10. USA—
15% foreign countries. W.Va. residents must include 5% for Sales Tax.

Order from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

THE FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD, continued from page 12

and Senators had already left the capital for the Christmas holidays, their select henchman stayed and rushed the bill through Congress. Their paid stooge, Woodrow Wilson, signed the bill immediately. The Jews had their Central Bank—European style. For the American people, who understood little of all the confusion, it was a day of infamy, a disaster of much greater magnitude than a dozen Pearl Harbors.

Key to Federal Reserve — Treachery, Deceit and Counterfeiting

Stripped of all window dressing, how does the Federal Reserve work? Basically, it works on deficit spending and the same principles of "fractional reserves" as practiced by their Jewish goldsmith ancestors.

The Jews are constantly and deliberately pushing the Federal Government deeper into debt, because every billion dollars more debt means a billion dollars into their own coffers, plus interest.

Supposing the Federal . Government in Washington needs another ten billion dollars. Where do they get it? They go the Federal Reserve, a private, criminal gang of International Jewish Bankers. The Federal Reserve makes the loan.

Where does the Federal Reserve get all this money? In order to make the loan, the Federal Reserve first asks the Bureau of Printing and Engraving to print up a new batch of 10 billion in dollar bills of various denominations, tens, twenties, hundreds, etc. These then are turned over to the Federal Reserve Bank FREE OF CHARGE, except for the cost of the paper and the ink for printing them, which amount is insignificant. The United States Government then prints up ten billion dollars in U.S. Government Bonds and turns these over to the Federal Reserve also als "collateral." The U.S. Government Bonds are an I.O.U. and HAVE TO BE REPAID, WITH INTEREST. The Federal Reserve then issues the U.S. Treasury Department credit to the amount of ten billion dollars on which it can write checks.

A cursory inspection of this transaction reveals:

1. The Federal Reserve has contributed nothing but Paper and ink, a minimal sum.
2. Riding on the credit and prestige of the United States Government, it has "issued" (created out of nothing) ten billion dollars worth of new money.
3. The Government gets to spend this money, but has to pay it back to the Federal Reserve, with interest.
4. The Federal Reserve is immediately ten billion dollars richer—plus the eternal interest it will accrue from this account receivable.
5. The United States Government and its people are ten billion dollars deeper in debt to the Federal Reserve and have to pay it back with interest.
6. If Congress did its duty and invoked its constitutional right and obligation, it could and should it could and should have printed the same ten billion in dollar bills on its own for the cost of the paper and the ink, as did Abraham Lincoln, without owing the Jewish Bankers a cent. This is what the Constitution of the United States authorizes it to do and obligates it to do.

As far as I know, in modern times, outside of the $356 million in "Greenbacks" that Abraham Lincoln had printed, the only country that defied the Jews and printed its own money was Adolf Hitler's Germany between 1933 and 1945. Before Hitler, the Rothschild-owned Reichsbank had Germany so tied up, bankrupted and in debt, that the German people were virtual slaves to their Jewish masters. Every business, every industry, every farm, was either owned by the Jews or hopelessly in debt to them. Millions were unemployed and starving. The country, totally ravished by the Jews, was in worst possible straits, financially, morally, and practically every other way anyone could possibly imagine.

As soon as Hitler came to power, he wrested the money printing privileges out of the hands of the Jews. Instead, it was printed by the legal authority of the German Government itself, backed by the productive strength of the nation. There was no interest paid on it, and the Government was not in debt to any Jews or anybody else for each and every Mark that was printed.

The immediate financial and industrial recovery in Germany that followed was a marvel to behold. While much richer countries, like the United States, were wallowing in depression, unemployment and despair, the Germans were busily building new factories, super highways, houses, cars, ships, etc. Unemployment disappeared in short order. Everyone was working and building. By breaking the Jewish financial stranglehold over the German people, the Germans, during Hitler's short 6-year period of peace, were more productive and prosperous than they had ever been in their pevious history.

The United States, being a much richer country, due to its land and resources, could be fabulously wealthy if and when we break the Jewish stranglehold here. This we must do—and we will do!

Instigated Wars & Deficit Spending—The Jewish Program

Although the Federal Reserve Act, passed in 1913, violated the Constitution (and still does), which says under Article 1, Section 8, CONGRESS ALONE "has the power to coin money, (and) regulate the value thereof," the Jews now "legally" had the power to print all the money they wanted, to control, fleece and manipulate the finances of the wealthiest country in the world. They have done so with a vengeance. They were now ready to use those powers. Within less than a year after passage of the Federal Reserve Act, the Jews had World War I in full swing. By 1917, they had the United States inveigled in it, although we had not even a remote national interest in entering that war.

But the Jews did. In Germany, the Jewish outfit of M.M. Warburg Co. was helping the Kaiser "finance" the war. In the United States, Paul Warburg of Kuhn, Loeb and Co., and their now functioning Federal Reserve System, was "selling" war bonds to the "American" war effort. Both Central Banks, in Germany and the United States, were owned and controlled by the same Jewish House of Rothschild. While the cream of young manhood of the White Race was dying in the stinking trenches and the mud of the battlefield, the Jewish printing presses on both sides of the Atlantic were rolling out money and propaganda. The White nations of the world were sinking deeper and deeper into debt and the Jews were getting fatter and fatter.

The Federal Reserve System is, of course, an unmitigated evil, and the poisonous breath of a monster that is choking the American White people to death. With unlimited control of the money and finances of the world, the Jews can deliberately instigate manipulated wars, depressions, debts and taxes, at will. Through the power of money, they have accrued unto themselves the television networks, the news media, the stock exchanges, the banks, the industries, and, in fact, the Government itself. The Jewish controlled Government is now slowly enslaving the White Race here and abroad through a deliberate program of destruction.

What can we do about it? It is pointless to wage single wars against the Federal Reserve or the United Nations, or the many other tools the Jews now control in order to more rapidly destroy us. We are not going to win scattered battles. We can ONLY WIN A TOTAL WAR in which is united the White Race against the Jews and the mud races. Our best and only program is to organize RACIALLY around the creed of THE CHURCH OF THE CREATOR. We must totally drive the Jews from power and totally grasp into our own hands our own future and destiny. Only an organized, united White Race can do that, and do it we will. Our books, NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION, THE WHITE MAN'S BIBLE and SALUBRIOUS LIVING, spell out the creed and the program.

Once these books, the White Man's Bible, is the universal property of the majority of the White People of the United States, we are well on the way to having broken the terrible power of the parasitical Jews and the diabolic Federal Reserve.

Check It Out for Yourself

Should you doubt the accuracy and veracity of my story about the Federal Reserve Rip-Off, be my guest and check it out for yourself. There are particularly a few vital questions to which you must get straight answers:

FIRST, and the most vital: To whom does the benefit accrue each time a new dollar bill is printed? Certainly not the public, and certainly not the U.S. Government. If the Government got the benefit of all the printing press money, it would not be 1,000 billion dollars in debt and have to tax the people another 700 billion a year to try to shore up their deficit budget. THE BENEFIT CLEARLY ACCRUES TO THE INTERNATIONAL GANG OF JEWISH COUNTERFEITERS who own the Federal Reserve.

SECOND: Who owns the Class "A" stock in the Federal Reserve? Don't let them tell you there isn't any.

THIRD: Why does the Federal Reserve pay no taxes, when every other private corporation and individual does?

FOURTH: Why has the Federal Reserve never been audited?

There are many more questions we should ask, but the above will suffice.

In order to get answers, you may want to write to your Congressmen, or perhaps half a dozen Congressmen and Senators, and see what a disparity of answers they come up with. Don't expect to get honest answers from them. Nor can you expect your bankers, nor the news media, to come up with any straight answers. The bankers, because they don't really know; the news media, for the same reason, but even if they knew they would lie to you, because they are owned by, and are part and parcel of, the same International Jewish Conspiracy.

THE VERY FACT THAT IT IS SO DIFFICULT TO GET STRAIGHT ANSWERS TO THE ABOVE VITAL QUESTIONS SHOULD ALERT RED FLAGS IN YOUR MIND ABOUT THE SINISTER NATURE OF THE CONSPIRACY THAT DEVOURS ALL.

Next let us look at the roster of Jews that surrounded and engulfed the Jimmy Carter Administration. For the names of the scurvy crew that ran "our" country under Jimmy Carter, please study the listing elsewhere in this booklet. Scary, isn't it?

Now, if you think this is new and an unusual set of circumstances, think again. The same situation [exists now under President Reagan in the 1980s —Ed.] existed with the Ford Administration, the Nixon Administration, on down through the decades. THE CAST OF CHARACTERS MAY CHANGE, BUT IT ALWAYS REMAINS A JEWISH CAST!

The Impact of all this Jewish Thievery on You Personally

What does all this mean to you, the average, hard-working White tax-payer? What does it mean to you, the average White American, who has to work and scrimp and save to make ends meet and earn a decent living for himself and his family?

It means plenty to you! The impact on the working White middle-class American is devastating. It practically makes him a galley-slave in the so-called Land of the Free, the America that the White Man built from a wilderness.

So, you had better listen and listen real well. The nefarious swindle known as the Federal Reserve means the following to you.

1. It means you have to earn every dollar you work for at least five times over.

(a) You first earn the dollar that supposedly you get in your paycheck or in your business.

(b) You have to pay for it again BY BORROWING IT from the Federal Reserve swindlers.

(c) You have to pay interest on that dollar forever and a day to the Federal Reserve. Thus you may wind up paying two dollars in interest for every dollar received (borrowed).

(d) You have to pay more than half of what you earn back in in a multitude of taxes, all of which finally ends up in the hands of the same Jewish swindlers whose counterfeit dollars you had to beg for in the first place.

2. It means also, since these treacherous Jews have the fraudulent means of printing themselves unlimited wealth, that they can buy up the total means of propapganda—newspapers, magazines, publishing houses, book distribution, radio and T.V. networks, etc. This they have done a long time ago and they are in total control. They have ruthlessly used this to control the minds and the thinking of the people of the world, including the confused and confounded thinking of the White Race.

3. By means of thought-control and mind manipulation they also control the governments of the world including our own in the United States of America.

4. By means of their tremendous financial power they can also buy, sell and manipulate those government officials that are not persuaded. In short, they can and do buy, sell, own and control our Government.

5. Since the program of the Jews is the total mongrelization and destruction of the White Race (which they are accomplishing at an accelerating pace), you, my dear White Racial Comrade, are the target of their destruction. Whether you like it or not, you are in the frying pan.

6, Because of their insatiable avarice and greed, the Jews, by means of confiscatory taxation, are looting the White Man of even that little which he has left after years of hard work and scrimping and saving.

7. The small sum total of the White Man's savings is further decimated by spiralling inflation. And what causes inflation? The unlimited printing of counterfeit paper dollars by the corrupt and sinister Jew, as manifested by the Federal Reserve.

* * * * *

So, think about it, White Man. You have a lot at stake as to whether or not you continue to allow the venal and perfidious Jew to continue his fraudulent racket of printing worthless paper dollars and passing them off to you as being "legal tender."

You had better wake up and do something—and do it now! "But," you ask, "What CAN I do?"

Nature's Eternal Religion the Key to Recovery

What can you do, indeed? A good question and we will answer it only briefly here, but we will show the way.

The White Man, in small numbers, has been aware of the sinister Jewish menace for a long, long time. The persistent mistake he has made in his feeble efforts to fight this cancer has been to fight the SYMPTOMS of that cancer, not the cause.

The Federal Reserve is one of those symptoms, albeit a mighty powerful symptom. The real underlying cause is the Jewish network, the Jewish race itself. (Other symptoms of Jewish malignancy are the United Nations, the corrupt, race-mixing Supreme Court, inflation, crime, integration, confiscatory taxation and a host of other Jew-concocted problems bedevelling the White Man.)

The Church of the Creator has the creed and the program to destroy this malignant evil and wipe it from the face of the earth. We cannot destroy the powerful Jewish plague by chopping at its tentacles. Only by martialling and organizing of the awesome might of the total White Race can we ever hope to get the parasitic Jew off our back. AROUSED, INFORMED and ORGANIZED, the White Race is ten times as powerful as all the Jews and mud races combined. Our program gets down to the basics of the Laws of Nature, the survival of our own kind, the great White Race.

In our White Man's Bible, NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION, THE WHITE MAN'S BIBLE and SALUBRIOUS LIVING, we have THE TOTAl PROGRAM, the FINAL SOLUTION, the ULTIMATE CREED.

Need we say more? If you want to join the White Man's fight for SURVIVAL, EXPANSION and ADVANCEMENT of our own race, then avail yourself of a copy of these books today.

After you have read our Bible, thoroughly digested and studied it, then you are ready to become a member of the finest religious organization on the face of the earth, THE CHURCH OF THE CREATOR. You are then ready to become a CREATOR—the cream of the elite.

What You Can Do . . .

Now we come to the most important part of this analysis—ACTION—what you can do, WHAT YOU MUST DO!

The White Race must awaken from its lethargy and slumber or it will be destroyed. The Jews, in their own secret enclaves, have passed the death sentence on the White Race. They are brutally but successfully carryin out that death sentence of extermination. Did you know that in 1920 the White Race was outnumbered only two to one, while today it is outnumbered twelve to one? Did you know that the (Jewish) United Nations gleefully predicts that in another generation the White Race will be swamped in a ration of 49 to 1 by a flood tide of mud races?

So, wake up, White Man! We must sound the alarm and organize ourselves. Informed, aroused and organized, the White Race is ten times as powerful as all the Jews, niggers and mud races combined.

So, to get started:

Distribute this booklet to every Congressman, Senator, and public official you can in Washington, in the county, and in your local government. Also to every White Racial Comrade in your circles. □

Reprints of this article available at these prices:
3 for $1.50 — 10 for $4.00 — 100 for $36.00 — 500 for $150.00 from:
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, WV 25270 USA

BOOKS BY BEN KLASSEN-THE CHURCH OF THE CREATOR

Nature's Eternal Religion ..... $ 8.00
The White Man's Bible ..... $ 8.00
Salubrious Living ..... $ 5.50

Survival of the White Race LP Record ..... $ 5.00

Reprints from The White Man's Bible:

Order No. 10058: Questions and Answers about Creativity: 4 for $1.50 — 10 for $3.50 — 100 for $30.00 — 500 for $120.00

Order No. 10059: Superstition and Gullibility: Achilles Heel of the White Race; Gullibility Rating Quiz: 5 for $1.50 — 100 for $20.00 — 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10062: A few obvious questions we would like Christians to explain with some sensible answers; Why we indict Christianity so strongly: 8 for $1.50 — 25 for $4.00 — 100 for $14.00 — 500 for $60.00.

Order No. 10069: Observations about the Devil and Hell; Thumbscrew and Rack; The Spooks-in-the-Sky swindle: 5 for $1.50 — 100 for $20 00 — 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10072: Russia, Israel and the United States: 5 for $1.50 — 100 for $20.00 — 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10073: World Jewry declared War on Germany long before Germany took Action against Jews; The 6 Million Lie: 5 for $1.50 — 100 for $20.00 — 500 for $80.00.

Order No. 10075: The Melting Pot: The ugly American Dream; Civilization without a Racial Religion: A Self-destructive process for the White Race; The Glory and the Catastrophe that was Rome: A Lesson for all time: 3 for $1.50 — 10 for $4.00 — 100 for $36.00 — 500 for $150.00.

Order No. 10081: We shall be masters of our own Manifest Destiny—Winning of the West: Prototype for winning of the world; The War with Mexico 1846-48: An unfinished War: Single Copy $1.25 — 10 for $10.00 — 100 for $80.00 — 500 for $250.00.

Order Form

Liberty Bell Publications

ISBN PREFIX 0-942094 PHONE: 304-927-4486
P.O. BOX 21, REEDY, WV 25270 USA

NAME:_____ DATE:_____

ADDRESS:_____ PHONE:_____

CITY/STATE/ZIP_____

SUBSCRIPTION RATES FOR THE LIBERTY BELL
for 12 monthly issues: ISSN: 0145–7667

Third Class (Bulk Rate) U.S.A. only	$15.00
First Class, U.S.A., Canada, Mexico only	$22.00
First Class, all other countries	$25.00
Air Mail, Europe, South America	$35.00
Air Mail, Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$39.00

BOOK ORDERS:
For Postage and Handling, please include:
$1. for orders under $10.—10% for orders over $10. U.S.A.
15% foreign countries. WV residents must include 5% for Sales Tax

QTY.	TITLE	EACH	TOTAL
	Nature's Eternal Religion	$ 8.00
	The White Man's Bible	$ 8.00
	Salubrious Living	$ 5.50
	One copy each of the above books	$15.00
Donation to the GET-THE-TRUTH-OUT Program

Please send check, money order or cash with order. Payment for foreign orders must be made in U.S. currency, by check with domestic computer numbers imprinted and drawn on U.S. bank, or international postal money order. Order with confidence—satisfaction guaranteed!

TOTAL
POSTAGE & HANDLING
5% WV SALES TAX
TOTAL AMOUNT

THOSE WHO WILL NOT READ—HAVE NO ADVANTAGE OVER THOSE WHO CANNOT READ!

SHOULD THE FED BE DETHRONED? continued from page 4

to boot. If the design of a building is faulty, doesn't one always blame the architect?

As for the directors who run the day-to-day operations of the FRS, part of them are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate; the others are elected by the regional Federal Reserve Banks.

The idea behind making the FRS independent was to keep monetary control free from political control, or at least this was the idea Congress supposedly bought in 1913. But if this idea is sound, why not extend it? How about having a military establishment free from political control, or an independent State Department? And the Fed is actually not as independent as it might seem. This is because large commercial banks are continuously lobbying the President to select persons of their choice for positions on the Federal Reserve Board. These big money men want FRB Governors who will favor their own financial interests. So, while the new appointees may be independent of government, and thus not accountable to the President, Congress, or the American people, it does not necessarily mean that they are not accountable to the big bankers who helped them get their job on the FRB.

It is generally conceded that in the field of religion myths are more tenaciously clung to than anywhere else. However, economics has its share of tenacious myths, also. Currently, one of the more popular ones is that we must tolerate high interest rates as a necessary evil in combatting inflation. Those who cling to this notion ignore the fact that, in the long run, high interest rates push up the cost of everything, thus raising prices and causing more inflation, not less. If anyone doubts this, let him calculate the total cost of a $70,000 home mortgage at 6% for 20 years, and then let him figure the cost of the same priced home with a 15% mortgage over the same length of time.

The 1920s are instructive in more ways than one, but the best lesson for modern economists to learn from them is that interest rates were low. But these low rates did not stimulate inflation; on the contrary, prices actually declined a little. Except for the beginning and end of the decade, the 1920s are often considered to have been the most prosperous era in our history. During these good times we had a lot of credit inflation without a corresponding price inflation, because the increase in the money supply also increased the production of goods and services to about the same extent, so that the two factors more or less balanced. But in the end, along came 1929 and the Great Depression, the worst on record.

What we should bear in mind, however, is that this depression, and all of our subsequent recessions, need not have happened at all; there is nothing written in the stars that makes these things inevitable; they are primarily the result of faulty monetary policy. And although the Fed is not solely responsible for everything that is wrong with the nation's economy today, it must certainly bear the blame for a great deal of it, and from this fact there is no escape.

To sum up, let it be said that the Treasury, an agency of a sovereign U.S. Government, could create our money as a credit, without any obligation to forever and a day pay interest on the country's credit to the International Banking crowd, just as well as the Fed creates it out of thin air, as a debt, enslaving our sovereign government and its people through atrocious interest payments; and if the Treasury would keep the increase in the money supply in harmony with with the increase in the supply of goods and services in the nation (which is not a difficult task!), then the worst of our financial problems would be over.

The Fed may be abolished—eventually, but I would bet against it happening soon, unless, of course, the President and Congress are made to feel the wrath of the people in no uncertain terms. The Masters of Money naturally do not want to relinquish their power and profits, and they have great influence in our Government and nation; indeed in the whole Western world.

Let us rise up to the task of making this country a SOVEREIGN COUNTRY once again; let us dislodge these enshacklers of mankind by demanding of your Congressmen and Senators that the Federal Reserve Act be repealed—NOW! □

Rechtsextremist „bedauert"

Terrorist Manfred Röder rückt von „Auschwitz-Lüge" ab

Von unserem Redaktionsmitglied Norbert Leppert

FRANKFURT A. M., 12. November. Zur Überraschung seiner Anhänger im rechtsextremistischen Lager hat sich der als Rädelsführer einer terroristischen Vereinigung verurteilte Manfred Röder (53) von der Behauptung distanziert, die Morde im Konzentrationslager Auschwitz seien nur eine Lüge. Wie Röder vor dem Frankfurter Landgericht in einer am Freitag bekanntgewordenen Erklärung zu Protokoll gab, „weiß ich heute, daß in Auschwitz Juden in großer Zahl getötet wurden, allein weil sie Juden waren".

Gegen den ehemaligen Bensheimer Rechtsanwalt und Vorsitzenden einer „Deutschen Bürgerinitiative e. V.", der Ende Juni dieses Jahres vom Stuttgarter Oberlandesgericht zu 13 Jahren Freiheitsstrafe verurteilt wurde, war in Frankfurt wegen Volksverhetzung verhandelt worden. Dabei ging es um Röders Vorwort zu Thies Christophersens Broschüre „Die Auschwitz-Lüge", in dem unter anderem behauptet wurde, die Vergasungsanlagen von Auschwitz seien ausschließlich „Erfindungen krankhafter Hirne".

Nach eingehender Rücksprache mit seinem Verteidiger sagte Röder vor Gericht, er sei „jetzt überzeugt, daß in Auschwitz eine Massenvernichtung der Juden stattgefunden hat". Deshalb bedaure er, das Vorwort zur „Auschwitz-Lüge" geschrieben zu haben; „Niemals mehr werde ich einen Beitrag zu einer derartigen Schrift leisten." Christophersen, so Röder wörtlich, „ist nicht Historiker, sondern Landwirt. Wie er berichtete, habe er während seines Aufenthalts in Auschwitz nicht beobachtet, daß Juden in Gaskammern getötet worden seien. So kann es sein, daß ihm das entgangen ist . . ."

Auf Grund der Röder-Erklärung zeigte sich das Landgericht mit Zustimmung der Anklagevertretung bereit, das Verfahren wegen Volksverhetzung als eine „unwesentliche Nebenstraftat" einzustellen. Einen entsprechenden Antrag hatte der Angeklagte selbst bereits zu Beginn des Prozesses gestellt; doch hatte die Staatsanwaltschaft die Einstellung von einer Distanzierungserklärung abhängig gemacht.

Zum Motiv des Widerrufes erklärte der Frankfurter Staatsanwalt Volkmar Schneider, vielleicht zeige Röder nun „doch so etwas wie Einsicht". Möglicherweise habe der Angeklagte auch seine Chance verbessern wollen, bereits nach Verbüßung von zwei Dritteln der in Stuttgart verhängten Strafe entlassen zu werden. Nach Einschätzung Schneiders muß Röder aber nunmehr damit rechnen, „daß die Spenden seiner Anhängerschaft ausbleiben werden".

Die „Auschwitz-Lüge" war 1973 herausgegeben worden. Die Broschüre erfreute sich großer Beliebtheit in der neofaschistischen Szene; sie erreichte die fünfte Auflage. Mehr als 25 000 Exemplare dürften verkauft worden sein. Christophersen, der eigenen Angaben zufolge als „Pflanzenzüchter" in Auschwitz war, wird nach Auskunft der Staatsanwaltschaft derzeit per Haftbefehl gesucht.

Frankfurter Rundschau, 13.11.82

RADICAL RIGHTIST HAS "REGRETS"

Terrorist Manfred Roeder recants "Auschwitz Lie"

Reprinted from Frankfurter Rundschau, 13 Nov. 1982

Translation from the German by T.F.

by Norbert Leppert, Editorial Staff Member

FRANKFURT/MAIN Nov. 12. To the astonishment of his Radical Right supporters, convicted terrorist Manfred Roeder, 53, has dissociated himself from the claim that it is a lie that murders were committed at the Auschwitz concentration camp. In a deposition to the Frankfurt Regional Court made public this Friday, Roeder declared: "Today I know that great numbers of Jews were killed at Auschwitz, simply because they were Jews."

The former Bensheim attorney and Chairman of a "German Citizens' Initiative," whom the Stuttgart Superior Court sentenced to 13 years imprisonment in June of this year, was on trial in Frankfurt for incitement to public mischief. The charge stemmed from Roeder's forward to Thies Christophersen's booklet "The Auschwitz Lie," which claims, among other things, that charges about gas chambers at Auschwitz were "invented by sick minds."

After a lenghty consultation with his attorney, Roeder stated in court that he is "now convinced that a mass extermination of the Jews did take place at Auschwitz." He regrets that he wrote the forward to "The Auschwitz Lie." "Never again would I contribute to such a publication." In Roeder's own words, Christophersen is "an agronomist, not a historian. Perhaps, as he reported, he did not see any Jews being killed in gas chambers during his stay at Auschwitz. Maybe that escaped his notice . . ."

On the basis of Roeder's deposition, the Regional Court, with the agreement of the Prosecution, indicated that it was prepared to drop the charge of incitement to public mischief as a "minor offence." At the start of the trial, the defendant filed a petition to this effect, but the Prosecution made dismissal of the charge contingent on his repudiation of "The Auschwitz Lie."

Explaining the motives behind Roeder's disavowal, Frankfurt District Attorney Volkmar Schneider said that Roeder may be "displaying something like insight." It is also possible that the defendant is trying to improve his chances of being released after serving two-thirds of the sentence imposed on him in Stuttgart. In Schneider's estimation, Roeder must now count on "his supporters withholding their contributions."

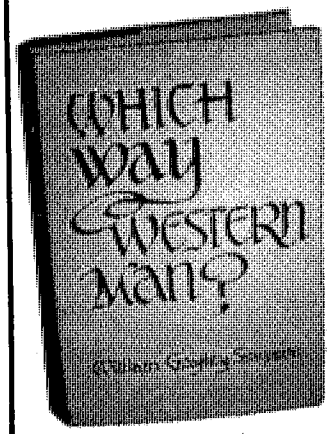
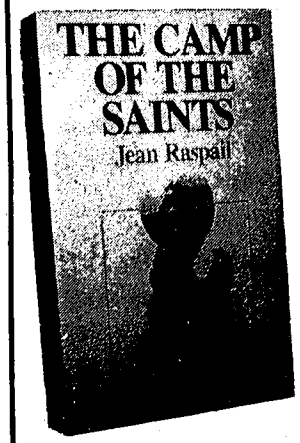
Published in 1973, "The Auschwitz Lie" has enjoyed great popularity on the neo-fascist scene. It went into five editions, with more than 25,000 copies sold. According to the District Attorney's Office, a warrant is out for the arrest of Christophersen, who has claimed he was at Auschwitz as a "nurseryman."

Survival manual for the White race



William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effects of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. WHICH WAY WESTERN MAN? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of WHICH WAY WESTERN MAN? send $17.50 for the deluxe, clothbound edition or $9.50 for the softback edition (these prices include $1.50 for shipping) to: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, WV 25270 USA

Does the West have the will to survive?



That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980 — except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy send $7.00 (which includes $1.00 for shipping) to: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, WV 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly— basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20. or $100 or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. Postage stamps, in any denomination, and printing paper and supplies (please write for specifics) are always needed and will be gratefully accepted.

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to patriots who do not yet know about what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, stickers and reprints. Order extra copies of The Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends and neighbors, urging them to subscribe to our publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue.

Pass along your copy of The Liberty Bell and copies of reprints you obtained from us to friends or acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

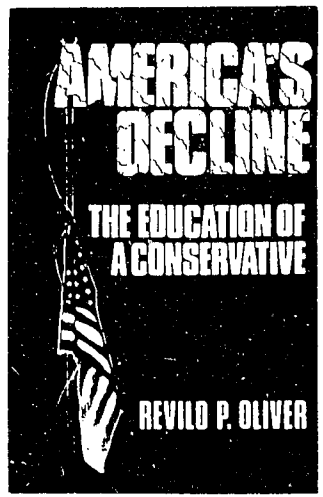
Carry on the fight to free America and the world from alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit, You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

a. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

b. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, Main Street (P.O. Box 21) Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY!
HELP FREE AMERICA FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!

Those who WILL NOT read
Have no advantage over
Those who CANNOT read



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM "AMERICA'S DECLINE

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principal of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

by Revilo P. Oliver — 376 pp., pb. $8.50

plus 85 cents postage — ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA

The Liberty Bell

Open Letter to the Gentiles

page 25

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

THE MELTING POT: The Ugly American Dream', page 1 – CIVILIZATION EITHOUT A RACIAL RELIGION: A Self-Destructive Process for the White Race, page 3 – OUR LOAN-RUN NATIONAL ECONOMY, page 9 – LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, page 19 – THE GLORY AND CATASTROPHE THAT WAS ROME: A Lesson for All Time, page 53.

VOICE OF AMERICA'S NEW REVOLUTION

THE LIBERTY BELL
is published monthly by LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, George P. Dietz, Editor. Editorial offices: P.O. Box 21, Reedy, W.Va. 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome, however, they cannot be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

COPYRIGHT 1983 by Liberty Bell Publications
Permission granted to quote in whole or part with proper source credit and address.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:	One Year
THIRD CLASS—Bulk Rate—USA only	$15.00
FIRST CLASS—USA, CANADA, MEXICO	$22.00
FIRST CLASS—ALL COUNTRIES—OVERSEAS	$25.00
AIR MAIL—EUROPE—SOUTH AMERICA	$35.00
AIR MAIL—FAR EAST—MIDDLE EAST—AFRICA	$39.00
Sample package incl. 1 copy of THE LIBERTY BELL	$ 2.00
10 copies	$ 12.00
100 copies	$ 90.00
500 copies	$300.00
1000 copies	$500.00

ADVERTISING RATES:
FULL PAGE	$100.00
HALF PAGE	$ 60.00
QUARTER PAGE	$ 35.00
EIGHTH PAGE	$ 20.00

DISCOUNTS: 5% on 6 month contract; 10% on 12 month contract, payable in advance. DEADLINE is the 15th day preceding the month of publication.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH—FREEDOM OF THOUGHT FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor-publisher of THE LIBERTY BELL does not necessarily agree with each and every article appearing in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers, however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that THE LIBERTY BELL strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately, it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible and not subject to evolution, change or replacement by the will of the people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the people, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

CREATIVE CREDO No. 18

Reprinted with the author's permission from The White Man's Bible, Copyright 1981, by Ben Klassen.

THE MELTING POT
THE UGLY AMERICAN DREAM

The Slop Pail. Back on the farm in Canada when I was a kid, we used to throw all our leftover scraps from the table into a big pail, along with soap water from washing the dishes, as well as any other garbage that ensued. We called it the slop pail and fed it to the hogs, the only animal that would tolerate such garbage for food.

The slop pail might also have been called the Melting Pot, the current racial image the Jewish press and power establishment is trying to slop off on the White people of America—as the American Dream.

American Dream Now Perverted. The American Dream! How it seems to have changed in the last century! When writers like Horatio Alger used to eulogize about the American Dream, they were portraying wonderful American success stories. They were stories of rags to riches, stories of the poor boy from the farm (or the city), becoming rich, successful and honored. They were stories of some poor White immigrant coming to America penniless, creating a new invention, or a new business and becoming successful beyond his fondest dreams. They were stories of White people who were achievers, doers, who were successful, who climbed above the common herd through sheer energy and ability.

Coming Nightmare. How that has changed today! If we are to listen to the Jewish peddlers of race-mixing, be it in the press, in politics, on T.V., or any other media of brain scrambling, the American Dream has changed into what for the White people is a horrible nightmare. Today the ideal situation we should all be striving for, according to these Jewish poison-peddlers, is equality, racial equality. Their proposed Utopia is a quagmire of a racially mixed society where everybody is equal, with the niggers more "equal" than the Whites, and the Jews on top of the heap calling the shots, and being more "equal" than anybody.

Integrated Scum. The type of society they envision is a society of total integration, total miscegenation, a multi-racial society where the niggers and the scum are proud to be "Americans" and the Whites are ashamed to be White. It is a United States where all the scum of the world can flock to—Cubans, Chinese, Phillipinos, Mexicans, Hindus, Haitians, niggers from anywhere. "Give me the wretched refuse from your teeming shores", as the Jews have so cunningly inscribed on the Statue of Liberty. The idea is to invite everybody in, climb on the welfare bandwagon, and encourage the scum of the world to multiply like rats. All this, of course at the expense of the hard working, hard pressed American Whites, who (according to the Jews) should be ashamed that they ever built such a marvelous country in the first place.

Let's face it, my White Racial Comrades. the Jew is successfully turning America into His Dream and Our Nightmare—to make America the Melting Pot, in short, a slop pail only fit for pigs and niggers.

The Answer. What can we do about it? Again I must reemphasize the crux of the problem. The crux of all our problems, and I mean all, is the racial problem. We must first and foremost solve the racial problem or else all is lost. In order to do this we must take the following steps:

1. We must reject the Melting Pot idea in the loudest and strongest terms. This Jewish idea means total integration, total miscegenation, total extinction for the great White Race.

We must be overwhelmingly clear in our own minds that the Jews, the niggers and the other mud races in our midst are alien, poisonous elements in our racial body. No multi-racial society has survived for long, and the White Race in such a society is always the casualty. Look at Haiti (formerly San Domingo) again. Look at India. Look at Mexico. Look at the Bahamas. Read again the history of Egypt, India, Greece, Rome, in our first book, NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION.

3. Once we have clearly fixed the idea in our own minds that Integration spells the Death Knell of the White Race, then we must become fervent missionaries in sounding the alarm and alerting our White Racial Comrades of the fate the Jews have in store for us.

4. We must rally and organize all our White Racial Comrades around the idea of White racial survival. We must polarize around the racial religion as set forth in this book and in NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION. Distribute these White Man's Bibles to your fellow White Racial Comrades as if your life depended on it. It does.

5. Once we are organized, we must drive the Jews from power, politically, financially, and from every other field.

6. Once we have accomplished this much the war is pretty well over, and we will be in a position to do what we should have done a long time ago—ship the niggers back to Africa and the other mud races back to wherever they came from.

7. We will then be in the position to proceed with the rest of our CREATIVITY program—to expand the Territory of the White Race and further pursue our basic goals, namely the Survival, Expansion and Advancement of the White Race.

There is our program. It is the only program that will save America from becoming a Jew designed Melting Pot, or as we have already stated, a slop pail filled with garbage only fit for hogs.

In order to bring all these ideas together the White Race must have a solid fundamental Racial Religion around which all good White Racial Comrades can polarize. That is what we want to emphasize in the next chapter.

CREATIVE CREDO No. 19

CIVILIZATION WITHOUT A RACIAL RELIGION
A SELF-DESTRUCTIVE PROCESS FOR THE WHITE RACE

Must use Civilization to our Benefit. In this chapter we want to examine the past, present and future genetic development of the White Race. We want to look at the heights reached in the past, where we are today, and what we aim to accomplish in the future. We also want to study the destructive influences of civilization itself on the genetic changes regarding the White Race. We also want to make sure that in the future civilization will become a tool for the genetic betterment of the White Race, rather than an implement for the erosion and downbreeding of our race.

* * * * *

Recent Changes Retrogressive. We all assume that because of our extremely advanced technology of today, that naturally, the White Race (or mankind) today is mentally, spiritually and intellectually more advanced than were the White creators of civilizations of say a few thousand years ago, and that we have advanced genetically. This is a serious fallacy. That the genetic characteristics of our race are continuously evolving and changing is certain. So are those of every other species of Nature. One difference is that our own characteristics have been changing much more rapidly in the short evolutionary period known as civilization. Changes can be for the better, or they can be for the worse. Unfortunately, the genetic quality of the White Race has not changed for the better in the last two thousand years. It has changed for the worse. Today the White Race is not as intelligent, nor as strong of character, nor as robust, as say were the Romans at the time of Cicero and Julius Caesar over two thousand years ago.

The Great Athenians. An even more striking example of dazzling genetic heights attained by some of our illustrious White Racial Comrades of the past is that of the early Athenians in ancient Greece. They, more than any other group, illustrate the profound effect which a numerically insignificant intellectual elite can have on the progress of civilization. Conversely, when and if such elite die out, and/or their genes are adulterated with inferiors, it also illustrates the dramatic consequences such racial pollution can have in the retrogression of civilization and on the quality of the genetic pool.

Galaxy of Illustrious Men. The noted geneticist, Edwin Conklin writes about the ancient Greeks: "In the two centuries between 500 and 300 B.C., the small and relatively barren country of Attica with an area and total population about equal to that of Rhode Island, but with less than one-fifth as many free persons, produced at least 25 illustrious men.

Among statesmen and commanders there were: Miltiades, Themistocles, Aristides, Cimon, Pericles, Phocion; among poets, Aeschylus, Euripides, Sophocles, Aristophanes; among philosophers and men of science, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Demetrius, Theophrastus; among architects and artists, Ictinus, Phidias, Praxiteles, Polygnotus; among historians, Thucydides and Xenophon; among orators, Aeschines, Demothenes, Isocrates, Lysias.

"In this small country," said Conklin, "in the space of two centuries there appeared such a galaxy of illustrious men as has never been found on the whole earth in any two centuries since that time. Galton concludes that the average ability of the Athenian race of that period was, on the lowest estimate, as much greater than that of the English race of the present day as the latter is above that of the African Negro."

* * * * *

Technological Advancement is not Genetic Advancement. Civilized man has been extolling the virtues of civilization ever since he first climbed out of the trees and pulled himself up by the bootstraps. This process, with a number of setbacks and advances, has jogged along until it has reached the high state of technical advancement we find ourselves in today. Man is proud of the civilization he has produced, and rightfully so. Overwhelmingly, it has been the White Man's civilization throughout the long milleniums of history. The mud races at certain times, like the horse, have served a temporary usefulness. But the mud races, unlike the horse, most of the time have impeded and stymied the White Man's progress.

Technology far outstripped our Social Advancement. Whereas the White Man has made simply astounding progress in the field of technology and science in the last century, that advancement is today accelerating at a runaway rate that leaves us breathless. Unfortunately, the sociological progress has not kept up with it. On the contrary, thanks to the parasitical Jews, in the last 2,000 years the White Race has made no progress at all in government, religion, language and social organization as such. In fact, we have retrogressed. We are not even as advanced in these areas as the Ancient Romans were in the days of Caesar.

Science and technology has far out-stripped social progress, as we have just pointed out, while the White Race itself has not genetically progressed, but retrogressed. For this we can thank International Jewry and the suicidal Christian religion they have foisted on the White Race.

Civilization Itself A Dysgenic Influence. In NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION we have already explored the devastating havoc on the White Race wrought by Jewish influences such as Christianity, race mixing, mongrelization and hundreds of other programs being promoted by our deadly enemies. There is one other influence that is also undermining the genetic health of the White Race for which the Jew is not entirely responsible. That cause, strangely enough, is civilization itself.

Let us first make our position regarding civilization unmistakably clear, however. We of the CHURCH OF THE CREATOR are not against civilization. We are proud of the marvelous civilization the White Race has produced over the ages and we want to make it clear we are for civilization—the White Man's civilization.

The main point of this chapter is that civilization—any civilization—has inherently the seeds of its own destruction built into the very process of civilization. In fact, eugenically, civilization has been a catastrophe to the race which created it. In short, it has been a dysgenic influence, downbreeding our White Race.

It is our objective to explore these seeds of destruction and how they can be overcome so that in the future the White Race can survive, expand and progress genetically for the next million years. Before we even explore the seeds of destruction we can categorically say that in CREATIVITY we already have the solution to the problem. But more about this later.

Civilization saves the Misfits. Basically, civilization is a "humanizing" process in which the weak, the misfits, the helpless, yes, even the morons and the idiots, are sustained and subsidized by those who are more capable of carrying the burden. In other words, those who in a primitive state of mankind would have been culled out by the ruthless but cleansing Laws of Nature, are now saved to reproduce. A more "humane" civilized society fails to cull them out, and instead carries the misfits along on the backs of those who are stronger. Furthermore, they are proliferated into our racial gene pool. Those who can cope subsidize those who cannot cope, and strangely enough, it is the latter who breed more prolifically.

Culling Process Thwarted. In this whole treatise we are talking only about the White Race, since we are unique in Nature's realm. We are the only species which has shown the capability of advancing our mental capacities over the ages to where a viable civilization is possible. Whereas the culling process of survival of the fittest also goes on in the case of birds, animals, insects, baboons and niggers, there is no indication that this culling process necessarily has increased the intellectual capacities of the latter at all. It may have sharpened their instincts for survival, perhaps, but not necessarily advanced their mental abilities.

A good example of this is the shark species. This remarkable species survived over the last 200 million years and is one of the most tenacious and persistent species on the face of the earth. But brain power? No. The shark has a relatively small brain and its intellectual powers are still practically nil. It is only the White Race that has shown the capacity for intellectual advancement and has demonstrated it over the ages.

Why then, hasn't this progress been a steady straight uphill line of progress?

White Man's Intelligence not advanced by Civilization. If we study the various civilizations of the past, we find that the White Man, much more so than Nature's other species, lives by his wits. He uses implements, instruments, cultivates agriculture for food, builds his own shelter and does much more. He uses his hands and his wits.

In primitive society, by the very laws of survival of the fittest, those most capable of using their wits, had the energy, and were able to cope, survived and lived to procreate. As a result, the intelligence of our ancestors slowly progressed to higher levels over the hundreds of thousands of years. Soon it reached a level where our ancestors were capable of starting a civilization, and this they did.

Culling Reversed. The forces that encouraged the evolution to a higher intelligence now became reversed. Whereas the slow-witted and those unable to cope in a primitive society were formerly culled out by Nature, "civilization" now came to their rescue. Civilization, per se, is organized to help "save" all members of society, including the dumb, the misfits, the weaklings, the lazy and the shiftless. As a result, these genetical defectives now too survived along with the more capable and more intelligent. They, too, survived to procreate and perpetuate their own kind, and thereby pulling down the genetic norm.

Intelligent must have More Children. But more significantly, another negative factor also comes into play. Extensive research has shown that even among our own kind, i.e., the White Race, the "dumb bunnies" (i.e., those of lower intelligence) on the average have more offspring than those of superior intelligence. The obvious consequence of this is that those of lower intelligence are expanding in numbers while those of higher intelligence are shrinking. Again the obvious conclusion from this train of events is that without Nature's "culling" influence, as in a primitive society, civilization breeds itself down, genetically, physically and in the realm of intelligence—a very, very deleterious consequence. It is this tragic chain of events that has doomed every civilization that has ever existed. It is driving our White civilization to disaster and suicide at this time.

Civilization Self-destructs. As the deterioration of the intelligence level begins to set in, for awhile civilization keeps advancing upward from the sheer momentum of the previous inventions, systems and benefits. After awhile, however, as the intelligence level drops still lower and lower, the succeeding generations are no longer able to advance civilization and it levels off. As the intelligence level drops still further, the race is no longer able to even sustain that high level their superior forefathers had built for them. As a consequence civilization, too, along with a dropping intelligence level, begins its downhill slide, until after another few centuries, the race that built it and the civilization they created, both slide into decadence and oblivion. It would do this even without the parasitical Jew on our back. The Jew is, of course, deliberately accelerating the process of disintegration at a frightening pace. This has been the fate of any number of civilizations that have come and gone and have paraded across the scenes of history.

Conclusions. Let us now analyze and summarize why genetically we have degenerated rather than progressed, why the magnificent Greeks lasted only a few centuries, and why we are today genetically inferior to both the ancient Greeks and the robust Romans of two millenia ago.

1. In the succeeding chapter on the Romans we demonstrate as to how their magnificent genetic stock degenerated in a flood tide of inferior slaves. We observe that the great Romans themselves, as prosperity beckoned, did not reproduce themselves at maintenance level, while the slaves swarmed in from the outlying provinces, rapidly multiplied and supplanted the original Roman stock. In short, the Romans died out without reproducing their noble race and left the Empire to crumble in a flood tide of degenerate slaves.

2. The Ancient Greeks, undoubtedly the finest racial specimens of all time, committed suicide in killing each other off in fratricidal, internecine wars. The Peloppenesian Wars between Sparta and Athens which lasted for years, is a typical example. But there were hundreds of other wars between the city-states, large and small, that were in the same suicidal vein.

3. Both Rome and Greece failed to reproduce themselves in sufficient numbers to maintain their unexcelled racial genes.

4. In ancient times as in modern times, the "Law of the Dumb Bunnies" worked to pull down the genetic quality.

5. Civilization with its humanizing influence of protecting the misfits, the genetically diseased and the morons inevitably pulls down the genetic fabric.

6. Civilization, in short, subverts Nature's "culling process" without which any species soon degenerates into a state of where it can no longer survive the fierce competition of superior species.

7. The Jew was already present in Ancient Athens (see the chapter on the Protocols in NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION) as he was in Ancient Rome, as he was in Medieval Europe, as he is throughout the White world today, working feverishly to mongrelize and destroy the White Race.

8. The Prime Essential that was missing in each and every White civilization was a powerful Racial Religion. Had the Egyptians had one, or the Greeks, or the Romans, or any other White civilization, the Jews would never have had a chance. In CREATIVITY the White Race finally has such a religion. With a strong racial consciousness, a strong flourishing civilization need not destroy itself, but can advance and live forever.

Is our present civilization and our precious White Race doomed to the same fate as overtook the Egyptians, the Greeks and the Romans?

CREATIVITY has a Deliberate Program. No, it is not at all necessary. The solution is clear and simple. A deliberate program of upbreeding in our race is the clear-cut answer. By having inculcated into our very religion the aim of encouraging the finer specimen of our race to have more children, by influencing the poorer specimen to have fewer or none, and finally, by sterilizing the morons, the idiots, the genetically diseased and the misfits, we can, in very short order, eliminate much of the misery in the world. We can do much more than that. We can set our race on an upward climb of intelligence and well-being such as the world has never seen before. We can march towards the higher levels of the Superman, and beyond.

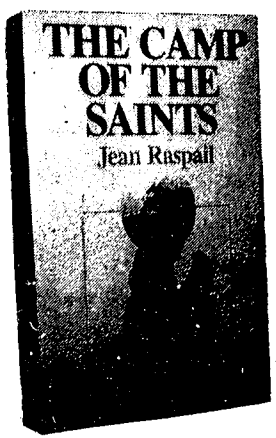
It is that simple. It is Racial Eugenics in practice. It is the very heart of our religion, CREATIVITY.

Lessons of Roman History. The benefits of a more capable, more intelligent, healthy White Race are incalculable. In the next chapter let us make a study of the virile and resourceful Romans, how they rose to dazzling heights and then fell miserably, never to rise again.

In the meantime, let us keep in mind: For the White Race it is either upbreeding and a glorious future, or miserably drowning in a horrible flood of mud races. Let us see what we can learn from the once great Romans.

continued on page 53

Does the West have the will to survive?



That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980 – except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy send $7.00 (which includes $1.00 for shipping) to: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, WV 25270 USA

OUR LOAN-RUN ECONOMY

The following is an excerpt from Der Deutsche Staat auf nationaler und sozialer Grundlage (The German State on a National and Social Basis), by Gottfried Feder, originally written in 1923, 17th edition, Munich, 1933. Translation of excerpt 1982, by F.B., Australia.

"When the State needs money, it has to borrow this money from those of its citizens who have more of it than they, themselves, can use. In order to get this money, it would, of course, have to pay interest, otherwise it would not get the money, having enough trouble as it is to place its loans."

These were the words used by the former socialist minister Dr. David during a talk with me in Berlin. I have used his phrasing here on purpose, because it reflects downright and in model-fashion the interest-oriented capitalistic way of thinking so typical of our age; that it was a Marxist of all people gives it only added spice.

Now, I know from hundreds of talks and lectures that the above words do so completely reflect our capitalist-interest oriented world of thinking that barely anyone felt how incorrect this reasoning in favor of an economy financed by interest-loaded debts was, let alone that anyone could answer this properly.

There is a very simple psychological reason for this, namely, that the above mentioned reasoning holds absolutely true when a private citizen wants to secure money for himself within our capital-interest bound economic system.

For the individual private citizen, as well as for the private sector of the economy as a whole, there is certainly validity to the sentence: "If someone needs money, he has to take up this money against interest from those who have more of it than they can use."

But it is time for us, as a matter of principle, to stop trying to answer questions of how to finance the national economy from the point of view of private capital, but, instead, take to statesman-like thinking. I contend that this in itself has been our main calamity that the way of thinking in terms of the private economy has been extended to the national economy without further ado.

After all, the state with its powers and sovereign authority cannot be put on a par with any given private citizen. Three mighty potentialities are there at the disposal of the State, from which, on the strength of its sovereignty, it can meet all its needs for carrying out its tasks. These are the sovereignty to require services, to issue money, and to provide finance.

Sovereignty to require services means the right of the State to call on its citizens to render services free of charge. This sovereignty of the State over the individual is manifested most impressively in compulsory military service and, even more so, in war-service. As against the demands made by the state on its citizens in time of war, all other private considerations have to stand back. The family, the job, the business, and the earning of a living, all have to be silent when the State calls its sons to the colors. But the State may not only call on its citizens for war-service, it may do so for economical projects as well; the Emergency Service Act comes to mind which, however, in stark contrast to military service, unfortunately made provisions for ever increasing remunerations for these services, so that soon a wide gap sprung up between the frontline soldiers, who day after day had to put their lives on the line for their country—at no pay—and those working under the protective shield of the frontline at home for high wages. Just in passing, some mighty achievements of other nations may be mentioned, which were based on the population being required to render services: the Great Chinese Wall comes to mind; the ramparts of our medieval towns. In practise, it would be quite within the sovereign powers of the State to bring back to life and to expand the bondmen's services of old requiring labor and cartage and to solve in this manner important economic tasks.

The sovereignty to issue money is a second potent source to the State by which it can directly meet its needs for money. No-one disputes the authority of the State to strike coins or to issue treasury notes, indeed, by virtue of its sovereign powers, the State has moreover made money out of all possible things. Out of copper, nickel, iron, porcelain, aluminum, and, above all, out of—paper. I only have to remind you of the time when our Government thought it had the right to issue daily 100,000,000,000,000 Mark and even more of paper money. We do not intend to lose any time here or considering in more detail the question of whether it was proper and permissible to do this, we only want to keep in mind here that the State, by virtue of its money-sovereignty, may well meet its needs for money by itself and that, indeed, it is forced in no way "to borrow the money against interest from those of its citizens who have more of it than they, themselves, want."

Likewise, I doubt that anyone can dispute the financial sovereignty or the taxing-power of the State, and whoever might feel inclined to dispute it and put it to a practical test just by himself, would soon make the acquaintance of the power of the State in the person of the constable. The financial sovereignty or the taxing-power of the State, i.e., the authority of the State to call on its citizens for contributions in money, are as old as any state-like structures themselves. This is also the most natural and the soundest form, although in this field it was left to our time to turn sensible taxation into a complete nonsense and to turn the taxation system into a means for plundering the people wholesale for the benefit of the Supranational World Money Powers. Here, again, we do not want to dwell on the question of the permissibility of taxes, but only point out the fact that the State knows very well indeed how to meet its money needs by way of taxes,i.e., in a way again not open to private needs, which, however, surely and by all means relieves it from the necessity to satisfy its money needs—as the minister, Dr. David, believed—by taking on the obligation of paying interest to the capitalists.

Of course, as with any private citizen, it is an option of the State to cover its needs by incurring—debts. This is a double-edged sword even for the private citizen; however, for the State, this is, frankly and to put it in plain language, the silliest thing it could ever do. But it is not only the silliest thing to do, it is downright criminal in view of the duties of the State as a guardian of the commonweal.

The loan-run national economies have led to the downright ruin of the states and have delivered them into the hands of World Finance; it has delivered the riches of the nations into the hands of the money-powers, and today the government-loans are the dreadful blood-suckers of which the nations cannot rid themselves and from which they will helplessly perish, if we do not bring this nightmare to an end by resolutely breaking this serfdom to usury.

This leads us right into the middle of the field of national finance, i.e., a field wherein the average citizen does not feel at home at all. Even the people's representatives usually head for the bushes when budget discussions start. What on earth is one to do with all those huge and numerous figures? The ordinary citizen does not follow the budget debates at all, and he holds such a holy respect for the sneaky paths and mazes of the art of finance that he would rather not be bothered at all with these things. Subconsciously, this is surely related to the fact that everyone carries within some sort of nagging awareness of the taxing-sovereignty of the State and the thought of having to part with one's money is fancied by no one. Only when the tax assessment comes fluttering into the house does our mate realize that these things are of real and considerable concern to him personally, and that he is the one who has to face the music resulting from any wrong financial policies of the state.

Now, it is utterly worth mentioning that at the bottom matters of financial policies are in no way as impregnable and mysterious as they seem to be at first glance, in fact, that they are basically so clear and simple that any average brain can grasp them at least in their outlines.

There is no need, therefore, to give any constitutional arguments to show that the State, indeed, possesses the potentialities outlined above before enabling it to cover its money needs, for everyone knows, and has bodily experienced, what tale there hangs by the State's sovereignty to require one's services, the bank notes passed out by the State go through everyone's hands day after day, and no one can keep clear of taxes. It would, therefore, be the most natural thing for the State to exclusively meet its money needs by these three kinds of procedure.

It is true that these three courses are impracticable for the private citizen, for he would be in no position to successfully recruit his neighbor for any contributions in labor or taxes, nor would it do him really any good if he were to try to print money on his own and bring it into circulation. To him, there is only one way open—to make debts and to pay interest if he is so downright sure that he can make his luck only with other peoples' money and not by staying clear of debts.

However, that the State, when in need of money, considers only one means to be the appropriate one, namely, to resort to interest-loaded loans—that is to debts—and nowadays makes use of its other sovereign powers only afterwards, in order to squeeze the debt-interest out of the people, this is a state of affairs that defies any justification. Any reasonable justification for this is just not in existence, but only the fact that, with regard to matters of state finances, our whole way of thinking is also completely fashioned, or better, infested, by thinking in private-capitalistic terms. In view of such a complete contamination of public thinking, apparently 'logical' justifications of the national loan policy, such as reported by me, are playing an important role, if not to say the dominant one.

With regard to these matters, too, the Jew proved himself a master in psychological inducement. Obviously, one finds it always hard in such cases, or in this connection not to speak rudely of downright corruption on the part of the responsible public figures, but surely, in spite of all that's said and done, there has not been any corruption involved in most instances, but only the fact of not being sufficiently versed in money and credit matters, of short-sightedness and indolence, that have led to the finance administration's slow but sure drift into the loan delirium, from which, up to now, they do not know how to escape.

This development was substantially aided by the fact that at first, in the case of big government projects, like railway constructions, etc., there was no harm seen in financing these through loans, as they promised to yield a return. The following conclusions were drawn: Out of the returns from the railways or waterways interest obligations can be met without trouble, as it is us who will lay down the fare policy. The State's own resources are not sufficient to allow drawing in one stroke all that is required from the own coffers, therefore, the State thankfully accepts the financial assistance of the banks. This saves the government the trouble of having to have new taxes approved by the diet, the liquid assets are left untouched, and the railway can easily pay the interest out of the surpluses. The seducing tricks of loan-capital which, left to itself, would in fact not know what to do with its money, if it failed to find somebody to take it off their hands and, beyond this, pay them interest, had thus succeeded in selling black for white and in making the State itself the interest-collector for private capital.

Even the simplest economical reflection on the part of any responsible government or people's representative body would lead, one should think, to the following result: If the railways are to be constructed with outside money, and year after year only 5% interest would have to be paid on these monies and everything else connected with it, then within 20 years the equivalent of the entire original amount has been paid back for a start, and twice that amount within 40 years and still the original debt continues to exist. These extraordinary sums, which exceed the original construction costs many times, have to be raised, however, indirectly by the people; to be sure, by the entire population which has to pay higher freight tariffs increased by exactly these amounts of interest. Approaching the nation's population only one time with a substantial railway levy is, or would be, therefore, far better. Then, for a few years this levy might have been somewhat oppressive, but not much more so than the higher freight costs would have been, and very soon the railways would be a really debt-free state-owned asset, securing a big annual income to the state for years to come. But here again, it is the same old story of knocking off the dog's tail a piece at a time, assuming it would hurt him less that way. The opposite is true, of course. No matter along which path one proceeds, in the end the prime costs of such a state-run project will have to be paid by the nation's population anyway, however, if a loan has been taken out, then inevitably interest will have to be paid on top of all that, adding up over the years to many times the original debt.

In other words, it is financial folly to finance public works of that sort by way of loans. A hint may already be dropped here on how the State is going to be delivered from this loan insanity in the future: No one can prevent the State, in the case of productive projects of this sort, from issuing credit notes, treasury notes, and use these to pay for the work. If the State were to create money in this way, under circumstances where no one would even raise the question of any inflationary effects, because these new money tokens would be backed by newly created assets, this would at once solve all the problems and free the State and the people for all times from interest gobbling debts to private capital.

We shall deal with this problem in more detail later on. An efficient finance administration should manage to arrange things in such fashion, that bigger tasks like these would be provided for out of special tax revenues in conjunction with other sources of government income, and only in part by issuing new money tokens. This possibility would, of course, only come about to some higher degree once all the remaining expenses of the State, particularly the so-called unproductive ones of administration, jurisprudence, and education, etc., could be met out of the surpluses of those public utilities returning an income.

This may sound like irony in view of the present debt-ridden budgets of the railways, the mails, etc., and, yet, we have not been too far away from such a possible state of affairs, as I have already shown in 1919 in my first article, "What Now?", published by the "South German Monthly" (February issue), under the heading of "The Radical Cure." From this ideal state of affairs we were only separated by the interest obligations of the State to private capital. The delusion, then already rampant to a high degree, that the State, when in need of money, would indeed simply have to borrow this against interest, has prevented this.

One thing is certain and, I suppose, everyone has been able to follow me this far, namely that the State is in now way dependent on outside money, i.e., on incurring debts, if it wants to undertake anything; it could, for instance, demand that services in labor or cartage be rendered, it could raise special taxes for such a purpose, and finally, it would doubtlessly have the authority to issue treasury notes for such purposes and in this manner to establish the works under planning without making them a burden to the population. Such a procedure would have the enormous advantage to relieve works of this nature right from the start of any interest or tribute obligations; the works would immediately become the unincumbered and debtfree property of the state. Within a short period of time even the treasury notes that might have been issued to begin with could be redeemed and destroyed out of the returns from these enterprises; the price for the products of such enterprises, or for goods or passenger services, respectively, could then be substantially lowered. This would mean doing the entire national economy a good turn in general, the State would have obtained some quite significant sources of income for the benefit of the entire population, and this would have made the State itself completely independent of High Finance. And this is how it should be. For the State is the master of the money system, not High Finance, which means that this is how it will be in the National Socialist State of the future.

The banks have to be blamed for having managed to prevent such an obvious and—once announced—quite self-evident train of thought from getting any hearing at all and to completely befog the government and the economy with the aforementioned cliche and hitch them to the wagon of interest gobbling capital.

I know, although these things are now as clear as the light of day, that many of my readers will continue to distrust their own common sense and simply refuse to believe that such madness was really possible, and they will prefer to think, "This cannot be true. Our government would surely not have been that stupid." This admission of their inability to judge for themselves how blatantly inefficient the State really is in matters of financial policy is contrasted by their usual readiness to know everything better and to their usual rallying against every governmental measure and, above all, to the fact that these are things that touch on everyone's sorest spot—their wallet.

I would rather have these people consider one more point, a point which deals with the technicalities of credit granting by the state governments or the Reichstag.

As you know, such big national projects are most thoroughly debated in parliament. Then, finally, at the end of these ever so long debates the "credits are granted." The average citizen now thinks that everything is fine and that the State, who is such a wealthy and mighty fellow as everyone knows, will for sure be in possession of those millions granted. The super-smarties might go on and scratch their heads and grumble that this would cost us new taxes again. But, I think I can boldly claim that—apart from the initiated, who must not necessarily include the members of parliament or the ministers—only very seldom is there anyone likely to realize that these marvellous credit grants of the state or federal governments mean nothing more than the permission to get these "credits" somewhere else against interest. These credit grants by the people's representatives do in fact merely authorize the minister in question to obtain these credits from the banks against interest. Therefore, the credit grants by the people's representatives are nothing but a mockery, a side-show; for the whole of the people, even though they will finally have to pay for capital and interest, to be sure, is not considered to be in the position to effectively provide this "credit," no, this has to be obtained from Big Loan Capital.

Surely, the only logical thing to expect would be that these credit grants by parliament should naturally and automatically contain the authorization for the Central Bank to now actually pay out and transfer these amounts to the contracting firms in accordance with the drafts signed by the departments in charge of the construction project.

The credits have been granted, however, the legal tender has yet to be provided in one way or another; therefore, it does not make any sense whatsoever to—as is now common practice—first float a loan and then to obtain from the capitalists, so to speak, for a second time, the credits just "granted."

Now, someone might be tempted to contend that, indeed, by going about things in this manner, the State was thus draining away again all surplus money available in the community, which, in general, would have a beneficial influence on the currency, and that the handling of credits in this way would counteract inflation. But this is, of course, not nearly the truth, and that for reasons which cannot be denied or refuted by any banking expert. Admittedly, a very small fraction of the subscriptions and deposits to such loans will really be contributed in cash, its source being mainly the small savings bank depositors who, for a change, had a go at a loan subscription because they had saved a couple of hundred or thousand Mark and now, for once, also wanted to invest them in interest-bearing papers, in such magical papers of which it is enough to cut off a section every year in order to have a certain amount paid out to you, without the papers thereby loosing any of their value. The amounts of money that reach the banks in this way are, however, very insignificant. Besides, the banks who receive such payments do not pass these on to the treasury, but the transfer takes place merely by way of bookkeeping entries.

All larger subscriptions to such a loan are, however, immediately effected by the capitalists through their banks, by cashless transfers or by way of business transactions of the banks, etc.

Hence, in reality, no cash comes into the hands of the state and if it should get any, this would, at any rate, have to be spent again immediately for the works in progress. Therefore, the suggested advantage really does not exist. What really happens, however, is this: As we know, the State issues so-called securities or bonds against the amounts borrowed. These I.O.U.'s of the State are more or less fancily decorated papers containing a deed for the amounts received and owing, endowed with all government guaranteed safeguards and, moreoever, containing the necessary provisions regarding the terms of interest payments , and, on seperate interest-sheets, the coupons on which the State has promised to make quarterly, semi-annual or annual interest payments based on the amount stated in the Deed. Furthermore, there is a renewal coupon added to these interest-sheets which entitles the owner to receive a newly issued interest-sheet when the original will have expired after a certain number of years.

Now, such a paper issued by the State and for which the State with all its assets accepts full liability for capital and interest, surely and without any doubt does constitute nothing less than 'purchasing power' in the hands of the holder. The owner of such government bonds can doubtlessly buy something with these bonds at any time, be it by directly using these papers for payment, or by first selling them at the stock-exchange or to his banker and then using the proceeds to pay cash.

Indeed, there cannot be any doubt whatsoever about the fact that the issuing of new bonds or other securities by the State would be anything else but the creation of additional purchasing power—whether or not it is right and proper to do so shall be of no concern to us at the moment—exactly the same thing would happen if the State were to print new money. The only difference would be that in one case securities would have been created that, in addition to the debt, would saddle the State with a continuous interest burden, while when issuing new paper money, there is no question of any interest charges. I think, by now it is not difficult for us to decide which way is the better one for the State and the people.

However, when we look further into this sort of finance, we find that the method of direct finance of public works, i.e., avoiding taking out loans, has enormous additional advantages.

We have seen that the mode of financing government projects now practised leads to the creation of additional purchase power which is represented by the new securities issued. In this case, the total amount of the loan has to be issued in one lump sum, even if the railways, waterways, etc., being built are still only in construction stage and do not yet represent any appreciable material assets.

If financing of such huge public works projects would be handled in the way suggested by me, firstly, all the enormous advertising expenses could be saved. One has to remember what vast sums are gobbled up alone by newspaper advertisements. Furthermore, just to start with, there would be no more rebates to the banks and credit institutes. These, again, go into millions. Furthermore, the laons are usually issued under par, in other words, for a bond with a face value of 1,000 Mark only 970 Mark, more or less, are paid by those acquiring them and, nevertheless, they receive interest on the full face value. These are losses, too, which accrue to the State, or the public works respectively, and benefit the capitalists. In fact, such loans are dressed up with additional 'attractions' by holding out prospects of extra benefits amounting to total tax exemption. I should like to remind you here of Erzberger's 'Premium Loan' which proved to be the craziest thing any government ever lent its hand to in the way of such incentives. The lottery and gambling mania was utilized in advertising the loan by promising millions in prize money on a large number of 1,000 Mark bonds; moreover, the prospect for so-called bonuses was held out and, additionally, a 5% return in interest; and on top of this, the Savings Premium Loan provided for tax exemtion for a wide range of other taxes!

Nobody ever wasted any thought on where those vast sums were to come from, with which to pay for these premiums and bonuses, for these fairy-tale lottery prizes, although it sould have been obvious to any serious and prudent person that all these amounts, in turn, had to be, or would have to be, extracted from the pockets of the people. For, indeed, the sums received in this way immediately had to be spent again to meet the most urgent expenses. These are all financial crimes against the people which can only leave us in a state of utter amazement regarding the callous impudence displayed in staging them.

Therefore, by keeping clear of the loan racket right from the start, and by making use of direct money-creation instead, all these heavy and unjustifiable charges to the budget would disappear; indeed, it would not even be necessary to produce in paper money the sums in question all at one time, but this could be done very gradually and in step with the progress of the project. This would have the additional enormous advantage that there would be no money issued without backing, as any new and additional money would only be issued whenever another sizeable portion of the project has been completed. Here, then, we would have money fully backed by material assets, which, then, would mean a stable currency, money counterbalanced by so many hours of work completed. Even this much to be preferred gradual issuing of construction money is not the final stage. For, indeed, it will not be found necessary at all to bring into circulation an amount of new money tokens equivalent to the new works being created, as the newly issued notes keep flowing back into the public coffers and can thus again be issued without any additional series of bank notes having to be brought into circulation. And now we go yet another step further by stating that, on principle, it is not necessary to issue any special new money tokens at all for such extraordinary enterprises of the State, although the concept of special construction notes is quite feasible and has served a good turn in illustrating things, and there is nothing wrong with sticking to this concept when trying to achieve certain ends.

This last step is the one toward a completely cashless financing of such national projects. As shown before, it is in fact wrong to suppose that a loan would put cash money into the hands of the State with which to pay the contractors and workers of the railways or powerstation construction projects. Yet, the contractors will still have to get the cash money for their weekly payrolls from the banks. The banks on their part have to cover these extraordinary demands on their cash-reserves through the banks of issue or the central bank. Now, in normal times, the total of the available liquid funds is quite sufficient to meet the payroll demands of the total work force, and, basically, it does not matter whether temporarily—as for example when the Walchensee Power Station was built—an appreciable portion of the work force was there concentrated locally, for had they not held a job there, they would have been scattered over some other plants or would have been supported by dole money. That means that it is the State's obligation to provide for the national economy's total need for legal tender, no matter whether or not a certain number of workers are temporarily employed in certain areas to create projects of national importance.

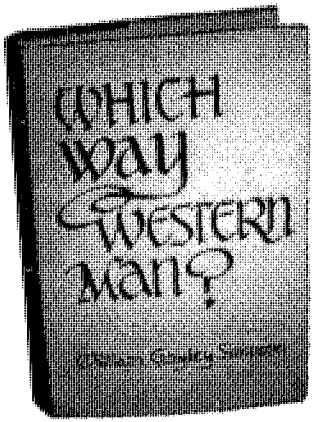
Providing legal tender for payrolls and effecting the remainder of cashless transfers to the contractors are matters of money transaction and have basically nothing to do with matters of credit.

It would, therefore, be most obvious and natural that, when the people's representatives approve the credit for some national projects, this should automatically include the granting of authority to the central bank to transact the necessary payments in accordance with the credits approved, after the amounts demanded by the contractors have been properly verified by the various government agencies in charge of the project, and directions have been issued in accordance with contracts and regulations to pay these out.

The entire loan-swindle racket sandwiched inbetween—for it is nothing but today's way of pulling the wool over people's eyes—is absolutely useless and only harmful to the nation. □

Survival manual for the White race



William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effects of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. WHICH WAY WESTERN MAN? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of WHICH WAY WESTERN MAN? send $17.50 for the deluxe, clothbound edition or $9.50 for the softback edition (these prices include $1.50 for shipping) to: LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy, WV 25270 USA

Letters to the Editor

Dear George: 30 December 1982

I'd have more respect for Christian Identity preachers if they asked their followers to worship El or the Elohim rather than the Jewish tribal god, Yahweh. Gen. 1:1 through 2:3 was probably only incorporated in the Bible because it justifies the sanctification of the seventh day of the week, but it is noteworthy that 1:26-27 of Genesis, God (or El) is said to have created man in his own image, and that he created them male and female at the same time. If you believe that, how can one accept the story of Adam being created from the dirt on the ground, and Eve being created from one of his ribs? The first Genesis story is a spiritual, non-Jewish version, originating in Mesapotamia, whereas the second Genesis creation story is strictly from the self-Chosen.

I'd have more respect for Christian Identity preachers if they told the truth about who the so-called "Israelites" really were. They were the Hittites, who really did create a powerful empire between Egypt and Assyria, were defeated by the latter and went into captivity after a series of military defeats between 838 and 712 B.C. Of course, there were Jews which lived in this Hittite empire, as there were Jews living in Egypt and Mesapotamia. Yahweh says that his Chosen may claim the land of anyone which they have stolen in Deut. 11:22-25. In the following chapter, Yahweh tells his Chosen to destroy the religions of all the peoples whom they encounter.

If Identityites claim the Bible as their own, and everything in the Bible is to be accepted as literally true, then obviously their plan is to conquer the world after the Jews are destroyed and impose their own mind control on the survivors; doing this in the name of Jesus instead of Jehovah.

The fate of the Hittites could be our own fate, with the Soviet Union in the role of the Assyrians. In Jewish revised history, our fate would not matter; it would be forgotten. Only the misery of the Jews would be recorded. Christianity would be as forgotten as the Hittite religion. No one but the archaeologists would express any interest in the language, customs, and thoughts of the White Christian population in this country, for after all, they did not believe in the Torah and Talmud, and, consequently, their barbaric pagan religion deserves nothing but contempt. Eventually, an American Identity movement might emerge in Australia and New Zealand, regaling the long trek of the Americans into Siberian captivity, and how some of them escaped. Then the wonderful American heroes would be expounded to the credulous dupes—unforgettable names like Louis Brandeis, Felix Frankfurter, Emma Lazarus, Robert Oppenheimer, Albert Einstein—all glories of the American past. These were our ancestors, they will tell the White remnant still existing in the Continent Down Under. I suppose at that point it wouldn't matter that Whites believed, since they would be only a tiny minority in a world teeming with yellows and blacks.

Sincerely,
J.P., Colorado

* * * * *

Dear Sir: 31 December 1982

JURI ANDROPOV IS A JEW, who changed his name from Lieberman to fool the Russian people and gullible political ignorants of the entire world. It is a shame that the vast population of patriotic citizens of the Soviet Union couldn't find ONE patriotic individual for the post which a foreigner, Andropov, now holds.

And so the Russian people will continue to suffer under the relentless rule of a butcher, who is Nr. 2, after Beria, who paid with his life for his atrocities.

What can we now expect? It is evident that an unholy Trinity—Andropov of the USSR, Begin of Israel, and David Rockefeller, representing U.S. Jewry—is ready to rule the whole world, including Reagan's U.S.A. Ronald Reagan is a vassal of International Jewry and is working for their benefit, just as traitor Jimmy Carter did.

Ronald Reagan must be defeated in the 1984 elections because he is promoting a false "Debt Prosperity," ignoring efforts to nationalize the Federal Reserve System, owned by International Jew Bankers, wasting taxpayers money on welfare cheaters, on foreign aid and on excessive armament programs, unwilling to stop immigration of undesirables, and is hesitating to eliminate the Department of Education in spite of his promises. Also, he is promoting the ages-old Jewish dream of a "One World Government," headed by Jews only.

So, what is needed? In time we have to find a strong man from among U.S. patriotic citizens and promote him as the next president. A good successor for Reagan might be Gov. John B. Connally of Texas.

Sincerely yours,
O.V.D., Oregon

* * * * *

Dear George: 31 December 1982

You do give every one a voice; i.e., G.E. Pittam's letter in the December issue.

How do we explain to this type of person that this is total war, that there are no morals, there is no wrong and no right—only victory! That we follow only one rule, that of the enemy, i.e., no rules at all. We desire no malice towards other races—only distance. Pittam is not talking, only chewing. His spitting Jew Jesus has hobbled our White Race for far too many hundreds of years, his Holy Bible (a field training manual to teach the White Christians how to hold still whilst the Yids screw them to the wall) has been a most insidious stumbling block to our White Race.

Have fairness, Pittam (that Bible again) says, Fairness?! Fairness and phosphor bombs for the women of Dresden?! Fairness for the women of Lebanon was more phosphor bombs! Fairness for the tiny tots, you bet, more phosphor bombs. How may we tell Pittam that White is inside, too?!

Only we fight for the White Race,
We only fight for the White Race,
We fight only for the White Race,
We fight for only the White Race,
We fight for the only White Race,
We fight for the White only Race,
We fight for the White Race only.

Sieg Heil!
J.D., New Hampshire

* * * * *

Dear George: 4 January 1983

In the early 1970's—perhaps 1973—Scribner's published Jean Raspail's THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. It made a big splash, then was swept from view by the establishment. To an avowed racist it is astonishing that the ADL allowed the book to be published here. Translated from the French by a Jew, undoubtedly it suffered by redaction. Much can be read between the lines.

As you know, the book is a fictionalized account of submergence of the White Race under a flood-tide of colored sub-humans, emanating from India and invading through southern France. America's racial tinderbox is inter-played throughout the story. Raspail, by the way, uses the colored/White ratio (year 2000) 7-billion/900 million.

All White men should read this book. All clergymen should read it as a devastating mirror of the Church's hypocrisy.

Yours truly,
J.V.B., Maryland

THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is now available from us at $5. + postage per copy. Order your copy today! —Ed.

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 5 January 1983

I enclose a small contribution of ten dollars to help with expenses. Along with the excellent Liberty Bell, I take several magazines and newspapers of the same nature, among them the Councilor which for some reason discontinued publication over a year ago.

The last two issues of the Councilor contained a full page advertisement about a "packet" of material on the assassination of JFK. I immediately ordered a packet from the first advertisement, but never received the material. Letters of inquiry to the Councilor and to Mr. Touchstone personally have gone unanswered. It seems very odd that they would accept payment and not fill the order. Since Mr. Touchstone is said to be a millionaire, poverty could hardly be a reason. If you have any information about the discontinuance of the Councilor, I would be pleased if you would write me a few lines on the back of this letter and return it to me in the enclosed self-addressed envelope.

With best wishes for your continued success,

Yours very truly,
A.N., New York

Only a day or so prior to receipt of the above letter, we had a phone call from one of our subscribers in Italy who told us essentially the same story. That was the first we had heard of the Councilor's demise, and we do not have any additional information. —Ed.

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 5 January 1983

The May 1982 issue, and especially Dr. Oliver's article on "The Uses of Religion," was excellent, as were the issues containing " 'Populism' & 'Elitism'." Along with my subscription renewal, I am ordering 5 copies of each essay. It is imperative that Dr. Oliver's works receive the widest possible circulation!

Best wishes for success in 1983!
T.R., New York

We remind our readers that we now have 'Populism' & 'Elitism' printed and bound in book format at $3.50 per copy. Reprints of "The Uses of Religion" are also available at $1.50 + postage per copy. —Ed.

* * * * *

Dear Mr. Dietz: 5 January 1983

When we make our resolutions for the New Year, we should put the Aryan (White) Revolution at the top of the list.

We should do everything we can to resurrect the racial instinct of our people. No sacrifice is too great when it concerns the salvation and preservation of the Aryan Race.

Each of us are salespeople, our job is to sell a positive idea of White Pride and White Unity to the sleeping members of our race.

To have an effective fighting force for the Aryan Revolution, we should concentrate our efforts to inform our Aryan youth of their enemies.

Having compassion for the mud races of the world is suicidal! They outnumber us 12 to 1, and are growing in numbers and in political strength every day. This is why we must act now to unify every Aryan man, woman, and child into one powerful striking force so that we may take control of our destiny, regardless of the consequences that our enemies might suffer.

I don't condone acts of racial violence, especially when Aryans are the victims.

When "civilized" methods of defense have no effect on our racial enemies, then elimination of the enemy is justified if the need should arise.

Violence, terrorism, and partisan activity is essential when the survival of our great White Race is at stake.

We should have no second thoughts of the price we pay. The survival of the Aryan Race is a tremendous bargain at any price!

I am enclosing $6 for Ben Klassen's record "Survival of the White Race."

White Power!
A.S., Illinois

* * * * *

White Power!—White Unity!—White Civilization!

Dear Bro. George Dietz: 7 January 1983

It's been some time since we've last corresponded with each other. But my mind, heart and soul has been in White Racial Solidarity with you all! As you know, I'm one of your book customers, whenever I am financially able to purchase the much needed reading material you carry. We are trying to build up amongst ourselves a White Cultural Prisoners Library, and we could use any books, pamphlets, literature, etc., etc., that you are able to share and spare! We could use any used, old books, etc. Any back issues of The Liberty Bell, White Power, etc. Please help us out, as we are in White Racial Solidarity with you all.

We could also use some names and addresses of some White Racial Organizations out there who wouldn't mind relating with White Racial prisoners. All of us here agree that your publications are the best we know of, and what little we have managed to order from you has taught us a lot!!! We must be taught by OUR OWN KIND in order for us to progress in the world. "Mein Kampf" is a literary masterpiece which has truly elevated our White Racial Consciousness! Could you share with us the book "Occult Theocracy," the heroic teachings of George Lincoln Rockwell in "White Power" and "This Time the World," and "The Zionists" by George Armstrong?

We are in dire need of your material, because you are our true teachers, Racial Patriots, and our true future! We are poor, deprived, and without any funds at present. I would love to purchase the four books by Henry Ford. We are a true Racial White Group here and we study amongst ourselves. We also teach other misinformed Whites about Niggers, Jews, traitors, etc.

We'll appreciate anything and everything you could share with us.

In Racial Solidarity,
Roosevelt Williamson, No. 75A-0795
Cell G6-344
Drawer B, Stormville, NY 12582

We have sent a "care-package" to this group of White men; any of our readers care to offer some more assistance? —Ed.

* * * * *

Dear George: 10 January 1983

Please send 100 copies of "Russia, Israel and the United States" by Klassen, and, if available, whatever number of copies of "An Appeal to Sanity" the balance of my remittance will purchase.

I, too, am pleased that you have seen through the Identity hoax. Your magazine is much improved. Please be careful when referring to "Christianity," though. Old Testament is not Christianity and much of the New Testament has been perverted by those who fabricated the Old. More to follow, soon.

Sincerely,
G.P., Idaho

* * * * *

Dear George: 11 January 1983

In the December Liberty Bell, there was a letter by L. Lee Layton. In that letter, Mr. Layton seems to condemn Ben Klassen for his stand on Christianity. I believe Mr. Layton says we should work with Christians to remove from the Jew the Power they have created for themselves with various types of propaganda, and other means not so kind. I don't seem to have the ability or desire to agree with Mr. Layton. I do agree with Mr. Klassen in all of what he says. My reasons are many and varied, and are as follows.

Christianity, in itself, is a doctrine of self-destruction for anyone that is a believer. Christianity was, in the beginning, and still is, being FORCE FED to the nations of the world by the Jew. Christianity is, and has been for almost two thousand years, the most POWERFUL PROPAGANDA TOOL THE JEW HAS EVER DEVELOPED. Christianity is, according to the Jewish Rabbi, Marcus Eli Ravage, a doctrine, a religion that is alien to the White Man, a religion that has stopped the progress of the White Race, a religion that has removed the will to live, the will to survive, the will to expand, and the ability of the White Man to think in a logical pattern, the ability to think with an objective state of mind. Christianity is a religion that has caused millions of White Men to destroy themselves and other White Men, in the Name of Christ, i.e., "Spread my name to the nations of the world, (and if the peoples of the world will not follow ME, then DESTROY THEM AND THEIR NATIONS IN MY NAME)." Christianity, the religion of Brotherly Love, that has caused Millions of White Men to be destroyed because they had developed the ability to THINK for themselves, and had become a threat to the power structure of the Church. Christianity, that offers Christ on a Cross, although he never got in that position until about 861 A.D., and then only by the stroke of an artist's brush, this Christ, according to doctrine, that DIED FOR YOUR SINS so you could have a guaranteed path to this home in the sky where you will live forever, this thing called Christianity, that has set the White Race on a path of destruction in the name of Liberty, Equality, Fraternity, and by the practices of these catch words, DID DESTROY the Roman Empire, and is in the process of destroying all of civilization by removing the ability and desire to face life on earth.

Christianity, the Monster LIE, concocted by the Jew, the religion based on deception and faith only, as logic and objectivity has, and will continue, to prove it a lie.

Christianity, the most effective, the most destructive tool ever designed

continued on page 37

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE GENTILES

by F.P. Farrell
Lt. Col. USAF, retired

In its 27 December 1983 issue, The Spotlight published a list of the "Primary Owners" of the Federal Reserve Bank:

Rothschild Bank of London & Berlin;
Lazard Bros. of Paris;
Israel Moses Sief Bank of Italy;
Warburg Bank of Amsterdam & Hamburg;
Lehman Bros. of New York;
Kuhn Loeb Bank of New York; Goldman Sachs of New York; and Chase Manhattan Bank of New York.

Keep in mind that these are the people who have, since the signing into law of the Federal Reserve Act on December 23, 1913, the exclusive right to CREATE our money out of nothing, lend it to the U.S. Government and big business, and when it is repaid together with the interest, it all, basically, belongs to them; no questions asked; no U.S. Government audit; they answer to no-one! (Your bank may be a member of the Federal Reserve (FED), but it does not participate in its profits.)

How does it feel to realize that this great super power, this country of ours, is but one of many "colonies" of the International Bankers. For they also own and control private Central Banks in almost all other countries of the world. As you lose your job, your home, your farm, how does it feel to realize that FOREIGN BANKERS have the absolute right to create our money—people who are not even citizens of the U.S.? It is to these people that we owe much—if not all— of our counterfeit NATIONAL DEBT of more than ONE TRILLION DOLLARS—monies deceptively stolen from the American people since 1913, when Paul Warburg fathered the Federal Reserve System through unbelievable deception! All these years, people were led to believe the U.S. Government, the Congress, in accordance with their Constitutional mandate, created our money. (The Ninth Circuit Court—Lewis vs. U.S.—has recently admitted that the Federal Reserve Banks are privately owned.)

This hoax is further compounded when you realize that the I.R.S. collects our tax monies, not for the U.S. Treasury, but for these international counterfeiters. (Many brainwashed I.R.S. agents are unaware of the hoax and honestly think they're doing their job.)

Time is proving Henry Ford, Sr. correct. He said in 1920, "I cannot vouch for the authorship, but the Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion are more true today than any time in history." Extracted from the Protocols are these statements: "We are going to collect all the gold and silver for ourselves, we will create inflation, we will raise wages, but we will also raise prices—and in the end we will leave the gentiles with worthless paper money." Seventy years after the birth of the Federal Reserve System, we have reached this stage of the Jew-Communist take-over.

Yes, Neighbor, Jew-Communism secured a real foothold in 1913, when the International Jew Bankers obtained control of our money system.

Communism is part of the Jews' strategy; Karl Marx, its founder, was an atheistic Jew; when the first Communist government, by way of a JEWISH Revolution in 1917, was established in Russia, 265 Jews from the lower East Side of New York were placed in that government.

The Jewish Kuhn-Loeb Bank of New York financed much of the Bolshevik Revolution; Jacob Schiff, Jew banker of New York, bragged openly about that financing; Russia, today, is still ruled by Bolshevik Jews.

When Senator McCarthy investigated "Communist" subversion in this country after WW II and started naming names, it was discovered that most of the "Communists" were Jews—that was the end of his career! The vast majority – if not all – of those people caught giving away American secrets are JEWS.

The TALMUD contains the writings of the Rabbis down through the centuries. Here are a few ideas expressed in this "religious" book:

1. The Gentile is an animal in a man's form, he is here to serve us.
2. You do not keep the Ten Commandments between yourselves and the Gentiles. If you want to keep them among yourself, that is permissible.

3. It is the duty of the Jew to take the Gentile whenever possible.
4. It is the duty of the Jew to take the life of a Gentile when possible.
5. The Israelites are more pleasing before God than the angels.
6. Non-Jewish girls who are less than three years and one day old are considered suitable for rabbis since Moses had written, "But all women children that have not known a man by lying with him, keep alive for yourselves, namely for the rabbis."

The Jews are the only race of people who preach racial superiority for themselves and hatred of the Gentiles. Most of us have been handicapped all our lives with only a CHRISTIAN education. We never considered that a race of people existed who harbored such hatred, consequently we accepted them as equals and never seriously studied the way of the Jewish Race.

Here are some other examples of hatred and deception: During the Feast of Purim, the Jews celebrate the slaughter of 75,000 Gentiles (Book of Esther). The Kol-Nidre is a prayer with which the Jews renounce, a year in advance, the sacredness of any vow they have to make in the forthcoming year. The hidden Jewish religious tax imposed upon the Gentile super market shopper by way of the Kosher identification program (Check your super market items for a "K" or (U) on the label).

Where are our so-called Christian churches in exposing The Talmud? Where are these churches in exposing the responsibility for the filthy movies, magazines, TV ? They, too, have been infiltrated by Jews.

Thomas Jefferson made the statement, "The Price of Liberty is Eternal Vigilance." We, the people, have lost control of our own government through a lack of vigilance and permitted the Jew-Communists to take over control. Their greed has brought the world money system to the brink of disaster, and their final move will be to create chaos and to take absolute and total control. If we permit this to happen, a new Dark Age will be upon us.

By capturing the banking system through their insidious Federal Reserve Act, they have created immense wealth for themselves; they control all our mass media, most of the businesses, and even our Federal Government. Any politician or person who stands up to them is immediately targeted for defeat, destruction, or death. President Lincoln is a typical case in point. He was shot by a Jewish agent of the Rothschilds for committing the unpardonable sin of printing Constitutional money—the famous Greenbacks.

The U.S. Senate has more than 10% Jews in its ranks. Jews have saturated the staffs of our Congressmen and Senators. Jews have a disproportionate share of Government jobs, and Gentiles are gradually but surely reduced to the level of slavery—as mentioned in the Talmud and the Protocols!

President Reagan is fully aware of the Jews' power, and he actively joined them in their pursuits. From 1946-1949 he was a member of the United World Federalists, a Jewish front. He was on the advisory council of the American Veterans Committe, which was exposed as a Communist front. In 1967, after the Six-Day War, Reagan was one of the featured speakers at the Israel Victory Rally at the Hollywood Bowl. In 1973 he was the recipient of an award from the "Bonds for Israel Drive." When he ran for Governor of California, his most enthusiastic backers were well-heeled Jews. Today, he is, as was President Carter and most Presidents before him, surrounded by Jew advisors.

Yes, indeed, the voices of the past are coming back to haunt us: Ben Franklin, who tried to ban the Jews from this country. Henry Ford, who hired a staff of investigators to expose the "World's Foremost Problem"—The International Jew. The Radio Voice of Father Coughlin, who warned us about the Federal Reserve System and the Jews' involvement in Communism. But, the truth cannot be suppressed forever; sooner or later the truth will come out, even when purposely and conveniently omitted from our Jew-controlled history books.

History is repeating itself. We now have the "Jewish Problem" so reminiscent of European countries throughout history. First comes the persecution of the Gentiles. Then they use their awsome financial power to: enrich themselves, create depressions and recessions, create wars, take over governments and government jobs, impose oppressive taxation, establish government snooping and controls, destroy economies, and create chaos among the people.

Eventually, the Gentiles can take no more and rise up against Jew control and oppression, as they did throughout the centuries and throughout all of Europe, and, most recently, in Germany. At present, hatred for the Jew is mounting right here in the U.S.A.

As preposterous as all this may seem, once you have ascertained all the facts, there can be no doubt that:

1. an organized conspiracy exists to rule the world—from Jerusalem;
2. The conspiracy is JEWISH, involving the Bolsheviks and the Zionists—with the Zionists in the driver's seat;
3. this Jewish conspiracy is following a highly refined plan for destroying, not only our economy and our Constitution, but all of the Gentiles' way of life;
4. this plan is outlined in the "Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion," and in "The Jewish Utopia"plan;
5. the Jews are dangerously close to world-wide success;
6. the Jews will eventuall fail and suffer the worst persecution in history—the Real Holocaust could just happen right here.

Proof of the foregoing is best reflected in the writings of the Jews themselves:

"Dominion over the earth belongs by right to Jewry. —(Moses Mendelsohn)

"The Jewish people, taken collectively, will be its own Messiah. His reign over the universe will be obtained by the unification of the human races and through the elimination of frontiers. A Universal Republic will come into being in which the Sons of Israel will become the directing element. We know how to dominate the masses. The governments of all nations will gradually fall, through victory of the Proletariat, into the hands of Judah. All private property will become the possession of the Princes of Israel—they will own the wealth of all lands. Thus will be realized the promise of the Talmud that, when the time of the Messiah comes, the Jews will hold under their keys the property of all the peoples of the world." —(Baruch in a letter to Karl Marx)

The French magazine "Libre Parole," in its issue for November, 1933, page 27; and earlier "La Vielle France," in its issue of March 10, 1921, published a remarkable speech of Rabbi Eichhorn, delivered in Prague in 1869 over the tomb of the Grand Rabbi Simeon-ben-Ihuda; he said in part:

" For centuries the Sons of Israel have been despised and persecuted, but — they have fought bravely to prepare the way for victory. Now they are approaching their aim. They already dominate the economic life of the damned Christians; their influence is just as great in politics and in moral fields. At the wished-for hour, fixed in advance, we shall let loose the Revolution, which, by ruining all classes of Christians, will definitely enslave Christendom to us. Thus will be accomplished the promise of God made to his people." (This promise is already accomplished in Russia.)

"The nations will gather to pay homage to the people of God: all the fortunes of the nations will pass to the Jewish people; they will march captive behind the Jewish people in chains and will prostrate themselves before them; their kings will bring up their sons, and their princesses will nurse their children. The Jews will command the nations; they will summon peoples whom they do not even know, and people who do not know them will hasten to them. The riches of the sea and the wealth of nations will come to the Jews of their own right. Any people or kingdom who will not serve Israel will be destroyed . . . . ." —(Isidore Loeb: La Litterature des Pauvres dans la Bible, pp. 219-20)

The importance of Zionist objectives was also emphasized in David Ben Gurion's incredibly brazen prophecy during an interview with LOOK Magazine, January 16, 1962, when he said:

"The image of the world in 1987 as traced in my imagination: The Cold War will be a thing of the past. Internal pressure of the constantly growing intelligentsia in Russia for more freedom and the pressure of the masses for raising their living standards may lead to a gradual democratisation of the Soviet Union. On the other hand, the increasing influence of the workers and farmers, and the rising political importance of men of science, may transform the United States into a welfare state with a planned economy. Western and Eastern Europe will become a federation of autonomous states having a socialist and democratic regime. With the exception of the U.S.S.R. as a federated Eurasian state, all other continents will become united in a world alliance, at whose disposal will be an international police force. All armies will be abolished, and there will be no more wars. In Jerusalem, the United Nations (a truly United Nations) will build a shrine of the Prophets to serve the federated union of all continents; this will be the seat of the Supreme Court of Mankind, to settle all controversies among the federated continents, as prophesied by Isaiah . . ."

Note well that the then Prime Minister of Israel announced that all the nations of the world would be disarmed and ruled from Israel!

"The great ideal of Judaism is that the whole world shall be imbued with Jewish teachings, and that in a Universal Brotherhood of nations—a greater Judaism in fact—all the separate races and religions shall disappear." —("The Jewish World," February 9, 1883)

"We, the Jews, are a people—one people. When we sink, we become revolutionary proletariat, the subordinate officers of a revolutionary party; when we rise, there arises also our terrible power of the purse." (Theodore Herzl—"The Jewish State"—1896)

"With gold we can buy most rebellious consciences, can subsidize all state loans, and thereafter hold the states at our mercy. Already the principal banks, the exchanges of the entire world, the credits of all the governments, are in our hands." (Rabbi Reichorn)

"I am not an American citizen of Jewish faith. I am a Jew. I have been an American for sixty-three years, but I have been a Jew for 4000 years." (Rabbi Stephen S. Wise)

